Mr. Speaker, the House has completed as many of the appropriations bills as possible, and we are over halfway there. The House has approved the appropriations measures for military construction, foreign operations, Agriculture, Defense, Interior, and VA-HUD and tonight, we will work on the transportations bill, and the remaining appropriations and reconciliation measures are to be considered in a timely matter after next week. We have certainly made progress with the administration during this year's appropriations cycle over last year's process, and I am confident that the House will continue to make appropriate spending decisions after the Independence Day district work period.

Independence Day is a time to be back in our districts, celebrating the birth of this great Nation, and listening to what our constituents have to say about the issues that are important to them.

The Congress has very important spending decisions to make, with limited funds, and time spent in our districts listening to the priorities of our constituents will be very worthwhile. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I feel that it is totally reasonable that the House return to our districts for the Independence Day work period, to reflect together with our constituents on the principles put forth by our Founding Fathers in 1776 that form the basis of our limited, representative Government.

I urge adoption of the resolution, and I reserve the balance of my time, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to make something perfectly clear, we are voting on this recess rule because, once again, the Republicans have not done their job.

This rule will waive provisions of law that require the Congress to get its work done before it recesses for July 4.

So, Mr. Speaker, my Republican colleagues barely managed to fulfill their responsibility last year and it looks like they might not get it done this year either.

Congress' primary responsibility is to pass 13 appropriations bills so that the Federal Government can function.

Section 309 of the Budget Act says the House cannot leave for July 4 until all 13 appropriations bills are passed. But, since my Republican colleagues have spent their time cutting Medicare and education to pay for tax breaks for the very rich, they haven't finished all of the appropriations bills.

Mr. Speaker, after last year's budget fiasco I hoped my Republican colleagues would have learned their lesson.

After Speaker GINGRICH closed the Government not once, but twice. After Speaker GINGRICH had to pass an unprecedented 13 continuing resolutions last year in order to buy time, I had hoped my Republican colleagues would decide to join us in putting families first this year.

But it looks like we're not there yet.

Last year the Contract on America was holding things up. Now, despite the contract's fizzling out, my Republican colleagues have only finished 7 of the 13 appropriations bills they were supposed to finish.

That is not the way Congress is supposed to run, Mr. Speaker.

And that's not the way the Democrats ran things.

During the last session in which the Democrats were in charge, 12 appropriations bills had passed the House by June 29. The last bill passed the House 2 weeks later.

And, contrary to what some may assert, the inability of the Republicans to get their job done has nothing to do with open or closed rules. This year, 60 percent of the rules have been restrictive. We haven't been spending time openly discussing and amending legislation.

Instead, my Republican colleagues have made enormous cuts in education, Medicare, and environmental protection, most to pay for tax breaks for the very rich.

Mr. Speaker, that's not what the American people want. They want their needs to be given priority over the needs of the special interests, and they want Congress to stay until it gets the job done.

I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing this rule. My Republican colleagues should do the work they were sent here to do.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am reminded that in one of his essays, George Orwell wrote that "Hypocrisy is the British vice." Our distinguished friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts, seems to adamantly wish to replicate that trait in this House. I went back just three Congresses, Mr. Speaker, three Congresses, 6 years, in reviewing the record on this issue of the Fourth of July break. Not once, not once during those 6 years, not once were all 13 appropriations bills passed at the time of the July recess.

Mr. Speaker, do Members know how many times we, when we were in the minority, failed to grant the majority unanimous consent on this issue? Not once. So I maintain that George Orwell's trait, when he referred to it as a British trait is being replicated at this point at this time in this House.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON].

Mr. SOLOMON. I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, it is a shame we have to be here wasting an hour on this adjournment resolution. I have never in my 18 years here heard such crybabies. What do the very rich have to do with this adjournment thing? On that side of the aisle, they seem to think that anybody with a job is very rich. Do Members know what I think? I think many of the Members who have never run a business ought to resign and ought to go out and meet a payroll. Then I do not think we would hear this "very, very rich" business anymore.

Let me just reinforce what my colleague on the Committee on Rules has just pointed out. That is that the Democrats have no grounds for complaints about this Fourth of July, Independence-Day-adjournment resolution, given their own track record.

Let us look at the facts. Our earlier studies show that not once in the last 6 years of the Democrat-controlled Congress in this House did they meet the July recess deadline for completing action on the 13 appropriation bills; as the gentleman just said, not once. So what are they standing up here crying for, and making all these absurd statements?

Since I thought that might be unfair to the Democrats to only go back 6 years, today I had the staff go back at least 10 years. We can go back 40, if Members want to. Sure enough, in one of those years, 1988, they actually did complete House action on all 13 appropriation bills by the July recess, once, back in 1988. Did the Members remember that? I was here, I remember it. I see the gentleman's hand go up, he remembers it. In all fairness to the Democrats, they did meet the deadline under the Budget Act at one time in their last decade in control of this House. That is a fact, Mr. Speaker.

How does that compare to the Republican 104th Congress? While the average number of appropriation bills the Democrats passed by the July recess in their last 10 years was 6.2, our average, counting today's transportation appropriation bill, which will finish about midnight tonight because of the wasted time here on this foolish bill, we have completed 7 last year, 6 this year. That averages out to more than they did over all those years, gentlemen.

So notwithstanding the fact that we still are rather new at all this, we have only been at it about 18 months now, we are still doing better than those guys did all these years. Mr. Speaker, what is really disturbing is the Democrats would take the time of this House of forcing this matter into the Committee on Rules for a special rule, just so they can say they are making some kind of an issue here.

□ 1815

Our survey of the last 10 years of Democratic control shows that in each year of that decade, the Republican minority, that was us then, permitted these resolutions to come up on the floor under a unanimous-consent statement. We did not waste all of this body and paying all of this overtime to all of these people on this foolish resolution. We acted instead in the spirit of bipartisan cooperation. That is comity. Remember what it used to sound like?

We used to have some comity in this body. So it is indeed sad that the Democrats have stooped to this to make a partisan issue on this Independence Day.

I am going to tell my colleagues something. I live up in the Hudson Valley. I represent the Catskills and the Adirondack Mountains. That is where the Revolutionary War was fought, Independence Day, July 4. I want you to come up and see where General John Burgoyne surrendered to Horatio Gates. That was the turning point. That was the battle that made this the greatest, freest Nation on earth.

What are we fooling around here for? All of us pack up our bags and let us go home. Let us see what it is really like back home, and let us stop talking very, very, very much. I never heard such goings-on. I will back up with fact this study, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, the reason I bring that up is because the Republicans said they were going to run the Committee on Rules completely different. They were going to run the Congress completely different. And they have not. That is why 60 percent of the rules have been closed and they have not brought the appropriation bills forward. So they are not doing what they said they would do.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 9 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY], the ranking member on the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to not talk so much about the past but about the present and the future.

The situation, as this chart shows, is that, if we take a look at what has happened to each of the 13 appropriation bills that we are supposed to be passing this fiscal year, so far 7 of them, those in red that reach this line here, 7 of them by the end of the day will have passed the House. Only one will have passed the Senate. There are three more which are moving their way through the Committee on Appropriations, and there are three which have not yet begun the move through the Committee on Appropriations. So that means that 7 out of the 13 will be passed through the House by the end of the day.

That is absolutely not the fault of the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON] or the leadership of the Committee on Appropriations. But I do think we need to look at what the problems are so that we can try to deal with them.

The problem, the main problem is that, first of all, the budget resolution was 2 months late. Because of that, the Committee on Appropriations has been forced to do in approximately 3 weeks time what ordinarily would take about 10 weeks to accomplish. That is in my view the price that was paid for the extremism that was reflected in the general budget resolution. Even the Republican majority in the Senate could not take the extremism represented by the House-passed budget resolution, and they demanded substantial changes. It took a long time to get them. That put us behind.

Second, we also have what I would describe as the "my-way-or-no-way" mentality, which still apparently dominates the majority party caucus in this House on a number of these appropriation bills. Example: Just last night we had an effort made by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. STOKES] to offer an amendment which would have repaired the problems on the VA-HUD bill.

The subcommittee chairman, Mr. LEWIS, graciously recognized that we had a problem and tried to deal with it, but he was overcome by the extremists in his own caucus. So they would up refusing to provide the major fix-ups that everybody knows are going to be necessary in that VA-HUD bill if the bill is ever going to become law. If those fix-ups are not made, we are simply going to have a bill that goes nowhere.

Just this morning in the Committee on Appropriations on the Treasury, Post Office bill, accommodation was reached on several items. But it has been made quite clear by the Treasury Department and by the Committee on Ways and Means, for instance, if I could add that, that the committee is insisting on extreme actions with respect to dictating how the IRS goes about modernization. They are insisting on taking actions which the Republican leadership on the Committee on Ways and Means says will lead to a loss of revenue. And if you have a loss of revenue, you are going to have an addition to the deficit. Yet when efforts were made to try to fix that problem, they were all rejected. So it is "our-way-or-no-way."

Again, it is quite clear from my conversations with Treasury that that bill will not see the light of day. It will never become law unless it is repaired so that we do not damage the ability of the IRS to collect the taxes that are due under law.

The Interior appropriation bill, because of the extreme allocation provided, has already been put on the veto list. In addition to that, the Labor HEW bill, because of the woefully inadequate allocation winds up providing $2.5 billion less for education alone than the President is requesting. That is going to mean a long stalemate unless we have a much more flexible attitude exhibited by the majority party in this House.

Mr. Speaker, I want to correct a little bit of history here. The last year that our party controlled this House, I chaired the Committee on Appropriations. We passed every single appropriation bill before the end of the fiscal year, every single one. Now, we did not do that because of any peculiar wisdom on my part. We did it because my party leadership allowed me to cross the aisle, go to the Republican leadership on the committee and work out a bipartisan allocation under the 602 budget process under which we agreed on a bipartisan basis how much money would go into each of those 13 spending bills. Because we had reached bipartisan agreement, we were able to pass all 13 of those appropriation bills on time.

The leadership of the Committee on Appropriations was never allowed to do that this year because of the extreme agenda already referred to by the gentleman from Massachusetts, which requires that we squeeze every last dollar out of education and every last dollar out of job training in order to fund tax cuts for people making $200,000 a year. That is the problem. Until that is gotten over by the majority party in this House, it is not going to be possible to pass these bills, and we risk running into the same kind of chaos that we had last year.

I would remind by colleagues that there are only 31 working days left before the end of the fiscal year. Can anybody tell me they really believe we are going to be able to finish all 13 appropriation bills, half of which are not yet through the House, only one of which is through the Senate, unless we get a far more flexible and a far more bipartisan attitude on the part of the majority than we have gotten to date?

Now, I know that the leadership of the Committee on Appropriations has tried everything possible to get their bills done on time, but they cannot be expected to perform legislatively impossible acts. When the leadership on the majority side does not understand the realities of passing appropriations legislation, then they put the leadership of the Committee on Appropriations in an impossible situation; and no matter how hard they try, they cannot deliver on an impossible set of orders.

So I would suggest, I know there is plenty of goodwill on the part of the majority on the Committee on Appropriations, and I know that people are used to being workhorses on the committee. They are used to trying to work things out in ways which make reasonable accommodations to people who happen to sometimes disagree with them. We had to do it when we were in control of the House. I would suggest that the majority party needs to understand that we had to do it when we were in the House if we wanted to get things done on time and if we wanted to get things done in a way which brings credit to this House.

So I think it is essential that we have a more reasonable attitude demonstrated by the majority leadership in this House. I think it is essential that we recognize that there are going to have to be major changes in the budget allowances provided these bills, because the President is not going to accept and the country is not going to accept short sheeting education, short sheeting job training, short sheeting other programs that are needed by middle class working people in order to provide $11 billion more than the President and the Pentagon are asking for, and in order to salt away money for tax cuts for high-income people. That just is not going to happen.

So if my colleagues want to know what is in store for us, recognize we are only halfway home in passing the bills through the House. Our principal obligation under the Constitution in this Congress is to pass our appropriation bills. I plead with my colleagues, we cannot get that done unless there is a much more flexible attitude on the part of the top party leadership in this House so that we can reach reasonable bipartisan accommodation and get the job done the way the country expects us to get the job done.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is important to realize the longer we take discussing this rule, the longer it will be until we can get to the seventh appropriation bill, the seventh appropriation bill, which we want to pass tonight.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Colorado [Mr. MCINNIS] of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for allotting me the time to address some of the statements that have been made previously.

First of all, I think we should start out with the preceding speaker, who keeps using on a routine basis the word short cheating. I am not sure what short cheating is, but I can tell the previous speaker that shortchanging is exactly what he is doing to the American people by continuing to frivolously argue a procedural motion. This is a motion that, when we were in the minority for at least the 6 years that we have researched, we never had a debate like this. We did it on a unanimous resolution.

Let me give my colleagues the history of what we have here, the criticism we are receiving. Let us first of all talk about what it is we are debating. What we are debating is a very simple management procedure, and that is to put this House in adjournment so that the Members of this House can go back to their districts on July 4 and work in their districts. Very simple. Very noncontroversial. Every year except now. All of a sudden it is a golden opportunity to whine about the majority.

Well, let us look at what we did, when we were in the minority and they were in the majority on the July 4 resolution for adjournment.

In the 99th Congress, the first session, did they have a special rule for this? No. We did it on unanimous consent. Did they have their appropriation bills passed? No. The 99th, second session. Did we require a special rule? No. Did they have their number of appropriations bills passed? No. On the 100th, for the first and second session both, did we require a special rule? No. Did they have their appropriations passed? No. The same thing for the 101st. The same thing for the 102d. The same thing for the 103d.

Why are my colleagues trying to stall this? This is not a game. We need to get to work.

Last night Members on both sides of the aisle in this House worked until 2 o'clock. Tonight, especially the way it is going right now, we will probably be here until 2 o'clock again. These people need to get back to their districts. This is not a controversial issue.

What has happened is, some Members have captured this as an issue to cry about being in the minority, to stand up and whine and whine. Frankly, we are not accomplishing anything.

Let us make a couple of points of clarification. The gentleman preceding me is a very good speaker. He brought up a nice chart, it looks great. He talked about how when he was on the Committee on Appropriations, when he was chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, why they were able to pass all of these bills by the end of the fiscal year.

Well, we are not talking about the end of the fiscal year on July 4. That comes on September 30. That is still several months away. We need to compare apples to apples. When we compare apples to apples, we find that the minority cooperated, and that is a word that we ought to use around here, cooperated with the majority when we were in the minority for the July 4 adjournment so that Members could go back to their districts for the July 4 holiday, although, as all of us know, it is not really a holiday because we participate in parades and we want to work our districts, and I think we should work our districts.

□ 1830

I think it is also very important to note, and I hear it again from the preceding speaker, about on one hand the gentleman says we need to have more cooperation around here. On the other hand, taking a look at the record of the gentleman's comments, probably every fifth sentence he turns around and calls it extreme positions, the extremists over here, the short-cheating, these kind of verbal attacks. That is not going to get us anywhere. Let us cooperate. We have got a lot of work left yet to do tonight and I think we need to focus on that work. I think we would much better spend our time dealing with issues of substance instead of arguing about a simple management procedural resolution.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY], the ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would simply note for the gentleman's attention that three Members of your own caucus have described what you did on the budget last year as being silly extremism and I agree with them.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. DOGGETT].

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I am stunned genuinely to hear the last speaker refer to whining, to refer to crying. I find even more stunning the comments of the distinguished chair of the Rules Committee referring to crybabies. I had thought that would be an incident that our Republican colleagues would just as soon forget, because all America knows there was only one crybaby involved in all this and that is what finally led to the Government shutdown last November.

Mr. Speaker, I think that America can look at what is happening here tonight and can say in short, "Been there, done that." We had your hurry-up-and-stop approach to government all of the last year. Where did it lead America? It led us down the road to two very costly Government shutdowns, and when all was said and done and we followed your path, the American taxpayer got a bill for $1.5 billion of wasted taxpayer money because you did not do your job and then a crybaby came along and pouted and we ended up with a Government shutdown and no budget.

The law on this is very clear. You are such revolutionaries apparently you would believe in flouting the law instead of following the law. The law does not say anything to prevent Mr. SOLOMON from going to upstate New York and talking to all the other revolutionaries that he might want to talk to. It says you can take 3 days and have your watermelon and your apple pie and make your Fourth of July speech but if you do not have your work done, come back to Washington and get it done.

The only reason that you are having to offer this resolution is you do not want to do that work. You do not want to follow the Budget Act that is written into our law. If you did that, you would not need this resolution. You profess so much concern about the budget, about getting it balanced, about protecting future generations. I share that concern.

Mr. Speaker, it is unique that the gentleman from Cleveland would ask me to yield. He is the one who raised the crybaby point last November when a crybaby did lead to the problems that we have in this country.

Mr. HOKE. Will the gentleman yield since he used my name?

Mr. DOGGETT. On your time I will yield for the full 30 minutes but on my time I want to talk about the way you are flouting the law, flouting the Congressional Budget Act. If you think that act is inappropriate, then change the law, but it is on the books.

Tonight we find that only half of the appropriations bills have been passed, and we further find that our Republican colleagues, including those who have asked me to yield, have boasted of the fact that they do not plan to complete their work, never planned to complete it, because, purely for political advantage, they have decided to wait until September, not until July as the law requires but to wait until September to even bring up the last reconciliation act, so they plan to provide us the same old kind of brinksmanship that led to the Government shutdown, that led to the crybaby incident, that produced the failure of the last Congress. I think America does not want a repeat of that kind of failure. It cost us too much before, and it resulted in a great deal of pain and anguish for millions of American citizens. I know it takes you time to get this job done, especially when you want to cut Medicare and you want to cut education and you want to put all these restrictions on enforcing our environmental laws. It takes a lot of time to figure out how to do it. But it is wrong and you ought to stay here and get your job done.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as I listened with wonder to the other side, I thought it was the water for a while, but no, Mr. Speaker, it is the political calendar. And what marvelous, weird things the political calendar can do. Not once over the last 6 years did they finish their appropriations bills, and we always gave them unanimous consent. Now at least the distinguished former chairman of the Rules Committee, the distinguished ranking member said, "Well, we thought that they would be different."

The reality of the matter is we are different because we are balancing the budget. At least we expected them to be in one way similar to how we were, and, that is, in essential courtesy. But they did not grant us unanimous consent.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA].

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I heard with great dismay the other side of the aisle, some of the previous speakers, talk about the Republican extreme agenda. I want to talk about the Republican agenda and respond to their comments. I have heard that, I hope, for the last time. They talk about Republican proposed changes in education, in job training, environment, and welfare. I want to talk about my perspective and how I came here and what I saw and what we tried to do.

First of all, let us look at education. We did not propose any cuts over the next 7 years in education. We actually proposed an increase in expenditures of $24 billion. It is not just how much money you spend on education or any other program. We are spending more money, billions of hard earned taxpayers' dollars on education, we are spending more on programs for education. The question is how you spend the money and what results you get.

Let us look at the results. Our children have diplomas they cannot read. I have 71 percent of my students in central Florida in one community college requiring remedial education upon entry. Is that success? We are paying for metal detectors in our schools instead of teachers. We have built an administrative bureaucracy, starting in Washington, in Atlanta, in Tallahassee, where we are paying administrators and we do not have money to pay teachers. Teachers and students are our last priority. It is this bureaucracy that we have built and we are supporting that the American people do not want.

Job training. Here is an article from several weeks ago in my local paper. This is a State of Florida report. State and Federal governments spend about $1 billion a year on vocational job programs in my State. Less than 20 percent of those who enter the job training program ever complete it. Of that, 19 percent get a job.

This is what the argument is about here. This is what it is about. We are spending incredible amounts of money, our people are out busting their buns sending taxpayer dollars here, and the job training programs in my State, one State, $1 billion, a total failure.

This is what the argument is about. This is what the shutdown was about, because for 40 years they did it their way, and this is the result. I have students that cannot read. You try to employ someone and get them with basic skills and you cannot do it.

The environment. We had a debate here yesterday about the environment. Superfund, supposed to clean up hazardous waste sites. What has it done? The money has gone for attorneys and studies. In Florida, we have one hazardous waste site that has had six project managers. One of the project managers came back and is now a consultant.

I sat on the committee that oversees the EPA, and you will find that the people that work now as consultants are former EPA employees, about 80 to 90 percent of them. An incestuous relationship.

A GAO study last year said that the sites that they picked to clean up, the few that they clean up, are not the sites that pose the most risk to our children's health and our public safety.

Is what we are doing with your dollars, your taxpayer dollars in the environment, what we have done, what we have set up, is it effective? The answer is no. You are paying more and getting less. Forty years of tax-and-spend. They tried taxing you even more here.

I submit the reason the American people feel like they have less is because they have less, because they have taxed you more in the past 3 years. You have less, you have less opportunity, and you have less left over in your paycheck, whether you are a senior citizen and they taxed your Social Security, whether they gave more money to those who wash up on our shores illegally than they gave in benefits to our veterans.

That is what this is about. It took shutting government down. And then the President tried to embarrass us. He was as guilty as anyone in the process. He did not want to work together. He wanted to make political advantage of it. This is what it is about.

Then Medicare. They destroyed Medicare. They are watching it die on the vine and they do not care about it. I have family members who are senior citizens that depend on Medicare. We want to save Medicare. We want to protect Medicare. They want to destroy it.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, would the Chair tell me how much time the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DIAZ-BALART] and I have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MOAKLEY] has 12½ minutes remaining, and gentleman from Florida [Mr. DIAZ-BALART] has 11½ minutes remaining.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Ms. DELAURO].

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to hear the gentleman who just spoke talk about how it took shutting the Government down. It was their deliberate action to shut the Government down twice, and to provide the American people with the pain that they felt in the United States Government being shut down. By their own admission, they deliberately shut the Government down.

As for withering on the vine, we know whose quote that is. The Speaker of the House has talked about Medicare withering on the vine, that "We cannot go after it in this round, but we go after it next year, so in fact it will wither on the vine," destroying Medicare for the people today and tomorrow who depend on the Medicare system.

Also the gentleman from Florida spoke of Republicans balancing the budget. Well, my friends, on the contrary, the exact opposite is true. Republicans passed the budget in this House 2 weeks ago that in fact increased the deficit for each of the next 2 years by $40 billion.

By their own admission, the Republican freshmen revolted. They said they did not come here to increase the deficit, that in fact they came here to balance the budget, and they revolted. However, some of them had their arms twisted so that in fact the Republican majority could pass a budget that increases the deficit over the next 2 years. Let us get the facts straight.

Mr. Speaker, the adjournment resolution has been made necessary by the majority's failure to make the progress required under the Budget Act. This resolution is the perfect commentary for a Congress whose legacy is a failure to live up to its fiduciary responsibility to tend to the public interest. Half of the annual appropriations bills have not been passed by this Chamber.

□ 1845

The Speaker and the Republican majority, they want to go home for a Fourth of July vacation. They shut the Government down again by their own admission today, and they had to do it.

Mr. Speaker, last year Speaker GINGRICH shut down the Government, went home for Christmas vacation, and now the Republican majority wants us to pass this resolution. It is a little bit like getting a note from home, letting them off the hook because they have not done their homework.

This is the Republican revolution, and when will these revolutionaries grow up and take their responsibilities to the American people seriously? Commerce, State, Energy and Water, Treasury, Postal, Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, the list of unfinished business goes on and on and on for the last 20 months. They have not fooled the American public where they have said that what they truly want to do is to cut Medicare, Medicaid, education and the environment to pay for tax breaks for the wealthy. That is what the last 19 months has been about, and in the last month, they capped it off with passing a budget that increases the deficit.

Mr. Speaker, I call on my colleagues, vote against this resolution. Let us stay on the job until the people's business is done in the people's House.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we want to get back to work. We never, when we were in the minority, took up an hour on this procedural motion. Obviously, they have the procedural right to do this if they so wish, and they are doing it. It is a shame because we want to get to work on the seven appropriations bill which we have to ready for consideration in the House, the transportation appropriations bill.

But not all Members on the other side of the aisle want to refuse to go to work. As a matter of fact, I would like to recognize for a couple of minutes at this point the distinguished gentleman from the other side of the aisle but who wants to go to work, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT], for 2 minutes.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to get in the middle of a balanced budget debate. Quite frankly, I do not think either party is going to balance the budget. I think people are going to be looking for jobs in Mexico the way things are going around here.

I have been here a number of years, and I think there was only 1 year under Jim Wright where we had all of these appropriation bills done by July 4th. The American taxpayers and workers have to work till July 3 to pay for Federal taxes, State taxes, local taxes, and for the regulatory burden they have; July 3.

We have staff around here that is burned out. Democrats very rarely finish their programs by the Fourth of July. I dearly love the ranking chairman, the former chairman of the Committee on Rules. This is no slight to the chairman. I am going to vote for the rule. I am going to vote for the resolution. I am going to vote to adjourn. The Republican Party is at least working on these particular issues. I think we have gone an hour on this. Quite frankly, I have never seen this happen before. Now, my last recollection was 1998, Jim Wright, we had all these appropriation bills done on time. We have set no record ourself. I am going to vote for the rule, and I am going to vote for the resolution.

I think as a body we should consider the staff that works here. Sometimes they go till 3 in the morning, get back at 7, and I think we should be a little more considerate.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from North Dakota [Mr. POMEROY].

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, there are times when we are in our office working away and we hear one of the speeches on the floor coming over that C-SPAN channel and we are compelled to set the record straight. It is indeed this feeling of being compelled to set the record straight that brings me forward to address the rule before us.

While my preceding speaker, my colleagues and friend, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT], acknowledged that it may be unusual to have all the appropriations bills done by this point in time, I would make the point that we have never, ever seen such a debacle with the handling of appropriations bills that we saw in the first year of this 104th Congress.

This House of Representatives has never, ever shut the Federal Government of this country down because it could not, would not get work done. That is the sorry legacy of the 104th Congress, and I do not think it is too much to expect that they would therefore try to get it done by the time the law says it has to be done, not have to come to the floor, ever chomping at the bit to climb on some airplane and fly home and waive the law, waive the completion requirement for getting the appropriations business done.

In light of the record of this Congress, we have got to wonder, I think the American taxpayers have to wonder, just what is coming, what can they expect. Another shutdown when at the end of the fiscal year the work has yet to be completed?

There are some fact issues that have been egregiously misrepresented. Those include funding for education and training. In fact, I heard a preceding speaker allege that any suggestions that reductions in education funding simply are false statements. Well, let me tell my colleagues, those statements are the false statements. In fact, overall education and training budget authority is $60 billion below the President's plan for 1996 through 2002. The Republican funding cut for fiscal year 1996 through 2002 is $58 billion in real terms, or 19 percent below the 1995 enacted level. Nineteen percent below the 1995 enacted level. Nineteen percent below the 1995 enacted level, and we have a suggestion that there has been no reduction in education funding. Hogwash. There is a record here, and a record some of our colleagues might want to deny, but the fact of the matter is a record very firmly established, and the record is there have been cuts to education.

Medicare, oh, we are going to hear a lot in the next few months about people's concern about Medicare, but the fact of the matter is there was a resolution that passed this Congress that cut Medicare $270 billion. Our colleagues say it had to do with fixing the trust fund. Well, we know what it had to do with. It had to do with funding a $245 billion tax cut, disproportionately benefiting the wealthiest people in this country. It is a record, a record of the 104th Congress and, if I was in the majority, not a record to be very proud of.

There are a number of other examples. The reduction in earned income tax credit, the proposed $17 billion tax increase to working families. All of these have constituted the record of this Congress.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. POMEROY. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, all of this, with all of those failures, all those attempts to wreck education, to wreck Medicare, what they call reconciliation, which was the right name for that bill that they did that it, all of that and then they have come, have they not, this year and they are actually increasing the budget deficit with the bills that they have proposed and not passed, they are going to increase the budget deficit this year after we had it on the path the last 4 years coming down every single year under Democratic leadership.

This year they have passed a bill to increase the deficit this year, then to do it again next year. Maybe that is why they want to go home: they are not too proud of the increases that they proposed this year and next year.

Mr. POMEROY. Reclaiming my time, I think the gentleman's point is well taken.

As we know, they barely passed that budget resolution, and now we read in the Washington Post today the Speaker has convened a team of Pentagon officers on loan to do an after-action review, military jargon for "how come it was such a close call?" I could tell the Speaker if he would just call me. It was a close call because it did not drop the deficit toward a balanced budget, it raised the deficit. The Speaker is going to send home Members of his own caucus; the only record they will have in advancing toward a balanced budget is the deficit going up on their watch. That is why the Speaker barely passed his budget.

Mr. DOGGETT. If the gentleman will continue to yield, I believe that the more the American people find out about these failures of this Congress that some of these folks are going to have an opportunity to go home for a lot longer than 3 days.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his question.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON], chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, being one of those Members who just happened to walk in, having been one of those Members who happened to be back in his office watching C-SPAN and being compelled to come to the floor to respond to the last speaker and his comments, I have to say that I am compelled to set the record straight.

We have just completed six bills in the appropriations cycle. We are going to complete the seventh tonight, the seventh, I remind the Members, before the July 4 recess.

And how interesting it is I have in my hand a record of the last five Congresses. I have to say the gentleman who preceded me might have been right; in the 103d Congress, both sessions, they did exceed the number of bills that we have had, but in the 102d, second session, the Democrats only passed six bills out of the House before the July 4 recess. In the 101st Congress, they missed in both sessions. In the second session, it was only three. In the first session it was only one.

Now, they did it all right in the 100th Congress, in the second session. But in the first session, they only passed six. And my goodness, in the 99th Congress, if I do recall correctly, the Democrats controlled not only the 99th but the 98th and the 97th all the way back for 40 years, and they had had a lot of practice. They had had a lot of practice, but they only passed one single appropriation bill in the second session and guess how many in the first session. I am shocked: zero. Zero appropriation bills before the Fourth of July.

Let us hear about this appalling record. In not only the 103d, the 102d, the 101st, all the way back, do my colleagues know that since World War II, they only balanced the budget about three times, three single years? And all those other years they spent more than they received, sometimes as much as $100 billion a year, sometimes as much as $200 billion a year, sometimes as much as 300 or more billion dollars a year. And they aggregated about $5 trillion worth of debt.

Now, did they do anything about it? Did they sit in their office and feel compelled by their viewing of C-SPAN to come to the floor and condemn a record that accumulated $5 trillion worth of debt? Did they feel compelled to scream out about the $20,000 debt imposed upon every man, woman, and child in America? No, of course not. They would pass another program. They would establish another agency. They would create another department. They would go home for the Fourth of July and say, "Look what I have done for you with your money. We are going to borrow more money." That is what they accomplished. They accomplished a record of profligate spending unparalleled by any nation in the world. What they have accomplished is giving our children a legacy that they will not be able to repay.

Now, this July 4, we can go home because of the record of the 104th Congress and we can say we passed a series of rescission bills in the spring of 1995 that cut $20 billion from what was appropriated by the previous Democrat Congress. In the fall, yes, the process took a long time, and I am sorry that it made all of us work so hard, and I am sorry that the President vetoed three bills, and I am sorry that the Democrats filibustered the biggest bill, the Labor-Health bill in the Senate. But the 1996 process saved the American people another $23 billion. We are midway through the 1997 process, and I hope we are going to save another $15 to $20 billion.

So below what was appropriated by the Democrats in the last Congress in which they had control, we have saved the American taxpayer some $60 billion. If you look at the budget projected by the President, had he had that spendthrift Congress, we have saved about $80 billion. That is a record.

☐ 1900

That is a record on which we can be very, very proud for the Fourth of July.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, at the beginning of this Congress the Republican majority claimed that the House was going to consider bills under an open process.

I would like to point out that 60 percent of the legislation this session has been considered under a restrictive process.

Mr. Speaker, I include the following extraneous material for the RECORD:

FLOOR PROCEDURE IN THE 104TH CONGRESS 1ST SESSION; COMPILED BY THE RULES COMMITTEE DEMOCRATS

Bill No.	Title	Resolution No.	Process used for floor consideration	Amendments in order
H.R. 1*	Compliance	H. Res. 6	Closed	None.
H. Res. 6	Opening Day Rules Package	H. Res. 5	Closed	None.
H.R. 5*	Unfunded Mandates	H. Res. 38	Restrictive	N/A.
H.J. Res. 2*	Balanced Budget	H. Res. 44	Restrictive	2R; 4D.
H. Res. 43	Committee Hearings Scheduling	H. Res. 43 (OJ)	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 101	To transfer a parcel of land to the Taos Pueblo Indians of New Mexico.	H. Res. 51	Open	N/A.
H.R. 400	To provide for the exchange of lands within Gates of the Arctic National Park Preserve.	H. Res. 52	Open	N/A.
H.R. 440	To provide for the conveyance of lands to certain individuals in Butte County, California.	H. Res. 53	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2*	Line Item Veto	H. Res. 55	Open	N/A.
H.R. 665*	Victim Restitution Act of 1995	H. Res. 61	Open	N/A.
H.R. 666*	Exclusionary Rule Reform Act of 1995	H. Res. 60	Open	N/A.
H.R. 667*	Violent Criminal Incarceration Act of 1995	H. Res. 63	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 668*	The Criminal Alien Deportation Improvement Act	H. Res. 69	Open	N/A.
H.R. 728*	Local Government Law Enforcement Block Grants	H. Res. 79	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 7*	National Security Revitalization Act	H. Res. 83	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 729*	Death Penalty/Habeas	N/A	Restrictive	N/A.
S. 2	Senate Compliance	N/A	Closed	None.
H.R. 831	To Permanently Extend the Health Insurance Deduction for the Self-Employed.	H. Res. 88	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 830*	The Paperwork Reduction Act	H. Res. 91	Open	N/A.
H.R. 889	Emergency Supplemental/Rescinding Certain Budget Authority	H. Res. 92	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 450*	Regulatory Moratorium	H. Res. 93	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 1022*	Risk Assessment	H. Res. 96	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 926*	Regulatory Flexibility	H. Res. 100	Open	N/A.
H.R. 925*	Private Property Protection Act	H. Res. 101	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 1058*	Securities Litigation Reform Act	H. Res. 105	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 988*	The Attorney Accountability Act of 1995	H. Res. 104	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 956*	Product Liability and Legal Reform Act	H. Res. 109	Restrictive	8D; 7R.
H.R. 1158	Making Emergency Supplemental Appropriations and Rescissions	H. Res. 115	Restrictive	N/A.
H.J. Res. 73*	Term Limits	H. Res. 116	Restrictive	1D; 3R
H.R. 4*	Welfare Reform	H. Res. 119	Restrictive	5D; 26R.
H.R. 1271*	Family Privacy Act	H. Res. 125	Open	N/A.
H.R. 660*	Housing for Older Persons Act	H. Res. 126	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1215*	The Contract With America Tax Relief Act of 1995	H. Res. 129	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 483	Medicare Select Extension	H. Res. 130	Restrictive	1D.

FLOOR PROCEDURE IN THE 104TH CONGRESS 1ST SESSION; COMPILED BY THE RULES COMMITTEE DEMOCRATS—Continued

Bill No.	Title	Resolution No.	Process used for floor consideration	Amendments in order
H.R. 655	Hydrogen Future Act	H. Res. 136	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1361	Coast Guard Authorization	H. Res. 139	Open	N/A.
H.R. 961	Clean Water Act	H. Res. 140	Open	N/A.
H.R. 535	Corning National Fish Hatchery Conveyance Act	H. Res. 144	Open	N/A.
H.R. 584	Conveyance of the Fairport National Fish Hatchery to the State of Iowa.	H. Res. 145	Open	N/A.
H.R. 614	Conveyance of the New London National Fish Hatchery Production Facility.	H. Res. 146	Open	N/A.
H. Con. Res. 67	Budget Resolution	H. Res. 149	Restrictive	3D; 1R.
H.R. 1561	American Overseas Interests Act of 1995	H. Res. 155	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 1530	National Defense Authorization Act; FY 1996	H. Res. 164	Restrictive	36R; 18D; 2 Bipartisan.
H.R. 1817	Military Construction Appropriations; FY 1996	H. Res. 167	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1854	Legislative Branch Appropriations	H. Res. 169	Restrictive	5R; 4D; 2 Bipartisan.
H.R. 1868	Foreign Operations Appropriations	H. Res. 170	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1905	Energy & Water Appropriations	H. Res. 171	Open	N/A.
H.J. Res. 79	Constitutional Amendment to Permit Congress and States to Prohibit the Physical Desecration of the American Flag.	H. Res. 173	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 1944	Recissions Bill	H. Res. 175	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 1868 (2nd rule)	Foreign Operations Appropriations	H. Res. 177	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 1977 Rule Defeated	Interior Appropriations	H. Res. 185	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1977	Interior Appropriations	H. Res. 187	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1976	Agriculture Appropriations	H. Res. 188	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1977 (3rd rule)	Interior Appropriations	H. Res. 189	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 2020	Treasury Postal Appropriations	H. Res. 190	Open	N/A.
H.J. Res. 96	Disapproving MFN for China	H. Res. 193	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 2002	Transportation Appropriations	H. Res. 194	Open	N/A.
H.R. 70	Exports of Alaskan North Slope Oil	H. Res. 197	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2076	Commerce, Justice Appropriations	H. Res. 198	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2099	VA/HUD Appropriations	H. Res. 201	Open	N/A.
S. 21	Termination of U.S. Arms Embargo on Bosnia	H. Res. 204	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 2126	Defense Appropriations	H. Res. 205	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1555	Communications Act of 1995	H. Res. 207	Restrictive	2R/3D/3 Bipartisan.
H.R. 2127	Labor/HHS Appropriations Act	H. Res. 208	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1594	Economically Targeted Investments	H. Res. 215	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1655	Intelligence Authorization	H. Res. 216	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 1162	Deficit Reduction Lock Box	H. Res. 218	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1670	Federal Acquisition Reform Act of 1995	H. Res. 219	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1617	To Consolidate and Reform Workforce Development and Literacy Programs Act (CAREERS).	H. Res. 222	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2274	National Highway System Designation Act of 1995	H. Res. 224	Open	N/A.
H.R. 927	Cuban Liberty and Democratic Solidarity Act of 1995	H. Res. 225	Restrictive	2R/2D.
H.R. 743	The Teamwork for Employees and Managers Act of 1995	H. Res. 226	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1170	3-Judge Court for Certain Injunctions	H. Res. 227	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1601	International Space Station Authorization Act of 1995	H. Res. 228	Open	N/A.
H.J. Res. 108	Making Continuing Appropriations for FY 1996	H. Res. 230	Closed
H.R. 2405	Omnibus Civilian Science Authorization Act of 1995	H. Res. 234	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2259	To Disapprove Certain Sentencing Guideline Amendments	H. Res. 237	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 2425	Medicare Preservation Act	H. Res. 238	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 2492	Legislative Branch Appropriations Bill	H. Res. 239	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 2491 H. Con. Res. 109	7 Year Balanced Budget Reconciliation Social Security Earnings Test Reform.	H. Res. 245	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 1833	Partial Birth Abortion Ban Act of 1995	H. Res. 251	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 2546	D.C. Appropriations FY 1996	H. Res. 252	Restrictive	N/A.
H.J. Res. 115	Further Continuing Appropriations for FY 1996	H. Res. 257	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 2586	Temporary Increase in the Statutory Debt Limit	H. Res. 258	Restrictive	5R.
H.R. 2539	ICC Termination	H. Res. 259	Open
H.J. Res. 115	Further Continuing Appropriations for FY 1996	H. Res. 261	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 2586	Temporary Increase in the Statutory Limit on the Public Debt	H. Res. 262	Closed	N/A.
H. Res. 250	House Gift Rule Reform	H. Res. 268	Closed	2R.
H.R. 2564	Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995	H. Res. 269	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2606	Prohibition on Funds for Bosnia Deployment	H. Res. 273	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 1788	Amtrak Reform and Privatization Act of 1995	H. Res. 289	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1350	Maritime Security Act of 1995	H. Res. 287	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2621	To Protect Federal Trust Funds	H. Res. 293	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 1745	Utah Public Lands Management Act of 1995	H. Res. 303	Open	N/A.
H. Res. 304	Providing for Debate and Consideration of Three Measures Relating to U.S. Troop Deployments in Bosnia.	N/A	Closed	1D; 2R.
H. Res. 309	Revised Budget Resolution	H. Res. 309	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 558	Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Compact Consent Act	H. Res. 313	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2677	The National Parks and National Wildlife Refuge Systems Freedom Act of 1995.	H. Res. 323	Closed	N/A.
PROCEDURE IN THE 104TH CONGRESS 2D SESSION
H.R. 1643	To authorize the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment (MFN) to the products of Bulgaria.	H. Res. 334	Closed	N/A.
H.J. Res. 134 H. Con. Res. 131	Making continuing appropriations/establishing procedures making the transmission of the continuing resolution H.J. Res. 134.	H. Res. 336	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 1358	Conveyance of National Marine Fisheries Service Laboratory at Gloucester, Massachusetts.	H. Res. 338	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 2924	Social Security Guarantee Act	H. Res. 355	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 2854	The Agricultural Market Transition Program	H. Res. 366	Restrictive	5D; 9R; 2 Bipartisan.
H.R. 994	Regulatory Sunset & Review Act of 1995	H. Res. 368	Open rule; Rule tabled	N/A.
H.R. 3021	To Guarantee the Continuing Full Investment of Social Security and Other Federal Funds in Obligations of the United States.	H. Res. 371	Closed rule	N/A.
H.R. 3019	A Further Downpayment Toward a Balanced Budget	H. Res. 372	Restrictive	2D/2R.
H.R. 2703	The Effective Death Penalty and Public Safety Act of 1996	H. Res. 380	Restrictive	6D; 7R; 4 Bipartisan.
H.R. 2202	The Immigration and National Interest Act of 1995	H. Res. 384	Restrictive	12D; 19R; 1 Bipartisan.
H.J. Res. 165	Making further continuing appropriations for FY 1996	H. Res. 386	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 125	The Gun Crime Enforcement and Second Amendment Restoration Act of 1996.	H. Res. 388	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 3136	The Contract With America Advancement Act of 1996	H. Res. 391	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 3103	The Health Coverage Availability and Affordability Act of 1996	H. Res. 392	Restrictive	N/A.
H.J. Res. 159	Tax Limitation Constitutional Amendment	H. Res. 395	Restrictive	1D
H.R. 842	Truth in Budgeting Act	H. Res. 396	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2715	Paperwork Elimination Act of 1996	H. Res. 409	Open	N/A.
H.R. 1675	National Wildlife Refuge Improvement Act of 1995	H. Res. 410	Open	N/A.
H.J. Res. 175	Further Continuing Appropriations for FY 1996	H. Res. 411	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 2641	United States Marshals Service Improvement Act of 1996	H. Res. 418	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2149	The Ocean Shipping Reform Act	H. Res. 419	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2974	To amend the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 to provide enhanced penalties for crimes against elderly and child victims.	H. Res. 421	Open	N/A.

FLOOR PROCEDURE IN THE 104TH CONGRESS 1ST SESSION; COMPILED BY THE RULES COMMITTEE DEMOCRATS—Continued

Bill No.	Title	Resolution No.	Process used for floor consideration	Amendments in order
H.R. 3120	To amend Title 18, United States Code, with respect to witness retaliation, witness tampering and jury tampering.	H. Res. 422	Open	N/A.
H.R. 2406	The United States Housing Act of 1996	H. Res. 426	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3322	Omnibus Civilian Science Authorization Act of 1996	H. Res. 427	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3286	The Adoption Promotion and Stability Act of 1996	H. Res. 428	Restrictive	1D; 1R.
H.R. 3230	Defense Authorization Bill FY 1997	H. Res. 430	Restrictive	41 amends; 20D; 17R; 4 bipartisan
H.R. 3415	Repeal of the 4.3-Cent Increase in Transporation Fuel Taxes	H. Res. 436	Closed	N/A.
H.R. 3259	Intelligence Authorization Act for FY 1997	H. Res. 437	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 3144	The Defend America Act	H. Res. 438	Restrictive	1D.
H.R. 3448/H.R. 1227	The Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996, and The Employee Commuting Flexibility Act of 1996.	H. Res. 440	Restrictive	2R.
H.R. 3517	Military Construction Appropriations FY 1997	H. Res. 442	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3540	Foreign Operations Appropriations FY 1997	H. Res. 445	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3562	The Wisconsin Works Waiver Approval Act	H. Res. 446	Restrictive	N/A.
H.R. 2754	Shipbuilding Trade Agreement Act	H. Res. 448	Restrictive	1R.
H.R. 3603	Agriculture Appropriations FY 1997	H. Res. 451	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3610	Defense Appropriations FY 1997	H. Res. 453	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3662	Interior Appropriations FY 1997	H. Res. 455	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3666	VA/HUD Appropriations	H. Res. 456	Open	N/A.
H.R. 3675	Transportation Appropriations FY 1997	H. Res. 460	Open	N/A.
H.J. Res. 182/H.Res 461	Disapproving MFN Status for the Peoples Republic of China	H. Res. 463	Closed	N/A.
H. Res. 465	Making in order a Concurrent Resolution Providing for the Adjournment of the House over the 4th of July district work period.	H. Res 465	Closed	N/A *Contract Bills, 67% restrictive; 33% open. All legislation 1st Session, 53% restrictive; 47% open.  All legislation 2d Session, 60% restrictive; 40% open. All legislation 104th Congress, 56% restrictive; 44% open.  NR indicates that the legislation being considered by the House for amendment has circumvented standard procedure and was never reported from any House committee. PQ Indicates that previous question was ordered on the resolution. Restrictive rules are those which limit the number of amendments which can be offered, and include so-called modified open and modified closed rules as well as completely closed rules and rules providing for consideration in the House as opposed to the Committee of the Whole. This definition of restrictive rule is taken from the Republican chart of resolutions reported from the Rules Committee in the 103d Congress. N/A means not available.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY], the ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, let me simply say that in the wake of the last speech, I was not aware that we were supposed to be cheerleaders at what sounds like a high school football game.

Keep going. It is in character.

Mr. Speaker, I hope this does not come out of my time, but I hope you would educate Members of the House that they have an obligation to not speak unless they are in the well or at the microphone.

Mr. Speaker, this is a serious problem, and we ought to discuss it in a rational way. Members may not like what I said when I spoke earlier, but I think if they review the text of what I said, that I was exceedingly fair to the leadership of the Committee on Appropriations on that side of the aisle.

I tried to analyze what the problems were as they existed now. I am not really interested in debating what happened yesterday. I do not think the America public is very much interested in that. But I will simply take 1 minute to note that in spite of everything said by the gentleman from Louisiana, in 19 of the past 20 years, that terrible Democratic controlled Congress appropriated less dollars than we were asked to appropriate by Presidents of either party; we spent some $20 billion less than the Presidents asked us to; we never had a deficit larger than $74 billion until the Reagan budget passed in 1981, then it exploded to over $300 billion.

If it were not for the additional debt above that level, which was accumulated in the 1980's with the passage of the Reagan budgets, our budgets would be balanced today and everyone knows that if they have studied the situation.

The issue is not yesterday, it is what are we going to do about today. Of course, this is going to have to be waived. I understand that. But the fact is that we face the prospect of having at least four major appropriations bills vetoed unless we have a different mindset coming from that side of the aisle.

If the Republicans want to see these appropriations bills passed, they must reach bipartisan accommodation with people who do not share every opinion that they think is inviolate. They have to recognize that in a democracy it is essential to make concessions, at least over small things, in order to get people with differing views together.

We are supposed to find common ground. We are not supposed to do what they did last night, when, after their own committee leadership tried to put together a bipartisan compromise, they walked away from it. Now, I do not know what the reasons were, but when the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. STOKES] and the gentleman from California [Mr. LEWIS] worked yesterday trying to reach a bipartisan accommodation, the hard-heads in their caucus said, "No, they did not want it".

That is the kind of conduct the country has come to expect from the Republicans, but it is not the kind of conduct we can afford if these appropriation bills are going to pass, if they are going to be signed, and if we are going to wind up not having a repeat of the disgraceful performance of last year when the Government was shut down twice.

So I would simply urge Members to quit shouting like they were attending a high school cheerleading session, grow up, recognize their responsibility, try to work in a bipartisan way and get those bills passed; and to the gentleman from Arizona—every time somebody says something you don't like, you open your mouth and you start shouting from your seat. . . .

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman will state it.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, is it within this Member's domain to ask those words to be taken down? It is a personal attack and grossly unfair, and I would ask that those words be taken down in this House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Arizona demand that the words be taken down?

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, with all due respect to the sanctity of this House, I demand those words be taken down.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the words.

☐ 1915

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I have parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I guess my question goes to the matter of what are the House precedents as far as a Member who is speaking and when there are Members in the Chamber who are acting disrespectful towards that Member? What is the proper procedure for a Member to take?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will ask the gentleman to suspend until a ruling is made on the words taken down. Then the Chair will address the gentleman's question.

For what purpose does the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY] rise?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, with the understanding that the Chair will admonish Members not to interrupt Members who are speaking, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the last sentence.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I hope I do not have to object. I hope that this interlude has calmed down some of the heat that has been on the floor, and I remind Members that if we can get through this, maybe we can finish our business tonight. I rise under my reservation to find out if the gentleman intends to apologize to the gentleman from Arizona?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DELAY. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, as I said, I would, as I have informed the Speaker, I would be very happy to apologize to the gentleman for calling him impolite, if the gentleman would have apologized to me for interrupting me while I was speaking. He declined to do that.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the words objected to.

The Clerk read as follows:

> And to the gentleman from Arizona, every time somebody says something you don't like, you open your mouth and you start shouting from your seat. You are one of the most impolite Members I have ever seen in my service in this House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, the last sentence of the gentleman from Wisconsin constitutes a personality in violation of clause 1 of rule XIV.

Without objection, the last sentence uttered will be stricken from the RECORD. There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Wisconsin may proceed in order.

Mr. DELAY. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I ask once again of the gentleman that in order to bring comity to this floor, and this is a very serious matter and we all understand how serious this matter is, normally under the precedents of the House, if a gentleman's words have been found to be out of order, of the regular order of this House and the Chair has ruled that the gentleman's words were out of order, under comity of the House the gentleman should apologize.

☐ 1930

Under my reservation, Mr. Speaker, I would be glad to yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin for that apology.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DELAY. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, as I said, I would be very happy to apologize to the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. HAYWORTH] for calling him impolite if he would apologize for being impolite to me.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Objection is heard.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRIES

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Missouri will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Speaker, what are the actions that a Member who has the floor and is speaking on the floor, and other Members speak up to interrupt him repeatedly, and the Chair takes no action against those Members speaking; what actions can the Member who has the floor then take under the ruling? Absolutely none; I will answer the question under the ruling; so, therefore, we can do the same thing.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If a point of order is made, the Chair would rule on it, and the Chair did rule on it, and the Chair has tried to maintain decorum and comity throughout for those Members who were in the Chamber.

During the debate of this resolution comity has been maintained.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) because I think the gentleman did make a noble effort throughout, and the many times that he has held the Chair he has made a noble effort in trying to maintain comity on the floor.

But there is a serious question at hand here, and my question is this: that if a Member is speaking on the floor, and another Member is acting in a way that is disruptive——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Connecticut is making a statement.

Mr. GEJDENSON. The parliamentary inquiry is: What actions can the House take against an individual, what are the parliamentary avenues available to a speaker when an individual, either verbally or through motions, is disrupting his time in speaking on the floor; because, Mr. Speaker, where we find ourselves is in the situation that when an individual tries to take his time on the floor there is often conversation. But this went beyond conversation, and I just need to know for future parliamentary situations what avenues an individual ought to take if a Member is sitting in the first row trying to, by motions or statements, disrupt the speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will take the initiative to maintain order in the Chamber when Members are speaking.

Mr. GEJDENSON. So, it is my conclusion then that the proper course would be to stop speaking; that would not shorten one's time; and then ask the Chair to establish order?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would enlist the assistance of all Members in maintaining the spirit of mutual courtesy and comity that properly dignifies the proceedings of the House. Members who are under recognition should not be disrupted by other Members.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kansas will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Speaker, in this case would it not be appropriate for the Chair to rule to invoke paragraph 365, or in similar instances of Jefferson's Manual, in which it is stated:

> Nevertheless if a Member finds that it is not the inclination of the House to hear him and that by conversation or any other noise they endeavor to drown his voice, it is his most prudent way to submit to the pleasure of the House and sit down, for it scarcely ever happens that they are guilty of this piece of ill manners without sufficient reason or inattention to a Member who says anything worth their hearing.

Would that not apply in this particular instance?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will not rule on that.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HYDE was allowed to speak out of order.)

APOLOGIES SUGGESTED

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I was seated with the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. HAYWORTH] when this incident occurred, and there was provocation. A high-spirited gentleman from Arizona gets caught up in the heat of the moment, and believe me there was heat. On the other hand, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY] is essential if we are going to do the transportation bill this evening. He is the ranking member on the Committee on Appropriations. Both are reluctant to apologize to each other. I would.

Please. I would suggest that both gentlemen, both gentlemen, express regret that this incident happened, and then we can get on with the business of the evening.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HAYWORTH was allowed to speak out of order.)

CALLING FOR APOLOGY AND RESUMPTION OF THE BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, because I have the utmost respect for my colleague from Illinois [Mr. HYDE], although I might have a slightly different interpretation of the events as he portrayed them in front of this body, and because I realize that there is a schedule to be kept and that Members have many obligations, and taking into account the sensitivities of some other Members, I would be happy to say now that I am certainly prepared to move ahead this evening, and to those who misinterpret my actions as somehow being disrespectful, when, in fact, of course, we have the utmost of respect for differences of opinion. and differences in styles of speaking, and different personalities, and different points of view in this Chamber, I would say that I regret the interpretation of the incident.

I still lament the words of my colleague from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY]. I would hope he would apologize for those words and that we can move along to complete the people's business in this House, for the people's business should supersede any personalities, personal ambitions, or personal affronts.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. OBEY was allowed to speak out of order.)

APOLOGIES

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, let me say that, like the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. HAYWORTH], I regret the incident that just occurred, and I will take the gentleman's comments as an apology.

I would likewise extend an apology to the gentleman for the comments which he found troublesome.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY] be allowed to proceed in regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would advise Members that the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DIAZ-BALART] has 3 minutes remaining on the debate on the rule, and the gentleman from Florida is recognized.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we have before us House Resolution 465. We next week will be able to reflect together with our constituents on how to move forward in the perfection, the implementation of the principles put forth by our Founding Fathers over 200 years ago that form the basis of our limited representative government, and we are ready this evening to get to work on another appropriations bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 248, nays 166, not voting 19, as follows:

[Roll No. 286]

YEAS—248

Allard
Archer
Armey
Bachus
Baesler
Baker (CA)
Baker (LA)
Ballenger
Barr
Barrett (NE)
Barrett (WI)
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Bateman
Beilenson
Bereuter
Berman
Bevill
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bliley
Blute
Boehlert
Boehner
Bonilla
Bono
Boucher
Brownback
Bryant (TN)
Bunn
Bunning
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Canady
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Chenoweth
Christensen
Chrysler
Clinger
Coble
Coburn
Collins (GA)
Combest
Cooley
Cox
Crane
Crapo
Cremeans
Cubin
Cunningham
Deal
DeFazio
DeLay
Diaz-Balart
Dickey
Dooley
Doolittle
Dornan
Doyle
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Durbin
Ehlers
English
Ensign
Everett
Ewing
Fawell
Fields (TX)
Flanagan
Foley
Forbes
Fowler
Fox

Franks (CT)
Franks (NJ)
Frelinghuysen
Frisa
Funderburk
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Goodlatte
Goodling
Gordon
Goss
Graham
Greene (UT)
Gunderson
Gutierrez
Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hancock
Hansen
Hastert
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Hefley
Heineman
Herger
Hilleary
Hobson
Hoekstra
Hoke
Horn
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Inglis
Istook
Johnson (CT)
Johnson, Sam
Jones
Kaptur
Kasich
Kelly
Kim
King
Kingston
Kleczka
Klug
Knollenberg
Kolbe
LaHood
Largent
Latham
LaTourette
Laughlin
Lazio
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Lightfoot
Linder
Lipinski
Livingston
LoBiondo
Longley
Lucas
Manzullo
Martini
McCollum
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McIntosh
McKeon
Metcalf
Meyers
Mica
Miller (FL)

Molinari
Montgomery
Moorhead
Morella
Murtha
Myers
Myrick
Nethercutt
Neumann
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Obey
Packard
Parker
Paxon
Petri
Pickett
Pombo
Porter
Portman
Pryce
Quillen
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad
Regula
Riggs
Roberts
Rogers
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Roth
Roukema
Royce
Salmon
Sanford
Saxton
Scarborough
Schaefer
Schiff
Seastrand
Sensenbrenner
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Shuster
Sisisky
Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (WA)
Solomon
Souder
Spence
Stearns
Stump
Talent
Tate
Tauzin
Taylor (NC)
Thomas
Thornberry
Tiahrt
Torkildsen
Traficant
Upton
Vucanovich
Walker
Walsh
Wamp
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weller
White
Wicker
Wilson
Wolf
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Zeliff
Zimmer

NAYS—166

Abercrombie
Andrews
Baldacci
Barcia
Becerra
Bentsen
Bishop

Blumenauer
Bonior
Borski
Browder
Brown (CA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)

Bryant (TX)
Cardin
Chapman
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn

Coleman
Collins (IL)
Collins (MI)
Condit
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Cummings
Danner
de la Garza
DeLauro
Dellums
Deutsch
Dicks
Dingell
Dixon
Doggett
Edwards
Engel
Eshoo
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Fazio
Fields (LA)
Filner
Foglietta
Ford
Frank (MA)
Frost
Furse
Gejdenson
Gephardt
Geren
Gonzalez
Green (TX)
Hamilton
Harman
Hastings (FL)
Hefner
Hilliard
Hinchey
Holden
Hoyer
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee (TX)
Jefferson

Johnson (SD)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnston
Kanjorski
Kennedy (MA)
Kennedy (RI)
Kennelly
Kildee
Klink
LaFalce
Lantos
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lofgren
Lowey
Luther
Maloney
Manton
Markey
Martinez
Mascara
Matsui
McCarthy
McDermott
McHale
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek
Menendez
Millender-McDonald
Miller (CA)
Minge
Mink
Moakley
Mollohan
Moran
Nadler
Neal
Oberstar
Olver
Ortiz
Orton
Owens
Pallone
Pastor
Payne (NJ)
Payne (VA)

Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Pomeroy
Poshard
Rahall
Rangel
Reed
Richardson
Rivers
Roemer
Rose
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanders
Sawyer
Schroeder
Schumer
Scott
Serrano
Skaggs
Skelton
Slaughter
Spratt
Stark
Stenholm
Stokes
Studds
Stupak
Tanner
Taylor (MS)
Tejeda
Thompson
Thornton
Thurman
Torres
Velazquez
Vento
Visclosky
Volkmer
Ward
Waters
Watt (NC)
Waxman
Williams
Wise
Woolsey
Wynn
Yates

NOT VOTING—19

Ackerman
Brewster
Davis
Ehrlich
Flake
Gibbons
Greenwood

Hall (OH)
Jacobs
Lincoln
McDade
Oxley
Peterson (FL)
Smith (TX)

Stockman
Torricelli
Towns
Weldon (PA)
Whitfield

☐ 1959

Mr. GUTIERREZ changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

So the resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider is laid upon the table.

PROVIDING FOR ADJOURNMENT OF THE HOUSE FROM THURSDAY, JUNE 27, 1996, OR FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 1996, TO MONDAY, JULY 8, 1996, AND ADJOURNMENT OR RECESS OF THE SENATE FROM THURSDAY, JUNE 27, 1996, FRIDAY JUNE 28, 1996, SATURDAY, JUNE 29, 1996, OR SUNDAY, JUNE 30, 1996, TO MONDAY, JULY 8, 1996

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Pursuant to House Resolution 465, I send to the desk a concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 192) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 192

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the House adjourns on the legislative days of Thursday, June 27, 1996, or Friday, June 28, 1996, pursuant to a motion made by the Majority Leader or his designee, it stand adjourned until noon on Monday, July 8, 1996, or until noon on the second day after Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first; and that when the Senate recesses or adjourns at the close of business on Thursday, June 27, 1996, Friday, June 28, 1996, Saturday, June 29, 1996, or Sunday, June 30, 1996, pursuant to a motion made by the Majority Leader or his designee in accordance with this resolution, it stand recessed or adjourned until noon on Monday, July 8, 1996, or until such time of that day as may be specified by the Majority Leader or his designee in the motion to recess or adjourn, or until noon on the second day after Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.

SEC. 2. The Speaker of the House and the Majority Leader of the Senate, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the House and the Minority Leader of the Senate, shall notify the Members of the House and Senate, respectively, to reassemble whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE—INSTRUCTING COMMITTEE ON STANDARDS OF OFFICIAL CONDUCT TO IMMEDIATELY TRANSMIT REMAINING CHARGES AGAINST SPEAKER GINGRICH TO OUTSIDE COUNSEL

Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of the privileges of the House, and I send to the desk a privileged resolution (H. Res. 468) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 468

Whereas the Constitution of the United States places upon the House of Representatives the responsibility to regulate the conduct of its own Members;

Whereas the House has delegated that responsibility, in part, to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, which is charged with investigating alleged violations of any law, rule, regulation or other standard of conduct by a Member of the House;

Whereas the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct has failed to discharge that duty with regard to serious allegations of wrongdoing by the Speaker of the House;

Whereas, although an outside counsel has been appointed to investigate the Speaker, the Committee has failed to allow that outside counsel to investigate serious charges concerning the Speaker's political action committee, GOPAC, and its relationship to several tax-exempt organizations;

Whereas a formal complaint concerning these charges has been languishing before the Committee for more than six months;

Whereas new evidence of violations of federal tax law—in addition to the information contained in the formal complaint—has also been recently reported by investigative journalists around the country;

Whereas the failure to take action on these matters has raised serious questions about the impartiality of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct is hereby instructed to immediately transmit the remaining charges against Speaker Gingrich to the outside counsel for his investigation and recommendations.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution constitutes a question of the privileges of the House.

PRIVILEGED MOTION OFFERED BY MR. ARMEY

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the privileged motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. ARMEY moves to lay the resolution on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the motion to table offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARMEY].

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 229, noes 170, answered "present" 9, not voting 25, as follows:

[Roll No. 287]

AYES—229

Allard
Archer
Armey
Bachus
Baker (CA)
Baker (LA)
Ballenger
Barr
Barrett (NE)
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Bateman
Bereuter
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bliley
Blute
Boehlert
Boehner
Bonilla
Bono
Brownback
Bryant (TN)
Bunn
Bunning
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Canady
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Chenoweth
Christensen
Chrysler
Clinger
Coble
Coburn
Collins (GA)
Combest
Condit
Cooley
Cox
Crane
Crapo
Cremeans
Cubin
Cunningham
Davis
Deal
DeLay
Diaz-Balart
Dickey
Doolittle
Dornan
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Ehlers
English
Ensign
Everett
Ewing
Fawell
Fields (TX)
Flanagan
Foley
Forbes
Fowler
Fox
Franks (CT)
Franks (NJ)
Frelinghuysen
Frisa
Funderburk
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Geren
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Goodlatte
Goodling
Graham
Greene (UT)
Greenwood
Gunderson
Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hancock
Hansen
Hastert
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Hefley
Heineman
Herger
Hilleary
Hoekstra
Hoke
Horn
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Inglis
Istook
Johnson, Sam
Jones
Kasich
Kelly
Kim
King
Kingston
Klug
Knollenberg
Kolbe
LaHood
Largent
Latham
LaTourette
Laughlin
Lazio
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Lightfoot
Linder
Lipinski
Livingston
LoBiondo
Longley
Lucas
Manzullo
Martini
McCollum
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McIntosh
McKeon
Metcalf
Meyers
Mica
Miller (FL)
Molinari
Moorhead
Morella
Myers
Myrick
Nethercutt
Neumann
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Packard
Parker
Paxon
Peterson (MN)
Petri
Pombo
Porter
Pryce
Quillen
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad
Regula
Riggs
Roberts
Rogers
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Roth
Roukema
Royce
Salmon
Sanford
Saxton
Scarborough
Schaefer
Schiff
Seastrand
Sensenbrenner
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Shuster
Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (WA)
Solomon
Souder
Spence
Stearns
Stump
Talent
Tate
Tauzin
Thomas
Thornberry
Tiahrt
Torkildsen
Traficant
Upton
Vucanovich
Walker
Walsh
Wamp
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weller
White
Whitfield
Wicker
Wolf
Young (AK)
Young (FL)
Zeliff
Zimmer

NOES—170

Abercrombie
Andrews
Baesler
Baldacci
Barcia
Barrett (WI)
Becerra
Beilenson
Bentsen
Berman
Bevill
Bishop
Blumenauer
Bonior
Borski
Boucher
Browder
Brown (CA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Chapman
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn
Coleman
Collins (IL)
Collins (MI)
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Cummings
Danner
de la Garza
DeFazio
DeLauro
Dellums
Deutsch
Dicks
Dingell
Dixon
Doggett
Dooley
Doyle
Durbin
Edwards
Engel
Eshoo
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Fazio
Fields (LA)
Filner
Foglietta
Ford
Frank (MA)
Frost
Furse
Gejdenson
Gonzalez
Gordon
Green (TX)
Hamilton
Harman
Hastings (FL)
Hefner
Hilliard
Hinchey
Holden
Hoyer
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee (TX)
Jefferson
Johnson (SD)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnston
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kennedy (MA)
Kennedy (RI)
Kennelly
Kildee
Kleczka
Klink
Lantos
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lofgren
Lowey
Luther
Maloney
Manton
Markey
Martinez
Mascara
Matsui
McCarthy
McHale
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek
Menendez
Millender-McDonald
Miller (CA)
Minge
Mink
Moakley
Mollohan
Montgomery
Moran
Murtha
Nadler
Neal
Oberstar
Obey
Olver
Ortiz
Orton
Owens
Pallone
Pastor
Payne (NJ)
Payne (VA)
Pickett
Pomeroy
Poshard
Rahall
Rangel
Reed
Richardson
Rivers
Roemer
Rose
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanders
Schroeder
Schumer
Scott
Serrano
Sisisky
Skaggs
Skelton
Slaughter
Spratt
Stark
Stenholm
Stokes
Studds
Stupak
Tanner
Taylor (MS)
Tejeda
Thompson
Thurman
Torres
Vento
Visclosky
Volkmer
Ward
Waters
Watt (NC)
Waxman
Williams
Wise
Woolsey
Wynn

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—9

Cardin
Gephardt
Goss
Hobson
Johnson (CT)
McDermott
Pelosi
Sawyer
Wilson

NOT VOTING—25

Ackerman
Brewster
Bryant (TX)
Clay
Ehrlich
Flake
Gibbons
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Jacobs
LaFalce
Lincoln
McDade
Oxley
Peterson (FL)
Portman
Smith (TX)
Stockman
Taylor (NC)
Thornton
Torricelli
Towns
Velazquez
Weldon (PA)
Yates

□ 2022

So the motion to table was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, because of an unforeseen conflict, I was not in attendance for one recorded vote, rollcall vote No. 287.

Had I been in attendance, I would have voted "yea" on rollcall vote No. 287.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. DORNAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LaHood). The gentleman has called the Chair's attention to the press account he claims gives rise to the question of personal privilege.

The gentleman from California [Mr. Dornan] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DORNAN. Mr. Speaker, I will be showing no charts or pictures of the principal focus of my discussion tonight, because of a discussion I have had with staff and leadership and references to a prior battle over photographs that we were funding by a young Catholic man named Robert Mapplethorpe who had died of AIDS and we were using tax dollars to defend some of the cruder photographs of this very, very gifted photographer. But we were told that it would hurt the decorum of the House to show what taxpayers are being asked to pay for. I accept that. But I have them here to remind American citizens watching on C–SPAN, Mr. Speaker, that there is a level of hypocrisy in this country and a moral decline that we may be the last Chamber in the world to have a decorum while all else melts around us.

The man, and my friend Newt Gingrich knows this, who I would have supported for minority whip back in 1989, and if he had won, he would be the Speaker today, and the gentleman from Georgia, [Mr. Gingrich] knows this, is the man I most respect in this House, Henry Hyde of Illinois.

Henry just gave me some brotherly advice, that, Mr. Hyde, I would dearly love to take. He said, "My friend, Bob, I love you like a brother. Go in the well and say that one of our own colleagues called you a hater, a bigot and a liar. Simply say, I am not a hater, I am not a bigot and I am not a liar, and I forgive anybody who used those words against me, and take a walk." He says, "You will be a hero. Everybody likes to be a hero."

So I showed him my remarks, I mentioned Moses, I mentioned that in God we trust, I mentioned Abraham, I mentioned a few lines from the end of Cecil B. DeMille's classic 10 Commandments "and they did give themselves up to vile affections," and I showed him what I had slaved over. I told him I begin it with the words that my school teachers told me years ago:

"If you want to have everything going for you, just say, Come, Holy Spirit."

I showed Henry a letter. I said, "How about if I open with this letter and then take your advice?"

"That's good, do that."

Well, I will open up with the letter, and, so help me God, Mr. Hyde, I will then make up my mind.

Here is a letter from this month, June 7, about a speech I made on AIDS on D-day, the night before. It was about my 200th speech. The gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Gunderson] has made about seven, eight speeches in 16 years. I am about to break 200 tonight, I think, warning about the spread of the world's greatest health problem, at least in this country, particularly because it involves young men in the prime of their lives.

This is from a young man dying of AIDS. His name is John R. Gail, Jr. He is from Centerville, OH. It says:

> Mr. Dornan, I caught your speech on AIDS yesterday over C–SPAN. I must commend you. I am a 29-year-old hemophiliac who was infected with HIV in 1983. Last September I was diagnosed with my first opportunistic infection cryptosporidia, an intestinal virus which causes severe stomach cramping, chronic diarrhea, and the wasting syndrome.
>
> I have already lost nearly 40 pounds and I am on long-term disability from work. Obviously this infection, after 13 years of being asymptomatic, has made me another AIDS statistic.
>
> Mr. Dornan, above being a hemophiliac or having AIDS, I am a Christian. And I must tell you, it is refreshing to hear the truth being told about homosexuality and the homosexual agenda, as you did last night. Not many representatives would stand up and say the things you did yesterday, which I applaud.
>
> I am not a bitter person and have forgiven the man who infected me. I can forgive a homosexual, but not their sin. It was a homosexual's perverse actions, polluting the blood supply, which will, without God's intervention, bring about my untimely death.
>
> I am asking you, Congressman, to inquire about the status of the Richard Ray Relief Fund which could compensate the hemophiliac HIV-positive community for the wrongdoings of the pharmaceutical companies, the Red Cross, the CDC, the FDA and the National Hemophilia Foundation. The fraud and negligence perpetrated by these organizations was, and I am sure you are well aware, documented by the IOM in July of 1995. The bill has over 230 cosponsors, I think it is up to 240 now, but it seems to be stalled by the hand of a Republican. Please help us move H.R. 1023. I hope you are on it.
>
> I have been on it for months.
>
> I appreciate your attention to this great matter of importance to me and thousands of innocent hemophiliacs infected with the HIV virus. God bless you. John R. Gail, Jr.

□ 2030

Now, look, a lot of you folks tease me about my memory. I hate war, but I am fascinated by people that will put their lives on the line and die for our freedom of speech. I know that being a combat-trained fighter pilot, never tested in combat, that I have an extra, extra respect and affection for those like Duke and Sam, Pete Peterson, who were called upon, just by the year of their birth, to put their lives and their freedom for 6 and 7 years, in two of those cases, on the line for my freedom of speech.

Because of my affection for the military and the fact that my father won three Purple Hearts, they were called wound chevrons then in World War I, two for poison gas, I have memorized some statistics, and it has absolutely torn me up over AIDS. Listen to my words, please. If somebody is watching on TV, Mr. Speaker, I hope they take this down.

World War II, biggest killing in all of history; 292,131 combat killed-in-action deaths. Two hundred ninety-two thousand, one hundred thirty-one. AIDS, as of the 30th of this month, 360,000 dead and counting, including 4,000 children.

How about our war between the States, the Civil War? Combat deaths, not the 30,000 or more that died of pneumonia, Andersonville prison camp. Civil War combat deaths, 215,000 is the round figure, but to be precise, 214,938. AIDS, 360,000 dead and counting, 4,000 children; 4 million children worldwide in just 3 years.

How about all the other seven wars put together? Revolutionary War, War of 1812 with Mexico, with Spain, skipping over the Civil War, my dad's war, Vietnam that still torments us, and Korea, how about that total of all the other seven wars? It's 146,346; 143,346. AIDS, 360,000 and counting.

My motives are pure. I want to stop this death toll. In those 200 speeches, maybe I was not caring or Christian enough to tell you that we have got to work on this and get more money for care, of course. In Africa and Asia, millions of people are going to die alone, nobody holding their hand, no rabbi, minister or priest at their side, no loving parents ashamed of not embracing them instantly when they were first infected.

How many of you knew honestly till this moment, till I tell you now that by the turn of the century, and what a ghastly way to go into the third millennia, 60 million people will be infected, 12 million with AIDS, and millions dead including those 4 million children I mentioned.

Mr. HYDE, I have got to go on, HENRY. I dedicate this speech to John Gail.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to claim my privilege under House rule 9 to address the House and reply to some, it says scurrilous but I will soften it, pretty tough attacks on my honor. We just spent 40 minutes tonight talking about the word "impolite," my friend David, my friend J.D. back and fourth. Forty minutes on "impolite." "Impolite" is not up there with hater, bigot and prejudiced person, smear artist. No, no, this is different.

Mr. GUNDERSON's attacks on me from this very lectern May 14 have worked their way throughout the national media. He compounded his insults by telling a stringer for the Washington Post, according to her puff piece printed on June 2, that I am "full of prejudice and hatred." That is so far over the line, Mr. Speaker, it would necessitate usually a 40-cannon broadside. I will try to be a little more gentle than that.

It is worth noting that in 16 years of service together, Mr. GUNDERSON and I have never exchanged a cross word off this floor. We have never been impolite, discourteous, or uncivil toward each other, not once. Mr. GUNDERSON will confirm this, just ask him. In fact, ask anyone around here, and if they are honest, these are the adjectives of my staff and my wife and kids. Ask anyone. If they are honest, they will tell you I am one of the most cheerful, optimistic, enthusiastic, upbeat, irrepressible, good natured, and affable Members with whom they serve, discounting this area right here. And loyal.

Yes, for certain I am passionate at times and, yes, unrelenting in my deep concern about the deterioration of our culture, and that concern is sometimes dismissed in a negative way by a few adversaries and quite often in the liberal press. They sometimes have a problem with objective truth and motivations about a lot of us around here.

As I pointed out occasionally to supportive friends who have asked me about the passion, I have told them it is only unusual, even in this historic Chamber that has weathered a civil war and civil rights battles, only unusual here, because today so many Members of Congress, like so many American citizens, lack passion about anything, in spite of that violent world out there.

The Khobar housing area comes to mind. And because there are so many here, while aspiring to be nobles, I know we have all seen "Brave Heart," while aspiring to be nobles have no heart, let alone a brave one, and turn a deaf ear to William Butler Yates' warning that everywhere the ceremony of innocence is being drowned. First, a tiny prolog.

The trigger for Mr. GUNDERSON's point of privilege against me was a "Dear Colleague" letter. I did not want to discuss this stuff on the floor. I did not want to read the Moreno report on the floor. I circulated a factual report on a so-called homosexual circuit party of more than 2,000 bumping and grinding partiers misusing the largest Federal auditorium in our capital.

On Thomas Jefferson's birthday, April 13, to celebrate licentious and lewd behavior at a mockingly called event, Cherry Jubilee. The ads would show you it has nothing to do with our blossoms, cherry blossoms.

Mr. Speaker, after a fair evaluation of all the facts, I can unequivocally state, I have been down to the Mellon twice, the auditorium, that the report issued by journalist Mark Moreno, who was not alone, had another journalist with him, that it was true and accurate. Let me repeat that, contrary to Mr. GUNDERSON's second-hand defense of the 9 hours which he said he did not attend at the majestic Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium, the eyewitness, multicorroborated by even some homosexual journalists in the Washington Times the day after Mr. GUNDERSON's point of personal privilege. They were waiting with their evidence for somebody to trigger it. They thought I would do it with a special order. Mr. GUNDERSON did it.

So Mr. Speaker, I now step out into the minefields of political correctness, evil minefields, I believe, alone, but I hope and pray alone not for long. Come, Holy Spirit.

On May 2 last month, here in our awe-inspiring Rotunda, which is our secular cathedral nave, this 104th Congress, at a very, very moving ceremony, awarded our congressional gold medal to the Reverend Billy Graham and his wonderful, devoted wife of 53 years, Ruth. During that inspiring ceremony, while thanking us and addressing Vice President AL GORE and his beautiful wife Tipper and all of our leadership, Mr. GINGRICH, Bob Dole, our former Senate leader, and his wife Elizabeth, and Messrs. ARMEY, GEPHARDT, DELAY, BONIOR briefly, Senators LOTT, DASCHLE, all the Senate leaders and dozens of Members of both Houses. I see some of the faces here that were there.

Reverend Billy Graham stated with great emotion, great emotion, "We are a Nation on the brink of self-destruction." He was not talking about most-favored-nation status for China. He was not talking about another B-2 bomber, and he was not talking about a 4.3-cent gasoline tax. He was not even really talking about the budget deficit, the debt, which is immoral to do this to our children yet unborn. We know what he was talking about, partly the subject matter that brought me to the floor tonight, I repeat, Dr. Graham, "America is a Nation on the brink of self-destruction."

A national poll last month stated that 76 percent of our fellow Americans believe that our country is in spiritual and moral decline. This Member agrees; I am one of the 76 percent. I love my country. Who here does not? Who here could not? And I am sick at heart at its lack of direction in moral matters, in State and civic affairs involving character. No references tonight to any other parts of this town.

I beg my colleagues to read carefully this cover article in the June 17 edition of the Weekly Standard. It is titled, "Pedophilia Chic: The Norming of Foul Perversion, Child Molestation." It seems that no longer is there any conduct considered a flat-out evil. In our Hollywood-type popular culture, there are hardly any taboos that remain. The words "objective disorder" fall on deaf ears at the networks and at the New York Times.

It was just 12 days after Reverend Graham's warning that Mr. GUNDERSON rose on the House floor. In a "Dear Colleague" and at this lectern, he repeatedly called me a liar, of course using other words, impugned my character with the direct use of words like "smear," "lies," "biased conduct" and "an international effort to personally destroy."

Here is one quote: "The gentleman from California has no right to misrepresent the facts in this, his latest attempt to smear the homosexual community."

Of course he used the adjective "gay" as a noun, in place of the perfectly neutral nonpropaganda noun "homosexual." Seven times he said "misrepresent the facts". Mr. GUNDERSON's words or variations thereof were in the Washington Times, the Post, Congress Daily, Associated Press; moved to slander from sea to shining sea. In my home county, a young reporter embellished on the slander and put words in his mouth. Said he called my effort a character assassination. Then the reporter went on repeat the obnoxious charge that I was out to "smear the homosexual community".

Mr. Speaker, I think it is kind of lowlife, this tact. I know Mr. GUNDERSON was prodded to do it. He said in his opening that he was going to let sleeping dogs lie, or words to that effect, and I think I am entitled, the "impolite" cost us 40 minutes tonight, then I think I am entitled to make my case for my motivation.

So let the facts speak for themselves. He says that I and others unfairly used stereotypes when analyzing conduct. Well, just what would be considered typical versus stereotypical conduct? Being fired from a Federal job for a tryst with a secretary. Excuse me, with the chief of staff. How about a 1991 public report of drink-throwing at an inside-the-Beltway bar that was about to be closed and was closed for pornographic pictures on its wall? How about another more recent drink-throwing rerun at a sodom and masochism bar December 16, last December, 6 months ago. Again, the altercation created sleazy newspaper stories involving a Congressman. Is that considered classy conduct? Does it diminish the integrity of our House as a whole? You bet it does. What would happen to an officer of the military involved in similar squabbles? Is this stereotypical behavior or just typical?

Mr. Speaker, no one believes that any Member of Congress is risking his or her life by serving in this Senate or House. Out in the field, yes, sir. Leo Ryan comes to mind, Larry McDonnell. No, we do risk our lives. I flew on the aircraft that killed Ron Brown and 34 other people, with SONNY CALLAHAN and two or three Members I see here tonight, four flights less than a month before that killing took place, that terrible accident. But there are people who serve under us that we make adhere to a tougher standard that do risk their lives. A slim majority of Members of Congress, eight people, swing four either way, sent thousands of troopers of our 1st Armored Division by Clinton into harm's way in Bosnia. And yet Congress is going to ignore this cherry romp of hedonism right down here on Constitution Avenue?

□ 2045

Our toleration of low standards here in Congress over the years that I have observed is at the core of my challenge today, Mr. Speaker. Our Federal buildings, and I have been told today they are going to do it again next April for the third time, our Federal buildings must never, never be used to facilitate, if not glorify, immorality.

We in Congress are culpable for any immorality taking place on public citizen-owned property in Washington. And if we fail as custodians of these beautiful citizen-owned buildings, you bet, culpable. And what dangerous policy are we following if we dismiss the consequences of glorifying homosexuality right here in our Capitol?

My colleagues need only reflect on the lives of those Members of Congress, past and present, who found or still find alluring, if not addictive, this lifestyle. I say this with no joy. Three of our Members have died from AIDS, another barely escaped expulsion.

I will leave the rest for the written record because it involved a child, a 16-year-old teenage page, in Spain. I never heard of a page going on a domestic CODEL. How do you get to go on an overseas congressional delegation and lose your innocence? Another Member was dishonored with a very severe House reprimand; involved a pimp/prostitute. A lot of pity from people from a West Point sense of honor. Leave the rest for the record.

Then we saw two other Members have their careers ended by election defeats after they were discovered trolling for teenagers at so-called hot action bars. One of them, a friend of mine, was the father of three teenagers. The other, first Republican in 100 years in his seat, looked like a brother of mine, redhead, busted by our Capitol Hill police in one of the men's rooms in the Longworth Building. Sad. At a porno theater, where people were diving out of windows, some died, and eventually died himself of AIDS.

Now, there is another word, Mr. Speaker, that I learned in preparing for tonight. It is a Greek word. Ephebephilia. E-p-h-e-b-e-p-h-i-l-i-a. It means someone who targets 18- and 19-years-olds. I guess in some of our Appalachian Mountain States, where the age of consent is 15 or 16, you target that narrow band, kind of the way Hugh Hefner does with heterosexual baby faced young girls for his centerfolds who look younger than their 18 that they have to be legally. He has been caught twice using a minor.

Now ephebephilia, like pedophilia, is a mortal sin of seduction, a transgression in Greece against 18 and 19-years-olds. Why do you not study the decay of classical Greek culture, my colleagues? Whether it is ephebephilia or pedophilia, in God's eyes it is all the same.

There are a lot of Members who stay in privacy. I respect that. It is just when they are using it to advance an agenda, trying to have it all ways, kind of like truth in advertising that I got upset once on this floor. I am going to leave the rest for the record.

I have a Member on our side, could be a chairman of a major House committee next year. Given today's tragic loss, one of my best friends in the cloakroom, who, by the way, told me to do this. Bill Emerson told me to do this. I swear to God he told me to do this. This list does not include Members who keep privacy. Credit to their good judgment. One of our Members claims they are all Republicans. Quite a bloodhound, I guess. Tends to occasionally to take away their privacy; uses the word "out." And I hope he never does it. I thought there was one code that was unbroken in the homosexual community, and that is everybody gets to make their own call in privacy.

My colleagues, homosexuality is not this adjective "gay." At least in this Chamber, where people's careers have brought them to this pinnacle, it has been very sad, not happy. I would like to know how I, a God fearing American, a very lucky husband of 41 years, a father of 5 stalwart God loving children, adults all, a grandfather of 10, No. 11 in the hanger, and a very hard working double House chairman, who is trying his very best to slow the AIDS toll, how could I possibly smear activists, as Mr. GUNDERSON accused me, given what they have done, and many continue to do, to themselves?

In that June 12 Post Magazine story, "Mr. GUNDERSON asserts DORNAN is full of prejudice and hatred." That one quote alone, as the parliamentarians told me, entitled me to an hour. And in the same breath he used "Is Dornan dangerous? Sure, because he can use passion to intimidate and to roll over those who are unwilling or unable to stand up to him."

That is pathetic. I know this is going to sound patronizing, but I mean it from the bottom of my heart. I pray for STEVE GUNDERSON and all others who like my colleague live on the edge. But I must fight back here tonight. I must fight back. These charges have their intent to destroy not my reputation only, but it brands my work in Congress as driven by the twin evils of hatred and bigotry.

It is not going to work. It is not in my nature to allow something like that to go unanswered. I went through jet pilot training to serve in peacetime, ready to defend our freedom of speech. I went through that pilot training when Mr. GUNDERSON was 2 years old. I marched with Dr. Martin Luther King when Mr. GUNDERSON was 12. The next year, in 1964, I had FBI people tell me the Ku Klux Klan has a contract out on this Republican's head in a beautiful state because I was putting my life on the line against bigotry, registering to vote African-Americans.

Mr. Speaker, in the 1880's, when immoral dueling was commonplace, this would not have happened. Never would I have had my honor assaulted this way. I will leave out the line.

Mr. Speaker, the impact of casual sex propaganda and mainstreaming and, in some cases, romanticizing of AIDS is having a deadly effect upon our young, and lately upon our very young. I will tell you some quotes from Dr. Fauci up at NIH later, and that is why I circulated the facts about that circuit party.

It is also my intent to reassert the truth of what happened at that dance, and we are not talking ballroom dancing here, Mr. Speaker. So that no one will be misled, Mr. GUNDERSON, in his assault, associates me with two honorable journalists, one of them a courageous African-American writer, the other an excellent investigative reporter. And he attacks both of them as motivated by hate and prejudice, the journalism of hate, bigotry and prejudice.

In his attack he invited the two writers to come and visit the victims of the AIDS disease. I checked with the other two; we have all done that. And he said we should learn that these are not some faceless pretty corpses but rather sons, brothers, uncles, lovers and friends, and, in increasing numbers, also mothers, sisters, and daughters. Strangely, he left out dads and aunts, and in the case of two of our Congress who are dead from AIDS, their prior important roles as husbands and fathers.

It should comfort the gentleman from Wisconsin to know, if his real goal is the truth, that this Congressman has forgotten more about the worldwide medical impact of AIDS than the Member from Wisconsin has ever known. And I might add, as some of my colleagues claim, that I forget little, if anything.

According to that June 2 article, Mr. GUNDERSON said he has had four of his closest friends waste away and die from AIDS and another is HIV positive. What a gut-ripping, heartbreaking experience. But maybe he has kept these tragedies within his circle. I do not recall him publicly warning anybody, young or adult, not from this lectern, that the wages of promiscuity, for heterosexuals, too, is now death.

Does he defend the Magic Johnson rationale: I am simply an innocent victim and we are all in this together; it is really an innocent disease? Or, rather, champion what I think is the more honorable approach of heavyweight prize fighter Tommy Morrison, who stated through tears, it is my fault, my conduct, my immoral behavior. If I can save one young person from doing what I did and save them from becoming infected with this killing disease, then my suffering will not have been in vain. No coming back to the boxing ring for one short season. As that big beautiful smile, and the most incomparable smile I have ever seen in my life on Magic Johnson gave us for a while on the basketball court.

And where was Mr. GUNDERSON or any other Member in 1986, when I pleased with my colleagues, mostly on my side, come to Paris with me to visit the Louis Pasteur Clinic to investigate this explosion of this pandemic. Where were they when I went to Geneva later that year, with my wife Sally, to learn all we could about this health nightmare by getting extensive briefings at the World Health Organization? How about visits to the Centers for Disease Control? I never saw anybody sign in down there except NEWT GINGRICH. It is in his district, or was. How many times has any Member, to gain AIDS knowledge, visited the National Institutes of Health, just a short 15, 20 minute drive from Capitol Hill up to Bethesda? Well, I have made all these informative trips several times over the last decade.

And what did Mr. GUNDERSON do with his unjustified, now illegal, Jim Wright-initiated 2 years of congressional pay raise 1989 and 1990? Well, my 2 years of those raises went to AIDS hospices.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know what my colleague does in his free time to educate himself about the worldwide aspects of this, but I have been carefully tracking this nightmare for 13 years. Just last month I visited the Armed Forces Medical Intelligence Center at Fort Detrick where I received a startling and tragic update about the exponential spread of AIDS worldwide.

In just 3½ years from now, I told you this, 60 million will be infected, 12 million full-blown AIDS. Sadly, most of them with little or not health care. And dead? Nobody really can track the dead worldwide. No one knows for certain how many millions by 2000 in the year of our Lord will be gone.

I also learned the following stunning, shocking medical fact. The military forces of Zimbabwe were 75 percent infected. Not 7.5, not 17. Three out of every four of that officer corps, their sergeants and their kids are infected with AIDS. You know what this did? Because of this, their forces are rejected permanently by the U.N. for any future peacekeeping assignments. And at least six more nations are going to be stigmatized any day now on a no-go list with unacceptable for peacekeeping duty.

Zimbabwe peacekeepers brought the specter of AIDS infection and death to Somalia. How sad. Death in the name of peace. Make love, not war. That means more pressure on our American infection-free forces to travel worldwide on peacekeeping missions? Is that not obvious, Mr. Speaker? It is a powerful reason to keep our own military mercifully 100 percent HIV-AIDS infection free.

A 100 percent non-AIDS infected military is my proper goal as the chairman of Military Personnel. And I take a lot of, to quote a four-star, bovine scatology from the homosexual lobby for my perfectly logical and fair legislation and a lot of that scatology from the other body.

Where was Mr. GUNDERSON or any other Member of the 99th Congress back in 1985 when I gave the first of almost 200 of my floor speeches warning about how our blood supply was contaminated and was beginning to spread the epidemic that year at a ferocious rate? Who came to this floor anywhere and discussed unsanitary promiscuous behavior or debated using infected needles and the cross contaminating of both cohorts? Where have the homosexual activists been over the last 15 years?

Well, there are now thousands of homosexuals who are working tirelessly and heroically to comfort and, yes, love the ill with a pure philos love, a Christian love, a Judeo-Christian love, and God bless them. But other than telling us we are all culpable, these are the leaders, and all at risk, for some it has been just business as usual. Trying to get money out of us, which we give most generously, and I have been there 100 percent, and they still push, some of them, public relations mumbo-jumbo instead of tried-and-true solid public health policy.

Mr. Speaker, anybody can tell my colleague from Wisconsin that I have spoken with more young men before they died of AIDS than most that serve here. When a person grows up and has lifelong roots in Manhattan, New York, and Beverly Hills, CA, as I did and as I do, you will see in 10 years more tragedy involving drug abuse and fast track heterosexual casual sex than you will see in the wholesome dairylands of Wisconsin in 100 years, at least until these not so gay 90s'.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, it is interesting to know over the last 10 years, Mr. GUNDERSON has spoken on this floor about AIDS about eight times. Unbelievable for a self-proclaimed person who is involved. If you do not count a one-sentence in passing mention of AIDS in 1989. Then, amazing as this seems, his very first speech, and a short one at that, was his annoying, at least to me, Christian second-to-none speech, and that was only 2 years ago.

□ 2100

I, on the other hand, addressed this Chamber on the subject of AIDS, I repeat, about 200 times. That is Mr. GUNDERSON's rate times 24. This speech tonight alone contains more references to AIDS both in quantity and quality than Mr. GUNDERSON's eight short speeches over 16 years all run together.

I repeat, in 1985, I offered a successful and nearly unanimous amendment in this House, 11 years ago, to close those disease-infested, unsafe-sex-with-multiple-strangers bathhouses, the aforementioned anvils from hell that broke and slowly killed so many midnight cowboys in New York City and San Francisco.

Frankly, given the contrast and the attention we both have given to this tragic retrovirus nightmare, the widely used homosexual protest bumper sticker "silence equals death" has a special resonance, don't you think. I have never been silent because I truly believe in tough love. Meaningful compassion demands positive action.

When Mr. GUNDERSON attacks my belief system on what constitutes serious sin and what constitutes the corruption of youngsters through bad example, he also attacks my religion. The Catholic Church and Pope John Paul II are unrelentingly slandered by the top and the middle management of the homosexual food chain, to see the disgusting, apocryphal scene in Berlin with stark naked people throwing blood red paint on the holy father's vehicle. Main driving force is this issue to that atrocity. However, thanks to God's unrelenting love, and I have seen this when death is near, it is back to the arms of holy mother church, Dominus vobiscum.

What does Mr. GUNDERSON really know about my love for the dying or my empathy for human suffering or my work with the families of our missing in action in Vietnam and now Korea where he left hundreds behind under a Republican hero, a five-star general, President Eisenhower? What does he know about my empathy for human suffering? Jesus died for sinners, actually for each individual sinner.

I am a sinner. Most of us around here commit at least little, small sins on a pretty regular basis, do we not. Every one of us, every day with every suffering person can and should say, there but for the grace of God go I. My motives are based on compassion and on love for my fellow man and a pure desire to defend innocent youth and children.

I resent anybody out there hiding behind the facade of caring, thinking about other things. Does every Member truly grasp the enormity of the suffering that was involved with those 360,000 Americans slowly wasting away, and counting. I can't absorb the enormity of that level of suffering. Who but a handful among us in Congress, I repeat, even knew that 60 million are going to be infected at the turn of the century. What a way to enter that millennium, I repeat. And the calamity is behavior-driven, conduct-driven in the main. No ifs, ands or buts about that harsh argument.

Notwithstanding the pandemic nature of this worldwide plague, the truth is, and honest reporters have known this for years, AIDS simply is not, not everyone's disease. Is it a plague? Of course it is. Is it an epidemic, an international pandemic? Beyond question, but it simply is not everybody's disease.

Read the May 1 story which will be in my full remarks in the Wall Street Journal. Almost everybody in this room has a better chance of being hit by their own personal lightning bolt, a direct message from God to come home as fast as you can, a lightning bolt, before they have a chance of becoming HIV positive.

Let us apply some logic. Two thoughtful leaders from AIDS Project LA in my office last night told me that if AIDS is everybody's disease, then it is nobody's disease. They just do not want it to be called totally, to use their words, a gay disease. They say it is not everybody's disease. Is AIDS your disease, Mr. Speaker? I did not mean to single you out. No. Is it my disease? No.

How about all of the floor staff and clerks around us? Of course, probably not. How about the entire membership of Congress, all 435 of us? Okay, here is where we pick up a few at risk. I was told a long time ago that there were some HIV positives between the House and the Senate; the person is long gone who told me that. He said that only about 50 Members had even been tested.

So if we include all of our staffers, about 30,000, we would probably pick up a handful who are infected. That is also because government, like Hollywood, like Broadway, like big cities, it attracts a disproportionate number of homosexuals who want to work here for their country beyond the 1 or 2 percent estimates nationwide.

I am sure you get my point, Mr. Speaker. But if you say that this group or that group is a high risk, you have just stigmatized a small percentage of our population as high risk for venereal disease. The only fatal sexually transmitted disease in the United States is AIDS. So by accepting logical truth, you can be called a bigot, a hater, or prejudiced.

Those are the vile words hurled at me, at an African-American columnist, at a hard-working reporter, and my good friends at the Family Research Council and at you who instinctively believed Mark Morrano's report about illegal conduct at the Mellon auditorium.

By the way, would it not be equally scandalous to rent out this architectural showpiece, the Mellon auditorium, for a Hustler, Penthouse, or Playboy, no-holds-barred celebration of free love with centerfold models, as the bartenders were on April 13, in neon day-glo underwear. That is all they had on, with or without the drug use, with or without the half-naked gyrating, with or without the crude name like Screw Alley for the beautiful arched carriage entrance on the east side of the courtyard, without anything like that, we are going to give that place to Hustler or to Guccioni's Penthouse? I don't think so, the kids would say.

Now, if I can have an animus towards the promotion of fornication and adultery that is promoted in Hustler, why can I not have an animus toward glorifying homosexuality, particularly circuit parties. I refer you to the U.S. Supreme Court decision, I have my eye on the clock, Romer versus Evans, May 20, just last month, most timely and very instructive. Pro-family folks, especially you in Colorado who crafted that, do not be discouraged by what I am about to say. But sadly, Colorado's amendment 2 was imprecisely written and its exact wording is what allowed six justices to choose process over substance with that majority decision.

Let me explain at this key point, Mr. Speaker, what I am about to say, brightly illuminated by this Supreme Court decision, will lend itself to a resolution of the question before us today. That is, Mr. GUNDERSON questioning my motives, my character. For the purposes of law, you could debate this for days. There is no such thing as homosexual orientation in law. It does not exist. In law, homosexuality is no more nor less than a sex act. Loving friends living together for years can be bonded by philos love with never even a thought of eros love. So under the law, you cannot be H-O-M-O without the S-E-X-U-A-L, any more than under law you can be hetero without the sexual.

This is a crucial distinction in the law. Why? Because laws and public policies are based on human actions, not the penumbra of orientation, inclinations, tendencies or temptations never acted upon.

President Jimmy Carter comes to mind. That is what you get for giving an interview like Bill Buckley to Playboy. What goes on in the thought processes of the human brain, that is not law. Law involves conduct, behavior and, yes, sometimes, rarely, speech, such as treason, libel or yelling fire and in a crowded enclosure.

There are no laws against what a man or woman thinks not will there ever be in a truly free country. In the eyes of the law, thoughts do not rape or molest. Desires do not sexually exploit another person or spread disease. Only human actions can do those things. All of the consequences pertaining to the behavior of male homosexuality center on sex acts. In James Carvillean-speak, it is the conduct, stupid.

Unfortunately, Colorado's amendment 2 carried the term orientation. It allowed Justice Kennedy and five others to perpetuate the myth of some kind of innate homosexual personhood. I do not have to tell you, Mr. Speaker, how ridiculously inane that notion is.

Imagine, if you will, some of these beautiful babies, occasionally held in their parents arms or in our cloakroom of late, imagine those babies. Can anyone really make a scientific case that somehow those parents are holding budding little bisexuals, cross-dressers or pedophiles just waiting for puberty to reveal their true orientation?

Such arguments are made regularly, usually by homosexual priests or homosexual scientists or homosexual doctors and are rarely, if ever, exposed as mostly psychobabble and pseudoscience, certainly not by my friends at Newsweek, Time or the other liberal weeklies, including in the law concepts of orientation and class of persons like amendment 2, it spawned the death of that amendment.

But the argument with which I took the greatest exception in the flawed Kennedy-written majority decision and the focus that is most relevant to this question of privilege here tonight, Mr. Speaker, is Kennedy's use of the words animus and animosity to describe the motivation of the framers of amendment 2, 53 percent of Colorado's voters who voted for the amendment, and the beliefs of the polling of the overwhelming majority of Americans.

Animus, this is the same charge that Mr. GUNDERSON has leveled at me, using rougher language. In that long reviewing June 2 Post magazine puff piece, to be specific again, he said that my effort in exposing the truth about this weekend was just my latest attempt to smear the homosexual community. That I am motivated by hatred, a much nastier word for animus, not by a sincere desire to protect Government property from scandal or abuse and, of course, not by sincere conviction that all Members of Congress should prevent our Congress from giving bad example to the youth of our Nation by sending them the destructive message that promiscuous sex, hetero, homosexual, bi-, tri- or commune sex is normal and healthy and regularly allowed to showcase itself in our taxpayer-owned buildings.

I repeat, we have learned the hard way that the wages of that sinful message is death, 360,000 and counting.

So Mr. GUNDERSON tells this Chamber and, through C–SPAN, the Nation that I am out to smear.

I read to you, Mr. Speaker, what Justice Scalia said in his dissenting opinion about this animus. Scalia writes in his opinion that Coloradans are entitled to be hostile toward homosexual conduct and that the court's portrayal of Coloradans as a society fallen victim to pointless, hate-filled gay bashing is so false as to be comical. Comical, he writes.

Mr. Speaker, Justice Scalia thought his opinion to be so important he took the time to read it in its totality aloud to the Supreme Court, and it was much longer than the majority decision. Please reflect on Justice Scalia's words, Mr. Speaker. He is saying that you and I and all Coloradans are entitled, he even italicized that word in his opinion, entitled to be hostile toward conduct, not hostile toward any person but hostile toward the conduct.

Only craven, cowardly bullies hurt or bash individuals, and they should be severely punished with the full force of the law. A law-abiding citizen does not even physically abuse a guilty drunk driver at an accident scene involving the death or injury of a child, and that is a pretty tough provocation. He makes a citizen's arrest and grits his teeth and cries and waits for the police.

So let me state for the RECORD again, Mr. Speaker, before a million or so people at this time of night watching, and I am not referring to any individual in particular. It is the conduct, stupid, or it is the conduct, sweetheart.

Mr. GUNDERSON knows in his heart of hearts, I hope, that, if he were being physically assaulted out there on the street, BOB DORNAN would be one of the very first, if not the first, to defend and protect him even at the risk of my life, even limping all the way. And if you doubt that, just ask Congressman CUNNINGHAM, Congressman MORAN and about a half dozen of our Capitol Hill Police Officers.

I, like most Americans, I am sorry, I do have an animus toward homosexual conduct and at that ostentatious, in-your-face conduct that was exhibited at the Cherry Jubilee group grope.

In his floor statement, the gentleman from Wisconsin attempts to portray the homosexual conduct at that stately building as, quote, a gift of love, not a weekend of illegal activity. Even the remotest touch of common sense is going to tell any American, Mr. Speaker, that the 8,160 foot square foot Mellon auditorium, this beautiful hall is only 7,600, Senate Chamber 4,300, 8,160. When filled with 2000-plus writhing, bumping and grinding dancers, hundreds of them half naked, that is anything but a gift of love.

I would like to show you that nonoffensive picture in color there, blowup of one of the slides, unless of course you define lust as love, which is kind of similar to a Member of Congress using love as an excuse to responding to an ad in a homosexual newspaper which was signed off by "hot bottom."

□ 2115

That is not love, that is lust.

Just why would I have animus and not a homosexual jamboree? Fair question, easy answer.

The gentleman from, Mr. GUNDERSON, claimed the Cherry Hop raised about $50,000. Forty-five; I have just talked to the Whitman-Walker Clinic. Again he claimed, or he said that, and think about this, Mr. Speaker, $45,000. If just one person after a night of, quote, copping feels; that is the description by an anonymous homosexual columnist reporting on the hop for the homosexual metro weekly paper quoted in the Times after Mr. GUNDERSON's remarks, after a night of copping feels on the dance floor, if just one human being after furtively sharing a little cocaine, and it is all in the report, with an all too friendly drug tripper in a latrine stall, if only one person after that gala back in a motel or a hotel shared the virus that keeps on giving, the fatal AIDS virus, then that mere $45,000 raised is but a drop in the bucket. It is not even half a year.

For one person who does not even have AIDS yet, if they are in one of our hopeful Government programs, they would not even cover the fraction of the cost that one single AIDS patient would require through his medical decline and death.

I hope you get that because the head of the Whitman-Walker Clinic, Jim Graham, in a very pleasant conversation tonight, did not get it. He said it is not where you get, it is if you got it. You come together in a Federal building and one person gets it, there goes all the money from the whole event, and Mr. GUNDERSON said they spent $14,000 on the lights alone, just on the lighting. You should have seen the place that night. All those six massive door columns lighted with the lights of the rainbow.

Now, God demands compassion and prayers for the infected patient and for the dying. Jesus commands it. What you do for these the least among you, do for me. Every AIDS victim lying in a bed is Jesus Christ. Every little finger you lift to help them, you are helping Jesus. It is right there. Of course we have to have love and compassion, but focused animosity is logical when it is directed at the behavior of arrogant risk takers. Jim Graham agreed with me on this. Those hell-bent for leather put lust before long life, folks, and therefore they overload, if not bankrupt, their whole systems.

Dr. Tony Fauci told me just a few weeks ago up at NIH—I met some of the lucky patients up there, they called themselves lucky; I had to wince at that one—he told me that there are now many young homosexuals becoming HIV-positive because of mere frustration, mere annoyance, at having to avoid AIDS with less risky sex. So mentally exhausted with safer sodomy, they succumb to high-risk lust for this inevitable fate.

Mr. GUNDERSON says we must not lecture one another if there is to remain any element of mutual respect, unquote. Well, if lecturing is out, fine. Then I simply plead with young Americans at risk stop hurting one another, stop killing one another, stop the promiscuity. This goes for young heterosexuals: Stop the dangerous and the unhealthy conduct. Stop holding up homosexual conduct or heterosexual sleeping around before the youth of our country as wholesome and normal and healthy.

Yes, there should not be hostile Roscoe—I am sorry, using the first name on military bases—thank you for that amendment. I think it is going to survive.

Let me turn around another Gunderson insult. He accused me of trying to personally destroy those with whom I might disagree. Well, those of us who truly believe that we are our brother's keepers, and I thought that is why we all ran for election here, to help our brothers and sisters. I am not trying to destroy your risk-takers; trying to save your immortal souls and your mortal lives in the measure.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Wisconsin, [Mr. GUNDERSON], said I had a large hand in intentionally misrepresenting facts and falsifying information. He repeated that 6 times. For the record, these salacious advertisements—I was going to show them—at my side are exactly what I am talking about when I criticize the melee at the Mellon. Cherry Jubilee consisted of three inclusive events.

Mr. Speaker, I will put in the RECORD the 3 phases of this weekend. I will call to people's mind the Tailhook incident; as ugly as that was, the outrageous double standard that we tolerate, given the code of honor that we Americans demand from our military, how pathetically low our standard of ethics is here and in the Senate. Even Packwood avoided being expelled for over a year. Then he quit, among tearful goodbyes:

Goodbye, Mr. Abortion, good bye, Mr. Womanizer, good riddance.

I talk about the second event, the main event, talk about my going down there, talking to this wonderful lady who has had the main stewardship under the GSA, not, as Mr. GUNDERSON said, Commerce, the GSA how they balked at her asking him to wrap it up at midnight. Then she tried to compromise, 1 o'clock, and finally it was 9 hours till 6 a.m., on the Lord's day.

Then I talk about the recovery brunch; that is their name; supposedly at the Longworth. I guess the gentleman from Wisconsin, [Mr. GUNDERSON], realized he needed a bigger venue, violated all of our House rules about nothing in the courtyard at Rayburn till 4:00, started at 1:00. They blocked the reporter, Marc Morano, from going in.

I stood in front of that Mellon; this is where I tried to have a joint House-Senate session for Mr. Gorbachev. No dictator had ever spoken there where Churchill and MacArthur stood. So I knew this Mellon years ago; was 87, and yet I stopped, I was the lead man, with a little help from Mr. GINGRICH and Mr. WALKER—to be truthful, not much help; it was my show. I stopped Gorbachev. I did not want him here. Some of my colleagues yelled to me in the elevator, "Well, I want to hear what he has to say, Bob." I said, "Good. You ever heard of the Mellon Auditorium?" This is 9 years ago. "Let's go down there; it's bigger than the House floor."

Well, I went down there, and this lovely lady told me, and I do not want to get her in trouble, that the next day was a pig sty, that the floor was covered with a slime from mixed drinks. It was a whole bigger floor than this. She says they called the Whitman-Walker Clinic; he admitted this to me on the phone today. He said, "Well, we cleaned it up; didn't we?" And it is Sunday at triple time, out of AIDS money that has been raised, triple time. They had to go down there and clean it while 600 of the 2,000 of the partiers were recovering in our Rayburn courtyard.

And that Mellon is straight across from the National Museum of American History, on our No. 1 boulevard, Constitution. I paced it off, 106 paces to the north wall of the American History Museum, and guess what is on the other side of that wall? Old Glory, the Star Spangled Banner, the original that Francis Scott Key wrote. It is 30 by 34 feet. It is on the wall facing the Mellon. And what did he write in the Star Spangled Banner? "In God we trust." There are the words up there: "In God we trust." It is Constitution Avenue; as my colleagues know, along with Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Avenue, it is the No. 1 boulevard for this country.

Put the rest in the record here.

Continues the description of that whole wild night. Sad.

And Mr. Graham told me they are going to do it again next April in one of our Federal buildings. Think Tailhook. The careers of four-star admirals, one of them with 400 combat missions in the most dangerous air environment in the history of mankind, had his career ended.

"No sink back for you, war hero, and you weren't even at the event."

Well, we do not think you were tough enough on it, and that is 5 years ago, when we are still destroying the careers of people who put their lives on the line to die for freedom of speech. But nobody pays attention to this majestic auditorium down there.

Eyewitnesses. Boy, Mr. Speaker, I have got a great close here about Abraham, Moses, a couple of lines from, as I said, the Ten Commandments. It will all be in the RECORD tomorrow. I hope some of my colleagues assign a staffer to read it if they are too busy to. It lays out the whole case with other eyewitnesses, and then it comes to STEVE'S words, that this was the love of God personified. Wow. That is not my American tradition, to paraphrase him, or my American family. It sure as hell and heaven is not my Judeo-Christian ethic or code of ethics. This does not represent the God of Abraham or Moses up there in the central place of honor, full-faced, marbled, looking right at me right now.

He is looking at you too, Mr. Speaker. This does not represent the God of love, certainly not the Father of Jesus or love in any faith I have ever heard of. This is pagan in every sense of that word. This is a bad rerun of worshiping Mailik and Baal.

Mr. Speaker, the tension between me and three of our colleagues here, I guess, is a reflection of the national debate on our moral spiritual decline. It is a debate that seems to have been, temporarily, I pray, stifled, if not snuffed out, in the great Democratic Party, very much alive in my Republican party. Some people rub their hands waiting for a big fight in San Diego, but there can be no compromise in this struggle.

Members in this institution, a lot of them, on all the moral issues, even partial-birth infanticide to go away; there are some even more laid back, if not cowardly, who say, so what? That is a Carvillean quote, I guess, "So what?" And I pity the children in the love department with people who say, "So what?"

Unfortunately, a struggle over the virtue, the future of our Nation as a land of godly people, can only subside when one side wins and the other loses, and history tells us that the battle will wax and wane until the Second Coming.

I know what I am doing by getting out of here, I know the danger it holds for me and my large family. I will finish in an hour special order next week. Enjoy your Fourth of July, and I welcome anybody to come over and debate me and see if we can slow down the death of 360,000 and counting.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to claim my privilege under House Rule IX, section 1, to address the House in reply to the scurrilous attacks on my honor, my truthfulness, and my motives by the retiring Member from Wisconsin's Third District, Mr. GUNDERSON.

His verbal attacks on me last May 14, from this very lectern, have worked their way throughout the national media. He compounded his insults by telling a stringer for The Washington Post, according to her puff piece on him, printed on, Sunday, June 2, that I am, quote, "full of prejudice and hatred." That's so far over the line, Mr. Speaker, that it necessitates a 40-cannon broadside in response.

Mr. Speaker, it's worth noting, that in more than 16 years of service together, Mr. GUNDERSON and I have never exchanted cross words off this floor, nor have we ever been impolite, discourteous, or uncivil toward each other—not once. Mr. Gunderson will confirm this. Just ask him. In fact, ask anyone around here and, if they're honest, they will tell you that I am one of the most cheerful, optimistic, enthusiastic, upbeat, irrepressible, good natured, and affable Members with whom they serve. And loyal. Yes, for certain, I'm passionate at times, and, yes, unrelenting in my deep concern about the deterioration of our culture. And that concern is sometimes dismissed in a negative way by a few adversaries around here, and often spun negatively by doctrinaire liberals in the media who care little about objective truth or the real intent of a heart that even some detractors have called a braveheart. As I've pointed out occasionally to supportive friends, my passion is only seen as unusual, even in this historic debate chamber that's weathered a civil war, because today so many Members of Congress lack passion about anything, in spite of that violent world out there. Also because there are so many here, who, while aspiring to be nobles, have no heart, let alone a brave one, and turn a deaf ear to William Butler Yeats' warning that "everywhere the ceremony of innocence is drowned."

First, a brief prolog. The trigger for Mr. GUNDERSON's point of personal privilege was my "Dear Colleague" letter, circulating a factual report on a so-called "homosexual circuit party" of more than 2,000 bumping and grinding partyers misusing the largest Federal auditorium is our capital on April 13 to celebrate licentious and lewd behavior, at the mockingly named "Cherry Jubilee."

Mr. Speaker, after a fair evaluation of all available facts, I can unequivocally state that the report issued by journalist Marc Morano is true and accurate. Let me repeat that. Contrary to Mr. GUNDERSON's absurd, secondhand defense of the 9 hour display of hedonism at the majestic Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium, the eye-witness, multi-corroborated account of reporter Marc Morano is unassailable. And to ensure that there are no misunderstandings about the substance and accuracy of Mr. Morano's report, I am going to read that vivid account for you now.

"An all night homosexual 'circuit' party called Cherry Jubilee' 'Main Event' took place in Washington, D.C. on April 13, 1996. The dance party featured public nudity, illicit sexual activity and evidence of illegal drug use. The sponsors of the homosexual festivities included a GOP congressman and a host of corporations. A federal building the Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium, played host * * * and was the backdrop for the illegal activity. The sponsors included * * * American Airlines, Snapple, Miller Lite Beer, Starbucks Coffee, and Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream. The 'Main Event' was followed by a 'Capitol Hill Recovery Brunch' in the Rayburn House Office building. Representative Gunderson secured the Rayburn building for the 'recovery brunch.'

"The Mellon Auditorium is a taxpayer owned and federally operated building complete with classical ornate Doric columns directly across the street from the Museum of American History on Constitution Avenue. The 'Main Event' was being described by the City Paper as a 'New York style homosexual circuit party * * * usually drug infested.'

"Main Event' tickets were very hard to come by. The event sold out, which left a scramble for ticket scalpers outside the entrance. Two thousand men attended, most between the ages of 25–35 years old. Many of the men who attended were of obvious affluence. Limousines and even a Rolls Royce lined Constitution Avenue as the party goers arrived.

"The clothing was trendy with skin tight black jeans and tanktops. The bartenders wore bright neon underwear and nothing else. Many of the men arrived with leather and rubber pants and neon rubber loin cloth underwear only. Most of the shirts came off as the men headed for the dance floor.

"Body piercing was ubiquitous with piercing in nipples, navels and ears. Chains and dog collars were also prevalent. Cross dressing was common sight, as a heavy presence of transvestites and other 'transgendered' men attended. Men with wigs and dresses in heavy make up strolled through the auditorium. Several pairs of lesbians attended as well, parading in very skimpy clothing.

"Most attendees greeted each other with open mouth kisses. No fights or altercations * * * the men were generally very neat, with meticulous hair and clothing. There were few if any men who could be described as overweight.

"As the constant thump, thump, thump of the techno music heated the crowd, the dancing became increasingly lewd and suggestive. As the night wore on, the dancers began simulated sexual gyrations. The dance floor became a torrent of intense groping and stroking. Some couples dancing on table tops, mimicked anal sex through their clothing while others pantomimed oral sex. At one point while dancing on a table top, one of the lesbians lifted her bra and exposed her breasts. Meanwhile, several inflated condoms were batted about like volleyballs.

"At about 4 am, two men proceeded engage in illicit sexual behavior in the main auditorium. One man lowered his head (onto the crotch of another man and began to perform oral sex). This act occurred just off the dance in full view of the crowd. No one seemed to be fazed by it one bit.

"The restroom stalls at the Mellon Auditorium were constantly being occupied by two men at a time. (Gropes and groans) could be heard emanating from the stalls with double occupancy. Stall doors would open and two men would nonchalantly exit.

"Every conceivable isolated spot became a dilemma for security. Security officers had to diligently watch the outside side courtyard stairwell in the smoking area. The steps led down to a dark basement alley way on the side of the building where many of the men were congregating. The progression of couples heading into the darkness eventually forced security to intervene. Orange cones were placed to close the area off, as a security officer was assigned to stand watch. Public urination was common as the men relieved themselves outside and even in front of the stately building facing Constitution Avenue. * * *

"Despite signs posted everywhere stating, 'Use or possession of illegal substances strictly forbidden,' evidence of illegal drug use was present. Snorting could be heard throughout the evening in the restroom stalls. At one point a straw fell on to the bathroom floor from inside a stall. There was also clandestine exchanges of money and substances in dark corners of the dance floor throughout the night.

"Despite the flaunting of public nudity, illicit sexual activity, and illegal drug use at both of these homosexual events, (April 1993 and April 1996) law enforcement never intervened. Contrast this with the controversy that inevitably follows when someone attempts to celebrate Christmas with a nativity scene in a public building or park (or the Tailhook scandal which took place in a private Hilton Hotel).

"* * * The April 1996 Cherry Jubilee weekend proves that the homosexual agenda is advancing in Washington. The use of two federal buildings during the Cherry Jubilee weekend in Washington, D.C. reveals how successful the homosexual lobby has been in 'mainstreaming' their agenda. Voters, consumers and stockholders should hold the government and corporations such as American Airlines accountable when they underwrite events like Cherry Jubilee. The voters need to ask which side of the 'culture war' the Republican Party is on and what real change the so-called 'GOP Revolution' has wrought. The GOP leadership on Capitol Hill needs to explain how an event which featured illicit sexual activity, public nudity and evidence of illegal drug use was allowed to occur in a federal building on the 253rd anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birthday."

Now, ironically, Mr. Speaker, this disgraceful misuse of taxpayer-owned property might never have happened if I had come to this well and alerted Congress to a growing phenomenon of misuse of Federal facilities to advance homosexuality, and exposed a prior outrage at the majestic Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium back on April 25, 1993, when an all day, sadism freak show defiled the auditorium and our Capital City. I also should have alerted Congress to a June 1995 abuse of the impressive headquarters building of the Department of Interior. I was diverted from reporting on this latter outrage by the pace of House voting, the Presidential race, and my chairmanship of two very active subcommittees.

Last year, throughout the month of June, in the impressive lobby of the Interior Department, there was an in-your-face display glorifying homosexuality. A large, lavender painted, free-standing billboard praised, with large photographs, four homosexuals high in our Government and held them up as role models. One, a female, is no longer in Washington having left to lose an election in San Francisco. Another is still an Assistant Secretary at the Patent Office. And the other two are male homosexuals serving here in Congress. Unfortunately, the short bios under the Congressmen's photos were lies. The bios deceptively stated that both Congressmen courageously came out of privacy and voluntarily, with great pride, revealed their homosexuality here on the floor of Congress. Of course, the truth is quite different, Mr. Speaker. One of them was censured by this House for his statutory rape of a 16-year-old boy, one of our pages, and Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt knows that; and the other Member was severely reprimanded by the House for conduct unbecoming a Congressman because of his involvement with a male prostitute-pimp who was running a full service procurement operation out of the Member's D.C. apartment, that and much more. The eccentric Bruce Babbitt also knew that ugly tale. Babbitt authorized the homosexual propaganda display knowing that neither Member of Congress came out of secrecy freely, but were brought out of privacy by crimes. This outrage at the Interior Department building went unchallenged here in Congress, and therefore went unknown to American taxpayers. If I had protested those prior abuses of taxpayer-owned facilities, just maybe, 10 months later, a similar outrage wouldn't have taken place on Constitution Avenue, again at the beautifully gilded Mellon Auditorium.

Better late than never.

So Mr. Speaker, I now step out into the minefields of evil political correctness, alone, but I hope and pray, not alone for long. Come Holy Spirit. On May 2, last month, here in our awe-inspiring Rotunda, America's secular cathedral nave, this 104th Congress, at a very, very moving ceremony, awarded our Congressional Gold Medal to the Rev. Billy Graham and to Ruth Graham his devoted and wonderful wife of 53 years. During the inspiring ceremony, while addressing Vice President GORE and his wife Tipper, Speaker NEWT GINGRICH, former Senate Leader Bob Dole and his wife Elizabeth, and all of our congressional leaders including Mr. ARMEY, Mr. GEPHARDT, Mr. DELAY, Mr. BONIOR, Senators LOTT and DASCHLE and all of the other Senate leaders, and dozens of Members of both Houses, Rev. Billy Graham stated with great emotion, "We are a nation on the brink of self-destruction." I repeat Dr. Graham: America is "a nation on the brink of self-destruction." A national poll last month stated that 76 percent of our fellow Americans believe that our country is "in spiritual and moral decline." This Member of Congress agrees. I am one of the 76 percent.

I love my country and I'm sick at heart at its lack of direction in moral matters, in state and civic affairs involving character. For example, I beg my colleagues to read carefully this cover article in the June 17 edition of the Weekly Standard. It's titled "Pedophilia Chic." The norming of foul perversion. It seems that no longer is there any conduct considered a flat out evil. In our liberal popular culture, hardly any cultural taboos remain. The words "objective disorder" fall on deaf ears at the networks and at the New York Times.

On May 14, 12 days after Rev. Billy Graham's warning, Mr. GUNDERSON rose on this House floor to a question of personal privilege. In a "Dear Colleague" and at this lectern, Mr. GUNDERSON repeatedly called me a liar—using other words—and impugned my character with the use of words such as "smear," "lies" and "biased conduct" and "an intentional efforts to personally destroy." Specifically, Mr. GUNDERSON claimed that "the gentleman from California has no right to misrepresent the facts, in this, his latest attempt to smear the homosexual community." Unquote. Of course, he used the adjective "gay" as a noun in place of the neutral, nonpropaganda noun "homosexual." Seven times he used the phrase "misrepresent the facts."

Mr. GUNDERSON's words or variations thereof were repeated in many news stories throughout America including the Washington Times, the Washington Post, Congress Daily, and the Associated Press which moved his slanders from sea to shining sea. In my home county newspaper, the Orange County Register, a reporter embellished on the slander, "Gunderson * * * called the Dornan effort a character assassination" and the Register reporter repeated Mr. GUNDERSON's absurd and obnoxious charge that I am out to, quote, "smear the homosexual community."

Mr. Speaker, this is all so low-life, this attack on my honor, that I am entitled to discuss the reliability of how Mr. GUNDERSON deals with the truth and with facts and how he reports events and how I deal with facts and my reputation for dealing with the truth. Mr. GUNDERSON said here that I, quote, "sought to question [his] integrity." Well, I did not on the House Floor. But now, let the facts speak for themselves.

Let's start with Mr. GUNDERSON's reporting skills. He reports that nothing illegal took place at a frenetic party he did not even attend. By comparison, let's analyze his anonymous report to the Washington Post of a meeting of seven Republicans that he did attend. The relevancy to my point of privilege will be self-evident, Mr. Speaker.

Let me defend our Speaker, my friend Mr. GINGRICH from a vicidusly exaggerated, self-serving tale that the front page.

Here is the January 18, 1996, edition of the Washington Post. Look at this front page story. Preferred position—first story, upper left, two columns, lead title "Inside the Revolution," I quote the largest headline, "Stung and Beset, Speaker Breaks Down and Weeps," by Michael Weisskopf and David Maraniss. Maraniss is the author of the incendiary book "Inside the White House."

This supposed news story, that purportedly was about the dropping of wildly obscure ethics charges against the Speaker, I soon learned was exaggerated to the point of grotesque untruth. Quote, "An old congressional ally who had stopped by the office to talk about farm issues rose from his chair and hugged them both (the Speaker and his wife). Gingrich could no longer hold back his emotions. "He began sobbing uncontrollably." the Post reports.

Now, whom do you think that old congressional ally was, Mr. Speaker? That so-called "ally" who went to the Washington Post and grossly distorted private emotion in the Speaker's office was none other than STEVE GUNDERSON. The truth was twisted, much to Speaker GINGRICH's detriment, and the distortion did damage to the Speaker's reputation, his manliness, and raised the question of his emotional stability. That's some ally, Mr. Speaker. And it wasn't even true.

Obviously, "sobbing uncontrollably" is not the John Wayne image a leader hopes to maintain in order to lead 435 men and women of very strong wills, many with very single minded dispositions.

A supposed ally ratting out a leader, as a blubbering softie, would by itself be disloyal in the extreme, but when it's not even true that is indicative of an ally who is "integrity challenged." Mr. GUNDERSON's problem, as a volunteer informant for a liberal newspaper, was that there were other eyewitnesses in the Speaker's office during the nonsobbing, such as Representative and soon-to-be Kansas Senator, PAT ROBERTS, and my hard charging colleague from California, RICHARD POMBO.

Both Congressmen told me directly that yes, that day there were some tears of justifiable frustration. "Weeping?" No way. "Sobbing uncontrollably?" Absolutely not. Mr. Roberts' final statement to me just a few days ago: "There was no uncontrollable sobbing."

So much for Mr. GUNDERSON's reporting skills, and of course, his loyalty.

Mr. GUNDERSON whines that straight Members, such as I, unfairly use, quote, "stereotypes," unquote, when analyzing homosexual conduct. Well, Mr. Speaker, just what would be considered typical versus stereotypical conduct? How about getting fired from your very first Federal job for an office morale-destroying, homosexual tryst with the chief of staff? How about a 1991 public news report of a drink-throwing squabble at an inside-the-beltway homosexual hangout, which was about to be closed because of the pornographic pictures on its walls? How about a more recent drink throwing rerun at an S/M bar, that's a sadism bar, on December 17, 1995? That's last December, just 6 months ago. Again the barroom altercation created sleazy newspaper stories involving a U.S. Congressman. Is that considered classy conduct? Does it diminish the integrity of our Congress as a whole? You bet it does. What would happen to an officer in the U.S. military involved in similar bar squabbles? Is this stereotypical behavior or just typical?

And don't you just loathe the "typical" double entendre names of some of these homosexual watering holes? "The Green Lantern." What's that mean? Come and get it, all systems are green and go! "The Badlands"—do they really know in their hearts that trolling bars is "bad" for them? How about the bars with hot tubs and private two-man cubicles in upper rooms and side chambers—the same types of bathhouses I helped to close with near unanimous legislation on this floor back in 1985—those non-Glory Holes had particularly offensive names such as: "The Mineshaft," "The Anvil," and worse. Are those bathhouse dives typical or stereotypical?

Mr. Speaker, since Mr. GUNDERSON said I questioned his integrity, let us thoughtfully analyze this word "integrity." In the May 13, 1996, edition of one of our military newspapers, the following powerful thoughts were expressed by a four star leader in an article on "integrity." His article also covered "honesty" and "courage" and "professionalism."

I want to quote a few germane paragraphs for this reason: the so-called Tailhook Scandal, still bedeviling and ripping our great U.S. Navy, is 5 years old, 5 years old, and it is still destroying careers. Imagine for a moment, Mr. Speaker, if the out-of-control homosexual romp that we judge today had happened on any U.S. military base or post anywhere throughout the world. What would the repercussions have been? Batten down the hatches. That thought gives new, sickening meaning to the words "double standard." But, first, those powerful words from a real leader, a four-star, combat-tested Chief of Staff. Apply his challenging thoughts to U.S. Congressmen and Senators.

"The majority of our members understand well that integrity is essential in [military] an organization where we count on fellow members and that honesty is the glue that binds the members into a cohesive team.

"And they easily take responsibility for their actions and exhibit the courage to do the right thing.

"Yes, most [Air Force] professionals place service before self and willingly subordinate personal interests for the good of their unit, [the Air Force] and the Nation and, if called upon, are willing to risk their lives in defense of the United States.

"Furthermore, professionals in our service strive to excel in all that they do, always understanding that our responsibility for America's security carries with it the moral imperative to seek excellence in all our [military] activities.

"* * * Because of what we do, our standards must be higher than those that prevail in society at large. (Shouldn't this mean Congress, Mr. Speaker?) The American people expect this of us, and rightly so. In the end, our behavior must merit their trust, respect and support.

"[Air Force] leaders [commanders] and supervisors must ensure that their colleagues [troops] understand the requirements of our [military] profession—and measure up to them. * * *

"* * * when an individual exhibits personal negligence, misbehavior (or disobedience), this is not a mistake! That is a crime, and crimes are matters of serious concern for superiors.

"In short, if a service member willfully ignores standards, falsifies reports, engages in inappropriate off-duty behavior, then we must immediately take appropriate disciplinary action"—certainly that would include hitting on teenage pages?

"'* * * as a force, we must insist on disciplined and principled behavior.

"When an individual fails to meet the higher standards expected of [military] professionals, then we must hold him or her accountable and document the offense in their records * * *." And revisit it if provoked again.

"Ours is not a 'have it your way' kind of service. Members cannot be allowed to pick and choose which aspects of our [Air Force] standards, [Air Force] instructions, Defense Department directives or the Uniform Code of Military Justice laws they will comply with.

"That would undermine the good order and discipline that is so crucial to any outfit. If you are unwilling—to comply with our [Air Force] standards; to embrace the values of our profession; to meet the unique requirements of [military] service; or to accept the resulting limits on individual behavior—then get out!

"Our responsibility for safeguarding America is far too important and too critical to allow it to be jeopardized by those unwilling to measure up."

Mr. Speaker, I will revisit in my closing words three of those powerful sentences and identify the flag officer who delivered them. Mr. Speaker, no one believes that any Member of Congress is risking his or her life by serving in the Senate or the House, so how dare we live by a lower, a much lower, standard of ethics and professionalism than we demand of our younger military men and women who serve under our jurisdiction, and who do risk their very lives. A slim majority of Members of Congress allow thousands of troopers of our 1st Armored Division to be sent by Clinton into harm's way in Bosnia, and yet our Congress ignores garbage like this "Cherry romp" of hedonism right here down on Constitution Avenue. Our toleration of low standards here in Congress is at the core of my challenge today. Our Federal buildings must never, never be used to facilitate and glorify immorality. We in Congress are culpable, for any immorality taking place on public property in Washington, if we fail as custodians of these beautiful citizen owned buildings. And what dangerous path are we following if we dismiss the consequences of glorifying homosexuality here in Washington, DC, our capital.

My colleagues need only reflect on the lives of those Members of Congress, past and present, who found, or still find, homosexuality alluring, if not addictive. Three of our Members have died from AIDS. Another barely escaped expulsion while suffering the dishonor of a severe House censure for seducing a minor, i.e., the statutory rape of that teenage page sent here by his parents in our care. And, by the way, that young page was seduced on a codel to Spain. How was that outrage put together? I've never heard of a page traveling with a domestic congressional delegation let alone with an overseas congressional delegation.

Another Member was dishonored with a severe House reprimand for sponsoring and using a pimp and is pitied by those who have a West Point sense of honor. Both Members should have been expelled so as to maintain the world's respect for our U.S. Congress, not to mention the Nation's respect. Two other Members saw their careers ended by election defeats after they were discovered trolling for teenagers at so-called hot action bars, one of them a father of three teenagers. Even if they had only hit on 18, 19, or even 20-year-olds, that is still ephebephilia. Look the word up, Mr. Speaker. Ephebephilia, like pedophilia, is a mortal sin of seduction, a transgression against teenage youths 18 and 19 years old. Study the decay of classical Greek culture. Then there are four Members who stay in privacy but can never aspire to run for higher office because the political leaders in their States know their secret.

And then there was the Hill staffer who was fired from his very first Federal job in 1979 for a homosexual affair with an administrative assistant, his AA, bringing about the expected and usual collapse of office morale due to favoritism. Their liaison even included a mock honeymoon to Jamaica. This staffer returned a year and a half later as an elected Congressman and had a 16-year run until his double life became known. Now, although 15 years from retirement age, he can't run for reelection, although he yearns to do so and would have ended up as chairman of a major House committee.

This list does not include several Members who are deep in privacy, probably a credit to their good judgment. One of our Members from New England claims they're all Republicans. He's quite a bloodhound, this Member. And he periodically threatens to expose—out he calls it—these 4 or 5 Members—actually he claims 12 or more, if they don't vote the way he insists on certain security risk issues. He also threatens to out them if Chairman DORNAN dares to hold hearings on whether people are a security risk if they conceal scandalous personal secrets such as alcoholism, financial chicanery, adultery, or bisexuality. Isn't that a form of not-so-subtle blackmail, Mr. Speaker?

Yes, my colleagues, homosexuality is sad, not happy or gay, even when someone's career has brought them to these hollow Chambers.

And why do we fear discussing, here in Congress, what spreads the AIDS virus? How many will have died by mid-year 1996? Dr. C. Everett Koop advises us to include AIDS death statistics about 20,000 individuals who succumbed to AIDS in the early eighties and whose physicians, attempting to understandably avoid family embarrassment, reported those deaths as the result of final condition such as cancer or pneumonia, rather than report them as AIDS-related deaths. If we tally those 20,000 in the aggregate total, then in just a few days, by June 30, 1996, 360,000 Americans, including more than 4,000 defenseless children, will have died a horrible death brought about by an infectious fatal venereal disease known by the bland sounding acronym, AIDS. Mr. Speaker, World War II total combat deaths, total killed in action, were 292,131; U.S. AIDS deaths toll 360,000 and counting. U.S. Civil War combat deaths, both sides, North and South because all combatants were Americans, our War Between the States killed in action, 214,938; U.S. AIDS 360,00 and counting. And all seven of our other wars from the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, war with Mexico, with Spain, World War I, Korea through Vietnam, total killed in action, 143,346. That's 7 wars of KIA, 143,346; U.S. AIDS, 360,000 dead and counting. And the death toll is far worse in Asia and Africa—worldwide over 5 million dead, and counting. And this unparalleled killer has been driven, in the United States, in the main, by homosexual behavior. Except for those 4,000 defenseless children and the innocent victim recipients of infected tissue or infected blood products, such as hemophiliacs, it's conduct driven. And, except for, sadly, the innocent victims of lying philanderers, who callously infected their unknowing partners in the name of love. It's conduct driven.

Mr. Speaker, how can I, a God-fearing American, a very lucky husband of 41 years, a father of 5 stalwart, God-loving adult children, a grandfather of 10—No. 11 is in the hanger—and a very hard-working double House chairman who is trying his best to slow the AIDS death toll, how could I possibly smear homosexual activists, as Mr. GUNDERSON accuses, given what they've done and continue to do to themselves?

In that June 2 Washington Post Magazine story, Mr. GUNDERSON asserts, "[DORNAN is] full of prejudice and hatred." That one quote alone would justify my point of personal privilege. And in another Post attribution, apparently in the same breath, Mr. GUNDERSON muses, and I quote, "Is [DORNAN] dangerous? Sure. Because he can use passion to intimidate and to roll over those who are unwilling or unable to stand up to him." Pathetic, Mr. Speaker. I pray for STEVE GUNDERSON, and all others who like my colleague, live on the edge, but I must fight back. Mr. GUNDERSON's scurrilous charges have as their intent the destruction of my reputation by branding my work in Congress as driven by the twin evils of hatred and bigotry. Well, it won't work, because it's not in my nature to allow lies to go unanswered. I went through jet pilot training when Mr. GUNDERSON was 2 years old. I marched with Dr. Martin Luther King when Mr. GUNDERSON was 12, and the next year, 1964, I put my life on the line against bigotry. Mr. Speaker, in the 1800's, when immoral dueling was commonplace, Mr. GUNDERSON would never have assaulted my honor with such vile language. It's beyond butch, to coin a phrase.

Mr. Speaker, the impact of casual sex propaganda and the mainstreaming and in rare cases even the romanticizing of AIDS have had a deadly effect upon our young, lately upon our very young, and that's why I circulated the facts about the so-called circuit party weekend of April 12, 13, and 14.

As a point of fact, Mr. Speaker, the use of the word "cherry" has nothing to do with our beautiful and famous blossoms, but rather it's used for its sexual connotation as shown in these soft-core pornographic ads for the 34 events. And take notice, in shock I hope, of the large commercial, public shareholder corporations contributing to this sexual license and gross irresponsibility—American Airlines, Starbucks Coffee, Snapple, Miller Lite Beer, and Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream. I pray to God, literally, that these corporate giants innocently followed the lead of the Whitman-Walker Clinic, which, if it continues its propaganda and irresponsibility, should be denied their steady diet of our tax dollars.

Also, the use of the religious word "jubilee" is blatant sacrilege. A jubilee is a 50-year celebration of forgiveness in the Hebrew faith, and a "jubilee" is a 25-year celebration of joyful prayer in my Catholic faith, that same Catholicism that is the No. 1 target of Actup, the homosexual gestapo. No act of hatred or desecration is beyond the pale for Act Up, including blasphemy and desecration of the Holy Eucharist, inside churches.

It is also my intent to reassert the truth regarding the April 13 Saturday dance, and, Mr. Speaker, we're not talking ballroom dancing here, so that the real facts will not remain in question by anyone misled by Mr. GUNDERSON about what really went on.

Of course, this was not the first time this historic Federal building has been desecrated during Clinton's tenure, as Mr. GUNDERSON briefly conceded in his attack. When he referred to April 25, 1993, he twice used the letters "S and M," without explaining what the letters stand for. What Mr. GUNDERSON referred to was a sadism and masochism all-day freak show inside the stately Mellon. Someone, maybe some Clinton toady, had authorized an all day leatherman, S and M open house, with multiple displays of perversion including hard care pornography slide shows promoting unsafe sodomy, maximum unsafe sodomy. Most of this bizarre deviancy is quite foreign to average Americans. And all of that 1993 S and M madness was on a day when the Tailhook scandal tribulations were expanding.

During his May 14 attack, Mr. GUNDERSON associates me with two honorable journalists, one of them a courageous African-American writer, the other an excellent investigative reporter. Then he attacks both of them as motivated by "hate and prejudice" and by the journalism of "bigotry and prejudice." In his attack, Mr. GUNDERSON invited the two writers and me "to come visit the victims of this (AIDS) disease"—we've done that—so that we might, quote, "learn that these are not some faceless pretty corpses," but rather "sons, brothers, uncles, lovers, and friends * * * and in increasing numbers also mothers, sisters, and daughters." Strangely, he left out dads, aunts, and, in the cases of two of the Congressmen dead from AIDS, their prior roles as husbands and fathers.

It should comfort Mr. GUNDERSON to know, if truth is his real goal, that this Member from California has forgotten more about the worldwide medical impact of AIDS than the Member from Wisconsin has ever known. And I might add, my colleagues say, I forget little, if anything. According to the June 2 Post article, Mr. GUNDERSON has had four of his six closest friends waste away and die from AIDS and another is HIV positive. That's heartbreaking, but obviously he has kept these tragedies within his inner circle and has never once publicly warned anybody, young or adult, that the wages of promiscuity is death. He certainly never warned anyone from this lectern. Does he defend the Magic Johnson rationale that "I'm simply an innocent victim, and we're all in this together, it's everybody's disease" or rather champion the honorable approach of heavyweight prizefighter Tommy Morrison, who stated through tears, "It's my fault. My conduct. My immoral behavior. If I can save one young person from doing what I did and stop them from becoming infected with this killing disease, then my suffering will not be in vain."

Where was Mr. GUNDERSON or any other Member in 1986 when I pleaded with colleagues to come to Paris with me to visit the Louis Pasteur Clinic to investigate the exploding AIDS pandemic? Where were they when I went to Geneva that year with my wife Sallie to learn all that we could about this health nightmare by asking for extensive briefings at the World Health Organization? How about visits to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta? How many times has any Member, to gain AIDS knowledge, visited the National Institutes of Health, just a short 20-minute drive north from Capitol Hill to Bethesda, MD. I have made these informative trips several times over the last decade, another to NIH just last month.

What did Mr. GUNDERSON do with his unjustified, Jim Wright-initiated, 2 years worth of congressional pay raise back in 1989 and 1990? Which would now be illegal, by the way, since we passed James Madison's 27th Amendment. Well, my 2 years of those raises went to AIDS hospices.

Mr. Speaker, I don't know what Mr. GUNDERSON does in his free time to educate himself about the worldwide spread of AIDS, but I have been carefully tracking this health nightmare for 13 years. Just last month I visited the Armed Forces Medical Intelligence Center at Fort Detrick where I received a startling and tragic update about the exponential spread of AIDS worldwide.

In just 3½ years from now, 60 million people will be HIV infected and 12 million will be suffering with full-blown AIDS; sadly most of them will die with little or no medical care. And dead? No one knows for certain how many millions by 2000 A.D. I also learned the following stunning, shocking medical fact: the military forces of Zimbabwe are 75 percent infected. That means three out of every four soldiers, three out of every four officers—will die of AIDS. Because of this, Zimbabwe's forces are rejected permanently by the United Nations for any future peacekeeping assignments, with at least six more nations to be stigmatized any day now on a no-go list as, quote, "unacceptable for peacekeeping duty." Zimbabwe peacekeepers brought the specter of AIDS infection and death to Somalia. How sad, death in the name of peace, make love not war. That means more pressure on our American, infection-free forces, to travel worldwide on peacekeeping missions. Isn't that obvious, Mr. Speaker? And it's a powerful reason to keep our military 100 percent HIV/AIDS infection free, right, Mr. Speaker? A 100 percent no-AIDS infected military is my proper goal as the chairman of Military Personnel, and I take a lot of bovine scatology from the homosexual lobby for my perfectly logical and fair legislation.

Just 3 weeks ago I met once again with Dr. Toni Fauci, our hard-working Immunology and Infectious Diseases Institute chief and one of our very best researchers at NIH, to discuss a new, advanced HIV treatment involving IL2, Interluken 2. It looks promising, Mr. Speaker, just like proteus inhibitors, but it means more gutwrenching, extremely tedious research with infected volunteers, who incidently told me they felt lucky to be in this super expensive, but promising, life-extending government research program. It won't be a cure however, but life extending only. It's tragic how the networks constantly keep using the word cure. Dr. Fauci says this is cruel and builds false hope. We pray for a vaccine breakthrough, but a cure for someone once they're infected—never. The micro-microscopic HIV stays inside the helper T-cells until death.

Where was Mr. GUNDERSON or any other Member of the 99th Congress back in 1985 when I gave the first of almost 200 of my floor speeches warning about the conduct that had contaminated our blood supply and was beginning to spread the AIDS epidemic that year at a ferocious rate?

Has Mr. GUNDERSON ever publicly discussed anywhere, unsanitary, promiscuous behavior, or ever debated using infected needles and the cross-contaminating of both cohorts? Where have these homosexual activists been over the last 15 years? Other than telling us we're all culpable, and all at risk, it's been business as usual. And there was no behavior modification to speak of until the killing virus went pandemic. Even then, many homosexual activists pushed, and still push, public relations mumbo-jumbo instead of tried and true solid public health policy. Thank God, that in the final care stage, and during the prior "stage three" phrase, there are now thousands of homosexuals who are working tirelessly and heroically to comfort and, yes, love, the ill, with a pure philos love, a Christian love. God bless them.

Mr. Speaker, you can tell my colleague from Wisconsin that, like him, I've spoken with more young men before they died from AIDS than most who serve here. When a person grows up and lifelong roots in Manhattan and Beverly Hills, as I did and as I do, you will see in 10 years more tragedy involving drug abuse and fast-track, casual sex, than you'll see in the wholesome dairylands of Wisconsin in 100 years. At least until these not-so-gay-nineties.

Now this District of Columbia is another story. Mr. GUNDERSON said that the District has the largest concentration of HIV/AIDS positive people in the country. True. Where was his voice of warning over the last 16 years to stem or slow that AIDS growth right here where we work? Since 1981, his first year in Congress, coincidently the year NIH discovered and defined AIDS, he has offered no coherent public advice to slow this plague. No tough love—mostly silence. No support for heavyweight fighter Tommy Morrison's prayerful, humble plea for morality in behavior. A call for abstinence? Hardly.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, it's interesting to note that over the last 10 years Mr. GUNDERSON has spoken on this House floor about AIDS only eight times! Unbelievable for a self-proclaimed compassionate and caring man. If you don't count a one-sentence-passing mention of AIDS in 1989, then, amazing as it seems, his very first speech, and a short one at that, was his annoying March 24, 1994, "Christian-second-to-none" speech. That's only 2 years ago. BOB DORNAN, on the other hand, has addressed this Chamber on the subject of AIDS just under 200 times. That's Mr. GUNDERSON's rate times 24. This speech today alone contains more references to AIDS, both in quantity and quality, than Mr. GUNDERSON's eight short speeches over his 16 years—all run together. And I repeat, in 1985 I offered a successful and nearly unanimous amendment in this House—1985, Mr. Speaker—11 years ago—to close disease-infested unsafe-sex-with-multiple-strangers-bathhouses—those aforementioned "Anvils" from hell that broke and slowly killed so many midnight cowboys in New York City and San Francisco. Frankly, given this contrast in the attention that we've both given to this tragic retro-various nightmare, the widely used homosexual, protest bumper sticker "Silence Equals Death" has special resonance. I have never been silent because I truly believe in "tough love." Meaningful compassion demands positive action.

When Mr. GUNDERSON attacks my belief system on what constitutes serious sin and what constitutes the corruption of youngsters through bad example, he also attacks my religion. The Catholic Church and Pope John Paul II are unrelentingly slandered by the top and the middle management of the homosexual food chain. However, thanks to God's unrelenting love, when death is near, its back to the arms of Holy Mother Church. Dominus vobiscum. Just what does Mr. GUNDERSON really know about my love for the dying or my empathy for human suffering? Jesus died for sinners, actually for each individual sinner. I'm a sinner—95 percent of us commit at least small sins on a pretty regular basis. Every one of us, every day, with every suffering person can and should say, "There but for the grace of God go I." My motives are based on compassion and on love for my fellow man, and a pure desire to defend youth and children. I resent anybody out there who hides behind a facade of "caring" just to fend off revelations exposing a narrow special interest agenda. That's hypocrisy to the *n*th power.

Just a few weeks ago in The Hill newspaper there was a brief story about how some AIDS organization has made me their number one legislative target for defeat this November. I wonder if these special interest lobbyists bothered to check my voting record on AIDS research and medical care funding.I know they did, and they found that I have a 100-percent record in support of AIDS funding for research and care. So what could this AIDS group be thinking in targeting me? It's obvious. There agenda does not have fundraising for AIDS as its primary concern. Their priorities are driven by the activist homosexual agenda. They can't stand it when I or anyone else tells the truth about the public policy issues surrounding homosexual activism. The AIDS lobby rates the votes of Members on bizarre issues like acceptance of this phoney spin-off "bisexuality," or total acceptance of homosexuality in every facet of American life from adopting to scouting to Big Brothers, Inc., to the sacrament of matrimony.

Does every Member really truly, grasp the enormity of the suffering that was involved as 360,000 Americans slowly wasted away with AIDS? I can't fully absorb the enormity of that level of suffering. Who but a handful among us in Congress, until my remarks today, knew that worldwide, in just 3 years, 60 million people will be infected with the AIDS virus? What a ghastly way to begin the third millennia! And this calamity is behavior driven, conduct driven, no ifs, ands, or buts about that harsh truth.

Mr. Speaker, does any Member of this body know how much it costs to care for an AIDS victim throughout their sickness from the first HIV positive test until their death? In our advanced country, on the low end, it's $119,000, and that's if they survive only 3 years or less. But for several hundred patients in special government programs, it's over $100,000 per year to fend off the beginning of full blown AIDS! And Mr. GUNDERSON's friends claim the all-night scene at the Mellon Auditorium raised a mere $50,000, actually $45,000? That's one-half of 1 year of care for just one government patient who is only HIV positive. Not much to brag about when the homosexual partying cost over an admitted $80,000! And again, according to Mr. GUNDERSON, $14,000 was for the lighting alone. I wonder did that include the multicolored rainbow lighting of those magnificent Mellon Auditorium Doric columns along Constitution Avenue?

By the year 2000, the AIDS plague will have cost our national economy about $107 billion. It has already cost us over $75 billion, about $35 billion of that in research. Since 1986, insurance claims involving AIDS have increased more than 400 percent totaling an estimated $9.4 billion! Children orphaned by AIDS will reach 4 million youngsters worldwide by the year 2000—80,000 in the United States alone. That's 4 million innocent babies, toddlers and other precious children of tender age left without both parents!

And homosexual publications like the Blade or the Advocate question my motives—my passionate concern. How arrogant.

Mr. Speaker, some of us read on the front page of the May 1st Wall Street Journal many enlightening facts. Let me read one to you:

> A major study that was just being completed [in 1987] put the average risk from a one-time heterosexual encounter with someone not in a high-risk group at one in five million without use of a condom, and one in 50 million for condom users.

That's beyond the odds of being struck by a lightning bolt. Let that sink in—Most of us are more in danger of being hit by lightning than being zapped by AIDS.

I continue quoting the Wall Street Journal:

> Homosexuals, needle-sharing drug users and their sex partners, however, were in grave danger. A single act of anal sex with an infected partner, or a single injection with an AIDS tainted needle, carried as much as a one in 50 chance of infection. For people facing these risks, it was fair to say AIDS was truly a modern-day plague.

There it is again, behavior is the driving malignant constant with this plague.

Mr. Speaker, let me repeat that Wall Street Journal conclusion, "For people facing these risks, it was fair to say AIDS was truly a modern-day plague." For what people? For, quote, "homosexuals, needle-sharing drug users and their sex partners." The truth is, and honest reporters have known this for years, AIDS simply is not, not, everyone's disease. Is it a plague. Of course it is. Is it an epidemic, an intercontinental pandemic? Beyond question. But it simply is not everyone's disease.

Mr. Speaker, let's apply some single logic. A thoughtful leader from AIDS project Los Angeles told me just this week that if AIDS is everybody's disease, it's nobody's disease! Is AIDS your disease? No. Is AIDS my disease? No. How about all of the floor staff and clerks around us? Most, probably not. How about all the entire membership of Congress, all 535 of us? Now here's where we pick up a few at risk. I was told some time ago that between the House and Senate there are HIV infections, and that was with only about 50 or so Members ever having been tested. If we include all of our staffers, about 30,000 on the Hill, we'd probably pick up another handful or so who are infected. And that's mainly because government work and big cities like the District of Columbia attract to work here a disproportionate number of homosexuals beyond the 1 percent to 2 percent estimates nationwide.

Mr. Speaker, I'm sure you get my point. But what you may not realize is that in making this point you have just stigmatized a small percentage of our population as "high-risk for venereal disease," including AIDS, the only fatal sexual transmitted disease. Yes, my friend, by accepting logical truth you too can be called a bigot, a hater, or prejudiced. Those are the vile words which were hurled at me, at an African-American columnist, at a hard working reporter, at my friends at the Family Research Council, and at those who instinctively believed Marc Morano's report about the illegal conduct at the Mellon Auditorium.

By the way, wouldn't it be equally scandalous to rent out this architectural showpiece for a Hustler, Penthouse, or Playboy no-holds-barred celebration of free-love with centerfold models in neon underwear as bartenders * * * with or without the drug use, and with or without the half naked gyrating, and with or without a crude name, Screw Alley, for the arched, carriage entrance, east side courtyard?

If I can have an animus toward the promotion of fornication and adultery that's promoted in Hustler, why can I have an animus toward homosexual glorification? I refer you to the Untied States Supreme Court decision, Romer v. Evans, May 20, 1996. It is most timely and very instructive.

The decision didn't go the way I expected. Naturally, I stand with Justice Scalias brilliantly logical and hard hitting dissent. Anthony Kennedy's six Justice to three Justice opinion represents just a part of the raging debate that involves DORNAN and GUNDERSON and that is not ricocheting around our Nation * * * a nation Rev. Graham says is "on the brink of self-destruction."

For example, homosexual pedophilia has cost my Catholic religion, a faith I dearly love, over one and a half billion * * * billion * * * dollars and counting. Those are tithing dollars, God's money, spent trying to ease the pain and stem the outrage of the victims of clerical homosexual pedophilia. Who is to blame? Besides the molesters themselves to whom Jesus would take this belt to drive them from His Father's house? Well, try the liberal rectors of Catholic seminaries who decided years age to reject common sense and accept homosexuals who merely promised to be good, or promised to try to be good. And how the same type of prideful social experimenters are constantly shopping for liberal judges trying to force homosexual acceptance on our military forces.

Pro-family folks, especially those in Colorado who crafted their amendment 2, ought not to be discouraged by what I am about to explain, but, sadly, Colorado's amendment 2 was imprecisely written and its inexact wording is what allowed six Justices to choose process over substance in handing down their majority opinion.

Amendment 2 unfortunately used modern homosexual terminology. It stated.

> No Protected Status Based on Homosexual, Lesbian, or Bisexual Orientation. Neither the State of Colorado, through any of its branches or departments, nor any of its agencies, political subdivisions, municipalities or school districts, shall enact, adopt or enforce any statute, regulation, ordinance or policy whereby homosexual, lesbian or bisexual orientation. conduct, practices or relationships shall constitute or otherwise be the basis of or entitle any person or class of persons to have or claim any minority status, quota preferences, protected status or claim of discrimination. This Section of the Constitution shall be in all respects self-executing.

The problem with language, Mr. Speaker, is the use of the terms "orientation" and "class of persons." And let me just say at this key point, Mr. Speaker, that what I am about to explain, brightly illuminated by this current Supreme Court decision, will lend itself a resolution of the question before us today—that is, Mr. GUNDERSON questioning of my motives and his attacks on my character.

For the purposes of law, there is no such thing as homosexual orientation. In law, it doesn't exist. In law, homosexuality is no more and no less than a sex act. Loving friends living together for years can be bonded by Philos love with never even a though of Eros love. So under the law, you can't be H–O–M–O without the S–E–X–U–A–L any more than under law you can be hereto without the sexual. This is a crucial distinction in the law. Why? Because laws and public policies are based on human actions, not the penumbra of orientations, or inclinations, or tendencies, or temptations never acted upon * * * Not what goes on in the thought processes of the human brain. Law involves conduct * * * behavior * * * and, yes sometimes speech such as treason, libel, or yelling fire and in a crowded enclosure.

There are no laws against what a man thinks, nor will there ever be in a truly free country. In the eyes of the law, thoughts don't rape or molest. Desires don't sexually exploit another person or spread disease. Only human actions can do those things. All of the consequences pertaining to he behavior of male homosexuality center or sex acts. In James Carvellian speak, it's the conduct, stupid.

Unfortunately, Colorado's amendment 2 carries the term "orientation" which allowed Justice Kennedy and five other Justices to perpetuate the myth of some kind of innate homosexual personhood. I don't have to tell you, Mr. Speaker, how ridiculously inane that notion is. Imagine, if you will, some of the beautiful little babies occasionally held in this parents arms up there in our gallery. * * * Can anyone really make a scientific case that somehow those parents are holding budding little bisexuals or cross dressers or pedophiles just waiting for puberty to reveal their true sexual desires. But such arguments are made regularly, usually by homosexual scientists or homosexual doctors, and are rarely, if ever, exposed as mostly psychobabble and pseudoscience—certainly not by Newsweek or Time and the other liberal weekly news magazines.

Of course, the concept of orientation within amendment 2 led to the inclusion of the expression "class of persons." I shouldn't have to spend too much time explaining this notion because the Supreme Court has pointed out clearly through precedent that homosexual behavior is not a protected class of activity. To fairly assume protected status, homosexuality would have to be broadly viewed as politically powerless—which is absurd—and immutable and unchangeable—equally absurd given that a person can go from heterosexuality to homosexuality and everything in between all in the timeframe of just one Cherry Jubilee Weekend, even calling himself bi- or tri-sexual, or he can use the offensive and corrupt new term "transgenerational." And, lastly, homosexuality would have to be viewed as a "protected status" which usually means economically disadvantaged—this is perhaps the most patently absurd concept of homosexuality, certainly in the United States or in Europe.

Including in the law the concepts of "orientation" and "class of persons" spawned the legal death of Colorado's amendment 2. But the argument with which I took greatest exception in the flawed Kennedy-written majority decision, and the focus that is most relevant to this question of privilege today, is his use of the words "animus" and "animosity" to describe the motivation of the framers of amendment 2 and the 53 percent of Colorado voters who voted for the amendment—and the beliefs of an overwhelming majority of Americans.

Animus—this is the same charge that Mr. GUNDERSON has leveled at me using rougher language in his floor speech, his "Dear Colleague," and the long, revealing, June 2 Washington Post Magazine puff piece. To be specific again, he said that my effort in exposing the truth about the "Cherry Jubilee Weekend" was just my "latest attempt to smear the homosexual community," that I'm motivated by hatred, a nastier word for "animus," not by a sincere desire to protect government property from abuse and, of course, not by a sincere conviction that all Members of Congress prevent our Government from giving bad example to the youth of our Nation by sending them the destructive message that promiscuous sex, hetero-homo-bi-tri or commune sex, is normal and healthy and regularly allowed to showcase in our public buildings. I repeat, we have learned the hard way that the wages of that sinful message are death—360,000 deaths and counting.

So Mr. GUNDERSON tells this Chamber, and the whole country through C–SPAN, that my sole motivation is to smear. Let me read to you, Mr. Speaker, what Justice Antonin Scalia wrote in his dissenting opinion about this animus supposedly expressed by voters in Colorado who hold traditional Judeo-Christian beliefs. Please apply all of the clarity of Justice Scalia's thoughts to my situation here today.

> The Court's [majority] opinion contains grim, disapproving hints that Coloradans have been guilty of "animus" or "animosity" toward homosexuality, as thought hat has been established as Un-American. Of course it is our moral heritage that one should not hate any human being or class of human beings. But I had thought that one could consider certain conduct reprehensible—murder, for example, or polygamy, or cruelty to animals—and could even exhibit "animus" toward such conduct. Surely that is the only sort of "animus" at issue here: moral disapproval of homosexual conduct, the same sort of moral disapproval that produced centuries-old criminal laws that we held constitutional in Bowers [the 1986 case upholding Georgia's sodomy law and what is still law in half of our states and in our Armed Forces' "Uniform Code of Military Justice."].

Justice Scalia continues by writing in his opinion that "Coloradans are ...entitled to be hostile toward homosexual conduct" and that the "Court's portrayal of Coloradans as a society fallen victim to pointless, hate-filled 'gay-bashing' is so false as to be comical." Unquote. Comical, Scalia wrote. Mr. Speaker, he thought his opinion to be so important that he took the time to read it aloud to the U.S. Supreme Court, to read aloud his entire dissenting opinion which was much longer than the majority opinion.

Mr. Speaker, please reflect on Justice Scalia's carefully chosen words. He is saying that you and I, and all Coloradans, are entitled—he italicized this word in his opinion—"entitled to be hostile toward homosexual conduct..." Not hostile toward any person, but hostile toward the conduct. Only craven, cowardly bullies hurt or bash individuals and they should be severely punished with the full force of law. A law abiding citizen doesn't even physically abuse a guilty drunk driver at an accident scene involving an injured child—and that's a tough provocation. He makes a citizen's arrest and waits for the police.

So let me state for the record again, Mr. Speaker, before the million plus interested citizens watching on C–SPAN, and not referring to any individual in particular, . . . It's the conduct, stupid. And Mr. GUNDERSON knows in his heart of hearts that if he were being physically assaulted out on the street, BOB DORNAN would be one of the very first, if not the first, to defend and protect him even at risk of my own life. If you doubt that, just ask Congressman CUNNINGHAM and about half dozen of our Capitol Hill police officers.

I, like most Americans, do have animus towards homosexual conduct . . . and at the ostentatious in-your-face conduct that was exhibited at the Cherry Jubilee group grope. In his floor statement, Mr. GUNDERSON attempts to portray the homosexual conduct at the stately Mellon Auditorium as a "gift of love, not a week-end of illegal activity." Even the remotest touch of common sense will tell any American, Mr. Speaker, that the 8,160 square foot Mellon Federal auditorium, which is bigger than the 7,600 square footage of this House chamber and almost twice as big as the 4,300 square foot Senate chamber, when filled with 2,000-plus writhing, bumping and grinding, homosexuals, hundreds half-naked, is anything but a "gift of love" . . . unless, of course, you define lust as love—which is similar to a Member of Congress using love as an excuse for responding to a male pimp's sex ad in the homosexual Blade newspaper, an ad which was signed off by "Hot Bottom" . . . face it, that's lust, not love.

Just why would I have animus about a sleazy homosexual jamboree? Fair question with a very easy answer. Again, Mr. GUNDERSON claimed the Cherry Hop raised about $50,000. The truth is that it raised only $45,000. But think about this, Mr. Speaker, if just one person after that night of quote "coping feels"—that's the term of an anonymous columnist reporting on the hop for the homosexual Metro Weekly newspaper and cited in The Washington Times—. . . after a night of "coping feels" on that dance floor, if just one person, after furtively sharing a little cocaine with an all-too-friendly same-sex tripper in a latrine stall, if only that one person after the gala, back at a motel or hotel shared the virus that keeps on giving—the fatal AIDS virus . . . then . . . that mere $45,000 raised is but a drop in the bucket. Why? Because it won't even cover a fraction of the cost that one single AIDS patient will require throughout his medical decline and death.

God demands compassion and prayers for the infected patient and for the dying patient. Jesus commands it . . . "What you do for these, the least of mine, you do for me." Yes, of course, love and compassion. But focused animosity is logical when directed at the behavior of the arrogant risk-takers, those hell-bent-for-leather to put lust before long life and therefore overload, if not bankrupt, our health systems. Dr. Tony Fauci told me 3 weeks ago at NIH that many homosexuals now become HIV positive because of mere frustration, mere annoyance at having to avoid AIDS with less risky sex. So, mentally exhausted with safer sodomy, they succumb to high risk lust with its inevitable fate. Mr. GUNDERSON says that we "must not lecture one another," quote, "if there is to remain any element of mutual respect." Unquote. Well if lecturing is out, then I simply plead with young Americans at risk: Stop hurting one another. Stop killing one another. Stop the promiscuity. Stop the dangerous and unhealthy conduct. And stop holding up homosexual conduct before the youth of our country as wholesome and normal and healthy.

Let met turn around another GUNDERSON insult: He accused me of trying, quote, "to personally destroy those with whom (I) might disagree" . . . we, who truly believe we are our brother's keeper, . . . are not trying to destroy you risk-takers, we're trying to save your immortal souls, and your mortal lives in the measure.

Mr. Speaker, let's address the central allegation of Mr. GUNDERSON's May 14 floor speech; that I had a large hand in intentionally "misrepresenting the facts" and intentionally "falsifying information" surrounding the "Cherry Jubilee Weekend." I repeat, he actually used those false words "misrepresenting the facts" six times.

For the record, Mr. Speaker, these salacious advertisements at my side are exactly what I'm talking about when I criticize the melee at the Mellon.

The Cherry Jubilee Weekend consisted of three inclusive events; First, a Friday, April 12, Welcome Party held primarily for this homosexual circuit party's out of town guests, as the promoters at Friends Being Friends have explained. The Welcome Party was advertised as being held in two locations, or as the promoters say, two of Washington's popular local hangouts, the homosexual bars Trumpets and JR's. Mr. Speaker, I have here advertisements for these bars as printed in the city's premier homosexual newspaper The Washington Blade. Note, Mr. Speaker, alongside the ad with this naked male model is another ad with a male homosexual dressed in women's lingerie for the bar Trumpets. These bars were the starting point of Mr. GUNDERSON's gift of love and love thy neighbor as yourself weekend. Mr. Speaker, please think again at this point about Tailhook and the outrageous double standard that we tolerate, especially given the code of honor we Americans demand from our military, and the pathetically low standard of ethics enforced here and in the Senate. Even Packwood avoided being expelled for over a year, then he quit amid tearful goodbyes. Bye, bye, Mr. Abortion.

The second event of the Cherry Jubilee Weekend was the Main Event held Saturday night and which ran until dawn Sunday morning. This was the so-called dance at the surrealistically lighted Mellon. Mr. Speaker, remember that the event's sponsors claim they spent $14,000 just on lighting—not the bright lights of a debutante's ball as suggested by Mr. GUNDERSON—but the hypnotic, psychedelic lighting so befitting the hedonism that it was partially illuminating?

The third event comprising the package weekend was the Sunday Recovery Brunch hosted by Mr. GUNDERSON in our House Rayburn Courtyard. This function was initially advertised as being held in Mr. GUNDERSON's, quote, "unique Agriculture Committee Room located inside the Longworth House Office Building." I assume Mr. GUNDERSON decided a much larger site was needed.

The Washington Blade newspaper wrote a post-mortem of these events, quote, "Cherry Jubilee kicked off Friday, April 12, with a 'Welcome Cocktail Party' at Trumpets"—that's the 17th St. bistro advertised here, Mr. Speaker, with this cowboy dressed in women's underwear. Back to the Blade, "This was followed by a "Welcome Dance Party" at Diversite, a 14th Street club. (The Washingtonian Magazine says it's D.C.'s "best bar for the scene.") The 'Main Event,' an all-night dance attended by over 2,000 people, took place at the historic Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium" (note that even they say "historic" . . . and it's straight across from the National Museum of American History on America's number 1 boulevard, Constitution Ave. And, Mr. Speaker, the Mellon's impressive front doors are exactly 106 paces across Constitution, I personally paced it off, from the mammoth 1814 original "Star Spangled Banner," the actual thirty foot by thirty four foot Ft. McHenry flag that inspired Francis Scott Key to write our National Anthem, including the words, ". . . And this be our motto: In God we trust!" Back to the Blade, quote, "The weekend wound down with the 'Capitol Hill Recovery Brunch' held at the Longworth House Office Building foyer and patio from 1 to 6 pm," unquote. (Actually the Rayburn Courtyard.)

The Blade continued its description of the weekend, "Cherry Jubilee attracted people from as far away as Switzerland and San Francisco." Mr. Speaker, that's a reference to the traveling bi and homosexual so-called "circuit party" crowd. One of the weekend's sponsors crowed, I quote, "Pretty much someone from every city came"

That was a description of the weekend from one of their very own newspapers, so let's be honest concerning what we're describing. And, let's be very clear about something else . . . Most of Mr. GUNDERSON's point of personal privilege was spent in criticizing and contradicting the written report and video record of journalist Marc Morano, who was an eyewitness of the Saturday night event. Accompanying Marc was another reporter named Jerry. This character assassination of Mr. Morano is phony and transparent from the start given that Mr. GUNDERSON admitted early on that he, GUNDERSON, was nowhere near Saturday night's "Main Event" of hedonism.

Contrary to what Mr. GUNDERSON speculated about Mr. Morano sneaking in, Morano not only bought one ticket at the door, but actually bought another ticket from a scalper for his assistant Jerry, who is obviously a corroborative eyewitness. Why, Mr. GUNDERSON asks, didn't Mr. Morano just proclaim up front why he was there with a video camera? Obviously, he would have been thrown out, just as he was blocked from even entering Mr. GUNDERSON's soiree in our Rayburn Courtyard the next day. As it was, Marc was only able to shoot limited footage. Again, the lighting was purposefully dim, as you can plainly see in this single video still frame that I've had blown up from Mr. Morano's video report just for inquiring minds and honest journalists.

Parenthetically, Mr. Speaker, do you know what scene this blow up reminds me of? The final scenes from the movie "The Ten Commandments." I can hear that unique voice-over narration of Cecil B. DeMille as he paraphrased Exodus Chapter 32 with a touch of Leviticus. Mr. Speaker, you may apply these words, if you choose, to the lapses of dignity at the Tailhook disgrace, but they fit more accurately, times 100, the degradation that disgraced our Capital at the Mellon Auditorium—twice—April 1993 and April 1996.

The narration picks up after the Bible tells us Aaron "Let the people run wild." With reverent foreboding, C.B. DeMille narrates:

> They were as children who had lost their faith. They were preverse and crooked and rebellious against God. They did eat the bread of wickedness and drank the wine of violence. And they did evil in the eyes of the Lord.

On screen the young girl being sacrificed pleads, "Have you no shame?" We hear that word "shame" applied to Christians quite often by homosexual activists. How perverse.

Scene up on Mount Sinai, God orders Moses, "Go, get thee down, for thy people have corrupted themselves."

DeMille:

> And the people rose up to play. They were as the children of fools and cast off their clothes. The wicked were like a troubled sea whose waters cast up filth and dirt. They sank from evil to evil and were viler than the earth. They had become servants of sin. And there was manifest all manner of ungodliness and works of the flesh. Adultery and lasciviousness, uncleanness, idolatry, and rioting, vanity and wrath. And they were filled with iniquity and vile affections and Aaron knew that he had brought them to shame.

Remember that Time magazine cover, "What Ever Happened to Shame?"

By the way, Mr. Speaker, I know I speak for most Members when I state that the only

Moses we like to hear about on this House floor is our Moses of Exodus, the Moses up there in the center place of honor on our north wall, Moses in marble relief looking down on us. Hopefully to inspire us. Moses the lawgiver, Moses of the Ten Commandments, commandments, Mr. Speaker; not suggestions about matters like infanticide and adultery and sodomy. Moses the Prophet. I am beyond annoyance hearing on this floor about Herb Moses or Rob Morris. Why must we hear about 45-year-old and fiftyish boy friends? I only know the first names of about 20 spouses, and not the single maiden name of a Member's spouse. Enough already with Rob and Herb's family values.

Mr. Speaker, an important point. Mr. GUNDERSON was adamant that there were no orange cones put out to stop public sodomy, but only to warn of construction hazards. Well, Mr. Morano told me, and I personally confirmed this on a visit to this impressive building, that the outside orange construction cones were not for hazard warning of construction work as Mr. GUNDERSON asserted, but were indeed to ward off hard partyers seeking the remote and dark refuge of an outside dead-end stairwell that they themselves dubbed "Screw Alley." Again, I personally observed that it is not an alley, but an elegant arched side carriage entrance and courtyard—there is a courtyard carriage entrance with handicap ramps on each side of the magnificent auditorium. This is where much of the reported public urination was taking place, right there next to our historic Constitution Avenue. The two-carriage entrance courtyards were also the smoking sections for multi-risk fastlaners. One eyewitness said that so many people were up and down the dark stairwells that orange cones were set up by an APEX rent-a-cop, to quote, "detour the traffic," unquote. Mr. Speaker, there was no construction work outside and certainly nothing "constructive" going on inside.

In the course of his floor statement, Mr. GUNDERSON said, quote, "Mr. Dornan uses an article to portray a recent series of events held in this town, in Government buildings, as a party of numerous illegal activities. Nothing could be further from the truth." Unquote.

So, to again use Mr. GUNDERSON'S very words, "It's time to set the record straight."

The very day after he delivered his statement, the Washington Times, May 15, corroborated the charges of illegal drug activity independent of reporter Marc Morano and his associate's eyewitness accounts. Illegal drugs were used at the taxpayer-owned and GSA-operated historic Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium. And, by the way, Mr. Speaker, Mr. GUNDERSON kept saying the Commerce Department runs the Mellon. Another of his misstatements. It's run by the General Services Administration. This proves again that community lawyers or Whitman-Walker wrote his May 14 protestation.

I met personally with the very professional lady who has been the principal GSA supervisor there for over 10 years. She told me when she came to the Mellon Sunday morning it was filthy, with mixed-drink-sticky-slime covering most of the auditorium floor. She demanded and got Whitman-Walker to pay for a cleaning crew on Sunday, at a triple overtime rate.

As for displays of public sex—who among the participants would come forward and incriminate themselves? As for the one off-duty officer, still unidentified and probably nonexistent, and the six APEX rent-a-cops—wouldn't you expect six or seven people to be overwhelmed by 2,000-plus undulating and mock-humping revelers? And the fact remains that, for many homosexuals, the attraction to partners who are strangers for public sex is pathological. Here is a book, published by homosexual press, for the sole and explicit purpose of leading willing participants to semisecret hot spots across the Nation for public, homosexual sex. This thick magazine is titled "Steam", Mr. Speaker. It says that there is a European locations edition.

And look at this thick magazine of depraved classified ads spun off from the homosexual Advocate magazine, Mr. Speaker, most are offensive ads for soliciting sex with strangers. The Advocate spun off this AIDS-spreading depravity into a separate slick magazine so they could attract political interviews like the one with Clinton this very month. A very creepy mailed-in interview, by the way. Par for his course.

No person in their right mind believes that 2,000 upscale homosexuals gathered together in one place for all-night revelry, in such an elegant, taxpayer-owned edifice, weren't pairing up for later action.

Just listen to Mr. GUNDERSON's own words, quote, "The sponsors intentionally took steps to prevent even an atmosphere conducive to illegal activity." Unquote. This is definitely not standard party protocol at your American Legion Hall dance or at any NCO Club dance or a Kiwanis or Rotary Club night out. How about our own Capitol Hill Club? Think Tailhook again, Mr. Speaker, and the price paid by heroic combat pilots who have lost their careers. Why would Mr. GUNDERSON have to tell us all of this, if these so-called homosexual circuit parties, drawing thousands, weren't traveling, lust-liaisons known for their illegal drug activities? Why would they need, as he describes it, quote, "strategically placed security personnel,"? Or why would they need, as Mr. GUNDERSON says, quote, "Three-foot-by-four-foot posters placed throughout the auditorium and throughout the restrooms with the message: 'The possession or use of illegal substances is strictly prohibited.'" Again, the infamous Tailhook mess did not require signs posted around the Vegas Hilton. Why would these posters be needed to control partyers described by Mr. GUNDERSON as—and the Speaker knows that I'm not making this up, check the May 14th RECORD—"the love of God personified" (pause) and a people whom, quote, "every conservative and every Republican should applaud." How Mr. GUNDERSON kept a straight face through all of these sacrilegious comparisons I'll never know.

It reminds me of their new and equally offensive gambit of referring to an obsession with an unnatural sex act as a "gift from God." What small "g" god would that be, the god pan? What sacrilegious, errant nonsense. This transparent propaganda is usually advanced by homosexual clerics and phoney sex therapists of the "if-it-moves-mate-with-it" school.

Here's Mr. GUNDERSON's next claim: quote, "My sole role was to serve as the congressional host for the Sunday Brunch by requesting a space in my name." Unquote.

In press accounts, my self-appointed adversary repeatedly points out that he was not a sponsor of the Cherry Jubilee Weekend. But just as Justice Scalia writes about homosexual orientation versus homosexual conduct, use of the words "host" versus "sponsor" is a "difference without a distinction."

Again, as advertised, the Cherry Jubilee Weekend was three events in one. To buy one ticket was to buy a Weekend Ticket, or a ticket to all events. Not to mention that to buy a ticket, for whatever purpose, was to give your money to the entire weekend's activities. Similarly, and a clever politician such as Mr. GUNDERSON knows this, to host one event—in other words, to let your name be officially used—is to lend your name to the entire weekend "Jubilee" and to this offensive, pagan advertising that you see beside me.

Further, Mr. GUNDERSON left out some very interesting information that our House Oversight Committee should look into. There are mandatory House rules which specifically guide the use of Federal property on this Hill—in this case, the Rayburn Courtyard where Mr. GUNDERSON's April 14 "Sunday Recovery Brunch" was held. That was it's actual name, a "Recovery Brunch." And isn't it fair to ask, "recovery" from what? Could it be—oh I don't know—that devilish all night partying at the palatial Mellon Auditorium, lasting for 9 hours from 9 p.m. until 6 a.m. in the morning on the Lord's day?

House regulations governing the use of our taxpayer-owned meeting rooms state that these rooms, or space such as the Rayburn Courtyard, "shall not be used for fundraising." Well, Mr. GUNDERSON stated in his words that fundraising was the entire purpose for the "Jubilee" which included his Recovery Brunch, all on one E-ride ticket. Nor are our rooms to be used for "entertaining tour groups." Again, the "Cherry Jubilee Weekend" was reported in the Washington, DC, city paper as part of a traveling "homosexual circuit party." Would that be a tour group, Mr. Speaker? What do you think, Mr. GINGRICH?

And groups using our rooms are not permitted to charge an "admission fee." Mr. GUNDERSON stated in his floor speech that the Recovery Brunch cost $25 per person. That's interesting, because one ticket for the "Jubilee," entitling a participant to brunch at Mr. GUNDERSON's recovery, cost $100, not $25. Do you think, Mr. Speaker, that Brunch sponsors were collecting last minute unofficial admission fees at the door that Sunday afternoon? Who ran the accounting for that money collection?

Do you also think for a moment that if someone did not pay the admission fee for the brunch they would have been allowed in, Mr. Speaker? It simply does not compute.

A guest list is required to be submitted by the sponsor of any event when held during "off-hour periods," such as Sundays. And events in the Rayburn Courtyard are not allowed before 4 p.m. Was a list of attendees submitted, Mr. Speaker? I doubt it. And why was the event allowed to begin at 1 p.m., 3 hours before the authorized hour of 4 p.m.? Was Mr. GUNDERSON given a waiver to go around the rules this way? I doubt it. But if so, by whom?

To those Members who may be toying with the thought that I'm splitting hairs, let me remind you, Mr. Speaker, of the nature of the procedural question of privilege involved here. Mr. GUNDERSON over and over accused me of being the primary distributor of false information and deliberate untruths.

If the chair will recall, there was a previous Dornan-Gunderson dust up here on the House floor 2 years ago. It was prompted by his self-serving comment that he places himself among the Christian avatars in Congress, and these are his exact words, quote, "I'm second-to-none-in-quote-unquote, advocating Christian values around here" * * * here meaning Congress. Some may recall my-truth-in-advertising response to Mr. GUNDERSON'S words. And now, in this latest go-round, here he is again invoking Christianity, but this time implying that I am somehow un-Christian, and implying that I and others were attacking defenseless individuals whom Mr. GUNDERSON describes as "those in need of these services"—meaning AIDS services.

Specifically, he stated—and Mr. Speaker, I hope everyone will take note of his exact words—"Cherry Jubilee represented the best of this American tradition." Then "Cherry Jubilee represented the best of the American family." And, a few sentences later, "Cherry Jubilee represented the best of America's Judeo-Christian ethic." Excuse me? Give us struggling believers a break. I repeat his most offensive statement. Mr. GUNDERSON states that the participants at Cherry Jubilee "became the love of God personified." "The love of God personified"! How outrageously offensive! How sacrilegious! These odious comparisons make the next weird comparison a belly laugh . . . . the half naked dancers and prancers were, quote, "Newt's shining lights on a hill." Unquote. Are NEWT'S lights anything like Governor Winthrop's "shining city on a hill"? I wonder if Winthrop is still spinning in his grave? He probably hasn't stopped spinning since that infamous 1983 censure of the Member from Plymouth Rock.

Mr. Speaker, as I said I'm a grandfather who treasures the innocence of American youngsters and I happily accept our "in loco parentis" role with our idealistic young pages, so I will refrain from discussing reporter Marc Morano's roughest descriptions of the so-called "love of God personified." But this picture gives us a tiny, tiny hint.

And this still-frame from Marc Morano's video camera was taken very early on the night of April 13. All I can say is, this is not my American tradition or my American family. And this is sure as hell and heaven not my Judeo-Christian ethic or code of ethics. This does not represent the love of God, certainly not fear of the God of Abraham, the Father of Jesus, or love in any faith that I've ever heard of. This is pagan in every sense of that word. This is a bad rerun of worshiping Molech and Belial.

Mr. Speaker, the tension between me and the three revealed-by-conduct homosexuals in this House is a reflection of the national debate on our moral and spiritual decline. A debate that has tragically been stifled, if not snuffed out completely, in the Democratic party. Fortunately, it is still very much alive within my Republican Party and it's raging white hot in many communities throughout our land. There can be no compromise in this struggle * * * that is why so many faint-of-heart Members in this institution want all moral issues, even partial-birth infanticide abortions, to just go away! Even lazier and more cowardly are those shallow fools who say, so what! I pity their children in the love department. Unfortunately, a struggle over virtue and the future of our Nation as a land of Godly people can only subside when one side wins and the other side loses. And history tells us the battle will wax and wane until the Second Coming.

Mr. Speaker, I know what I am doing by upping the ante in this hellacious fight. I know the danger it holds for me and for my very large family, both politically and personally. But the stakes are to high for anyone to remain on the sidelines who makes claim to a fighters heart that is I pray brave. The stakes are thousands of human lives at jeopardy * * * at jeopardy to the ravages of an irreversible, fatal venereal disease and * * * far more heart-breaking, there are the souls in jeopardy * * * the immortal souls. The stakes are also * * * our beloved America, as we know it.

One of our cockiest Members is fond of whining in exasperation "what do all of these extremists have to fear from two people of the same sex who love each other?

Given that he undoubtedly is including me among his designated "extremists," I have an answer for him, from a pro-homosexual book, an observation that both sides in the struggle should be able to accept.

"Homosexuality impinges on such questions as what it means to be male or female, what can be considered sexual pathology, what the purposes of sexuality are * * * thus homosexual relationships challenge the moral and emotional basis for the way our culture deals with sexuality." Pretty straightforward, Mr. Speaker.

I would further add that there are many other reasons to oppose the norming of the abnormal. Reasons such as respect for the desires of the God of both the Old and New Testaments * * * or respect for the course of nature itself or what Jefferson's Declaration calls "nature's God," or for the survival of the traditional family of one man and one woman bound together in mutual respect and love, sacrificing their selfish interests to procreate, nurture, and maintain what our founders called "posterity," i.e., all of our innocent children yet unborn. This is a legacy that has been time-tested, for millennia, and by its very success it is undeniably the proven path.

The difference between philos love, which is the non-sexual bonding of dear friends, and homosexuality is that the latter is grounded in a sex act, and variations on that eros theme, in conduct that is defined in that dictionary behind me as "sodomy," and sodomy can never be anything but a selfish, hedonistic, and impotent ritual that bears only the lifeless fruits of disease and emotional distress. I pray for all those, Mr. Speaker, who continue to chose a lifestyle and conduct, so sad and so devoid of true happiness, of true gaiety, which is the joy of life * * * joie de vivre * * * the gaiety that flows from God's love.

Mr. Speaker, to our traditional friends who may be listening right now—those who are often maligned and ridiculed in liberal media for their constancy and courage in defending decency and virtue—Remember that our forefathers paid a terrible price to win their liberty * * * our liberty. It cost most their fortunes or and many their very lives, but never their honor. Every tiny segment that we give up of our standard of decency hastens the demise of our very basic freedoms. Remember, we traditionalists fight to protect the entire spectrum of moral living. Therefore, each political compromise forced upon us—each traditional virtue that we surrender or even compromise—is a loss of something we treasured and thus we are weakened for the next inevitable confrontation. In the culture war in which we are engaged, we must remind ourselves over and over that only a virtuous people can be a free people. Remember Alexis de Tocqueville's insightful prediction, "As long as America is good, America will be great." Our Founders knew that well. It is the nature of this struggle that we will always be on the defensive. Do not feel discouraged or downhearted because we refuse to be "positive" about sodomy or abortion-on-demand just to please liberal reporters. The hard reality is that in this decency battle, the hedonists win something every time we compromise, and the rest of us lose a bit more of our virtue, another one of the foundations of our freedom. Mr. Speaker, the unrelenting chipping away at moral tradition by our adversaries succeeds only when we are complacent or when we continue our delusionary trips to that big three-ring circus tent, a tent that some want to be so large that it will allow practitioners of any perversion to slither in and even be welcomed. Today the Ephebephiles, heterosexual ephebephiles or homosexual ephebephiles, tomorrow, Hello Pedophiles! Come on in, it's a very big tent.

We, who know what objective truth is, must make a firm commitment every day * * * to never, ever compromise in this intense conflict to preserve a culture that is not just safe for children but for their families * * * a culture with virtue, a culture that pleases God.

And what possible claims can homosexual activists make toward Christian loyalty. A true Christian must be able to say with believability, "I try to walk in the footsteps of my Savior Jesus Christ." For someone to claim without shame, that the disgusting display of hedonism at the majestic, publicly-owned Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium had anything to do with Jesus Christ or his followers is to exercise raw evil egotism. Dr. Billy Graham had it exactly right. We are "a nation on the brink of self-destruction." But we need not self-destruct nor commit national suicide. Honest Abe Lincoln, at only age 38, warned us to steel ourselves against national self-destruction.

Mr. Speaker, let me repeat those words from a four-star general that I used in my opening, "we must insist on disciplined and principled behavior. * * * The majority of our members understand well that integrity is essential in an organization where we count on fellow members and that honesty is the glue that binds the members into a cohesive team.

"And they easily take responsibility for their actions and exhibit the courage to do the right thing.

"Yes, most professionals place service before self and willingly subordinate personal interests for the good of their unit, the Air Force and the Nation and, if called upon, are willing to risk their lives in defense of the United States."

Thank you, General Ron Fogelman for inspiring me in a period when I certainly find myself on a solo deep-strike recon mission.

Mr. Speaker, true love will always protect the innocent. I will always challenge the child corrupters, my shield is always the chastening and fearful words of Jesus Christ in Matthew 18:6, "Whosoever shall cause one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea". . . . I will do a post mortem on these matters, if I have to, in a Special Order, so as to clear up, with the truth, any late breaking developments. Thank you for your attention, Mr. Speaker, and may God truly bless and watch over our bountiful land. I yield back the balance of my time, but I will never yield my sense of decency.

REPORT ON H.R. 3734, WELFARE AND MEDICAID REFORM ACT OF 1996

Mr. KOLBE, from the Committee on the Budget, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 104–651) on the bill (H.R. 3734) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 201(a)(1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1997, which was referred to Union Calendar and ordered to be printed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the further consideration of H.R. 3675 and that I may include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1997

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 456 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 3675.

□ 2127

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 3675) making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes, with Mr. BEREUTER in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

□ 2130

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Wednesday, June 26, 1996, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule.

The amendment printed in section 2 of House Resolution 460 is adopted.

During consideration of the bill for further amendment, the Chair may accord priority in recognition to a Member offering an amendment that he has printed in the designated place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Those amendments will be considered read.

The chairman of the Committee of the Whole may postpone until a time during further consideration in the Committee of the Whole a request for a recorded vote on any amendment and may reduce to not less than 5 minutes the time for voting by electronic device on any postponed question that immediately follows another vote by electronic device without intervening business, provided that the time for voting by electronic device on the first in any series of questions shall not be less than 15 minutes.

After the reading of the final lines of the bill, a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted shall, if offered by the majority leader or a designee, have precedence over a motion to amend.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes, namely:

TITLE I

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Office of the Secretary, $53,816,000, of which not to exceed $40,000 shall be available as the Secretary may determine for allocation within the Department for official reception and representation expenses: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, there may be credited to this appropriation up to $1,000,000 in funds received in user fees established to support the electronic tariff filing system: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this Act or otherwise made available may be used to maintain custody of airline tariffs that are already available for public and departmental access at no cost; to secure them against detection, alteration, or tampering; and open to inspection by the Department.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. CHAIRMAN, I have an amendment printed in the RECORD, which I will not offer if I can engage the chairman of the subcommittee in a colloquy.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DAVIS. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I would be pleased to engage in a colloquy with my friend, the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. DAVIS. I thank the chairman.

I would tell the gentleman, Mr. Chairman, I have received assurances from the administrator of the Federal Highway Administration that he intends to undertake, on behalf of the District of Columbia, a comprehensive transportation needs assessment for the District. Such a study is desperately needed by the District, and it would benefit the entire Washington area, because of the interconnection of all of our transportation systems. This study will be paid for with Federal funds.

The administration is willing to conduct this study for the District because of the serious impact on traffic of the closure of Pennsylvania Avenue. I seek assurance from the chairman of the committee that he will work with the Federal Highway Administration to ensure that this study is conducted, that Congress and the District of Columbia government are consulted on the parameters of the study, that we are able to review the results before they are final, that it will be as comprehensive as necessary, and that it will be finished within a year.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I thank my colleague for his concern on this important matter. Indeed it is a matter of regional importance, and I share his interest. I want to commend him for bringing this to the committee's attention.

I will tell him and guarantee him that I will work with him, the District, the Federal Highway Administration, and anybody else we have to work with to make sure it is done. I understand the Federal Highway Administration may take anywhere from 6 to 12 months and it will cost up to $1 million, but it is a great idea, and I am really glad the gentleman brought it to the attention of the committee.

Mr. DAVIS. I thank the chairman for his assurances. I too understand that this is a major undertaking that may take as much as a year and $1 million to complete. That is why I wanted to raise this matter on the floor. Again, I thank the chairman of the committee for his assurances and assistance.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to enter into a colloquy with the subcommittee chairman.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PORTER. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I would be happy to engage the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PORTER] in a colloquy.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, in the 1993 Congress we passed the Swift Rail Development Act, which directed the Secretary of Transportation to prescribe regulations regarding the sounding of train whistles or horns when trains approach and enter public highway-rail grade crossings. This authority has been delegated to the Federal Railroad Administration.

Mr. Chairman, railroad safety is of the utmost importance to me and to all Members of Congress. At the same time, it seems clear that the FRA is expected to take into consideration the quality of life concerns of affected communities in developing and implementing regulations.

Mr. WOLF. Yes, safety is of paramount importance to me as well, and we would expect the FRA to take such concerns into consideration.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, this would include an expectation that the FRA would document the impact on communities of any new requirements for the sounding of train whistles or horns at highway-rail grade crossings, and that in exercising its statutory authority to provide for exceptions to the horn sounding requirement, the FRA would consider the safety records of individual highway-rail grade crossings and provide exceptions where there is no significant history of loss of life or serious personal injury.

And further, this would include FRA's consideration of comprehensive local rail safety enforcement and public education programs as supplementary safety measures, and that, where it is determined that new physical supplementary safety measures are necessary, that the particular characteristics of each crossing and the views of the affected community would be considered in determining the practicality of a proposed supplementary safety measure.

Finally, I would understand that this would include an expectation that the FRA would work in close partnership with communities affected by this law and provide such communities with technical assistance.

Mr. WOLF. Yes, Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is correct. It is the committee's intent that the FRA should incorporate the gentleman from Illinois's recommendation.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the subcommittee chairman.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to compliment the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, as well as the distinguished chairman of the full committee and the ranking Members, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY], and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN], for the high level of consultation and cooperation with our Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure in developing this bill. Our committee's concerns have been addressed in a very fair manner, and I want to thank the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the fiscal year 1997 Transportation Appropriations Bill.

First and foremost, I want to thank Mr. LIVINGSTON, Mr. WOLF, and Mr. COLEMAN, and their staff for the high level of consultation and cooperation with the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee in developing this bill. The committee's concerns have been addressed in a very fair manner.

Overall the bill balanced the need for a strong Federal role in transportation safety with the need to continue to invest in our Nation's infrastructure. At the same time, the committee had to develop a bill in a climate of tight budgets. They have done an admirable job and should be commended.

For the Federal-Aid Highway Program, the funding level is being kept at the fiscal year 1996 level. The obligation limitation is kept to $17.5 billion—the highest level ever enacted but not at the ISTEA authorized level of $18.3 billion. There is no change to the exempt highway programs.

Despite this level of funding, in fiscal year 1997 outlays from the highway account of the trust fund will still be $700 million below tax receipts. As I have repeatedly stated, it is unethical for us to collect dedicated user fees and not use them for their intended purpose.

For the transit program, the overall level is also kept at the fiscal year 1996 level of $4 billion. This program helps modernize, and maintain our transit systems. It also helps build new systems. Good transit has an important role to play, especially in our large and congested cities. This bill will continue the Federal role in this mode of transportation.

I want to clarify that nothing in the provisions contained on lines 1–9 on page 27, under the heading "Formula Grants" in any way amends, supersedes, or alters the existing current law, which prohibits funding any transit operating expenses that may be incurred under any programs funded under this heading, including operating expenses from the section 18 non-urbanized area formula program, for the mass transit account of the highway trust fund. Under current law, transit operating expenses may only be funded from the general fund.

In permanent law when ISTEA was enacted was the authority to make expenditures from the mass transit account "for capital or capital-related expenses", section 9503(E)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. Read together, the ISTEA authorization and the expenditure authority limitation from the mass transit account enable the capital-eligible activities under the section program to be funded from the mass transit account, and any operating expenses incurred as part of that program to be funded exclusively from the general fund.

For aviation, the bill funds an increase of $254 million for operations. This increase will fund important safety functions and initiatives. The bill also provides funds to continue the modernization of the air traffic control system—a critical safety issue.

Unfortunately, due to budget constraints, the committee cut funding for airport grants by 10 percent. I believe that there continue to be significant needs for additional investment in our airports for both safety and capacity reasons.

For the Coast Guard the committee has ensured that there are sufficient funds to continue all its missions. We strongly support the Coast Guard's important role in drug interdiction. This is a vital Coast Guard mission that affects every community across this country. The bill also fully funds the State boat safety grant program which is critical to improving safety among recreational boaters.

Unfortunately, funding for Amtrak has been reduced substantially. This reduced funding could jeopardize Amtrak's future and highlights the critical need for the reforms embodied in H.R. 1788, which was passed by the House last November. We continue to look forward to working with the Senate on this much-needed legislation. In addition, I hope when we consider a conference report we will provide additional funds.

This is a good bill. Put together under difficult circumstances. I commend the gentleman from Virginia for his work in developing this bill.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHUSTER. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for his comments. The relationship has probably been as good or better than it has ever been, so I appreciate the gentleman's comments. I hope we can continue this relationship for many more years.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Chairman, as the House takes up consideration of the fiscal year 1997 transportation appropriations bill (HR 3675), I want to explain the current law provisions governing expenditures from the Mass Transit Account and to clarify that HR 3675 does not amend current law with respect to those Trust Fund expenditures.

By way of background, the Committee on Ways and Means has jurisdiction over provisions which amend the Internal Revenue Code Trust Funds, including the Mass Transit Account within the Highway Trust Fund. The Committee's jurisdiction is not limited to the financing of the Trust Funds. The Committee's jurisdiction includes the expenditure purposes of the Trust Funds. The role of the Committee on Ways and Means over the expenditure purposes of the Trust Fund Code acknowledges the long-standing agreement that Trust Fund spending purposes should be approved by the Committee responsible for raising dedicated revenues.

The statutory provisions governing expenditures from the Mass Transit Account within the Highway Trust Fund were established in the 1982 Surface Transportation Assistance Act. The Trust Fund expenditure purposes have been revised subsequently to reflect the purposes contained in authorizing legislation, most recently in the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991.

The expenditure purposes of the Mass Transit Account are found in the Internal Revenue Code section 9503(e)(3) which provides that "(A)mounts in the Mass Transit Account shall be available, as provided by appropriation Acts, for making capital or capital-related expenditures before October 1, 1997—including capital expenditures for new projects—in accordance with * * * [the 1991 Act and specified sections of Title 49] * * * as such Acts are in effect on the date of the enactment of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991." (Emphasis added.)

As my colleagues will note, the Internal Revenue Code is very clear that expenditures from the Mass Transit Account are limited to capital and capital-related purposes. Interpretations of current law or proposed law which would expand expenditure purposes of the Mass Transit Account to include transit operating expenses under the Section 18 Rural Assistance program are without statutory authority or Congressional intent. Finally, any new expenditure purposes from the Mass Transit Account would necessitate a conforming Internal Revenue Code amendment with the consent and approval of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I ask to have the privilege of entering into a colloquy with the chairman of the subcommittee.

Mr. Chairman, as an early supporter of efforts to eliminate the Interstate Commerce Commission and to deregulate the motor carrier industry, I am committed to eliminating needless regulatory and paperwork burdens on that industry. As we know, last year Congress passed and President Clinton signed into law the Interstate commerce Commission Termination Act, which eliminated virtually all economic regulations to the motor carrier industry. The Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations played an important role in that process by eliminating the funding for outdated and unnecessary regulatory functions.

However, I am concerned that one burdensome and costly element of the old regulatory regime remains: the requirement for financial reporting. The original requirement for financial reporting was to facilitate the ICC's statutory obligation to review and approve a motor carrier's rates. That function, rate regulation, no longer exists, and consequently, there is no longer a need to file this data for regulatory purposes.

Federal law requires all trucking companies to have insurance or be approved as a self-insurer following a detailed financial review by USDOT. Neither of these provisions would be affected by eliminating financial reporting.

It is my understanding that the insurance companies do not rely on these reports because they are able to get more current and useful information through their policy application process.

Mr. Chairman, while it would be my preference that we eliminate the requirement for financial reporting, I understand that the Department of Transportation currently is reviewing a number of reporting requirements, including financial reporting, with an eye toward streamlining those requirements.

Mr. Chairman, I hope we can direct the Department of Transportation to move expeditiously on that review, and to provide the Congress with justification for any continued requirement to provide financial information.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PACKARD. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I share the interest of the gentleman from California. However, I am concerned that streamlining these reports could jeopardize or change the current levels of safety. As the gentleman knows, safety has been personally my number one and the number one issue for the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Coleman]. I believe the Department should include this aspect in its review, and the committee looks forward to receiving the information from the Department of Transportation and working with the gentleman from California.

Mr. PACKARD. I appreciate very much the gentleman's willingness to work with us.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would say to the chairman of the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations, I appreciate his acceptance in allowing this colloquy or short discussion.

I would also like to personally thank the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Virginia, [Mr. Wolf] for his, at the outset, agreeability to looking at an issue that is very, very important to many people on this floor. It is also very important to our children and our grandchildren. That is the problem of illicit drugs coming into this country, both through our southwest border and through the Caribbean transit area through Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

We also understand that the Coast Guard plays a very important role in the interdiction effort, and I would like to continue to work with the chairman to find ways we can increase efforts in interdiction; that the Nation must again identify and properly fund an effective drug interdiction effort, and especially in the Caribbean transit zone, as well as in the southwest portion of this country, and to look at the Coast Guard, how we can better work together and find those solutions.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HASTERT. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I pledge I will give it every serious consideration. I commend the gentleman for his interest in this. I think Congress ought to know that the number of high school kids that are using drugs is probably much higher than we actually think. We had a drug conference in my district this past weekend with General McCafferey and a number of other people. In some of the schools, the use of drugs is up to 60 and 65 percent. Drugs are running rampant in this country.

I do not know what the gentleman said is the best idea, but I will give it every consideration. I think the Congress, though, in dealing with this issue, ought to also look at the possibility of setting up strike forces which will go down into South America, into Bolivia, into Colombia, and into Peru, and seize the leaders of these drug cartels and bring them back to the United States, and put them on trial.

But I commend the gentleman for his efforts, and the effort of the gentleman from New Hampshire, [Mr. Zeliff]. As the gentleman knows, we did note some of his concern and included certain items in the committee report. I will give this serious consideration.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman. The statistic is since 1992 to present there has been a 100-percent increase of teenagers that are on, for instance, just cocaine. I think it would be behoove everybody to study what is happening in some of the South American countries, and where there are successes and where there are not.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, he is exactly right. One study showed that when asked, in one area there were 34 percent of the children using drugs, and their parents were asked did they think drug use was around, and only 14 percent though drug use was around. So it is coming back big time, and spiking up. I thank the gentleman for raising this issue.

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I seek to engage in a colloquy with the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Wolf], chairman of the Subcommittee on Transportation of the Committee on Appropriations.

Due to an inadvertent error, the table on page 149 in the committee report indicates that funds allocated for Kalkaska, MI, are to be used for buses.

Will the gentleman agree that the committee in fact intended that the funds be used for an intermodal facility?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STUPAK. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I agree with the gentleman that the funds provided for Kalkaska are to be used for an intermodal facility. I do agree with that.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to thank the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] for his really fine work on this appropriations bill. I would like to take this time to voice my concerns regarding Amtrak's funding levels. Perhaps we can discuss it for a minute.

I am very disappointed with Amtrak's funding levels included in the House transportation appropriations bill. If enacted, these cuts in the operating capital funding for fiscal year 1997 will force Amtrak to close a number of routes and curtail infrastructure investment. Such drastic cuts will not allow Amtrak to reach its goal of self-sufficiency. To successfully accomplish this goal of self-sufficiency, while preserving the national passenger rail system, Amtrak must be provided with a secure and reliable source of capital funding.

My colleague, the honorable gentlewoman from Connecticut, NANCY JOHNSON, has introduced H.R. 2789, the Intercity Passenger Rail Trust Fund Act, of which I am a cosponsor. This bill would establish a dedicate trust fund which would allow Amtrak to decrease its reliance on Federal operating capital more rapidly. This trust fund is not a new tax, nor would it contribute to the deficit. Instead, H.R. 2789 would redirect one-half cent from the existing gasoline tax in the mass transit account of the highway trust fund into a dedicated capital fund for Amtrak.

Without a dedicated funding source, Amtrak will be completely dependent upon the less than certain actions of Congress. This uncertainty hampers the corporation's ability to enter into long-term contracts and move towards fiscal self-sufficiency.

□ 2145

In order to enhance safety, increase reliability, and reduce operating costs, Amtrak must be able to rely on consistent funding.

It is clear we all agree that Amtrak should be free of operating support and should have less dependence on Congress for its funding. However, without adequate capital funds or an alternative funding source now, Amtrak will forever be dependent on Congress and the taxpayers.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CASTLE. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is right, and just to make a couple of comments. We, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN] and I, working in a bipartisan way, the number one issue again that we dealt with was safety, safety whether it be Amtrak or safety whether it be the FAA.

Second, we did not fund the Northeast Corridor because Amtrak has about $466 million that they have not used.

The gentleman raises a very good point, though, and I want to just put it on the record and maybe to go even a little further than the gentleman did. Amtrak will not make it unless there is a dedicated revenue source, and I agree with the gentleman.

There is one thing, though, that I would caution on, and I have not looked at that legislation. There ought to be a half penny, a half cent for Amtrak, but it ought not be in competition coming out of mass transit. If we begin to do that, we are then going to be pitting the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. FOGLIETTA, and New York, and Chicago, and L.A., and San Francisco, and Houston, et cetera, et cetera, against Amtrak. So if we are going to have a half a cent dedicated, it has to be done in such a way that it does not come out of mass transit.

There is the opportunity for the one-half cent, but without a dedicated revenue source, Amtrak will not be able to rely on the appropriation process and it is going to fail. So if there is not one-half cent, Amtrak is going to do under.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman's caution about the half-cent source, and I do not disagree with that. I also appreciate the gentleman's great concern with this particular issue. I think it is going to take the efforts of all of us to come to the rescue, and in particular circumstance as we change away from operating to doing the capital funding. I think it can be done if we work together, and I absolutely believe it is a worthwhile cause. So I appreciate the gentleman's support.

Mr. WOLF. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. LoBIONDO. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to engage the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Virginia [WOLF] in a colloquy.

Mr. Chairman, there is currently a provision in the bill which could allow the United States Coast Guard to sell property in Wildwood, NJ, currently used for the Electronic Engineering Center. This would be devastating for Wildwood, because the property represents one of the last remaining undeveloped areas of natural coastline in southern New Jersey and maybe in the entire State and is very environmentally sensitive.

My community is very upset about even the potential of the Coast Guard selling this property. I understand it was proposed by the Coast Guard merely in order for them to help meet their budget targets.

While I understand that the Coast Guard has budget concerns, I am committed to finding a solution which is acceptable to the community as a whole and protects the normal government service administration real property disposal procedure, which offers the property to other Federal agencies first and is environmentally sound.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LoBIONDO. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. LOBIONDO] bringing this to our attention. Coming originally from Philadelphia, I spent all of my summers down in Wildwood. The fact is I worked as a beach boy selling umbrellas in Wildwood one year, and I also worked in the amusement park in North Wildwood there, so I know the area that the gentleman is talking about. I appreciate him bringing this to my attention.

This year we are going to vacation, though, in Avalon. But the language that was included in the budget request is a way to save money. We were not made aware of the local opposition to the coast Guard's proposal until the gentleman brought it to my attention.

I understand the serious consequence of the proposal. I want to assure the gentleman that I will do whatever is necessary to address this problem in a manner that protects the normal GSA property disposal procedure and is satisfactory to the local community by the time this bill comes out of conference with the Senate.

I thank the gentleman for his hard work on this matter. In fact, if it were not for the gentleman bringing this to our attention, this could have sailed by. Without his intervention, I am sure the Coast Guard proposal would have received little scrutiny or analysis. Now that we are aware of the problem, we will work over the coming weeks with the gentleman and his staff to satisfy the community's concern as we work toward a final solution.

I would tell the gentleman, when he gets to Avalon, the best bake shop in Avalon is Kohler's. And if he gets a chance, stop by Kohler's.

Mr. LoBIONDO. I know the location well. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Chairman, for the assurance to do what is necessary to correct this problem. I look forward to working with the gentleman on this matter in a way which addresses the serious concerns of my constituents.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I think there are many here in this body who did not know that the proposed regulation in the Federal Hazardous Materials Transportation Act in the 103d Congress will most likely cost the average farmer in America approximately $3,200. The overall impact of the regulation could exceed $7 billion.

The Department of Transportation has proposed a regulation that would supersede every State exception grant to the agricultural industry in transferring of agricultural production material from either retail to farm or farm to farm.

Besides the regulatory burdens of such a mandate, the enforcement is even less practical. Please note that most farmers take training classes to be certified every 5 years to even use many of these chemicals. Most States have had in place for years exceptions that allow retailers and farmers to transport regulated agrichemicals to the farms without having to placard their trucks, carry shipments, documents, and provide a 24-hour emergency response phone number.

The rural local transportation of agrichemicals under these exceptions has allowed agribusiness and the farmers to move product efficiently and safely during the farming seasons. In fact, most of these chemicals are transferred during a short 2- to 4-week period. Without the same exceptions that have been granted to the industry in the transfer of such chemicals in the past, farmers will have had to abide by time-consuming, burdensome and costly regulations. Such regulations will not make our rural roads safer, but only increase the cost of doing business, cause confusion and require useless paperwork.

The penalty for not abiding by the regulations can run between a $2,500 to a $10,000 fine per violation.

Today I was going to offer an amendment that would simply have retained the current intrastate exceptions by limiting the use of such funds appropriated. The one-size-fits-all approach fails to recognize the unique seasonal and real nature of these businesses.

Second, by States already allowing such exceptions, they have weighed the concerns and found the risks to be minimal.

Finally, my amendment would have allowed each State to determine if they want to continue the exception for the transfer of such chemicals from retail to farm and from farm to farm if they so decide.

To those in this business, it is just another bureaucratic nightmare that the cost of such a proposed regulation outweights the benefits. To me, this is a bigger and more intrusive government. We eliminated the Interstate Commerce Commission and deregulated the areas of the trucking industry. Now we must continue our efforts to lessen the regulations on farms who transfer these agricultural production materials 2 to 4 weeks a year.

I will be back to offer this amendment in a more appropriate vehicle and hope that my colleagues in the future will join in this endeavor to reduce the burdensome regulation from the Federal level. I look forward to working with the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN] on this measure.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

OFFICE OF CIVIL RIGHTS

For necessary expenses of the Office of Civil Rights, $5,574,000.

TRANSPORTATION PLANNING, RESEARCH, AND DEVELOPMENT

For necessary expenses for conducting transportation planning, research, systems development, and development activities, to remain available until expended, $3,000,000.

TRANSPORTATION ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICE CENTER

Necessary expenses for operating costs and capital outlays of the Transportation Administrative Service Center, not to exceed $124,812,000, shall be paid from appropriations made available to the Department of Transportation: Provided, That such services shall be provided on a competitive basis to entities within the Department of Transportation: Provided further, That the above limitation on operating expenses shall not apply to non-DOT entities: Provided further, That no funds appropriated in this Act to an agency of the Department shall be transferred to the Transportation Administrative Service Center without the approval of the agency modal administrator: Provided further, That no assessments may be levied against any program, budget activity, subactivity or project funded by this Act unless notice of such assessments and the basis therefor are presented to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations and are approved by such Committees.

PAYMENTS TO AIR CARRIERS

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

(INCLUDING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

For liquidation of obligations incurred for payments to air carriers of so much of the compensation fixed and determined under subchapter II of chapter 417 of title 49, United States Code, as is payable by the Department of Transportation, $10,000,000, to remain available until expended and to be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund: Provided, That none of the funds in this Act shall be available for the implementation or execution of programs in excess of $10,000,000 for the Payments to Air Carriers program in fiscal year 1997: Provided further, That none of the funds in this Act shall be used by the Secretary of Transportation to make payment of compensation under subchapter II of chapter 417 of title 49, United States Code, in excess of the appropriation in this Act for liquidation of obligations incurred under the "Payments to air carriers" program: Provided further, That none of the funds in this Act shall be used for the payment of claims for such compensation except in accordance with this provision: Provided further, That none of the funds in this Act shall be available for service to communities in the forty-eight contiguous States that are located fewer than seventy highway miles from the nearest large or medium hub airport, or that require a rate of subsidy per passenger in excess of $200 unless such point is greater than two hundred and ten miles from the nearest large or medium hub airport: Provided further, That of funds provided for "Small Community Air Service" by Public Law 101–508, $28,600,000 in fiscal year 1997 is hereby rescinded.

PAYMENTS TO AIR CARRIERS

(RESCISSION)

Of the budgetary resources remaining available under this heading, $1,133,000 are rescinded.

RENTAL PAYMENTS

For necessary expenses for rental of headquarters and field space not to exceed 8,580,000 square feet and for related services assessed by the General Services Administration, $127,447,000: Provided, That of this amount, $2,022,000 shall be derived from the Highway Trust Fund, $39,113,000 shall be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund, $840,000 shall be derived from the Pipeline Safety Fund, and $193,000 shall be derived from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund: Provided further, That in addition, for assessments by the General Services Administration related to the space needs of the Federal Highway Administration, $17,294,000, to be derived from "Federal-aid Highways", subject to the "Limitation on General Operating Expenses".

MINORITY BUSINESS RESOURCE CENTER PROGRAM

For the cost of direct loans, $1,500,000, as authorized by 49 U.S.C. 332: Provided, That such costs, including the cost of modifying such loans, shall be as defined in section 502 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974: Provided further, That these funds are available to subsidize gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans not to exceed $15,000,000. In addition, for administrative expenses to carry out the direct loan program, $400,000.

MINORITY BUSINESS OUTREACH

For necessary expenses of the Minority Business Resource Center outreach activities, $2,900,000, of which $2,635,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1998: Provided, That notwithstanding 49 U.S.C. 332, these funds may be used for business opportunities related to any mode of transportation.

COAST GUARD

OPERATING EXPENSES

For necessary expenses for the operation and maintenance of the Coast Guard, not otherwise provided for; purchase of not to exceed five passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; payments pursuant to section 156 of Public Law 97–377, as amended (42 U.S.C. 402 note), and section 229(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 429(b)); and recreation and welfare; $2,609,100,000, of which $25,000,000 shall be derived from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund: Provided, That the number of aircraft on hand at any one time shall not exceed two hundred and eighteen, exclusive of aircraft and parts stored to meet future attrition: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this or any other Act shall be available for pay or administrative expenses in connection with shipping commissioners in the United States: Provided further, That none of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for expenses incurred for yacht documentation under 46 U.S.C. 12109, except to the extent fees are collected from yacht owners and credited to this appropriation: Provided further, That the Commandant shall reduce both military and civilian employment levels for the purpose of complying with Executive Order No. 12839.

ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, AND IMPROVEMENTS

For necessary expenses of acquisition, construction, renovation, and improvement of aids to navigation, shore facilities, vessels, and aircraft, including equipment related thereto, $358,000,000, of which $20,000,000 shall be derived from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund; of which $205,600,000 shall be available to acquire, repair, renovate or improve vessels, small boats and related equipment, to remain available until September 30, 2001; $18,300,000 shall be available to acquire new aircraft and increase aviation capability, to remain available until September 30, 1999; $39,900,000 shall be available for other equipment, to remain available until September 30, 1999; $47,950,000 shall be available for shore facilities and aids to navigation facilities, to remain available until September 30, 1999; and $46,250,000 shall remain available for personnel compensation and benefits and related costs, to remain available until September 30, 1998: Provided, That funds received from the sale of the VC–11A and HU–25 aircraft shall be credited to this appropriation for the purpose of acquiring new aircraft and increasing aviation capacity: Provided further, That the Commandant may dispose of surplus real property by sale or lease and the proceeds of such sale or lease shall be credited to this appropriation: Provided further, That the property in Wildwood, New Jersey shall be disposed of in a manner resulting in a final fiscal year 1997 appropriation estimated at $338,000,000: Provided further, That none of the funds in this Act may be obligated or expended to continue the "Vessel Traffic Service 2000" Program.

ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, AND IMPROVEMENTS

(RESCISSIONS)

Of the available balances under this heading provided in Public Law 104–50, $3,400,000 are rescinded.

Of the available balances under this heading provided in Public Law 103–331, $355,000 are rescinded.

ENVIRONMENTAL COMPLIANCE AND RESTORATION

For necessary expenses to carry out the Coast Guard's environmental compliance and restoration functions under chapter 19 of title 14, United States Code, $21,000,000, to remain available until expended.

ALTERATION OF BRIDGES

For necessary expenses for alteration or removal of obstructive bridges, $16,000,000, to remain available until expended.

RETIRED PAY

For retired pay, including the payment of obligations therefor otherwise chargeable to lapsed appropriations for this purpose, and payments under the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection and Survivor Benefits Plans, and for payments for medical care of retired personnel and their dependents under the Dependents Medical Care Act (10 U.S.C. ch. 55) $608,084,000.

RESERVE TRAINING

For all necessary expenses for the Coast Guard Reserve, as authorized by law; maintenance and operation of facilities; and supplies, equipment, and services; $65,890,000.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, for applied scientific research, development, test, and evaluation; maintenance, rehabilitation, lease and operation of facilities and equipment, as authorized by law, $19,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which $5,020,000 shall be derived from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund: Provided, That there may be credited to this appropriation funds received from State and local governments, other public authorities, private sources, and foreign countries, for expenses incurred for research, development, testing, and evaluation.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the bill through page 10, line 20, be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there amendments to that portion of the bill?

If not, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

BOAT SAFETY

(AQUATIC RESOURCES TRUST FUND)

For payment of necessary expenses incurred for recreational boating safety assistance under Public Law 92–75, as amended, $35,000,000, to be derived from the Boat Safety Account and to remain available until expended: Provided, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, $5,000,000 is available only for the Coast Guard to establish a discretionary boating safety grant program.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order against the language beginning with the colon on page 10, line 25 through "program" on page 11, line 3.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Chairman, this provision sets aside $5 million of the appropriation for recreational boating safety for the new discretionary boating safety grant program. This is not authorized by law and is contrary to the distribution of funds under existing law and, therefore, is in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI of the Rules of the House.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak on the point of order.

Mr. Chairman, I can concede the point of order. The provision is legislation on an appropriations bill. However, I would like to explain that the committee feels strongly that the Coast Guard should be more active in using this grant program to promoting safety, rather than simply sending checks out by formula, as is currently the case.

I understand that this program must be reauthorized next year, and I would ask that the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. COBLE] take a look at the establishment of the discretionary grant program which will receive strong consideration by the subcommittee next year going to reauthorization. Such a program will not cost any more money, and it could improve boat safety, because it would put money where the problem is.

Again, as the gentleman from Texas knows, we increased boat safety money by over 50 percent in this bill. We thought this way it would get the Coast Guard more involved to be much more aggressive working in the boat safety area.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Chairman, I will be happy to engage in continuing that dialogue with my friend from Virginia on this issue.

Mr. WOLF. I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded. The point of order is sustained. The provisions subject to the point of order are stricken.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to enter into a colloquy with the distinguished chairman of the Transportation Subcommittee, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF].

Mr. Chairman, I noted with interest that the report accompanying H.R. 3675 refers to the vessel traffic service system, a VTS 2000. The committee denied the fiscal year 1997 funding request for the VTS 2000 and disallowed the use of the unallocated fiscal year 1996 funds to continue developmnt of the program.

This is a program in which government and industry have made significant investments. However, the system as now envisioned was not favorably considered by the committee. Nevertheless, the committee did suggest that the Coast Guard develop a follow-on program as soon as possible to avoid further delay in bringing this valuable technology to the Nation's ports and waterways.

I would hope that the distinguished chairman would favorably consider allowing the Coast Guard to use prior year funding to facilitate this effort.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WALSH. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate my distinguished colleague's remarks. The safety of our ports and waterways is of extreme importance, and this committee has always placed the highest priority on achieving a higher degree of safety. I note the gentleman's concern and assure him that the conference will weight it carefully in its deliberations.

Mr. WALSH. I thank the distinguished chairman for his kind consideration of this matter.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will further read.

The Clerk read as follows:

FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION

OPERATIONS

For necessary expenses of the Federal Aviation Administration, not otherwise provided for, including operations and research activities related to commercial space transportation, administrative expenses for research and development, establishment of air navigation facilities and the operation (including leasing) and maintenance of aircraft, and carrying out the provisions of subchapter I of chapter 471 of title 49, United States Code, or other provisions of law authorizing the obligation of funds for similar programs of airport and airway development or improvement, lease or purchase of four passenger motor vehicles for replacement only, $4,900,000,000, of which $1,642,500,000 shall be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, not to exceed $30,000,000 from additional user fees to be established by the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall be credited to this appropriation as offsetting collections and used for necessary and authorized expenses under this heading: Provided further, That the sum herein appropriated from the general fund shall be reduced on a dollar for dollar basis as such offsetting collections are received during fiscal year 1997, to result in a final fiscal year 1997 appropriation from the general fund estimated at not more than $2,127,398,000: Provided further, That the only additional user fees authorized as offsetting collections are fees for services provided to aircraft that neither take off from, nor land in, the United States: Provided further, That there may be credited to this appropriation, funds received from States, counties, municipalities, foreign authorities, other public authorities, and private sources, for expenses incurred in the provision of agency services, including receipts for the maintenance and operation of air navigation facilities and, for issuance, renewal or modification of certificates, including airman, aircraft, and repair station certificate, or for tests related thereto, or for processing major repair or alteration forms: Provided further, That funds may be used to enter into a grant agreement with a nonprofit standard setting organization to assist in the development of aviation safety standards: Provided further, That none of the funds in this Act shall be available for new applicants for the second career training program: Provided further, That none of the funds in this Act shall be available for paying premium pay under 5 U.S.C. 5546(a) to any Federal Aviation Administration employee unless such employee actually performed work during the time corresponding to such premium pay: Provided further, That none of the funds in this Act may be obligated or expended to operate a manned auxiliary flight service station in the contiguous United States: Provided further, That none of the funds derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund may be used to support the operations and activities of the Associate Administrator for Commercial Space Transportation.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word and engage the Chairman of the Transportation Subcommittee in a colloquy.

Mr. Chairman, the FAA's Mike Monroney Center in Oklahoma City is the Nation's premier air traffic controller training center. The FAA recently rewarded a contract to the University of Oklahoma, under an open competitive process and open evaluation procedure, to conduct air traffic controller training at the Monroney Center.

At a time when the public is particularly concerned about air traffic safety standards and the procedures that support those standards, I would like to confirm, Mr. Chairman, that the 1997 transportation appropriation includes sufficient funds to fully implement this FAA contract, and that this much-needed training can go forward at the Monroney Center.

□ 2200

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for bringing this to our attention. The air traveling public relies to a great extent on the quality of the training of our air traffic controllers.

I assure the gentleman from Oklahoma I will work with him to assure that the final appropriation level provides adequate funding for this contract, while not undermining support for the MARC program in Minnesota. I believe this can be accomplished, and I will work with the gentleman to achieve that goal as we go through the process. I appreciate the fact that he was alert and caught this. I thank him very much. We will work together to solve the problem.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman for that assurance and I appreciate his efforts.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. LUCAS. I thank my colleague for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to compliment the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. WATTS] for bringing up this matter, and I thank Chairman WOLF for allowing the colloquy. I would like to associate myself with the remarks made by Mr. WATTS, and would like to reiterate my support for retaining the $1.7 million for the academy in Oklahoma City. I hope this can be addressed during conference and that Members will the language in last year's conference report.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr.Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I seek this time to bring to the attention of the distinguished subcommittee chairman a matter of great concern to many of my constituents.

First of all, I would like to say I am a supporter of the mission of the Coast Guard. They do good work. They have saved many lives and prevented injuries to people and prevented property damage by their fine efforts. However, I believe the Coast Guard has overreached in one area, that is, its efforts to enforce the Commercial Fishing Vessel Industry Safety Act.

Specifically, Mr. Chairman, the Coast Guard has issued regulations which are totally inflexible. They do not distinguish between large, deep water boats that operate all year and boats that are 50 feet or less in length, carry three or fewer people, stay 12 to 50 miles offshore, and operate only in the less dangerous summer fishing season.

These regulations are so complex and extensive that compliance is virtually impossible. One particularly egregious example is the requirement that these vessels be equipped with a life raft, sold only by 1 manufacturer, that is extremely costly.

I also question, Mr. Chairman, the way in which these regulations are being enforced. Coast Guard personnel on the West Coast have harassed law-abiding commercial fishermen by conducting armed safety inspections at sea.

This show of force is, in my view, unnecessary—and that is as a former police officer and deputy sheriff—and places an unproductive burden on these individuals who are already having a hard time making a living. One alternative approach apparently not given serious consideration by the Coast Guard is voluntary dockside inspections with fix-it type tickets instead of fines.

Mr. Chairman, the important commercial fishing industry along California's north coast is suffering already from a downturn in the industry and, in my view, overregulation by the Federal Government. I call this to your attention so that the chairman and his subcommittee can be aware of how some of the Coast Guard's resources are being applied.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RIGGS. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman bringing this to our attention. As the committee proceeds in its oversight of the Coast Guard's budget, we will review the practices that he highlighted.

Mr. RIGGS. Reclaiming my time, I thank the chairman for his concern.

Mr. Chairman, I submit for the RECORD two news items reflecting the problems that commercial fisherman are facing, and which I discussed in this colloquy with the distinguished subcommittee chairman this evening:

[From the Times Standard, May 21, 1996]

COAST GUARD BACKS AWAY FROM FACEOFF WITH FISHERMAN

SANTA CRUZ.—The U.S. Coast Guard backed away from its standoff with a fisherman who claimed a routine boat inspection would violate his constitutional rights.

The case was turned over to the Justice Department and the Coast Guard took no action against Jim Blaes of Atascadero, who had refused to allow a safety inspection of the 36-foot Helja.

"Our latest tactic is that we are going to leave him alone and let the Justice Department handle it." Coast Guard Chief Warrant Officer Jerry Snyder said Monday afternoon. "The boats are breaking off right now."

The bizarre face-off between the Coast Guard and Blaes began Sunday afternoon, in clear sight of beachgoers crowding the Santa Cruz boardwalk.

Blaes refused to allow Coast Guard officers aboard for the inspection, saying he viewed his boat the same way he felt about his home ashore and insisting the Coast Guard needed a warrant.

"Just because I make my living at sea doesn't mean I give up my constitutional rights," he said. "I have never been in trouble. I'm not holding anybody hostage or anything."

Blaes piloted the Morro Bay-based Helja out of the harbor Monday morning with the Coast Guard cutter Chico and a smaller boat trailing.

I just want to be left alone and have them stay out of my face," Blaes said in one of a number of cellular telephone interviews with area reporters.

Blaes said he had a handgun aboard, but said it was for protection from sharks. He said he was "absolutely" not a member of a militant group.

"I will not allow my civil rights to be violated," Blaes said earlier in a call monitored by reporters. "I think enough of the Constitution of the United States to give up my life for it. If you think enough of it to give up your life to violate it, then come ahead."

[From the Times Standard, May 23, 1996]

LOCAL FISHERMEN SAY COAST GUARD PESTERS THEM IN INSPECTIONS

(By David Anderson)

EUREKA.—The standoff between a Morro Bay salmon fisherman and the Coast Guard reflects long-standing frictions between fishermen and the federal government, fishing industry spokesmen say.

But a Coast Guard officer said the Santa Cruz incident, in which fisherman Jim Blaes refused to let a Coast Guard boarding party on his boat earlier this week, was an irrational response to a routine situation. Boarding rights are long established in law, the officer said, and are necessary to the Coast Guard's law enforcement rule.

Officials of the Pacific Coast Federation of Fishermen's Associations, in Eureka, on Tuesday, disagreed.

"Most of the fishing fleet is fed up with the bureaucracy and the regulations they encounter almost daily," federation President Pietro Parravano said. "We understand the need for and support measures necessary to protect our fish stocks and regulations essential to safety at sea.

"But it is frustrating when the government is all over our boats looking for the slightest infraction of any kind."

Zeke Grader, executive director of the fishermen's federation, said the boarding of fishing vessels has long been a sore spot. Fishermen contend that their boats should enjoy the same Fourth Amendment protections against warrantless searches as private residences.

Grader compared the boarding of a fishing boat to conduct safety inspections with an intrusion of firemen into a home to inspect smoke alarms.

"It really doesn't matter whether they're courteous or not, or whether fire prevention is a laudable goal," Grader said. "The fact is, there are intruders in your house and your privacy has been violated."

Coast Guard Cmdr. John Miko said vessels at sea never have or could have the immunity from search that private residences enjoy. Laws dating back to the 1790s, constantly upheld in court rulings, affirm that the Coast Guard has the right to stop, board and search any vessel in U.S. waters and any U.S. vessel on the high seas. The Coast Guard does not require court-issued warrants or "probable cause" to believe a crime is being committed, he said.

All maritime nations have similar laws, Miko noted.

"Without that right, there's no way law could be enforced at sea," he said. "That's been recognized by courts throughout history."

The Coast Guard is charged with preventing smuggling of illegal immigrants, drugs and other contraband; enforcing fishing regulations; conducting safety inspections; and other law enforcement duties, he said. All these require boarding and inspecting boats.

Jimmy Smith, president of the Humboldt Bay Fishermen's Association, said his members' disagreements with the Coast Guard are at the national, not the local level.

"The guys at the Humboldt Bay station are terrific," Smith said. "We have a great relationship with them and they really extend themselves to help us. Our problems are all with Washington."

Smith said the fisherman's federation has proposed alternatives to safety inspections at sea, but that the Department of Transportation—which includes the Coast Guard during peacetime—rejected them.

Boat owners can volunteer for safety inspection in port, Miko said, but a boat is only required to have safety equipment when it's at sea.

"You can't cite someone for not having it when they're tied up at the docket," He said.

Fishermen also question the necessity and efficacy of some of the safety equipment they are required to carry, Smith said.

The equipment is recommended by a national fishing vessel safety committee on which safety equipment manufacturers are represented, but not small-boat owners, he said.

The committee has declined to consider less-expensive methods of improving safety at sea, Smith said. The equipment the committee recommended, which is now required, is invariably expensive and doesn't always work well, he said.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. OBERSTAR

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment Offered by Mr. OBERSTAR: Page 11, line 17, before ", of which", insert the following: "(increased by $1,000,000)".

Page 36, line 23, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(decreased by $1,000,000)".

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would take $1 million from the $40 million appropriation the bill provides for the Office of Inspector General of the Department of Transportation and transfer that $1 million to the Operations account of the Federal Aviation Administration to increase the funding for FAA training of its inspector work force. This amendment responds to concerns expressed by the Inspector General herself, it responds to concerns and alarms expressed nationwide in the aftermath of ValuJet and to concerns that I expressed over 2 years ago about the adequacy of FAA's inspector work force in inspecting new entrant carriers.

The President's budget for the Inspector General's office included $1.9 million for that office to contract out with other government agencies to conduct audits of DOT programs. The Appropriations Committee bill cut the President's request for the Inspector General by $321,000 and, concurrently, prohibited the Inspector General from contracting for audits. The Appropriations Committee instead directed DOT's various operating units to pay the cost of these contract audits out of their own funds. The result is that the Committee on Appropriations has relieved the IG of expenses totaling $1.9 million for audit contracts but they reduced the IG's funding by only $321,000. The net effect is that the office of the IG has $1.6 million in excess funding over what the administration requested. This excess amount, $1 million of it, is what I target in this amendment to be transferred to a function that the IG's office itself, the General Accounting Office, and our Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure in our hearings in this Congress and the previous Congress have identified as crucial.

I was astonished when I looked closely at the IG's office to find that they have 440 full-time equivalent employees. That is more, by almost 100 employees, than the entire National Transportation Safety Board has. I question the need for such a large staff when DOT and its various modal administrations are already under scrutiny and oversight by the National Transportation Safety Board, by the General Accounting Office, and by the Congress.

An internal watchdog agency certainly is necessary within the Department to keep all modal administrations on the straight and narrow. We need to have adequate funding for that function, and provide effective oversight. But in these times of fiscal constraints, when money is being shifted very tightly among accounts, where we have to come in, we in the authorizing committee, and identify needs that require more funding and then take it from the existing pot, here is a piece of the existing pot that has an excess amount of money, no purpose for it has been identified, and shift that money to where it will do an enormous amount of good.

The committee has already made a number of increases in the funding for the account, the operations account of FAA, but not for this training function. The need is real. I want to take a moment to just explain how real and how important.

Over the last 10 years, GAO, the Inspector General's office, internal FAA groups, and our own Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure have focused on needs for technical training within the FAA, training for its inspectors.

In 1989 and in 1992, GAO and the IG respectively reported that inspectors who did not have appropriate training or current qualifications were doing flight checks of pilots. An operations inspector asked for Airbus 320 training when a carrier he was responsible for training began using that aircraft. He did not get that training until 2 years after that air carrier went out of business.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR] has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. OBERSTAR was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. OBERSTAR. Another maintenance inspector responsible for overseeing air carriers and repair stations that operate 737s, 757s, 767s, and McDonnell Douglas MD–80s said he had not received a course on maintenance and electronics in 5 years. There are rampant training deficiencies that exist because they do not have enough money to do that training. This $1 million is only a part of the $8 million that GAO said is needed to meet the unfunded training needs for the FAA.

All of us fly in this body. All of us take aircraft, whether major airlines or commuters or regional carriers. We all want to know that those carriers are being inspected carefully, responsibly and effectively and that those aircraft are safe and that they are being maintained in a safe manner.

Members who believe that ought to support this amendment, to shift the money where it will do a great deal of good into the training function, provide adequate training and recurrent training for maintenance and avionics inspectors in the FAA to oversee those air carriers, especially the new entrant carriers. That is where the need is. That is where the contracting out of maintenance is being done and where it is not being adequately supervised with people who have adequate training. A modest $1 million out of this excess amount in the office of IG will address this vital funding deficiency. I urge support for my amendment.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment.

First of all it does not put the money in training. It can be used for coffee, cokes, travel, or anything else.

Second, it would viewed as a way of punishing the inspector general for giving the opinions that Congress may not like. I have not always agreed with the IG's of the Department. But if they start doing that and we do not like what they have done, it looks like we are punishing the IG for their opinions which could be a grave mistake. We ask for them to be impartial, we ask for them to be independent, we ask for tough opinions, and then if we punish them, the political process stands this whole ethical thing upside down. This would undermine the IG process, not only in this department but governmentwide. It would send a devastating message to IG's everywhere. They would say, "Uh-oh. We give a report, they don't like it, we better be careful, we're going to get a budget cut. It would be very, very bad. Don't rock the boat. They're going to offer an amendment. They're going to cut my appropriations."

If we adopt this amendment, we are punishing the IG who raised the whole issue of ValuJet. Maybe the FAA should have listened to here before they did it. You recall Secretary Peña got up and said ValuJet is wonderful. They went on and on. this IG is the one who brought this to our attention.

Second, this is the IG that brought out the training problems which ended up in Gregory may, New Age cult-like, going to jail. This IG, for those of you who fly, is the one who found out and raised the issue of bogus parts, that are now being used in major airlines which may very well result in airplanes crashing. This IG is the one that came out with the diversion of money from airports around the country.

I just think it would be sending a message to the American people that here is an IG that the gentleman, and I know he does not mean this in a mean-spirited way, does not agree with her, maybe there are times that I will not agree with her, but just because they come up with this idea, you punish them.

The IG's budget is not fat. In fact over the past 3 years the IG has taken a 40-percent reduction in administrative staff, more than any other part of the Department of Transportation. Let me just say it again. The IG has taken a bigger hit than any other area of the Department of Transportation. They have taken an overall cut of 11 percent in staffing. Again, more than any other area. They have met the President's downsizing goals 3 years ahead of schedule. In fact, this administration, some may say, has been unfair to the IG. This is what she said during the hearings:

> We led the department in meeting the Vice President's reinventing government downsizing goals. Instead of being rewarded for that, we were on many cases heaped with more cuts. We think those additional cuts were unfair because we willingly, and quite in advance of the rest of the department, took those cuts that the rest of the government was supposed to be taking. Unfortunately, it only worked to our disadvantage.

It is lean, it is careful, the appropriation is already 2 percent below last year's level, 1 percent below the administration's request.

□ 2215

Keep in mind, OMB already reduced the IG's request for the internal budget process by $1.4 million. I know what the gentleman is trying to do, or at least I think I do, but this would be chilling. If this were to pass, no IG in the government could ever honestly and legitimately feel that they could give an honest opinion, because then they know that when their budget comes up, that if somebody were angry at them, that they were going to cut their budget.

Mr. Chairman, I strongly oppose the amendment. We can almost argue that this is a major safety issue. This is a safety amendment, in some respects. The gentleman's amendment does not put it in training. It can be used for bonuses, it can be used for anything else. This IG's office has been the one on ValuJet, the one on bogus parts and on many others, and I urge the defeat of the amendment because we do not want to punish anybody for being honest and courageous and candid.

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment offered by the ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, Mr. OBERSTAR.

Tuesday, the House Aviation Subcommittee held an 8-hour hearing on issues raised by the crash of ValuJet flight 592. In preparing for the hearing, we took a long look at the FAA and its inspection program. We recognize that there is a need for improvements in the system, and this amendment is intended to give the FAA the resources it needs to make those improvements.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota increases the appropriation for FAA operations by $1 million, and our expectation is that this additional funding will be dedicated to airline safety inspector training.

This $1 million increase for inspector training will be possible through a reduction in funding for the Department of Transportation inspector general's budget from $40 million to $39 million. The Office of the Inspector General has publicly stated the need for improved inspector training. This amendment makes that possible.

Currently, the IG's office is funded at a level to provide 440 full time equivalent employees. Compare this figure with the 350 full time equivalents currently at the National Transportation Safety Board. While I recognize the important work done by IG's in every Federal agency, it seems excessive to me to have almost 100 more employees in the IG's office at DOT than are employed at the NTSB.

Mr. Chairman, the inspection program at the FAA needs to be adequately funded to do its critical work. This slight increase in funding today may well save lives tomorrow. If you believe that the FAA's inspectors should have training, you should support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, while I have the floor, I would like to take a moment to call to the attention of my colleagues some of the inspector general's statements at Tuesday's hearing. In the course of her remarks, she left the strong impression that Secretary of Transportation Peña was the subject of a criminal investigation relative to the ValuJet accident. Even when my good friend Chairman Duncan warned her that she might be giving a false impression and gave her the opportunity to clear it up, she simply said that she could not say anything more.

Mr. Chairman, creating the impression that the Secretary of Transportation is criminally culpable, is a very serious action, and anyone who falsely does so should be held responsible. As you would expect, the impression left in fact turned out not to be correct. Later that day, the deputy inspector general and the assistant inspector general for investigations, both long-time career officials, issued public statements that the Secretary of Transportation is not, and has not been, a subject of investigation.

It is one thing to call public attention to safety problems with the FAA. It is entirely another thing to make outrageous, exaggerated claims about a public official. There were plenty of other examples from our hearing of what I find to be unconstructive comments by the inspector general, but I felt this one should be highlighted for all the Members of this body.

Mr. Chairman, I also would like to mention the fact that I personally asked her to name the other airlines that she felt were unsafe. She refused to do so; even when I asked her to protect the American flying public that she owed that answer, she refused to do so. The great concern she had about ValuJet she failed to communicate to the head of the FAA, to the Secretary of Transportation.

I believe that, unfortunately, we are dealing with someone here who is making charges but refuses to back up the charges and does not really carry out her duty, and I think this $1 million reduction in her budget moving to the FAA is definitely warranted.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, let me only echo some of the statements made by the chairman, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF]. We have a good deal of concern in our committee that, as I know all appropriation subcommittees do and all authorizing committees do, that all inspectors general retain their independence, maintain their capability to give reports to those who ask for them in an honest and straightforward way.

My understanding of the Oberstar amendment was not in any way directed toward this specific inspector general to suggest that there should be some form of punishment. I think the chairman alluded to use the word "punishment" of an individual or of a specific office because we might not like her report. I hope that is not the case.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR] so that he could clarify that point if he would like.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I want to make it very clear, this is not punishment. This is not chilling. There is $1,900,000 more than the President's request in this account, a $321,000 cut, a net of $1.6 million not identified, not targeted, no explanation, no justification, and over here on the other side is the FAA with a need for training.

The chairman knows that under the rules of engagement in the appropriation process, I cannot identify a specific account in designating this $1 million and shifting it. So that is why we are having this dialog, to make it very clear that this money goes for training of those inspectors who are the very ones charged with the responsibility of overseeing new-entrance carriers and who need training in those specific areas that I mentioned.

If one is trained on DC–9's and is suddenly assigned to inspect aircraft or airlines that are flying 737's, or 757's or 767's, one needs training in that arena. This account does not have that kind of funding. In fact, it is $8 million short, by GAO standards, of the amount of training needed for those inspectors.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLEMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I just want the body to know, though, that this is the IG that broke the story that was in Business Week 3 weeks ago showing that many of the major airlines unknowingly are using bogus parts that are potentially very dangerous. What if she did not have the money to do that and we did not know and an airplane crashed?

This is the IG that has been the subject of raising very valid issues with regard to ValuJet. I take the gentleman at his word, but having been a Government employee, having worked for the Government for a number of years, believe me, it would be chilling if one were a Government employee.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLEMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Chairman, on that score, it was the Subcommittee on Aviation and prior to that the Subcommittee on Investigations and Oversight of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation that uncovered the bogus parts issue in great depth and had documentation on it, brought it up with the IG who said, "Oh, we are on to this issue also. We have some criminal investigations underway." This is over 2 years ago. Three years ago prior to that our committee was onto this issue.

I cast no aspersions on the IG, but much of what the IG's office has uncovered and has taken credit for the appropriate and responsible committees of the house and the Senate have already been focused on.

Mr. COLEMAN. Reclaiming my time, let me only suggest that in any event, should the Committee of the whole make a determination that we wanted to shift $1 million from one account to another, I think all of us would agree that the goal of the House of Representatives is to do what this amendment seeks to do, and that is to provide the necessary dollars to get the necessary training in the new technologies for those personnel that we ask to be certified in order to get the additional training for FAA certification.

So I would hope that the Members, whether they agree to shift this $1 million from the accounts that the author of the amendment would suggest or not, understand that and I know it will be the intention of the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] and me in the conference. We do not know, of course, what any Senate numbers are and what they will be of the other body. So I think that we will certainly be looking to do all that we can possibly do in trying to get the kind of certified staff the training they need to ensure their competence in new technologies.

I hope that the minority in this House will help enhance the safety of the traveling public by adopting the Oberstar amendment. As I say, in conference, whether we do or we do not make this shift from the IG's office is not really of paramount importance.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR].

It promotes safety. It does so by shifting only about 2.5 percent of the IG's budget to a side of the budget that clearly, both in the ValuJet hearings and at other times, have been raised as a real concern, which is the training of safety inspectors and what that means to the traveling public.

Mr. Chairman, I think that he is right on point in that regard, and I associate myself with his remarks and those of the gentleman from Illinois, [Mr. LIPINSKI] the ranking member of the subcommittee on aviation. But I think having heard some of the comments, it is often a good trial tactic to raise questions about chilling effects, and anybody's budget who is cut or somehow altered can claim that they are going to have a chilling effect.

It was interesting to me to hear the IG come before the committee and in her comments say, "Well, I hear that I am here because Members want to get a piece of my hide," and in doing that, it is sort of like chilling the members of the committee not to raise certain questions or, in this case, chilling the members of this body not to consider a serious and well-though-out amendment.

During the hearings on safety issues raised by the ValuJet accident, and I am sure that the body is aware of the allegations made by the Inspector General of the Department of Transportation, this individual stated that the Everglades crash was preventable and that the DOT IG office had made six reports which pointed out the problems. The testimony to me sounded heroic and prophetic.

☐ 2230

But under scrutiny it was merely the verbal tricks of a false profit. Under questioning from me and others, I asked the IG if she had ever raised these questions with Secretary Pena or Administrator Hinson. The answer was no. No.

Would any Member of this body in possession of information that would have prevented an airplane crash hesitate to raise this issue and call for a meeting? There were no meetings because there were no unheeded predictions. The notoriety of the IG is based on vague generalizations that could have applied to any accident. It is an old trick to boldly assert the vague and then take credit for special insight when anything remotely related occurs.

If that was not bad enough, the DOT IG then relied on the tactics of the witch hunter by making vague references of criminal investigations and by innuendo casting a false light on Secretary Pena and the FAA. This IG then demonstrated, I think, the most blatant attempt for Congress by refusing to elaborate because of the pendency of an alleged criminal investigation.

Well, let us talk about the facts. The fact is that Inspector Generals are not empowered to make criminal investigations. They have no independent criminal prosecutorial authority. They can make recommendations when the have evidence of waste, fraud or abuse, just like any other citizen can, but they have no special privilege to refuse to answer congressional inquiries.

Fact. Subsequently, the Assistant IG for Investigations of the DOT issued a clarification that "The Secretary is not and has not been a subject of the investigation."

I think that the carnival atmosphere that we saw in the committee and this whole way the person who we believe should be the voice of investigating has created around the ValuJet has a downside. Given the pendency of litigation related to the grounding, I think the injudicious remarks of the DOT IG may have totally compromised and prejudiced the case, hardly the result a true investigator or a guardian of the public's safety and want.

I believe the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure should compel the IG's testimony that she refused to give us. She has made a lot of broad statements. I think we should see the specifics. But until such time as the committee acts to get answers, I believe the Oberstar amendment is totally appropriate by providing the resources to airline safety inspector training that clearly was identified as one of the major issues, whether it be ValuJet or a problem of the FAA in general. And that is the essence of his amendment and, in fact, we should proceed forward with it.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MENENDEZ. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. Was it not true within the hearings, irregardless of what the IG insinuated or what others may have insinuated, the preliminary report by the National Transportation Safety Board clearly states that they do not think it was the fault of ValuJet for the accident that happened in the Everglades, but that of a mistake of an out source contractor?

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, it certainly appeared, although the National Transportation Safety Board has not given a final answer, it certainly appeared from the testimony that was elicited this was not a question per se, on this specific incident, of the question of the safety issues but rather a question of the canisters put on board.

Mr. Chairman, I think we should be supporting the Oberstar amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote, and pending that, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 460, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR] will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, Amtrak is an essential part of our National Transportation System, providing 22 million inner-city passenger trips per year with over 500 destinations in 45 States. Last year the Congress and the administration agreed that Amtrak must reduce its reliance on Federal funding.

The budget resolution and the authorization directed Amtrak to operate without Federal funding support by the year 2002. However, as you are aware, the funding recommendations in this bill are below the authorization levels that is in the budget resolution and the level Amtrak says it needs to stay on the path to operating self-sufficiency.

Between 1995 and 1997, Amtrak received $1.2 billion less than their proposed transition plan called for. Unfortunately, next year's capital funding level is again drastically cut and inadequate to sustain Amtrak's capital expenditures.

To facilitate Amtrak's transition off Federal assistance I have introduced H.R. 2789, creating a dedicated funding source for Amtrak which would allow it to make the necessary capital infrastructure investments during this period of transition.

H.R. 2789 does not create a new tax, does not increase the deficit, and does not cut any other programs. With an estimated $4 billion needed for capital improvements, H.R. 2789 will allow Amtrak to improve its rolling stock, upgrade its maintenance facilities and prevent the deterioration of track and signal equipment. These improvements will cut Amtrak's cost to customers, to consumers, reduce air pollution, fuel consumption, highway congestion, and urban parking problems.

We can make Amtrak self-sufficient, but only if we adhere to our budget plan transitioning Amtrak off Federal assistance and only if we create a temporary capital funding source for investment.

On a final note, Mr. Chairman, the Senate recently passed a sense of the Senate resolution in support of this proposal. I bring it up here tonight on the floor of this House because in this transportation bill the capital funding for Amtrak is so significantly cut that Amtrak will be unable to make the transition to self-sufficiency.

If working cooperatively with the appropriation in this bill this Congress can pass the Amtrak capital fund, then we can, over years, enable Amtrak to become completely independent of Federal funding and be a first class rail service for passengers in America.

Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF], for his concern and his interest in Amtrak and for his work with me on this important issue, and I understand perfectly the problems that he has faced in this appropriations bill. I only ask that he and my colleagues help me in this effort to develop a capital fund for Amtrak to enable it to achieve our goal and its goal of independence of Federal funding.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, the gentlewoman raises a very good point. As I said earlier when the gentleman from Delaware [Mr. CASTLE] asked me the question, unless there is a dedicated revenue source for Amtrak in the next several years, Amtrak will not make it.

So the gentlewoman is exactly accurate. as we consider the proposal, though, we have to be careful not to take money from the mass transit account. The gentlewoman makes an excellent point.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman. As we work through this transportation appropriations bill, I hope my colleagues will recognize that we have another piece of it to come forward.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I simply want to express my appreciation to the chairman of the subcommittee for his recognition of the essential need for a source of capital funding for Amtrak and for his support of the concept of a dedicated revenue stream and to also express my agreement with the gentlewoman from Connecticut when she talks about the necessity for adequate capital funding for Amtrak.

This country went through a long period of time in which we left railroads, in which we were heavily subsidizing the highway system and leaving railroads to their own devices, and when we subsidize one form of transportation and not another, and it is not a level playing field, we end up with an imbalanced transportation system.

What we need in this country is a balanced transportation system in which people who want to go from one city to another do not have a choice only between a car or an airplane. We need trains, we need airplanes, we need Amtrak, we need cars, we need all of it. We need rail freight efficiency, we need a good highway system, and we have been very imbalanced.

I hope that we can, working together, develop an adequate capital funding stream for Amtrak, because otherwise it will deteriorate. It has already been deteriorating. The routes are fewer than they have been. Many cities are being cut off, and we ought to have an adequate passenger rail transportation system. It ought to have a dedicated capital funding stream. It ought to have a dedicated operating funding stream.

I support the efforts of the chairman and of the gentlewoman from Connecticut, and I hope we will in the ensuing months pay more close attention to this than we have in the past, because a healthy rail transportation system both for freight and for people, a healthy AMTRAK, is essential to the efficient operation, the efficient operation of the economy of this country and the economic growth of this country, not to mention the well the well-being of its citizens.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the bill, through page 26, line 24, be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I ask the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF], would that still give me the chance to offer an amendment at page 23?

Mr. WOLF. If the gentleman would yield, that is correct.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request to open up that portion of the bill?

There was no objection.

The text of the bill from page 13, line 10, through page 26, line 24 is as follows:

FACILITIES AND EQUIPMENT

(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, for acquisition, establishment, and improvement by contract or purchase, and hire of air navigation and experimental facilities and equipment as authorized under part A of subtitle VII of title 49, United States Code, including initial acquisition of necessary sites by lease or grant; engineering and service testing, including construction of test facilities and acquisition of necessary sites by lease or grant; and construction and furnishing of quarters and related accommodations for officers and employees of the Federal Aviation Administration stationed at remote localities where such accommodations are not available; and the purchase, lease, or transfer of aircraft from funds available under this head; to be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund, $1,800,000,000, of which $1,583,000,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1999, and of which $217,000,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1997: Provided, That there may be credited to this appropriation funds received from States, counties, municipalities, other public authorities, and private sources, for expenses incurred in the establishment and modernization of air navigation facilities.

RESEARCH, ENGINEERING, AND DEVELOPMENT

(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, for research, engineering, and development, as authorized under part A of subtitle VII of title 49, United States Code, including construction of experimental facilities and acquisition of necessary sites by lease or grant, $185,000,000, to be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund and to remain available until September 30, 1999: Provided, That there may be credited to this appropriation funds received from States, counties, municipalities, other public authorities, and private sources, for expenses incurred for research, engineering, and development.

GRANTS-IN-AID FOR AIRPORTS

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

For liquidation of obligations incurred for grants-in-aid for airport planning and development, and for noise compatibility planning and programs as authorized under subchapter I of chapter 471 and subchapter I of chapter 475 of title 49, United States Code, and under other law authorizing such obligations, $1,500,000,000, to be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund and to remain available until expended: Provided, That none of the funds in this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $1,300,000,000 in fiscal year 1997 for grants-in-aid for airport planning and development, and noise compatibility planning and programs, notwithstanding section 47117(h) of title 49, United States Code.

AVIATION INSURANCE REVOLVING FUND

The Secretary of Transportation is hereby authorized to make such expenditures and investments, within the limits of funds available pursuant to 49 U.S.C. 44307, and in accordance with section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended (31 U.S.C. 9104), as may be necessary in carrying out the program for aviation insurance activities under chapter 443 of title 49, United States Code.

AIRCRAFT PURCHASE LOAN GUARANTEE PROGRAM

None of the funds in this Act shall be available for activities under this heading during fiscal year 1997.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION

LIMITATION ON GENERAL OPERATING EXPENSES

Necessary expenses for administration, operation, including motor carrier safety program operations, and research of the Federal Highway Administration not to exceed $510,981,000 shall be paid in accordance with law from appropriations made available by this Act to the Federal Highway Administration together with advances and reimbursements received by the Federal Highway Administration: Provided, That $214,698,000 of the amount provided herein shall remain available until September 30, 1999.

HIGHWAY-RELATED SAFETY GRANTS

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For payment of obligations incurred in carrying out the provisions of title 23, United States Code, section 402 administered by the Federal Highway Administration, to remain available until expended, $2,049,000 to be derived from the Highway Trust Fund.

FEDERAL-AID HIGHWAYS

(LIMITATION ON OBLIGATIONS)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

None of the funds in this Act shall be available for the implementation or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $17,550,000,000 for Federal-aid highways and highway safety construction programs for fiscal year 1997.

FEDERAL-AID HIGHWAYS

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For carrying out the provisions of title 23, United States Code, that are attributable to Federal-aid highways, including the National Scenic and Recreational Highway as authorized by 23 U.S.C. 148, not otherwise provided, including reimbursements for sums expended pursuant to the provisions of 23 U.S.C. 308, $19,800,000,000 or so much thereof as may be available in and derived from the Highway Trust Fund, to remain available until expended.

RIGHT-OF-WAY REVOLVING FUND

(LIMITATION ON DIRECT LOANS)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

None of the funds under this head are available for obligations for right-of-way acquisition during fiscal year 1997.

MOTOR CARRIER SAFETY GRANTS

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For payment of obligations incurred in carrying out 49 U.S.C. 31102, $74,000,000, to be derived from the Highway Trust Fund and to remain available until expended: Provided, That none of the funds in this Act shall be available for the implementation or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $77,425,000 for "Motor Carrier Safety Grants".

NATIONAL HIGHWAY TRAFFIC SAFETY ADMINISTRATION

OPERATIONS AND RESEARCH

For expenses necessary to discharge the functions of the Secretary with respect to traffic and highway safety under part C of subtitle VI of title 49, United States Code, and chapter 301 of title 49, United States Code, $81,895,000, of which $45,646,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1999: Provided, That none of the funds appropriated by this Act may be obligated or expended to plan, finalize, or implement any rulemaking to add to section 575.104 of title 49 of the Code of Federal Regulations any requirement pertaining to a grading standard that is different from the three grading standards (treadwear, traction, and temperature resistance) already in effect.

OPERATIONS AND RESEARCH

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For expenses necessary to discharge the functions of the Secretary with respect to traffic and highway safety under 23 U.S.C. 403 and section 2006 of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (Public Law 102–240), to be derived from the Highway Trust Fund, $50,377,000, of which $27,066,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1999.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC SAFETY GRANTS

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For payment of obligations incurred carrying out the provisions of 23 U.S.C. 153, 402, 408, and 410, chapter 303 of title 49, United States Code, and section 209 of Public Law 95–599, as amended, to remain available until expended, $167,100,000, to be derived from the Highway Trust Fund: Provided, That, notwithstanding subsection 2009(b) of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, none of the funds in this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the total obligations for which, in fiscal year 1997, are in excess of $167,100,000 for programs authorized under 23 U.S.C. 402 and 410, as amended, of which $127,700,000 shall be for "State and community highway safety grants", $2,400,000 shall be for the "National Driver Register", $11,000,000 shall be for highway safety grants as authorized by section 1003(a)(7) of Public Law 102–240, and $26,000,000 shall be for section 410 "Alcohol-impaired driving counter-measures programs": Provided further, That none of these funds shall be used for construction, rehabilitation or remodeling costs, or for office furnishings and fixtures for State, local, or private buildings or structures: Provided further, That not to exceed $5,268,000 of the funds made available for section 402 may be available for administering "State and community highway safety grants": Provided further, That not to exceed $150,000 of the funds made available for section 402 may be available for administering the highway safety grants authorized by section 1003(a)(7) of Public Law 102–240: Provided further, That the unobligated balances of the appropriation "Highway-Related Safety Grants" shall be transferred to and merged with this "Highway Traffic Safety Grants" appropriation: Provided further, That not to exceed $500,000 of the funds made available for section 410 "Alcohol-impaired driving counter-measures programs" shall be available for technical assistance to the States.

FEDERAL RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR

For necessary expenses of the Federal Railroad Administration, not otherwise provided for, $16,469,000, of which $1,523,000 shall remain available until expended: Provided, That none of the funds in this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of a program making commitments to guarantee new loans under the Emergency Rail Services Act of 1970, as amended, and no new commitments to guarantee loans under section 211(a) or 211(h) of the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, as amended, shall be made: Provided further, That, as part of the Washington Union Station transaction in which the Secretary assumed the first deed of trust on the property and, where the Union Station Redevelopment Corporation or any successor is obligated to make payments on such deed of trust on the Secretary's behalf, including payments on and after September 30, 1988, the Secretary is authorized to receive such payments directly from the Union Station Redevelopment Corporation, credit them to the appropriation charged for the first deed of trust, and make payments on the first deed of trust with those funds: Provided further, That such additional sums as may be necessary for payment on the first deed of trust may be advanced by the Administrator from unobligated balances available to the Federal Railroad Administration, to be reimbursed from payments received from the Union Station Redevelopment Corporation.

RAILROAD SAFETY

For necessary expenses in connection with railroad safety, not otherwise provided for, $51,407,000, of which $2,476,000 shall remain available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding any other law, funds appropriated under this heading are available for the reimbursement of out-of-state travel and per diem costs incurred by employees of state governments directly supporting the Federal railroad safety program, including regulatory development and compliance-related activities.

RAILROAD RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

For necessary expenses for railroad research and development, $20,341,000, to remain available until expended.

HIGH-SPEED RAIL TRAINSETS AND FACILITIES

For the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, $80,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1999, to pursue public/private partnerships for high-speed rail trainset and maintenance facility financing arrangements.

RAILROAD REHABILITATION AND IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

The Secretary of Transportation is authorized to issue to the Secretary of the Treasury notes or other obligations pursuant to section 512 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (Public Law 94–210), as amended, in such amounts and at such times as may be necessary to pay any amounts required pursuant to the guarantee of the principal amount of obligations under sections 511 through 513 of such Act, such authority to exist as long as any such guaranteed obligation is outstanding: Provided, That no new loan guarantee commitments shall be made during fiscal year 1997.

NEXT GENERATION HIGH-SPEED RAIL

For necessary expenses for Next Generation High-Speed Rail studies, corridor planning, development, demonstration, and implementation, $19,757,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That funds under this head may be made available for grants to States for high-speed rail corridor design, feasibility studies, environmental analyses, and track and signal improvements.

TRUST FUND SHARE OF NEXT GENERATION HIGH-SPEED RAIL

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For grants and payment of obligations incurred in carrying out the provisions of the High-Speed Ground Transportation program as defined in subsections 1036(c) and 1036(d)(1)(B) of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, including planning and environmental analyses, $2,855,000, to be derived from the Highway Trust Fund and to remain available until expended.

RHODE ISLAND RAIL DEVELOPMENT

For the costs associated with construction of a third track on the Northeast Corridor between Davisville and Central Falls, Rhode Island, with sufficient clearance to accommodate double stack freight cars, $4,000,000 to be matched by the State of Rhode Island or its designee on a dollar for dollar basis and to remain available until expended: Provided, That as a condition of accepting such funds, the Providence and Worcester (P&W) Railroad shall enter into an agreement with the Secretary to reimburse Amtrak and/or the Federal Railroad Administration, on a dollar for dollar basis, up to the first $10,000,000 in damages resulting from the legal action initiated by the P&W Railroad under its existing contracts with Amtrak relating to the provision of vertical clearances between Davisville and Central Falls in excess of those required for present freight operations.

DIRECT LOAN FINANCING PROGRAM

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, $58,680,000, for direct loans not to exceed $400,000,000 consistent with the purposes of section 505 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (45 U.S.C. 825) as in effect on September 30, 1988, to the Alameda Corridor Transportation Authority to continue the Alameda Corridor Project, including replacement of at-grade rail lines with a below-grade corridor and widening of the adjacent major highway: Provided, That loans not to exceed the following amounts shall be made on or after the first day of the fiscal year indicated:

Fiscal year 1997	$140,000,000
Fiscal year 1998	$140,000,000
Fiscal year 1999	$120,000,000

Provided further, That any loan authorized under this section shall be structured with a maximum 30-year repayment after completion of construction at an annual interest rate of not to exceed the 30-year United States Treasury rate and on such terms and conditions as deemed appropriate by the Secretary of Transportation: Provided further, That specific provisions of section 505(a)(b) and (d) shall not apply: Provided further, That the Alameda Corridor Transportation Authority shall be deemed to be a financially responsible person for purposes of section 505 of the Act.

GRANTS TO THE NATIONAL RAILROAD PASSENGER CORPORATION

To enable the Secretary of Transportation to make grants to the National Railroad Passenger Corporation authorized by 49 U.S.C. 24104, $462,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which $342,000,000 shall be available for operating losses and for mandatory passenger rail service payments, and $120,000,000 shall be for capital improvements: Provided, That funding under this head for capital improvements shall not be made available before July 1, 1997: Provided further, That none of the funds herein appropriated shall be used for lease or purchase of passenger motor vehicles or for the hire of vehicle operators for any officer or employee, other than the president of the Corporation, excluding the lease of passenger motor vehicles for those officers or employees while in official travel status.

FEDERAL TRANSIT ADMINISTRATION

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

For necessary administrative expenses of the Federal Transit Administration's programs authorized by chapter 53 of title 49, United States Code, $41,367,000.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

For necessary expenses to carry out 49 U.S.C. 5307, 5310(a)(2), 5311, and 5336, to remain available until expended, $460,000,000: Provided, That no more than $2,052,925,000 of budget authority shall be available for these purposes: Provided further, That of the funds provided under this head for formula grants, no more than $400,000,000 may be used for operating assistance under 49 U.S.C. 5336(d): Provided further, That the limitation on operating assistance provided under this heading shall, for urbanized areas of less than 200,000 in population, be no less than seventy-five percent of the amount of operating assistance such areas are eligible to receive under Public Law 103–331; Provided further, That in the distribution of the limitation provided under this heading to urbanized areas that had a population under the 1990 census of 1,000,000 or more, the Secretary shall direct each such area to give priority consideration to the impact or reductions in operating assistance on smaller transit authorities operating within the area and to consider the needs and resources of such transit authorities when the limitation is distributed among all transit authorities operating in the area.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WOLF

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WOLF: On page 27, line 4, strike "$460,000,000" and insert "$490,000,000".

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, this is a technical amendment to ensure that the mass transit account of the Highway Trust Fund is used solely for capital and capital-related expenses in the transit formula of the grant program.

It simply increases the general fund in the transit formula program while decreasing the trust fund share of the program each by $30 million. The amendment does not change the amount available for transit operating nor does it change the outlays scored against the bill. The intent of the amendment simply corrects an inadvertent estimating error by the Federal Transit Administration, and it has the support of the chairman of the authorizing committee, and I ask that the amendment be adopted.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLF. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, we have had a chance to inspect the amendment. It is a technical amendment, and we have no objection. We believe it should be adopted, and we urge adoption of the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FILNER

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER] may offer his amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. FILNER: On page 23, line 16, insert the following after the word "made": "in excess of $490,000".

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to introduce an amendment that is absolutely critical to the economic development of the city of San Diego and its surrounding communities. In effect, what my amendment does is add $490,000 to the section 511 railroad loan guarantee program in order to leverage approximately $10 million in private sector loan guarantees that are necessary to reestablish the San Diego and Arizona Eastern Railroad. I repeat this is a loan guarantee which leverages 20 times that amount of private sector funding.

Now, the lack of a direct rail link to the East is hampering the real growth potential of the San Diego economy. Currently, San Diego's few commercial rail shipments must first make a several hundred mile detour.

□ 2245

Ships which would otherwise use the port of San Diego are therefore forced to go elsewhere in search of faster rail routes to inland markets. As a result, our communities lost out on business opportunities, and our port suffers from serious underuse. Reestablishment of the San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railroad is on the top of everyone's priority list in San Diego and enjoys wide bipartisan support. The city of San Diego, the county board of supervisors, the San Diego Association of Governments, the Port of San Diego, the Greater San Diego Chamber of Commerce, and the San Diego Economic Development Corporation, all of whom's leadership comes from the other side of the aisle, I might point out, all of these organizations agree that reestablishing this rail link is the area's highest priority for economic development.

Many of our Nation's regional and shortline railroads, like the San Diego & Arizona Eastern, find it difficult to obtain private financing for railline improvements because of short-term and high interest rates. Government assistance in the form of loan guarantees often becomes the only viable means to rehabilitate these vital links to our transportation infrastructure.

I believe that the section 511 program, because it is not a grant program, because it is not even a loan program but a loan guarantee to leverage private sector loans, is precisely the type of public-private partnership this Congress ought to encourage.

Last year the chairman of the transportation appropriations subcommittee, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] joined me and several of my colleagues in a colloquy in support of this very program.

If the gentleman will remember, in that colloquy that we had 1 year ago he stated that, and I quote:

> I concur that these loan guarantees have proven to be reliable and can be a cost-effective and wise use of Federal transportation dollars.

I am going to quote the gentleman:

> I can assure you that I am sensitive to the needs of our regional shortline railroads, and I will certainly consider funding the 511 guarantee program, if it is brought before a House-Senate conference.

Unfortunately, this important program did not receive any funding in 1996. And although a bipartisan group of Members joined me in writing to the Subcommittee on Transportation urging that funds be appropriated for this program, it is not proposed for funding in 1997.

Mr. Chairman, the economy of San Diego cannot wait for another year. Because the appropriation subcommittee has not recommended funding for this section 511 program, I offer this amendment to directly fund it. I do so with the knowledge that San Diego interests will apply for a loan, private interests will apply for a loan to reestablish this railroad. I have the support of the Regional Railroads of America in this effort. Further, it is our understanding that this request is within the necessary budget authority and outlays.

What I am addressing here, Mr. Chairman, is the absolute critical importance of the rehabilitation of this railroad to our community. It is critically important that we fund this line. We can get this train up and running with a modest $490,000 investment, a $490,000 loan guarantee which, as I said before, leverages 20 times that amount in private sector loans.

I hope the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee will remain consistent to his view stated last year that these loan guarantees are a reliable, cost-effective and wise use of our Federal transportation dollars.

I hope that my colleagues can support this investment in economic growth in southern California.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. I tell the gentleman, we did look at it. We later found out that 90 percent of this is in Congressman HUNTER's district.

Second, we looked into the whole issue. And one of the reasons for opposing it is that it provides funding for loan guarantees. However, there is not appropriation made to administer the program. It is a technical law which may violate the Credit Reform Act.

Third, there is the hope that the funds would be used for a local project in San Diego, when the project does not have local consensus, because I understand Mr. HUNTER opposes it and I believe the gentleman from California, Mr. PACKARD, opposes it.

Under the section 511 loan guarantee program, if railroads are unable to repay these loans, the Federal Government is responsible. If the railroad cannot pay for them, the Federal Government is responsible for paying for them. I do not favor placing the Federal Government at risk.

Finally, although the loan guarantees are portrayed as inexpensive, Members should be aware that if the railroad defaults on a loan, the costs could be very, very high. So the area is divided. It is mainly in Mr. HUNTER's district. We did look into it. It is a loan guarantee program. A default means that everybody in the country pays. And, therefore, I strongly oppose the amendment.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLF. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I know this is a debatable issue. I just want to make sure that my colleagues understand, this program has been used before in the past. It has never, a loan has never not been repaid in this program. The authorization is in the generic act—90 percent of the line is not in Mr. HUNTER's district. It is shared between our two districts and between two nations, in fact, Mexico and the United States. So with those corrections, I understand the gentleman's opposition.

Mr. WOLF. Reclaiming my time, there has been a default. There has been one. Second, we know absolutely nothing at all about the railroad, absolutely, positively, categorically nothing.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman knows nothing about what?

Mr. WOLF. About the railroad.

Mr. FILNER. This goes into the generic program authorized by law and would have to be applied for for the loan guarantee and would not be given unless all the due diligence was done by the railroad administration.

Mr. WOLF. But if we do not know the profitability, we do not know whether or not it could default. Therefore, if it defaults, as it happened one other time, everybody is obligated.

Mr. Chairman, I strongly oppose the amendment.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I am not opposed to the project. I have discussed this at length with San Diego people. I think that it is a good project. The rail line, this San Diego & Arizona Eastern rail corridor at some point in the future, I hope, will be open. I simply feel that this is not the future, I hope, will be open. I simply feel that this is not the proper way to proceed with the funding for it.

The opening of this railroad would benefit the San Diego region. It would provide a more direct and less costly route for freight shipment from all parts of the United States to the Port of San Diego. But I do believe that there are other ways to do it. Certainly we ought to pursue that.

But the bill does not fund the loan guarantee program. There are no funds in the loan guarantee program. If this amendment passed, there are many projects that would apply for this loan guarantee funds. It would not just be the San Diego project. It would be many. And they would have to compete for those funds. It would be very limited and, thus, I think that there is certainly no assurance that these funds would go to the San Diego rail corridor.

There is another factor I think that ought to be mentioned. That is that the reason that there was no funds put into this loan guarantee program was because there was simply not sufficient funds to fund all of the other programs that this subcommittee and the subcommittee that I serve on had to support. There are budget constraints and I think that is good, the reasons why that this whole program was not funded this year.

I hope that we will find ways of funding this project, because I do support the innovative way of building through private moneys these kinds of projects. But I think that this is not the time to do it and not the way to do it.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PACKARD. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate my colleague from San Diego and the northern part of our county's support for the project. We have searched, as you know, for 2 years now for other kinds, for the funding to get this started. You said this is not the way. I would ask my friend if there was any other way, let us do it. This is the only way, this is a cost-effective way. This leverages 20 times what the appropriation is. I cannot think of a better way to get private-sector funding into it.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, there are two things, in response, if I can reclaim my time. First, is we have required offsets for every transfer of funds. This amendment is not accompanied by offsets. Second, I recognize that this is a good way to fund these kinds of projects. But we simply have not got funds in that program, and if we put these funds in that the gentleman is requesting in his amendment, there is no assurance that the San Diego project would be able to receive them.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, that would then meet the objection of the distinguished subcommittee chairman in that there would be competition for these funds. We are assured that because of the amount of work that has been done on this line and the support from the local governments and the studies that have been made, that this would be a top priority.

Mr. PACKARD. Reclaiming my time, it simply would mean that there was no assurance that San Diego would get these funds or have them accessible for a loan guarantee. Second, if it was competitive and thus divided among many projects, it would help no project. There simply would not be enough.

Mr. FILNER. I wish the gentleman would work with me to find the method to get this project going.

Mr. PACKARD. I very reluctantly oppose the amendment.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I want to thank my colleague for the nice presentation that he has made in support of this railroad, but let me tell my colleagues what this involves. This is a railroad that once existed between Imperial County, which is east of San Diego County some 100 miles or so, almost to the Arizona border. It is a railroad that runs from San Diego into Mexico, travels a number of miles in Mexico, goes up some steep canyons and finally rereemerges in the United States in my district in what is known as East San Diego County and travels about 70 miles through my district in San Diego County into Imperial Valley, almost to the Arizona border.

This railroad was knocked out of commission many, many years ago. It has not been in operation for a number of years. There is an issue here that is a very important issue to everybody in the country, and that is border patrol. Let me just tell my colleagues what I am concerned about, Mr. Chairman.

There were articles in the Boston Globe, the Los Angeles Times, the San Diego Union, the last headline of which said, Robbers Ride the Rails. And they were headline stories about the enormous number of robberies of American trains in New Mexico, for example, some 600 robberies of Southern Pacific, in one year with an enormous criminal base, basically endangered by this train robbing operation. Those were trains that are in the United States. They do not even go into Mexico.

We propose at a time when our border in southern California is totally out of control and totally in the hands of criminal aliens and there is a massive flow of cocaine coming across the border both in the urban areas and now in the suburban areas, and incidentally I have 60 miles of farm families and ranch families who right now are being held prisoners in their homes by armies of illegal aliens and drug smugglers marching north through East San Diego County who have not concurred in the chamber of commerce recommendation, who have not concurred in the port authority's recommendation and who have real concerns.

So, Mr. Chairman, there have been no studies whatsoever as to what effect this train is going to have on the smuggling of illegal aliens. And thousands of illegal aliens have been smuggled on the border trains in New Mexico. We have had no studies. On the prospective robberies, southern border trains have been robbed at the rate of some 600 robberies per year, per line in New Mexico. We have had no studies on the effect on cocaine smuggling. If we have a border which is out of control, which we have right now in southern California, our primary goal now is to control the border.

I like the chamber of commerce. I like the boosters. I am reminded that all of them pushed the port at San Isidro and the accelerated means of bringing in traffic from Mexico with goods. They all promised that the cocaine problem is going to go away but it did not go away. Because we did not accompany that port of entry with a right type of controls, we have a cocaine freeway right now through San Diego County. Nobody in the chamber of commerce or the port authority has come forward to say, we are sorry we made a mistake.

I am going to offer my colleagues and, Mr. Chairman, a little while later an amendment that asks that, before we fund any such program, we do a study with respect to the effect it will have on exacerbating illegal immigration, exacerbating drug smuggling, narcotics smuggling and creating a base of railroad robberies such as the one that has existed for some time now in the area around the border between New Mexico and Mexico.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition. From my calculations, I do have about 90 percent of this railroad in my district. I think we need to have this type of information before we blindly move ahead because we have a lot of governmental entities that like this project.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Let me say that I understand and recognize the efforts of the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER]. I understand the concerns of my colleagues also from San Diego, CA, representing a border district.

I would note and would suggest to the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER], that perhaps his idea concerning the kinds of restrictions and requirements on loan guarantees need to be applied not just in terms of border regions with respect to documentation or ideas about the numbers of robberies, the numbers of undocumented persons but indeed what, after all, we do when we provide for capitalization projects.

□ 2300

I would point out to this House that in last year's, in this 1996 year of fiscal operations, we have in the current operations a $10 million grant that was not included in the President's budget to the Alaska Railroad for capital improvements. We did not do that in the House. That was as a result of coming out of conference, but we voted for final passage of the legislation when it came back from conference. So we, in fact, have already approved a project much like this. This is not a first-impression move.

In fact, what the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER] does, of course, is not even make a direct grant. Mr. FILNER's amendment only provides loan guarantees.

I think that it is a good amendment in that it helped provide a small amount of assistance in the form of those guarantees to regional railroads which need assistance for capital improvements, so I do not think that we should reject out of hand the efforts by our colleagues who want to provide this kind of funding. I think it is one way to look at ways in which we can be innovative in order to provide the funding that is necessary for good operations, for good businesses, and I would rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLEMAN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman, and I thank my colleague from along the border with me, the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER], for raising the concerns he has, and he has been the leader of this House in getting control of the border, and we have a lot to thank him for, and we have worked together to do that. I would not offer this amendment, Mr. HUNTER, and he knows that, if I thought this would worsen that situation. I believe that the economic development on both sides of the border is the key for us getting control of that border, and this is a cooperative venture between two nations that would actually raise the quality of life for working people in my district, in the gentleman's district, in Mexico, and, in fact, in many communities around our region. This is what we should be doing.

Yes, let us study the possible effects on the drug trade; yes, let us study the possible consequences of banditry, but let us not be scared off. I mean I see the gentleman from California [Mr. DORNAN] standing beside the gentleman. He can tell us that if Americans were scared off in making this country economically beneficial by threats of banditry or by letting a few people scare us off from making economic gains, then we would not be the country we are today.

That is what this railroad is all about. Let us make the economic development of this border area really work, and I look forward to working with the gentleman to do that. I did not quite get the amendment he thought about offering. If it is in conjunction with mine, let us do it. If it is in place of mine, I prefer that we try to get the funding in place.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 460, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER] will be postponed.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on each amendment to the remainder of the bill, and any amendments thereto, be limited to 10 minutes, equally divided, with the exception of the amendment of the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS] for 20 minutes and the amendment of the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ANDREWS] for 20 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia.

There was no objection.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill through page 55, line 15, be considered as read, and printed in the RECORD and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The text of the remainder of the bill through page 55, line 15, is as follows:

UNIVERSITY TRANSPORTATION CENTERS

For necessary expenses for university transportation centers as authorized by 49 U.S.C. 5317(b), to remain available until expended, $6,000,000.

TRANSIT PLANNING AND RESEARCH

For necessary expenses for transit planning and research as authorized by 49 U.S.C. 5303, 5311, 5313, 5314, and 5315, to remain available until expended, $85,500,000, of which $39,500,000 shall be for activities under Metropolitan Planning (49 U.S.C. 5303); $4,500,000 for activities under Rural Transit Assistance (49 U.S.C. 5311(b)(2)); $8,250,000 for activities under State Planning and Research (49 U.S.C. 5313(b)); $22,000,000 for activities under National Planning and Research (49 U.S.C. 5314); $8,250,000 for activities under Transit Cooperative Research (49 U.S.C. 5313(a)); and $3,000,000 for National Transit Institute (49 U.S.C. 5315).

TRUST FUND SHARE OF EXPENSES

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For payment of obligations incurred in carrying out 49 U.S.C. 5338(a), $1,920,000,000, to remain available until expended and to be derived from the Highway Trust Fund: Provided, That $1,920,000,000 shall be paid from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund to the Federal Transit Administration's formula grants account.

DISCRETIONARY GRANTS

(LIMITATION ON OBLIGATIONS)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

None of the funds in this Act shall be available for the implementation or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $1,665,000,000 in fiscal year 1997 for grants under the contract authority in 49 U.S.C. 5338(b): Provided, That there shall be available for fixed guideway modernization, $666,000,000; there shall be available for the replacement, rehabilitation, and purchase of buses and related equipment and the construction of bus-related facilities, $333,000,000; and, notwithstanding any other provision of law, except for fixed guideway modernization projects, $10,510,000 made available under Public Law 102–240 and Public Law 102–143 under "Federal Transit Administration, Discretionary Grants" for projects specified in those Acts or identified in reports accompanying those Acts, not obligated by September 30, 1996; together with, notwithstanding any other provision of law, $744,000 funds made available for the "New Bedford and Fall River Massachusetts commuter rail extension" under Public Law 103–331; together with, notwithstanding any other provision of law, $47,322,000 funds made available for the "Chicago Central Area Circulator Project" in Public Law 103–122 and Public Law 103–331, shall be made available for new fixed guideway systems together with the $666,000,000 made available for new fixed guideway systems in this Act, to be available as follows:

$66,820,000 for the Atlanta-North Springs project:

$10,260,000 for the Baltimore-LRT Extension project;

$40,181,000 for the Boston Piers-MOS–2 project;

$5,500,000 for the Canton-Akron-Cleveland commuter rail project;

$25,000,000, notwithstanding any other provision of law, for transit improvements in the Chicago downtown area;

$3,000,000 for the Cincinnati Northeast-Northern Kentucky rail line project;

$10,000,000 for the DART North Central light rail extension project;

$12,500,000 for the Dallas-Fort Worth RAILTRAN project;

$1,000,000 for the DeKalb County, Georgia light rail project;

$3,000,000 for the Denver Southwest Corridor project;

$9,000,000 for the Florida Tri-County commuter rail project;

$2,000,000 for the Griffin light rail project;

$40,590,000 for the Houston Regional Bus project;

$15,300,000 for the Jacksonville ASE extension project;

$1,500,000 for the Kansas City Southtown corridor project;

$90,000,000 for the Los Angeles-MOS–3 project;

$1,500,000 for the Los Angeles-San Diego commuter rail project;

$27,000,000 for the MARC Commuter Rail Improvements project;

$1,000,000 for the Miami-North 27th Avenue project;

$2,000,000 for the Memphis, Tennessee Regional Rail Plan;

$10,000,000 for the New Jersey Urban Core/Hudson-Bergen LRT project;

$105,530,000 for the New Jersey Urban Core/Secaucus project;

$1,000,000 for the New Jersey West Trenton commuter rail project;

$8,000,000 for the New Orleans Canal Street Corridor project;

$2,000,000 for the New Orleans Desire Streetcar project;

$35,020,000 for the New York-Queens Connection project;

$500,000 for the Northern Indiana commuter rail project;

$5,000,000 for the Orange County transitway project;

$2,000,000 for the Orlando Lynx light rail project;

$90,000,000 for the Portland-Westside/Hillsboro Extension project;

$6,000,000 for the Sacramento LRT Extension project;

$20,000,000 for the Salt Lake City-South LRT project, of which not less than $10,000,000 shall be available only for high-occupancy vehicle lane and corridor design costs;

$20,000,000 for the St. Louis-St. Clair Extension project;

$35,000,000 for the San Francisco Area-BART airport extension/San Jose Tasman West LRT projects;

$3,000,000 for the San Diego-Mid-Coast Corridor project;

$9,500,000 for the San Juan Tren Urbano project;

$375,000 for the Staten Island-Midtown Ferry service project;

$2,000,000 for the Tampa to Lakeland commuter rail project; and

$2,500,000 for the Whitehall ferry terminal, New York, New York.

MASS TRANSIT CAPITAL FUND

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

For payment of obligations incurred in carrying out 49 U.S.C. 5338(b) administered by the Federal Transit Administration, $2,000,000,000, to be derived from the Highway Trust Fund and to remain available until expended.

WASHINGTON METROPOLITAN AREA TRANSIT AUTHORITY

For necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of section 14 of Public Law 96–184 and Public Law 101–551, $200,000,000, to remain available until expended.

SAINT LAWRENCE SEAWAY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation is hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds and borrowing authority available to the Corporation, and in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitations as provided by section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, as may be necessary in carrying out the programs set forth in the Corporation's budget for the current fiscal year.

OPERATIONS AND MAINTENANCE

(HARBOR MAINTENANCE TRUST FUND)

For necessary expenses for operation and maintenance of those portions of the Saint Lawrence Seaway operated and maintained by the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, including the Great Lakes Pilotage functions delegated by the Secretary of Transportation, $10,037,000, to be derived from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund, pursuant to Public Law 99–662.

RESEARCH AND SPECIAL PROGRAMS ADMINISTRATION

RESEARCH AND SPECIAL PROGRAMS

For expenses necessary to discharge the functions of the Research and Special Programs Administration, $23,929,000, of which $574,000 shall be derived from the Pipeline Safety Fund, and of which $7,101,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1999: Provided, That up to $1,200,000 in fees collected under 49 U.S.C. 5108(g) shall be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury as offsetting receipts: Provided further, That there may be credited to this appropriation funds received from States, counties, municipalities, other public authorities, and private sources for expenses incurred for training, for reports publication and dissemination.

PIPELINE SAFETY

(PIPELINE SAFETY FUND)

For expenses necessary to conduct the functions of the pipeline safety program, for grants-in-aid to carry out a pipeline safety program, as authorized by 49 U.S.C. 60107, and to discharge the pipeline program responsibilities of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, $30,988,000, of which $2,528,000 shall be derived from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund and shall remain available until September 30, 1999; and of which $28,460,000 shall be derived from the Pipeline Safety Fund, of which $15,500,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1999: Provided, That in addition to amounts made available for the Pipeline Safety Fund, $1,000,000 shall be available for grants to States for the development and establishment of one-call notification systems and shall be derived from amounts previously collected under section 7005 of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS GRANTS

(EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS FUND)

For necessary expenses to carry out 49 U.S.C. 5127(c), $200,000, to be derived from the Emergency Preparedness Fund, to remain available until September 30, 1999: Provided, That none of the funds made available by 49 U.S.C. 5116(i) and 5127(d) shall be made available for obligation by individuals other than the Secretary of Transportation, or his designee.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Office of Inspector General to carry out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $39,450,000: Provided, That none of the funds under this heading shall be for the conduct of contract audits.

SURFACE TRANSPORTATION BOARD

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Surface Transportation Board, including services authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, $12,344,000: Provided, That $3,000,000 in fees collected in fiscal year 1997 by the Surface Transportation Board pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 9701 shall be made available to this appropriation in fiscal year 1997: Provided further, That any fees received in excess of $3,000,000 in fiscal year 1997 shall remain available until expended, but shall not be available for obligation until October 1, 1997.

TITLE II

RELATED AGENCIES

ARCHITECTURAL AND TRANSPORTATION BARRIERS COMPLIANCE BOARD

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For expenses necessary for the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board, as authorized by section 502 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, $3,540,000: Provided, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, there may be credited to this appropriation funds received for publications and training expenses.

NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION SAFETY BOARD

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the National Transportation Safety Board, including hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for a GS–18; uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902), $42,407,000, of which not to exceed $2,000 may be used for official reception and representation expenses.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFERS OF FUNDS)

SEC. 301. During the current fiscal year applicable appropriations to the Department of Transportation shall be available for maintenance and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; purchase of liability insurance for motor vehicles operating in foreign countries on official department business; and uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902).

SEC. 302. Such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 1997 pay raises for programs funded in this Act shall be absorbed within the levels appropriated in this Act or previous appropriations Acts.

SEC. 303. Funds appropriated under this Act for expenditures by the Federal Aviation Administration shall be available (1) except as otherwise authorized by title VIII of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, 20 U.S.C. 7701, et seq., for expenses of primary and secondary schooling for dependents of Federal Aviation Administration personnel stationed outside the continental United States at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools, if any, available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and (2) for transportation of said dependents between schools serving the area that they attend and their places of residence when the Secretary, under such regulations as may be prescribed, determines that such schools are not accessible by public means of transportation on a regular basis.

SEC. 304. Appropriations contained in this Act for the Department of Transportation shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for an Executive Level IV.

SEC. 305. None of the funds in this Act shall be available for salaries and expenses of more than one hundred seven political and Presidential appointees in the Department of Transportation: Provided, That none of the personnel covered by this provision may be assigned on temporary detail outside the Department of Transportation.

SEC. 306. None of the funds in this Act shall be used for the planning or execution of any program to pay the expenses of, or otherwise compensate, non-Federal parties intervening in regulatory or adjudicatory proceedings funded in this Act.

SEC. 307. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year, nor may any be transferred to other appropriations, unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 308. The Secretary of Transportation may enter into grants, cooperative agreements, and other transactions with any person, agency, or instrumentality of the United States, any unit of State or local government, any educational institution, and any other entity in execution of the Technology Reinvestment Project authorized under the Defense Conversion, Reinvestment and Transition Assistance Act of 1992 and related legislation: Provided, That the authority provided in this section may be exercised without regard to section 3324 of title 31, United States Code.

SEC. 309. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract pursuant to section 3109 of title 5, United States Code, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. 310. (a) For fiscal year 1997 the Secretary of Transportation shall distribute the obligation limitation for Federal-aid highways by allocation in the ratio which sums authorized to be appropriated for Federal-aid highways that are apportioned or allocated to each State for such fiscal year bear to the total of the sums authorized to be appropriated for Federal-aid highways that are apportioned or allocated to all the States for such fiscal year.

(b) During the period October 1 through December 31, 1996, no State shall obligate more than 25 per centum of the amount distributed to such State under subsection (a), and the total of all State obligations during such period shall not exceed 12 per centum of the total amount distributed to all States under such subsection.

(c) Notwithstanding subsections (a) and (b), the Secretary shall—

(1) provide all States with authority sufficient to prevent lapses of sums authorized to be appropriated for Federal-aid highways that have been apportioned to a State;

(2) after August 1, 1997, revise a distribution of the funds made available under subsection (a) if a State will not obligate the amount distributed during that fiscal year and redistribute sufficient amounts to those States able to obligate amounts in addition to those previously distributed during that fiscal year giving priority to those States having large unobligated balances of funds apportioned under sections 103(e)(4), 104, and 144 of title 23, United States Code, and under sections 1013(c) and 1015 of Public Law 102–240; and

(3) not distribute amounts authorized for administrative expenses and funded from the administrative takedown authorized by section 104(a), title 23 U.S.C., the Federal lands highway program, the intelligent transportation systems program, and amounts made available under sections 1040, 1047, 1064, 6001, 6005, 6006, 6023, and 6024 of Public Law 102–240, and 49 U.S.C. 5316, 5317, and 5338: Provided, That amounts made available under section 6005 of Public Law 102–240 shall be subject to the obligation limitation for Federal-aid highways and highway safety construction programs under the head "Federal-Aid Highways" in this Act.

(d) During the period October 1 through December 31, 1996, the aggregate amount of obligations under section 157 of title 23, United States Code, for projects covered under section 147 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1978, section 9 of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1981, sections 131(b), 131(j), and 404 of Public Law 97–424, sections 1061, 1103 through 1108, 4008, and 6023(b)(8) and 6023(b)(10) of Public Law 102–240, and for projects authorized by Public Law 99–500 and Public Law 100–17, shall not exceed $277,431,840.

(e) During the period August 2 through September 30, 1997, the aggregate amount which may be obligated by all States shall not exceed 2.5 percent of the aggregate amount of funds apportioned or allocated to all States—

(1) under sections 104 and 144 of title 23, United States Code, and 1013(c) and 1015 of Public Law 102–240, and

(2) for highway assistance projects under section 103(e)(4) of title 23, United States Code, which would not be obligated in fiscal year 1997 if the total amount of the obligation limitation provided for such fiscal year in this Act were utilized.

(f) Paragraph (e) shall not apply to any State which on or after August 1, 1997, has the amount distributed to such State under paragraph (a) for fiscal year 1997 reduced under paragraph (c)(2).

SEC. 311. The limitation on obligations for the programs of the Federal Transit Administration shall not apply to any authority under 49 U.S.C. 5338, previously made available for obligation, or to any other authority previously made available for obligation under the discretionary grants program.

SEC. 312. None of the funds in this Act shall be used to implement section 404 of title 23, United States Code.

SEC. 313. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to plan, finalize, or implement regulations that would establish a vessel traffic safety fairway less than five miles wide between the Santa Barbara Traffic Separation Scheme and the San Francisco Traffic Separation Scheme.

SEC. 314. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, airports may transfer, without consideration, to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) instrument landing systems (along with associated approach lighting equipment and runway visual range equipment) which conform to FAA design and performance specifications, the purchase of which was assisted by a Federal airport aid program, airport development aid program or airport improvement program grant. The FAA shall accept such equipment, which shall thereafter be operated and maintained by the FAA in accordance with agency criteria.

SEC. 315. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to award a multiyear contract for production end items that (1) includes economic order quantity or long lead time material procurement in excess of $10,000,000 in any one year of the contract or (2) includes a cancellation charge greater than $10,000,000 which at the time of obligation has not been appropriated to the limits of the government's liability or (3) includes a requirement that permits performance under the contract during the second and subsequent years of the contract without conditioning such performance upon the appropriation of funds: Provided, That this limitation does not apply to a contract in which the Federal Government incurs no financial liability from not buying additional systems, subsystems, or components beyond the basic contract requirements.

SEC. 316. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be made available for planning and executing a passenger manifest program by the Department of Transportation that only applies to United States flag carriers.

SEC. 317. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and except for fixed guideway modernization projects, funds made available by this Act under "Federal Transit Administration, Discretionary grants" for projects specified in this Act or identified in reports accompanying this Act not obligated by September 30, 1999, shall be made available for other projects under 49 U.S.C. 5309.

SEC. 318. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any funds appropriated before October 1, 1993, under any section of chapter 53 of title 49 U.S.C., that remain available for expenditure may be transferred to and administered under the most recent appropriation heading for any such section.

SEC. 319. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to implement or enforce regulations that would result in the withdrawal of a slot from an air carrier at O'Hare International Airport under section 93.223 of title 14 of the Code of Federal Regulations in excess of the total slots withdrawn from that air carrier as of October 31, 1993 if such additional slot is to be allocated to an air carrier or foreign air carrier under section 93.217 of title 14 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

SEC. 320. None of the funds in this Act may be used to compensate in excess of 335 technical staff years under the federally-funded research and development center contract between the Federal Aviation Administration and the Center for Advanced Aviation Systems Development during fiscal year 1997.

SEC. 321. Funds provided in this Act for the Transportation Administrative Service Center (TASC) shall be reduced by $10,000,000, which limits fiscal year 1997 TASC obligational authority for elements of the Department of Transportation funded in this Act to no more than $114,812,000: Provided, That such reductions from the budget request shall be allocated by the Department of Transportation to each appropriations account in proportion to the amount included in each account for the transportation administrative service center.

SEC. 322. Funds received by the Federal Highway Administration, Federal Transit Administration, and Federal Railroad Administration from States, counties, municipalities, other public authorities, and private sources for expenses incurred for training may be credited respectively to the Federal Highway Administration's "Limitation on General Operating Expenses" account, the Federal Transit Administration's "Transit Planning and Research" account, and to the Federal Railroad Administration's "Railroad Safety" account, except for State rail safety inspectors participating in training pursuant to 49 U.S.C. 20105.

SEC. 323. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to prepare, propose, or promulgate any regulations pursuant to title V of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act (49 U.S.C. 32901, et seq.) prescribing corporate average fuel economy standards for automobiles, as defined in such title, in any model year that differs from standards promulgated for such automobiles prior to enactment of this section.

SEC. 324. None of the funds in this Act may be used for planning, engineering, design, or construction of a sixth runway at the new Denver International Airport, Denver, Colorado.

SEC. 325. Notwithstanding 31 U.S.C. 3302, funds received by the Bureau of Transportation Statistics from the sale of data products, for necessary expenses incurred pursuant to the provisions of section 6006 of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, may be credited to the Federal-aid highways account for the purpose of reimbursing the Bureau for such expenses: Provided, That such funds shall not be subject to the obligation limitation for Federal-aid highways and highway safety construction: Provided further, That in addition to amounts otherwise provided in this Act, not to exceed $3,100,000 in expenses of the Bureau of Transportation Statistics necessary to conduct activities related to airline statistics may be incurred, but only to the extent such expenses are offset by user fees charged for those activities and credited as offsetting collections.

SEC. 326. The Secretary of Transportation is authorized to transfer funds appropriated in this Act to "Rental payments" for any expense authorized by that appropriation in excess of the amounts provided in this Act: Provided, That prior to any such transfer, notification shall be provided to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 327. None of the funds in this Act may be obligated or expended for employee training which: (a) does not meet identified needs for knowledge, skills and abilities bearing directly upon the performance of official duties; (b) contains elements likely to induce high levels of emotional response or psychological stress in some participants; (c) does not require prior employee notification of the content and methods to be used in the training and written end of course evaluations; (d) contains any methods or content associated with religious or quasi-religious belief systems or "new age" belief systems as defined in Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Notice N-915.022, dated September 2, 1988; (e) is offensive to, or designed to change, participants' personal values or lifestyle outside the workplace; or (f) includes content related to human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immune deficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) other than that necessary to make employees more aware of the medical ramifications of HIV/AIDS and the workplace rights of HIV-positive employees.

SEC. 328. None of the funds in this Act shall, in the absence of express authorization by Congress, be used directly or indirectly to pay for any personal service, advertisement, telegram, telephone, letter, printed or written matter, or other device, intended or designed to influence in any manner a Member of Congress, to favor or oppose, by vote or otherwise, any legislation or appropriation by Congress, whether before or after the introduction of any bill or resolution proposing such legislation or appropriation: Provided, That this shall not prevent officers or employees of the Department of Transportation or related agencies funded in this Act from communicating to Members of Congress on the request of any Member or to Congress, through the proper official channels, requests for legislation or appropriations which they deem necessary for the efficient conduct of the public business.

SEC. 329. None of the funds in this Act may be used to support Federal Transit Administration's field operations and oversight of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority in any location other than from the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area.

SEC. 330. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for improvements to the Miller Highway in New York City, New York.

SEC. 331. Not to exceed $850,000 of the funds provided in this Act for the Department of Transportation shall be available for the necessary expenses of advisory committees.

SEC. 332. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may use funds appropriated under this Act, or any subsequent Act, to administer and implement the exemption provisions of 49 CFR 580.6 and to adopt or amend exemptions from the disclosure requirements of 49 CFR part 580 for any class or category of vehicles that the Secretary deems appropriate.

SEC. 333. No funds other than those appropriated to the Surface Transportation Board shall be used for conducting the activities of the Board.

SEC. 334. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to construct, or to pay the salaries or expenses of Department of Transportation personnel who approve or facilitate the construction of, a third track on the Metro-North Railroad Harlem Line in the vicinity of Bronxville, New York, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that a final environmental impact statement has not been completed for such construction project.

SEC. 335. Section 5328(c)(1)(E) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "Westside" the first place it appears;

(2) by striking "and" after "101-584,"; and

(3) by inserting before the period at the end the following: ", and the locally preferred alternative for the South/North Corridor Project".

SEC. 336. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, of the funds made available to Cleveland for the "Cleveland Dual Hub Corridor Project" or "Cleveland Dual Hub Rail Project," $4,023,030 in funds made available in fiscal years 1991, 1992, and 1994, under Public Laws 101-516, 102-143, 102-240, 103-122, and accompanying reports, shall be made available for the Berea Red Line Extension and the Euclid Corridor Improvement projects.

SEC. 337. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds made available under section 3035(kk) of Public Law 102-240 for fiscal year 1997 to the State of Michigan shall be for the purchase of buses and bus-related equipment and facilities.

SEC. 338. In addition to amounts otherwise provided in this Act, there is hereby appropriated $2,400,000 for activities of the National Civil Aviation Review Commission, to remain available until expended.

SEC. 339. Section 423 of H.R. 1361, as passed the House of Representatives on May 9, 1995, is hereby enacted into law.

TITLE IV—MISCELLANEOUS HIGHWAY PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, semitrailer units operating in a truck tractor-semitrailer combination whose semitrailer unit is more than forty-eight feet in length and truck tractor-semitrailer-trailer combinations specified in section 31111(b)(1) of title 49, United States Code, may not operate on United States Route 15 in Virginia between the Maryland border and the intersection with United States Route 29.

SEC. 402. Item 30 of the table contained in section 1107(b) of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (105 Stat. 2050), relating to Mobile, Alabama, is amended in the second column by inserting after "Alabama" the following: "and for feasibility studies, preliminary engineering, and construction of a new bridge and approaches over the Mobile River".

SEC. 403. Item 94 of the table contained in section 1107(b) of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (105 Stat. 2052), relating to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, is amended—

(1) by striking "St. Thomas,"; and

(2) by inserting after "the island" the following: "of St. Thomas and improvements to the VIPA Molasses Dock intermodal port facility on the island of St. Croix to make the facility capable of handling multiple cargo tasks".

SEC. 404. The Secretary of Transportation is hereby authorized to enter into an agreement modifying the agreement entered into pursuant to section 336 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1995 (Public Law 103-331) and section 356 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996 (Public Law 104-50) to provide an additional line of credit not to exceed $25,000,000, which may be used to replace otherwise required contingency reserves; provided, however, that the Secretary may only enter into such modification if it is supported by the amount of the original appropriation (provided by section 336 of Public Law 103-331). No additional appropriation is made by this section. In implementing this section, the Secretary may enter into an agreement requiring an interest rate, on both the original line of credit and the additional amount provided for herein, higher than that currently in force and higher than that specified in the original appropriation. An agreement entered into pursuant to this section may not obligate the Secretary to make any funds available until all remaining contingency reserves are exhausted, and in no event shall any funds be made available before October 1, 1998.

SEC. 405. Public Law 100-202 is amended in the item relating to "Traffic Improvement Demonstration Project" by inserting after "project" the following: "or upgrade existing local roads".

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TRAFICANT

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Traficant: Page 53, after line 10, insert the following new section:

SEC. 340 (a) COMPLIANCE WITH BUY AMERICAN ACT.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be expended by an entity unless the entity agrees that in expending the funds the entity will comply with the Buy American Act (41 U.S.C. 10a-10c).

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS; REQUIREMENT REGARDING NOTICE.—

(1) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—In the case of any equipment or product that may be authorized to be purchased with financial assistance provided using funds made available in this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that entities receiving the assistance should, in expending the assistance, purchase only American-made equipment and products to the greatest extent practicable.

(2) NOTICE TO RECIPIENTS OF ASSISTANCE.—In providing financial assistance using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency shall provide to each recipient of the assistance a notice describing the statement made in paragraph (1) by the Congress.

(c) PROHIBITION OF CONTRACTS WITH PERSONS FALSELY LABELING PRODUCTS AS MADE IN AMERICA.—If it has been finally determined by a court or Federal agency that any person intentionally affixed a label bearing a "Made in America" inscription, or any inscription with the same meaning, to any product sold in or shipped to the United States, that is not made in the United States, the person shall be ineligible to receive any contract or subcontract made with funds made available in this Act, pursuant to the debarment, suspension, and ineligibility procedures described in sections 9.400 through 9.409 of title 48, Code of Federal Regulations.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the unanimous consent agreement, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT] and a Member opposed will each be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT].

Mr. Chairman I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] for his fairness, I want to thank him for his fairness in placing funds in here for a study that may help to reintroduce some rail service to northeast Ohio and western Pennsylvania. On behalf of all of those people I want to thank him, and I want to thank the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN]. I also want to congratulate him. This is the last time he will be handling this bill; he is retiring.

Mr. Chairman, he has been a great Member. I want to thank him personally for all he has done to help my area and a lot of people in this country.

I would also just like to say that my amendment is a Buy American amendment. It is simple and straightforward. It would provide a notice to those people who get funds in the bill wherever possible to buy American products, and it would limit using false labels on imported products and trying to deceive the procurement process.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAFICANT. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. We accept the amendment. I thank the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT] for the amendment. I think it is a good amendment.

And let me also say I want to congratulate the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN] on his retirement and thank him for his friendship and a good working relationship, and also for the staff.

Mr. TRAFICANT. I want to thank the both of the gentlemen again for that study.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAFICANT. I yield to the distinguished ranking member, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN].

Mr. COLEMAN. We, of course, have also reviewed the amendment. We in the minority are in agreement and urge its adoption.

Mr. Chairman, I thank both gentlemen for their kind remarks.

Mr. TRAFICANT. With that Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GUTKNECHT

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GUTKNECHT: Page 55, after line 15, insert the following new section:

SEC. 406. Each amount appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act that is not required to be appropriated or otherwise made available by a provision of law is hereby reduced by 1.9 percent.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the earlier unanimous-consent agreement, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT] and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT].

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, earlier we heard from people on both sides of the aisle, but we were particularly criticized a few weeks ago when this House adopted the conference committee report on the budget, and it was widely reported, and correctly so, that for the first time in 4 years we are going to allow the budget deficit to actually go up.

I and a number of my colleagues were very frustrated to learn that, and as a result after the passage of that budget agreement many of us went back to try to decide what we could do to help the House recover this fumble because, as I have said on previous amendments that I have offered on appropriation bills, I think that the general public sent a very clear message in November 1994 that they wanted us to make the Federal Government live within its means and they wanted us to help balance their budget.

But this year we are increasing spending by about $4.1 billion over what we said we were going to spend just last year. I think that is a terrible mistake from a policy standpoint, and I think it makes it even more difficult for us to say that we are going to actually reduce spending in the outyears.

In fact, what I said last night was, how in the world can we say in good conscience to our constituents that we cannot cut an additional $4.1 billion worth of spending this year and yet somehow miraculously in 3 years we are going to have the discipline to cut $47 billion worth of spending?

I think it a mistake, and, as I say, as a result of that we came up with a very simple amendment that we are going to offer to every single appropriation bill from this point forward to simply trim 1.9 percent from each appropriation bill in discretionary domestic spending so that if all of those amendments were passed, it would at least get us back to the promise that we made just last year.

But as I looked at this transportation appropriation bill, I must be honest that we find that the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] and his committee have done a very good job, and, as a matter of fact, their appropriation bill is $338 million less than the 602(b) allocations. And unfortunately, around this place, altogether too often no good deed goes unpunished, and so as we looked at this, essentially we came to the conclusion that this is one committee that has already met the challenge which we laid out in terms of trying to recover that $4.1 billion.

So as a result, Mr. Chairman, if I could engage in a brief colloquy with the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF], I think we can resolve this matter and move forward to the next order of business. I ask the gentleman:

It is true that under this bill, H.R. 3675, the gentleman proposes to spend $338 million less than the budget authority allocated in the transportation subcommittee by the full committee?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GUTKNECHT. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is correct.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Would it be the gentleman's intention to continue to try and save $338 million should this bill go forward into the conference committee with the Senate?

Mr. WOLF. Yes, it is my intention to see that the conference report reflects the priorities and funding levels of the House, and also I might say that if the Senate tries to put any highway demos in, we will make sure that they are not in, and I hope that the people of our body will help us to make sure they are not in, it, but there are no highway demonstration projects in this bill.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. The amendment that I am offering would save approximately $232 million and obviously a savings of $338 million is greater than 232. So in light of this fact, I commend the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] and the full committee for the work that they have done and foregoing the extra mile in terms of trying to preserve the American dream for our kids.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The amendment of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT] is withdrawn.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ANDREWS

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ANDREWS: Page 55, after line 15, insert the following new section:

SEC. 406. (a) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS FOR CERTAIN SURFACE TRANSPORTATION PROJECTS.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to provide, or to pay the salaries or expenses of Department of Transportation personnel who provide, to a State more than $50,000 in Federal assistance from the Highway Trust Fund (other than the Mass Transit Account) for any surface transportation project except when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that—

At least 30 days before entering a contract or agreement with a private business entity for the performance of work usually performed by employees of a State under which the State will obligate more than $50,000, the State has conducted and submitted a cost-benefit analysis of the project;

(2) the cost-benefit analysis includes a detailed description of—

(A) the costs of labor;

(B) the costs of employer-provided fringe benefits;

(C) the costs of equipment or materials, whether supplied by the State or private contractor;

(D) the costs directly attributable to transferring the work being performed by State employees to a private business entity;

(E) the costs of administering and inspecting the contracted service; and

(F) the costs of any anticipated unemployment compensation or other benefits which are likely to be paid to State employees who are displaced as a result of the contracted services; (3) the cost-benefit analysis includes an analysis of whether it is more cost effective to use employees of a private business entity than to use State employees to perform the work required;

(4) the cost-benefit analysis is accompanied by an analysis of the State's finances and personnel and an analysis of the ability of the State to reassume the contracted service if contracting of the service ceases to serve the public interest;

(5) in the case of a contract or agreement described in paragraph (1) that will result in a decrease in the amount of work assigned to State employees, the cost-benefit analysis demonstrates that—

(A) the contract or agreement will result in a substantial cost savings to the State; and

(B) the potential cost savings of contracting of services are not outweighed by the public's interest in having a particular function performed directly by the State;

(6) at least 30 days before entering into a contract or agreement described in paragraph (1), the State has submitted a past performance history of the private business entity contract or agreement, which includes—

(A) work performed for the State under contracts and agreements described in paragraph (1) in the 5-year period ending on the 45th day before the date of entry into the contract or agreement;

(B) if no work was performed for the State under such contracts and agreements during such 5-year period, then any work performed for other States under contracts and agreements described in paragraph (1) in such 5-year period;

(C) with respect to each contract or agreement to which subparagraph (A) or (B) applies, the amount of funds originally committed by the State under the contract or agreement and the amount of funds actually expended by the State under the contract or agreement; and

(D) with respect to each contract or agreement to which subparagraph (A) or (B) applies, deadlines originally established for all work performed under the contract or agreement and the actual date or dates on which performance of such work was completed;

(7) at least 30 days before entering into a contract or agreement described in paragraph (1), the State has submitted a copy of any performance bond or any similar instrument that ensures performance by the private business entity under the contract or agreement or certifies the amount of such bond;

(8) at least 30 days before entering into a contract or agreement described in paragraph (1), the State has submitted a political contribution history of the private business entity with whom the State is entering into the contract or agreement, which political contribution history lists all political contributions the private business entity has made to political parties and candidates for political office in the 5-year period ending on the 45th day before the date of entry into the contract or agreement; and

(9) not later than 5 days after submission of the cost-benefit analysis and other documents under this section, the public has been notified of the availability of the cost-benefit analysis and other documents for public inspection, an the analysis and other documents have been made available for inspection upon request.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—The limitation established by subsection (a) shall not apply to any surface transportation project when it is make known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend the funds that—

(1) the project is a pilot project for a particular type of work that has not previously been performed by the State and is being undertaken to evaluate whether contracting for that particular type of work can result in savings to the State; or

(2) the analysis of the State's finances and personnel under subsection (a)(4) demonstrates that the State cannot perform the work with existing or additional departmental employees because the work would be of such an intermittent nature as to be likely to cause regular periods of unemployment for State employees.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the earlier unanimous-consent agreement, the proponent and the opponent each will control 10 minutes for the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ANDREWS].

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ANDREWS].

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The purpose of this amendment is rather simple and straightforward, and it is that the taxpayers that we represent have a right to know how and where their money is being spent. This is a phenomenon that is happening across our country right now. State governments, in an attempt to save money, are laying off public employees by the score. People are losing their jobs, they are losing their careers, they are losing many of the things they depend on for their families. These are longtime, hard-working public employees.

The justification that is offered time after time for this contracting out and for these employees losing their jobs is that it saves money.

This amendment simply says to a local government using Federal taxpayer dollars in transportation projects, it says to that local government:

> If you want to lay off public employees, if you want to take away the jobs of people who have been on the payroll for a long time and done their job as they have been asked, then you have to show us, you have to show the public, that the savings of money that you assert are there are, in fact, there.

Here is the way it works:

When a local government using Federal funds from the transportation trust funds decides to contract that work out, if the work is work that has been traditionally done by public employees, traditionally done by public employees, if they decide to contract the work out, this amendment requires the local government to go through a cost-benefit analysis. It requires a local government to weigh the costs and benefits of contracting the work out versus the costs and the benefits of keeping the work in-house and being done by public employees. The record of that analysis is then spread before the public, and that is it.

Mr. Chairman, let me tell my colleagues what the amendment does not do. The amendment does not require that work that has been done by the private sector for years be changed. If, as in most States, the actual construction of these projects is done in the private sector and not by public employees, this amendment does not apply. It applies only to work traditionally done by public employees. It does not create a massive and new bureaucratic gauntlet for State governments to run.

I would hope that every State and local government that is spending the hard-earned tax dollars of our constituents is already doing this. I hope they are already sitting down and saying what would option A cost to contract the work out versus what would option B cost to keep the work inside. This really simply requires then to disclose what I hope they are already doing.

Finally, this amendment does not, does not, require that there be some new obligation placed upon States or that some new category of work be kept in house that would otherwise be contracted out. This is common sense. It even says, Mr. Chairman, that after the cost benefit analysis has been done, if the State still decides to contract the work out, there is nothing in this amendment that precludes them from doing so.

□ 2315

It protects the right and discretion of States and local governments. This, Mr. Chairman, is a truth-in-government amendment. It simply says if a local official, using Federal taxpayer dollars, if a State official using Federal taxpayer dollars, decides to lay people off the public payroll because they claim that it saves money, they have to show that it saves money. That is all. It is a truth-in-government amendment. I believe it deserves broad support, and I would ask that it receive that support.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment. Also, the American Consulting Engineers Council, the American Road and Transportation Builders Association, the Associated General Contractors of America, the American Institute of Architects, The National Society of Professional Engineers, the American Society of Landscape Architects, the Council of Federal Procurement of Architectural Engineering Services, the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping, the National Utility Contractors, they all urge a no.

Mr. Chairman, let me tell Members what AASHTO says. AAHSTO says the amendment is sweeping and would include everything from engineering and design and management, consultant contractors, and at the low threshold of $500,000 it would mean that most activities carried out by the State would not be effective.

They said implementation of the amendment would require a whole array of procedures at the State and Federal level which would impose significant costs and delays in project development. It would make it impossible to utilize private sector resources. It is opposed by the State departments of New York, New Jersey, Texas, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, and Montana, and others.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Chairman, if each of the associations that my friend from Virginia cites are opposed to the bill, it does not surprise me. Taxpayers are in favor of this bill, because all it really says is if you are really saving money, you ought to prove it.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to my friend, the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER].

Mr. FILNER. I thank the gentleman for his amendment, Mr. Chairman, because as I read it, it would simply replicate at the State level the procedure that is followed by the Federal Government to require cost comparisons before a contract could be given to private entities. The gentleman's amendment will ensure the prudent use of taxpayer moneys by requiring cost comparisons when in-house expertise is available. State governments frequently have trained competent public employees. Having State workers perform design and engineering work on highway projects will often save taxpayers' money because the job can be done quicker and cheaper.

This amendment is a major step toward protecting the American taxpayer and ensures their tax dollars will be well spent. Too often private contractors are given sweetheart contracts in return for financial and political support. The best interests of the American people are not served. This practice is egregious when the result is the displacement or underutilization of public workers. I think this amendment sets politics aside and brings back into focus the interests of American taxpayers.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN], a member of the committee.

FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Andrews amendment for several reasons: First, it imposes an unfunded mandate on the States, like our own State of New Jersey. We already have enough unfunded mandates now.

Second, it violates States rights. States should be able to make transportation decisions without any further Federal interference.

Third, Mr. Chairman, it removes the flexibility that States currently enjoy to address their unique transportation needs. In our State our State has particular transportation needs because of our population density.

Fourth, it swells State bureaucracies that many Governors, like our own State of New Jersey Governor, Christine Todd Whitman, were trying to control costs, so why would we need to swell the bureaucracy with more employees paid for by Federal dollars?

Fifth, it invites lawsuits, totally unnecessary lawsuits.

Sixth, it hurts minority and start-up small businesses who already have problems competing in a complex situation in terms of transportation projects.

Seventh, it delays highway projects. In a State with as many problems as we have, we do not need any more delays.

Lastly, Mr. Chairman, it hurts the private sector, who is perfectly capable, who has a wonderful track record of designing and working on construction projects.

For these reasons and many others, I oppose this amendment.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to my friend, the gentleman from New York [Mr. NADLER].

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey. The amendment is straightforward and requires that before Federal funds are used to contract out highway work, the locality must determine whether the benefits of contracting out, including the costs of the contract, the costs of terminating public employees, the costs of administering and supervising the contract, and the costs of the projected unemployment, outweigh the anticipated benefits.

This should not be controversial. Small businesses and middle-class homeowners do this all the time. They want to get the best deal for their money. The taxpayers have a right to demand that their governments should treat their tax dollars with the same care and respect.

I know that privatization is very popular these days. I know some of our colleagues like to point to situations in which privatization saved the government money. I know in some circles, putting people out of work simply because they committed the unpardonable sin of devoting their energies to serving their communities as public servants, is politically popular. That may be right, it may be wrong in a given case, but it is not too much to ask that before a State rushes forward and begins contracting out, it take the trouble to find out whether it would be getting a good deal.

Some have complained we have no business telling the State governments to comparison shop. I disagree. This is not a question of unfunded mandates. What is at issue here is a fundamental question of accountability, accountability in the use of Federal tax dollars. Demanding accountability, making sure that contracting out really will save money, is not simply local politicians giving some goodies to the old boys' network. It is not an abuse of our authority. It is a fundamental exercise of our responsibility as legislators and as stewards of the taxpayers' funds.

It does not matter whom we send this money through, it is our responsibility to ensure that the tax money we appropriate today is spent wisely. That is what accountability is all about. That is our first obligation, and that is why I urge adoption of this amendment.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SHUSTER], chairman of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey, [Mr. ANDREWS]. This amendment is not merely a limitation on funds for fiscal 1997, it requires States to perform six pages of new specific criteria, creates new requirements out of whole cloth that have never been present in the last 40 years of Federal highway programs. This provision virtually rewrites the highway bidding and contracting process, and it does so without any hearings or any debate as to whether such a revolutionary change should be adopted. This amendment has sparked broad-based opposition, including the States of New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Texas, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Montana, the American Consulting Engineers Council, the American Road and Transportation Builders, and the Associated General Contractors.

I am informed by the Federal Highway Administration and the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials that, if adopted, this provision would nearly be impossible to implement for several reasons. The amendment requires the States to perform burdensome and costly cost-benefit analysis. The cost-benefit analysis mandated by this amendment is a wolf in sheep's clothing, and bears little relationship to the meaningful analysis of costs and benefits.

By tying its requirements to work that is usually performed by State employees, the amendment would create 50 separate rules for the Department of Transportation to administer. All States currently have different contracting practices. This amendment would freeze in place these different State practices.

This amendment stacks the deck against private work in order to increase the State bureaucracies. It would hurt the private sector design and engineering firms in all of the 50 States. In sum, this provision is unworkable, would increase the burdens on the States, would lower quality and prevent States from building the best assets, so I strongly urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN], the ranking member of the subcommittee, who has been an excellent mentor and friend on this.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I would say to my colleague, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, oh, for heaven's sakes. I thought you all liked my cost-benefit analysis to be done on regulation. What in the world is wrong with us doing that when we are using Federal tax dollars at the State level? Nothing is wrong with that. It is called good management, good government. There is absolutely nothing wrong with us requiring it in this amendment. It needs to be conducted on preconstruction activities for federally funded highway projects prior to them being contracted out.

What is wrong with that? Do the taxpayers not have a right to know that? I know all of you and all of us have agreed we need cost-benefit analysis on regulations. Let us do it when we are spending Federal dollars.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SAXTON].

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the amendment offered by my good friend, which I think is misguided.

The speakers on the other side of the aisle have referred to this as a cost-saver. I think it is more appropriately called a big government bill, very simply, because it adds an additional step to the contracting process on surface transportation projects. Any project above $50,000 will henceforth, if this amendment passes, have an additional step on it which will require more State workers and more salaries paid to State workers.

Mr. Chairman, as we know, the Joint Economic Committee, of which I am Vice-Chair, this year has produced numerous studies that show that when government grows, the economy slows. That is a very simple concept.

So my friends on the other side of the aisle who are interested in voting tonight for more big government, for more State spending, and more Federal spending, this is just their vote. I do not mean that, I do not say this to be smart. That is exactly what it is.

What we have tried to do here in the last year and a half is to set the stage for smaller government, government that will permit the private sector to grow and to continue to provide opportunities in the free enterprise system for Americans to work and prosper. This amendment goes exactly in the opposite direction, and I urge all Members on both sides of the aisle to vote "no."

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. DUNCAN].

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment. It would add unnecessary delays and added costs to almost every highway project across the country. More importantly, it would go very much against one of the leading recommendations of the most recent White House Conference on Small Business, which adopted as one of its main planks this statement: At the Federal, State, and local levels, laws, regulations, and policies should prohibit direct government-created competition in which government organizations perform commercial services. That hits right at the heart of this amendment. This amendment goes against that leading recommendation. It would be very harmful to small business, it would be very costly to the taxpayer, and I urge the defeat of this amendment.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

In urging my colleagues to vote with this amendment, I would like to deal with some of the misconceptions put forward about the amendment. People say they want smaller government. What we are doing here would not give us smaller government, if we oppose this amendment, it would give us dumber government, because government would be taking taxpayers' money and not necessarily getting the best deal for it.

□ 2330

We hear it is a violation of States' rights. Not so. This simply says the State needs to go through a justification process, but the decision as to what to do remains with the State. We hear this is unworkable. Any State that is spending tens or hundreds of millions of Federal taxpayer dollars without doing this is running their projects in an unworkable way.

We hear that privatization has been a great success, and since my friends from New Jersey raised New Jersey, let me raise New Jersey. New Jersey, as I understand it, laid off the custodians at the State Capitol, the people who clean the State capitol building in the name of saving money. We have a problem with the Capitol building not being clean and we find out that the firm that was hired to do the work has hired illegal aliens to do the work, so I am not sure that that was a success.

When our constituents, Mr. Chairman, go out and shop tonight for an air-conditioner or a TV set, they look for the best deal. We should do the same thing with their money. I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. DAVIS].

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, I was in local government for 15 years. This is not true cost-benefit at all; this is a presumption on one side of the ledger sheet and creates a presumption that somehow the public sector delivers this better. It is an unfunded mandate; it is an economic study for every Federal highway program over $50,000.

This amendment will delay projects, and when you have short construction seasons in some cases, it is going to kick it over, sometimes over a year's delay getting that project costed and that ends up delaying costs and I doubt that even goes into the cost-benefit analysis. This makes it very difficult to contract out and utilize the private sector resources available.

The cost and the delays in undergoing these studies are deterrent to bidding these programs out and using private sector forces. This does not save money, it is anticompetitive, it ends up costing money with the delays, and it diverts dollars from pavement and bridges and it puts them into the bureaucracy and bureaucratic studies. I think despite its good intentions, this does not cut the mustard, it does not do the job. I urge its defeat.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ANDREWS].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 460, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ANDREWS] will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. HUNTER

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HUNTER: Page 55, after line 15, insert the following new title:

TITLE V—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. (a) LIMITATION ON NEW LOAN GUARANTEES FOR CERTAIN RAILROAD PROJECTS.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for the cost of any new loan guarantee commitment for any railroad project, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that such railroad project is an international railroad project of the United States and another country, or a railroad project in the United States in the vicinity of the United States border with another country.

(b) EXCEPTION.—Subsection (a) shall not apply when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that—

(1) a comprehensive study has been conducted after the date of the enactment of this Act regarding criminal activities that have occurred on existing railroads of such type, including—

(A) the use of such railroads to facilitate the smuggling of illegal aliens and illegal drugs into the United States, and the impact of such smuggling on the total number of illegal aliens, and the total amount of illegal drugs, entering the United States; and

(B) the commission of robberies against such railroads; and

(2) a detailed report setting forth the results of such study has been issued and made available to the public.

Mr. HUNTER (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN] reserves a point of order.

Pursuant to the unanimous consent agreement of earlier today, the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER] and a Member opposed will each control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER].

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, very simply, this amendment affects the proposal that the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER] made on the border train, which lies mainly in my congressional district, and I brought up to my colleagues the problems that we presently have on the southern border of California with overwhelming out of control illegal immigration. It has become a cocaine highway in San Diego and Imperial Counties, and the problem with this train is that a border train, which does not even go into Mexico, in New Mexico was robbed 600 times last year, according to headline stories in the Boston Globe, the L.A. Times and the San Diego Union.

So you have an issue of border control and what effect this border train that weaves in and out of Mexico will have on that situation. Will it become an illegal alien express? Will it be robbed? Will it build up a base of banditry along the southern border?

What my amendment does very simply is it asks for a study. It says, we cannot fund any funds under this section until and unless a study is done that addresses the effect of existing border trains on illegal immigration, cocaine smuggling, and the prospects for banditry which have taken place in great numbers in New Mexico.

So we need information on this proposal, and this amendment asks for a report that gives that information, and certainly I cannot see any proponents wanting to deny the House information that would let us make a reasoned judgment on this border train.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment, mainly so that I could inquire of the author of the amendment, and we could be able to divide some time perhaps so that I could inquire. The language of the amendment is that none of the funds are made available in this act and my understanding is that there are no funds made available in this act for the cost of any new loan guarantee commitment for any railroad project, and when it is made known to the Federal official having the authority to obligate or expend such funds that such railroad project is an international railroad project of the United States and another country, or a railroad project in the United States in the vicinity of the United States border with another country, meaning Alaska, the State of Washington?

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLEMAN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I would say to the gentleman, no, that does not mean Alaska, if the gentleman is asking.

This is what I would hope that we would do under this, is to look at the existing situation. It is similar to San Diego's, and that is the border train that borders New Mexico that has been robbed 600 times in the last year. The study would under this amendment, the intent of the author is that we would look at that situation.

Second, with respect to the gentleman's statement that there is no funds under this act, this is attached to this section of the bill on the presumption that if the Filner amendment did pass, there would be funds available in the act?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I think that is the issue. I mean if the Filner amendment does not pass, then of course this kind of language is not necessary to do that.

I know the gentleman wants to conduct a study, and I do not object to just doing a study, but I am afraid that the way the gentleman has crafted the amendment, we are going to do more than just a study. We may indeed be prohibiting any future use of any loan guarantee funds on behalf of any railroads just because they happen to be near a border, and I do not think that is fair, either. The gentleman represents a border, like I do.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Texas continue to reserve his point of order?

Mr. COLEMAN. No, Mr. Chairman, I think it is only a technical flaw and not subject to a point of order.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I my consume.

Mr. Chairman, let me just say to my colleagues, for the proponents of this border train, the point of my amendment is that there are a lot of ramifications of this train that go far beyond simply linking up a couple of railheads with an existing port and expediting trade between nations. There are enormous problems along the southern California border. There are right now enormous problems among all of the southern border with enormous illegal immigration and all of the ramifications that come about as a result of that situation.

This amendment has asked for a study. It should not be mission impossible to get a study. Now, if the gentleman says, well, no monies can be spent until there is a study, well, that is easily taken care of by simply producing a study, and I think that INS, at least the people that I have talked to, Customs, Border Patrol, have got facts coming out of their ears with results of what has happened to border trains in the last few months.

So let us have this study, and then the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER] can move ahead in an informed manner, and I can move ahead in an informed manner, and all Members of the House will know what the facts are. Let us do the study.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Again, I think the problem of trying to draft legislation on the floor of the House is evident by the fact that what we have in this particular amendment says that this would include a railroad project in the United States, in the vicinity of the United States border with another country. That is not just Mexico. Where does everybody get the idea that the border is only Mexico in the United States?

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF], the subcommittee chairman.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment. It was an issue that the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HASTERT] raised with regard to drugs coming out of Mexico. Up to 75 percent of the marijuana is coming across the Mexico border. I think a study is a fair thing to do, so I strongly support the amendment.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. BILBRAY].

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate my dear colleague from San Diego, both of my colleagues from San Diego, and I am going to get in the middle of this family feud. I would ask every Member here and every Member who is watching on C–SPAN, do you hear what is going on? We are talking about trying to have commerce in the good things that we all talk about everything in this country. But here you have two colleagues that have districts side by side, and because of the uncontrolled situation along our frontiers, because not all American soil seems to be created equally.

It does not appear to be by this Congress or other Congresses, because we are in a situation now to where a railroad is threatened because we do not have control of U.S. soil and we are not going to see the commerce and the prosperity that we should see in certain parts of this country, because America and the Federal Government has not taken care of a problem.

I would say to my colleague, the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER], does the gentleman know what I would like to see this study say? Not what is going to be the problems, but what can the greatest Nation in the history of the world that travels all around the world to defend and secure the national sovereignty of everybody else, what can we do to make the NAFTA train of the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER] safe and prosperous? That is what our study should say.

I just ask every one of my colleagues as they go back to the July 4 recess, go back to your districts and think about the fact that the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER] and the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER] are going to go back to their neighborhoods and their neighborhood is not as secure and as safe from foreign intrusion as everyone else in this country should be and presume to be.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER].

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman. I wish all of us, the gentleman, Mr. HUNTER, and Mr. BILBRAY, myself our colleagues, would be working together for the economic development of our region. This amendment does not help any. It does not even apply to the funds that my amendment addressed.

The funds are not from this act. It is not a railroad project of the United States. I asked for loan guarantees for a private sector venture. The private sector is not going to invest $75 million in a railroad that has banditry problems, that has other problems.

This is a private sector venture that will transform the economy of San Diego. They are going to make the studies. Let us trust the private sector on that side of the aisle. This is what the project is all about, opening the economy, opening the port of San Diego. The private sector will make those studies. They are not going to invest that money if it is unsafe.

So I would say to the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER] let us get serious, let us solve the economic problems of San Diego and not just demagogue on this issue of immigration.

Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, let me just close, if I might, and let me say that I think in terms of dealing with the issue of undocumented persons in America, the issue of dealing with the robberies, the crime that occurs, whether it be from undocumented persons who are foreign nationals or whether it be from legal immigrants or whether it be from United States citizens, those kinds of issues do need to be addressed by all of us in the area of law enforcement.

Indeed, we have in this country a structure and facilities capable of handling many of the illegal activities that do occur. We know along the U.S. Mexico border, for example, I am proud to represent a district directly on that border with a citizenship of nearly 2 million people on both sides of that border, we have incidents of crime and the rest of it just like everywhere else in America. But I can tell you that I do not think it is important for us to suggest that we must somehow stop the kind of progress that has been referred to by all of my colleagues from California and what they intend to do.

I am willing to study the issue, but if criminal or illegal activities have occurred, I know that Federal and State authorities have right now the ability to investigate all of those charges. If illegal activities are in play, we do not need to wait until a study is conducted. I mean after all, that is what the law enforcement officials that we fund, that your State funds, that your local communities fund, are there to do.

So Mr. Chairman, I would ask that my colleagues defeat the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER] in this instance.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER].

The amendment was agreed to.

□ 2345

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. COLLINS OF GEORGIA

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. COLLINS of Georgia: Page 55, after line 15, insert the following new title:

TITLE V—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the National Transportation Safety Board to plan, conduct, or enter into any contract for a study to determine the feasibility of allowing individuals who are more than 60 years of age to pilot commercial aircraft.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the earlier unanimous-consent agreement, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS] and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS].

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, the report accompanying the Department of Transportation Appropriations Act contains language directing the National Transportation Safety Board to review and issue a report on the Federal Aviation Administration's "age 60 rule" which requires pilots to retire upon reaching the age of 60.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR] and myself prohibits funding of this study based upon several reasons.

First, the NTSB is not the appropriate agency to undertake such a study. The chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board responded to an inquiry from the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY] just yesterday. The National Transportation Safety Board letter stated that the basic scientific research required by such a study is currently beyond the mission and capability of the Safety Board. In addition, the letter stated that such a study would require about 1-½ years of professional staff effort, and could replace or delay other safety studies already scheduled.

Mr. Chairman, I strongly believe that taxpayer dollars should be targeted to the mission of the National Transportation Safety Board, which is investigating accidents and helping to prevent their reoccurrences, and not diverted for projects for which the agency is not suited.

Second, the age 60 rule has been studied and restudied for decades by experts in the field. Congress ordered a major study in 1979. The National Institutes of Health, National Institutes of Aging, and National Academy of Sciences undertook an exhaustive study and concluded that while there may be individuals capable of flying after age 60, there was no way to make such a determination without constant examinations, which are completely impractical.

During the 1980's the issue was revisited in various forums without change, and in 1995 the Federal Aviation Administration, which has a medical component, undertook another extensive review, receiving thousands of comments. Not only did the agency conclude that a change in the retirement age was not warranted, but it applied the age 60 rule to commuter airlines which had been allowed to have pilots over the age of 60. I reiterate, this was just last year.

I believe that requiring the National Transportation Safety Board to do yet another study is not only unwarranted, it is not a wise use of taxpayers' dollars, and certainly not a wise use of the National Transportation Safety Board's already strained resources.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] rise in opposition?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia will control 10 minutes in opposition.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 4 minutes.

If this bill said to raise the age to 60 or 61, I would not be for it. All it says is the National Transportation Safety Board should look at the issue. Fifteen other countries do it. We know what has happened. There has been some political pressure by one group who has come in and said, "Don't even look at it." We cannot put our head in the sand on this issue.

You can argue it is age discrimination. Should we have an amendment that every Member of Congress over 60 ought to bail out of here? That every surgeon ought to bail out of here? That every dentist ought to bail out of here? That every whatever ought to bail out of here? The answer is no. All it is is a study to see, because it may be a major safety issue. Let me just read a couple of things.

The NTSB at our hearing stated that there is data showing that flying skills, judgment, and seasoning in general do improve with experience. If you think back to the Sioux City accident, the United Airlines pilot who saved a lot of lives was able to avert a tragic accident at the last minute. That pilot was 59 years old and had to retire the following year. Another example that comes to mind is United Airlines 811 where the cargo door blew out, causing both engines on the left side of the plane to fail and placed large holes in the floor and the wall. The pilot, age 59, brought the plane to a safe landing in Honolulu and the NTSB cited his skill as the finest piloting job ever done under these circumstances.

In comparison, there are some vivid examples of young pilots who lack the seasoning and the skills to recognize the seriousness of conditions they are flying in and have caused tragic accidents.

Let me give an example. A recent accident is the American Eagle accident near Morrisville, NC that occurred because a young pilot, age 29, misinterpreted an engine-out light and lost his orientation, resulting in a perfectly good aircraft being flown into the ground. Another example is when a Henson Airlines pilot, using an incorrect navigation aid, flew the aircraft into a mountain near Grotto, VA. In this case the copilot was 26 years old, even younger and less experienced than the pilot.

I final example is a 1983 Air Illinois flight where a 32-year-old pilot took off at night, lost electrical power, and instead of turning the aircraft around for an emergency landing, he continued to fly the aircraft and he crashed it.

I do not say that the age out to be raised. I am not sure. If there were a vote today to raise the age, I would oppose it. But everything that we could do in this bill to make the airlines safer, we have done. Safety has been the number one priority. We put more money in this bill than the FAA even asked us for for safety. This side of the aisle and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN] can be proud, this is a safety bill. This may be a safety issue. When you walk in that aircraft, you may like to see a little gray on that pilot's hair.

If you vote for this amendment to knock this out, then maybe you ought to support an amendment that every Member of Congress over 60 ought to bail out and your dentist ought to bail out and your surgeon ought to bail out.

I do not know if it ought to be raised. I do not know. But what I do know is this was put in in 1959. Men are living longer since 1959. Some men work out and take care of themselves. Maybe we should take some pilots after they are 55 and maybe some that are 61. I do not know. But I want the NTSB to look at it, study it, come back and make a recommendation to the FAA. And whatever the FAA does, I will be happy with. But I cannot say we ought not even look at this.

Mr. Chairman, I strongly urge the defeat of this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. I remind the gentleman, this is not the FAA. This is the NTSB.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY].

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I would simply like to rise in support of the amendment and note that if a Member of Congress has a heart attack or if a dentist has a heart attack, the public safety is not at risk. That is not the case in the occupation we are talking about here tonight.

I would also say that it is important to understand that the National Transportation Safety Board itself does not believe that it is qualified to conduct the study that it is being asked to conduct. When we asked them what they felt about it, they responded as follows:

> It is likely that the proposed study will conclude that significant new laboratory research on the effect of aging on tasks that are critical to safe performance as an airline pilot will be required. Basic safety research of this nature, of course, is currently beyond the mission and capability of the Safety Board.

After that letter was sent, I understand that they sent another letter to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF], because I know how things work. When the subcommittee chairman says something, they respond. In the subsequent letter which the agency sent to the gentleman from Virginia, they indicated that they would conduct the study if they were asked to do so and if it was requested. But, I will repeat, they indicated that in their judgment such a study, while they would do it if told to by the Congress, is beyond the mission and the capability of the Safety Board.

So it seems to me that maybe this study ought to be conducted, but it certainly should not be conducted by an agency that itself believes it does not have the capacity to do it. I would urge that the gentleman's amendment be adopted.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds.

There was no pressure. I said to Mr. Hall, "You do the right thing, whatever the right thing is."

Second, I do not have the confidence in the FAA to do this study and I wanted the National Transportation Safety Board, which is above and beyond the pressure of politics and Cabinet secretaries of whatever administration, to evaluate all the data—as I said, 15 other countries do it—and make a report back. I tell the gentleman it is the Safety Board that would make the report back to the FAA and the FAA would do whatever.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. DUNCAN].

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS] and the ranking member of the full Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR].

I seriously doubt, Mr. Chairman, that the Federal Government needs another study. But if one is needed, then we should let the groups and the companies which are for and against this fund these studies. In addition, we can hold hearings on this without requiring the taxpayers to fund any new studies.

I know there are good and well-intentioned people on both sides of this issue, but this question has already been much studied since this rule was first imposed during the Eisenhower administration. As has been pointed out, National Transportation Safety Board Chairman Hall recently wrote that this study, "may replace or delay other safety studies scheduled for accomplishment during fiscal year 1997."

The Federal Aviation Administration, as a result of its studies and its one-level-of-safety initiative, concluded just this past December that the age 60 rule should not be changed and, moreover, the FAA has recently applied the age 60 rule to commuter pilots.

Mr. Chairman, I think this is a good amendment and I urge its support.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR].

Mr. OBERSTAR. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and for cosponsoring this amendment, for initiating it, in fact.

Mr. Chairman, I was very interested and pleased to hear that the chairman of the appropriations subcommittee mentioned the Sioux City, IA crash. People walked away from that crash for a couple of reasons: The seat strengthening that was required on all aircraft, to 18 G forces, that kept those seats in place and saved 110 lives; and for the skill of that pilot in managing this aircraft when he lost all control surfaces. Capt. Al Haynes, who flew that aircraft, is very strongly in support of the age 60 rule. I do not think it was the intention of the chairman to imply that he was opposed to the age 60 rule, but it is very clear that Capt. Al Haynes supports the age 60 rule and wants it to remain in place.

This issue has been studied to death. We do not need to waste more dollars and the precious resources of the National Transportation Safety Board on another study. In 1979 Congress directed NIH to study the age 60 rule. The Institute on Aging, the Institute of Medicine, the National Academy of Sciences conducted the research, prepared the report, completed it in 1981, and recommended keeping the age 60 rule and extending it to commuter pilots—1981. It took until this year, under the one-level-of-safety rule issued by the FAA, to extend that rule to commuter airlines and to standardize the age 60 rule for all of aviation.

The Academy of Sciences, the FAA, and the Civil Aeromedical Institute have conducted extensive studies on this issue. They all have come to the same conclusion after thousands of comments, after extensive review, public hearings, extensive debate over the 37 years this rule has been in place. Every entry pilot knows that age 20 or whatever it is when that pilot enters that cockpit, that at age 60 they are going to have to retire. They live by it and they know it.

□ 0000

This is a safety issue. Every entity that has studied it has come down on the side of retaining age 60 as a safety measure. Do not mess with something that is working, that is safe. Keep it in place.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas, [Mr. DELAY], the majority whip.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman and ranking member for the hard work they have done on this bill. While I have the deepest respect for my friend from Georgia, I have to rise in opposition to his amendment.

Clearly great controversy exists regarding the age 60 rule. Therefore, I believe it is entirely appropriate for a study to be done by the NTSB to provide us with some hard data. So far the data that exists leads me to believe that this rule is totally out of date. The FAA's latest study released in 1993 showed that accidents declined to their safest level at age 55 and remained at that level until the age of 63. Now, that study also showed that the highest risk age category was from 24 years old to 39 years old, and it stated and I quote:

> In all of our analyses, we saw no hint of an increase in the accident rate for pilots of scheduled air carriers as they neared their 60th birthday.
>
> Further, accident data collected by the National Transportation Safety Board confirms that inexperience, not age, is the leading cause of aviation accidents.

When we really need to know what caused an accident, we do not call the FAA. We call the NTSB. They have worldwide respect in their knowledge of what causes accidents. So it is only natural to ask the NTSB to make this kind of study and report to the FAA and look at it. So why does the FAA insist so stubbornly on retaining this rule?

I think it is time to really fully examine the relationship between age and performance and explore alternatives to the age 60 rule. Our friends on the other side of the Atlantic are already moving in this direction. Additionally, foreign carriers are allowed to fly under less restrictive age rules through and into U.S. airspace in America. This is absurd. Vote "no" on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia, Mr. WOLF, has 3 minutes remaining and the right to close, and the gentleman from Georgia, [Mr. COLLINS], has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas, [Mr. COLEMAN].

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I only wanted to say to my colleagues, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] has done what he should have done with NTSB. He has agreed to their reprogramming requests. Let me tell all of my colleagues why this amendment is important. The safety studies are already in progress by NTSB. They are not going to get any more money by doing this study. In progress, they have emergency evacuation of commercial aviation under aviation; under highways they have a child-passenger protection study; a study of passive grade-crossing study; effectiveness of school bus seat belt study; a fishing vessel safety study; evacuation damage prevention for pipeline safety; safety at passive grade crossings and rail safety.

In addition to that, at the moment they have 24 ongoing major accident investigations in all modes of transportation; 8 of them are in aviation. We are not going to give them more resources, but we are going to ask them more or less let us do another study. That is the reason I think the gentleman from Georgia's amendment is appropriate at this point in time. If we want to have people do more studies, we are going to have to pay for it. Is that not what we all said when we talk about a balanced budget? I think the gentleman from Georgia's amendment is a good one and I recommend it to my colleagues.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. PACKARD].

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, let me make several points. There is nothing magic about the age 60. It is strictly an arbitrary age. We can pick 59, we can pick 50 or 70. It is arbitrary. People are living longer and more productive lives. All common carrier planes have to have at least two pilots. A heart attack will not cause the plane to go down and they also, most of them, have a flight engineer. No other profession requires the termination of their careers at age 60, not the railroad engineer, not a bus driver, not a truck driver, not a physician, a nurse. Age 60 is not consistent with the Age Discrimination in Employment Act which states that ability, not age, should determine an individual's qualifications for getting and keeping a job.

These pilots are willing to subject themselves to rigorous medical or physical tests in order to keep flying. That should be what determines whether they are qualified to fly or not is if they are physically capable of doing so. I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. CUNNINGHAM].

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I reluctantly oppose the gentleman from Georgia's amendment. Let me tell Members why. I am not asking to let STORM THURMOND fly, but in my experience, I can name a dozen people that are flying in air shows right now at that age that are pulling minus 5 G's and positive 9 G's every day. And we go through a rigorous examination, an annual physical. They even check for drug and alcohol, for eye, for heart, for sonograms, and that picks out what it is. If my colleagues ask me, with my experience, what flying requires, if I am going to fly with a young pilot or an experienced pilot, I am going to take the experienced pilot because in the long run that is going to be safe.

Mr. Chairman, I do not believe, and I know Members have good intentions on this amendment, that age 60 should limit someone. When we talk about it is a wasted study, when we are talking about taking someone's livelihood, that is not proportionate to the safety exercised. I believe that is wrong and I oppose the amendment.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield to a Member who will be so convincing, the next Senator, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHFOOT].

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time, and I hope I can meet up to our chairman's expectations.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment, based on a couple of reasons. First of all, my good friend from Minnesota said that we have studied this forever and we agree about 99 percent on what we need to do with the FAA. But the problem is, there is no data to study. We do not have any pilots in this country flying commercial airlines over the age of 60 because the law has prohibited it for 37 years. So it is very difficult to study the performance of people over the age of 60 if you do not let them fly in the first place.

So in order to reach some kind of a logical agreement, I agree with the gentleman from Virginia, [Mr. WOLF], the vote was tonight to raise the age limit. I think I would be opposed to it simply because we do not have the data available to do it. All that the chairman is asking us to do is to try to look at other countries that are allowing commercial airline pilots over the age of 60 to perform, to see how they meet the safety standards, to see how they stack up, to see what their accident rate is, and then perhaps the NTSB, working with FAA can make the proper decision.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS.]

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 460, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS] will be postponed.

SEQUENTIAL VOTES POSTPONED IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 460, proceedings will now resume on those amendments on which further proceedings were postponed in the following order: the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR]; the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER]; the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ANDREWS]; and the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS].

The Chair will reduce to 5 mintues the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. OBERSTAR

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR], on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Clerk designated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 193, noes 212, not voting 28, as follows:

[Roll No. 288]

AYES—193

Abercrombie
Andrews
Baesler
Baldacci
Ballenger
Barcia
Barrett (WI)
Becerra
Beilenson
Bentsen
Berman
Bevill
Bishop
Blumenauer
Bonior
Borski
Boucher
Browder
Brown (CA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Cardin
Chabot
Chapman
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clinger
Clyburn
Coleman
Collins (GA)
Collins (IL)
Collins (MI)
Condit
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Cummings
Danner
de la Garza
Deal
DeFazio
DeLauro
Dellums
Deutsch
Dicks
Dixon
Doggett
Dooley
Doyle
Duncan
Durbin
Edwards
Engel
English
Ensign
Eshoo
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Fazio
Fields (LA)
Filner
Ford
Frank (MA)
Frost
Furse
Gejdenson
Geren
Gonzalez
Goodling
Gordon
Green (TX)
Hall (TX)
Hamilton
Harman
Hastings (FL)
Hefner
Hilliard
Hinchey
Holden
Hoyer
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee (TX)
Jefferson
Johnson (SD)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnston
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kennedy (MA)
Kennedy (RI)
Kennelly
Kildee
Kleczka
Klink
LaFalce
LaHood
Lantos
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Lofgren
Lowey
Luther
Maloney
Manton
Markey
Mascara
Matsui
McCarthy
McDermott
McHale
McIntosh
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek
Menendez
Millender-McDonald
Miller (CA)
Minge
Mink
Moakley
Mollohan
Montgomery
Moran
Murtha
Nadler
Neal
Oberstar
Obey
Olver
Ortiz
Orton
Owens
Pallone
Pastor
Payne (NJ)
Payne (VA)
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Poshard
Quillen
Rahall
Rangel
Reed
Richardson
Rivers
Roemer
Rose
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanders
Sawyer
Schroeder
Schumer
Scott
Serrano
Shuster
Sisisky
Skaggs
Skelton
Slaughter
Spratt
Stenholm
Stokes
Studds
Stupak
Tanner
Taylor (MS)
Tejeda
Thompson
Thornton
Thurman
Torres
Traficant
Velazquez
Vento
Visclosky
Volkmer
Ward
Waters
Watt (NC)
Waxman
Weller
Williams
Wilson
Wise
Woolsey
Wynn

NOES—212

Allard
Archer
Armey
Bachus
Baker (CA)
Baker (LA)
Barr
Barrett (NE)
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Bateman
Bereuter
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bliley
Blute
Boehlert
Boehner
Bonilla
Bono
Brownback
Bryant (TN)
Bunn
Bunning
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Canady
Castle
Chambliss
Chenoweth
Christensen
Chrysler
Coble
Coburn
Combest
Cooley
Cox
Crane
Crapo
Cremeans
Cubin
Cunningham
Davis
DeLay
Diaz-Balart
Dickey
Dingell
Doolittle
Dornan
Dreier
Dunn
Ehlers
Ehrlich
Everett
Ewing
Fawell
Fields (TX)
Flanagan
Foley
Forbes
Fowler
Fox
Franks (CT)
Franks (NJ)
Frelinghuysen
Frisa
Funderburk
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Goodlatte
Goss
Graham
Greene (UT)
Greenwood
Gunderson
Gutknecht
Hancock
Hansen
Hastert
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Hefley
Heineman
Herger
Hilleary
Hobson
Hoekstra
Hoke
Horn
Hostettler
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Inglis
Istook
Johnson (CT)
Johnson, Sam
Jones
Kasich
Kelly
Kim
King
Kingston
Klug
Knollenberg
Kolbe
Largent
Latham
LaTourette
Laughlin
Lazio
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Lightfoot
Livingston
LoBiondo
Longley
Lucas
Manzullo
Martini
McCollum
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McKeon
Metcalf
Meyers
Mica
Miller (FL)
Molinari
Moorhead
Morella
Myers
Myrick
Nethercutt
Neumann
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Oxley
Packard
Parker
Paxon
Petri
Pickett
Pombo
Pomeroy
Porter
Portman
Pryce
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad
Regula
Riggs
Roberts
Rogers
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Roth
Roukema
Royce
Salmon
Sanford
Saxton
Scarborough
Schaefer
Schiff
Seastrand
Sensenbrenner
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (WA)
Souder
Spence
Stearns
Stump
Talent
Tate
Tauzin
Thomas
Thornberry
Tiahrt
Torkildsen
Upton
Walker
Walsh
Wamp
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
White
Whitfield
Wicker
Wolf
Young (AK)
Zeliff
Zimmer

NOT VOTING—28

Ackerman
Brewster
Bryant (TX)
Flake
Foglietta
Gephardt
Gibbons
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Hayes
Houghton
Jacobs
Lincoln
Linder
Martinez
McDade
Peterson (FL)
Smith (TX)
Solomon
Stark
Stockman
Taylor (NC)
Torricelli
Towns
Vucanovich
Weldon (PA)
Yates
Young (FL)

□ 0027

Mrs. SMITH of Washington and Messrs. HAYWORTH, FOLEY, FRANKS of Connecticut, RAMSTAD, STEARNS, and GREENWOOD changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. BALDACCI changed his vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FILNER

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. FILNER], on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Clerk designated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIRMAN. This will be a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 162, noes 238, not voting 33, as follows:

[Roll No. 289]

AYES—162

Abercrombie
Andrews
Baesler
Barcia
Becerra
Beilenson
Bentsen
Berman
Bevill
Bilbray
Bishop
Blumenauer
Boehlert
Bonior
Borski
Boucher
Browder
Brown (CA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Cardin
Chapman
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn
Coleman
Collins (IL)
Collins (MI)
Condit
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Cummings
Danner
de la Garza
DeFazio
DeLauro
Dellums
Deutsch
Dicks
Dixon
Doggett
Dooley
Doyle
Edwards
Engel
Eshoo
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Fazio
Fields (LA)
Filner
Forbes
Ford
Frank (MA)
Frost
Furse
Gejdenson
Gonzalez
Gordon
Green (TX)
Hamilton
Harman
Hastings (FL)
Hefner
Hilliard
Hinchey
Holden
Hoyer
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee (TX)
Jefferson
Johnson, E. B.
Johnston
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kennedy (MA)
Kennedy (RI)
Kennelly
Kleczka
LaHood
Lantos
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Lofgren
Lowey
Maloney
Manton
Markey
Mascara
Matsui
McDermott
McHale
McKinney
McNulty
Meek
Menendez
Millender-McDonald
Miller (CA)
Mink
Moakley
Montgomery
Moran
Nadler
Neal
Oberstar
Olver
Ortiz
Owens
Pallone
Pastor
Payne (NJ)
Payne (VA)
Pelosi
Poshard
Rahall
Rangel
Reed
Richardson
Rose
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanders
Sawyer
Schroeder
Schumer
Scott
Serrano
Skaggs
Skelton
Slaughter
Spratt
Stokes
Studds
Stupak
Tanner
Tejeda
Thompson
Thornton
Thurman
Torres
Traficant
Velazquez
Vento
Visclosky
Volkmer
Walsh
Ward
Waters
Watt (NC)
Waxman
Whitfield
Williams
Wilson
Wise
Woolsey
Wynn

NOES—238

Allard
Archer
Armey
Bachus
Baker (CA)
Baldacci
Ballenger
Barr
Barrett (NE)
Barrett (WI)
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Bateman
Bereuter
Bilirakis
Bliley
Blute
Boehner
Bonilla
Bono
Brownback
Bryant (TN)
Bunn
Bunning
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Canady
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Chenoweth
Christensen
Chrysler
Clinger
Coble
Coburn
Collins (GA)
Combest
Cooley
Cox
Crane
Crapo
Cremeans
Cubin
Cunningham
Davis
Deal
DeLay
Diaz-Balart
Dickey
Dingell
Doolittle
Dornan
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Durbin
Ehlers
Ehrlich
English
Ensign
Everett
Ewing
Fawell
Fields (TX)
Flanagan
Foley
Fowler
Fox
Franks (CT)
Franks (NJ)
Frelinghuysen
Frisa
Funderburk
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Geren
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Goodlatte
Goss
Graham
Greene (UT)
Greenwood
Gunderson

Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hancock
Hansen
Hastert
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Hefley
Heineman
Herger
Hilleary
Hobson
Hoekstra
Hoke
Horn
Hostettler
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Inglis
Istook
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (SD)
Jones
Kasich
Kelly
Kildee
Kim
King
Kingston
Klink
Klug
Knollenberg
Kolbe
Largent
Latham
LaTourette
Laughlin
Lazio
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Lightfoot
Livingston
LoBiondo
Longley
Lucas
Luther
Manzullo
Martini
McCarthy
McCollum
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McIntosh
McKeon
Meehan
Metcalf
Meyers
Mica
Miller (FL)
Minge
Molinari
Mollohan
Moorhead
Morella
Murtha
Myers
Myrick
Nethercutt
Neumann
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Orton
Oxley
Packard
Parker
Paxon
Peterson (MN)
Petri
Pickett
Pombo
Pomeroy
Porter
Portman
Pryce
Quillen
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad
Regula
Riggs
Rivers
Roberts
Roemer
Rogers
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Roth
Roukema
Royce
Salmon
Sanford
Saxton
Scarborough
Schaefer
Schiff
Seastrand
Sensenbrenner
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Shuster
Sisisky
Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (WA)
Souder
Spence
Stearns
Stenholm
Stump
Talent
Tate
Tauzin
Taylor (MS)
Thomas
Thornberry
Tiahrt
Torkildsen
Upton
Walker
Wamp
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weller
White
Wicker
Wolf
Young (AK)
Zeliff
Zimmer

NOT VOTING—33

Ackerman
Baker (LA)
Brewster
Bryant (TX)
Flake
Foglietta
Gephardt
Gibbons
Goodling
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Hayes
Houghton
Jacobs
Johnson, Sam
LaFalce
Lincoln
Linder
Martinez
McDade
Obey
Peterson (FL)
Smith (TX)
Solomon
Stark
Stockman
Taylor (NC)
Torricelli
Towns
Vucanovich
Weldon (PA)
Yates
Young (FL)

□ 0035

Mr. BARRETT of Wisconsin changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. BOEHLERT, and Mr. WHITFIELD changed their vote for "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ANDREWS

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ANDREWS], on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIRMAN. This is a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 123, noes 280, not voting 30, as follows:

[Roll No. 290]

AYES—123

Abercrombie
Andrews
Baldacci
Barcia
Barrett (WI)
Becerra
Beilenson
Bentsen
Berman
Bonior
Browder
Brown (CA)
Brown (OH)
Chapman
Clay
Clayton
Clyburn
Coleman
Collins (IL)
Collins (MI)
Conyers
Coyne
Cummings
DeFazio
DeLauro
Dellums
Deutsch
Dicks
Dingell
Dixon
Doggett
Dooley
Doyle
Edwards
Engel
English
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Fazio
Fields (LA)
Filner
Frank (MA)
Frost
Furse
Gejdenson
Gonzalez
Gordon
Green (TX)
Hastings (FL)
Hilliard
Hinchey
Holden
Hoyer
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee (TX)
Jefferson
Johnson, E. B.
Johnston
Kanjorski
Kennedy (MA)
Kennelly
Kildee
Kleczka
LaFalce
Lantos
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lowey
Manton
Markey
Mascara
McDermott
McHale
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek
Menendez
Millender-McDonald
Miller (CA)
Mink
Moakley
Moran
Nadler
Neal
Obey
Olver
Ortiz
Owens
Pallone
Pastor
Payne (NJ)
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Rangel
Richardson
Rivers
Rose
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanders
Schroeder
Schumer
Scott
Serrano
Slaughter
Stupak
Thompson
Thornton
Torres
Traficant
Velazquez
Vento
Visclosky
Waters
Watt (NC)
Waxman
Williams
Wilson
Woolsey
Wynn

NOES—280

Allard
Archer
Armey
Bachus
Baesler
Baker (CA)
Baker (LA)
Ballenger
Barr
Barrett (NE)
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Bateman
Bereuter
Bevill
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bishop
Bliley
Blumenauer
Blute
Boehlert
Boehner
Bonilla
Bono
Borski
Boucher
Brown (FL)
Brownback
Bryant (TN)
Bunn
Bunning
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Canady
Cardin
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Chenoweth
Christensen
Chrysler
Clement
Clinger
Coble
Coburn
Collins (GA)
Combest
Condit
Cooley
Costello
Cox
Cramer
Crane
Crapo
Cremeans
Cubin
Cunningham
Danner
Davis
de la Garza
Deal
DeLay
Diaz-Balart
Dickey
Doolittle
Dornan
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Durbin
Ehlers
Ehrlich
Ensign
Eshoo
Everett
Ewing
Fawell
Fields (TX)
Flanagan
Foley
Forbes
Fowler
Fox
Franks (CT)
Franks (NJ)
Frelinghuysen
Frisa
Funderburk
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Geren
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Goodlatte
Goodling
Goss
Graham
Greene (UT)
Greenwood
Gunderson
Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hamilton
Hancock
Hansen
Harman
Hastert
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Hefley
Hefner
Heineman
Herger
Hilleary
Hobson
Hoekstra
Hoke
Horn
Hostettler
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Inglis
Istook
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (SD)
Johnson, Sam
Jones
Kaptur
Kasich
Kelly
Kennedy (RI)
Kim
King
Kingston
Klink
Klug
Knollenberg
Kolbe
LaHood
Largent
Latham
LaTourette
Laughlin
Lazio
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Lightfoot
Lipinski
Livingston
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Longley
Lucas
Luther
Maloney
Manzullo
Martini
Matsui
McCarthy
McCollum
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McIntosh
McKeon
Metcalf
Meyers
Mica
Miller (FL)
Minge
Molinari
Mollohan
Montgomery
Moorhead
Morella
Murtha
Myers
Myrick
Nethercutt
Neumann
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Oberstar
Orton
Oxley
Packard
Parker
Paxon
Payne (VA)
Petri
Pickett
Pombo
Pomeroy
Porter
Portman
Poshard
Pryce
Quillen
Quinn
Radanovich
Rahall
Ramstad
Reed
Regula
Riggs
Roberts
Roemer
Rogers
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Roth
Roukema
Royce
Salmon
Sanford
Sawyer
Saxton
Scarborough
Schaefer
Schiff
Seastrand
Sensenbrenner
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Shuster
Sisisky
Skaggs
Skeen
Skelton
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (WA)
Souder
Spence
Spratt
Stearns
Stenholm
Studds
Stump
Talent
Tanner
Tate
Tauzin
Taylor (MS)
Tejeda
Thomas
Thornberry
Thurman
Tiahrt
Torkildsen
Upton
Volkmer
Walker
Walsh
Wamp
Ward
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weller
White
Whitfield
Wicker
Wise
Wolf
Young (AK)
Zeliff
Zimmer

NOT VOTING—30

Ackerman
Brewster
Bryant (TX)
Flake
Foglietta
Ford
Gephardt
Gibbons
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Hayes
Houghton
Jacobs
Lincoln
Linder
Martinez
McDade
Peterson (FL)
Smith (TX)
Solomon
Stark
Stockman
Stokes
Taylor (NC)
Torricelli
Towns
Vucanovich
Weldon (PA)
Yates
Young (FL)

□ 0042

MESSRS. DINGELL, DOOLEY of California, and Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. COLLINS OF GEORGIA

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. COLLINS], on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Clerk designated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded

A recorded vote was ordered.

[Roll No. 291]

The CHARIMAN. This is a 5 minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 247, noes 159, not voting 27, as follows:

AYES—247

Abercrombie
Andrews
Bachus
Baesler
Baldacci
Barcia
Barr
Barrett (WI)
Barton
Becerra
Bentsen
Berman
Bevill
Bishop
Blumenauer
Blute
Bonilla
Bonior
Borski
Boucher
Browder
Brown (CA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Brownback
Buyer
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Cardin
Chambliss
Chapman
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clinger
Clyburn
Coble
Coleman
Collins (GA)
Collins (IL)
Collins (MI)
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Cummings
Danner
Davis
de la Garza
Deal
DeFazio
DeLauro
Dellums
Deutsch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Dixon
Doggett
Dooley
Doolittle
Doyle
Dreier
Duncan
Durbin
Edwards
Ehrlich
Engel
English
Ensign
Eshoo
Evans
Everett
Farr
Fattah
Fawell
Fazio
Fields (LA)
Filner
Flanagan
Forbes
Ford
Fox
Franks (CT)
Frelinghuysen
Frisa
Frost
Furse
Gejdenson
Gilman
Gonzalez
Goodlatte
Goodling
Gordon
Green (TX)
Gutknecht
Hamilton
Hastings (FL)
Hefner
Hilliard
Hobson
Hoekstra
Holden
Hostettler
Hoyer
Hutchinson
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee (TX)
Jefferson
Johnson, E. B.
Johnston
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kelly
Kennedy (MA)
Kennedy (RI)
Kennelly
Kildee
King
Kleczka
Klink
LaHood
Lantos
LaTourette
Lazio
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lewis (KY)
Linder
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Longley
Lowey
Lucas
Luther
Maloney
Manton
Manzullo
Markey
Martini
Mascara
Matsui
McCarthy
McDermott
McHale
McKeon
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek
Menendez
Meyers
Millender-McDonald
Miller (CA)
Minge
Moakley
Mollohan
Montgomery
Moorhead
Moran
Murtha
Myers
Nadler
Neal
Ney
Norwood
Oberstar
Obey
Ortiz
Orton
Owens
Pallone
Parker
Pastor
Payne (NJ)
Payne (VA)
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Pombo
Pomeroy
Porter
Poshard
Quillen
Quinn
Rahall
Ramstad
Rangel
Reed
Richardson
Rivers
Roberts
Roemer
Ros-Lehtinen
Rose
Roth
Roukema
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sawyer
Saxton
Schroeder
Schumer
Scott
Serrano
Shuster
Sisisky
Skaggs
Skelton
Slaughter
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Spratt
Stenholm
Stokes
Studds
Stupak
Tanner
Tate
Taylor (MS)
Tejeda
Thomas
Thompson
Thornton
Thurman
Torkildsen
Torres
Traficant
Upton
Velazquez
Vento
Visclosky
Volkmer
Walker
Ward
Waters
Watt (NC)
Watts (OK)
Weller
Williams
Wilson
Wise
Wynn
Young (AK)
Zimmer

NOES—159

Allard
Archer
Armey
Baker (CA)
Baker (LA)
Ballenger
Barrett (NE)
Bartlett
Bass
Bateman
Beilenson
Bereuter
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bliley
Boehlert
Boehner
Bono
Bryant (TN)
Bunn
Bunning
Burr
Burton
Callahan
Canady
Castle
Chabot
Chenoweth
Christensen
Chrysler
Coburn
Combest
Condit
Cooley
Cox
Crane
Crapo
Cremeans
Cubin
Cunningham
DeLay
Dickey
Dornan
Dunn
Ehlers
Ewing
Fields (TX)
Foley
Fowler
Frank (MA)
Franks (NJ)
Funderburk
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Geren
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Goss
Graham
Greene (UT)
Greenwood
Gunderson
Hall (TX)
Hancock
Hansen
Harman
Hastert
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Hefley
Heineman
Herger
Hilleary
Hinchey
Hoke
Horn
Hunter
Hyde
Inglis
Istook
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (SD)
Johnson, Sam
Jones
Kasich
Kim
Kingston
Klug
Knollenberg
Kolbe
LaFalce
Largent
Latham
Laughlin
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lightfoot
Livingston
McCollum
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McIntosh
Metcalf
Mica
Miller (FL)
Mink
Molinari
Morella
Myrick
Nethercutt
Neumann
Nussle
Olver
Oxley
Packard
Paxon
Petri
Pickett
Portman
Pryce
Radanovich
Regula
Riggs
Rogers
Rohrabacher
Royce
Salmon
Sanders
Sanford
Scarborough
Schaefer
Schiff
Seastrand
Sensenbrenner
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Skeen
Smith (WA)
Souder
Spence
Stearns
Stump
Talent
Tauzin
Thornberry
Tiahrt
Walsh
Wamp
Waxman
Weldon (FL)
White
Whitfield
Wicker
Wolf
Woolsey
Zeliff

NOT VOTING—27

Ackerman
Brewster
Bryant (TX)
Flake
Foglietta
Gephardt
Gibbons
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Hayes
Houghton
Jacobs
Lincoln
Martinez
McDade
Peterson (FL)
Smith (TX)
Solomon
Stark
Stockman
Taylor (NC)
Torricelli
Towns
Vucanovich
Weldon (PA)
Yates
Young (FL)

☐ 0050

Mr. PACKARD and Mr. PAXON changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the final lines of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1997".

Mr. TORRES. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 3675, the fiscal year 97 Transportation Appropriations bill and would urge my colleagues to support its passage today.

I do, however, want to register my concerns about the omission from this bill of funding that would enable the NHTSA to conduct an audit of compliance by auto companies with the American Automobile Labeling Act [AALA]. The administration had requested $500,000 for the purpose of verifying the required labeling information. Periodic audits are necessary for us to convince the Japanese that we have the capability to verify their figures submitted under the AALA. These audits are necessary to assure the credibility of the AALA reports.

The AALA was enacted in 1994 as a means to provide consumers with information about the origin of motor vehicles and their parts, information they can take into account in their vehicle purchasing decisions. Thus, consumers who want to "Buy American", can do so. In this way, the Act promotes the jobs of American workers in the automotive industry.

It is my hope that as H.R. 3675 proceeds through the legislative process, there will be an opportunity to provide the funding requested by the Transportation Department and NHTSA for the audits of auto content under the AALA.

Ms. MCKINNEY. Mr. Chairman, I wish to thank the Chairman and the ranking member for their hard work on this bill. This year's funding level demonstrates our continued commitment to America's Transportation networks.

America's productivity and global competitiveness depends on our ability to move products and people in an efficient manner. At the current rate, highway passenger travel is expected to double in only 30 years. To prevent excessive congestion and pollution, we need alternative ways of transporting our people and products. Rail systems are a clean and efficient alternative.

Although this bill reduces funds for Amtrak and the northeast corridor, it increases funding for the next generation high-speed rail programs.

In short, investing in America's passenger rail lines ensures a more efficient, prosperous and environmentally sound future. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. DIXON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 3675, the fiscal year 1997 Transportation Appropriations Bill. Under current fiscal constraints, Chairman FRANK WOLF and ranking member RON COLEMAN should be commended for their efforts to craft a bill which seeks to balance the needs of transit systems, highways, and aviation. I want to extend my thanks to both of them and the subcommittee for their continued support of transportation infrastructure initiatives in my region and throughout California. I also want to extend my best wishes to Representative COLEMAN on the occasion of managing his final Transportation Appropriations bill as a Member of this body.

I rise today to highlight two programs of particular importance to the Los Angeles area. The bill includes funding to continue our partnership with the Federal Government on the metro rail redline subway—an integral component of our efforts to build a comprehensive transportation system. H.R. 3675 also includes essential Federal assistance for the Alameda Corridor Project, which promises to accrue substantial benefits not only to the Los Angeles area, but to the entire Nation.

The Transportation Appropriations bill provides $59 million for direct loans of $400 million over 3 years to be used for the construction of the Alameda Corridor under sections 505 of the Railroad Revitalization Act of 1976. This $2 billion project consolidate over 90 miles of rail with 200 at grade crossings into a single 20-mile grade separated system. The corridor will link the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach with the National Railroad System and widen and improve the truck route paralleling the rail facility to expedite truck traffic.

The Alameda Corridor will mitigate traffic congestion and pollution, enhance the competitiveness of the San Pedro ports, bring jobs to a hard-pressed region, and enhance redevelopment along the corridor. These are important local benefits. But it is essential that Members not from California understand the national significance of the Alameda Corridor Project.

The current value of trade traveling through the San Pedro Bay ports is estimated today at $116 billion annually. Nationally, this trade generates 2.5 million jobs, $14 billion Federal taxes, and over $5 billion in State and local revenues. One need only look at some of the regional figures included in those estimates to understand the significance of the corridor project to the Nation.

The estimated value of Atlantic seaboard region trade traveling through the San Pedro ports totals $14.9 billion; in the Great Lakes region $16.6 billion; in the South East region $5 billion. Jobs related to these trade figures number in the hundreds of thousands, and State and local revenues in the hundreds of millions.

Forecasts of the projected growth of U.S.-Pacific rim trade consistently project a doubling of trade volumes over the next 15–20 years. We cannot take full advantage of this expanded growth by depending on freight traveling at speeds of 5 miles an hour—as it now is apt to do along the Alameda Corridor. This situation will be exacerbated as train traffic along the corridor grows from its current 29 trains per day to an expected 97 trains by the year 2020.

It is seldom that we encounter a project that makes greater sense from a local, State, and national standpoint.

The Transportation Appropriations bill also includes $90 million for further design and construction of segment 3 of the metro rail red line. While this is significantly less than the Federal Transit Administration's recommendation and the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transportation Authority's [MTA] request, we recognize that a number of worthy projects are competing for tight Federal dollars. I am also well aware of the committee's concern about a number of matters associated with metro rail construction. I am gratified by the committee's continued support of the Los Angeles subway and its expectation that, under new leadership, any outstanding problems facing the project will be overcome.

A broad-based bipartisan coalition of elected officials, and business and community leaders support the L.A. MATS's efforts to implement our comprehensive transportation plan. That plan includes combining heavy-rail subway, at grade light-rail, commuter rail, and improved bus service. The People of Los Angeles have levied a one-cent sales tax on themselves to improve transit in our area. This source of revenue, which totals approximately $750 million per year, coupled with State and Federal funds, is partially used to fund the Los Angeles metro rail project—a 23.4 mile, heavy-rail subway, which will act as the spine of our transit network.

Extensions from the metro rail spine include the 22 mile light-rail blue line—from Long Beach to downtown Los Angeles; the blue line extension, north to Pasadena; and the green line which intersects the blue line from the Los Angeles international airport area. These are all locally funded projects built without Federal assistance. In addition, Los Angeles has continued to seek a 50-percent Federal share for construction of the metro rail project, well below the maximum 80 percent allowed by law.

Segment 3 of the metro rail red line MOS-3 will add an additional 11.6 miles to the metro system upon completion. This segment is particularly important to those of us who represent economically and ethnically diverse constituencies. The mid-city segment, East Los Angeles and North Hollywood extensions, will provide services to an ethnically and economically diverse community comprised of African American, Asian, and Latino residents traditionally dependent on public transit.

Residents of these communities have the same, if not greater, transit needs as our more affluent neighborhoods, but lack significant transportation options. Access to metro rail will not merely enhance the daily lives of these residents, it will also enable many to easily travel to other job rich areas of Los Angeles County.

With the Los Angeles area continuing to recover from a stubborn recession, L.A.'s metro rail also provides thousands of needed jobs to residents of the area, with Federal dollars leveraging local and private funding vital to expansion of the local economy. Last year, 15,000 jobs were created through metro rail construction, and the MTA estimates that over 100,000 jobs will be created by the time the metro rail is complete.

The Alameda Corridor and the metro rail system are essential to improving the quality of life in the Los Angeles and to providing economic stimulus and security to the region, as well as the entire Nation. Statistics pointing to dramatic increases in the future population of the State and region, as well as the lessons learned from the transportation upheavals in the aftermath of the 1994 Northridge earthquake, demonstrate that it is essential that we continue to move ahead aggressively on our plans for a comprehensive intermodal transportation network. I commend the committee for acknowledging the importance of the Federal role in achieving that goal and urge support for the bill.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Chairman, I would like to take a few minutes to draw my colleagues attention to funding for Amtrak. We are at a critical stage with regard to our national rail passenger policy as we attempt to transition Amtrak from Federal financial support. However, are we being penny wise and pound foolish?

We are all aware that the budget resolutions for the last 2 years have put Amtrak on a glide path off of operating support. Additionally, after months of hearings and deliberations, the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee brought a bill before the House to reauthorize Amtrak last year, which passed the House by a vote of 406 to 4. The House-passed bill also constructs a gradual phase out of Amtrak's operating support by 2002. Moreover, Amtrak's own business plan also eliminates the need for Federal assistance by 2002. Essentially, we all made an agreement with Amtrak. We told them to do what no other national passenger railroad in the world has been able to do: be free of operating support. This is indeed a major accomplishment and one that Congress should encourage. In return, we offered Amtrak a structured funding phaseout and passage of cost saving legislation.

Yet, from 1995 to 1997, Amtrak's funding levels are $1.2 billion less than what they requested and what they told us was necessary for operating self-sufficiency. In fact, this year the Northeast Corridor Improvement program will receive no funding. The President requested $200 million and in fiscal year 1996 it was appropriated $115 million. Amtrak's capital budget also took a severe hit. It is appropriated $120 million, which is $176.5 million less than the President requested and $110 million less than the fiscal year 1996 level. How can we expect them to operate our national railroad passenger system given these deep cuts?

Congress has deviated from the plan we set forth in the budget resolution and the House-passed reauthorization bill. Without adequate capital funds during this critical transition period, Amtrak will not be able to make the necessary investment to survive once Congress ceases its financial support. Additionally, the Senate has failed to pass their vision of the Amtrak reauthorization bill, thus, Amtrak does not benefit yet from any of the cost savings contained in that bill.

A railroad is a capital intensive enterprise. Since Amtrak came into existence 25 years ago, Congress has never provided it with adequate funding. Consequently, Amtrak has not been able to modernize its locomotives and purchase more reliable and fuel-efficient engines. Many of their maintenance shops are still from the engine era and need to be upgraded. The electric wires that are used on the Northeast Corridor are the same ones the Pennsylvania Railroad first strung in 1933. We will never get them to a legitimate point of self-sufficiency, if we do not give Amtrak the ability to reinvest now.

Mr. Chairman, let us not forget that if Amtrak becomes insolvent, the liability to the Federal Government is going to be a far greater cost to the taxpayer than giving Amtrak the funds they need to successfully transition into self-sufficiency.

I ask my colleagues to weigh carefully what we are doing here and ask ourselves if the end justify the means.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I feel that it is appropriate for me to rise at this time to express my concern about funding for Amtrak. It is my understanding that this bill includes $542 million for fiscal year 1997. This is well below the $922 million assumed for Amtrak in the 1997 Republican budget resolution.

Amtrak is our national passenger railroad. It has been in existence for more than a quarter of a century, built on a commitment by Congress. Amtrak is a cross-country passenger system that services the commuter and travel needs of Americans. This passenger railroad relieves congested highways while reducing pollution. This intercity railroad is a necessary component of a balanced transportation system.

Amtrak will not be able to continue its present level of service under the funding levels in this appropriations bill. The railroad would be forced to discontinue a number of routes and many workers would lose their jobs. Amtrak employs more than 25,000 people. The taxes on the salaries of these workers and on sales of supplies to Amtrak exceed congressional funding. Drastic cuts in Federal funding of Amtrak will result in the decline and the eventual elimination of this railroad system.

Amtrak meets the transportation needs of many small communities that are poorly served by buses and air services. Trains are an important travel option for senior citizens, the disabled, and for persons with medical conditions that prevent them from flying.

Amtrak's goal is to operate an efficient rail passenger system that does not have to depend on Federal dollars, and it has a business plan to accomplish this goal by the year 2002. Until that time, Amtrak needs Government support in order to successfully achieve its goal. By cutting Amtrak's budget in half over the past 2 years, we are putting America in jeopardy of losing its national passenger railroad and the essential services it provides to its citizens.

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 3675, the Transportation Appropriations bill for fiscal year 1997. I would like to commend Chairman FRANK WOLF and his entire subcommittee colleagues for their bipartisan work on this legislation.

I am particularly pleased that the bill funds the Alamenda Corridor project in Southern California. The Alameda Corridor will facilitate the nationwide movement of goods from the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach, which already account for 25 percent of all U.S. waterborne international trade. The bills $59 million appropriation will be used to finance a $400 Federal loan for the project. This Federal component will be leveraged against an additional $1.4 billion in non-Federal funds from the ports, local municipalities and railroad users.

The Alameda Corridor is about the economy, not politics. Members from both sides of the aisle have fought hard for the program in the Democratically-led 103d Congress as well as in the Republican-led 104th. The administration has also made the Corridor a priority by including the project in the President's fiscal year 1997 budget request. The Alamenda Corridor is proof positive that we can make sound policy as long as we work together on a bipartisan basis.

In addition to funding the Corridor, this bill provides much needed Federal support for the L.A. County Metropolitan Transportation Authority. By funding the Metro Rail Red Line, the legislation helps ensure that Southern California residents will soon be able to break free of their cars in favor of dependable mass transit. By financing the Advanced Technology Transit Bus—also known as the "Stealth Bus"—the bill guarantees that defense technology will play an important role in our Nation's developing advanced transportation industry.

Mr. Chairman, investments in transportation are investments in our future. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this bipartisan legislation to do just that.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to H.R. 3675, the Transportation Appropriations Act for fiscal year 1997. As we debate this measure it is particularly important for Members to focus on assuring that Federal policy continues to help address the mounting infrastructure needs and transportation priorities of major cities such as Chicago.

It is the opinion of this Member that the minuscule increases offered by the Gingrich-Armey budget simply do not keep pace with the Nation's transportation needs. And that, Mr. Chairman, is very disheartening.

Furthermore, it is outrageous that this Republican budget rescinds funding for surface transportation demonstration projects at a time when our urban centers are in their greatest need for such projects. In the city of Chicago, for example, at least 237 bridges need substantial rehabilitation and maintenance work; the city's arterial street network is in need of major rehabilitation, and resurfacing and other improvements are desperately needed.

This Republican proposal which is nearly $170 million below the administration's request is flawed. It is asking States and municipalities to do a whole lot more with a whole lot less.

America's major urban centers are maxed-out. Our cities cannot continue bearing the heavy economic burden of attracting residents back to our urban areas without the continued assistance of the Federal Government.

In the Chicago metropolitan area the funding of several important transportation initiatives such as improvements to the Chicago Transit Authority's bus and rail fleet and other street and road repair projects would go far in increasing the economic base of the area. This requires a lot more assistance than what this funding proposal offers. And that Mr. Chairman, is why I urge my colleagues to vote no on H.R. 3675.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, funding America's transportation needs is absolutely essential to the viability of our nation's business and industry. And for the most part, the House 1997 transportation spending bill recognizes this national priority for economic expansion and job creation. While the bill is $50 million below President Clinton's request for 1997, and more than $1 billion below 1995 levels, this bill does represent an increase of about $150 million from current year levels.

Yet despite this significant increase, this bill eliminates funding for one of the most important and successful transportation projects in this country. Amtrak's Northeast Corridor Improvement Project will speed travel between Washington and Boston; alleviate airport and highway congestion and the associated environmental problems; and create jobs.

The Transportation Committee recommended the elimination of Amtrak corridor improvement funds for 1997 because of the belief that Amtrak had a backlog of unspent funds due to unavoidable project slowdowns. Yet these funds will be expended by the end of the year. If this happens, Amtrak will not have money to complete Northeast corridor projects needed to bring high-speed rail to America.

We'll have the opportunity to fix these cuts when the House and the other body meet to work out differences between our respective transportation spending bills. But the cuts in the House bill are harmful to America's workers, harmful to consumers, and harmful to business. Nearly every Member of the House of Representatives, myself included, supported Amtrak's efforts to end Federal operating subsidies for Amtrak by the year 2002. Yet these cuts are $1.2 billion below what Amtrak needs for operating self-sufficiency until the phase-out of subsidies. We cannot expect them to continue to operate a national system given these deep cuts.

Amtrak needs to invest in order to strengthen future business prospects. Creating the high-speed corridor in the Northeast is just one example of how Amtrak can run more like a private business and create jobs and economic growth in this country.

Let's give them what they need to get the job done so that they can operate more like other businesses. Let's not be shortsighted in our obligation to ensure that Americans have the best transportation system in the world.

Ms. McKINNEY. Mr. Chairman, Metropolitan Atlanta is the fastest growing major metropolitan area in the nation. DeKalb County, a major part of metropolitan Atlanta, is the second most populated county in the State of Georgia, with 577,877 residents in 1994 and a projected growth to 719,761 residents by the year 2010. This growth is bound to exacerbate current stress on the county's increasingly insufficient public transportation system.

Regarding the modes of transportation used in DeKalb County, 75 percent of commuters drive alone and only 8 percent use public transportation to reach their work on a daily basis. Moreover, almost half the county's residents work within the county. Clearly these present factors contribute to the daily traffic jams that occur throughout the populated communities of DeKalb County.

While the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority's [MARTA] rail system serves the city of Atlanta, only two lines are dedicated to serve DeKalb County, and the vast number of rail stations exists outside DeKalb County.

For these reasons, I requested $1 million to be included in H.R. 3675 to conduct a study exploring the feasibility of a light-rail line in DeKalb County. This study will examine the impact of the line and its effect on the surrounding communities. Among the institutions and communities that will benefit from the MARTA extension are the Emory community that is home to the university, the Center for Disease Control, several other prominent health institutions, and the residential area of South DeKalb. One excellent possibility would be a rail line connecting the Lindbergh Station on the current North-Northeast-South Line nexus with the East Line at East Lake Station and extending into Southern DeKalb County to DeKalb College South Station. Such a line would be a vital connection between these important areas.

Thus, to ensure the future vitality of Metro Atlanta, we must continue to explore new ways of transporting its residents. I commend the chairman and the ranking member for their work on this bill, and for their efforts to meet the transportation needs of America's fastest growing metropolitan area.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to H.R. 3675, the Transportation appropriations bill for fiscal year 1997. I am particularly concerned about the drastic cuts that are proposed for Amtrak. Under H.R. 3675, the Northeast corridor improvement program would receive no funding for fiscal year 1997. In addition, Amtrak's capital assistance and operating assistance budgets would be cut by a total of $173 million compared to last year. This will have a devastating impact on railroad service in the Northeast corridor and, therefore, on travelers in New England.

It should be clear by now that Congress intends Amtrak to be self-sufficient by fiscal year 2002. Last year, the House of Representatives approved a reauthorization bill for Amtrak which gradually phases out financial support by the year 2002. In addition, the fiscal year 1997 budget resolution places Amtrak on a glidepath toward self-sufficiency. However, with the proposed level of funding for fiscal year 1997, Congress has moved away from the blueprint envisioned in the budget resolution and in last year's reauthorization bill. Amtrak's funding levels from 1995 to 1997 are $1.2 billion less than what they indicated was necessary for operating self-sufficiency.

Railroads are capital intensive operations, and yet Congress has kept Amtrak on a slimfast capital diet for the better part of its 25-year existence. Without adequate capital funds during this critical transition period, Amtrak cannot make the essential investments necessary to survive once Congress has provided its last dollar of operating support. Amtrak will need to modernize its locomotive fleet by purchasing more reliable and fuel-efficient engines. In addition, many of their maintenance shops, which date to the steam era, need to be upgraded, and the electric wires on the Northeast corridor, which are the same ones the Pennsylvania Railroad first strung in 1933, also need to be replaced. If we do not give Amtrak the ability to reinvest now, we will never get them to a legitimate point of self-sufficiency.

We are at a pivotal time with regard to our national passenger rail policy. We have told Amtrak to do what no other national passenger railroad in the world has been able to do—to be free of operating support. This is a major accomplishment and one that Congress should encourage. However, without adequate capital funds now, Amtrak will forever be dependent on Congress to meet its operating needs. Should Amtrak become insolvent, the liability to the Federal Government is going to be a far greater cost to the taxpayer than giving Amtrak the funds needed to successfully transition to self-sufficiency.

Mr. FRANKS of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, today I rise in strong support of H.R. 3675, the Fiscal Year 1997 Transportation Appropriations Act. For the second consecutive year, Chairman WOLF and the House Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee have produced an excellent bill that builds America's infrastructure while helping to balance the Federal budget.

While there are many fine provisions contained in this bill, there is one provision of particular concern to my constituents. The provision to which I am referring is a $1 million appropriation for the West Trenton Line in New Jersey. This appropriation is a major step forward in restoring commuter service on this line.

The West Trenton Line would provide transit service to southern and central Somerset County as well as the northern and western portions of Mercer County. It is expected to provide service to 1,750 commuters a day by 2015. The service would be offered from West Trenton to Bound Brook. The train would then joint the Raritan Valley Line and terminate at Newark. Passengers traveling south could board SEPTA trains to Philadelphia or other points in Pennsylvania. In fact, there are plans to have future coordination with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation to eventually extend the line into Bucks County.

I believe restoring the line makes sense for a number of reasons. First, it would provide cost-effective relief from traffic congestion along Routes 31, 27, 1, 206, and 22. Somerset County's highway system is already overburdened and building new roads or expanding existing ones is a costly and potentially difficult proposition. Additionally, the line would help the state meet its Clean Air Act mandates, and improve the current 1.08 average vehicle occupancy for this area—which is the lowest in the State.

While a large number of residents in this area go to work everyday to Philadelphia, Trenton, Newark, or New York, there is no scheduled public transportation. This was not always the case. The West Trenton Line was established in the 19th century and continued under various owners until 1982. Unfortunately, service was forced to terminate in 1982 because of declining ridership due to old equipment, poor on-time performance, and infrequent service. The line is now used by Conrail as a freight line.

Much has changed since the line stopped carrying passengers 14 years ago. The population has soared, which has resulted in increases of traffic congestion on both State and local roads. The township of Hillsborough alone has experienced a 51-percent increase in population from 1980 to 1990. According to NJ transit, the government entity which would operate this line, a total of 104,000 people now reside in the West Trenton corridor.

This project enjoys the support of many groups, including: the Union County Transportation Advisory Board, the Lower Bucks County Chamber of Commerce, the Somerset County Planning Board, the Greater Princeton Transportation Management Association, the Mercer County Chamber of Commerce, the Somerset County Chamber of Commerce, the Somerset County Environmental Stewardship Council, RideWise of Raritan Valley, the West Trenton Coalition, and the Middlesex County Planning Board. Moreover, I thank Mayor Ken Scherer of Hillsborough, NJ, and Barbara Roos, president of the Somerset County Chamber of Commerce, for coming to Washington to testify before Congress in support of this project. I believe their testimony was crucial in finally getting this project off the ground.

Mr. Chairman, I support this project because of its positive benefits regarding economic cost effectiveness, energy efficiency, congestion mitigation, and safety. I urge my colleagues to vote "aye" on this important bill.

Mr. QUINN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to express my congratulations to Chairman LIVINGSTON, Subcommittee Chairman WOLF, and the entire Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation for the tremendous job they have done on this legislation. I do however, wish to express two concerns that I have in the hope that they may be resolved as this process moves forward.

First, I would like to express my deep concern regarding a provision in the fiscal year 1997 transportation appropriations legislation that will undermine the implementation of an important consumer rights program. As written, this legislation weakens the American Automobile Labeling Act [AALA] which is administered by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration [NHTSA].

The AALA was enacted in 1994 and simply requires new motor vehicles to contain a label providing basic information regarding domestic and foreign content.

The purpose of the act is to give consumers vital information about the origin of motor vehicles and parts and for thousands of consumers. This information plays an important role in their decisions on which automobile to purchase. The act enables consumers who wish to buy American to do so, knowing that the information displayed on automobiles regarding domestic content is accurate and reliable.

This helps to promote American jobs in the assembly of vehicles and in the production of auto parts.

Under this program, suppliers are required to provide information about the origin of the equipment they supply. In order to comply with the labeling provisions, the vehicle maker must know about the origin of each part or item of equipment used during assembly.

The act requires NHTSA to implement the program to ensure compliance, including a procedure to verify the accuracy of labeling information.

To that end, NHTSA has requested $500,000 in funding to conduct audits related to the enforcement of the requirements of the act. Without these audits, this program will not fulfill its important objectives as mandated by Congress.

Unfortunately, the fiscal year 1997 transportation spending bill denies NHTSA's request for resources needed to properly enforce the AALA program. Unless this modest funding request is granted, the intent of the AALA program will be severely weakened at the expense of consumers.

As this legislation moves through the legislative process, I strongly urge Congress to reverse this action and take into account the important goals embodied in the AALA vehicle labeling requirements.

AMTRAK FUNDING

Second, while I realize that Congress is addressing many difficult budget challenges, I would like to express my strong support of Amtrak. I believe that a safe, convenient, and effective National Passenger Rail System is not a luxury, but a basic component of our economy and society. The United States should not become the only major industrial country in the world without this service.

Amtrak plays a vital role in the national economy and it offers a viable alternative to congested highways and air travel.

I rise today to voice my disappointment with the Amtrak funding levels included in this legislation. These funding levels will make it impossible for Amtrak to operate its current system. Funding Amtrak at the levels in this legislation will force Amtrak to discontinue a number of routes and curtail infrastructure investment.

The House authorizing Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, of which I am a member, has passed legislation that will move Amtrak toward privatization on a set schedule, with appropriate funding levels, to give the railroad the best chance to survive as a private entity. I believe deviating from that schedule by appropriating funds lower than what the authorizing schedule calls for would be devastating to Amtrak.

If we allow the funding levels to remain at this level, Amtrak will go from the promise of succeeding in privatization to extinction.

I believe Amtrak deserves a fighting chance at survival and this Congress should continue to fund the National Rail Passenger System until it reaches it's projected privatization date in the year 2002.

Once again, I commend Mr. LIVINGSTON, Mr. WOLF, and the Appropriations Committee on the excellent work they have done with this legislation. I look forward to working with them to make the necessary adjustments to these two small problems to make this great bill even better.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Chairman, I greatly regret the $110 million cut in Amtrak capital funding for fiscal year 1997, from the $230 million level for the current fiscal year.

It is clear that this Congress and this administration want Amtrak to be free of operating assistance by fiscal year 2002.

The budget resolution passed this year for fiscal year 1997 and the one passed last year put Amtrak on a glide path of operating support declining to zero. Our Transportation and Infrastructure Committee brought a bill to the House to reauthorize Amtrak last year, which passed by a vote of 406 to 4. This legislation also constructs a gradual phaseout of Amtrak's operating support by 2002. Amtrak's own business plan also eliminates the need for Federal support by 2002. In other words, with the funding plan in our budget resolution and passage of reform legislation, we have made a pact with Amtrak. We have told them to do what no other national passenger railroad in the world has been able to do: Be free of operating support. This is a major accomplishment and one that Congress should encourage. In exchange, we offered a structured funding phaseout and passage of cost saving legislation.

The fact is that from 1995 to 1997, Amtrak's funding levels are $1.2 billion less than what they requested and what they said was necessary for operating self-sufficiency. We cannot expect them to continue to operate a national system with such deep cuts.

Instead, with this funding level for Amtrak, Congress has moved away from the blueprint envisioned in the budget resolution. Without adequate capital funds during this critical transition period, Amtrak cannot make the essential investments necessary to survive once Congress has provided it with its last dollar of operating support. Also, while the House did pass reauthorization legislation, the Senate has failed to do so. Therefore, Amtrak does not benefit yet from any of the cost savings contained in that bill.

It is clear, and we all agree, that Amtrak should be free of operating support and should have less dependence on Congress for its funding. However, without adequate capital funds now, Amtrak will forever be dependent on Congress to meet its operating deficits.

A railroad is a capital intensive enterprise. It's fair to say that Congress has kept Amtrak on a Slim-Fast capital investment diet for the better part of its 25-year existence. As a result, Amtrak has not been able to modernize its locomotive fleet by purchasing more reliable and fuel-efficient engines. Their maintenance shops date, in many cases, to the steam era and need to be upgraded. The electric wires that are used on the Northeast corridor are the same ones the Pennsylvania Railroad first strung in 1993. If we don't give Amtrak the ability to reinvest now, we will never get them to a legitimate point of self-sufficiency.

This is a pivotal time for a national passenger rail policy. It's like the old saying: "Pay me now or really pay me later." Should Amtrak become insolvent, the liability to the Federal Government is going to be a far greater cost to the taxpayers than giving Amtrak the funds needed to successfully transition to self-sufficiency.

Literally, it will cost more money to put Amtrak out of business than to keep it in business.

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the work of the House Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Subcommittee in crafting a fiscal year 1997 Appropriations Committee Report that includes a directive to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration [NHTSA] to more vigorously promote bicycle safety and training. The subcommittee's report included a specific mention of the important field of human factors research relating to bicycle safety measures. To this end, I wish to draw attention to the ground-breaking research underway at the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh, PA, in collaboration with the Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

As I stated in testimony before the House Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Subcommittee in February, there are over 580,000 bicycle injuries each year in the United States. Of this amount there are approximately 800 fatalities and between 20,000 and 50,000 bicycle injuries serious enough to require hospitalization or rehabilitation. Children between the ages of 5 and 14 are the most common victims of bicycle injury head trauma since they spend a lot of time riding bicycles and often lack on-road bicycle experience. Greater efforts are necessary to insure that children are trained to be safe bicyclists and that the bicycles they ride are appropriate for their ages and abilities.

Safe operation of a bicycle arguably requires more skill, knowledge, physical ability, coordination, and judgment than the operation of a motor vehicle. Taking into consideration the multiple factors necessary for bicycling—motor skills, strength, coordination, vision, hearing, personality, intelligence, neurologic development, experience, and training—more extensive human factors research directed toward answering several key questions is needed: At what stage of development is a child able to perform the necessary tasks and make the proper judgments to safely operate a bicycle? What are the characteristics that differentiate safe from unsafe bicyclists? Can we train children to be safer bicyclists? Should bicycle designs vary depending on the skill and maturation of the child bicycle rider?

As the subcommittee noted in its fiscal year 1997 report, a recent national bicycling and walking study resulted in a recommendation to reduce the number of bicyclists and pedestrians killed or injured by 10 percent. I am pleased to say that the cooperative efforts of Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh and the Carnegie Mellon University will involve the use of state-of-the-art technology and will result in: First, effective prevention programs to reduce traumatic injuries and deaths; second, the introduction of virtual reality as a new means of studying trauma; and, third, the development of new approaches and products for trauma prevention, a national issue, that will provide scientific, intellectual and financial benefits to the Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the effort of Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, in collaboration with Carnegie Mellon University, to pursue in the near future a partnership with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to address the critically important issue of preventing bicycle accidents—especially those involving children. I am pleased that the committee favorably responded to the efforts of Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon University in urging the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to collaborate with institutes that are conducting human factors research relating to bicycle safety. I believe that the pioneering research to be undertaken by Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon responds to the committee's recommendation and will provide significant benefits to the administration's ongoing work in bicycle safety.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to the bill, under the rule the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. PETRI] having assumed the chair, Mr. BEREUTER, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill, (H.R. 3675), making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 460, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Pursuant to clause 7 of rule IV, the yeas and nays are ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 403, nays 2, not voting 29, as follows:

[Roll No. 292]

YEAS—403

Abercrombie
Allard
Andrews
Archer
Armey
Bachus
Baesler
Baker (CA)
Baker (LA)
Baldacci
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Barrett (NE)
Barrett (WI)
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Bateman
Becerra
Bentsen
Bereuter
Berman
Bevill
Bilbray
Bilirakis
Bishop
Bliley
Blumenauer
Boehlert
Boehner
Bonilla
Bonior
Bono
Borski
Boucher
Browder
Brown (CA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Brownback
Bryant (TN)
Bunn
Bunning
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Campbell
Canady
Cardin
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Chapman
Chenoweth
Christensen
Chrysler
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clinger
Clyburn
Coble
Coburn
Coleman
Collins (GA)
Collins (IL)
Collins (MI)
Combest
Condit
Conyers
Cooley
Costello
Cox
Coyne
Cramer
Crane
Crapo
Cremeans
Cubin
Cummings
Cunningham
Danner
Davis
de la Garza
Deal
DeFazio
DeLauro
DeLay
Dellums
Deutsch
Diaz-Balart
Dickey
Dicks
Dingell
Dixon
Doggett
Dooley
Doolittle
Dornan
Doyle
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Durbin
Edwards
Ehlers
Ehrlich
Engel
English
Ensign
Eshoo
Evans
Everett
Ewing
Farr
Fattah
Fawell
Fazio
Fields (LA)
Fields (TX)
Filner
Flanagan
Foley
Forbes
Ford
Fowler
Fox
Frank (MA)
Franks (CT)
Franks (NJ)
Frelinghuysen
Frisa
Frost
Funderburk
Furse
Gallegly
Ganske
Gejdenson
Gekas
Geren
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Gingrich
Gonzalez
Goodlatte
Goodling
Gordon
Goss
Graham
Green (TX)
Greene (UT)
Greenwood
Gunderson
Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hamilton
Hancock
Hansen
Harman
Hastert
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Hefley
Hefner
Heineman
Herger
Hilleary
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hobson
Hoekstra
Hoke
Holden
Horn
Hostettler
Hoyer
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Inglis
Istook
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee (TX)
Jefferson
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (SD)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Johnston
Jones
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kasich
Kelly
Kennedy (MA)
Kennedy (RI)
Kennelly
Kildee
Kim
King
Kingston
Kleczka
Klink
Klug
Knollenberg
Kolbe
LaFalce
LaHood
Lantos
Largent
Latham
LaTourette
Laughlin
Lazio
Leach
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lewis (KY)
Lightfoot
Linder
Lipinski
Livingston
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Longley
Lowey
Lucas
Luther
Maloney
Manton
Manzullo
Markey
Martini
Mascara
Matsui
McCarthy
McCollum
McCrery
McDermott
McHale
McHugh
McInnis
McIntosh
McKeon
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek
Menendez
Metcalf
Meyers
Mica
Millender-McDonald
Miller (CA)
Miller (FL)
Minge
Mink
Moakley
Molinari
Mollohan
Montgomery
Moorhead
Moran
Morella
Murtha
Myers
Myrick
Nadler
Neal
Nethercutt
Neumann
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Oberstar
Obey
Olver
Ortiz
Orton
Owens
Oxley
Packard
Pallone
Parker
Pastor
Paxon
Payne (NJ)
Payne (VA)
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Petri
Pickett
Pombo
Pomeroy
Porter
Portman
Poshard
Pryce
Quillen
Quinn
Radanovich
Rahall
Ramstad
Rangel
Reed
Regula
Richardson
Riggs
Rivers
Roberts
Roemer
Rogers
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Rose
Roth
Roukema
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Rush
Sabo
Salmon
Sanders
Sanford
Sawyer
Saxton
Scarborough
Schaefer
Schiff
Schumer
Scott
Seastrand
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Shuster
Sisisky
Skaggs
Skeen
Skelton
Slaughter
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (WA)
Souder
Spence
Spratt
Stearns
Stenholm
Stokes
Studds
Stump
Stupak
Talent
Tanner
Tate
Tauzin
Taylor (MS)
Tejeda
Thomas
Thompson
Thornberry
Thornton
Thurman
Tiahrt
Torkildsen
Torres
Traficant
Upton
Velazquez
Vento
Visclosky
Volkmer
Walker
Walsh
Wamp
Ward
Watt (NC)
Watts (OK)
Waxman
Weldon (FL)
Weller
White
Whitfield
Wicker
Williams
Wilson
Wise
Wolf
Woolsey
Wynn
Young (AK)
Zeliff
Zimmer

NAYS—2

Beilenson
Schroeder

NOT VOTING—29

Ackerman
Blute
Brewster
Bryant (TX)
Flake
Foglietta
Gephardt
Gibbons
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Hayes
Houghton
Jacobs
Lincoln
Martinez
McDade
Peterson (FL)
Smith (TX)
Solomon
Stark
Stockman
Taylor (NC)
Torricelli
Towns
Vucanovich
Waters
Weldon (PA)
Yates
Young (FL)

□ 0108

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills and a concurrent resolution of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 1880. An act to designate the United States Post Office building located at 102 South McLean, Lincoln, Illinois, as the "Edward Madigan Post Office Building".

H.R. 2704. An act to provide that the United States Post Office building that is to be located at 7436 South Exchange Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, shall be known and designated as the "Charles A. Hayes Post Office Building".

H.R. 3364. An act to designate the Federal building and United States courthouse located at 235 North Washington Avenue in Scranton, Pennsylvania, as the "William J. Nealon Federal Building and United States Courthouse".

H. Con. Res. 192. Concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment of the two Houses.

JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PETRI). Pursuant to clause 5 of rule I, the pending business is the question of agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal of the last day's proceedings.

Pursuant to clause I, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

(Mr. DORNAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and to include extraneous material.)

Mr. DORNAN. Mr. Speaker, my colleague who just spoke from Connecticut is married to one of the best pollsters in this country. When she tells us that our ratings are at an all-time low for this century, I listen. I said: Stan is one of the best pollsters in this country; when you say our ratings are at an all-time low, I listen. It is a compliment. It is a compliment.

Mr. Speaker, in the middle of the afternoon at some point, the majority leader has just approved it, I will rise to a question of personal privilege for 1 hour to discuss the truth over a Member of this Chamber on our side calling me a liar, a bigot, and a hater.

I will set the record straight on one of the key reasons this Chamber is held in such low esteem. I will put into the record an editorial that tells us that the homosexual movement in this country does not want just tolerance; they want total acceptance.

While we are trying to get through no same-sex marriage, how do we give spouse cards and pins to three male boyfriends in their forties and fifties?

I am against giving China most-favored-nation status.

Mr. Speaker, this excellent challenging report is from Lamda Report.

SILENCE-DEFEAT

In this election year, we feel compelled to call attention to an emerging political blunder we hope can still be averted. It is about a political silence that's getting so loud we suspect by the Fall it will be deafening.

What is this resounding silence? The lack of thoughtful criticism within the conservative movement and GOP circles of the "gay rights" agenda. Although homosexual activism continues to rub most Americans the wrong way—and shows no signs of abating—we sense Republicans are running away from the issue faster than Madalyn Murray O'Hair from a revival meeting. There is a good chance the GOP will largely ignore as a campaign issue President Clinton's extensive pro-homosexual record, including his recent endorsement of intrusive legislation that would inject "sexual orientation" into employers' hiring and firing decisions. Even the Christian Coalition, we fear, may not use its influence to make Clinton's pro-homosexual record a major campaign issue in the upcoming election.

Compounding the problem is a skillful homosexual propaganda strategy that labels anyone who opposes "gay" activism an "extremist" or a "bigot." It is no accident that the pro-gay group PFLAG has targeted Christian Coalition founder Pat Robertson with its $625,000 ad campaign linking Christian leaders with heinous violence and suicidal youth (see page 8). And now the Human Rights Campaign, a homosexual lobby, has proclaimed that three GOP presidential contenders—Buchanan, DORNAN, and Gramm—are "HRC-designated extremists". (page 12)

Let's see: Phil Gramm, anti-gay extremist. Can there be any doubt such reckless hyperbole is meant to intimidate critics and stifle debate?

We are hardly shocked that the homosexual lobby would attempt to marginalize its foes, but it is telling that even some "pro-family" leaders would stigmatize those intent on countering "gay" activism, or are at least shying away from this critical issue. Two years ago, Bill Bennett sent an ominous signal when (speaking at a Christian Coalition convention) he chastised conservatives who "obsess" on homosexuality. The much respected Bennett was dead wrong in this case. What he did was the political equivalent of scolding pro-life groups for fixating on the fetus. Yet his putdown spoke volumes about the way Washington insiders, versus everyday Americans, perceive this troubling issue.

We understand why Bennett, like many Washington politicos, would rather downplay homosexual-related matters. Unfortunately, gay activists aren't so accommodating. In fact, they are spending millions to, in effect, normalize the homosexual lifestyle. A decade ago, their call was for tolerance. Now, as Candace Gingrich puts it, "Tolerance is not enough!" Gay leaders—including the Log Cabin Federation of gay Republicans—are uniting begin a massive campaign to legalic homosexual "marriage." In the face of such resources and dedication, and a "cultural elite" eager to promote homosexuality at every turn, it is utter folly for conservatives to ignore the issue. Worse yet are those GPO leaders like Mary Matalin and Jim Pinkerton who are actually championing "gay" causes (p.5).

In politics, the side that is willing to champion its cause confidently is the side with momentum, the side headed for victory. By that standard, gay activists surely have the Big Mo. Misguided as their mission is, at least they believe in it enough to defend it with gusto. In contrast, many on the Right seem to wish the "gay" issue would just go away. It won't. We see a parallel with abortion politics. In recent elections it seemed "pro-choice" candidates were always willing to boast of their position, while "pro-life" politicians often hid theirs or avoided the issue. Silent support is better than nothing, but if GOP leaders fail to engage the issue intelligently now, they will be unprepared when the ultimate "gay rights" battle—"marriage"—beats up.

We sympathize with groups like Christian Coalition for not wanting to appear like they are "bashing" homosexuals, but rather are reacting defensively to homosexual activist demands. Unfortunately, it seems like some important groups are not even playing solid defense—much less doing anything to seriously thwart homosexual activist goals. Witness the pallid response of the pro-family movement to the judiciary's rush to bless homosexual adoptions. And Big Tent or no Big Tent, it certainly didn't bode well when Log Cabin's Rich Tafel praised Ralph Reed's "Contract with the American Family" as a "step in the right direction" (it ignored gay issues).

Truth, is many homosexual activists regard anything against their agenda as "gay bashing." Of course, most religious conservatives are not "bashers"; they merely oppose the promotion of homosexuality—by the state, in schools, or in the culture. To profoundly disagree with an agenda, especially on religious grounds, is not to HATE. So, conservatives: get over your misplaced guilt and face up to this movement that is on the verge of radically altering two pillars of American society: marriage and family.

Bill Clinton is the most—indeed, the only—pro-homosexual president in U.S. history. His most unpopular act among voters was his attempt to allow homosexuals in the military. If Republicans fail to make his pro-gay record a part for the '96 campaign, or carefully avoid discussing the H-word, they will not only miss a political opportunity but they will have helped enshrine the "gay" political agenda—including "marriage"—into U.S. law.

EULOGY FOR THE LATE HONORABLE BILL EMERSON

(Mr. ROBERTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous material.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Speaker, today, in the Cape Girardeau First Presbtyerian Church, in very emotional but appropriate services, the loving family, friends, colleagues, and constituents of Bill Emerson bade farewell and paid tribute to our dear friend and colleague.

Mr. Speaker, just 2 days ago, Member after Member of this body rose in an outpouring of personal tribute to our late colleague; the comments diverse in content but uniform in affection, appreciation, and sense of personal loss. A veteran member of this House observed the tribute to Bill was the most far reaching in terms of both time and members that has been witnessed in recent times.

Mr. Speaker, the American Heritage Dictionary defines "eulogy" as a public speech or tribute extolling the virtues or achievements of a person and honoring one recently deceased. The eulogy for Bill was given by his longtime friend and trusted assistant, Lloyd Smith, and in his remarks, Lloyd provided all of us a life portrait of Bill so fitting to our celebration of his life. In behalf of the Speaker and all of those present, we thank Lloyd for his most fitting, appropriate and comforting tribute.

I commend to my colleagues and to the citizens of his beloved Eighth Congressional District and this country that he served so well, the eulogy in behalf of our friend, the Honorable Bill Emerson, Congressman from the Eighth Congressional District of Missouri.

The eulogy referred to is as follows:

Marie, Jo Ann, Liz, Abby, Tori, Kathryn, Mr Speaker, Colleagues and the many friends of Bill Emerson, both here in this beautiful sanctuary and around the area, today I have the distinct honor and pleasure to share a few words about the life journey of our friend Bill Emerson. This extraordinary journey makes this day a day of celebration.

Even in his passing Bill had the last word. Now, why should that be different? Because in my 15 years of working for him, he always had the last word.

You know, I'm doing this today because Bill dictated it in a memo, and I always did what Bill told me to do—(particularly if it was in writing). Bill's biography is known to most, and although it is well know, in rereading it I found a grievous error. The Committee assignments were correct, both Agriculture and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure—but the first line in the second paragraph reads—"Bill's political career began at the age of 15 when he was appointed a Page in the U.S. House of Representatives." Now folks, that is simply not the fact. Bill's career began on the knee of a sage politician in Jefferson County. Bill's political career and life's journey began when he listened to Associate County Judge Bill (Fritz) Reinemer tell stories about political battles. Mr. Reinemer, Marie's father (and Bill's grandfather), was the strongest political influence in Bill's life. He urged young William (along with Marie's teaching guidance) to read newspapers, 2 or 3 a day, "because you never know which one is distorting the facts."

As a Mayor and county school board member, Grandpa Reinemer taught little Billy to listen to people—to listen to people. So, the beginning of Bill Emerson's political journey was on his Grandpa's knee.

Most people think that his Page experience was his first trip to Washington, DC. It wasn't. He had previously traveled there with his Mom and Margaret Kelly, our State Auditor, and her mom.

He may have caught the national political fever on that trip. Because his next journey to DC was in January 1953, to see Ike (the beloved General) inaugurated as the 34th President of the United States. He traveled by train alone at 15 years of age, and with only one brown suit.

While there Congressman Tom Curtis tracked Bill down and offered him a Page position in the House of Representatives. The problem was the job started in two days and Billy didn't have a blue suit. He bought one and some black shoes and called his Mom and told her the news. Marie had sent her 15-year old son to Washington, DC alone on a train, and now her only child had been appointed a Page in the U.S. House. Marie cried, and old Judge Reinemer went straight to a Republican Township meeting and celebrated and told them Billy wasn't with him because he had gone to help Ike run the country—and even better, the Republicans were in the majority in Congress. The journey continued.

While in Page school, Bill met Paul Kanjorski, who is here today and they were not only roommates and Pages in the Congress, they also served together as Members. Bill and Mr. Kanjorski were there when the Puerto Rican Nationals shot up the House of Representatives from the gallery. They helped carry Members from the chamber. Following this incident, the journey would continue and would lead to graduation from the House Page School, Westminster College, and the University of Baltimore. The next part of his life's journey included working with Congressman Bob Ellsworth of Kansas and Congressman Senator Mac Mathias of Maryland, and many corporate jobs. Along this early way, Bill married and had two wonderful children, Liz and Abby—and then the journey really got exciting for Southeast Missouri.

In 1979 Bill came home a 6th generation Missourian and threw caution and his corporate career to the wind. He ran for and won a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives by defeating a 6-term incumbent (no one could believe it—since the seat had not been held by a republican in years). His journey mates in 1980 were his wife Jo Ann, and his new daughter Tori, as well as Liz and Abby. Jo Ann, a politician in her own right, pounded the streets and campaigned with Bill side-by-side. The journey which had begun at his granddad's knee now had come again to the U.S. House of Representatives, but now Bill was a Member of the institution he loved.

His campaign manager in 1980 was Peter Kinder, now a MO State Senator. His political consultant was Al Sikes—who is with us today.

Bill won with a coalition of conservative democrats and republicans, and he continued to win because he never forgot his grandfather's admonition to listen to the people. With Bill, there were no democrats or republicians—only constituents. (Newspaper editorial—Emercrats)

He said yes to his constituents with expanded services and answering the mail (he loved signing those letters and catching those mistakes).

On numerous occasions he would ask if every "t" had been crossed and every "I" dotted. He personally wanted to make sure the right envelope was with the right letter—even after we started using window envelopes.

Bill was, in the words of our junior U.S. Senator, John Ascroft, "of the people." To quote the old saying he "danced with those what brung him."

His journey of service to the 8th district included touring farms, the National Forest, the clear running Ozark streams, and his beloved Mississippi River all across our 26 country district. Bill would often comment that our Congressional District is 5000 square miles larger than the country of Switzerland. He loved the people and we loved him. His staff, whom he loved and encouraged, is a legacy to Bill. Numerous of the staff and volunteers have gone on to elective offices and stellar careers. Although he trusted his staff, in certain cases when the final decision was made—it was always his decision. As he reminded us many times—"you know I am the Congressman."

The journey included a deep love of family. He could name his first, second and third cousins, and all his aunts, uncles and great aunts and uncles by name. His love and deepest pride was for his daughters. He cherished his time with them and would brag about Tori's grades and softball finesse; Kathryn's soccer success and her outstanding oboe playing abilities. He rejoiced with each new career advancement of Liz and Abby. He loved them all and only regretted he had not spent more time with them. And, that's why today the family should know that the journey included them in a very important way. Marie, Jo Ann, Liz, Abby, Tori, and Kathryn, shared Bill with this District. His accomplishments are their accomplishments as well.

Whether it's new bridge here at Cape, a new Highway 60, providing food for the starving in Somalia or the hungry here at home, or helping the disabled person, you were a part of the journey. You shared with half a million people, the most precious resource—your son's, your husband's and your father's time. You allowed Bill's journey to include all of us and we consider you family—just as he considered us family.

Probably the pinnacle of his Congressional career was chairing the House of Representatives on opening day of the 104th Congress, the institution he loved. A man "of the people," the journey had bridged the Republican 83rd Congress of 1953, and the Republican Congress of 1995. We all rejoiced with him.

There was another part of the life journey of Bill Emerson—the spiritual side. He loved his Lord, and in recent years and months, had been heavily involved in the Thursday Morning Prayer Breakfast and also a small chapel group that met each Tuesday. It seems to me that after chairing the National Prayer Breakfast in 1993, his spiritual journey became his mainstay—whether it was helping those that had substance abuse problems or spreading the gospel to places such as the former Soviet Union—he, indeed, felt "a calling to spiritually reach out to his fellowman." He loved uplifting music and sometimes driving down the highway we would strike up a gospel favorite. An ongoing joke was that we needed to keep the windows rolled up because we could be charged with noise pollution.

One of our favorite scriptures was Isaiah 40:30–31—

"Even youths grow tired and weary, and young men stumble and fall: but those who hope in the Lord will renew their strength. They will soar on wings like eagles; they will run and not grow weary, they will walk and not be faint."

Last Saturday the journey on this earth for Bill ended, but I know, and the family knows, that Bill soared on wings like eagles, and he now runs and is not faint.

In your program is Bill's favorite Theodore Roosevelt quote:

"It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood, who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes short again and again, because there is not effort without error and shortcoming, but who does actually strive to do the deeds, who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat."

Bill's journey into the arena of life touched many of us. One staff member, in a note to Bill on Saturday, wrote "I am honored to have been a part of your team on earth and one day we will be on the same team again."

Today, Bill's journey on this earth will end at the place it began—in the small community of Hillsboro, at his grandfather's side. But his eternal journey has already started, and the hymns he's singing now in glory, exceed his beloved Mormon Tabernacle Choir. To his family and friends he would state the Prince of Wales quote as he sent the troops into battle—"Be strong to endure and resolute to overcome." Another Emerson handwritten note to a departing staff member read: "I'm sorry I missed you, but I'm not good at saying goodbye, and besides it's not goodbye—just altered circumstances."

Thank you Bill Emerson for taking us on this journey with you. Remember, it is not "goodbye—just altered circumstances."

God Bless the family and all of you.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 1462

Mr. POSHARD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my name be removed as a cosponsor of H.R. 1462.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to second the comments made by my dear friend, the gentleman from Kansas, about the services for Bill Emerson.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

DESIGNATION OF THE HONORABLE CONSTANCE A. MORELLA TO ACT AS SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE TO SIGN ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS THROUGH MONDAY, JULY 8, 1996

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC
June 27, 1996.

I hereby designate the Honorable Constance A. Morella to act as Speaker pro tempore to sign enrolled bills and joint resolution through Monday, July 8, 1996.

NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the designation is agreed to.

There was no objection.

HOUR OF MEETING ON TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1996

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns on Monday, July 8, 1996, it adjourn to meet at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 9, 1996, for morning hour debates.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

HOUR OF MEETING ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1996

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns on Tuesday, July 9, 1996, it adjourn to meet at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, July 10, 1996.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

AUTHORIZING THE SPEAKER TO DECLARE A RECESS ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1996, FOR THE PURPOSE OF RECEIVING IN JOINT MEETING HIS EXCELLENCY, BINYAMIN NETANYAHU, PRIME MINISTER OF ISRAEL

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it may be in order at any time on Wednesday, July 10, 1996, for the Speaker to declare a recess, subject to the call of the Chair, for the purpose of receiving in joint meeting his Excellency, Binyamin Netanyahu, Prime Minister of Israel.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1996

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday, July 10, 1996.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

GRANTING MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE PRIVILEGE TO EXTEND AND REVISE REMARKS IN CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that for today all Members be permitted to extend their remarks and to include extraneous material in that section of the RECORD entitled "Extension of Remarks."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

AUTHORIZING SPEAKER AND MINORITY LEADER TO ACCEPT RESIGNATIONS AND MAKE APPOINTMENTS, NOTWITHSTANDING ADJOURNMENT

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding any adjournment of the House until Monday, July 8, 1996, the Speaker and the minority leader be authorized to accept resignations and to make appointments authorized by law or by the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON SMALL BUSINESS HAVE UNTIL WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1996, TO FILE REPORT ON H.R. 3158, PILOT SMALL BUSINESS TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER PROGRAM EXTENSION ACT OF 1996

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Small Business be permitted to file its report on H.R. 3158, the Pilot Small Business Technology Transfer Program Extension Act of 1996, before 4 p.m. on Wednesday, July 3.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

THE GRAY WHALE SHOULD BE PROTECTED, NOT HUNTED

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington [Mr. METCALF] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. METCALF: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to announce that the Makah Tribe's proposal to hunt five gray whales a year in the Pacific Northwest has been put on hold for at least 1 year. It is my hope that it will eventually be put on hold permanently.

Today, the Clinton administration's delegation to the International Whaling Commission meeting in Aberdeen, Scotland withdrew its request for Makah whaling rights, but has indicated it will renew the request at the IWC meeting next year.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly believe that Congress needs to hold public hearings, so we can give the Clinton administration direction on this issue.

Opposition to this proposal cuts across ideological and political lines. Environmentalists, Republicans, Democrats, and even seven Makah elders question the tribe's need to renew whaling.

Yesterday, my distinguished colleague from the other side of the aisle, Mr. MILLER of California, joined with me in introducing a resolution in the Resources Committee opposing the Clinton administration's support for the gray whale hunt. The resolution passed unanimously.

Let me give some background on this issue.

For centuries, the Makah Indians, who live on the Olympic Peninsula, hunted the gray whales that migrated past their villages. Seventy years ago, the hunts were abandoned when the whale population plummeted.

Only 2 years ago, gray whales were removed from the endangered species list, and since that time, a number of native groups in both the United States and Canada have eyed the hunting of the gray whale as a lucrative commercial venture.

Makah tribal leaders say they want to start hunting the gray whale again as a way of reviving their culture. They insist that the whales would be used for ceremonial and subsistence purposes—but they have also reserved the right to commercial whaling in the future.

In fact, seven elders of the Makah Tribe strongly oppose the proposal. They question the need for resuming the hunting of gray whales, and some of them have questioned the motives of the tribal officials making the request, fearing the hunt will become a commercial enterprise.

According to the June 19 edition of the Seattle Post Intelligencer, one gray whale could fetch as much as $1 million in Japan. Norwegian whaling interests have offered the tribe harpoons and a boat.

Another factor is that 13 native groups in Canada have already indicated their intention to resume whaling if the Makah Tribe is given a green light by the IWC. The Makah Tribal leaders say they want to kill only five whales a year, but if they start, how many more would be taken by other native groups? Where would it stop, once it started?

In addition to supporting the Makah request, the U.S. delegation to the IWC also supported a request by Russia to allow whaling of the endangered bowhead whale by a native group. Meanwhile, that same delegation opposed Japan's request for a small-scale whale hunt for scientific research. Mr. Speaker, it is plainly clear the Clinton administration has no real whaling policy.

This lack of a coherent policy is why we definitely need to hold congressional hearings on the Clinton administration's support of renewing commercial whaling under the guise of Native American hunting rights.

As a member of the Fisheries, Wildlife and Oceans Subcommittee and the Subcommittee on Native American and Insular Affairs, I intend to do everything in my power to stop this tragedy before it gets started.

I would like to close by quoting from an editorial which appeared in the June 23 Seattle Times:

> By supporting the Makah bid to the IWC, the U.S. sets up an untenable double standard—Native American whaling is legitimate but Japanese whaling is not. It will get worse; tribes from Washington to the Bering Sea are sharpening their harpoons, waiting for the Makahs to get the go-ahead.

The Seattle Times editorial continues:

> As creatures that routinely migrate the globe, whales demand a coherent and consistent international policy. If the world community approves the Makahs' whale hunt, then Japan deserves the same. But the long, grim history of commercial whaling points to a tougher response: No more harpoons. Whales are for watching.

Mr. Speaker, I have the good fortune occasionally to observe gray whales from my home on Whidbey Island. The Gray Whale should be protected, not hunted.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. HALL of Ohio (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT), for today, on account of personal business.

Mr. YATES (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT), for today, after 8 p.m., on account of personal business.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. POSHARD) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. KAPTUR, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. PALLONE, for 5 minutes, today.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. RIGGS, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. METCALF, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. LARGENT, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. BARR, for 5 minutes, today.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

Mr. THOMAS, from the Committee on House Oversight, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the House of the following titles, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

H.R. 2437. An act to provide for the exchange of certain lands in Gilpin County, Colorado.

H.R. 3525. An act to amend title 18, United States Code, to clarify the Federal jurisdiction over offenses relating to damage to religious property.

□ 0115

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, JULY 8, 1996

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 192, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PETRI). Pursuant to the provisions of House Concurrent Resolution 192 of the 104th Congress, the House stands adjourned until noon on Monday, July 8, 1996.

Thereupon (at 1 o'clock and 16 minutes a.m.), pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution 192, the House adjourned until Monday, July 8, 1996, at 12 noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

3860. A letter from the Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Almonds Grown in California; Order Amending the Order (FV93-981-1) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3861. A letter from the Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Spearmint Oil Produced in the Far West; Order Amending the Order (FV95-985-4) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3862. A letter from the Under Secretary for Food, Nutrition, and Consumer Services, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule—Food Stamp Program: Automated Date Processing Equipment and Services; Reduction in Reporting Requirements (Food and Consumer Service) (RIN: 0584–AB92) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3863. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Notification Procedures for Pesticide Registration Modification (FRL 5372-8) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3864. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Pesticide Worker Protection Standard; Language and Size Requirements to Warning Sign (FRL–5358-7) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3865. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Pesticide Worker Protection Standard; Language and Size Requirement for Warning Sign (FRL–5358-8) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3866. A letter from the Administrator, Farm Service Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Tobacco-Tobacco Loan Program (RIN: 0560–AE41) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3867. A letter from the Acting General Sales Manager and Acting Vice President, Commodity Credit Corporation, Foreign Agricultural Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Commodity Credit Corporation Supplier Credit Guarantee Program (RIN: 0551–AA30) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3868. A letter from the Under Secretary of Defense, transmitting the Department's report on nonmajor acquisition programs, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2220(b); to the Committee on National Security.

3869. A letter from the Under Secretary of Defense, transmitting the Department's report on payment of restructuring costs under defense contracts, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2324 note; to the Committee on National Security.

3870. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Operating-Differential Subsidy for Bulk Cargo Vessels; Maintenance and Repair Subsidy (Maritime Administration) (RIN: 2133–AB27) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on National Security.

3871. A letter from the Deputy Secretary of Defense, transmitting the Department's report entitled "Effect of Closure of Fitzsimons Army Medical Center on Provision of Care to Military Personnel, Retired Military Personnel, and their Dependents," pursuant to Public Law 104–106, section 747(a) (110 Stat. 387); to the Committee on National Security.

3872. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting a copy of Presidential Determination No. 96-35: Determination Under Section 2(b)(2)(D) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as Amended: People's Republic of China; to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

3873. A letter from the Assistant Secretary of Education, transmitting notice of final priority and limitation on use of funds; Elementary School Mathematics and Science Equipment Program for the fund for the improvement of education, pursuant to 20 U.S.C. 1232(f); to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

3874. A letter from the Assistant Secretary, Department of Education, transmitting Final Priority—Postsecondary Education Program for Individuals with Disabilities, pursuant to 20 U.S.C. 1232(f); to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

3875. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Education, transmitting the Department's report on postsecondary education programs for individuals with disabilities, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(B); to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

3876. A letter from the Deputy Executive Director and Chief Operating Officer, Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, transmitting the Corporation's final rule—Reorganization, Renumbering, and Reinvention of Regulations (RIN: 1212–AA75) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

3877. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Energy, transmitting the Department's final rule—Federal Energy Management and Planning Programs; Methodology and Procedures for Life Cycle Cost Analyses [Docket No. EE–RM–95–501] (RIN: 1991–AA80) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3878. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's "Major" final rule—Regulation of Fuels and Fuel Additives: Certification Standards for Deposit Control Gasoline Additives (FRL–5528-5) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3879. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—General Procedures to Opt out of the Reformulated Gasoline Requirements; Removal of Jefferson County, Albany and Buffalo, New York; Twenty-eight Counties in Pennsylvania; and Hancock and Waldo Counties in Maine from the Reformulated Gasoline Program (FRL 5528-6) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3880. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Withdrawal of Final Test Rule for Mesityl Oxide (FRL–5363-2) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3881. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Flutolanil; Pesticide Tolerance (FRL–5369–7) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3882. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Potassium Citrate; Tolerance Exemption (FRL–5381–5) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3883. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Folpet; Revocation of Pesticide Tolerances (FRL–5382–1) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3884. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Pentaerythritol Stearates; Tolerance Exemption (FRL–5381–2) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3885. A letter from the Secretary, Federal Trade Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Rule Concerning Disclosures Regarding Energy Consumption and Water Use of Certain Home Appliances and Other Products Required Under The Energy Policy and Conservation Act (16 CFR Part 305) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3886. A letter from the Administrator, Health Care Financing Administration, transmitting the Administration's report entitled "Evaluation of the Grant Program for Rural Health Care Transition," report to Congress 1996, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 1395ww note; to the Committee on Commerce.

3887. A letter from the Chairman, Securities and Exchange Commission, transmitting the annual report of the Securities Investor Protection Corporation for the year 1995, pursuant to 15 U.S.C. 78ggg(c)(2); to the Committee on Commerce.

3888. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting notification concerning the Department of the Air Force's proposed Letter(s) of Offer and Acceptance [LOA] to Jordan for defense articles and services (Transmittal No. 96–45), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(b); to the Committee on International Relations.

3889. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting a report of enhancement or upgrade of sensitivity of technology or capability for Japan (Transmittal No. E–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(b)(5)(A); to the Committee on International Relations.

3890. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting the Department of the Air Force's proposed lease of defense articles to Jordan (Transmittal No. 14–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2796a(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3891. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting the Department of the Air Force's proposed lease of defense articles to Jordan (Transmittal No. 13–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2796a(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3892. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting the Department of the Air Force's proposed lease of defense articles to Oman (Transmittal No. 21–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2796a(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3893. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting the Department of the Navy's proposed lease of defense articles to Israel (Transmittal No. 22–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2796a(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3894. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting the Department of the Navy's proposed lease of defense articles to Israel (Transmittal No. 23–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2796a(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3895. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting the Department of the Army's proposed lease of defense articles to the United Nations for use in Rwanda (Transmittal No. 20–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2796a(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3896. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Assistance Agency, transmitting notification that the Department of Defense has completed delivery of defense articles, services, and training on the attached list to the Dominican Republic, pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2318(b)(2); to the Committee on International Relations.

3897. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting notification of a proposed issuance of export license agreement for the transfer of defense articles or defense services sold commercially to Belgium (Transmittal No. DTC–34–96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

3898. A letter from the Assistant Legal Adviser for Treaty Affairs, Department of State, transmitting text of agreements in which the American Institute in Taiwan is a party between January 1 and December 31, 1995, pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 3311(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3899. A letter from the Chief Counsel, Office of Foreign Assets Control, Department of the Treasury, transmitting the Department's final rule—Blocked Persons, Specially Designated Nationals, Specially Designated Terrorists, Specially Designated Narcotics Traffickers, and Blocked Vessels (Office of Foreign Assets Control) (31 CFR Chapter V) received June 25, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on International Relations.

3900. A letter from the NARA Regulatory Policy Official, National Archives and Records Administration, transmitting the Archive's final rule—Audiovisual Records Management (RIN: 3095–AA18) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3901. A letter from the Program Management Officer, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Atlantic Tuna Fisheries; Annual Quotas and Effort Controls [Docket No. 960416112–6164–02; I.D. 030896D] received June 29, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3902. A letter from the Deputy Assistant Administrator for Ocean Services and Coastal Zone Management, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Administration's final rule—Coastal Zone Management Program Regulations [Docket No. 960126015–6165–02] (RIN: 0648–AI43) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3903. A letter from the Acting Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, National Marine Fisheries Service, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Service's final rule—Fisheries of the Caribbean, Gulf of Mexico, and South Atlantic [Docket No. 960313071–6169–022; I.D. 050996D] received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3904. A letter from the Administrator, Federal Aviation Administration, transmitting the report on the effectiveness of the Civil Aviation Security Program for the period January through December 1994, pursuant to 49 U.S.C. app. 1356(a); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3905. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Jetstream Model 4101 Airplanes [Docket 96–NM–129–AD] (RIN: 2120–AA64) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3906. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Jetstream Model 4101 Airplanes [Docket No. 95–NM–159–AD] (RIN: 2120–AA64) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3907. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Dornier Model 328–100 Series Airplanes [Docket No. 95–NM–231–AD] (RIN: 2120–AA64) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3908. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Fokker Model F28 mark 0100 and 0070 Series Airplanes [Docket No. 95–NM–224–AD] (RIN: 2120–AA64) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3909. A letter from the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation to redesignate the title of the National Cemetery System and the position of the Director of the National Cemetery System; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

3910. A letter from the Regulatory Policy Officer, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, transmitting the Bureau's final rule—Statement of Procedural Rules (RIN: 1512–AB53) received June 25, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3911. A letter from the Regulatory Policy Officer, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, transmitting the Bureau's final rule—Taxpaid Distilled Spirits Used in Manufacturing Products Unfit for Beverage Use (RIN: 1512–AA20) received June 25, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3912. A letter from the Regulatory Policy Officer, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, transmitting the Bureau's final rule—Extension of the Paso Robles Viticultural Area (93F–026T) (RIN: 1512–AA07) received June 25, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3913. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Treasury, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation to amend section 304 of the Tariff Act of 1930 concerning the country of origin marking of certain imported articles and containers of a NAFTA country, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3914. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training, Department of Labor, transmitting the Department's final rule—Work Incentive (WIN) Programs for AFDC Recipients; Removal of Obsolete Work Program Regulations (RIN: 1205–AB12) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3915. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Regulations Under Section 1502 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; Limitations on Net Operating Loss Carryforwards and Certain Built-in Losses and Credits Following an Ownership Change of a Consolidated Group (RIN: 1545–AU36) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3916. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Consolidated Returns—Limitations on the use of certain losses and deductions (RIN: 1545–AU35) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3917. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Modifications of Debt Instruments (RIN 1545–AR04) received June 25, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3918. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Part III Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous (Revenue Procedure 96–37) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3919. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Regulations Under Section 382 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; Application of Section 382 in Short Taxable Years and With Respect to Controlled Groups (RIN 1545–AU37) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3920. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Extensions of Time to Make Elections (RIN: 1545–AU41) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3921. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Part IV—Items of General Interest—Processing of Returns Filed by Exempt Organizations to be Centralized in the Ogden Service Center (Announcement 96–63, 1996–29 I.R.B.) received June 27, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3922. A letter from the Director, Office of Congressional Affairs, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, transmitting the Commission's fiscal year [FY] 1997 budget request; jointly, to the Committees on Commerce and Appropriations.

3923. A letter from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, transmitting the Department's report on the development of relative value units for the full range of pediatric physicians' services, pursuant to Public Law 103–432, section 124(b)(2) (108 Stat. 4413); jointly, to the Committees on Ways and Means and Commerce.

3924. A letter from the Fiscal Assistant Secretary, Department of the Treasury, transmitting the Department's March 1996 "Treasury Bulletin," pursuant to 26 U.S.C. 9602, 26 U.S.C. 9602(a), 26 U.S.C. 9505, 42 U.S.C. 10222(e)(1), 16 U.S.C. 1606a(c)(1), 31 U.S.C. 331(b), 42 U.S.C. 2297(g), and section 9633(b)(1) of CERCLA; jointly, to the Committees on Ways and Means, Transportation and Infrastructure, Economic and Educational Opportunities, Commerce, Agriculture, and Resources.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. ARCHER: Committee on Ways and Means. H.R. 361. A bill to provide authority to control exports, and for other purposes (Rept. 104–605, Pt. 2). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. CLINGER: Committee on Government Reform and Oversight. Fraud and Abuse in Medicare and Medicaid: Stronger Enforcement and Better Management Could Save Billions (Rept. 104–641). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. SPENCE: Committee on National Security. H.R. 3308. A bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to limit the placement of U.S. forces under United Nations operational or tactical control, and for other purposes (Rept. 104–642, Pt. 1). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska: Committee on Resources. H.R. 2560. A bill to provide for conveyances of certain lands in Alaska to Chickaloon-Moose Creek Native Association, Inc., Ninilchik Native Association, Inc., Seldovia Native Association, Inc., Tyonek Native Corporation, and Knikatnu, Inc. under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act; with an amendment (Rept. 104–643). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. ROBERTS: Committee on Agriculture. H.R. 2670. A bill to provide for the release of the reversionary interest held by the United States in certain property located in the County of Iosco, MI; with an amendment (Rept. 104–644). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. ROBERTS: Committee on Agriculture. H.R. 3387. A bill to designate the Southern Piedmont Conservation Research Center located at 1420 Experimental Station Road in Watkinsville, GA, as the "J. Phil Campbell, Senior Natural Resource Conservation Center" (Rept. 104–645). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. HYDE: Committee on the Judiciary. H.R. 2925. A bill to modify the application of the antitrust laws to health care provider networks that provide health care services; and for other purposes (Rept. 104–646). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. STUMP: Committee on Veterans' Affairs. H.R. 3458. A bill to increase, effective as of December 1, 1996, the rates of compensation for veterans with service-connected disabilities and the rates of dependency and indemnity compensation for the survivors of certain disabled veterans (Rept. 104–647). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. STUMP: Committee on Veterans' Affairs. H.R. 3643. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to extend through December 31, 1998, the period during which the Secretary of Veterans Affairs is authorized to provide priority health care to certain veterans who were exposed to agent orange or who served in the Persian Gulf war and to make such authority permanent in the case of certain veterans exposed to ionizing radiation, and for other purposes; with amendments (Rept. 104–648). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. STUMP: Committee on Veterans' Affairs. H.R. 3673. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to revise and improve certain veterans programs and benefits, to authorize the American Battle Monuments Commission to enter into arrangements for the repair and long-term maintenance of war memorials for which the Commission assumes responsibility, and for other purposes (Rept. 104–649). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. STUMP: Committee on Veterans' Affairs. H.R. 3674. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to clarify the causal relationship required between a veteran's service-connected disability and employment handicap for purposes of determining eligibility for training and rehabilitation assistance, to transfer certain educational assistance entitlements from the Post-Vietnam Era Educational Assistance Program to the Montgomery GI bill, and for other purposes (Rept. 104–650). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. KASICH: Committee on the Budget. H.R. 3734. A bill to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 201(a)(1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1997 (Rept. 104–651). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. BLILEY: Committee on Commerce. H.R. 248. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to provide for the conduct of expanded studies and the establishment of innovative programs with respect to traumatic brain injury, and for other purposes; with an amendment (Rept. 104–652). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. ROBERTS: Committee on Agriculture. H.R. 3665. A bill to transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture the authority to conduct the census of agriculture; with amendments (Rept. 104–653 Pt. 1). Ordered to be printed.

DISCHARGE OF COMMITTEE

Pursuant to clause 5 of rule X The Committee on International Relations discharged from further consideration. H.R. 3308 referred to the Committee on the Whole House on the State of the Union.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 5 of rule X and clause 4 of rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. SPRATT (for himself and Mr. McCOLLUM):

H.R. 3730. A bill to take measures to protect the security of the United States from proliferation and use of weapons of mass destruction; to the Committee on National Security, and in addition to the Committees on International Relations, and the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. CALVERT (for himself, Mr. FAZIO of California, Mr. BONO, Mr. BROWN of California, Mr. LEWIS of California, Mr. BOUCHER, Ms. RIVERS, Mr. HORN, and Mr. RIGGS):

H.R. 3731. A bill to amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 to authorize the transfer to State and local governments of certain surplus property for use for law enforcement or public safety purposes; to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

By Mr. CAMP (for himself, Mr. UPTON, Mr. SMITH of Michigan, Mr. KNOLLENBERG, and Mr. CHRYSLER):

H.R. 3732. A bill to authorize the State of Michigan to implement the demonstration project known as To Strengthen Michigan Families; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Ms. PELOSI (for herself, Mrs. LOWEY, Mrs. MORELLA, Mr. HILLIARD, Mr. BOUCHER, Ms. VELAZQUEZ, Mr. BEREUTER, Mr. HINCHEY, Mrs. KENNELY, Mr. FARR, Mr. SABO, Mr. MCDERMOTT, Mr. LAFALCE, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Ms. WOOLSEY, Mrs. CLAYTON, Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. EVANS, Mr. ROMERO-BARCELO, Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Mr. FROST, Mr. HORN, Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut, Mr. STARK, Mr. OWENS, Mr. DURBIN, Ms. WATERS, Ms. ESHOO, Mr. YATES, Mrs. MALONEY, and Ms. SLAUGHTER):

H.R. 3733. A bill to amend the Legal Services Corporation Act to prescribe an income rule for determining if a client who is a victim of domestic violence is eligible for assistance; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. KASICH:

H.R. 3734. A bill to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 201(a)(1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1997.

By Mr. BEREUTER (for himself, Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN, Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida, Mr. HOUGHTON, Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey, and Mr. HASTINGS of Florida):

H.R. 3735. A bill to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to reauthorize the development fund for Africa under chapter 10 of part I of that act; to the Committee on International Relations.

By Mr. BLILEY (for himself, Mr. HYDE, Mr. COBURN, Mr. SAXTON, Mr. ZIMMER, Mr. KLUG, Mr. BARTON of Texas, Mr. INGLIS of South Carolina, Mr. WHITFIELD, Mr. KNOLLENBERG, Mr. UPTON, Mr. MCHUGH, Mr. COBLE, Mrs. SEASTRAND, Mr. BILBRAY, Mr. WOLF, Mr. HOKE, Mr. PICKETT, Mr. CONDIT, Mrs. MEYERS of Kansas, Mr. STOCKMAN, Mr. BALLENGER, Mr. BURR, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. HORN, Mr. OXLEY, Mr. GALLEGLY, Mr. SMITH of Texas, Mr. LAUGHLIN, Ms. MOLINARI, Mr. METCALF, Mr. STEARNS, Mr. COOLEY, Mr. BUYER, Mr. HAYES, Mr. MCKEON, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mrs. CHENOWETH, Mr. BARR, Mr. DAVIS, Mr. CALVERT, Mr. FRANKS of Connecticut, Mr. RIGGS, Mr. ROYCE, Mrs. MYRICK, Mr. FIELDS of Texas, Mr. SISISKY, Mr. PACKARD, Mr. TANNER, Mr. GOODLATTE, Mr. BAKER of Louisiana, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. BATEMAN, Mr. BILIRAKIS, Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma, Mr. BUNNING of Kentucky, Mr. DREIER, and Mr. HAYWORTH):

H.R. 3736. A bill to amend the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 to terminate the availability of community development block grant amounts for States and localities within such States that allow recovery of damages for injuries suffered in the commission of a felony; to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

By Mr. BRYANT of Tennessee (for himself and Mr. CLEMENT):

H.R. 3737. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the treatment of educational grants by private foundations, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania:

H.R. 3738. A bill to reform the Federal unemployment benefit system; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA:

H.R. 3739. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to provide, without subsidy, for enhanced essential air service to remote insular areas; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. LAZIO of New York (by request):

H.R. 3740. A bill to consolidate the community and economic revitalization and affordable housing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development into two performance funds, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

H.R. 3741. A bill to enhance the effectiveness of enforcement provisions relating to single family and multifamily housing, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and in addition to the Committees on the Judiciary, and Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

H.R. 3742. A bill to increase the flexibility of and to streamline certain single family programs administered by the Federal Housing Administration, to reform the single family claims and property disposition procedures, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

H.R. 3743. A bill to establish a single authority under Title IV of the National Housing Act for rental and cooperative housing with five or more units and for health care facilities through consolidation of multifamily programs, authorization of risk sharing programs with private and public entities, and increased flexibility for FHA to establish program operations; to make changes to the multifamily housing programs designed for the elderly and persons with disabilities; to extend certain provisions of existing law; and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

By Mrs. MALONEY (for herself, Ms. BROWN of Florida, Mrs. CLAYTON, Mr. CLYBURN, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. EVANS, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Mr. FROST, Ms. FURSE, Mr. GUTIERREZ, Mr. HINCHEY, Ms. NORTON, Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. LAFALCE, Ms. MCCARTHY, Ms. MCKINNEY, Mrs. MEEK of Florida, Mrs. MINK of Hawaii, Mr. NADLER, Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey, Mr. OLVER, Miss COLLINS of Michigan, Mrs. SCHROEDER, and Ms. VELAZQUEZ):

H.R. 3744. A bill to require the Attorney General to promulgate regulations relating to gender-related persecution, including female genital mutilation, for use in determining an alien's eligibility for asylum or withholding of deportation; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mrs. MEYERS of Kansas (for herself, Mr. HOEKSTRA, Mr. CHRYSLER, Mr. MANZULLO, Mr. HILLEARY, Mr. BARCIA of Michigan, Mr. HEFLEY, Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland, Mr. COLLINS of Georgia, Mr. OXLEY, Mr. EHLERS, Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina, Mr. BALLENGER, Mr. UPTON, Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania, Mr. COBLE, Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. CALVERT, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. CRAMER, Mr. BARR, Mr. DEAL of Georgia, Mr. LINDER, Mr. EVERETT, Mr. SALMON, Mr. STUMP, Mr. BAKER of Louisiana, Mr. FLANAGAN, and Mr. QUILLEN):

H.R. 3745. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to minimize unfair competition for Federal contracting opportunities between Federal Prison Industries and private firms, especially small business concerns, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts (for himself, Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr. OLVER, Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island, Mr. BARRETT of Wisconsin, Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mr. MASCARA, and Mr. STARK):

H.R. 3746. A bill to amend title IX the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 to make the development of brownfield sites eligible for assistance; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, and in addition to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. RANGEL:

H.R. 3747. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to encourage economic development through the creation of additional empowerment zones and enterprise communities and to encourage the cleanup of contaminated brownfield sites; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mrs. SCHROEDER (for herself and Mr. MARKEY):

H.R. 3748. A bill to amend certain Federal civil rights statutes to prevent the involuntary application of arbitration to claims that arise from unlawful employment discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or disability; and for other purposes; to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, and in addition to the Committee on the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. THOMAS (for himself, Mr. RIGGS, and Mr. HERGER):

H.R. 3749. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 with respect to the treatment of crops destroyed by casualty; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. THORNBERRY:

H.R. 3750. A bill to permit the interstate distribution of State-inspected meat under appropriate circumstances; to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Ms. VELAZQUEZ (for herself, Mr. OWENS, Mr. NADLER, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. HILLIARD, Mr. THOMPSON, Mr. EVANS, and Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida):

H.R. 3751. A bill to establish certain requirements for managed care plans; to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. YOUNG of Alaska:

H.R. 3752. A bill to preserve the sovereignty of the United States over public lands and acquired lands owned by the United States, and to preserve State sovereignty and private property rights in non-Federal lands surrounding those public lands and acquired lands; to the Committee on Resources.

By Mr. GUNDERSON (for himself, Mr. Poshard, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Stenholm, Mr. Bereuter, Mr. Bonilla, Mr. Bunn of Oregon, Mr. Hillard, Mrs. Johnson of Connecticut, Mrs. Lincoln, Mr. Payne of Virginia, Mr. Williams, Mr. Baker of Louisiana, Mr. Barrett of Nebraska, Mr. Boehlert, Mr. Boucher, Mr. Brewster, Mr. Clinger, Mr. Combest, Mr. Condit, Mr. Cooley, Ms. Danner, Mr. Ehlers, Mr. Evans, Mr. Fazio of California, Mr. Hall of Texas, Mr. Johnson of South Dakota, Mr. Klug, Mr. McHugh, Mr. Ney, Mr. Nussle, Mr. Peterson of Minnesota, Mr. Rahall, Mr. Ramstad, Mr. Sanders, Mr. Skelton, Mr. Stupak, Mr. Thornberry, Mr. Walsh, and Mr. Whitfield):

H.R. 3753. A bill to amend the Social Security Act and the Public Health Service with respect to the health of residents of rural areas, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. DIAZ-BALART:

H. Con. Res. 192. Concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment of both Houses; which was considered and agreed to.

By Mr. DeLay (for himself, Mr. Ballenger, Mr. Boehner, Mr. Bliley, Mr. Burr, Mr. Chambliss, Mr. Clinger, Mr. Crapo, Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Ewing, Mr. Hoekstra, Mrs. Kelly, Mr. Knollenberg, Mr. Manzullo, Mr. McIntosh, Mr. Mica, Mrs. Myrick, Mr. Saxton, Mrs. Vucanovich, Mr. Gingrich, Mr. Barton of Texas, Mr. Kingston, Mr. Zeliff, Mr. Royce, Mr. Wicker, Mr. Sam Johnson, Mr. Pombo, Mr. Cox, Ms. Dunn of Washington, Mr. Roth, Mr. Barr, Mr. Hastert, Mr. LaHood, Mr. Packard, Mr. Allard, Mr. Heineman, Mr. Lewis of Kentucky, and Mr. Armey):

H. Con. Res. 193. Concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that the cost of Government spending and regulatory programs should be reduced so that American families will be able to keep more of what they earn; to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

By Mrs. MORELLA:

H. Con. Res. 194. Concurrent resolution establishing a commission to study compensation and other personnel policies and practices in the legislative branch; to the Committee on House Oversight.

By Ms. Roybal-Allard (for herself, Mr. Matsui, Mrs. Myrick, Ms. Woolsey, Mrs. Morella, Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. Lowey, Ms. Lofgren, Mr. Hilliard, Mr. Kildee, Mr. Green of Texas, Mrs. Kennelly, Ms. Brown of Florida, Mr. Frank of Massachusetts, Mr. LaFalce, Mr. Farr, Mr. McDermott, Ms. Slaughter, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Oberstar, Mr. Gonzalez, Mr. Romero-Barcelo, Mr. Olver, Mr. Frazer, Mr. Sanders, Mr. Abercrombie, Mr. Miller of California, Mr. Brown of California, Mr. Hinchey, Mr. Stark, Mr. Owens, Mr. Filner, Ms. Waters, Ms. Velazquez, Mrs. Maloney, and Mr. Gutierrez):

H. Con. Res. 195. Concurrent resolution to express the sense of the Congress that any welfare reform legislation enacted by the Congress should include provisions addressing domestic violence; to the Committee on Ways and Means, and in addition to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida:

H. Res. 468. Resolution relating to a question of the privileges of the House; which was laid on the table.

By Mr. BAKER of California (for himself, Mr. Calvert, and Mr. Lipinski):

H. Res. 469. Resolution to commend the patriotic citizens of Remy, France, who honorably buried Lt. Houston Braly after his heroic attack on a German munitions train on August 2, 1944; to the Committee on International Relations.

By Mr. GOODLING (for himself and Mr. McKeon):

H. Res. 470. Resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that the Department of Education should play a more active role in monitoring and enforcing compliance with the provisions of the Higher Education Act of 1965 related to campus crime; to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

231. By the SPEAKER: Memorial of the Legislature of Guam, relative to Resolution No. 432 (LS) relative to congratulating and commending Julita Cruz-Aviles for being the first Chamorro woman appointed as Associate Director of Policy, Office of the Under Secretary of Defense, U.S. Federal Government; to the Committee on National Security.

232. Also, memorial of the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relative to Senate Resolution No. 138 memorializing Congress to approve legislative authorization states to restrict the amount of solid waste they import from other States; to the Committee on Commerce.

233. Also, memorial of the Legislature of the State of California, relative to Assembly Joint Resolution 58 illegal, undocumented alien prisoners; to the Committee on International Relations.

234. Also, memorial of the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, relative to Assembly Resolution No. 99 requestion the President and Secretary of State of the United States to express disapproval of Norway for its commercial whaling policies and for the raising of its quotas on minke whales; to the Committee on Resources.

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII, sponsors were added to public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 145: Mrs. Chenoweth and Mr. Stockman.

H.R. 163: Mr. Vento.

H.R. 263: Mr. Wilson.

H.R. 324: Mr. McHale.

H.R. 387: Mr. Campbell.

H.R. 491: Mr. Gillmor, Mr. Diaz-Balart, Mr. Spence, and Mr. Weldon of Pennsylvania.

H.R. 777: Mr. LoBiondo.

H.R. 778: Mr. LoBiondo.

H.R. 779: Mr. Ganske.

H.R. 780: Mr. Ganske.

H.R. 820: Mr. Solomon, Mr. Frank of Massachusetts, Mr. Jefferson, and Mr. McNulty.

H.R. 858: Mr. Riggs and Mr. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

H.R. 895: Mr. Stump, Mr. Clinger, Mr. Fazio of California, Mr. Frelinghuysen, Mr. Hostettler, Mr. Weller, Mr. Weldon of Pennsylvania, Mr. Engel, Mr. Boucher, Mr. Sanders, Mrs. Thurman, Mr. Lipinski, Mr. Hoke, Mrs. Fowler, and Mr. Frisa.

H.R. 958: Mr. LoBiondo.

H.R. 1010: Mr. Fazio of California.

H.R. 1073: Mr. Condit and Mr. Sisisky.

H.R. 1074: Mr. Condit and Mr. Sisisky.

H.R. 1078: Mr. McCollum.

H.R. 1127: Mr. Shays.

H.R. 1226: Mr. Bereuter.

H.R. 1496: Mr. McCollum.

H.R. 1552: Mr. Zimmer.

H.R. 1656: Mrs. Schroeder.

H.R. 1950: Mr. Boehlert.

H.R. 2011: Mr. Bishop, Mr. Bonior, and Mr. Condit.

H.R. 2089: Mr. Horn and Mr. Manzullo.

H.R. 2185: Mr. Nadler, Mr. Faleomavaega, Ms. Slaughter, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Davis, and Mr. Greenwood.

H.R. 2209: Mr. LaFalce, Mr. Pete Geren of Texas, Ms. Danner, Mr. Callahan, Mr. Ford, Mr. Berman, Mr. Jacobs, Mr. McNulty, and Mr. Hastings of Florida.

H.R. 2244: Mr. Herger.

H.R. 2247: Mrs. Johnson of Connecticut, Mr. Kleczka, and Mr. Sawyer.

H.R. 2270: Mrs. Kelly and Mr. Metcalf.

H.R. 2470: Mr. Lewis of Kentucky.

H.R. 2591: Mr. Bishop.

H.R. 2618: Mr. Dixon.

H.R. 2683: Mr. Skeen.

H.R. 2697: Mr. Cummings, Mr. Martinez, Mr. Manton, Ms. DeLauro, and Mrs. Morella.

H.R. 2740: Mr. Calvert.

H.R. 2748: Ms. McKinney, Mrs. Schroeder, Ms. Norton, Mrs. Kennelly, Mrs. Thurman, Mr. Levin, Ms. Eddie Bernice Johnson of Texas, Mr. Pallone, Ms. Velazquez, and Mr. Jefferson.

H.R. 2757: Mr. Spence, Mr. Wise, and Mr. Norwood.

H.R. 2849: Mr. Boehlert, Ms. Slaughter, and Mr. Serrano.

H.R. 2875: Mr. LoBiondo.

H.R. 2900: Mr. Nethercutt and Mr. Ehrlich.

H.R. 2911: Mr. Weldon of Pennsylvania.

H.R. 2925: Mrs. Lincoln.

H.R. 2951: Mr. Gutierrez and Mr. Yates.

H.R. 2976: Ms. Brown of Florida, Mr. Hefley, and Mr. Richardson.

H.R. 2984: Mr. Bartlett of Maryland.

H.R. 2985: Mr. Ewing, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Ney, Mr. English of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Weller.

H.R. 3012: Mr. Campbell, Mr. Boucher, Mr. Baker of California, Mr. Bliley, Mr. Baldacci, Mr. Metcalf, Mrs. Seastrand, Mr. Quillen, Mr. Foglietta, Mr. Stark, and Mr. Meehan.

H.R. 3077: Mr. Weldon of Pennsylvania, Mr. Hobson, and Mr. Moran.

H.R. 3083: Mr. Dornan, Mr. Cox, Mr. Radanovich, Mr. Royce, and Mr. Pombo.

H.R. 3114: Mr. GREENWOOD and Mr. SAWYER.

H.R. 3142: Mr. BARR.

H.R. 3173: Ms. NORTON, Mr. FAWELL, Mr. TORKILDSEN, and Mr. MEEHAN.

H.R. 3187: Mr. COSTELLO, Mr. DELLUMS, Mr. LAFALCE, and Mr. MCHUGH.

H.R. 3195: Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. KLUG, Mr. WILSON, Mr. DICKEY, and Mr. CAMPBELL.

H.R. 3199: Mr. THOMSPON, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Mr. PARKER, Ms. NORTON, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. MONTGOMERY, and Mr. LAHOOD.

H.R. 3211: Mr. DELAY, Mr. BEREUTER, and Mr. HOKE.

H.R. 3245: Ms. NORTON.

H.R. 3260: Mr. BARTON of Texas, Mr. DICKEY, and Mr. HAYES.

H.R. 3263: Mr. FOLEY.

H.R. 3292: Ms. PELOSI.

H.R. 3307: Mr. HEINEMAN, Mr. BUYER, and Mr. GALLEGLY.

H.R. 3337: Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut and Mr. BARRETT of Wisconsin.

H.R. 3338: Mr. STENHOLM and Mr. GILLMOR.

H.R. 3374: Mr. STARK.

H.R. 3395: Mr. GREEN of Texas.

H.R. 3396: Mr. PAXON.

H.R. 3449: Mr. BRYANT of Texas.

H.R. 3452: Mr. PETERSON of Minnesota.

H.R. 3486: Mr. HANSEN.

H.R. 3496: Mr. JEFFERSON, Mrs. MORELLA, Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Ms. FURSE, Mr. BAKER of Louisiana, and Ms. WOOLSEY.

H.R. 3505: Mrs. MALONEY.

H.R. 3520: Mr. GORDON and Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD.

H.R. 3566: Mr. STUPAK.

H.R. 3568: Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania, Mr. BORSKI, Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania, Mr. GOODLING, Mr. KLINK, Mr. KANJORSKI, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. MASCARA, Mr. MCHALE, Mr. MURTHA, and Mr. GREENWOOD.

H.R. 3580: Mr. SPENCE, Mr. HAYWORTH, and Mr. HASTINGS of Washington.

H.R. 3622: Mr. ROHRABACHER, Mr. WHITE, and Mr. PAXON.

H.R. 3645: Ms. NORTON, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania, Mrs. CLAYTON, Mr. EHLERS, and Mr. KILDEE.

H.R. 3654: Mr. YOUNG of Alaska, Mr. GEPHARDT, MR. EVERETT, and Ms. DELAURO.

H.R. 3665: Mr. FARR.

H.R. 3688: Mr. LIPINSKI.

H.R. 3715: Mrs. MEYERS of Kansas, Mrs. MINK of Hawaii, Mrs. MALONEY, Ms. NORTON, and Mr. GUTIERREZ.

H.R. 3725: Mr. HAMILTON, Mr. DELLUMS, and Ms. MCKINNEY.

H.R. 3727: Mr. FIELDS of Louisiana, Mr. ROYCE, Mr. BLUTE, and Mr. VENTO.

H. Con. Res. 10: Mr. KILDEE.

H. Con. Res. 135: Mr. SAXTON, Mr. YATES, Mr. HORN, and Mr. MORAN.

H. Con. Res. 179: Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA, Mr. FUNDERBURK, Mr. DORNAN, and Ms. LOFGREN.

H. Con. Res. 184: Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA, Ms. NORTON, Mr. EVANS, and Mr. ENGEL.

H. Con. Res. 190: Mr. FROST, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. ZIMMER, and Mr. ROHRABACHER.

H. Res. 452: Mr. PACKARD.

H. Res. 461: Mr. BOEHNER, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. ROYCE, and Mr. SPENCE.

DELETIONS OF SPONSORS FROM PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII sponsors were deleted from public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 1462: Mr. POSHARD.

H.R. 1972: Mr. LUTHER.

DISCHARGE PETITIONS

Under clause 3, of rule XXVII the following discharge petitions were filed:

Petition 13, June 25, 1996, by Mr. CONDIT on House Resolution 443, was signed by the following Members: Gary A. Condit, James A. Hayes, Wes Cooley, Norman Sisisky, Bill Baker, Calvin M. Dooley, Charles W. Stenholm, Collin C. Peterson, Doug Bereuter, George P. Radanovich, Howard P. "Buck" McKeon, Pat Roberts, Vic Fazio, Bill K. Brewster, Saxby Chambliss, John T. Doolittle, Charlie Rose, Frank Riggs, David L. Hobson, Andrea H. Seastrand, Bob Stump, Terry Everett, Scott McInnis, Bill Orton, Glenn Poschard, Pete Geren, Helen Chenoweth, Jim Lightfoot, Ken Calvert, Karen L. Thurman, Bob Barr, Mel Hancock, Nick Smith, Sanford D. Bishop, Jr., and Ike Shelton.

Petition 14, June 27, 1996, by Mr. TANNER on House Resolution 425, was signed by the following Members: John S. Tanner, Bill Orton, and L.F. Payne.

DISCHARGE PETITIONS—ADDITIONS OR DELETIONS

The following Members added their names to the following discharge petitions:

Petition 12 by Mrs. SMITH of Washington on House Resolution 373: Rick White.

AMENDMENTS

Under clause 6 of rule XXIII, proposed amendments were submitted as follows:

H.R. .

(Labor, HHS, and Education Appropriations, 1997)

OFFERED BY: MR. ISTOOK

AMENDMENT NO. 1: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. . None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be made available to any entity under title X of the Public Health Service Act, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that—

(1) any portion of such funds is knowingly being used by such entity to provide services after March 31, 1997, to a minor, other than a minor who—

(A) is emancipated under applicable State law;

(B) has the written consent of a custodial parent or legal guardian to receive such services; or

(C) has an order of a court of competent jurisdiction to receive such services, based on—

(i) the court's assumption of custody over the minor; or

(ii) actions of a custodial parent or legal guardian that present a continuing threat to the health and safety of the minor and preclude the obtaining of consent under subparagraph (B); and

(2) The State in which such services are provided has not, after the date of the enactment of this section, enacted a statute that excludes the minor seeking a title X service from the parental consent requirements as to that particular service.

H.R. .

OFFERED BY MR. CAMPBELL OF CALIFORNIA

(Legislative Branch, Appropriations, 1997)

AMENDMENT NO. Before the short title at the end of the bill, add the following new section:

SEC. . (a) In addition to any other estimates it may prepare of any proposed change in Federal revenue law, a fiscal estimate shall be prepared by the Joint committee on Taxation of each such proposed change on the basis of assumptions that estimate the probable behavioral responses of personal and business taxpayers and other relevant entities to that proposed change and the dynamic macroeconomic feedback effects of that proposed change, and it shall include a statement identifying those assumptions. The preceding sentence shall apply only to a proposed change that the Joint committee on Taxation determines, pursuant to a static fiscal estimate, has a fiscal impact in excess of $100,000,000 in any fiscal year.

(b) In addition to any other estimates it may prepare of any proposed change in Federal revenue or spending law, a fiscal estimate shall be prepared by the Congressional Budget Office of each such proposed change on the basis of assumptions that estimate the probable behavioral responses of personal and business taxpayers and other relevant entities to that proposed change and the dynamic macroeconomic feedback effects of that proposed change, and it shall include a statement identifying those assumptions. The preceding sentence shall apply only to a proposed change that the Congressional Budget Office determines, pursuant to a static fiscal estimate, has a fiscal impact in excess of $100,000,000 in any fiscal year.

(c) Any report to Congress or the public made by the Joint Committee on Taxation or the Congressional Budget Office that contains an estimate made under this concurrent resolution of the effect that any legislation will have on revenues or spending shall rely upon Congressional Budget Office data and shall be accompanied by a written statement fully disclosing the economic, technical, and behavioral assumptions that were made in producing that estimate.

(d) In performing the tasks specified in subsections (a) and (b), the Joint Committee on Taxation and the Congressional Budget Office may, subject to the availability of appropriations, enter into contracts with universities or other private or public organizations to perform such estimations or to develop protocols and model for making such estimates.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

THOUGHTS ON MOTHERHOOD

HON. HENRY J. HYDE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, last Mother's Day, Terry Gnezda Peckham, the wife of Gardner Peckham, an assistant in the Speaker's office, wrote a beautiful and profound paper entitled "Thoughts on Motherhood."

Her statement is pure literature and I urge my colleagues to take the time to read it carefully. They will be enriched.

THOUGHTS ON MOTHERHOOD—MOTHERS' DAY 1996

(By Terry Gnezda Peckham)

When Father DeSilva asked me to speak today about motherhood, I was very honored to have the chance to share some of my feelings and experiences with you. I'm sure that I am not alone when I think of motherhood as probably the most treasured experience I will ever have. I'm also sure that all of you can remember, as I do, special moments when you have been overcome by the intensity and the beauty of the love you share with your children.

I can vividly remember a beautiful early Summer afternoon two years ago when my daughters were playing in our backyard. School had just ended and the girls seemed so carefree and happy. As I looked out the window that day at my two precious daughters, I thought, life is great! I felt so happy and proud that my husband and I could have given our daughters such a wonderful start in life. They had a nice house in a nice neighborhood, two healthy parents, and a safe, loving, and secure family. On that afternoon I felt so lucky and so overwhelmed with love for my girls, that all the ups and downs of motherhood were replaced with a sense of deep satisfaction and peace. I remember thinking that that was going to be an especially wonderful Summer for us.

Three weeks later, everything had changed when I found myself in the hospital confronting the fact that I was seriously ill. My doctors outlined a plan for several months of horrible and debilitating treatment that would end with extremely serious surgery.

I was terrified—terrified of the treatment, and terrified of what could happen to me if things didn't go as the doctors had planned. I didn't know how I would find the strength to get through it. But, no matter how uncertain my future was at that point, I knew I had to fight this illness—mostly because of my two girls; they were only 4 and 7 at the time, and we still had so much to share.

So, with support from my husband, my family and friends, and with God's help, I was able to find the strength I needed to get through my ordeal.

And, thankfully, things went as my doctors had planned, and I'm here—and I expect to be here for a long, long, time. But this experience, as awful as it was, has led me to a deeper understanding of many things, one of which is motherhood. It has also led me to an unquestionable respect for the power of God's love that flows between mothers and their children.

Ever since I was a little girl I wanted to be a mother. I used to love to go to Church on Sunday morning and watch all the young mothers with their babies. Sometimes I'd even take one of my dolls with me so that I could pretend that I, too, was a young mother. I couldn't imagine anything more wonderful than to have a house full of children. I dreamed about how much fun it would be to watch them all grow, sharing their interests and their dreams and bringing so much love and excitement to life.

I think I played with dolls longer than any of my friends, and I grew up in great anticipation of having children of my own.

Well, motherhood has turned out to be much, much more than I could have ever dreamed. I love being a mother and think it's just about the greatest gift that God has ever given me.

It's awfully hard to put into words what motherhood is really all about. Sometimes it seems too demanding, too tiring, and too overwhelming to cope with, and other times it is incredibly rewarding, very inspiring, and deeply satisfying. Motherhood pushes us to our limits, physically, emotionally, and often intellectually, as we and our children experience life together.

Through motherhood, we face every possible emotion with an intensity that is unparalleled in other aspects of life. When our children are happy, we are overjoyed, and when they're sad we ache inside, often because we feel powerless to take away the pain. This intensity of feeling brings such pride (the kind that makes you well-up inside with tears), it keeps us focused on our responsibilities, and leads us to so much uncertainty (and sometimes guilt) as we wonder if we're doing the right thing as we bring-up our children.

For—here is this person who needs parents for everything—for protection, for love, and for guidance—guidance to learn about the world, to learn about other people, to learn how to behave, and to learn about himself or herself.

And here we are, with our husbands, responsible for teaching this person all the things that we think are most important to provide a sound foundation to guide our child's life.

One of the most remarkable things that happens as a result of motherhood is that we learn a great deal about ourselves. It is through motherhood that we come closer to an understanding of who we are, and therefore, what God has given us to share with our children. In fact, I think motherhood brings us into the most intimate relationships that we will ever have with other human beings. And at the heart of this intimacy is honesty and love.

It's not hard to be honest with our children about what we think, feel, or believe, because most of the time it seems that they can see right through us, or at least they sense when something doesn't seem right. And it's a remarkable thing to be honest with our children about who we are, because it gives us the freedom to enjoy life with them in a wonderful way.

With our children, together, we realize that it's O.K. to be spontaneous or silly sometimes. It's good to have fun and laugh. It's also very important to cuddle and hug the people we love, and to trust that there is someone who accepts us as we are, loves us without question, and is always there.

But children must also learn that sometimes it's important to be serious, it's normal to be mad or sad, or disappointed, and fear and unhappiness are part of life, too.

And as we teach our children all of these realities of life, we must also show them the value of having a deep and enduring faith in God. For it is through God's love and his presence in all of us that we are able to celebrate our joys and endure our pain. With this knowledge, children can trust that they are never alone and that God will help them get through anything that life brings.

Together, the intimate relationships with parents, and an enduring faith in God help children to grow into people who accept themselves and others, and feel compassion toward all humanity.

So, motherhood is a monumental responsibility, but it is full of love, joy, and countless rewards. In fact, it is God's most important work.

And, even though I still dread making brown bag lunches for school every day, dislike the struggle over homework every night, and tire of reminding my girls to brush their teeth before they go to bed, I wouldn't trade those moments for anything, because they're part of it all.

And it's when they play together for hours on end singing so happily, or read to each other, cuddling closely on the sofa, or when they marvel at the shapes of the clouds or the colors of the sky—or even when they sit up in the middle of the night, fold their hands and pray that they won't have anymore nightmares—that's when motherhood really feels worthwhile. Or, when we get all those hugs that come out nowhere, or when they look up at us with such trust and love, or when they want to share every last detail of their day, that's also when motherhood feels worthwhile.

My girls are still in primary and elementary school, so I know we've got a long way to go together, but I have faith that the love we have for each other will get us through whatever the future brings, and I know that God will be there to help us.

And so, even though my girls are a little older now, I often wonder if when they were babies and I took them to Church on Sunday mornings, if maybe, just maybe, there was a little girl who dreamed, as I had so many years ago, about how wonderful it will be to be a mommy. To that little girl and all the other little girls here today, I hope you will keep dreaming, and that someday you, too, will be blessed with the gift of motherhood.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

SUPPORT FOR SCHOLARSHIPS THROUGH PRIVATE FOUNDATIONS

HON. ED BRYANT

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. BRYANT of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, today Mr. CLEMENT and I introduced a bill to help private foundations with educational scholarship programs. We should be encouraging greater partnerships between private groups, local communities, and aspiring students, but current IRS rules sometimes skew the roads to that goal.

Under current law, a private foundation formed primarily to provide scholarships or educational loans to employees of a particular company must meet a number of criteria to avoid severe Federal tax penalties. Those criteria are designed to assure that such foundations were not set up as tax shelters or to provide nonmonetary compensation or benefits to employees. I agree with the good intentions of the current law, however, one of the requirements stifles the ability of private foundations to design scholarships for particular purposes. I am referring to the "25-percent test."

Under current law, a private foundation—usually established and funded by a single individual or employer—can offer scholarships to only 25 percent of students who apply. That means three out of four applicants must be turned down, not because of lack of merit or lack of funds, but to satisfy Federal rules.

My bill would remove that requirement from Federal law, but keep in place the seven guidelines the IRS has drawn up to meet the law's "objective and nondiscriminatory" standard. That way, private foundations could design more focused programs without weakening the safeguards against using such organizations for tax benefits or as hidden compensation. It also removes current law's discrimination against small communities with a single large employer.

Our laws should not discourage support for higher education. Foundations, reflecting the demonstrated generosity of their financial supporters, should not be told by the Federal Government that they have to deny three out of four of the students who may need their help. Rather, the door should be open for expanding the opportunities available to individuals.

TRIBUTE TO BOB LEE

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize a great community leader in my home State of Colorado, Mr. Bob Lee. Although Bob recently retired from Daniels and Associates, he remains active in and continues to be sought out for advice and guidance by everyone from his neighbors, to Presidents of the United States.

He is a dedicated conservative and has been an active member of the Republican Party. He was first elected Denver County Republican chairman in 1958, and was instrumental in implementing a statewide plan to build a solid organization.

Word of Bob's skills and his conservative convictions traveled rapidly around the country. While he never intended to give up his real state career in Denver, he was called upon to advise and direct numerous campaigns. At the request of Richard Nixon, he agreed to run a successful legislative campaign in New Jersey, resulting in the Republicans controlling both Houses there for the first time in 25 years.

Mr. Speaker, Bob Lee and his wife Bee recently celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary, and I know you will join me in congratulating them on their wonderful marriage. Together they have three children, five grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. They are respected in their community, which they have given so much back to.

AMERICAN LAND SOVEREIGNTY PROTECTION ACT OF 1996

HON. DON YOUNG

OF ALASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce legislation which will require the specific approval of Congress before any area within the United States is subject to an international land use nomination, classification, or designation. International land use designations such as World Heritage Sites, Biosphere Reserves and some other international land use designations can affect the use and market value of non-Federal lands adjacent to or intermixed with Federal lands. Legislation is needed to require the specific approval of Congress before any area within the United States is made subject to an international land use restriction. The rights of non-Federal landowners need to be protected if these international reserves are created.

This legislation asserts the power of Congress under article IV, section 3 of the U.S. Constitution over management and use of lands belonging to the United States; protects State sovereignty from diminishment as a result of Federal actions creating lands with international designations; ensures that no U.S. citizen suffers any diminishment or loss of individual rights as a result of Federal actions creating lands with international designations; protects private interests in real property from diminishment as a result of Federal actions creating lands with international designations; and provides a process under which the United States may when desirable designate lands for inclusion under certain international agreements.

Many Americans may be surprised by the expanse of our Nation's territory which is subject to various special international restrictions, most of which have evolved over the last 25 years. The most extensive international land use designations are UNESCO Biosphere Reserve Programs and World Heritage Sites. These international land designations have largely been created with minimal, if any, congressional input or oversight or public input. They are usually promoted as a type honorary title which will provide additional publicity resulting in increased tourist visits and a corresponding increase in economic benefits. Promoters at UNESCO Biosphere Reserves and World Heritage Sites say these programs are voluntary and nonbinding.

However, in becoming a party to agreements underlying international land use designations, the host government explicitly promises to undertake certain actions to protect these areas and limit or prohibit certain land uses. Honoring one of these agreements could force the Federal Government to choose between regulating surrounding non-Federal land uses to conform to the designated international use of breaking a pledge to other nations.

Federal regulatory actions could prohibit certain uses of non-Federal lands outside the boundary of the international designation, thereby causing a significant negative impact on the value of non-Federal property and on the local and regional economy. This legislation would compel the Congress to consider the implications of an international designation and protect non-Federal lands before the designation is made.

FDA APPROPRIATIONS

HON. JOE BARTON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I again note that the Appropriations Committee is recommending increased funding for the Food and Drug Administration. As chairman of the Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee of the Committee on Commerce, I commend the Committee on Appropriations for its strong support of the Food and Drug Administration, which plays an important role in protecting public health. In addition, I commend my colleagues on the Committee on Appropriations for their oversight activities regarding the Food and Drug Administration.

The Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations has worked diligently in this Congress to identify shortcomings in FDA's performance of its important duties and work with the agency to correct those shortcomings. No problem in agency performance is as vexing as the systematic failure of FDA to meet its statutory duties to timely review various applications and petitions about food, drugs, and medical devices. Indeed, not only does the agency fail to meet its statutory duty for timely reviews, the agency refuses to acknowledge it. In testimony before the Committee on Appropriations, as well as the Committee on Commerce, Commissioner Kessler has boasted of meeting the goals of the Prescription Drug User Fee Act, alluding to objectives he identified and included in letters sent to Congress that were then made part of the legislative history of the Prescription Drug User Fee Act. However, Commissioner Kessler's testimony has consistently ignored the plain language of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act specifying review periods. Given Commissioner Kessler's legal training, one would expect that his testimony might be more mindful of the plain language of FDA's authorizing statute.

Timely review of applications and petitions is a matter of very real consequence. Witnesses who have come before the Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee have repeatedly told heart-wrenching stories of their inability to obtain in the United States safe and effective treatments that are available elsewhere. These patients, often fighting life-threatening diseases, are the very personal side of the grim statistics regarding the adverse effect on public health caused by excessive delay in approval of safe and effective drugs and medical devices. There are also economic consequences. Hearing records explain clearly that as approval of medical devices is excessively delayed in the United States, the developers of those devices, principally U.S. firms, are forced by economic realities to begin manufacture of those devices overseas where more timely approvals have been obtained. It is dark humor that a joke told at an international medical device conference observed that if a medical device is approved in the United States, it must be obsolete. These delays not only deny American patients the most safe and effective therapies, but also result in the loss of U.S. jobs.

Regrettably, these are not small shortcomings. I urge my colleagues to review a table that lists the statutory deadline for review of certain applications and petitions, as well as the average time that FDA takes to conduct these reviews, according to the latest published FDA reports.

I trust my colleagues will share my concerns that agency performance is woefully off the mark. The Committee on Appropriations is to be commended for directing FDA to meet its statutory duties for timely review. I ask unanimous consent that this statement be printed following my remarks.

Food Additive Petitions.—Within 180 days (6 months) after filing of a petition, FDA is required to publish a regulation authorizing the use of the food additive or deny the petition. 21 U.S.C. §348(c). Current "average time to approval"—48 months. "Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Appropriations for 1996," Hearings Before the Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies of the Committee on Appropriations, House of Representative, Part 6, 104th Cong., 1st Sess., p. 664 (Mar. 28, 1995) (hereafter "FY 96 House Agriculture Appropriations Hearings").

Health and Nutrient Content Claim Petitions.—Within 190 days (6.25 months) after filing of a petition, FDA is required to propose regulations authorizing the use of the health or nutrient content claim or deny the petition. 21 U.S.C. §343(r)(4). Current average review time from filing to issuance of a proposed rule—10 months. 62 Fed. Reg. 296 (Jan. 4, 1996); 60 Fed. Reg. 37,507 (July 20, 1995).

Nutrient Content Claim Synonym Petition.—Within 90 days (3 months) after submission of a petition, FDA is required to approve the use of the synonym for nutrient content claims or deny the petition. 21 U.S.C. §343(r)(4). Current average review time from submission to approval—19.5 months.[1] FDA Docket No. 94P-0216 (Letter from F. Edward Scarborough, Ph.D., Director, Office of Food Labeling to Douglas C. Marshall, Darigold, Inc. (Oct. 30, 1995)).

New Human Drug Applications (NDAs).—Within 180 days (6 months) after filing of an application, FDA is required to approve the human drug or give the application notice of an opportunity for a hearing before FDA on the question of whether the application is approvable. 21 U.S.C. §355(c)(1). Current average time for "first action"—twelve months. Statement by David A. Kessler, M.D., Commissioner of Food and Drugs, Department of Health and Human Resources Before the Subcommittee on Health and Environment, Committee on Commerce, U.S. House of Representatives, p. 4 (May 1, 1996) (hereafter, "Health and Environment Subcommittee Hearing").

Abbreviated New Drug Applications (ANDAs).—Within 180 days (6 months) after initial receipt of an application, FDA is required to approve the drug or give the applicant notice of an opportunity for a hearing before FDA on the question of whether the applicant is approvable. 21 U.S.C. §355(j)(4)(A). Current average review time from receipt to approval—34.2 months. Department of Health and Human Services Fiscal Year 1997 Justification of Estimates for Appropriations Committees for the Food and Drug Administration," p. 65 (hereafter "FY 97 FDA Justification of Estimates for Appropriations Committees").

Medical Device Premarket Approval Applications (PMAs).—Within 180 days (6 months) after receipt of an application, FDA is required to approve the medical device or deny the application. 21 U.S.C. §360e(d)(1)(A). "Current average review time"—20 months. Health and Environment Subcommittee Hearing, pp. 9–10.

New Animal Drug Applications (NADAs).—Within 180 days (6 months) after filing of an application, FDA is required to approve the animal drug or give the applicant notice of an opportunity for a hearing before FDA on the question of whether the application is approvable. 21 U.S.C. §360b(c)(1). Current average review time from receipt to approval—39 months. FY 97 FDA Justification of Estimates for Appropriations Committees, p. 83.

Abbreviated New Animal Drug Applications (ANADAs).—Within 180 days (6 months) after initial receipt of an application, FDA is required to approve the generic animal drug or give the applicant notice of an opportunity for a hearing before FDA on the question of whether the application is approvable. 21 U.S.C. §360b(c)(2)(C). Current average review time from receipt to approval—31 months. FY 97 FDA Justification of Estimates for Appropriations Committees, p. 84.

CONGRATULATIONS EAST ORANGE WELFARE DEPARTMENT

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the outstanding work that is being done on behalf of women by the East Orange Welfare Department, in my district in New Jersey. For the past 10 years, the East Orange Welfare Department has dispel some of the negative stigmas associated with women and welfare and to recognize and applaud the achievements of women in the community.

Too often, women are the subject of the cruel realities of gender discrimination, sexism, sexual harassment, and the like in this historically male-biased society. The East Orange Welfare Department has taken on the responsibility of speaking out on behalf of the accomplishments of women, and glorifying rather than stigmatizing them. We must join the East Orange Welfare Department as they recognize the invaluable impact that women have had on every facet of our modern communities.

The East Orange Welfare Department has served to support its citizens by the coordination of fiscal, medical, and social services in the community and has been instrumental in providing an environment intent on fostering financial independence and self-sufficiency. Its recent call to honor women is simply another example of the department's firm commitment to not only help those in need, but to lend a voice to those too frequently unheard.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in commending the dedicated employees at the East Orange Welfare Department for their outstanding work in advancing the progress of women.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF CDC

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, the Nation's prevention agency, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC], will turn 50 on July 1. As co-chair of the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues and a strong supporter of this agency's prevention mission, I would like to acknowledge the 50th anniversary milestone with a few examples of how CDC has effectively promoted women's health.

The CDC National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program provides mammography screening and Pap smear services to low-income and underserved women. This program has been critical to the early detection of breast and cervical cancer in poor, elderly, and minority women.

CDC has been working toward the implementation of a national STD-related infertility prevention plan, and has awarded grants to university/health department consortia for chlamydia research. A chlamydia prevention program in region X between 1988 and 1994 has provided chlamydia screening in nearly every title X family planning clinic; the resulting rate of chlamydia has decreased from about 10 percent to below 5 percent. The CDC is currently working to implement this program throughout the country.

CDC has issued guidelines promoting voluntary HIV counseling and testing of pregnant women, recognizing that a voluntary approach is the most effective way of preventing perinatal transmission of HIV. The CDC guidelines will provide access to early interventions that will actually prevent perinatal transmission, and link them to HIV care and services. Preserving a patient-provider relationship of trust is essential to keeping women in the health care system.

CDC has implemented a long-term, comprehensive national strategy for reducing smoking among women. Cardiovascular disease is the No. 1 killer of American women, and smoking prevention must be a primary part of any strategy to address this women's health threat. CDC has awarded a number of grants to State health departments to implement effective tobacco prevention and control programs targeted to women.

---

[1] To date, FDA has received only one synonym petition.

CDC has also funded community demonstration projects to prevent violence against women, another priority of the Women's Caucus.

I am particularly pleased to note the establishment, in 1994, of an Office on Women's Health at CDC, which has worked to ensure that women's health needs are adequately addressed in CDC's research projects and prevention programs. Indeed, promoting women's health is one of the five priorities of the agency, as articulated by its Director, Dr. David Satcher.

Again, I congratulate the agency and its dedicated scientists, epidemiologists, and public health personnel for their hard work and accomplishments, and wish them continued success in the next 50 years.

MANAGED CARE BILL OF RIGHTS FOR CONSUMERS ACT OF 1996

HON. NYDIA M. VELÁZQUEZ

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to introduce a crucial piece of legislation—the Managed Care Bill of Rights for Consumers Act of 1996. I introduced this legislation in response to a repulsive and dangerous trend taking place in this country. Seven out of ten Americans are now in some form of managed care plan. Although this newest form of health care has been successful in cutting costs, it has done so at the expense of patient care. Working class people are falling victim to a cruel and vicious system that far too often puts profits before people.

Health care companies should make people healthy, not sick, yet enrollees with specific or rare diseases are not provided specialists to treat their illnesses. Even more alarming, HMO patients are routinely denied compensation for emergency room visits and managed care companies often include financial perks in the contracts of doctors who withhold patient services and lab reports in order to save money. So while ultra wealthy HMO's are making billion dollar profits, working class families are paying for those profits with their health and in some cases their lives.

My bill seeks to eliminate these problems and many more by ensuring that there is a wider variety of care providers to choose from and that providers are geographically accessible to patients. Moreover, my bill seeks to prohibit unhealthy HMO policies by allowing out of network options for specialists and emergency room care without prior approval.

I implore my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me in sponsoring this essential piece of legislation. Assist me in safeguarding the American citizens' access to quality, affordable health care.

DEFENSE AGAINST WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION ACT OF 1996

HON. JOHN M. SPRATT, JR.

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, Dhahran is a grim reminder that terrorists today are not only insidious and stealthy but technically sophisticated. It is only a matter of time till they couple their unconventional tactics with unconventional weapons. Terrorists have already released chemical weapons in the Tokyo subways. Biological, and even nuclear weapons, are only a few steps removed, and well within their reach.

For that reason, I am pleased to sponsor in the House a bill that Senator NUNN, Senator LUGAR, and Senator DOMENICI offered in the Senate this morning as an amendment to the Defense authorization bill. Rep. BILL MCCOLLUM, who has a longstanding interest in counter-terrorism, joins me as a cosponsor.

In the Defense Against Weapons of Mass Destruction Act, we set forth a set of policies to respond to a threat that has emerged and grown with the end of the cold war. We can all be relieved that the risk of nuclear attack by Russia has receded. By the end of this year, Ukraine, Byelorussia, and Kazakhstan all should be free of deployed nuclear weapons. But the breakup of the Soviet Union has opened up a storehouse of destructive weapons and components to terrorist groups and nations hostile to the United States. So, ironically, while the risk of nuclear annihilation has become more remote, we find ourselves faced with a growing risk of attacks, albeit limited, by nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons.

We have spent considerable time in the House debating defenses against intercontinental ballistic missiles, and it is a pertinent debate about a serious threat. But our focus on ICBMs may have deflected our attention from a far more likely threat: a terrorist-type bomb, with a nuclear, biological, or chemical warhead. This technology is easier to develop than ICBMs, and as the chemical attack in the Tokyo subway makes clear, terrorist groups can and will use these weapons. In fact, they offer terrorists plausible deniability—they can use such weapons and leave the United States with no clear-cut enemy to retaliate against. Ballistic missiles, on the other hand, leave a return address written in several thousand degrees fahrenheit.

This bill will help shift attention to the everyday threats that proliferation is creating. Moscow has acknowledged that it has 40,000 metric tons of chemical weapons in its stockpile. There are about 80 facilities in the former Soviet Union that store weapons grade nuclear materials, and as the Center for Strategic and International Studies said in a report released this week, these poorly protected storage sites are patrolled by demoralized and underpaid guards. Russian law enforcement officials reported 54 cases of theft of fissile materials in 1993 and 1994, and both German and Czech officials have seized fissile materials originating in the FSU. In Project Sapphire, we airlifted 600 kilograms of highly enriched uranium-enough for a dozen bombs—from a facility in Kazakhstan that was protected by little more than a padlock. We cannot possibly bring all of the nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons and materials of the former Soviet Union here to the United States; we must help these nations secure these materials, and by doing so, help protect ourselves.

It is not just the FSU, of course, that we have to be concerned about. Libya is constructing a chemical weapons facility in Torhuna. North Korea probably possesses enough plutonium to make several nuclear weapons. China is assisting Iran in building a uranium hexafluoride [HEX] facility which converts uranium into a gaseous form so it can be diffused to produce highly enriched uranium. There are allegations that a Russian General helped smuggle binary nerve agents to Syria. All these incidents point to the possibility of a terrorist-type attack by some weapon of mass destruction at some point in the not-too-distant future.

The legislation Representative MCCOLLUM and I are introducing today addresses the problem in three broad ways:

First, stopping the spread of weapons of mass destruction and their components. The FSU offers terrorist groups and nations hostile to the United States their multiple chances to pilfer or acquire on an inchoate black market various weapons of mass destruction [WMD]. This bill will help the FSU tighten up security over these weapons and materials, and monitor and verify their status.

Second, making sure the United States can detect and interdict weapons of mass destruction and their materials. The United States has concentrated very little effort on how to detect weapons of mass destruction or their component materials if smuggled into this country, and we have done too little to learn how to disable these weapons safely, once discovered. This bill will help develop these capabilities.

Third, being prepared should the United States be the victim of a weapon of mass destruction. The United States is not equipped to deal with an attack by a weapon of mass destruction. The World Trade Center and Oklahoma City bombings were devastating, and the bombing in Dhahran shows just how vulnerable Americans are to terrorist attack—but these attacks pale in comparison to a nuclear, biological or chemical weapon attack. This bill will train Federal, State and local officials to act in a coordinated way in response to nuclear, biological, or chemical weapon attacks.

I am pleased to have Representative MCCOLLUM join me in introducing this legislation. He is a leader in the Congress on this and related issues of law enforcement. He was a member of the CSIS steering committee that produced The Nuclear Black Market study published earlier this week, which helped frame this legislation. And as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on Crime, Representative MCCOLLUM's support of this legislation will be critical in ensuring its adoption.

Representative WELDON weighed cosponsoring this legislation with Representative MCCOLLUM and me, but decided to take more time to consider specific parts of the bill. I understand that Representative WELDON may introduce a modified form of the bill sometime next month, and I hope to work with him on that. Representative MCCOLLUM and I likewise may modify or add to the bill before us, so this does not purport to be the last word on the subject, but it does represent a solid, bipartisan baseline from which to start. In dealing with threats like these, we do not need to divide along party lines. The bill received an enormous vote of support in the Senate this morning. I hope we can amass the same support in the House and move the bill swiftly to passage or include it in the Defense authorization conference report, so that we can begin implementing it in earnest.

DOROTHY AND DON BERO CELEBRATE 50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

HON. PAUL E. GILLMOR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. GILLMOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute and give congratulations to Don and Dorothy Bero on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary which will take place this Friday, June 29, 1996.

By joining themselves in marriage 50 years ago, Don and Dorothy made a commitment to sharing a life of love and respect for each other. It was a commitment they have kept to this day. Their strong marriage is a testament to this love and has provided an inspiration to all who have met them.

A famous theologian once said, "There is no more lovely, friendly and charming relationship, communion or company than a good marriage." The honest and unselfish love that Don and Dorothy Bero have demonstrated during the past 50 years strengthens the institution of marriage.

I ask my colleagues to join me today in congratulating the Beros and to extend these warm wishes to their daughters, Nancy and Sally, and their grandchildren, John, Corbin and Jane.

TRIBUTE TO MYRTLE FAUCETTE

HON. BOB FILNER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a great friend and community leader who passed away last month, Myrtle O. Faucette. Those of us in the educational community know that Myrtle always worked to make life better for everyone, especially children.

Myrtle followed her father into the field of education and became a teacher and administrator in the San Diego Unified School District for more than 35 years. She served as a resource teacher and music teacher before being appointed an administrator. She was principal at Knox Elementary School for a decade before being disabled in 1995.

A 37-year resident of San Diego County, Myrtle was born in Greensboro, NC, the oldest of four children born to C.R.A. Cunningham, retired registrar of North Carolina A&T College, and the late Ida M. Cunningham.

Myrtle distinguished herself academically as a valedictorian of her high school class. She earned a degree in education at North Carolina A&T, graduating summa cum laude in 1956. Later she received an M.A. in education from United States International University. She moved to San Diego in 1959 after her marriage to Paul M. Faucette.

She worked closely with San Diego's Administrators Association, the Association of Black Educators, and Delta Kappa Gamma, a professional organization of women educators. She was on the board of education of St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral and represented San Diego City schools at conferences throughout the state.

Myrtle served as president of the San Diego Alumni Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. An accomplished musician, she often played piano at various community functions. She resided in the Spring Valley area of California's 50th Congressional District.

She was indeed a guiding light to all that came to know her in a long and illustrious career. My thoughts and prayers go out to her loving husband Paul, to her family and friends, and to the community she served.

MR. AND MRS. McDERMOTT'S 50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

HON. PETER BLUTE

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. BLUTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer my sincere congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James J. McDermott on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The McDermotts are true patriots. Mr. McDermott left Worcester, MA to fight in World War II; answering the call of his Nation in a time of great need. His high school sweetheart, Helen Tauras, anxiously awaited his return from war and ever the patriots, James and Helen were married on Independence Day—July 4, 1946.

Their love has endured for a half century. They have witnessed a lot together over that time and have shared many experiences but none so precious as the love they have for each other and their children.

The McDermotts are a typical American family. They raised four boys, James, Donald, Kevin, and Brian in Worcester, providing a loving and stable home and instilling strong values in each of them. Their undying love for each other has been an inspiration for their children, friends and neighbors. Those having the honor of knowing the McDermotts know the love and tenderness they share.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to represent the McDermotts who reside in my district. I would like to join with their many friends in offering my most heartfelt congratulations to the McDermotts on their special day. I wish them all the best and good luck as they continue together into their next 50 years.

THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL AND PREVENTION

HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to call the attention of my colleagues to the many accomplishments of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and to mark the occasion of its 50th anniversary, which will occur on July 1.

In its earliest incarnation, CDC was known as the Malaria Control in War Areas [MCWA], and it was tasked with combatting malaria on military bases in the Southern United States. Over the years, CDC's mission and reach have expanded dramatically. Today, CDC is the Nation's prevention agency, responsible for the prevention of disease, disability, and injury. CDC focuses not only on combatting traditional communicable diseases, like malaria and syphilis, but also on preventing outbreaks of new and reemerging infectious diseases, reducing the incidence of HIV/AIDS, fighting breast and prostate cancer, and preventing lead poisoning in children. But CDC has not been satisfied only to defend America and the world against disease—it also has taken the offensive, promoting healthy behavior through smoking cessation, and immunization efforts.

CDC has been faced with a host of challenges over the last half century, and the many scientists and public health professionals who make this relatively small agency a force to be reckoned with have never failed to rise to those challenges. Utilizing a technique for investigating disease outbreaks, "Hot Zone" author Richard Preston has called the marriage of great labs with shoe-leather disease detective work, CDC has taken on epidemics around the globe. The threat of emerging infectious diseases that our Nation and the world now face becomes somewhat less alarming when we remind ourselves of the unflagging courage and unfailing efforts of the devoted professionals at CDC who stand ready to fight back.

I would like to commend CDC on its long record of achievement, which is outlined in a brief history of the agency prepared by CDC that I am including in the RECORD, and to thank the scientists, doctors, public health professionals, and staff of the CDC for all that you have done for us over the past 50 years. Thank you for the lives you have saved and for the good you have done for this Nation and the world.

THE CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL AND PREVENTION—50 YEARS OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

THE 1940'S

1946

The Communicable Disease Center, or CDC, opens in the old "Office of Malaria Control in War Areas" in downtown Atlanta. Part of the U.S. Public Health Service (PHS), the CDC has a mission to work with state and local health officials in the fight against malaria (that was still prevalent in several Southern states), typhus, and other communicable diseases.

1947

A token payment of $10 is made for 15 acres on Clifton Road in Atlanta, the current home of CDC headquarters.

THE 1950'S

1951

The Epidemic Intelligence Services (EIS) is established. EIS quickly becomes the Nation's—and the world's—response team for a wide range of health emergencies. Its young, energetic medical officers make house calls around the world.

CDC broadens its focus to include polio and establishes closer relationships with the states. National disease surveillance systems begin.

1955

The Polio Surveillance Unit is established. Ten years later, CDC assumes PHS responsibility for the control of polio; the disease almost disappears from the Western Hemisphere by 1991.

1957

The Influenza Surveillance Unit is established.

THE 1960'S

1961

CDC takes over publication of the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report (MMWR), which publishes important public health updates and data on deaths and certain diseases from every state every week. The first cases of a new disease, later called AIDS, were reported in the MMWR in 1981.

1966

CDC launches the Smallpox Eradication Program to eliminate smallpox and to control measles in 20 African countries. Through CDC's efforts, smallpox, a disease that killed millions of people over the centuries, was eradicated from the world in the late 1970s.

1969

CDC participates in the quarantine of astronauts returning from the first walk on the moon, and the examination of moon rock specimens.

THE 1970'S

1970

The Communicable Disease Center is renamed the Center for Disease Control to reflect a broader mission in preventive health.

1973

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), which protects Americans from on-the-job hazards, becomes part of CDC.

1976

CDC investigates an outbreak of illness in Philadelphia, now called Legionnaire's disease. The following year, CDC isolates the causative agent for this disease: Legionella pneumophilia.

1977

The last case of endemic smallpox in the world is reported in Somalia.

1978

CDC opens an expanded, maximum-containment laboratory to handle viruses too dangerous to handle in an ordinary laboratory.

1979

The last case of wild polio virus in the United States is reported.

THE 1980'S

1980

The agency is renamed the Centers for Disease Control to reflect a change in organizational structure.

1981

With the California Department of Health, CDC reports the first cases of an illness later known as acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS), and organizes a task force of personnel from each center to respond to evidence of an epidemic. AIDS research and prevention efforts continue today.

1983

CDC establishes a Violence Epidemiology Branch to apply public health prevention strategies to the problems of child abuse, homicide, and suicide.

1986

The Office of Smoking and Health, which targets the Nation's primary preventable health problem, becomes part of CDC.

1987

CDC reports a strong association between Reye syndrome and aspirin, noting that 90% of cases could be prevented by reducing aspirin treatment of children.

The National Center for Health Statistics becomes part of CDC.

1988

CDC establishes the Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion to target chronic disease, such as heart disease laboratory is established.

A state-of-the-art viral and rickettsial disease laboratory is established.

1989

CDC and the World Health Organization (WHO) establish a collaborating center for disaster preparedness.

THE 1990'S

1991

CDC begins development of a national strategic plan for the early detection and control of breast and cervical cancers among American women.

CDC conducts the first and largest scale health survey to employ computer-assisted interviewing.

To better reflect the responsibilities and future goals of CDC, the word "National" was added to the names of four centers: National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, National Center for Environmental Health, National Center for Infectious Disease, National Center for Prevention Services.

1992

The agency adds prevention to its name (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) to reflect a broader role and vision, but retains the familiar acronym CDC.

1993

CDC launches the National Childhood Immunization campaign.

1995

CDC goes onsite to Zaire to investigate an outbreak of deadly Ebola virus.

CDC recommends AZT therapy for HIV-infected pregnant women to reduce the rate of transmission of the Virus to their babies.

1996

CDC celebrates 50 years of success as the Nation's Prevention Agency.

TRIBUTE TO SISTER JEANNE O'LAUGHLIN

HON. E. CLAY SHAW, JR.

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with great pleasure to recognize a south Floridian who this year is celebrating her 50th anniversary as an Adrian Dominican sister.

Through her dedication to her work, her faith, and her students, Sister Jeanne O'Laughlin is one of the pillars upon which our south Florida community continues to grow and excel.

Sister Jeanne's work began at an early age in her hometown of Detroit. Instilled with the values of her father, she took jam to the elderly in a nursing home, lent money to those in need, and was well ahead of her time in race relations. She learned the importance of education from her family. Sister Jeanne combined her passions for service, education, and religion by becoming an Adrian Dominican nun at sixteen.

She has continued her mission of education and community service in her work as president of Barry University. Since assuming this post 15 years ago, her tireless efforts have dramatically enhanced many aspects of both the university and Dade county. As president, Sister Jeanne has helped raise over $115 million for the university through an array of fundraising events—even lending her singing voice to the cause. She has diversified the student body of Barry, shifting it from a mostly white female population to include students from over 72 countries.

Sister Jeanne is constantly involved in community activities—chairing the Miami Coalition for a Drug Free Community and acting as president for three other national organizations. Her good works have been recognized by the likes of the Miami Herald, Florida Governor Lawton Chiles, President Clinton, and Pope John Paul II. Her many generous deeds, both individually and community wide, are legend.

I had a chance to witness Sister Jeanne's tenacity firsthand some years ago when she approached me to assist her in gaining the release of three Chinese women seeking asylum in the United States. These women had been locked up in a dingy hotel room near the Miami International Airport for many months, and Sister Jeanne did not rest until asylum was granted. Recently I had the chance to see Sister Jeanne speak to students at an anti-drug forum. Her ability to elicit a response from these jaded, street smart kids was uncanny, and she most definitely made an impact on the teenagers lives. It is clear that the 16-hour days that Sister Jeanne works have paid enormous dividends in our community. Whenever I see Sister Jeanne, she reminds me that she prays for me and the other elected officials charged with making decisions. I, for one, sleep easier for this.

Mr. Speaker, throughout the United States are many individuals who dedicate their lives to such key social issues as education and community service. Sister Jeanne O'Laughlin is one individual who through her 50 years of service has helped to strengthen our Nation. We in south Florida are truly grateful. I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Sister Jeanne O'Laughlin as she celebrates her golden jubilee 50th anniversary as an Adrian Dominican sister.

TRIBUTE TO DICK STULTZ

HON. BOB FILNER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a friend, labor leader, and dedicated government employee who passed away this month—Dick Stultz.

Dick Stultz dedicated his life to the service of our country. Dick was born in Philadelphia, PA. He joined the Marine Corps in 1952, and retired after 30 years of honorable service.

In addition to his military service, Dick worked for 25 years with the U.S. Border Patrol coordinating communications with field agents. During his service with the Border Patrol, Dick became involved in the National Border Patrol Council Local 1613, where he served as first vice president for 3 years, and as president for a year and a half. A strong advocate for field agents, Dick was highly successful in dispute resolution, and was considered a guardian angel by many of the agents he represented.

It was his good working relationship with both agents and management that earned him a commendation from the U.S. Border Patrol for his warm personal style and can-do spirit.

My thoughts and prayers go out to his wife, Veronica, and his family.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CDC

HON. HENRY A. WAXMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, on July 1, 1996, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC]—the Nation's prevention agency—will celebrate its 50th anniversary. This represents 50 years of commitment to improvement in the public health, a commitment that has been carried out by a dedicated and highly professional work force.

Over the years, I have been a strong supporter of this unique Federal agency. Along with my colleagues, I have helped authorize and expand CDC prevention programs which have made and will continue to make significant improvements in the public's health. These programs include: immunization, HIV prevention, tuberculosis control, lead-paint poisoning prevention, and the Breast and Cervical Cancer Mortality Prevention Program, to name a few.

Throughout that period, and indeed its entire history, CDC's scientists and epidemiologists have responded to countless challenges domestically and around the world, including Legionnaire's disease, environmental and workplace hazards, smallpox, plague, and Ebola.

In recognition of this 50-year milestone, I am pleased to share with my colleagues a message from CDC's distinguished Director, Dr. David Satcher. I heartily commend the CDC for its accomplishments and look forward to its achievements in the next 50 years.

REMARKS BY DR. DAVID SATCHER, DIRECTOR, AT THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CDC

During 1996, Atlanta will be the site of several events of worldwide significance—the Centennial Olympics, the Paralympic Games, the 200th anniversary of the development of the vaccine ultimately responsible for the eradication of smallpox, and the 50th anniversary of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC].

As CDC celebrates a half century of public health excellence, we are mindful of the skill and courage of these early public health pioneers, who risked their lives in order to address environmental hazards and control diseases such as smallpox, polio, malaria, and diphtheria. We are honored to continue on in their work and committed to the difficult challenges that lie ahead.

CDC has contributed to the control of infectious diseases such as the Ebola outbreak in Africa and tuberculosis in the United States. We also have protected workers from environmental hazards, improved early detection and control systems for breast cancer and cervical cancer, recommended fortification of foods with folic acid to prevent birth defects, and conducted research to identify potential dangers of airbags to infants.

Now, more than ever, public health programs and services are needed to ensure the best possible health for everyone. Providing safe living and work environments, developing methods to immunize populations against infectious diseases, and maintaining good prenatal care for expectant mothers are vital endeavors. Prevention measures and interventions can mean the difference not only between life and death but also in the quality of life.

In meeting these challenges, we will work closely with our traditional partners—local and state health departments, departments of education, voluntary and professional organizations, partnerships with churches, schools, and businesses. CDC brings to these partnerships a comprehensive, systematic approach to health promotion and disease prevention and expertise in laboratory science, epidemiology, surveillance, infectious disease control, environmental and occupational safeguards, and quality assurance.

The anniversary is a milestone for our Nation. It is a sobering reminder of the challenges we face as we enter the 21st century, when, clearly, public health will be a global concern. Increased disruption to the tropical environment will result in diseases that are no longer contained in a localized habitat but, rather, migrate with their human hosts to cities and neighboring continents. The mobility of people, through air travel, natural disaster, or civil war, is reshaping the routes of infection and the course of epidemics.

Our work and that of our partners during CDC's first 50 years has contributed to powerful scientific discovery and momentous public health achievements that have improved health throughout the world. As we review our past accomplishments, we are proud. As we look forward to our exciting future, we are energized.

CDC's 50th Anniversary Celebration is an excellent opportunity to reinforce our commitment to our vision, "Healthy People in the Healthy World Through Prevention".

CDC'S 50 YEARS OF PREVENTION EFFORTS SHOULD BE COMMENDED

HON. RICHARD J. DURBIN

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. Speaker, on July 1, our Nation's preventive health agency, and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC], will turn 50. As a strong proponent of prevention strategies to enhance public health in the United States, I would like to commend the CDC for its prevention efforts. As co-chairman of the Congressional Task Force on Tobacco and Health, I would like to specifically acknowledge CDC's efforts to lead and coordinate strategic activities that prevent tobacco use.

For example, CDC has worked extensively to reduce teen access to tobacco and the appeal of tobacco among young people, reduce exposure to secondhand smoke, strengthen and expand the scientific foundation of tobacco control and prevention, and build the capacity of States and organizations to conduct tobacco control programs.

CDC has also served as a primary resource for tobacco and health information to educate the public and specific segments of the population about the hazards of tobacco use. In addition, it has worked closely with partners to ensure a strong tobacco use prevention network.

In recognition of this significant 50-year milestone, I would also like to commend CDC for its outstanding efforts to protect women's health through preventive health services, research, and surveillance and for its important research and surveillance activities for preventing HIV/AIDS.

I congratulate the agency and its dedicated workforce, and I look forward to another 50 years of outstanding work to enhance the health of the American people.

A TRIBUTE TO ED POSHARD

HON. GLENN POSHARD

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. POSHARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay special tribute to my brother Ed Poshard who is retiring on July 31 after 36 years of service with State Farm Insurance Co.

Throughout my entire life, my brother has been a great inspiration to me, having given me the benefit of his love and wisdom since I was a small boy. I could not begin to count the benefits that have accrued to me over my lifetime as a result of my brother's influence on my life.

Some of my earliest memories as a child was Ed getting up at 4 a.m., still in his teens, packing a lunch bucket and heading out over ice slickened roads to work in the oil fields. Whatever money he made, he shared with the family, especially with my sister Jolene and me, who were still young and in school. Going into Norris City with him every Saturday morning, getting a burr haircut at Will Harlow's barber shop, and washing his car, always washing his car, for his Saturday night date were some of the highlights of my youth. He was my big brother who I always looked up to and was always proud of.

He finished high school, went to college while he was still in the Army, sent pictures to our home of far away places, told me in every letter to get a good education, and fueled my own dreams of learning and contributing to my fellow man.

But more than the dreams he inspired and the encouragement he gave and the wisdom he shared there was something else he gave me that only had to be observed. It's called work ethic and it's a little out of vogue today. But not with my brother. Ed has worked hard at everything he's done. He's worked hard at being a good husband, a good father, a good son, and a good brother. And for the folks in this room, he's worked really hard at being a good insurance agent. In fact, my brother isn't just a good insurance agent, he's a great one. He has lived and breathed and loved his work in a way few people ever do. After his family, his first love has always been selling insurance. Late at night, early in the morning, anywhere or anytime a customer had a need, my brother would find a way to get there first and make the sale. He never sold them more than they required and he never misrepresented what they were getting. He worked hard to get their business, he was honest, and people came back. He built trust in his family and he built trust in his customers and his life has been successful because of it.

In a very real sense my brother represents the best of what we stand for in this country. The old values. The enduring values. Family, honesty, hard work. I'm proud of him. I'll always be proud of him. I hope his retirement is long and enjoyable and he and Phyllis travel to new and exciting places, watch a lot of fall sunsets over the Shawnee, and have lots of playtime with their grandbabies. He will always have my love and respect. GLENN.

WATER COMING OUT OF TAPS MUST BE SAFE FOR CHILDREN TO DRINK

HON. DAVID E. BONIOR

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, the summer of 1993 taught those of us in southeastern Michigan just how quickly our lakes and rivers can be contaminated and become unsafe. It also taught us that change is permanent and that we will continue to face new challenges. Right now the St. Clair River is being threatened by a proposed discharge into the St. Clair River from a plant in Canada. The proposed discharge would lead to 750 million gallons of contaminated water with nearly 100 chemical combinations being released into the very river from which many of us get our drinking water.

I am working to stop this discharge from happening. While I hope it can be prevented, our communities must be able to access up-to-date drinking water standards, know the best available treatment technology and have the tools they need to construct proper drinking water treatment facilities. An improved Safe Drinking Water Act will go a long way toward providing that information and those tools. Further, it will allow every parent to know exactly what is in the water coming out of their taps before they pour a glass for their children.

It has been said that water is the key to life. Human beings should drink eight glasses of water a day according to the American Dietetic Association, but for Americans to stay healthy their water must be healthy. We cannot afford to have our drinking water contaminated with parasites like cryptosporidum which caused the death of 104 people in Milwaukee 3 years ago.

That is why it is important for Congress to renew the commitment we made some 20 years ago to ensure that the water coming out of our taps is safe to drink. By passing legislation to update the Safe Drinking Water Act, I believe we took a positive step toward renewing that commitment.

The bill passed is not perfect—and there are some parts of it I disagree with—but it will ensure the public's right to know within 24 hours that contaminants have been discovered in their drinking water. It will for the first time give us drinking water standards for arsenic, radon and sulfate. It will give our local communities the tools they need to build proper drinking water treatment facilities. Perhaps most importantly, it will continue the landmark commitment made in 1974 when Congress first enacted the Safe Drinking Water Act.

For those of us in Macomb and St. Clair Counties, these are critical, commonsense protections which will help us know when excessive sewage discharges are made into the Clinton River and Lake St. Clair. We will know toxins are released into the St. Clair River and our down-river communities will know within 24 hours if they should shut off their water intake pipes.

The passage of this bill reminds us that our environment, the health and safety of our children, the water we drink and the air we breath ought not to be partisan, divisive issues. There can be no cost-benefit analysis, regulatory reform, state flexibility or risk assessment which can determine the price of a healthy child or the value of a safe workplace to our community. We can never forget: we don't just inherit this land and water from our parents—we borrow it from our children. If we continue to do the right thing and adopt common-sense environmental protections like the Safe Drinking Water Act, we will give them a future of which we can all be proud.

ADD CARRIER COMPETITION TO PASSENGER AIR ROUTES BETWEEN PAGO PAGO, AMERICAN SAMOA AND HAWAII

HON. ENI F.H. FALEOMAVAEGA

OF AMERICAN SAMOA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce legislation which will add carrier competition to the passenger air routes between Pago Pago, American Samoa and Honolulu, HI.

Mr. Speaker, the experience of the people in the territory I represent is a good example of the difficulties we Pacific Islanders face in establishing regular and reliable air transportation at a reasonable rate for passengers, vital cargo, and mail.

American Samoa is comprised of a remote group of islands located in the South Pacific Ocean. The territory is approximately 2,200 miles from the closest State in the United States, which is the State of Hawaii. With millions of square miles of open ocean surrounding our islands, air transport is not simply a faster way for travelers to get from point to point, it is often the sole and only feasible means to bridge our isolation.

Because American Samoa is a remote destination, the U.S. Department of Transportation, in an effort to assure at least minimal air service, designated Pago Pago, American Samoa as an EAS—essential air service—community on October 26, 1979. This designation recognizes that American Samoa is a remote location in need of air service on a regular basis to ensure that certain necessities are available.

The U.S. Postal Service averages between 27,000 and 30,000 pounds of mail per week for local residents. Among other vital cargo carried on this route are medical supplies such as Hepatitis B serum, hemodialysis supplies, insulin, samples requiring laboratory testing, and blood packs for rare blood types. Because ocean shipping can take up to 2 months, perishable food items such as bread, vegetables, dairy products, and meat must come in by air.

Currently, there is only one airline providing service between American Samoa and Honolulu. This airline reported an operating profit of 50 percent on the route for 1995, by comparison, an operating profit of 10 percent is considered good on other domestic routes. The American Samoa Government has tried for years to attract a second air carrier to the route, but history has shown that our market can only support one carrier at a time. After looking at the route, each potential carrier has determined that there is insufficient passenger traffic for two airlines and each has declined to enter the market.

This scenario provides the sole air carrier with a virtual monopoly and affords the carrier the opportunity to charge excessive rates.

The legislation I am introducing today, if enacted into law, will direct the Secretary of Transportation to solicit proposals from air carriers which are willing to provide a certain minimum level of service between American Samoa and Honolulu. The figures show that the route can be self-sustaining and does not require a subsidy when served by a single carrier. Based on the proposals received, the Secretary will, in consultation with the Governor of American Samoa, select one carrier to provide the service. The award of the air service route will be for a period not to exceed 2 years, and may be renewed.

American Samoa's economy has been hampered and our people have been inconvenienced for too long because of the lack of adequate air service to connect us to the national air transport system. I believe that this legislation will inject competition into this limited market, and I look forward to seeing this bill enacted into law.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL (C.D.C.)

HON. JOHN D. DINGELL

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, on July 1, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC] will celebrate its 50th anniversary. This is an important celebration for the agency, of its own signal achievements over this half-century, but it is also a time for all of us to celebrate the contributions of this small agency to public health in America and worldwide.

Unlike many other excellent health institutions, such as the National Cancer Institute or the Food and Drug Administration, CDC is only infrequently in the limelight. But it is that very fact which provides confidence, for the lack of CDC headlines means that we are not facing a crisis requiring urgent expert action. When we do not hear about the epidemiologists, worker safety specialists, immunization gurus, laboratory scientists, and infectious disease experts of CDC, it is because they are doing quietly and efficiently what they have done every day for the last 50 years—protecting the public health.

But when we do hear about CDC, we know we are facing an urgent crisis—but that the crisis is being handled expertly—whether it is occurrence of a mysterious infectious disease, later called Legionnaires' disease in Philadelphia, or the first case of AIDS in San Francisco; illness and death from food contaminated with E. coli in the States of Washington, California, Idaho, and Nevada; measles epidemics in major metropolitan areas across the United States; cryptosporidium in Milwaukee drinking water; serious illness from oysters in Florida; an outbreak of hanta virus in New Mexico, Utah, Arizona, and Colorado; the reemergence of tuberculosis as a serious health risk, especially in New York, Miami, and Los Angeles; or lead poisoning in children in Chicago and Rhode Island.

While CDC has been catapulted only recently onto suburban movie screens because it inspired "The Hot Zone," the agency has, over its 50-year history, cooled off many hot zones with its unique expertise and capability. CDC assists governments and health officials all over the world in preventing and controlling disease and responding to crises that literally threaten the health and safety of entire populations of people—ebola virus in Zaire; deadly chemical release in a Tokyo subway; disease-causing radioactive fallout in the Marshall Islands; outbreaks in Spain of illness from contaminated cooking oil; worldwide immunization efforts to prevent deadly childhood and adult illnesses such as smallpox—now completely eradicated because of these efforts; typhoid fever, and polio.

Though its origins—in Atlanta, GA—and its early mission were modest—the control of malaria in war areas—CDC quickly gained strength and prominence as the world's emergency response team, as it formed critical and productive relationships with health officials throughout the United States and around the world. Its physicians and epidemiologists have been involved in public health activities ranging from the virtual eradication of polio from the Western hemisphere to quarantining the astronauts who first walked on the moon and examining the now-museum-housed moon rocks. CDC specialists have worked with American companies to help identify and solve workplace hazards and prevent worker injuries. The agency's specialized laboratories provide unique, state-of-the-art analyses of dangerous viruses, and unidentified toxins. The National Childhood Immunization Initiative, designed to achieve full, age- appropriate vaccination of all American children, to prevent completely preventable childhood illnesses such as whooping cough, measles, mumps, rubella, and polio; a nationwide program for early detection and control of breast and cervical cancer; and a dynamic education program targeted at smoking, the Nation's No. 1 preventable cause of illness, are all initiatives launched and still maintained by CDC.

Today, as it moves into the 21st century, and the second half of its first century, CDC is focused on the future of public health, and refocusing efforts to direct attention at problems that are just beginning, or are growing—new infectious diseases; reemergence of diseases once thought to be controlled, such as drug-resistant TB; prevention and control of birth defects and genetic diseases, such as fetal alcohol syndrome, mental retardation, and spina bifida; identification and control of environmental factors that lead to serious adverse health effects, such as radiation and environmental lead; preventing disability and early death from injury and chronic disease; collecting and analyzing data that help to understand better how to protect and promote health; and refocusing a variety of activities on special health problems of teenagers and women.

I am proud to have supported the work of CDC over many of its 50 years. Congress and the American people have entrusted one of our most precious possessions to this remarkable agency—the public health. Today, CDC employs a small cadre of 6,300 dedicated people with a big and critically important task. CDC has never betrayed our trust, and has lived up to our expectations. I expect no less in the future. I congratulate CDC on this 50th birthday, and wish the agency at least 50 more, equally productive years.

IN HONOR OF REV. DR. ERMINE STEWART

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the outstanding career and 25 years of service to the Reverend Dr. Ermine Stewart. Called into the ministry in May 1956 to pastor a church in Coleyville, Jamaica, West Indies—Reverend. Stewart has provided a global vision of missionary work and ministerial commitment that continues to extend itself to the New York area and beyond.

Upon his return to the United States in 1965, Reverend Stewart established a branch of the "Church of the First Born Miracle Temple, Inc." in the United States. Over the past 31 years Reverend Stewart has witnessed the unfolding prosperity of several churches throughout New York.

Presently, the Church of the First Born has nine churches, three of which are in the United States—New York, New Jersey, and Miami; one in the Province of Canada, and five on the Island of Jamaica. In addition to the established church branches, Reverend Stewart's devoted efforts and ministry have spawned the Television Ministry, which can be seen on J.B.C. Television in Jamaica. Such service exemplifies Reverend Stewart's instrumental work and institutional accomplishments.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Reverend Ermine Stewart on receiving this impressive honor, and extend to him my best wishes for continued success in the ministry.

KALKASKA COUNTY'S 125TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. BART STUPAK

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, it is an honor for me to bring to the attention of this body, and the Nation, the 125th anniversary of the official founding of Kalkaska County, MI. In celebrating this occasion, I would like to take the opportunity to look back upon those years.

In 1855, William Copeland purchased a large tract of land, presently found between Round Lake and M–72 within what is now the Kalkaska County borders. After Mr. Copeland's purchase, a wave of settlers were brought in to clear trees for farms and orchards. This area was first known as Wabassee. Before becoming its own county, Kalkaska was part of Grand Traverse, Antrim and Crawford Counties. It was not until 1843 that the Wabassee area became known as Kalkaska County. In 1871, Kalkaska County residents officially organized themselves. The Village of Kalkaska became the county seat and was incorporated in 1887.

During the late 19th century, Kalkaska County became a magnet for lumberjacks, offering both success and failure to those who sought jobs. While some parts of Kalkaska County enjoyed economic booms, 13 other settlements closed down. A strong timber trade would remain until 1920, when the county's population leveled off at 5,570 people. The timber industry spurred the development of railroads to transport the timber. From farming to timber to railroads, an economic base for Kalkaska's development was established.

Kalkaska County also benefited economically from the spirit of mechanical innovation. Residents, such as Elmer Johnson, tinkered with the internal combustion engine, creating a few automobile prototypes in his day. One of these "Elmers" is currently displayed at the Kalkaska County Historical Museum.

Aviation was also subjected to innovation Kalkaska-style. Around the turn of the century, W.C. Freeman announced that he had built a flying machine and was attempting a trial flight. Unfortunately, no record exists of the success or failure of Mr. Freeman's attempt.

During this period of timber and innovation, Kalkaska encountered several citywide fires which leveled parts of the city. Some of the more destructive and memorable fires occurred in 1908 and 1910. But the most destructive fire in Kalkaska County occurred in 1921, when the central portion of the village of South Boardman burned to the ground. This part of South Boardman has never been rebuilt.

Mr. Speaker, Kalkaska County, MI, has had wonderful and varied experiences throughout its 125-year existence. Its development has mirrored much of northern Michigan's and on behalf of the State of Michigan and its people, I commend both past and present county and community leaders and wish Kalkaska a successful celebration and best wishes for a successful future.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE TREES OF MYSTERY

HON. FRANK RIGGS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, as a Member of the House of Representatives I am proud to represent the owners of one of the premier attractions in the entire country, the trees of mystery. Nestled among the giant redwoods of California's north coast just north of the town of Klamath, this marvelous environment stands as a testament of how man and nature can coexist as partners.

Last week the trees of mystery celebrated its 50th anniversary. Throughout those 50 years, millions of people have had the pleasure of strolling through nature's shrine. I want to congratulate Marylee Smith and her son, John Thompson, for the foresight to preserve and protect one of the most beautiful spots on Earth.

I hope that all of my colleagues will make an opportunity, as I did last week, to view the cathedral tree, where many marriages take place, or the family tree, with each branch supporting another member of its clan, or the wonderful Native American Museum at the trees of mystery.

Thank you Maylee and John for preserving our history for future generations.

CELEBRATING IOWA'S BIRTHDAY

HON. JAMES A. LEACH

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to invite my colleagues and their families to become honorary Iowans for the next few weeks as Iowa and its sons and daughters celebrate our State's 150th birthday. Come to the Smithsonian's annual Folklife Festival on the Mall to see what Iowans with midwestern understatement, are so proud of.

You will discover Iowa is a State of immigrants who have come together to make a singularly diverse community.

Our first citizens immigrated to Iowa across a land bridge joining North America with Asia and eventually became members of the approximately 17 different Indian tribes that resided in the State at various times in its early history. The Indian word meaning "the beautiful land" both describes the State and gave it its name.

Iowa's Sauk and Mesquaki tribes were among the most powerful tribes in the upper Mississippi and legend has it that the famous Sauk chief Black Hawk's courageous and intelligent leadership of his people contributed to Iowa becoming known as the "Hawkeye State."

Although it is thought Spanish explorers may have reached Iowa first from the south, and earliest Europeans known to have visited what would become the State were the French explorers Father Jacques Marquette and Louis Joliet. They were followed by immigrants from Germany, Sweden, Norway, Holland, and Great Britain.

In their turn came people from Ireland, Austria, Italy, and Czechoslovakia.

Iowa entered the Union officially on December 28, 1846, as a free State, and prior to the Civil War African-Americans found the State a haven as part of the Underground Railway carrying them from slavery to freedom. Many African-Americans would settle in southeastern Iowa, most notably in Buxton, a community of almost 5,000 that was over 50 percent African-American. Buxton's social and economic institutions were fully integrated decades before the country would begin to make the effort to become so and many of the town's professionals were African-American.

Although far from the great battles of the Civil War, Iowa contributed disproportionately to the Union cause in the conflict. More than 76,000 Iowans, more per capita than any other State, served in the war. One out of five of the Iowans who enlisted lost their life in the course of the war.

Iowa perennially leads the Nation in literacy, school achievement tests and quality of life polls. Its vigorous economy has a sound basis in agri-business, small to medium manufacturing and a growing financial services sector. But it is the State's people that are Iowa's most important product.

Herbert Hoover was a renowned engineer mining whose Presidency preceded the onset of the great depression. His humanitarian relief efforts, both as Chair of the American Relief Commission and U.S. Food Administrator on the War Trade Council during World War I, as co-founder of CARE and UNICEF, and as a leader of U.S. food relief efforts after World War II, are credited with saving hundreds of millions of lives.

Henry Wallace, an agronomist who helped develop hybrid corn, served as Secretary of Agriculture and then Vice President to Franklin Delano Roosevelt. An exemplar of this country's great liberal political tradition, Wallace ran for President in 1948 as one of the most significant third party candidates in American history.

Harry Hopkins, Roosevelt's chief-of-staff and personal emissary to Great Britain at the beginning of the war and later to Stalin at its conclusion was an Iowa native.

So was Mamie Doud Eisenhower. Richard Nixon was stationed at the Naval Air Station at Ottumwa, IO, hometown of MASH's Radar O'Riley, and Ronald Reagan got his first job as a sportscaster in my hometown of Davenport.

Iowa is justly proud of its accomplishments in scientific research. Norman Borlaug was awarded the Nobel Prize for his work on new types of wheat and in the process did as much to alleviate world hunger as anyone in this century.

George Washington Carver graduated from Iowa's Simpson College and did his graduate work at Iowa State University.

John Atanasoff and Clifford Berry invented the computer at Iowa State University. Grinnell College graduate Robert Noyce, who founded Intel Corp., is considered the coinventer of the computer chip.

James Van Allen, an astrophysicist at the University of Iowa, discovered the radiation belts circling the earth that bear his name. Another pioneer of the final frontier, Captain James Tiberius Kirk of the Starship Enterprise was born in Riverside, IA.

At the University of Iowa's magnificent medical research facility, researchers such as Drs. Antonio Damasio and Nancy Andreasen have looked inward rather than outward, using computer images derived from electron microscopes, instead of the magnified pictures caught through the mirrors of a telescope, to do groundbreaking work in mapping the human brain and studying its complexities. Illnesses from psychotic disorders to Alzheimer's disease can be better controlled and eventually cured because of their efforts.

In the leadership of business and industry, Iowa boasts of such sons as Frederick Maytag, inventor and manufacturer of the appliances that have put so many repairmen on the shelf, and John L. Lewis, the founder of the United Mine Workers who did so much to humanize the conditions in that industry.

In the law, Iowa was the first State in the Union to admit a woman to the practice of law, Arabella Mansfield, in 1869. Iowa University's Law School was the first public law school to graduate a woman, Mary Beth Hickey, in 1873.

As for the environment, Iowans such as J. "Ding" Darling and Frederick Leopold brought early awareness of the planet's fragility.

The arts have always been at the center of Iowa's life. The Czechoslovakian composer Anton Dvorak spent summers in Spillville and wrote his symphony "From the New World" there. Since then, Iowa has given such classical voices as those of Simon Estes, Emmy Award winner Mary Beth Peil, and Dame Margaret Roberti, to the world's stages. Roberti, a.k.a. Margaret Jean Nobis, opened the season at La Scala more times than Maria Callas and sang the lead in more Verdi operas than anyone in operatic history. She is the only American opera singer ever knighted by the Italian Government.

Jazz immortal Bix Beiderbecke also was from Iowa, as was bandleader Glenn Miller, singer Andy Williams, the original music man—Meredith Willson—and, for a time, the Violist, Sir William Primrose.

Grant Wood was born in Iowa and made the people and landscapes of his home State famous as he pioneered American regionalist art. The printmaker Mauricio Lasansky found a home at the University of Iowa. His haunting depictions of the Holocaust have helped keep alive the memory of the millions lost in Nazi death camps.

Iowans have always loved the written and spoken word. The University of Iowa has long been home to the world famous Creative Writers Workshop, founded by the poet Paul Eagle. The novelists Flannery O'Connor and John Irving among others too numerous to mention chose to live for a time in Iowa City and finished further workshop participation.

Iowa also claims the novelists MacKinlay Kantor and Wallace Stegner, as well as the playwright David Rabe. And two recent Pulitzer Prize winners, Jane Smiley and Jorie Graham, teach at our State universities, the former at Iowa State, the latter at the University of Iowa.

As for the press, journalists like Hugh Sidey, Harry Reasoner, Tom Brokaw, George Mills and Don Kaul have ennobled their profession with common sense, historical perspective, and thoughtful wit.

The actors Cloris Leachman and Marion Morrison—better know as that icon of American manhood John Wayne—are from Iowa, as is Donna Reed and the original superman, George Reeves.

John Ringling and his brothers ran away from Iowa to found a circus, and Johnny Carson is an Iowan familiar to a generation of insomniacs.

Jack Trice, Nile Kinnick, Bob Feller, Roger Craig, Dan Gable, and Gayle Hopkins are just a few of the world class athletes Iowa has produced.

Where to put Buffalo Bill Cody on a list of eminent Iowans is unclear, but he certainly belongs there. So do the Friedman twins from Sioux City, who, writing as Abigail Van Buren and Ann Landers, have touched the lives of millions of Americans.

In the final analysis, making lists like this is fun, if dangerous. Invariably many who belong on it are overlooked.

Moreover, Iowans know that such lists are ultimately beside the point. They understand that the important people in all of our lives are the family members, friends, and neighbors who make our communities home. What Iowa is for its citizens who have gathered here in Washington and who will gather throughout the State this year for similar events is a celebration of Mid-American values of home and country.

Our country's greatness resides in no small part in the particular virtues of each of the 50 States that are the pluribus that make our unum. This summer, on the Capitol Mall and in our cities and towns, Iowa is celebrating its unique contribution to our Untied States. All are welcome to join in.

TRIBUTE TO DR. CARL F. EIFLER

HON. SAM FARR

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. FARR, of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a man who has not only served his country as a U.S. Army colonel but his community, in Monterey County, CA, for the past 75 years. Dr.Carl F. Eifler is a living legend who is today celebrating his 90th birthday.

Dr. Eifler has led a distinguished life. He joined the Army in 1922 at 15, but was honorably discharged 2 years later when his age was discovered. Eifler later reenlisted with the Army Reserves. His service during WWII was unmatched. He was the commander of the first special agents to operate behind enemy lines, and participated in a number of heroic acts. The developer of training techniques still in use to this day, Eifler helped save more than 200 downed airmen, transported the first captured Japanese pilot from enemy territory and led a special team whose mission was to kidnap a prominent German scientist working on development of the atomic bomb for his country—though the plan was abandoned when the United States invented its own atomic bomb. In 1943, Eifler was successful in rescuing nine survivors from a crashed B–24 bomber, after taking over an unarmed patrol boat no less.

Eifler's daring WWII rescues have earned him numerous honors. He was awarded a Purple Heart, inducted into the Military Intelligence Hall of Fame, and presented with the William Donovan Award by the Veterans of the Office of Strategic Services, whose previous recipients include Ronald Reagan and George Bush. And most recently, Eifler was recommended for the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Due to an injury sustained in the line of duty, Eifler retired in 1947. However, his postwar achievements are worthy of praised as well. He went on to earn a bachelor of divinity degree and a doctorate in psychology. Following, Eifler served as chief psychologist for the Monterey Department of Public Health in the mental health division from 1964–73.

The above lists of accomplishments which Dr. Eifler has attained are only part of the reason for this tribute to an exceptional man. His outstanding heroism, leadership, and lifetime dedication are truly admirable and are the main reasons we recognize him today, on his 90th birthday. I know I am speaking for all of my constituents when I say that we are lucky to have benefited from Dr. Eifler's service to his country.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OLD STURBRIDGE VILLAGE ON ITS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. RICHARD E. NEAL

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, today it is with great pleasure that I pay tribute to the largest history museum in the northeast on its 50th anniversary, Old Sturbridge Village. Nestled in the small New England community of Sturbridge, MA, Old Sturbridge Village is an outdoor history museum and recreated village that tells the story of everyday life in a rural New England town during 1830's.

Old Sturbridge Village is a composite New England town displaying the various aspects of several communities of the 1830's. The museum was founded by Albert, Cheney, and George B. Wells as an outgrowth of the family's extensive collection of antiques. Old Sturbridge Village first opened to the public on June 8, 1946, with 81 visitors touring the village. Today the nonprofit educational institution boasts more than 435,000 visitors yearly and 100,000 pieces in its collection of antiques documenting New England's past.

Mr. Speaker, this year Old Sturbridge Village is celebrating its first half-century as the region's premier living history museum recreating in lively fashion the important period in American history between 1790 to 1850. For nearly 50 years a historically costumed staff has reenacted the daily work activities and community celebrations of a rural 19th-century town for thousands of children and adults alike.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to recognize the achievements of Old Sturbridge Village in its attempt to provide modern Americans with a deepend understanding of their own times through a personal experience with New England's past. By visualizing what moved the men and women of prior generations, Old Sturbridge Village has for 50 years shed light on Americans as they attempted to act, believe, and build the future of America. Congratulations to Old Sturbridge Village on its 50th anniversary.

LEXINGTON AND CANADA: INDEPENDENCE WITH TOGETHERNESS

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, as we prepare to celebrate July 4th, our Independence Day, it is important to reflect upon the fact that our struggle for independence was not the only one. In fact, our achievement of independence often served as a magnet for those seeking the richness of freedom for which our forefathers selflessly fought.

On Saturday, July 6, Lexington, MI, will be holding its Annual Independence Day Parade. This year, the village of Lexington has declared that July 6th will be recognized as "Canada Day," out of respect for the Canadians that contributed to the development of Lexington. In the 1830's, many Canadians came to the United States, and to Lexington in particular, to escape a political struggle in their old homeland. They contributed to the growth of Lexington, which was originally known as "Greenbush," but was renamed as Lexington in 1842 in honor of the American Revolution.

People of Canadian heritage have been a significant part of Lexington's population. In fact, as early as 1850, one-third of the village's population had actually been born in Canada. That proud heritage continues through the present day with many of Lexington's residents, including the parade's Grand Marshall Philomena Falls, having a chance this year to specifically celebrate their Canadian heritage.

Next week Canada herself will be ably represented at the festivities by The Honorable

Mike Bradley, major of Sarnia, Ontario, Mr. Joe Mills of the Royal Canadian Legion, and a color guard of the Royal Canadian Legion. I want to join all the people of Lexington in extending a very warm welcome to our Canadian friends.

Mr. Speaker, independence is special. The freedom that we have from independence can never be equaled. But our independence provides us with special opportunities for togetherness—togetherness with those who joined in our struggles to gain or maintain our freedom, or who on their own fought for a freedom very similar to our own. I urge you and all of our colleagues to join me in wishing the people of Lexington the very best as they celebrate Independence Day.

SUPPORT FOR DURHAM CENTER ALTERNATIVE BASED LEARNING EXPERIENCE

HON. ELIZABETH FURSE

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Ms. FURSE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support alternative schools across our nation, and to highlight the Durham Center alternative based learning experience [ABLE] located in Tigard, OR. The ABLE program is offered by the Tigard-Tualatin School District's 21st Century Academy and provides education, support, and job seeking assistance to students like Denise Saavedra who struggled through high school and is the mother of a 2-year-old child. Denise, at age 20 is the first one in their family to graduate from high school and has learned firsthand about the value of an education and the ABLE program. The education and tools she has received through ABLE will better prepare her and open more doors for her as she seeks employment. She will be better qualified to compete in the job market and to financially support herself and her child.

There are many stories like that of Denise Saavedra. Many young people drop out of high school for reasons ranging from teen pregnancy to problems with fitting in. That is why it is so important for us to invest in alternative schools, such as the ABLE program, which provide an option for young people to go back and get their high school diploma in a welcoming environment. Without alternative schools, many young people such as Denise would not have the opportunity to obtain her high school diploma. I urge my colleagues to continue supporting funding for alternative schools.

CAMPUS SECURITY ACT RESOLUTION INTRODUCED

HON. HOWARD P. "BUCK" McKEON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Speaker, today Mr. GOODLING and I have introduced a House Resolution dealing with the Student Right to Know and Campus Security Act.

On June 6, 1996, the Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education, Training and Life-Long Learning held a hearing with respect to the Issue of campus crime. We were particularly interested in hearing about the Department of Education's implementation of Section 485(f) of the Higher Education Act, known as the Campus Security Act of 1990.

The Student Right to Know and Campus Security Act signed into law by President Bush required colleges and universities throughout the United States to provide their students information on campus crime statistics and school policies related to campus security. This was a first step in providing students necessary information if they were to protect themselves from becoming victims of campus crime.

During the course of the hearing, some concerns were raised that colleges and universities were not accurately reporting their crime statistics. In addition, several witnesses did not believe that the Department of Education considered the enforcement of the Campus Security Act a priority.

The resolution we have introduced today directs the Department of Education to make the monitoring of compliance and enforcement of the provisions of the Campus Security Act a priority of the Department. It is imperative that colleges and universities comply with the requirements of the Campus Security Act and the Department of Education needs to give priority status to their enforcement responsibilities if we are going to accomplish our goal of protecting students from crime on our Nation's college campuses.

INTRODUCTION OF CAMPUS SECURITY ACT

HON. WILLIAM F. GOODLING

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, today Mr. MCKEON and I have introduced a House resolution dealing with the Student Right To Know and Campus Security Act.

During the 101st Congress, we enacted the Student Right To Know and Campus Security Act, which called on colleges and universities throughout the United States to provide their students information on campus crime statistics and school policies related to campus security. This information has been provided to students since September 1, 1992, but too many students continue to fall victim to campus crimes.

As students arrive on campuses across the United States, many for the first time, they will be caught up in the excitement of meeting other students, settling into their classes, and the overall enjoyment of college life. They will give little thought to the possible dangers which exist on college campuses. That's why it is imperative that colleges and universities provide students with accurate and complete data with respect to crime trends on campus and security precautions which will help students from becoming victims.

At a hearing this month before the Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education, Training and Life-Long Learning we heard testimony that called into question compliance with the Campus Security Act by colleges and universities across the country, as well as, its enforcement by the Department of Education.

The resolution we have introduced today directs the Department of Education to give priority to the monitoring of compliance and enforcement of the provisions of the Campus Security Act. Congress enacted this law to protect students, but for that to happen, the law needs to be complied with honestly and completely. The Department of Education has the responsibility for ensuring this compliance, and if we hope to protect our students as envisioned when the law was adopted, the Department needs to give priority status to this responsibility.

TRIBUTE TO KERRY P. HEIN AMERICAN LEGION POST NO. 1991

HON. MICHAEL P. FORBES

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the Kerry P. Hein American Legion Post in Rocky Point, Long Island, NY, founded 5 years ago to honor the memory of CWO Kerry P. Hein, who gave his life in service to America on February 27, 1991, while serving in Operation Desert Storm. Hein was a resident of Sound Beach, on Suffolk County's North Shore, and was the only Long Island resident to die in the Persian Gulf war.

Founded in 1991 as America's first Desert Storm post, the Kerry P. Hein American Legion Post No. 1991 honors the Army medivac helicopter pilot who was shot down over Kuwait just 1 day before the cease-fire was declared in the Persian Gulf war. It was shortly after Hein's death that World War II veteran Fred Denninger of Middle Island was inspired to establish the new American Legion post to honor Hein while serving the many veterans living in the communities surrounding Rocky Point.

With the help of other veterans, including but not limited to Ron Libonati, Mike Cutrone, Harold Cases, Frank Devine, and Tom Peppard, the Kerry P. Hein American Legion Post received its permanent charter from the National American Legion Command on July 27, 1992. It received its New York State charter on August 6 of that same year.

Beginning with 54 charter founders, the Kerry P. Hein Post now boasts 137 members from the North Shore communities of Brookhaven and Riverhead towns. One of those inaugural members is Hein's grandfather, James Coneely, who visits area schools to talk to young students about patriotism and the role of the American Legion. Because of its distinction as the only Desert Storm post, it has also attracted membership from throughout Long Island and America, and from as far away as Puerto Rico and Australia.

The Kerry P. Hein Post was assigned number 1991 to signify three historical acts; it was the year Hein died and when the post was founded, but also to pay tribute to the 50th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor that drew America into World War II.

Kerry Hein was born in Queens, NY, and grew up in Sound Beach. In 1987, he joined the U.S. Army Reserve, completed basic training at Fort Jackson, SC, then received a bachelor of science in aeronautical studies from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Florida. He was assigned to the 348th Medical Detachment in Daytona, where he served until July 1989, and ultimately rose to the rank of sergeant. After completing the Rotor Wing Aviator Course at Fort Rucker, AL, Hein was commissioned a warrant officer and accepted an opportunity to serve on active duty.

Hein served in Operation Desert Storm with the 507th Medical Company, flying air ambulance helicopters that removed wounded soldiers from the battlefield under enemy fire. He was killed in action during the waning moments of Operation Desert Storm while flying a helicopter rescue into the Kuwaiti battlefield. The medivac helicopter pilot was posthumously promoted to Chief Warrant Officer 2 and received numerous battlefield honors, including the Purple Heart, Conspicuous Service Cross, Kuwait Liberation Medal and Army Commendation Medal.

Hein is survived by his wife, Laura, daughter Melissa, and son Christopher, who was born 2 months after his father's death. Hein was buried in Calverton National Cemetery on Long Island, near his hometown, with full military honors.

Along with the American Legion post in Rocky Point, the 77th U.S. Army Reserve Command [ARCOM] located on route 25A in Rocky Point was named in Hein's memory. During Operation Desert Storm, 3,400 soldiers from the 77th ARCOM served in the Persian Gulf. Also renamed in Hein's memory was New York Avenue, the main thoroughfare in Sound Beach. Other memorials include a walkway at Armed Forces Plaza in Hauppauge, Suffolk County's seat, and a helipad at Fort Hood in Mexia, TX.

These eponymous tribes are just a modest recognition of the sacrifice and service that Kerry P. Hein offered America, a small measure of the gratitude we owe these men and women who gave their lives for this country. For generations to come, these tributes will serve to remind all Americans that freedom does not come without cost, that the liberty we all enjoy was paid for with blood of men and women like Kerry P. Hein.

TRIBUTE TO SISTER JANET A. FITZGERALD

HON. PETER T. KING

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to salute one of Long Island's most dedicated and accomplished educators, Sister Janet A. Fitzgerald, O.P., Ph.D. After serving as president of Molloy College in Rockville Centre, NY since 1972, Sister Janet has announced her resignation. Sister Janet's tenure of almost 24 years was longer than that of any other Molloy president. Nearly 85 percent of Molloy's 8,500 graduates earned their degrees during Sister Janet's term in office.

Coming to Molloy 27 years ago, Sister Janet taught in the philosophy department. She became president in 1972 and served in that capacity until this year. Following the completion of a well-deserved sabbatical, Sister Janet will return to Molloy to once again teach philosophy.

Under Sister Janet's leadership, Molloy College grew dramatically. Enrollment has more than doubled and the number of faculty has increased from 73 full-time and 27 part-time in 1972 to 136 full-time and 142 part-time for the 1995–96 academic year. As president, Sister Janet oversaw the construction of three new campus buildings: The Wilbur Arts Center, the Chapel of the Sacred Heart, and the William J. Casey Center. During her presidency, extensive renovation and modernization were done to both Kellenberg and Quealy Halls.

Molloy College also expanded its academic offerings during Sister Janet's administration Twenty-one majors were created and in 1989, Molloy offered its first graduate program, the M.S. in Nursing. Molloy has also added three additional M.S. programs in nursing.

On a personal level Sister Janet and I both grew up in the Sunnyside/Woodside neighborhood in Queens, NY. Sister Janet certainly epitomizes the qualities which were prized in our neighborhood—courage and strength of purpose.

Sister Janet Fitzgerald is truly one of Long Island's greatest assets and one of our Nation's greatest educators. She compiled an outstanding record as president of Molloy College and deserves a debt of gratitude from all of us. I wish Sister Janet all the best and hope that she enjoys her sabbatical, but I know that she will be eager to get back to the classroom.

COLLEGE COSTS SKYROCKET

HON. JOSEPH P. KENNEDY II

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, 122 years ago, the great English leader Benjamin Disraeli spoke to the British House of Commons proclaiming the virtues of education. His words, "Upon the education of the people of this country the fate of this country depends", manifested his realization that a knowledgeable population represented a key to continued national success.

Today, with the cost of higher education skyrocketing out of control and threatening soon to move beyond the reach of the average American family, Disraeli's statement is one that we should remember.

In the 14 years ending in 1993, colleges boosted tuitions over 200 percent. Private school tuitions rose an astonishing 220 percent and public school tuitions increased 218 percent during that same period. The rates of increase represent growth that has outstripped that of medical care by more than 40 percent and the Consumer Price Index [CPI] by over 150 percent, according to a 1993 Business Week magazine article.

Correspondingly, family median income rose only 54 percent during that same 14-year period. What the aforementioned figures indicate, simply, is that the current cost explosion of higher education is quickly threatening to make one of the major institutions that promotes American economic and social strength unaffordable for the average American family.

There are several apparent factors behind the rise in the cost of higher education at a 4-year university or college. Competition for students and faculty alike has jumped considerably, and schools have struggled to keep their campuses in top condition. To remain attractive, colleges and universities are forced to add "quality of life" services to their campuses, such as new athletic equipment or facilities. Colleges are often judged, unfairly or not, on whether there is new construction on campus.

This competition has not, as might have been expected, reduced prices all around, but actually served to sustain them, as universities spent millions trying to upgrade their facilities to be state of the art in order to attract the best.

Tuitions stayed high as the institutions expanded, yet in the opinion of many pundits, the value of the resulting educations declined. Perceptions about the decreased value of higher education are also relevant due to what Dean Breneman of the University of Virginia terms the "Chivas Regal effect". Breneman's theory asserts that many college applicants feel that a high price tag on an education reflects its quality. Consequently, families agreed to pay the exponentially increasing fees for what they believed to be a better education, and what truly amounted to one of decreasing quality.

While the universities were busy hiking prices, the Federal Government was reducing its financial aid to families. The number of Federal grants has been cut, in many cases replaced by loans.

Over half of the $47 billion in financial aid made available by the Fedeal Government in 1994–1995 came in the form of loans. In 1994, our Government recorded over $23 billion in loan and grant requests. Clearly this astronomical amount of requests represented a cry for help from an American people fearful that their chance at the American dream is passing them by.

Most students graduating from college in the latter years of the nineties expect to carry a personal debt burden of between $15,000 and $20,000. Such large amounts of debt hinders and discourages workers entering the workforce. Businesses have traditionally offered only nominal and insignificant support for such debt repayment, and thus have encouraged low employee commitment and high employee turnaround.

For example, Nellie Mae, a non-profit student loan organization, promotes cooperation between businesses and students. The group has developed a Federal bill that seeks to expand so-called "cafeteria-type" benefits plans. Under the plan, students would be able to choose student-loan repayment as an option on their company benefits plan.

I strongly urge Congress to look at the daunting predicament in which America's higher education system now finds itself, realize its responsibility to preserve the education and status of the Nation, and recognize Disraeli's lasting reminder as an urgent call to action.

TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH S. O'KEEFE

HON. JAMES M. TALENT

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. TALENT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge Elizabeth S. O'Keefe of Whitfield School, one of the winners of the 1996 Toyota Tapestry program.

The Toyota Tapestry program, which is administered by the National Science Teachers Association, began 5 years ago and has awarded more than $1.6 million in grants to teachers in the United States. Each year, 40 outstanding K–12 grade teachers are given grants of up to $10,000 to implement innovative 1-year programs to enhance science education in their schools. The winning teachers have developed projects that demonstrate creativity, involve risk-taking, possesses visionary qualities, and model a unique way of presenting science.

Ms. O'Keefe's winning project was to develop a unique study on ground water in caves. Because caves are void of photosynthetic organisms and litter, the water contains dissolved nutrients as well as herbicides and pesticides that percolate through rock and soil layers into cave streams. Rivers and springs are tested for pollutants; however, there is no systematic evaluation of pollution in cave water. O'Keefe's seventh grade classes will collect and evaluate water samples from 10 cave sites that were tested over 20 years ago, and determine what environmental and geological changes have occurred over this period.

Mr. Speaker, it is an honor and a privilege for me to pay tribute to Elizabeth O'Keefe, and commend her upon her efforts in ensuring the next generation a quality foundation from where they can pursue their ambitions. I join the National Science Teachers's Association in honoring the excellent work that she has been able to accomplish.

IMPROVE THE SAFETY OF OUR FEDERAL WORKERS

HON. JACK QUINN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. QUINN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my concern regarding the safety of our Nation's Government workers and urge the Congress to move forward in taking steps to protect these individuals as well as the integrity of our Federal facilities. Government workers, in our Nation's Capital and beyond, are vulnerable to acts of terrorism, both domestic and international as was tragically illustrated by the bombings that occurred in Oklahoma City last year, and Saudi Arabia earlier this week.

On June 28, 1995, immediately following the Oklahoma City bombing, President Clinton issued a memorandum directing the General Services Administration [GSA] to upgrade all Federal facilities with minimum security standards outlined in a Department of Justice study entitled "Vulnerability Assessment of Federal Facilities." One of the minimum security standards highlighted in the study is the retrofitting of security window film in all Federal facilities. I remember all too well, as I am sure we all do, the horrible pictures and film clips on the evening news of the victims in the bombing bloodied by the shards of glass that were propelled like bullets toward them when the widows of the building were blown out buy the blast. Even more devastating were the images of the babies and small children in the Federal day care facility who were severely injured and killed by the impact of the explosion.

This technology will help us to avoid additional injuries or deaths in the future. Almost all of our Embassies, both here and abroad utilize security window film. The White House has it, the Pentagon has it, FEMA has it, and many of the museums in the Smithsonian have it. I concur with the President that before another tragedy occurs, all Government buildings should have it.

It is my hope that we may move forward with improving the safety of our Federal workers who are disproportionately at risk of being victim to a terrorist act. I am aware that the GSA commissioned a study regarding the effectiveness of security window film and that the Department of Justice, Department of State and the Department of the Army have already conducted research that supported the use of window film for the purposes outlined in the President's memorandum. I urge GSA to promptly develop and implement a plan and budget for the upgrade of Federal facilities. The safety of our Government workers and their children hang in the balance.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF EMMANUEL BAPTIST CHURCH

HON. JOHN P. MURTHA

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity before my fellow Members of the House of Representatives to congratulate the pastor and congregation of the Emmanuel Baptist Church as it celebrates its 100th anniversary on July 5 through July 7, 1996. This small but high-impact community institution deserves national recognition for its century of dedication to the simple but essential American values of faith, family and community.

Throughout the years as Johnstown has endured hardship and tragedy of various types, from floods to the Great Depression, the Nation's wars, as well as more recent economic hard times and crippling unemployment, the Emmanuel Baptist Church has been a source of support and sustenance, spiritually and otherwise, to generations.

Emmanuel Baptist was organized on July 15, 1896 in the Grand Army of the Republic Hall in downtown Johnstown, PA.

For 10 years, the congregation met in the Hall until a new church was built on Poplar Street. In 1959, the church relocated to its present site at 425 Luther Road in Richland Township. The congregation has been served by one pastor, the Reverend Ray Streets, Sr., for the past 42 years. His son, the Reverend Ray Streets, Jr., currently serves with him as associate pastor.

The church teaches 19 Sunday School classes, of which 5 are for adults. It also provides other educational programs for children. One is for kids ages 3 through 12, and another, Impact Ministry, is geared toward junior- and senior-high students and encompasses such activities as drama, music and gymnastics. I congratulate church members Chris Taylor, Pam and Jeff Weaver, and Bill Kagey for their dedication to these programs and to the children of their community.

Several members of the Emmanuel Baptist church also serve as full-time missionaries. Yet another vital community service provided by the church is its Elijah's Pantry. Run by members Rita and John Marsden, it ministers to needy families.

I am honored to know many of the members of this congregation, and to be able to congratulate Emmanuel Baptist Church on this day. May the church grow and prosper for another 100 years.

AMERICAN MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY DESERVES FEDERAL SUPPORT

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I am concerned about yesterday's decision during consideration of the VA–HUD independent agencies appropriations bill for fiscal year 1997 to remove funding for the National Center for Science Literacy, Education, and Technology at the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

With more than 200 professional scientists and unbeatable resources and capabilities, the museum is positioned to provide the highest level of return on our country's investment in NASA's mission to planet Earth, in translating and extending scientific findings to the general public. This project is not local but national in scope. The museum and its Hayden Planetarium interact with more than 3 million visitors annually from every State in the country. It already welcomes more than 500,000 children each year and its laudable goal is to reach schools and families throughout the Nation using the most advanced 21st century technology.

There is little doubt that we must do a better job to ensure that our children have the highest available level of scientific understanding as it relates to our own planet. This project will do precisely that.

Mr. Speaker, we will still have an opportunity to restore the funds in the House-Senate conference on this bill. And, I would urge the House conferees to support a $13 million investment by the Federal Government in this $135 million center, which has already raised more then $70 million from a number of host State, host city, and private sources.

CROATIA CELEBRATES ANTI-FASCIST STRUGGLE COMMEMORATION DAY

HON. GEORGE P. RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, just last Saturday on June 22, Croatia celebrated its participation in the World War II antifascist movement. The Anti-Fascist Struggle Commemoration Day, a national holiday in Croatia, has been a tremendous success and courageous recognition of that ever-important victory over international tyranny some 50 years ago. I would like to formally recognize this event here in the United States House of Representatives, and commend Croatia for her gracious and dedicated efforts to securing and preserving world peace.

THE ANTI-FASCIST MOVEMENT IN CROATIA

Every June 22nd since independence, Croatia has celebrated its participation in the World War II anti-fascist movement. The national holiday, Anti-Fascist Struggle Commemoration Day, marks the day on which in 1941 Vlado Janic led forty Croatian anti-fascists from the town of Sisak to fight against fascism, marking the beginning of the anti-fascist struggle in Croatia.

The President of Croatia, Dr. Franjo Tudjman, one of the few European statesmen who is a veteran of the World War II anti-fascist movement, has said on many occasions that the anti-fascist struggle greatly contributed to establishing the foundations of a modern, democratic Croatia.

The following factors should be considered when examining Croatia's role in the anti-fascist struggle:

The Croatian anti-fascist movement was among the strongest, not only in former Yugoslavia, but also Europe;

Croatian resistance forces, as part of the democratic coalition of anti-fascist powers, participated in the victory over fascism;

Croatians led the Croatian and South Slavic antifascist movement;

The resistance led to the creation of the Federal State of Croatia by ZAVNOH (Anti-Fascist Council of National Liberation of Croatia), constitutional foundations of federalism, and the constitutional and legal basis for Croatians independence today; and

The guiding principles of the anti-fascist movement form an integral part of the preamble of the Croatian Constitution.

Croatia takes pride in the fact that one of the first organized resistance units occupied Europe was Croatian. The Sisak resistance unit engaged in several diversions on the Zagreb-Belgrade railway, and by mid-September of 1941 had grown to 77 fighters. By the end of 1941, 7,000 Croatian anti-fascists had joined the armed partisan movement, rising to 25,000 a year later, and to 100,000 following the capitulation of Italy. By the end of the Second World War the number reached 150,000. The overall number of Croatian citizens that participated in the anti-fascist struggle is estimated at 471,836, of which two-thirds were Croats.

Last year, to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the victory of the anti-fascist coalition in Europe, the Croatian Parliament published a report that records the history of the anti-fascist movement in Croatia from the 1920s onwards.

The recognition of Croatia's participation in the anti-fascist movement is one of the pillars of a strategy aimed at national reconciliation. Towards this end, President Tudjman laid a wreath at the memorial site in Jasenovac on June 15, 1996 to pay homage to the victims at the Jasenovac camp, a camp which has come to symbolize the evils of fascism and communism. President Tudjman said; "I have laid the wreath as Croatia's President in memory of all victims of Jascnovac; for the victims of fascism and the NDH (Independent State of Croatia), but also for those who were executed by the communist regime".

CIVIL RIGHTS PROCEDURES PROTECTION ACT

HON. PATRICIA SCHROEDER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, today I and my colleague, Representative MARKEY, are introducing the Civil Rights Procedures Protection Act, which reasserts the rights of employees to take their employers to court for unlawful discrimination.

This legislation would prevent employers from requiring employees to check their rights as American citizens at the front door and agree to submit, sometimes unknowingly, to binding mandatory arbitration as a term or condition of hiring, continued employment, or promotion.

What started as a practice mainly in the securities industry has now spread to a significant number of Fortune 500 companies. The General Accounting Office estimates that in 5 years, over half of all employees in the United States may be bound by mandatory arbitration contracts.

Mandatory arbitration forces employees to choose between their employment and their civil and constitutional rights, such as trial by jury and due process. Employees are forced to submit to arbitration boards that are often set up in a discriminatory fashion. For example, in the securities industry, boards are handpicked by the executives from the industry, who choose from a pool dominated by their peers. They are hardly neutral. Employees also face difficulties in obtaining injunctions, bringing class action suits, and conducting meaningful pretrial factfinding because employers hold most files and information.

My bill would amend seven Federal civil rights and workplace fairness statutes to make it clear that the powers and procedures available under those laws are the exclusive ones that apply to a claim that arises. It does not condemn alternative dispute resolution; it makes it clear that an employee can voluntarily choose to submit a case to arbitration after the claim arises.

Since my first introduction of this bill, a number of women have brought stories to my attention about their own dealings with mandatory arbitration, which highlight the need for change. One such case involved a woman who attempted to bring a charge of age discrimination. She had worked at a clerical position with a company for 13 years and was 58 years of age when her job was terminated. She applied for another job within the company for which she was well-qualified. The job went to a younger woman who had been with the company for only 3 years and had no training or experience. She initiated a complaint under the company's internal appeals process. After enduring three rounds of appeals, the woman was dissatisfied with what she felt were the appeal boards inaccurate and inconsistent conclusions. But she cannot seek appeal outside of the company because she signed a waiver, revoking her right to trial by jury.

Mr. Speaker, when voluntary, arbitration and mediation can be an efficient and effective method of resolving differences and reducing the courtloads of civil and criminal courts. But the key word is voluntary. No one should be forced to choose between their job and their civil rights. This bill restores integrity to employee-employer relationships.

LEGISLATIVE PAY EQUITY STUDY

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, as cochair of the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues, I am introducing legislation to institute a Legislative Pay Equity Study. As part of the Economic Equity Act, this bill will be one of a package of bills to promote economic equity for women to be introduced by the Caucus in July.

Fifty years have passed since women were found to earn 65 percent of men's wages in 1946. Neither time nor legislation was dramatically improved this inequity: In 1991, women were still found to earn 70 cents for every dollar men earned. During the nearly five decades that passed between those two studies, many women have moved into traditionally male-dominated professions in the work force. Yet their salaries remain significantly lower than those of men—even though women often do the same work as their male counterparts.

The Equal Pay Act was passed in 1963 in order to prevent just such discrimination toward women. Calling for equal pay for equal work, this law made it illegal for women to earn less than men for the same labor. Unfortunately, pay inequity persists. One reason is that women often do different work than men, making it possible for employers to pay unequal salaries for theoretically unequal work. Even the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which promised to end discrimination based on gender, race, or ethnicity, failed to bring an end to wage discrimination. It is evident that our laws have not achieved equality in the work force.

I am introducing this bill today in order to end wage discrimination within the legislative branch and to better understand why women remain consistently underpaid in comparison to men. With this information, recommendations could be made as to how workers within the legislative branch could be more equitably paid. This bill is identical to the legislation introduced in earlier Congresses by Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE.

My proposed legislation would create a bipartisan commission to determine if the salaries of the employees of the legislative branch correspond to the actual work they do. Having studied the compensation within and between job classifications as well as personnel policies, an independent consultant could determine whether they comply with title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Title VII states that equal work as well as work of equal value should be equally compensated. With this information, recommendations could be made by the commission to apply title VII to the entire legislative branch. It is my hope that the changes made in the legislative branch would inspire and instigate changes to be made in the entire nation's work force.

At a time when there is a continuing concern over the small number of women employed in the fields of math, science, and athletics, it is imperative that it not be forgotten that women's wages still remain below those of men. When women are confident that their salaries will correspond to their work, they will no longer be hesitant to enter professions traditionally dominated men. I invite you to join me in supporting this legislation so that women will have the freedom to choose their career knowing that they will bring home the wage that they deserve.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. ELIOT L. ENGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I was necessarily absent during roll call votes 207 through 210 and 222 through 224. If present, I would have voted 'aye' on roll call 207, 'aye' on roll call 208, 'aye' on roll call 209, 'no' on roll call 210, 'aye' on roll call 222, 'aye' on roll call 223, and 'aye' on roll call 224.

WESTSIDE LIGHT RAIL AND H.R. 3675

HON. ELIZABETH FURSE

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. FURSE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman WOLF and members of the subcommittee for excellent work in crafting a bipartisan fiscal year 1997 transportation bill. On behalf of the board coalition in Oregon which enthusiastically endorses Westside Light Rail, my thanks to the entire subcommittee for including $90 million for this important project in H.R. 3675.

Earlier this year, as I have for 4 years in a row, I organized a diverse group to testify in Congress in support of the Westside/Hillsboro project. Representatives of private sector groups, local officials, and public organizations continue to strongly support Westside Light Rail in Oregon. As I have noted for a number of years, Westside Light Rail's record of support from Oregonians themselves speaks for itself: in the 1990's, Oregon taxpayers have voted to put their own money into light rail by margins of 65 percent and 74 percent. It is clear that Westside Light Rail's impressive local support was key to the subcommittee's decision to keep this project on track.

Work is progressing on Westside Light Rail throughout my district. Earlier this year, I attended the holing-through of one of the two 3 mile tunnels through Portland's West Hills—a major milestone in the construction of the Westside project. In fact, all the benefits of Westside Light Rail which I have touted in Congress for 4 years—the reduced congestion, the economic development, the tie-in with local and State land use laws—are closer to reality with each passing day.

Mr. Chairman, let me add that light rail in Oregon enjoys bipartisan support. Regardless of who has controlled the House of Representatives, I have secured record funding for Westside Light Rail for 4 straight years. My colleague from Oregon, Mr. BUNN, has worked very diligently on including language in H.R. 3675 for the South/North light rail line. I look forward to working with all members of the Oregon delegation during the reauthorization of ISTEA to help secure authorizing language for the South/North light rail project in 1997.

Again, Chairman WOLF, members of the subcommittee, thank you for your past support of the Westside/Hillsboro project. I urge all Members of the House to support H.R. 3675.

TRIBUTE TO MARY B. HENRY

HON. JULIAN C. DIXON

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. JUANITA MILLENDER-McDONALD

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. MAXINE WATERS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. DIXON. Mr. Speaker, today we pay tribute to Mary B. Henry, a distinguished Californian and friend, who has served the Los Angeles community with distinction for over 30 years. Currently executive director of the Avalon-Carver Community Center, where she began her career in 1963, Mary B. Henry has worked diligently to enhance the quality of life in the community and enrich the educational lives of our young people. Ms. Henry's commitment to and accomplishments in the field of education, and her tireless work with various community and civic organizations remind us of just how much of a difference one person can make in the lives of others.

Ms. Henry has spent over three decades expanding her knowledge and imparting her wisdom in a variety of venues. She was elected to the Compton Unified School District Board, serving an unprecedented three terms as president of the Board. As an educational training consultant she has been affiliated with a number of universities. She has trained and conducted seminars in community relations at the University of California at Los Angeles, San Diego, and Santa Barbara; the University of Southern California; and Pacific Oaks College, among others. She has also lent her expertise to organizations such as Operation Head Start.

Over the years, Ms. Henry has been affiliated with numerous educational, service, and professional organizations, including the California Center for Community Development; Legislative Committee to the State Department of Social Welfare; Women's Job Core Advisory Board; Citizen's Committee for Community Action; EYOA Head Start Task Force; and the California Committee on Regional Medical Programs. She has served as a commissioner of the Southeast General Hospital Authority and as a board member of the Los Angeles Urban Coalition. She is currently affiliated with the California Department of Health and Welfare Committee on Minority Incarceration and the Lutheran World Federation Community Development Committee among others.

Mary Henry's outstanding career has not been unnoticed. She is the recipient of numerous awards and honors. Among them: the Los Angeles Times Woman of the Year Award, 1967; Parent-Teacher Association Outstanding Achievement in Community Service Award; Doctorate of Humanities form Windsor University, Los Angeles; and Doctor of Laws, Honoris Causa, from the University of Santa Clara, California. At the State level, she has been honored by the California State Assembly, Governor Jerry Brown, and the California State Senate. At the national level her contributions have been recognized over the years by Presidents John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Jimmy Carter, Vice President Hubert Humphrey, and Members of Congress.

On Saturday, July 13, 1996, friends and colleagues of Ms. Mary B. Henry will gather at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles to pay tribute to this outstanding public servant for her untiring commitment to our community. Her life serves as an inspiration to us all. We are honored to share this brief glimpse of a very remarkable individual, and to ask our colleagues to join us and our fellow Los Angelenos in saluting Mary Henry.

SISTER KATHERINE MURPHY—50 YEARS OF SERVICE

HON. BART STUPAK

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, it is indeed, an honor for me to bring to the attention of the U.S. House of Representatives and this Nation the celebration of 50 years of devotion to the Sisters of Mercy of Sister Katherine Murphy. The parishioners of St. Francis Catholic Church in Traverse City, MI, the community, her religious order, and the Church, as a whole, have been blessed by her long and dedicated service. This Sunday, June 30, 1996, Sister Katherine will be the guest of honor at a parish dinner.

Born in Detroit, MI, on March 8, 1930, Sister Katherine was the only child of Mae Florence (Henry) and Daniel Murphy. As Sister Katherine's life demonstrates, the Irish heritage is strong in faith and family.

Not long after Sister Katherine's birth, the family moved to Dearborn, MI, where she was enrolled at the Sacred Heart School through the ninth grade. Sacred Heart School was staffed by the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary and in the eighth grade she was first exposed to the idea of serving and living her Catholic faith. Even at this young age, Katherine was confident of what she wanted to do with her life and entered Our Lady of Mercy Academy, on September 8, 1946.

After completing her studies at the academy, Katherine Murphy was received into the Order of Sisters of Mercy on March 12, 1947, at the age of 17. Sister Katherine accepted the name of Sister Mary Brendan in honor of the patron saint of her father's hometown of Killorglin, County Kerry, Ireland. She professed her final vows on August 16, 1952, and continued her education by completing her bachelor's of arts degree from Mercy College in Detroit; then a masters of arts degree from Cardinal Stritch College in Milwaukee, WI; and finally a degree in pastoral ministry from Seattle University in Seattle, WA.

Although not known to possess a strong desire to teach, Sister Mary Brendan accepted her first teaching assignment at the second grade class in Berkley, MI and discovered that she truly had a great love for teaching young children. For the next 31 years, Sister Katherine taught in the primary grades from 1949 until 1980. During that period, Sister Katherine's assignments included the Immaculate Conception School in Traverse City in 1955, 1968, and again in 1971.

As changes occurred in the religious orders, in 1969, Sister Mary Brendan took back her own name and has since been known as Sister Katherine. On August 1, 1981, she began her ministry at St. Francis Parish in Traverse City with Father Thomas Neis. As Sister Katherine's ministry continues at St. Francis, she has served with Father Ron Gronowski and with Father Jim Gardiner. Father Gardiner recently bestowed upon Sister Katherine the title of Pastoral Associate at St. Francis Parish.

As an active and integral member of the St. Francis Parish staff, Sister Katherine's current duties include directing the OCIA formation program, overseeing the altar servers, lectors, and Eucharistic ministers for the parish and for nursing homes. She is also chairperson of the liturgy commission, a member of the evangelical team and serves on the Dioceasan Pastoral Council.

In addition to her official duties, Sister Katherine has also found time to travel, visiting Ireland, the Holy Land, Manila, and traveling throughout Europe and several cities across the United States.

Mr. Speaker, Sister Katherine has devoted her life to the Catholic Church through her order, the Sisters of Mercy for half a century. She has provided education, counsel, comfort, and spiritual guidance to so many who have had the privilege of knowing her.

There is a special bond between Sister Katherine, the Traverse City community and St. Francis Parish. When Jesus told Sister Katherine to "Come, follow Me," 50 years ago, scripture promised:

> And everyone who has left house, . . . father or mother . . . for my name's sake shall receive a hundredfold, and shall possess life everlasting." Matt 19:20

All of us in the Traverse City community and especially here at St. Francis Parish, wish to be among the hundredfold who count as part of Sister Katherine's family and ministry. Sister Katherine's devotion, faith, and life serves as an everlasting example to us all.

On behalf of the Traverse City community, Michigan's First Congressional District, and the State of Michigan, I congratulate and extend best wishes to Sister Katherine Murphy on her lifetime of accomplishments, devotion and faith.

BART STUPAK
Member of Congress

THE 1996 JC PENNY GOLDEN RULE AWARD

HON. DEBORAH PRYCE

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. PRYCE. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to pay tribute to the outstanding philanthropic efforts of the 17 semifinalists for the 1996 JC Penny Golden Rule Award. I am proud to represent these people and organizations in Congress, for their commitment and devotion to the central Ohio community is truly exemplary.

The Golden Rule Award ceremony publicly honors local volunteer efforts, and is presented in more than 200 markets in 45 States. The 1996 semifinalists have proven themselves to be clearly deserving of this recognition, having demonstrated continued, selfless sacrifice to the Columbus, OH, area. They serve as a model to us all.

America's generosity both at home and abroad is unsurpassed on this planet. Regrettably, however, the day-to-day volunteer efforts of so many Americans go regularly unnoticed. We take for granted their generous work with the poor, the elderly, the sick, and the neglected. But their unheralded and noble deeds are duly noted by those they help, often providing a bit of hope during times of great distress.

At a time when our Nation demands that government become smaller and spend less, the importance of voluntarism and community service grows profoundly. These semifinalists prove once again that the most important work done in our country is not done within the beltway, but within the shelters, pantries, and soup kitchens of our local communities. We must never lose sight of the fact that Americans' innate sense of sacrifice continues regardless of what may transpire in Washington.

I proudly salute the following people and organizations for their inspiring work, and join with my colleagues in congratulating them for this most deserving recognition.

Ms. Julie Rose Cook, Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA), Franklin County Volunteer Guardian Program, Hyatt Force on Capitol Square, Bob Merideth/Skip Teaford—Christmas in April.

Parents of Murdered Children and Other Survivors of Homicide, Capital University Circle Kiwanis, Residential Care Team, Teen Parent Connection Volunteers.

Kaleidoscope Youth Coalition, L.E.A.D.E.R. Institute, Jean "Rambo Granny" Smith, Rick Baumann, Dorothy Burchfield, Dianne Glaser, Dora Browne.

FLORIDA CRUSHED STONE WINNER OF THE SENTINELS OF SAFETY AWARD

HON. KAREN L. THURMAN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to draw the attention of my colleagues to a great achievement registered by one of the leading companies in the 5th Congressional District of Florida.

Florida Crushed Stone of Brooksville has earned the reputation for being one of the safest rock mining companies in America. This distinction did not come about by accident. It took an enormous amount of dedication, determination and attention to detail to make steady improvements in safety year after year.

Mr. Speaker, recently, one mine owned by Florida Crushed Stone, the Gregg Mine, was honored with the Sentinels of Safety Award. The Gregg Mine garnered this award three other times, in 1986, 1990 and 1994.

The Sentinels of Safety Award is a national award for outstanding safety in the mining industry and is presented by the Mine Safety and Health Administration and the National Mining Association.

Mr. Speaker, to qualify for the award, a mine has to have accumulated 30,000 man hours of work with no accidents or deaths. Mr. Speaker, the Gregg Mine went far beyond this level, accumulating a staggering 198,050 man hours of work without a serious injury or loss of life.

My congratulations go out to Mr. F. Browne Gregg, chief executive officer; Carl Lunderstadt, president; Joe Piermatteo, senior vice president; Billy Lee the general manager; and Bryan Adkins, gregg mine safety manager.

These company officials have obviously made safety a very high company priority and have instilled the goal of safety in the minds of every one of their employees.

CONGRATULATIONS MARGARET ANGELA BAKER ON HER 100th BIRTHDAY

HON. FRANK PALLONE, Jr.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate Margaret Angela Baker of South Amboy, NJ, a valued and cherished member of our community, on her 100th birthday.

Margaret Baker was born in South Amboy on July 11, 1896. Her father passed away when she was 3 years old and her mother, Catherine Ketzner, remarried when she was 9, to the owner and operator of a saloon, named Jacob Baker. Margaret Baker left school after the ninth grade and began working in a factory piecing together clothing. She then worked in a playing card factory and then went on to work in a factory that manufactured military uniforms, where she worked her way up to full-time inspector, while doing part-time clerical work.

Margaret met Mr. John Joseph Dooling on a bus when she was in her 20's. John and Margaret were married March 23, 1924, in Saint Mary's Roman Catholic Church in South Amboy. The couple had a daughter, Rita Catherine Dooling who was born on September 8, 1929, in South Amboy Hospital. John passed away in 1959 at the age of 70. Margaret has three grandchildren: Jamie C. Smith, Karen H. Brent and Amy S. Moore. In addition, she has five great grandchildren: Emily, Christopher, Meghan, Tyler, and Kaitlin, ranging from age 5 years to 2 months.

Mr. Speaker, as she reaches the century mark Mrs. Baker can look back on a 20th century that has seen America and the world transformed in ways that could scarcely have been imagined in her childhood. For example, during her lifetime, Mrs. Baker witnessed many inventions and technological breakthroughs, including automobiles, electricity, and telephones.

Mr. Speaker, I am indeed honored to join in congratulating Margaret Angela Baker on this remarkable milestone.

1996 ELLIS ISLAND MEDAL OF HONOR RECIPIENTS

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, every year, the National Ethnic Coalition of Organizations honors Americans from all ethnic backgrounds with its Ellis Island Medal of Honor. This year, I was deeply honored to be one of the recipients of this prestigious award.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate all of this year's honorees. It is a distinguished group of Americans, including my colleagues, Senator SPENCER ABRAHAM, Congressmen BEN GILMAN, RAY LAHOOD, TOM MANTON and CHARLIE RANGEL.

The Ethnic Coalition of Organizations is dedicated to pursuing harmony between all ethnic groups. This is a goal which I applaud. I would like to enter into the RECORD a press release announcing these awards, and a list of these distinguished award recipients.

ELLIS ISLAND MEDALS OF HONOR AWARDS GALA

THE 10TH ANNUAL ELLIS ISLAND MEDALS OF HONOR AWARDS CEREMONY—NECO CHAIRMAN WILLIAM DENIS FUGAZY LEADS DRAMATIC CEREMONY DEDICATED TO LATE MEDAL RECIPIENT, CONGRESSWOMAN BARBARA JORDAN

ELLIS ISLAND, NY, MAY 19.—Standing on the hallowed grounds of Ellis Island—the portal through which 17 million immigrants entered the United States—a cast of ethnic Americans who have made significant contributions to the life of this nation, among them Gov. George E. Pataki, U.S. Rep. Charles B. Rangel, NYC Police Commissioner Howard Safir, and "street singer" Arthur Tracy, today were presented with the coveted Ellis Island Medal of Honor at an emotionally uplifting ceremony.

NECO's annual medal ceremony and reception on Ellis Island in New York Harbor is the Nation's largest celebration of ethnic pride. This year's 10th annual event was dedicated to the memory of U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan, a 1990 Ellis Island Medal recipient, who recently passed away.

Representing a rainbow of ethnic origins, Pataki, Rangel, Safir, Tracy, and other Ellis Island Medal of Honor recipients, including Baltimore Orioles baseball team owner Peter Angelos, entertainer Jerry Vale and NAACP President Hazel Dukes, among others, received their awards in the shadow of the historic Great Hall, where the first footsteps were taken by the millions of immigrants who entered the U.S. in the latter part of the nineteenth century.

"Today we honor great ethnic Americans who, through their achievements and contributions, and in the spirit of their ethnic origins, have enriched this country and have become role models for future generations," said NECO Chairman William Denis Fugazy. "In addition, we honor the immigrant experience—those who passed through this Great Hall decades ago, and the new immigrants who arrive on American soil seeking opportunity. Everyone came here with little more than the clothes on their backs. But all they needed was hope and opportunity."

Mr. Fugazy added, "It doesn't matter how you got here or if you already were here. Ellis Island is a symbol of the freedom, diversity and opportunity—ingredients inherent in the fabric of this nation. Although many recipients have no familial ties to Ellis Island, their ancestors share similar histories of struggle and hope for a better life here."

One of the emotional high points of the day came when the words spoken at the 1990 event by the late Congresswoman Barbara Jordan, one of the first African-Americans to accept the Ellis Island medal, were replayed over the public address system after this year's ceremony was dedicated to her memory. Mr. Fugazy recalled how the ailing Jordan flew to New York, dramatically arriving in a wheelchair with a team of medical personnel.

Established in 1986 by NECO, the Ellis Island Medals of Honor pay tribute to the ancestry groups that comprise America's unique cultural mosaic. To date, some 500 ethnic American citizens and native Americans have received medals.

NECO is the largest organization of its kind in the U.S., serving as an umbrella group for 75 ethnic organizations and whose mandate is to preserve ethnic diversity, promote ethnic and religious equality, tolerance and harmony, and combat injustice, hatred and bigotry.

Ellis Island Medal of Honor recipients are selected each year through a national nomination process. Screening committees from NECO's member organizations select the final nominees, who are then considered by the Board of Directors.

Among this year's recipients were Michigan Senator Spencer Abraham; members of the U.S. Congress Thomas Manton, Benjamin Gilman, Danny L. Burton, and Ray Lahood; Justices Anthony Celebrezze and Damon J. Keith; Sam DiPiazza (Vice Chairman, Coopers & Lybrand); Rabbi Marc Schneier; ASPCA President Roger Caras; WCBS News executive Jerry Nachman; Christopher Komisarjevsky (Burson-Marsteller USA President); Air Force Major General Marcelite J. Harris, and Air Force Lieutenant Colonel William Gregory (astronaut); and former New York Mets Manager Jeff Torborg. (Please refer to media kit insert for a complete list of 1996 honorees and previous recipients.)

Past Ellis Island Medal of Honor recipients have included several U.S. Presidents, entertainers, athletes, entrepreneurs, religious leaders and business executive such as Ronald Reagan, Jimmy Carter, Gerald Ford, George Bush, Richard Nixon, Mario Cuomo, Christine Todd Whitman, Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Michael Douglas, Gloria Estefan, Coretta Scott King, Rosa Parks, Elie Wiesel, Muhammad Ali, Mickey Mantle, General Norman Schwarzkopf, Barbara Walters, Terry Anderson and Dr. Michael DeBakey.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE 1996 ELLIS ISLAND MEDAL OF HONOR RECIPIENTS

Hon. Spencer Abraham, Lebanese, United States Senator; Sarkis Acopian, Armenian, Conservationst; Hon. Wendell R. Anderson, Swedish, Community Leader; Peter Angelos, Esq., Hellenic, Attorney; Robert Annunziata, Italian, Business Leader; Nicola M. Antaki, Syrian, Business Leader; Carl J. Bazarian, Armenian, Community Leader; Martin S. Begun, Russian, Educator/Community Leader; Bruce Bendell, Eastern European, Buisness Leader; James M. Benson, Swe/Eng/Ire/Scot/Ger/Fr, Business Leader; Kenneth Berg, Russian, Business Leader; A. Steve Betzelos, Hellenic, Business/Community Leader; Lena Biorck Kaplan, Swedish, Community Leader; W. Paul Brogowski, Polish, Business Leader; Hon. Dan Burton, Welch, Member of Congress; John J. Cali, Italian, Business Leader; Roger A. Caras, Eastern European, Author; John A. Cavanagh, Irish, Business Leader; Hon. Anthony Celebrezze, Italian, U.S. Circuit Court Judge; Andreas D. Comodromos, Cypriot, Business/Community Leader; Anthony D. Dalesandro, Italian, Business Leader; Tarik S. Daoud, Arabic, Business/Community Leader; Ruda B. Dauphin, Polish, Media Director; Bettie Dawood, Lebanese, Business/Community Leader; Countess Nadia de Navarro-Farber, Bulgarina, Real Estate Developer; Jean-Jacques de Saint Andrieu, French, Business Leader; Hon. Dennis DeConcini, Italian/English, United States Senator (Ret); Ramon Abi-Rashed DeSage, Lebanese, Industry Leader; Fernando M. DeSousa, Portuguese, Community Leader; Federick W. Devine, Irish, Labor Leader; Richard "Bo" Dietl, German/Italian, Business Leader/Author; Nicholas P. DiPaolo, Italian, Business Leader.

Samuel A. DiPiazza, Jr., Italian, Business Leader; Hazel N. Dukes, African, Community Leader; Most Rev. John A. Elya, Lebanese, Religious Leader; Hon. Albert J. Emanuelli, Italian, Justice, New York State; Michael D. Francis, Esq., Austrian/Russian, Business Leader; Mario J. Gabelli, Italian, Business Leader; Hon. Benjamin Gilman, Member of Congress; Joesph J. Grano, Jr., Italian, Business Leader; George L. Graziadio, Italian, Business Leader; Lt. Col. William Gregory Albanian, Astronaut; Eugene P. Grisanti, Polish/Italian, Business Leader; Nahum Guzik, Russian, Business Leader; John Kaare Hagen, Norwegian, Business Leader; Antoine C. Harovas, M.D., Hellenic, Physician; Maj. Gen. Marcelite J. Harris, African, Government Leader (Military); John E. Herzog, Hungarian, Business Leader; Arthur E. Imperatore, Italian, Business Leader; Joseph P. Jarjura, Lebanese, Business/Community Leader; Norman Katz, German, Business Leader; Joseph Kazickas, Lithuanian, Business Leader; Hon. Damon J. Keith, African, Circuit Judge; John J. Kelly, Irish, Business Leader; Christopher Komisarjevsky, Russian, Business Leader; Murray Koppelman, Polish/Russian, Community Leader; Leo Paul Koulos, Hellenic, Business Leader; Hon. Ray Lahood, Labanese, Member of Congress; Carmella La Spada, Italian, Humanitarian; Bennett S. LeBow, Eastern European, Business Leader; Daok Lee, Korean, Educator/

Community Leader; Anthony Lomangino, Italian, Business Leader; Hon. Thomas J. Manton, Irish, Member of Congress; Scrafin U. Mariel, Puerto Rican, Business/Community Leader.

Charles H.McCabe, Jr., Irish, Business Leader; Paschal McGuinness, Irish, Labor Leader, Brian McLauhlin, Irish, Labor Community Leader; Dennis McSpedon, Irish, Labor Leader; Haroutine Mekhjian, M.D., Armenian, Cardiac Surgeon/Community Leader; Spiros Milonas, Hellenic, Business Leader; Luis A. Miranda, Jr., Puerto Rican/Latino, Educator/Community Leader; Hugo M. Morales, M.D., Hispanic, Eductor/Community Leader; Thomas J. Moran, Irish/Italian, Business Leader; Bruce A. Morrison, Irish, Government/Community Leader; James H. Moshovitis, Hellenic, Business Leader; Jerome A. Nachman, Rumanian/Russian, Journalist; Dr. Julius R. Nasso, Italian, Business Leader; Ricahrd T. Nasti, Italian, Business Leader; Vincent Natrella, Italian, Community/Political Leader; Paul Nussbaum, German, Business/Community Leader; Harry L. Pappas, Hellenic, Business Leader; Hon. George E. Pataki, Hungarian/Irish/Italian, Governor—State of New York; Ludovit Pavlo, M.D., Slovak, Physicial/Community Leader; John A. Payiavlas, Hellenic, Business Leader; Maryanne K. Peneachio, Polish, Hoeaker; Fammioe Petallides-Holiday, Cypriot, Business/Community Leader; Joseph, M. Pizza, Italian, Business Leader; William F. Plunkett, Jr., Esq., Irish, Attorney; Hon. Charles B. Ragnel, African, Member of Congress; Kiewoong Walter Rhee, Korean, Community Leader; Nicholas L. Ribis, Italian, Business Leader; Joe E. Rodriguez, Puerto Rican, Business Leader; Mauro C. Romita. Italian, Business Leader; Jack Rosen, Easter European, Business Leader.

Rustum Roy, Asian Indian (East), Educator/Researcher/Author; Hon. Howard Safer, Russian, New York City Police Commissioner; Louis P. Salvatore, Italian, Business leader; S. Gary Schiller, Austrian/German, Community Leader; Rabbi Marc Schneier, Viennese, Religious/Community Leader; Martin E. Segal, Russian, Business Leader/Patron of the Arts; John T. Sharkey, Irish, Business Leader; Steven H. Shepsman, Eastern European, Business Leader; Rolland G. Smith, Genglish/Irish, Journalist; John L. Soldini, Italian/Irish, Educator/Labor Leader; Hon. Nicholas A. Spano, Italian, New York State Senator; Sonja B. Stefanadis, Hellenic, Community Leader; Robert M. Stutman, Russian Business Leader; Philip Suarez, Puerto Rican, Business Leader; Lou Switzer, African, Business Leader; Rosemarie Taglione, Danish/Italian, Business Leader; Joseph H. Talfour, Sr., Slovak, Attorney, Business/Community Leader; Marilyn Jordan Taylor, Scottish, Architect; Raymond C. Teatum, Irish, Public Official; Fred S. Teng, Chinese, Business/Community Leader; Dr. Nick John Topetzes, Hellenic, Educator/Community Leader; Jeffrey A. Torborg, Swedish/German/English, Major League Baseball Plaoyer, Coach, Manager, Broadcaster; Arthur Tracy, Russian, Entertainer "The Street Singer"; Pauline Trigere, French, Business Leader; Jerry Vale, Italian, Singer/Entertainer; Dennis R. Washington, Norwegian, Business Leader; John S. Wilcha, Czecholsovakian, Business Leader; Dr. John D. Young, Chinese, Business Leader; Brad Zackson, Rumanian/Russian, Business Leader.

STATECRAFT AND THE ENVIRONMENT

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, on April 11, 1996, Secretary of State Warren Christopher delivered a major policy address at Stanford University regarding efforts to couple environmental objectives with out Nation's diplomatic efforts and set forth our priorities for the future.

During the House of Representatives recent debates on bills providing funds for environmental protection, I was reminded of Secretary Christopher's timely message that in order to defend our Nation, we must protect and defend our collective environment. As the United States seeks to be a global leader in promoting peace and prosperity, as Secretary Christopher points out, " * * * we must also lead in safeguarding the global environment on which that prosperity and peace ultimately depend."

The United States has a responsibility to address global environmental concerns because pollution respects no boundaries. The greenhouse gases emitted by our powerplants and automobiles affect the health and climate of billions of people around the world. We are affected by the actions of other countries that create ozone depleting substances, overfish and dump low-level radioactive waste in the world's oceans, deplete our world's rainforests, and stress our Earth's ecosystem through overpopulation.

Secretary Christopher pointed out that the needs of the American people are not well served if our foreign policy does not address these global concerns—we may be "Americans," but we live on a planet that does not recognize geopolitical boundaries.

In his speech, Secretary Christopher pointed out that environmental forces not only "transcend borders and oceans to threaten directly the health, prosperity and jobs of American citizens," but that "addressing natural resource issues is frequently critical to achieving political and economic stability and to pursuing our strategic goals around the world." He then outlined a series of initiatives the State Department will undertake to advance America's global environmental goals.

Through the State Department and Secretary Christopher's leadership, the United States is working to reform and strengthen the U.N.'s key environmental and sustainable development programs. We have joined forces with the World Bank to incorporate sound environmental policies in lending programs, and to fund projects through the global environmental facility that directly benefit our health and prosperity. In addition, we are striving through the new World Trade Organization to reconcile the complex tensions between promoting trade and protecting the environment.

We can look forward to a cleaner and healthier global environment in 1997. The State Department has begun negotiating global agreements to make further cuts in greenhouse gases, to address problems caused by migrating toxic chemicals, to promote sustainable management of our world's forests, to preserve biodiversity, and to safeguard ocean resources. The State Department is also taking steps to address scarce resource and overpopulation issues that are putting further stress on our environment and the environment our children will inherit.

Through the State Department the United States is recognizing the importance of working bilaterally with key private, government, and nongovernment partners around the world to jointly address environmental concerns. In India, we are investing in environmental technologies and controlling pesticides. In Brazil, we are working to improve the management of forest resources. In Russia, we are promoting the safe operation of nuclear reactors and safe storage of nuclear waste. In fact, we are even using satellite imagery once used to spot missiles and tanks to help clean up military bases and track ocean pollution.

As Secretary Christopher so eloquently stated:

> Our strength as a nation has always been to harness our democracy to meet new threats to our security and prosperity. Our creed as a people has always been to make tomorrow better for ourselves and for our children.

For the sake of future generations, we must meet the challenge of making global environmental issues a vital part of our foreign policy. By advancing these environmental goals, we have the opportunity to protect our Nation and make it truly free. The policies set forth by Secretary Christopher are far reaching. They are the necessary mission for the United States to carry forward. I rise in recognition and with deep respect for what Secretary Christopher has set forth. It is environmental statecraft.

THE BARTON CLEAN AIR ACT AMENDMENTS

HON. ROSA L. DELAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Ms. DeLAURO. Mr. Speaker, on May 23, H.R. 3519 was introduced to amend the Clean Air Act. Its sponsor characterized his bill as "minor," saying it in no way changes compliance timetables or standards, but "simply provides more flexibility in doing so."

I disagree. In short, the bill repeals the most fundamental aspect of Federal clean air standards—protection of public health. This bill is a polluter's dream.

The congressional majority's vision statement for the 104th Congress states that Republicans support air and water that is clean and safe. But if you read the fine print, the majority's agenda says that they support clean water and clean air as long as achieving it can be accomplished cheaply.

Everyone supports the bill's emphasis on the use of innovative technologies to achieve clean air standards. The problem with H.R. 3519 is that it eliminates pollution monitoring and turns off pollution controls except when the air is at its dirtiest.

Under H.R. 3519, major sources of pollution would no longer be subject to regulation. The Federal Government would no longer enforce healthy air requirements for States and localities. In addition, the bill would give polluters 10 years to clean up pollution that is causing health hazards, including cancer, today.

The fact is that this bill substantially repeals key provisions of the 1990 Clean Air Act Amendments signed by President Bush, and the fundamental principles of the original Clean Air Act signed by President Nixon.

The American public believes that the air should be clean enough to breathe safely. The American public also believes that the Government has a responsibility to set clean air standard which guarantee health protection. And the American public does not believe that the science of health should be compromised by cost alone.

For 25 years, clean air health standards have been based solely on the best scientific evidence available as to the impact of air pollution on the health of people. Congress has provided that cost considerations are appropriate when determining how quickly those standards should be achieved.

But now H.R. 3519 says that the health of people should no longer be the driving force behind our clean air programs. If the air is unhealthy but there is a cost of clean up, the health standards—not the pollution levels—should be modified.

For 25 years, no serious legislation proposed compromised health science on the basis of economics. For 25 years, no legislation proposed that basic scientific data on health effects be ignored. Yet this Congress is likely to vote on a bill that changes the rules so polluters won't have to protect health.

Americans need to send Congress the message that their health is not for sale to special interest groups. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the Texas Observer article "It's the Environment, Stupid," be printed in the RECORD so Americans know how important their response to this bill is to protect their environment and health. Thank you.

[From the Texas Observer, June 14 1996]

IT'S THE ENVIRONMENT, STUPID

(By Louis DuBose)

Phil Gramm got the message in January when his pollster advised him that Republican voters don't trust their own party on environmental issues. Pollsters now trying to determine what will drive November's elections are discovering that environmental issues are a real public concern. Even Newt Gingrich is beginning to get it. The Speaker crossed the Potomac to salute environmental corps kid volunteers working on Roosevelt Island, and traveled to New York to embrace a panic-stricken wild pig on the "Tonight Show." All of this to convince the public that Republicans are not enemies of the environment. And in Congress, the party is backing away from its assault on environmental protections—at least until after November's elections.

But Congressman Joe Barton—two years ago Phil Gramm's choice to replace Texas Republican Party Chair Fred Meyer, after fundamentalist Christians declared Meyer unworthy—is an exception. Barton recently filed the "Clean Air Act Amendments of 1996," perhaps thinking that a bill filed so late in the session would not attract too much attention. He got caught. Frank O'Donnell of the Clean Air Trust got wind of Barton's bad air bill and began faxing it to media outlets around the country. "It is very unlikely that the bill will get anywhere this late in the session," O'Donnell said. He added that he suspects that Barton is staking out a position for 1997, when the law will be reauthorized. But even O'Donnell admits he is surprised by Barton's timing, which could create problems for Republicans in November.

Perhaps Barton is determined, O'Donnell said, "to complete the 'Texas Toxic Trilogy.' First congressman Tom DeLay proposed repealing the entire 1990 clean air law. Then Congressman Steve Stockman tried to pretend dirty air doesn't exist. And now Congressman Barton wants to repeal the heart of the 1970 Clean Air Act."

Barton's legislation is aimed right at the heart of the 1970 law, a milestone in environmental legislation that established clean air "standards" that states are required to meet. Barton's bill replaces specific standards with vague "goals"—a small semantic change that completely undermines the philosophy of the country's most basic clean air law.

But this is not merely an ideologue's philosophical assault on a law that passed with broad pubic and congressional consensus—after protracted negotiations that included environmentalists and representatives of industry. Barton has put together a technical bill, loaded with the same minutiae lobbyists wrote into Tom DeLay's bills—while they set up shop in his House office at the beginning of this congressional session.

Consider, for example, the following verbiage:

"If, based on photochemical grid modeling demonstrations of any other analytical method determined by the Administrator to be as effective, the Administrator determines that the area is a down-wind nonattainment area receiving ozone or ozone precursor transport from outside the area and control of ozone concentrations or beyond the ability of the area to control because volatile organic compounds and oxides of nitrogen from sources within such do not make a significant contribution to ozone concentrations in such area (or in any other nonattainment area), the Administrator may redesignate the area as in attainment or having a lower classification.

Which, if properly punctuated, would mean: if it can be established that most of the pollution in a region comes from elsewhere—for example, chemical plants and refineries on the other side Galveston Bay—the air in that region could be declared clean.

Predictably enough, such a declaration would make the air dirtier, because declaring an area "in attainment" means lifting environmental restrictions and allowing more local contamination of air already badly polluted by upwind sources. Barton's Bad Air Bill is filled with provisions like this one—in which "attainment" of clean-air standards is achieved by cleaning up the language of the law, rather than cleaning up the environment.

When (to cite another example of Barton's peculiar logic) the EPA establishes air quality goals for a region, "infrequent episodic variations in air pollution levels that are cause by weather" must be excluded from any clean-air calculus. So in Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, and El Paso that will mean the elimination of protections against dangerously high summer ozone levels—rather than the elimination of dangerously high ozone levels. "To create ozone," O'Donnell, "you do need sunlight, which cooks the stuff, but you also need a source of pollution." Barton's bill ignores those sources of pollution and assumes that, like the weather, man-made pollution cannot be controlled. The result of such twisted logic can only be more air pollution.

More illogic? "The [EPA] Administrator may not require that emissions of oxides of nitrogen from baseline vehicles using the reformulated gasoline be less than emissions from such vehicles when using baseline gasoline." Leave it to an EPA reg-writer to parse this sentence, which establishes that the quality of emissions are the same—when they aren't. It's just one small part of the bill's broad assault on reformulated gasoline requirements—a two stage program designed to lower tailpipe emissions. The first phase was put in place last year and regulations for implementation of phase two are not yet complete, and might not be if Barton, who once worked as a consultant for Atlantic Richfield, has his way. "This will roll back a program already on the books that hasn't kicked in yet," O'Donnell said.

Perhaps the loopiest provision—it's tough to pick one—allows pollution control devices voluntarily installed "prior to the designation of the area as a non-arraignment area to be credited as additional reductions. * * *" But if air pollution in a region is too high, how does a pollution-control device already in place and working reduce it any further? Or is "to be credited as" what this is all about?

To be fair, not every provision in the bill is as circumspect as those already cited. A straightforward, two-line change extends from five to ten years the time in which a plant can operate without being subject to permit revisions; some revisions simply change must to may—for sanctions or requirements. And no bill like this one would be complete without the standard "cost-benefit-analysis" provision. Barton would "require" regulators to prove that "the incremental costs of attaining [a] standard do not exceed the incremental benefits of attaining the standard." These provisions always provide an advantage to industry, which can provide exact figures of retrofitting a refinery with pollution control devices, then challenge whoever represents the public interest these days to predict and calculate long-term savings in public health, and quality of life—which has no dollar-equivalent market value.

What's driving Joe Barton's attempt to dismantle the Clean Air Act? The odd configuration of his Central Texas district provides him a completely safe seat, which he won by seventy-six percent in the last election; he's a true believer in the conservative agenda, and he's an engineer who understands this stuff better than, say, the average consumer of air. Yet it seems impolitic for someone who ran as the Washington candidate for the state Republican Party chair in 1994 to burden his party with another bad environmental bill—just as the 1996 election campaigns get underway. Maybe Tom Pauken, the fundamentalist Christian (charismatic Catholic variety) who defeated Barton two years ago, was correct when he argued that Barton was too much a Washington insider—too influenced by "inside the Beltway culture."

Pauken got it almost right during his fervent three-day state convention campaign. But the Washington culture he derided as the culture "of big government" is really the culture of big corporations. After twelve years in Congress Joe Barton understands that culture. And he has engaged in a bit of cost-and-benefit analysis that reads something like this: It costs him nothing to carry a bad environmental bill. The benefits, in contributions from the polluters PACs listed below, simply outweigh what his legislation will cost his party—and the breathing public.

Selected polluter PAC supporters of Congressman Joe Barton, 1995–1996

Air Products and Chemicals, Inc	$1,000
Alabama Power Company/Southern Company	250
American Electric Power Company	500
American Portland Cement Alliance, Inc	1,000
American Trucking Association	2,000
Amoco Corporation	1,000
Arizona Public Service Company	500
Ash Grove Cement Company	500
Atlantic Richfield Company	2,000
American Gas Association	1,000
Baltimore Gas and Electric Company	1,000
BP America	1,000
Burlington Resources/Meridian Oil	1,500
Carolina Power & Light Company	1,000
Cement Kiln Recycling Coalition	1,000
Centerior Energy Corporation	250
Chrysler Corporation	1,000
COALPAC/National Mining Association	1,000
Columbia Hydrocarbon Corporation	1,500
Commonwealth Edison Company	1,500
Consolidated Natural Gas Service Company, Inc	1,000
Consumers Power Company	1,000
Dominion Resources Inc./Virginia Power Company	500
Detroit Edison	1,000
Duquesn Light Company	1,000
Edison Electric Institute	500
E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Company	2,500
El Paso Natural Gas Company	1,000
Elf Atochem North America, Inc	2,000
Entergy Corporation	500
Entergy Operations, Inc	500
Enron Corporation	2,012
Exxon Corporation	1,000
Fina Oil and Chemical Company	500
Ford Motor Corporation	1,000
Florida Power Corporation	500
Florida Power & Light Company	2,000
Flour Corporation	4,000
General Public Utilities Corporation	500
Hoechst Celanese Corporation	1,000
Houston Industries, Inc	4,759
Intel Corporation	250
Interstate Natural Gas Association of America	1,000
Kansas City Southern Industries, Inc	500
Kerr-McGee Corporation	500
LaFarge Corporation	100
Marathon Oil Company/USX Corporation	1,500
Mobil Oil Corporation	500
National Automobile Dealers Association	4,000
New England Power Service Company	500
North American Coal Corporation	250
Northeast Utilities Service Corporation	500
Occidental Petroleum Corporation	1,000
Ohio Edison Company	500
Pacific Gas and Electric Company	1,000
Panhandle Eastern Corporation	2,000
PECO Energy Company	500
Pennzoil Company	500
Phillips Petroleum Company	1,000
PSI Energy Inc./Cinergy Corporation	500
Public Service Electric and Gas Company	200
Shell Oil Company	1,500
Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America	1,000
Southdown Inc	1,000
Southern California Edison Company	2,000
Southern Company	750
Southwestern Public Service Company	500
Tenneco Inc	1,000
Texaco Inc	1,000
Texas Utilities Company	500
Texas-New Mexico Power Company	500
USX Corporation	500
Valero Energy Corporation	3,000
Westinghouse Electric Corporation	1,500
Weyerhaeuser Company	1,000

Source: Federal Election Commission.

A TRIBUTE IN HONOR OF BASILLIO VILLARREAL, FORMER MAYOR OF RIO GRANDE CITY, TX

HON. FRANK TEJEDA

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. TEJEDA. Mr. Speaker, I take this opportunity to honor an outstanding individual from Rio Grande City, TX, who in words and deed exemplifies strong leadership and an uncompromising dedication to positive values. Basillio Villarreal, who recently retired as mayor of Rio Grande City, is a hard-working businessman who dedicated his life to his business, family, and community. I take this opportunity to acknowledge his many accomplishments and thank him for his efforts.

Mayor Villarreal was the first mayor in Rio Grande City in more than 60 years. He fought hard for the reincorporation of Rio Grande City, after decades without a city charter. As the first mayor of this newly re-incorporated city, Mayor Villarreal combined his vision for the city with the courage necessary to make real progress for the community. As mayor, Basillio Villarreal took on the difficult task of organizing the structure of city government in Rio Grande City, and he proposed establishing effective police and fire departments. He knew the value and importance of public safety and made it a priority within his public agenda. He established and then required strict adherence to new ethics standards for city employees. He expected no less of himself, always proud to uphold a strong personal code of honor.

Mayor Villarreal did what a good politician should do: He listened to the wants and needs of the citizens who reside within his jurisdiction. When the citizens of Rio Grande City told him that they did not want property taxes to finance city expenses, he worked hard to make this a reality. He fought to establish a government that was born efficient. He is a visionary who pursued the benefits of the empowerment zone and brought direction to its mission.

Basillio Villarreal's popularity and support have made him a symbol of success and a role model in the community of Rio Grande City. His modest beginnings only make this proud man's life more compelling. His successful business is a tribute to the same admirable qualities that he instilled in the city government.

When called to service by the community, Basillio Villarreal served honorably. His example inspires others to become involved in politics, pursue educational opportunities, and participate in church activities, teaching all of us time and again the virtues of involvement and activism. He is a proud man who has served his community well, and Rio Grande City is a better place for having had Basillio Villarreal as its mayor.

HONORING THE CAREER OF MR. LESTER M. BORNSTEIN

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise to acknowledge and honor the retirement of Mr. Lester Bornstein who ends 38 years of service to the Newark Beth Israel Medical Center. I urge my colleagues to join me in congratulating Mr. Bornstein on his incredible accomplishments as president of the Newark Beth Israel Medical Center.

Mr. Bornstein began dedicating his time and energy to the Newark Beth Israel Medical Center in 1957, serving as assistant director. His role changed in later years and he supported the Beth Israel Medical Center as acting executive director, executive director and as a member of the board of trustees.

I had the opportunity to work closely with Mr. Bornstein when I was a member of the Newark Municipal Council and when he served on my 10th Congressional District health care task force. Mr. Bornstein is an incredibly skilled man who is dedicated to serving his community. He took initiative and helped to ensure that the Beth Israel Medical Center remained in the community at a time when many other city hospitals were leaving. I admire this commitment that has always been an integral part of this fine man's persona.

As reporter Angela Stewart of The Star-Ledger noted in her June 21 article, "Those who have watched him work over the years say Bornstein has managed to strike an almost perfect balance between civility and his driving ambition to make the inner-city hospital a respected institution." His goal has been and continues to be realized. In 1968, Mr. Bornstein also helped secure a $10 million loan to construct a patient care pavilion. Recently, the Lester M. Bornstein Center for Emergency Services officially opened to patients. It is clear that Mr. Bornstein has been an important driving force for the Newark Beth Israel Medical Center.

It is an honor for me to have the opportunity to thank Mr. Bornstein for being a strong leader of the Newark Beth Israel Medical Center and for keeping his promise to the community and the people of Newark. Mr. Speaker, I hope my colleagues will join me in applauding his career and wishing him the best in all his future endeavors.

REGARDING H.R. 3663, THE D.C. WATER AND SEWER AUTHORITY ACT OF 1996

HON. CARDISS COLLINS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, D.C. Subcommittee Chairman TOM DAVIS and the subcommittee's ranking member, ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON, are to be commended for once again having collaborated in a bipartisan manner to produce legislation to aid the District of Columbia. I commend them for their efforts.

The District of Columbia Water and Sewer Authority Act of 1996 will permit the issuance of revenue bonds necessary to finance much needed capital improvements at the District's Blue Plains Wastewater Treatment Plant and within the District's drinking water distribution system.

I understand that on April 5, 1996, the District government and the Environmental Protection Agency [EPA] reached an agreement which requires the District to engage in a 2-year, $20 million capital improvement program designed to halt the further deterioration of the Blue Plains facility and to make significant improvements in the maintenance and treatment procedures at the plant.

In addition, I understand that the District has had persistent problems with bacteria turning up in its drinking water distribution system. Several violations were documented between September 1993 and November 1995. This overall situation led EPA to issue an administrative order on November 14, 1995 which directed the District to submit a comprehensive plan and schedule for remedial actions such as making repairs to its drinking water storage facilities.

I urge Members to support this very important legislation. Its enactment will ensure that the Nation's Capital will continue to have environmentally secure water and sewer systems to meet the needs of its residents and visitors into the 21st Century.

COMMENDING FEMA FOR EXEMPLARY WORK

HON. SHERWOOD L. BOEHLERT

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which won the 1996 Public Employees Roundtable Public Service Excellence Award in the Federal Category. FEMA's Disaster Assistance Program faced stiff competition as one of 300 entries considered by the Public Employees Roundtable.

After watching FEMA at work following January flooding in my district, it comes as no surprise to me that FEMA won. When eight of the nine counties of my district in New York State were devastated by winter flooding, FEMA staff rallied to our aid. James Lee Witt, FEMA administrator, and New York Governor George Pataki personally accompanied me on a tour of flood ravaged areas, to see and experience the problem and commit themselves to being part of the solution. FEMA was magnificent. Flooding occurred on a Friday and Saturday. FEMA Region II, under Director Lynn Canton, was providing technical assistance to New York State officials on Friday, monitoring the situation and laying the groundwork for the communications, organization and logistics so necessary for an effective recovery effort. And within 10 days of the flood, families who applied for aid were receiving checks. This timely response was invaluable as communities with limited resources struggled to cope with overwhelming devastation.

Equally invaluable is the continuing support FEMA provides. Four months after the flood, FEMA is still on the job and my office is in daily contact with the Disaster Field Office in our State capital. This office performs follow-up work on projects and provides guidance to State and local governments as well as to citizens who are still rebuilding.

In addition to my personal experience working with FEMA, as chairman of the subcommittee with jurisdiction over Stafford Disaster Assistance programs, I know from a broader perspective how well FEMA does in the field. From earthquakes to floods to hurricanes, this is a Federal agency that prides itself on responding quickly and efficiently. Apart from natural disasters, FEMA also is on hand when man-made disasters strike. The bombing in Oklahoma City is a case in point. In the midst of grief and horror, FEMA staff helped the victims and residents of that shocked city in their recovery efforts.

The human spirit is capable of amazing things in times of trouble. With FEMA at the helm, that also can be said of the U.S. Government. In an era when government bashing is a popular sport in some quarters, FEMA shows us the importance of coordinated Federal efforts to overcome adversity. They do us proud.

THE RURAL HEALTH IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1996—ENSURING ACCESS TO HEALTH CARE FOR AMERICA'S RURAL CITIZENS

HON. STEVE GUNDERSON

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 27, 1996

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Speaker, the House and Senate have made great strides toward producing a bill to bring about affordable health care. While Mr. POSHARD and I applaud the Congress for working on the issues of affordability and portability of health insurance, the problem in rural areas is not only affordability and portability but also accessibility.

Rural hospitals are closing throughout the country because Medicare payments are inadequate to cover costs. The current Medicare structure does not provide sufficient flexibility to allow hospitals to network or merge, vital steps which rural hospitals must take to ensure survival. While the 1995 Balanced Budget Act contained several provisions that would have accomplished many of our goals, those provisions were felled by President Clinton's veto pen.

During floor consideration of H.R. 3103, the Health Care Availability and Affordability Act, I tried to offer an amendment that would have addressed many rural concerns. Although my amendment was not allowed, I received a personal assurance from the House leadership that rural health would be dealt with yet this year.

In mid-May, I gave a speech before the National Rural Health Association in which I outlined the primary needs of rural health care as I saw it. Following that speech, we held several meetings with the core membership of the Rural Health Care Coalition and our constituent health associations.

The result is a comprehensive consensus bill that reflects a broad view of how to better provide access to health care for rural America.

This bill seeks to increase access to health care for rural citizens in four areas:

First, it reduces the wide variation existing between urban and rural areas in the Medicare adjusted average per capita cost [AAPCC] payment made to health maintenance organizations (HMOs). While HMOs serving some urban areas are receiving upwards of $650, the AAPCC payment in 1995 for Vernon County, WI, was $211. This kind of disparity results in HMOs falling over themselves to serve urban areas while shunning rural Americans who have paid the same Medicare tax all of their lives.

Improving the payment formula will actually allow for greater health care options and competition in rural America. This bill will help to make HMOs and PSOs an option for Medicare beneficiaries in western Wisconsin, an option that does not currently exist.

Second, it encourages rural providers to form networks to reduce costs, share services, and provide more efficient services. It does so by providing grant money for communities to create rural health networks, creating two new categories of hospitals under Medicare, and encouraging community health centers to expand into areas not presently served.

This bill also provides to States and private entities (1) grants to develop comprehensive plans to increase access to health care for rural communities, and (2) technical assistance and development grants to assist hospitals in creating provider networks.

At a time when we are trying to balance the budget, the Federal Government can no longer carry under-utilized facilities. However, rural communities cannot afford to go without essential emergency and primary care services. To address these needs, we create two new categories of limited-service hospitals under Medicare. Rural Emergency Access Care Hospitals provide only 24 hour emergency care to communities in need of an emergency facility, but not a full-service hospital. Rural primary care hospitals may provide a broader range of services and for a period of up to 4 days.

Further, in order to bolster an expansion of community health centers, our bill directs the Secretary of DHHS, when making new grants under the Public Health Service Act, to give priority to areas not presently served by community health centers [CHCs] and to CHCs located in or adjacent to community hospitals.

This bill also expresses the sense of the Congress that the Federal Trade Commission should promptly complete its review of the anti-trust standard to be applied to provider networks. Rural providers need anti-trust relief that will allow them the flexibility necessary to provide adequate care with limited resources, and to ensure that network arrangements do not violate current laws and regulations. A thorough review will reveal whether there is a need for further legislation in this sensitive area.

Third, this bill provides incentives to physicians and other health care professionals to locate and provide services in rural areas. We exempt National Health Service Corps loan repayments and scholarships from federal income taxes and direct the Secretary of DHHS to give priority placement to areas that have created community rural health networks.

In addition, this bill increases the Medicare incentive payment already paid to providers in health professional shortage areas [HPSAs] from 10 to 20 percent. However, we limit the payment to primary care providers in rural HPSAs, where recruitment efforts are more difficult.

Finally, it provides a good first step toward recognition of tele-medicine as an emerging technology with enormous potential in rural medicine. Our bill directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services to develop a payment methodology under Medicare for telemedicine services provided in rural areas.

Mr. POSHARD and I, as well as key coalition members, realize that the introduction of this bill represents the first step in the legislative process. We are committed to working with the chairmen on the committees of jurisdiction to ensure that essential rural health access provisions are enacted into law this year.

SENATE—Friday, June 28, 1996

The Senate met at 8:30 a.m., and was called to order by the Honorable CRAIG THOMAS, a Senator from the State of Wyoming.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Gracious Father, we live in a land of freedom and yet, on so many days we don't feel free. So often we are tied down by feelings of guilt; bound up by frustrating anxieties; uptight over problems; incarcerated by people's criticisms or negative opinions; and pressured by fears of the future. We all feel it at times. This longing to be free. Truly free. Free to be and express our real selves. Free to enjoy life, ourselves, and others. Free to give and receive love, forgiveness, acceptance. Free to pull out all the stops and live with boldness and courage. You have shown us that a new burst of personal freedom comes from knowing You, trusting You and committing to Your care the burdens we carry. Untie us when we get tied up in knots, unbind us when we are bound up in ourselves, unleash us to serve You by serving others. Free us from self-concern and help us give ourselves away to our loved ones, friends and those with whom we work.

In Your holy name. Amen.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

The assistant legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, June 28, 1996.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, section 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable CRAIG THOMAS, a Senator from the State of Wyoming, to perform the duties of the Chair.

STROM THURMOND,
President pro tempore.

Mr. THOMAS thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The acting majority leader.

SCHEDULE

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, this morning the Senate will immediately begin consideration of the Department of Defense authorization bill.

At 9:30 this morning, there will be a rollcall vote on the motion to invoke cloture on the DOD bill.

It is hoped that Senators will cooperate today in allowing us to reach an agreement on the defense bill. I would anticipate rollcall votes throughout the day on or in relation to amendments to the bill.

As a reminder, a third cloture motion was filed last night. The vote could occur as early as Saturday. That vote could occur as early as Saturday if it becomes necessary.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, leader time is reserved.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of the DOD bill, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1745) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

The Senate resumed consideration of the bill.

Pending:

Nunn amendment No. 4367, to require the President to submit a report to Congress on NATO enlargement.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4387

(Purpose: To ensure fair and equitable pricing of equipment to be provided to Bosnia and Herzegovina under current drawdown authorities)

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I offer an amendment which would express the sense of the Senate that the price of defense articles transferred to Bosnia be priced at the lowest fair price in order to maximize the amount of equipment provided under the Bosnia drawdown authority.

I believe this amendment has been cleared by the other side.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN.] proposes an amendment numbered 4387.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following new section:

SEC. . It is the sense of the Senate that, notwithstanding any other provision of law, in order to maximize the amount of equipment provided to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina under the authority contained in Section 540 of the Foreign Operations Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-107), the price of the transferred equipment shall not exceed the lowest level at which the same or similar equipment has been transferred to any other country under any other U.S. government program.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I urge the Senate adopt this amendment.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this amendment has been agreed to. I urge its passage.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Objection. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Objection.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Objection is heard.

The legislative clerk continued with the call of the roll.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4177, AS FURTHER MODIFIED

(Purpose: To provide for defense burdensharing)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator HARKIN, I ask unanimous consent amendment No. 4177 offered by Senator HARKIN, as modified, and previously adopted, be further modified by the language in the amendment I am sending to the desk.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 4177), as further modified, is as follows:

At the end of subtitle D of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1044. DEFENSE BURDENSHARING.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The United States continues to spend billions of dollars to promote regional security and to make preparations for regional contingencies.

(2) United States defense expenditures promote United States national security interests; however, they also significantly contribute to the defense of our allies.

(3) In 1993, the gross domestic product of the United States equaled $6,300,000,000,000, while the gross domestic product of other NATO member countries totaled $7,200,000,000,000.

(4) Over the course of 1993, the United States spent 4.7 percent of its gross domestic product on defense, while other NATO members collectively spent 2.5 percent of their gross domestic product on defense.

(5) In addition to military spending, foreign assistance plays a vital role in the establishment and maintenance of stability in other nations and in implementing the United States national security strategy.

(6) This assistance has often prevented the outbreak of conflicts which otherwise would have required costly military interventions by the United States and our allies.

(7) From 1990–1993, the United States spent $59,000,000,000 in foreign assistance, a sum which represents an amount greater than any other nation in the world.

(8) In 1995, the United States spent over $10,000,000,000 to promote European security, while European NATO nations only contributed $2,000,000,000 toward this effort.

(9) With a smaller gross domestic product and a larger defense budget than its European NATO allies, the United States shoulders an unfair share of the burden of the common defense.

(11) Japan now pays over 75 percent of the nonpersonnel costs incurred by United States military forces permanently assigned there, while our European allies pay for less than 25 percent of these same costs. Japan signed a new Special Measures Agreement this year which will increase Japan's contribution toward the cost of stationing United States troops in Japan by approximately $30,000,000 a year over the next five years.

(12) These increased contributions help to rectify the imbalance in the burden shouldered by the United States for the common defense.

(13) The relative share of the burden of the common defense still falls too heavily on the United States, and our allies should dedicate more of their own resources to defending themselves.

(b) EFFORTS TO INCREASE ALLIED BURDENSHARING.—The President shall seek to have each nation that has cooperative military relations with the United States (including security agreements, basing arrangements, or mutual participation in multinational military organizations or operations) take one or more of the following actions:

(1) Increase its financial contributions to the payment of the nonpersonnel costs incurred by the United States Government for stationing United States military personnel in that nation, with a goal of achieving the following percentages of such costs:

(A) By September 30, 1997, 37.5 percent.

(B) By September 30, 1998, 50 percent.

(C) By September 30, 1999, 62.5 percent.

(D) By September 30, 2000, 75 percent.

An increase in financial contributions by any nation under this paragraph may include the elimination of taxes, fees, or other charges levied on United States military personnel, equipment, or facilities stationed in that nation.

(2) Increase its annual budgetary outlays for national defense as a percentage of its gross domestic product by 10 percent or at least to a level commensurate to that of the United States by September 30, 1997.

(3) Increase its annual budgetary outlays for foreign assistance (to promote democratization, economic stabilization, transparency arrangements, defense economic conversion, respect for the rule of law, and internationally recognized human rights) by 10 percent or at least to a level commensurate to that of the United States by September 30, 1997.

(4) Increase the amount of military assets (including personnel, equipment, logistics, support and other resources) that it contributes, or would be prepared to contribute, to multinational military activities worldwide.

(c) AUTHORITIES TO ENCOURAGE ACTIONS BY UNITED STATES ALLIES.—In seeking the actions described in subsection (b) with respect to any nation, or in response to a failure by any nation to undertake one or more of such actions, the President may take any of the following measures:

(1) Reduce the end strength level of members of the Armed Forces assigned to permanent duty ashore in that nation.

(2) Impose on that nation taxes, fees, or other charges similar to those that such nation imposes on United States forces stationed in that nation.

(3) Reduce (through rescission, impoundment, or other appropriate procedures as authorized by law) the amount the United States contributes to the NATO Civil Budget, Military Budget, or Security Investment Program.

(4) Suspend, modify, or terminate any bilateral security agreement the United States has with that nation.

(5) Reduce (through rescission, impoundment or other appropriate procedures as authorized by law) any United States bilateral assistance appropriated for that nation.

(6) Take any other action the President determines to be appropriate as authorized by law.

(d) REPORT ON PROGRESS IN INCREASING ALLIED BURDENSHARING.—Not later than March 1, 1997, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress a report on—

(1) steps taken by other nations to complete the actions described in subsection (b);

(2) all measures taken by the President, including those authorized in subsection (c), to achieve the actions described in subsection (b); and

(3) the budgetary savings to the United States that are expected to accrue as a result of the steps described under paragraph (1).

(e) REPORT ON NATIONAL SECURITY BASES FOR FORWARD DEPLOYMENT AND BURDENSHARING RELATIONSHIPS.—(1) In order to ensure the best allocation of budgetary resources, the President shall undertake a review of the status of elements of the United States Armed Forces that are permanently stationed outside the United States. The review shall include an assessment of the following:

(A) The alliance requirements that are to be found in agreements between the United States and other countries.

(B) The national security interests that support permanently stationing elements of the United States Armed Forces outside the United States.

(C) The stationing costs associated with the forward deployment of elements of the United States Armed Forces.

(D) The alternatives available to forward deployment (such as material prepositioning, enhanced airlift and sealift, or joint training operations) to meet such alliance requirements or national security interests, with such alternatives identified and described in detail.

(E) The costs and force structure configurations associated with such alternatives to forward deployment.

(F) The financial contributions that allies of the United States make to common defense efforts (to promote democratization, economic stabilization, transparency arrangements, defense economic conversion, respect for the rule of law, and internationally recognized human rights).

(G) The contributions that allies of the United States make to meeting the stationing costs associated with the forward deployment of elements of the United States Armed Forces.

(H) The annual expenditures of the United States and its allies on national defense, and the relative percentages of each nation's gross domestic product constituted by those expenditures.

(2) The President shall submit to Congress a report on the review under paragraph (1). The report shall be submitted not later than March 1, 1997, in classified and unclassified form.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. I support the amendment. I would like to point out that after this amendment technical correction is made, the Senator from New Jersey has made it clear that he will block further progress on the Department of Defense authorization bill. The Senator from New Jersey can speak to it for himself, as to why he chooses to block a bill concerning the defense and security of the Nation on Friday of the beginning date of recess.

As I say, I do not pretend to describe it. I think it is irresponsible. I think it is unnecessary. We worked very, very hard on this bill for months of hearings, of markup. We have been on this bill now for many, many days. We are nearing the end. And the Senator from New Jersey has decided that he will prevent this body from moving forward.

I hope whatever problems that he has can be resolved, but I believe, if I might say, from a personal standpoint, this is sort of an indicator of a very unpleasant kind of environment that has begun to permeate this body. The Senator from New Jersey has the right, as a Senator, to block this legislation and suggest the absence of a quorum. He has that right. I do not deny him that right.

But I, frankly, am befuddled as to why he would want to block legislation that concerns the welfare of hundreds of thousands of young men and women in the military. It has enormous impact for the security of this Nation. Frankly, I think the American people might deserve an explanation from the Senator from New Jersey as to why he chooses to block a bill that has to do with the defense and security of this Nation. I regret it. I hope he will reconsider his blockage of further progress on this bill, as it is important to the lives of hundreds of thousands of young Americans who are members of the military as well as the security of the country.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, lest it be misunderstood, the insinuation that I have just heard that I want to prevent the armed services from doing their job, prevent the authorizing legislation from going through, is hardly the appropriate characterization of the condition we are in.

The Senator from New Jersey reserves his right, as a U.S. Senator, to take an action to respond to an action that was begun on the Republican side. Last week we had a resolution developed, enthusiastically supported by both sides of the aisle, to caution the Arab countries surrounding Israel not to gang up on Israel, not to start with bellicose statements, making demands that were unrealistic before the Government could even be formed. But someone on the Republican side chose at the last minute, Friday last, within 10 minutes of the time we were ready to recess for the weekend—chose to put a hold on it. The suggestion was the resolution that I wrote—that my name be dropped and others' substituted. Silly, petty stuff.

So, when there is an accusation here—and I think I have served this body well—coming from a distinguished Senator like the Senator from Arizona, no one challenges his right to say what he chooses and to stand up proudly as someone who served his country well. By the same token, in fairness, no one has a right to assail my motives. This is very clear. You have never, never seen Senator LAUTENBERG on this floor stopping action in the 14 years that I have been here. So it has to be an unusual condition that would occasion this.

Mr. President, I want to move this bill along, I want to get it out of the way, but I want someone on the Republican side of the aisle to come up and tell me why there is a problem just because it has a New Jersey attachment. That is hardly the way we do business here. It is a vendetta against the State; it is a vendetta against the Senator. I am not going to put up with it.

Unfortunately, we have to call attention to things sometimes. I have seen the Senator from Arizona and others on that side of the aisle take advantage of the process to make sure that their voices and their concerns were heard. And so it is. Thank you, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. COVERDELL). The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, as the Senator from New Jersey knows, when I prefaced my remarks, I fully acknowledged the right of the Senator from New Jersey to exercise his rights as a Senator. I respect those rights.

The Senator from New Jersey has explained his reasons for not allowing the Senate to proceed with the Department of Defense bill. That is his right to do that.

I state again that there is a great deal at stake here. There are issues that are important to the security of the country that we are considering. I am sure that the Senator from New Jersey would agree with that. I simply urge him to allow us to move forward and proceed with the orderly disposition of a bill that we have been on now since last Friday.

Mr. President, what is the pending business?

AMENDMENT NO. 4387

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair advises the Senator from Arizona that amendment No. 4387 is pending.

Mr. MCCAIN. I urge adoption of the amendment.

Mr. NUNN. I urge the adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this is the seventh day of debate on S. 1745. We have been on and off this bill. There have been interruptions. But for the last 2 or 3 days, we have been on it most of the time.

I would like to acquaint our colleagues, as everybody I know is prepared to try to leave town today, as to where we are on this bill.

We have had 6 days of debate, with total time of debate 55 hours 10 minutes. We have disposed of 111 amendments as follows: 91 were adopted by voice vote; 5 were adopted by rollcall vote; 1 was defeated by voice vote; 3 were defeated by rollcall vote; 5 were tabled by rollcall votes; 6 were withdrawn; 2 failed to be tabled by rollcall vote.

There have been a total of 15 rollcall votes, including the cloture vote on June 26.

Of the amendments, 63 were offered by people who were not on the Armed Services Committee; I believe 32 Democratic amendments, 31 Republican amendments. Armed Services Committee members: 20 Democratic amendments, 28 Republican amendments.

We really have had a balanced kind of approach to this, including balanced amendments and bipartisan amendments that were relevant to this bill. That is about balanced, too.

I have not tried to keep score, but when we have amendments that have nothing to do with the jurisdiction of this bill or when we have things poured over on this bill that have no bearing, as we do right now at the moment, we get delayed and it is very hard to finish this bill.

Starting about 10 o'clock, everybody will be walking in demanding to know when we are going to finish this bill and when they can catch a plane. If they are really interested in doing that, then what they should do is—right now on our side, we have an amendment by Senator CONRAD, an amendment by Senator DASCHLE, an amendment by Senator FEINGOLD, an amendment by Senator FEINSTEIN, two amendments by Senator FORD. Senator HARKIN has one; Senator JOHNSTON has two; Senator LAUTENBERG has one; Senator LEVIN has three; Senator CONRAD has one.

These are all amendments that are not worked out and appear to either have to be substantially altered or they will require rollcall votes and debate.

We have two unanimous-consent requests which we are going to be posing in a little while. If those two consent agreements go through, then we have a chance of finishing this bill at a reasonable hour today. If they do not go through, no chance—no chance.

In addition, though, if those two unanimous-consent agreements go through, we are going to have to have time agreements on these amendments. I believe there are probably three or four amendments on the Republican side of the aisle. We are going to have to have time agreements on them. The time agreements are going to have to be short, and by short, I mean 20 minutes each equally divided. If we do not, then there is not going to be any way to go home this afternoon. The majority leader will make that determination, not me. The floor managers will have recommendations to the majority leader and the minority leader, but they will make the decision.

The majority leader has said over and over and over again he intends to finish this bill. I believe it, and I think that is the appropriate course. If we come back here with this bill hanging out there for the next 10 days, based on my experience, we will have an average of 40 new amendments a day that staff will be dreaming up, unless we send all the staff on vacation, which might be a good idea, because 40 amendments a day times 7 or 8 days, we will have somewhere around 300 more amendments to this bill. It will just grow and grow and grow. It is easy.

We can easily spend the rest of this session on this bill. It would not be difficult at all. We can just say we will have all the amendments come on the armed services bill. We will take them all to conference. The Speaker will appoint the whole House of Representatives to the conference. We cannot get 435 people in the room, but here we go, because so many amendments do not have anything to do with this bill.

When we get to conference, our conferees on the House side and Senate side cannot make decisions that relate to the Judiciary Committee or others. When people continue to put amendments that are not relevant on this bill, that is what happens, and we simply will not be able to get it done.

If we do not get this bill passed, we will have a hard time passing the appropriations bill on Defense, and everybody knows we must pass these two bills.

It is my hope, No. 1, that we can clear this immediate problem we have with the Senator from New Jersey and that we can move forward to get all these cleared amendments done by 9:30; otherwise, we are going to eat into time on the other side of the cloture vote.

I have to tell everyone that, if we do not clear these amendments by 9:30, any of them that are not only not relevant, but not germane—and that is a very technical term; a lot of them are not germane to this bill—they will be ruled out if cloture is invoked. So if cloture is invoked, we will have a lot of people who thought they had amendments worked out or who are getting them worked out, who will not be able to get them passed. That is another consideration.

It is my hope, No. 1, that the Senator from New Jersey and the Senator from Texas will have a conversation and we can get that matter ironed out and moved forward and clear these amendments in the next 20 minutes; No. 2, that we can get these two unanimous-consent agreements entered into as soon as the leadership is prepared to propose them; and, No. 3, that we can get this list of amendments and get a time agreement on every one of them. The time agreements are going to have to be anywhere from 10 minutes to 20 minutes; otherwise, I hope no one will walk in at around 11 o'clock and say, "Can I catch my 11:30 plane?" because it will be beyond the ability of the managers of this bill to make that happen.

Mr. President, I thank the Senator from New Jersey for permitting me to make those remarks.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I am not calling an amendment up here, for the information of my friend from New Jersey. I just want to make it clear, Mr. President, we are voting on a cloture motion at 9:30. There is nothing I would rather do than invoke cloture, but I do not think we can do it at this stage, in fairness to our colleagues on both sides of the aisle. I will vote against cloture for that reason.

No. 1, we do not have unanimous-consent agreements, that are very important, that relate to things beyond this bill, that relate to the whole ballistic missile debate, which we hope to have. We hope to lay down three different proposals on ballistic missile defense, including the Dole-Gingrich proposal, the Clinton administration proposal, and the proposal I will have. We think we are on the verge of working that out.

We have also a couple provisions in this bill that, unless they are changed, this bill is very likely to be a veto candidate. All of us who want to see this enacted into law would like to see those changes so we do not go into the House conference with two provisions that are identical to the House provisions, which means that they would not have the flexibility of changing them, which means the administration is likely to veto any bill coming out. So changing those two amendments relating to missile defense and the ABM Treaty is also important. So without those unanimous consents we cannot do that. If we vote cloture, we are not likely to get the unanimous consents.

In addition, we have 27 amendments that have been cleared on both sides. We had hoped to have all these done this morning, but they are not done because we have not been able to get them done.

So everyone should know and be warned that if cloture were to be invoked, these amendments, I am informed, would not be germane, would not be in order, and could not be agreed to.

We have an amendment by Senator MCCAIN on Bosnia that we do not believe is germane; we have an amendment by Senator EXON on the Lincoln Airport we do not believe is germane; Senator ROBB has an amendment on budget request displays we do not think is germane; Senator SARBANES has an amendment that is on the Forest Glen Annex we do not believe is germane; Senator BINGAMAN has an amendment on the White Sands land exchange which is not germane.

All of them are relevant to the defense bill, relate to defense, but they do not meet the technical definition of germaneness, which is very narrow, as Bob Dove, the Parliamentarian, knows, and the occupant of the chair from Georgia knows.

We have an amendment by Mr. SMITH which is not germane; we have an amendment by Mr. JOHNSTON which is not germane; worked out, we can accept it, but it cannot be done if cloture is invoked. We have one by Mr. DOMENICI which is not germane, another one by Mr. DOMENICI not germane. Mr. HEFLIN has an amendment that is not germane; Mr. LOTT, Mr. EXON, Mr. GLENN, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. COHEN, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. DOMENICI another one, Mr. CHAFEE, Mr. SMITH, Mr. ROBB, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. SMITH, Mr. GLENN, Mr. CHAFEE, and Mr. THURMOND. We do not believe these are germane. There may be one or two of them we have on this list that are. But 95 percent of them are not.

I want to inform our colleagues on both sides, if the cloture vote is passed, none of these amendments will be able to go on this bill. I do not have a problem myself, but I do think a lot of our colleagues will have a problem.

I hope that cloture is not invoked. It is also my hope, though, that we are going to be able to get this list down and people are going to drop amendments and that we are going to break this impasse between the Senator from New Jersey and the Senator from Texas. I hope that can be done and that we can move this bill forward.

It is also my view that a lot of these amendments, even those that look like they are going to take rollcall votes, are likely to disappear as the planes start flying out this afternoon. But if we do not get these unanimous consent requests, we are going to be here a long time, according to the majority leader, and we are going to be here tonight. So everyone should be on notice of that.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I, too, want to see this bill moved. There has been a lot of hard and very thoughtful work that has gone into it. We are at a time when passage, or at least an attempt at passage, would be the best order of business.

Mr. President, this is the defense authorization bill. The effects of this bill begin on October 1 of this year. The results of the authorization that might pass here today will be put into place starting October 1, 1996, 4 months from now. So there is an urgency because of the amount of work that has gone into it.

My friend and colleague, the Senator from Georgia, and the floor manager, Senator MCCAIN, have worked very hard to get us to a point in time when action can be taken to resolve some differences. I would like that done. I feel badly that we are in this momentary state of suspension. When I hear from our friends on the other side that they want to work cooperatively, then I am prepared to move things along expeditiously.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF ALFRED C. DECOTIIS, OF NEW JERSEY, TO BE A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO THE FIFTIETH SESSION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE UNITED NATIONS

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate immediately proceed to executive session to consider the following nomination: Calendar No. 529, Alfred C. DeCotiis, of New Jersey, to be a representative of the United States of America to the 50th session of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

I ask for immediate consideration of his nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of Alfred C. DeCotiis, of New Jersey, to be a representative of the United States of America to the 50th session of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the nomination be confirmed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action, and the Senate then immediately return to legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nomination considered and confirmed is as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Alfred C. DeCotiis, of New Jersey, to be a Representative of the United States of America to the Fiftieth Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Mr. NUNN. I thank the Senator from Arizona for working this out. That was a big roadblock. I appreciate his diligence in doing that.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume legislative session.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we return to consideration of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The Senate continued with consideration of the bill.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on Calendar No. 433, S. 1745, the Department of Defense authorization bill:

Trent Lott, Don Nickles, Dirk Kempthorne, Rod Grams, Jim Jeffords, Craig Thomas, Kay Bailey Hutchison, Christopher S. Bond, John Ashcroft, Conrad Burns, Judd Gregg, Larry Pressler, Orrin G. Hatch, Mitch McConnell, Hank Brown, Sheila Frahm.

VOTE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The mandatory quorum call has been waived. The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on S. 1745, the Department of Defense authorization bill, shall be brought to a close? The yeas and nays are required.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] and the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. INHOFE] are necessarily absent.

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from Montana [Mr. BAUCUS] and the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BUMPERS] are necessarily absent.

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 53, nays 43, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 181 Leg.]

YEAS—53

Abraham
Ashcroft
Bennett
Bond
Brown
Burns
Campbell
Chafee
Coats
Cochran
Cohen
Coverdell
Craig
D'Amato
DeWine
Domenici
Faircloth
Frahm
Frist
Gorton
Gramm
Grams
Grassley
Gregg
Hatch
Helms
Hollings
Hutchison
Jeffords
Kassebaum
Kempthorne
Kyl
Lott
Lugar
Mack
McCain
McConnell
Murkowski
Nickles
Pell
Pressler
Roth
Santorum
Shelby
Simpson
Smith
Snowe
Specter
Stevens
Thomas
Thompson
Thurmond
Warner

NAYS—43

Akaka
Biden
Bingaman
Boxer
Bradley
Breaux
Bryan
Byrd
Conrad
Daschle
Dodd
Dorgan
Exon
Feingold
Feinstein
Ford
Glenn
Graham
Harkin
Heflin
Inouye
Johnston
Kennedy
Kerrey
Kerry
Kohl
Lautenberg
Leahy
Levin
Lieberman
Mikulski
Moseley-Braun
Moynihan
Murray
Nunn
Pryor
Reid
Robb
Rockefeller
Sarbanes
Simon
Wellstone
Wyden

NOT VOTING—4

Baucus
Bumpers
Hatfield
Inhofe

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote the yeas are 53, the nays are 43. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is not agreed to.

Mr. FEINGOLD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I thank the Chair. I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendments be set aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4388

(Purpose: To require a cost-benefit analysis of the F/A–18E/F aircraft program)

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk relating to the F/A–18E/F program on behalf of myself and Senator KOHL.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SANTORUM). The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. FEINGOLD], for himself and Mr. KOHL, proposes an amendment numbered 4388.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II, add the following:

SEC. 223. COST-BENEFIT ANALYSIS OF F/A-18E/F AIRCRAFT PROGRAM.

(a) REPORT ON PROGRAM.—Not later than March 30, 1997, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the F/A/–18E/F aircraft program.

(b) CONTENT OF REPORT.—The report shall contain the following:

(1) A review of the F/A/–18E/F aircraft program.

(2) An analysis and estimate of the production costs of the program for the total number of aircraft realistically expected to be procured at each of three annual production rates as follows:

(A) 18 aircraft.

(B) 24 aircraft.

(C) 36 aircraft.

(3) A comparison of the costs and benefits of the program with the costs and benefits of the F/A–18C/D aircraft program taking into account the operational combat effectiveness of the aircraft.

(c) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS PENDING TRANSMITTAL OF REPORT.—No funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act may be obligated or expended for the procurement of

F/A-18E/F aircraft before the date that is 90 days after the date on which the congressional defense committees receive the report required under subsection (a).

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, this amendment would "fence" the funds authorized for production of the 12 F/A-18E/F's authorized in this legislation until such time as the Department of Defense [DOD] submits a cost/benefit analysis to Congress and Congress has an opportunity to evaluate whether production of this aircraft should commence, in light of the cost and concerns about the benefit of the F/A-18E/F in contrast to the F/A-18C/D, a far less costly yet extremely capable aircraft.

The genesis for this amendment resulted from a General Accounting Office [GAO] draft report made available recently entitled "Navy Aviation: F/A-18E/F will Provide Marginal Operational Improvement at High Cost". In this report GAO studied the rationale and need for the F/A-18E/F in order to determine whether continued development of the aircraft is the most cost-effective approach to modernizing the Navy's tactical aircraft fleet. GAO concluded that the marginal improvements of the F/A-18E/F are outweighed by the high cost of the program.

Mr. President, in our current fiscal climate, I have serious concerns about authorizing funding for such a costly program which according to GAO will deliver only marginal improvements over the current C/D version of the F/A-18.

As GAO noted in its report, at a projected total program cost of $89.15 billion, the F/A-18E/F program is one of the most costly aviation programs in the Department of Defense. The total program cost is comprised of $5.833 billion in development costs and $83.35 billion in procurement costs for 1,000 aircraft. The administration has requested $2.09 billion in fiscal year 1997 for the procurement of 12 F/A-18E/F's. To date, the Navy has already spent $3.75 billion on the research and development phase of the F/A-18E/F program.

Before I begin to describe GAO's findings, I would first like to discuss briefly the role of the F/A-18 aircraft in our Nation's overall naval aviation force structure. The Navy performs its carrier-based missions with a mix of fighter (air-to-air combat), strike (air-to-ground combat), and strike/fighter (multicombat role) aircraft. Currently, carrier based F-14 fighter aircraft perform air-to-air missions; A6E's perform air-to-ground missions; and F/A-18's perform both air-to-air and air-to-ground missions. The F/A-18E/F Super Hornet is the latest version of the Navy's carrier-based F/A-18 strike/fighter plane.

The Navy has based the need for development and procurement of the F/A-18E/F on existing or projected operational deficiencies of the F/A-18C/D in the following key areas: strike range, carrier recovery payload and survivability. In addition, the Navy notes limitations of current C/D's with respect to avionics growth space and payload capacity. In its report, GAO concludes that the operational deficiencies in the C/D that the Navy cited in justifying the E/F either have not materialized as projected or such deficiencies can be corrected with nonstructural changes to the current C/D and additional upgrades made which would further improve its capabilities.

One of the primary reasons the Navy cites in justifying the E/F is the need for increased range and the C/D's inability to perform long-range unrefueled missions against high-value targets. However, GAO concludes that the Navy's F/A-18 strike range requirements can be met by either the F/A-18E/F or F/A-18C/D. Furthermore, it concludes that the increased range of the E/F is achieved at the expense of its aerial combat performance, and that even with increased range, both aircraft will still require aerial refueling for low-altitude missions.

The F/A-18E/F specification requirements call for the aircraft to have a flight range of 390 nautical miles [nm] while performing low-altitude bombing missions. The F/A-18E/F will achieve a strike range of 465 nm while performing low-altitude missions by carrying 2 external 480 gallon fuel tanks. While current C/D's achieve a flight range of 325 nm with 2-330 gallon fuel tanks while performing low-altitude missions—65 nm below the specification requirement of the E/F—when they are equipped with the 2-480 gallon external fuel tanks that are planned to be used on the E/F, the C/D can achieve a strike range of 393 nm on low-altitude missions.

Recent Navy range predictions show that the F/A-18E/F is expected to have a 683 nm strike range when flying a more fuel-efficient, survivable, and lethal high-altitude mission profile rather than the specified low-altitude profile. Similarly, although F/A-18E/F range will be greater than the F/A-18C/D, the C/D could achieve strike ranges—566 nm with 3-330 gallon fuel tanks or 600 nm with 2-480 gallon tanks and 1-330 gallon tank—far greater than the target distances stipulated in the E/F's system specifications by flying the same high-altitude missions as the E/F. Additionally, according to GAO, the E/F's increased strike range is achieved at the expense of the aircraft's aerial combat performance as evidenced by its sustained turn rate, maneuvering, and acceleration which impact its ability to maneuver in either offensive or defensive modes.

Mr. President, another significant reason the Navy cites in developing the F/A-18E/F is an anticipated deficiency in F/A-18C carrier recovery payload—the amount of fuel, weapons and external equipment that an aircraft can carry when returning from a mission and landing on a carrier. The deficiency in carrier recovery payload which the Navy anticipated of the F/A-18C simply has not materialized. When initially procured, F/A-18C's had a total carrier recovery payload of 6,300 pounds. Because of the Navy's decision to increase the F/A-18C's maximum allowable carrier landing weight and a lower aircraft operating weight resulting from technological improvements, the F/A-18C now has a carrier recovery payload of 7,113 pounds.

F/A-18C's operating in support of Bosnian operations are now routinely returning to carriers with operational loads of 7,166 pounds, which exceeds the Navy's stated carrier recovery payload capacity. This recovery payload is substantially greater than the Navy projected it would be and is even greater than when the F/A-18C was first introduced in 1988. In addition, GAO notes that while it is not necessary, upgrading F/A-18C's with stronger landing gear could allow them to recover carrier payloads of more than 10,000 pounds—greater than that sought for the F/A-18E/F—9,000 pounds.

While the Navy also cites a need to improve combat survivability in justifying the development of the F/A-18E/F, it was not developed to counter a particular military threat that could not be met with existing or improved F/A-18C/D's. Additional improvements have subsequently been made or are planned for the F/A-18C/D to enhance its survivability including improvements to reduce its radar detectability, while survivability improvements of the F/A-18E/F are questionable. For example, because the F/A-18E/F will be carrying weapons and fuel externally, the radar signature reduction improvements derived from the structural design of the aircraft will be diminished and will only help the aircraft penetrate slightly deeper than the F/A-18C/D into an integrated defensive system before being detected.

In addition to noting the operational capability improvements in justifying the development of the F/A-18E/F, the Navy also notes limitations of current C/D's with respect to avionics growth space and payload capacity. The Navy predicted that by the mid-1990's the F/A-18C/D would not have growth space to accommodate additional new weapons and systems under development. Specifically, the Navy predicted that by fiscal year 1996 C/D's would only have 0.2 cubic feet of space available for future avionics growth; however, 5.3 cubic feet of available space have been identified for future system growth. Furthermore, technological advancements such as miniaturization, modularity, and consolidation may result in additional growth space for future avionics.

The Navy also stated that the F/A-18E/F will provide increased payload capacity as a result of two new outboard weapons stations; however, unless current problems concerning weapons release are resolved—airflow problems around the fuselage and weapons stations—the types and amounts of weapons the E/F can carry will be restricted and the possible payload increase may be negated. Also, while the E/F will provide a marginal increase in air-to-air capability by carrying two extra missiles, it will not increase its ability to carry the heavier, precision-guided, air-to-ground weapons that are capable of hitting fixed and mobile hard targets and the heavier stand-off weapons that will be used to increase aircraft survivability.

Understanding that the F/A-18E/F may not deliver as significant operational capability improvements as originally expected, I would now like to focus on the cost of the F/A-18E/F program and possible alternatives to it. As previously mentioned, the total program cost of the F/A-18E/F is projected to be $89.15 billion. These program costs are based on the procurement assumption of 1,000 aircraft—660 by the Navy and 340 by the Marine Corps—at an annual production rate of 72 aircraft per year. As the GAO report points out, these figures are overstated. According to Marine Corps officials and the Marine Corps aviation master plan, the Marine Corps does not intend to buy any F/A-18E/F's and, therefore, the projected 1,000 aircraft buy is overstated by 340 aircraft.

Furthermore, the Congress has stated that an annual production rate of 72 aircraft is probably not feasible due to funding limitations and directed the Navy to calculate costs based on more realistic production rates as 18, 36 and 54 aircraft per year. In fact, according to the Congressional Research Service: "No naval aircraft have been bought in such quantities in recent years, and it is unlikely that such annual buys will be funded in the 1990's, given expected force reductions and lower inventory requirements and the absence of consensus about future military threats."

Using the Navy's overstated assumptions about the total number of planes procured and an estimated annual production rate of 72 aircraft per year, the Navy calculates the unit recurring flyaway cost of the F/A-18E/F—costs related to the production of the basic aircraft—at $44 million. However, using GAO's more realistic assumptions of the procurement of 660 aircraft by the Navy, at a production rate of 36 aircraft per year, the unit recurring flyaway cost of the E/F balloons to $53 million. This is compared to the $28 million unit recurring flyaway cost of the F/A-18C/D based on a production rate of 36 aircraft per year. Thus, GAO estimates that this cost difference in unit recurring flyaway would result in a savings of almost $17 billion if the Navy were to procure 660 F/A-18C/D's rather than 660 F/A-18E/F's.

Mr. President, this is certainly a significant amount of savings. Now I know that some of my colleagues will say that by halting production of the F/A-18E/F and instead relying on the F/A-18C/D, we will be mortgaging the future of our naval aviation fleet. However, Mr. President, there is a far less costly program already being developed which may yield more significant returns in operational capability. This program is the Joint Advanced Strike Technology or JAST Program.

The JAST Program office is currently developing technology for a family of affordable next generation Joint Strike Fighter [JSF] aircraft for the Air Force, Marine Corps, and Navy. The JSF is expected to be a stealthy strike aircraft built on a single production line with a high degree of parts and cost commonality. The driving focus of JAST is affordability achieved by tri-service commonality. The Navy plans to procure 300 JSF's with a projected initial operational capability around 2007.

Contractor concept exploration and demonstration studies indicate that the JSF will have superior or comparable capabilities in all Navy tactical aircraft mission areas, especially range and survivability, at far less cost than the F/A-18E/F. The JSF is expected to be a stand alone, stealthy, first-day-of-the-war survivable aircraft. Overall, the JSF is expected to be more survivable and capable than any existing or planned tactical aircraft in strike and air-to-air missions, with the possible exception of the F-22 in air-to-air missions. The Navy's JSF variant is also expected to have longer ranges than the F/A-18E/F to attack high-value targets without using external tanks or tanking. Unlike the F/A-18E/F which would carry all of its weapons externally, the Navy's JSF will carry at least 4 weapons for both air-to-air and air-to-ground combat internally, thereby maximizing its stealthiness and increasing its survivability. Finally, the JSF would not require jamming support from EA-6B aircraft as does the F/A-18E/F in carrying out its mission in the face of integrated air defense systems.

While the JSF is expected to have superior operational capabilities, it is expected to be developed and procured at far less expense than the F/A-18E/F. In fact, the unit recurring flyaway cost of the Navy's JSF is estimated to range from $32 to $40 million depending on which contractor design is chosen for the aircraft, as compared to GAO's $53 million estimate for the F/A-18E/F. Additional cost benefits of the JSF would result from having common aircraft spare parts, simplified technical specifications, and reduced support equipment variations, as well as reductions in aircrew and maintenance training requirements.

Given the enormous cost and marginal improvement in operational capabilities the F/A-18E/F would provide, it seems that the justification for the E/F is not as evident as once thought. Operational deficiencies in the C/D aircraft either have not materialized or can be corrected with nonstructural changes to the plane. As a result, proceeding with the E/F Program may not be the most cost-effective approach to modernizing the Navy's tactical aircraft fleet. In the short term, the Navy can continue to procure the F/A-18C/D aircraft, while upgrading it to improve further its operational capabilities. For the long term, the Navy can look toward the next generation strike fighter, the JSF, which will provide more operational capability at far less cost than the E/F.

Mr. President, succinctly put, the Navy needs an aircraft that will bridge between the current force and the new, superior JSF which will be operational around 2007. The question is whether the F/A-18C/D can serve that function, as it has demonstrated its ability to exceed predicted capacity or whether we should proceed with an expensive, new plane for a marginal level of improvement. The $17 billion difference in projected costs does not appear to provide a significant return on our investment. In times of severe fiscal constraints and a need to look at all areas of the budget to identify more cost-effective approaches, the F/A-18E/F is a project in need of reevaluation.

For these reasons, I think it would be prudent to take a go-slow approach toward the F/A-18E/F program and allow the Congress sufficient time to evaluate GAO's findings and obtain a thorough response from DOD to these issues. I ask my colleagues to support my amendment to fence all fiscal year 1997 funds authorizing the production of F/A-18E/F's until certain conditions are met. I thank my colleagues and I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, this particular aircraft program has been thoroughly examined for program costs, schedule, technical performance, and recent test results. The program is on schedule and on cost.

This is one of those clear examples of where the GAO and the Department of Defense are at odds on certain data, and I respect fully the very detailed presentation by our distinguished colleague from Wisconsin. But I have to assure Members of the Senate that this is a matter that has been examined by the Armed Services Committee, and we will strongly oppose the amendment.

The analytical tests for the decision to begin engineering and manufacturing development of the program was thoroughly examined by the Department of the Navy and the Department of Defense in 1992. A number of studies which looked at the future of naval aviation, projected threats and the capabilities required to defeat those threats were considered. To say now it is a better idea to remain with the earlier model of the 18, in our judgment, ignores all of the analyses that went into the decisions to develop the newer model and threatens one of the best run developmental programs and production programs in progress today.

Therefore, Mr. President, the amendment would have the effect of delaying the 18 E/F program for up to 8 months at heavy costs to the American taxpayers until we get another study. There will always be more capable programs postulated for the future and there will always be lesser programs as we look over the past. This program has met all the requirements placed on it, is on schedule and at cost. Therefore, I urge the Senate to oppose the amendment.

Mr. President, I see the presence on the floor of the Senator from Missouri who has spent a great deal of time in this program.

Mr. FEINGOLD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, briefly to respond to the Senator from Virginia, I appreciate his remarks and his great knowledge in this area, particularly when it comes to the Navy.

Let me simply remind my colleagues what this amendment seeks to do. It asks, in light of this recently released GAO report, released yesterday, that we fence the money until such time as the Department of Defense provides us with a response to this, and then there will be just a 90-day period afterward, during which we would have an opportunity to look at it and GAO would look at it.

This is a serious report. There may be disagreement. When you are talking about $17 billion between the C/D and Super Hornet, I think it deserves a look. I am not suggesting, nor have I suggested, the E/F is a bad airplane. Clearly, many of the things you indicated about its capabilities are there.

The question that was raised by the report was whether or not the current C/D plane can provide these benefits and that perhaps we could move directly from the C/D plane on to the JSF plane as a cheaper and most cost-effective way. All we are suggesting here then is this brief period when we would have a chance to see whether the GAO was on the right track and see what the Department of Defense has to say about it.

Mr. NUNN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I have to oppose the amendment as it is now worded. I have no objection whatsoever to getting the information on the GAO report from the military. I think that is appropriate.

I think the Senator is absolutely right to raise these questions once you have a serious GAO report. But I do not think we can hold up the entire funding on this program. I am told it would cost an 8- to 12-month slip in the program, and then assuming you go forward with the program, you end up spending a whole lot more money. So, in an effort to save money, you end up spending a lot more money.

So I have to oppose the amendment as it is now worded. If the Senator would like to have his staff work with our staff to hold up a reasonable amount of money so it does not throw the whole schedule off, to assure the Senator that the report will be forthcoming, I think that could be accommodated. But to hold up the entire funding, I would have to oppose that.

I will leave it up to the Senator whether he would like to get a vote on this now or would like to take 10 minutes to see if there is a portion of the funding that would not disrupt the program but would indicate the seriousness with which the information is received. I think that would work. I have not discussed this with the other side of the aisle. It may be they will not want to do that. Maybe we ought to go ahead with a rollcall vote, if that is appropriate, but I certainly defer to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. FEINGOLD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I always appreciate the knowledge and experience of the Senator from Georgia and particularly his reasonableness. I certainly would like to take the opportunity to consult and see if there might be a way to work that out.

I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside.

Mr. BOND. Reserving the right to object, I will not object to setting aside the amendment, but I do want to add some points on the discussion of it. I have no objection to setting it aside, but I do seek the floor to respond to some of the questions raised by the Senator from Wisconsin.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, let me explain why I think this amendment is not appropriate, it is not a good idea. The distinguished Senator from Georgia has already pointed out that an amendment like this, by delaying the production of the aircraft, would inevitably do little more than add cost to the total program and to the total buy. There are ongoing studies. The Navy and the Defense Department have been conducting these studies. They have reviews ongoing, and we will have access to not only their comments on the GAO report but their reviews.

Let me say in summary, the GAO is not flying the airplane. The GAO people are not the ones landing fully-weapons-loaded airplanes on pitching aircraft carriers in the ocean. The Navy people are. They are the ones who made a compelling case for this airplane and the need for it. I should point out the F/A-18E/F exceeds the interdiction mission of the current C/D models in range by some 40 to 50 percent, regardless of the mission profile.

There is talk about adding additional tanks or larger tanks on the C/D, but these have been rejected because of restrictive load limitations and the structural operational limitations on the C/D on board the carrier. The Navy has conducted a thorough engineering analysis on the matter of putting larger tanks, for example, on the C/D's and concluded this was not suitable for carrier operations.

The real question is the bringback capability. The current model of C/D fleet is at its operational limit in regard to its ability to bring back weapons. The E/F will be able to bring back the more advanced smart weapons which tend to be heavier than the majority of weapons in the fleet today. The E/F, the next generation of the Super Hornet, provides future room for future growth and flexibility to accommodate the technological advancements into the next century.

One point the GAO has made is that there is a waiver for the C/D's landing restrictions. They say it is a permanent waiver. Well, that is not true. NAVAIR has said the waiver was acceptable in the interim, but it was up to individual air wings to approve or disapprove depending on their own assessments.

Let me tell you, from the viewpoint of those who have flown on carriers and flown on and off of carriers at sea, what will have to happen. With the current C/D's to bring back fully loaded the weapons and the fuel, the ship will have to increase its speed to maintain 30 knots or more of wind over the deck, which will increase its fuel costs, whether nuclear or conventional; then the pilots will have to fly a full flap approach. But if the wind goes over 35 knots because of unpredictable winds, then the pilot is required by the Navy safety manual to fly at half lap and would not be able to land with the heavier strike munitions load.

It is a small and costly window to achieve. Though in some instances it can be achieved, it is only because of the extreme skill of our carrier crews. It is not an ideal situation to put the pilots or the carrier crews at risk when there is such a limited window of acceptable operations.

The new E/F Super Hornet will enable the carrier to cruise at its normal speed and the pilots will be able to fly the normal patterns. They will not have to drop either their weapons or dump their fuel into the ocean to below safe minimums to bring back our most sophisticated and expensive ordnance.

Let us remember, however, that the F/A–18C/D models will continue to carry numerous ordnance loads safely and without restrictions covering many missions. It is only for certain strike mission loads that the waiver is required. But we have to plan for the future. For the Navy, that future should and must include the F/A–18E/F. The Super Hornet is desired by the customer, the Navy, which has been consistent and vocal in its support of procuring the aircraft rapidly and efficiently.

Further delays in a go-slow approach for this program in its current stage are both inappropriate and costly. We cannot sit around and wait for future paper airplanes magically to appear. We have modified to the limit our older aircraft.

For many years aviation, and naval aviation in particular, has been subject to technical, administrative and political forces which have given it the appearance of having no direction. We have been clamoring for such direction. Now we have it. The Navy has said, "This is what we need. This airplane is meeting our specs. We need it." Let us go forward with it.

I strongly urge this body not to be in a position of "go-slowing" this program to death. Our pilots want the aircraft. They need the aircraft to maintain their critical edge. I urge this body not to pull the wings off. Let us let the Navy get about the job of continuing to defend this Nation now and in the future.

The F/A–18E/F program has been a model program, by any measure, and remains on cost, on schedule in meeting all performance requirements. The Navy is developing, at one-half to one-third the cost of a new-start program, a highly capable carrier-based tactical aircraft.

The amendment, as written, would divert program management attention away from the execution of the program and, if yet another program review were to be required, could impose as much as an 8-month delay in the program. This delay would affect the 3-year flight test program, the operational evaluation, and IOC of the first squadron.

I think that the formal program reviews which are already being conducted are enough. The analytical basis of the program was thoroughly examined at the previous milestone decision, and the program has performed precisely to the plan approved at that time. I believe there are studies going on, and thus this amendment is unnecessary to ensure that we continue to get the kind of additional capability that the Navy, its pilots, and its aircraft crews demand and need.

I urge my colleagues, if this amendment is brought up for a vote, to oppose the amendment. I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. FEINGOLD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Thank you, Mr. President.

I am coming to the end of the debate on this portion. I want to respond to the Senator from Missouri very briefly.

Let us be clear what we are attempting. We are in a period here where everyone in the country knows we are trying to find places where we can reduce spending. There are a number of areas that receive very strict scrutiny. There is a sense—it is not held by just one party—that perhaps sometimes the defense spending does not get the same scrutiny that other areas do. Sometimes it leads to defense bashing which may not be justified. It is even possible, if people get an attitude that the Defense Department expenditures are not scrutinized, that there may develop an attitude in this country that would actually threaten national security, that it may become difficult for those advocating defense expenditures to be believed, and that there are those who do not take a warning signal seriously.

All that we are suggesting here in this amendment is that a very recent report, yesterday, from the General Accounting Office says—not that this is a bad aircraft, I say to the Senator from Missouri, not that it does not provide perhaps some additional benefits; it may be and probably would turn out that in some areas this is a more capable airplane—but the question is, is the marginal benefit of those improvements sufficient to justify a $17 billion difference in cost, vis-a-vis the C/D planes? That is the issue.

We are not stopping the plane here. We are not saying it should never be continued. We are saying that when a report comes out from the GAO entitled, "F/A–18E/F Will Provide Marginal Operational Improvement at High Cost," it is incumbent on us in the U.S. Senate to stop for a bit and find out what it is all about. $17 billion is real money.

If there is an opportunity here to ask some questions and find out maybe, just possibly, the Navy, the Defense Department could go with the C/D's, I think that is our obligation. The Senator from Georgia has suggested perhaps a way in which we can allow more of this to go forward while the questions are answered. We are exploring that at this point. I yield the floor.

Mr. BOND addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, there is no question that we need to study carefully all of the views and opinions and the best information available on any program like this. But I suggest that if you take a look at the series of reviews and experiments, tests, and evaluations that have been done on this plane and that will be done, there is no need, unless and until we find from the Navy that the GAO has raised questions which they have not addressed or we can find that responses by the Defense Department are not adequate, there is no reason to raise further the cost of this program and delay it even further.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Research, Development and Acquisition completed a review of the F/A–18E/F program on March 25 of this year. As of that time, the program review included program cost, schedule, and technical performance, examination of the formal exit criteria which had been approved at the previous milestone, and results of an early operational assessment conducted by the Navy's commander, Operational Test and Evaluation Force. This assessment was based on extensive documentation review, modeling and simulation, and analysis flight test data from the first two test aircraft.

In May 1996, notification was provided to Congress that the review had been successfully completed and the Navy had authorized contracting for long-lead items for the first low-rate initial production of the aircraft.

The Office of the Secretary of Defense is scheduled to conduct another program review in March 1997. At that time, all aspects of the program will again be examined prior to authorizing full funding for the procurement of the first low-rate initial production aircraft.

The analytical basis for the decision to begin engineering and manufacturing development of the F/A–18E/F program was thoroughly evaluated by both the Department of the Navy and the Department of Defense prior to the milestone decision in May of 1992.

Numerous studies which looked at the future of naval aviation, projected threats, and capabilities required to defeat those threats were considered as part of these analyses. It is not to say that we should not continue to review and analyze, look at the cost and determine the capability. That is an ongoing process.

What I am saying, Mr. President, is we could significantly increase the cost of the program, throw production off schedule, and delay the availability of aircraft which the Navy said they have needed by putting a roadblock in the way of the initial low-rate production of the aircraft. This is not the time to throw a monkey wrench into a program which has been on schedule, above performance, and well within cost parameters at this time.

I urge my colleagues not to delay the program.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Wisconsin and the Senator from Missouri. I think there has been a good debate on this. I suggest the Senator lay aside his amendment. We can see if we can find a way to see that the report is forthcoming, without disrupting the program. It seems to me that is the way to proceed.

If not, I would be joined with the Senator from Missouri in moving to table the amendment. I believe the staff is prepared to work with your staff on this.

I have a call in for the Senator from Michigan, Senator LEVIN, who has two amendments that will require rollcalls. In the meantime, I suggest we clear these amendments that have all been agreed to or are going to be agreed to by both sides.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, what is the pending business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All the pending amendments have been laid aside.

AMENDMENT NO. 4387

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, the amendment I am offering is intended to better facilitate our pledge of material assistance to the armed forces of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina by ensuring the lowest fair price of the equipment we provide to their cause.

When the President dispatched United States troops to Bosnia last year, he did so with the stipulation that they would be there only a year. The administration has since softened the deadline by indicating that troops may still be there on December 19, but that withdrawal will begin on that date. This latest commitment on withdrawal is not entirely reassuring. It is quite plausible that withdrawal will begin as stated, but our overall presence there may be drawn out indefinitely.

A deadline was never an exit strategy. Last year, when then Senate majority leader, Senator Bob Dole, and I led the effort to support the President's prerogatives as Commander in Chief and indirectly to support his dispatch of more than 20,000 American troops to Bosnia, we made clear our reservations about simply imposing a deadline. We also suggested the outline of a true exit strategy. The centerpiece of that strategy, as Senator Dole and I have since repeated on countless occasions, was United States leadership in the effort to adequately equip and train the Bosnian Armed Forces. Only when that nation can defend itself against aggression, which over the course of 3½ years of war reduced its territory by half, will the peace be safe without us.

We tried to address this issue last year by including $100 million in drawdown authority for Bosnia in the Foreign Operations appropriations bill. The amendment I am offering today simply seeks to ensure that the $100 million in equipment to be transferred to Bosnia is accounted for in a manner similar to the way it is in the case of other American allies. I am not advocating unlimited material support for Bosnia because of the impact on our own military readiness. But in order to get the most of the $100 million, we should see to it that the equipment is valued at the lowest possible fair price. This amendment gives us this assurance.

The amendment expresses a sense of the Senate that the pricing of equipment be lowest in order to maximize the amount of equipment provided to Bosnia and Herzegovina under current drawdown authority. I believe the amendment has been cleared by the other side.

Mr. NUNN. This amendment has been cleared. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4387) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4389

(Purpose: To authorize the Air National Guard to provide fire protection services and rescue services relating to aircraft at Lincoln Municipal Airport, Lincoln, NE)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator EXON, I offer an amendment that would allow the Nebraska National Guard to provide fire protection services and rescue services relating to aircraft at Lincoln Municipal Airport, Lincoln, NE.

Currently, the Air Guard and local authority share this duty. This amendment would eliminate unnecessary duplication. The air guard would be reimbursed for assuming the entire firefighting mission.

I believe this amendment has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. EXON, proposes an amendment numbered 4389.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle E of title III, add the following:

SEC. 368. AUTHORITY OF AIR NATIONAL GUARD TO PROVIDE CERTAIN SERVICES AT LINCOLN MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, LINCOLN, NEBRASKA.

(a) AUTHORITY.—Subject to subsections (b) and (c), the Nebraska Air National Guard may provide fire protection services and rescue services relating to aircraft at Lincoln Municipal Airport, Lincoln, Nebraska, on behalf of the Lincoln Municipal Airport Authority, Lincoln, Nebraska.

(b) AGREEMENT.—The Nebraska Air National Guard may not provide services under subsection (a) until the Nebraska Air National Guard and the authority enter into an agreement under which the authority reimburses the Nebraska Air National Guard for the cost of the services provided.

(c) CONDITIONS.—These services may only be provided to the extent that the provision of such services does not adversely affect the military preparedness of the Armed Forces.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4389) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4390

(Purpose: To state the sense of Congress regarding the authorization of appropriation and appropriation of funds for military equipment and not identified in a budget request of the Department of Defense and for certain military construction)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I have an amendment on behalf of Senator ROBB.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. ROBB, proposes an amendment numbered 4390.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1014. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATION AND APPROPRIATION OF FUNDS FOR MILITARY EQUIPMENT NOT IDENTIFIED IN THE BUDGET REQUEST OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE AND FOR CERTAIN MILITARY CONSTRUCTION.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) to the maximum extent practicable, each House of Congress should consider the authorization of appropriation, and appropriation, funds for the procurement of military equipment only if the procurement is included—

(A) in the budget request of the President for the Department of Defense; or

(B) in a supplemental request list provided to the congressional defense committees, upon request of such committees, by the Office of the Secretary of Defense, by the military departments, by the National Guard Bureau, or by the officials responsible for the administration of the Reserves;

(2) the recommendations for procurement in a defense authorization bill or a defense appropriations bill reported to the Senate or the House of Representatives which reflect a change from the budget request referred to in paragraph (1)(A) should be accompanied in the committee report relating to the bill by a justification of the national security interest addressed by the change;

(3) the recommendations for military construction projects in a defense authorization bill or a defense appropriations bill reported to the Senate or the House of Representatives which reflect a change from such a budget request should be accompanied by a justification in the committee report relating to the bill of the national security interest addressed by the change; and

(4) the recommendations for procurement of military equipment, or for military construction projects, in a conference to resolve the differences between the two Houses relating to a defense authorization bill or a defense appropriations bill which recommendations reflect a change from the original recommendation of the applicable committee to either House should be accompanied by a justification in the statement of managers of the conference report of the national security interest addressed by the change.

Mr. NUNN. This is not the amendment, I believe, that we have problems with. This amendment would state that it is the sense of the Congress that the defense authorization appropriations bills should rely primarily on the budget request.

I am told this is not cleared. I withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 4390) was withdrawn.

AMENDMENT NO. 4391

(Purpose: To require a plan for repairs and stabilization of the historic district at the Forest Glen Annex of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, MD)

Mr. NUNN. On behalf of Senator SARBANES, I offer an amendment to require a plan for basic repairs and stabilization measures for the historic district of the Forest Glen Annex of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, MD.

I believe this amendment has been cleared on the other side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. SARBANES, proposes an amendment numbered 4391.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title XXI, add the following:

SEC. 2105. PLAN FOR REPAIRS AND STABILIZATION OF THE HISTORIC DISTRICT AT THE FOREST GLEN ANNEX OF WALTER REED MEDICAL CENTER, MARYLAND.

Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Army shall submit to the congressional defense committees a comprehensive plan for basic repairs and stabilization measures throughout the historic district at the Forest Glen Annex of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Maryland, together with funding options for the implementation of the plan.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am pleased to offer an amendment directing the Secretary of the Army to submit a comprehensive plan for basic repairs and stabilization measures needed throughout the historic district at the Forest Glen Annex of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, MD. This plan would also include funding options for the implementation of such plan.

The Walter Reed Army Medical Center Annex at Forest Glen, MD is a 190-acre complex located just north of the Silver Spring business district. It was a former women's seminary known as the National Park Seminary. Acquired by the Army in 1943 by authority of the War Powers Act of 1942, it has served as a rehabilitation center and psychiatric facility for soldiers from World War II through the Vietnam war.

The former college campus also contains approximately two dozen historic buildings on approximately 24 acres which comprise what is now referred to as the National Park Seminary Historic District. The site was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1972. The site contains a number of historic or unique buildings, including houses shaped like a Dutch windmill, an English castle, a Japanese pagoda, a French chateau, and an Italian villa. Unfortunately, over the many years, many of these buildings have suffered substantial deterioration and neglect.

The Army has sought unsuccessfully to excess the property for several years and has continued to plan for its eventual disposal. The National Trust has continued to work with the Army to assist in its assessment of options for the reuse of the property. During this time, even the most basic repairs to the buildings were not undertaken. Reports prepared by the National Trust for Historic Preservation and Save Our Seminary and other organizations have found that, in general, the property is poorly maintained and insufficiently secure. Routine preventative maintenance, such as cleaning out gutters, is not being performed. Repairs to obvious deficiencies, such as holes in the roof and broken windows, are not being made in a timely way. On site security is lax. Fire alarm and fire suppression systems are not being adequately maintained.

The military construction appropriations bill for fiscal year 1990 contained a provision directing the Department of the Army to provide up to $3 million for necessary repairs at the annex and to work with the Montgomery County government and local citizens groups in the planning process for this site. Although we understand that $2 million was allocated by the Army for the repair and maintenance of historic buildings, all of this money was apparently used for architectural planning and design of roof work. However, to date, no funding has been provided for these major repairs and the buildings are deteriorating at a faster rate than ever.

The Army developed a master plan for the site which called for the existing historic buildings to be maintained and occupied by the Army as long as it retains ownership to ensure their maintenance and security. The master plan also identified specific maintenance priorities with work on repair and replacement of deteriorated roofs at the top of the list. In addition, a previous commanding officer at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center submitted a letter stating, "WRAMC will continue to request funding for maintenance of the historic district and make every effort to halt the deterioration of these structures." Despite the findings of the master plan and the statements of support by Army officials, no work has been done to repair or maintain these buildings.

In 1994 following the burning of the historic Odeon Theatre resulting in its destruction by arson, the National Trust for Historic Preservation and Save our Seminary jointly filed a lawsuit against the Army claiming that the Army's neglect of the buildings violated the National Historic Preservation Act. The lawsuit is still pending.

My amendment directs the Department of the Army to develop and submit a plan with appropriate funding options to implement such a plan for basic repairs and stabilization measures throughout the historic district at the Forest Glen Annex of Walter Reed Army Medical Center within 30 days of the enactment of this act. I strongly urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, the amendment has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4391) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MCCAIN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4392

(Purpose: To modify the boundaries of the White Sands National Monument and the White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico, and to modify the boundary of the Bandelier National Monument, New Mexico)

Mr. NUNN. On behalf of Senator BINGAMAN, I offer an amendment authorizing the Secretaries of the Interior and the Army to exchange administrative jurisdiction of the White Sands National Monument and the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico for purposes of creating easily identifiable and manageable boundaries.

I believe the amendment has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], Mr. BINGAMAN, for himself, and Mr. DOMENICI, proposes an amendment numbered 4392.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . MODIFICATION OF BOUNDARIES OF WHITE SANDS NATIONAL MONUMENT AND WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to effect an exchange between the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Army of administrative jurisdiction over the lands described in subsection (c) in order to facilitate administration of the White Sands National Monument and the White Sands Missile Range.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) MISSILE RANGE.—The term "missile range" means the White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico, administered by the Secretary of the Army.

(2) MONUMENT.—The term "monument" means the White Sands National Monument, New Mexico, established by Proclamation No. 2025 (16 U.S.C. 431 note) and administered by the Secretary of the Interior.

(c) EXCHANGE OF JURISDICTION.—The lands exchanged under this Act are the lands generally depicted on the map entitled "White Sands National Monument, Boundary Proposal", numbered 142/80,061 and dated January 1994, comprising—

(1) approximately 2,524 acres of land within the monument that is under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Army, which are transferred to the Secretary of the Interior;

(2) approximately 5,758 acres of land within the missile range abutting the monument, which are transferred to the Secretary of the Interior; and

(3) approximately 4,277 acres of land within the monument abutting the missile range, which are transferred to the Secretary of the Army.

(d) BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.—The boundary of the monument is modified to include the land transferred to the Secretary of the Interior and exclude the land transferred to the Secretary of the Army by subsection (c). The boundary of the missile range is modified accordingly.

(e) ADMINISTRATION.—

(1) MONUMENT.—The Secretary of the Interior shall administer the lands transferred to the Secretary of the Interior by subsection (c) in accordance with laws (including regulations) applicable to the monument.

(2) MISSILE RANGE.—The Secretary of the Army shall administer the lands transferred to the Secretary of the Army by subsection (c) as part of the missile range.

(3) AIRSPACE.—The Secretary of the Army shall maintain control of the airspace above the lands transferred to the Secretary of the Army by subsection (c) as part of the missile range.

(f) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF MAP.—The Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Army shall prepare, and the Secretary of the Interior shall keep on file for public inspection in the headquarters of the monument, a map showing the boundary of the monument as modified by this Act.

(g) WAIVER OF LIMITATION UNDER PRIOR LAW.—Notwithstanding section 303(b)(1) of the National Parks and Recreation Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 3476), land or an interest in land that was deleted from the monument by section 301(19) of the Act (92 Stat. 3475) may be exchanged for land owned by the State of New Mexico within the boundaries of any unit of the National Park System in the State of New Mexico, may be transferred to the jurisdiction of any other Federal agency without monetary consideration, or may be administered as public land, as the Secretary considers appropriate.

SEC. . BANDELIER NATIONAL MONUMENT.

(a) FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) under the provisions of a special use permit, sewage lagoons for Bandelier National Monument, established by Proclamation No. 1322 (16 U.S.C. 431 note) (referred to in this section as the "monument") are located on land administered by the Secretary of Energy that is adjacent to the monument; and

(B) modification of the boundary of the monument to include the land on which the sewage lagoons are situated—

(i) would facilitate administration of both the monument and the adjacent land that would remain under the administrative jurisdiction of the Secretary of Energy; and

(ii) can be accomplished at no cost.

(2) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to modify the boundary between the monument and adjacent Department of Energy land to facilitate management of the monument and Department of Energy land.

(b) BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.—

(1) TRANSFER OF ADMINISTRATIVE JURISDICTION.—There is transferred from the Secretary of Energy to the Secretary of the Interior administrative jurisdiction over the land comprised approximately 4.47 acres depicted on the map entitled "Boundary Map, Bandelier National Monument", No. 315/80,051, dated March 1995.

(2) BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.—The boundary of the monument is modified to include the land transferred by paragraph (1).

(3) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF MAP.—The map described in paragraph (1) shall be on file and available for public inspection in the Lands Office at the Southwest System Support Office of the National Park Service, Santa Fe, New Mexico, and in the Superintendent's Office of Bandelier National Monument.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, today, along with Senator DOMENICI, I propose an amendment that will allow for better administration, law enforcement, and operational procedures for both the White Sands National Monument and the White Sands Missile Range. The bill will exchange about 10,000 acres along the border of the White Sands Missile Range and the White Sands Monument which abut each other. It also transfers to the monument the administrative jurisdiction over about 2,500 acres which lie within the White Sands National Monument but are currently controlled by the White Sands Missile Range.

I ask unanimous consent that a letter and an information paper be printed in the RECORD. The letter, dated June 27, 1996, is from the National Park Service and is signed by Roger G. Kennedy. It states that the Department does not have a problem with the amendment. The letter further states that the Office of Management and Budget has no objection to the presentation of this report for consideration before the Senate. The second document is an information paper from the Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Army, Paul W. Johnson. The paper states that the Department of the Army supports this legislation. It also states that the Office of Management and Budget has no objection to the presentation of this amendment.

Mr. President, the area that I am speaking about is a unique geological formation. This gypsum deposit known as "White Sands" is very important to my home State of New Mexico. The sands cover approximately 275 square miles with about 40 percent lying within the monument and the remaining portion of the dunes, to the south and the east, belonging to the White Sands Missile Range.

As a brief history, on January 18, 1933, President Hoover designated 142, 987 acres, in the Tularosa Basin, as the National Park. From the very beginning, the park has been a success. Within its first 2 years of operation, the White Sands monument shattered the attendance records of the 23-unit Southwestern National Monuments in the Four Corner States of Arizona, Utah, Colorado, and New Mexico.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
NATIONAL PARK SERVICE,
Washington, DC, June 27, 1996.

Hon. JEFF BINGAMAN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BINGAMAN: Thank you for providing the National Park Service the opportunity to comment on the draft amendment to modify the boundaries of the White Sands National Monument New Mexico, and to modify the boundary of the Bandelier National Monument, New Mexico.

The National Park Service believes the proposed boundary modifications will facilitate the management and administration of White Sands National Monument and Bandelier National Monument. The proposed boundary modifications will not result in any land acquisition cost nor any additional management cost.

We do not have any problem with this amendment. Thank you for your continued interest in the National Park Service.

The Office of Management and Budget advises that, from the standpoint of the Administration's program, there is no objection to the presentation of this report for the consideration of the Senate.

Sincerely,

ROGER G. KENNEDY,
Director.

[Information Paper]

JUNE 17, 1996.

Subject: S. 1745H, 104th Congress.

1. Subject bill authorizes an exchange of property between the Department of the Interior and the Department of the Army.

2. The purpose of the bill is to adjust the White Sands National Monument's boundary with the White Sands Missile Range. The action is essentially a housekeeping measure designed to provide both agencies with a more easily identifiable and manageable mutual boundary.

3. The Department of the Army supports subject legislation.

4. The Office of Management and Budget advises that, from the standpoint of the Administration's program, there is no objection to the presentation of this information paper for the consideration of the Senate.

PAUL W. JOHNSON,
Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Army.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, in June 1941, the U.S. Army petitioned for 1.25 million acres of public and private land in the Tularosa Basin for a bombing range. After the attack on Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt approved the Army's request. The Trinity site, where the first atomic bomb was successfully tested on July 16, 1945 is part of the range.

With the region's open space and supportive civic leadership, both the monument and the missile range have been successfully neighbors for many years.

Mr. President, this amendment will help both the monument and the missile range manage their property more efficiently.

Mr. McCAIN. The amendment has been cleared on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4392) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4393

(Purpose: To prohibit the use of prior fiscal year funds for development and procurement of the Pulse Doppler Upgrade modification to the AN/SPS-48E radar system)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator SMITH, I offer an amendment placing limitations on the expenditure of priority-year funds for radar modernization. I believe this has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. SMITH, proposes an amendment numbered 4393.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title I add the following:

SEC. 125. RADAR MODERNIZATION.

Funds appropriated for the Navy for fiscal years before fiscal year 1997 may not be used for development and procurement of the Pulse Doppler Upgrade modification to the AN/SPS-48E radar system.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, it is reality of declining defense budgets that not every program conceived by the Armed Forces or the defense industry can be funded. The Services are forced to examine their military requirements and prioritize among many competing programs. When they do, disappointed defense contractors may seek legislative intervention to achieve objectives they could not satisfy in the budgeting process. An example of such activity exists in the House version of the defense authorization bill. The bill contains a provision that would require the Secretary of the Navy to spend $29 million, authorized and appropriated for other purposes in fiscal years before fiscal year 1997, for development and procurement of a pulse Doppler upgrade modification for the Navy's AN/SPS-48E radar system. In other words this provision would force the Navy to take money away from programs of higher priority that were considered and approved by Congress in prior years and allocate it to a program that failed to make the cut.

Aside from this provision's abuse of the congressional authorization and appropriation process, complying with it would create an outyear demand for substantial additional resources that are not in the future years defense program. Thus, its fiscal abuses would proliferate into the future to undermine stronger and more urgently needed programs.

In summary, we will be confronted in conference by a provision in the House bill that seeks to earmark prior year finds for a program for which there is no funding in the budget or in the future years defense program, for which there is no development or procurement plan, and for which there would be substantial outyear financial burden. I think it important to provide our future conferees clear guidance that such a provision is unacceptable. My amendment would accomplish this. I encourage my Senate colleagues to join me in supporting it.

Mr. NUNN. This amendment has been cleared. I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4393) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4394

(Purpose: To allow the Secretary of Energy to waive limitations on the use of foreign technology in environmental restoration and waste management contracts)

Mr. NUNN. On behalf of Senators JOHNSTON and MURKOWSKI, I offer an amendment allowing the Department of Energy to grant Britain and France access to certain prescribed information in order to conduct environmental cleanup and waste management activities of DOD sites.

I believe this has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. JOHNSTON, for himself and Mr. MURKOWSKI, proposes an amendment numbered 4394.

The amendment is as follows:

"SEC. . FOREIGN ENVIRONMENTAL TECHNOLOGY.

"Section 2536(b) of title 10, United States Code is amended to read as follows:

"(b) WAIVER AUTHORITY.—(1) The Secretary concerned may waive the application of subsection (a) to a contract award if—

"(A) the Secretary concerned determines that the waiver is essential to the national security interests of the United States; or

"(B) in the case of a Department of Energy contract awarded for environmental restoration, remediation, or waste management at a Department of Energy facility—

"(i) the Secretary determines that the waiver will advance the environmental restoration, remediation, or waste management objectives of the Department of Energy and will not harm the national security interests of the United States; and

"(ii) the entity to which the contract is awarded is controlled by a foreign government with which the Secretary is authorized to exchange Restricted Data under section 144(c) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2164(c)).

"(2) The Secretary of Energy shall notify the appropriate committees of Congress of any decision to grant a waiver under paragraph (1)(B). The contract may be executed only after the end of the 45-day period beginning on the date the notification is received by the committees.

Mr. McCAIN. This amendment has been cleared on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4394) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4395

(Purpose: To increase by $9,000,000 the amount authorized to be appropriated for the Air Force for procurement of one UH-1N helicopter simulator)

Mr. McCAIN. On behalf of Senator DOMENICI, I offer an amendment to provide $9 million in procurement of one UH-1N helicopter simulator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. DOMENICI, proposes an amendment numbered 4395.

The amendment is as follows:

In section 103(3), strike out "$5,880,519,000" and insert in lieu thereof "5,889,519,000".

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, This amendment will authorize $9 million to equip the Air Force Theater Air Command Control and Simulation Facility with a UH-1N simulator. The USAF has no simulator for the UH-1N aircraft, yet most aircraft in the DOD routinely acquires simulators to provide initial qualification and continuation—recurring—training of crews. There are several reasons why this simulator is necessary:

Pilots and flight engineers qualifying in the UH-1N are the youngest and most experienced in the USAF.

The UH-1N is one of the oldest helicopters in the USAF inventory and may be prone to increased failure of components.

The simulator creates safety risks allowing trainees to practice emergency procedures in the aircraft for the first time.

In many instances missions are flown single pilot, which requires increased knowledge and proficiency that the simulator can provide.

The UH-1N mission requirements have increased to include the use of night vision goggles which is a more demanding initial training requirement that can be handled in the simulator.

On some missions, crews support strategic missile convoy escorts; This support demands high qualification and judgment, which the simulator can provide.

Convoy tactics are classified and cannot be practiced in the aircraft at Kirtland AFB. The simulator would allow hands-on practice in a secure environment.

CONTINUATION—RECURRING—TRAINING

UH-1N accidents in the early 1990's drove the USAF to procure contract Flight Safety International Bell 212 training for UH-1N crew refresher training—not used for initial qualification training.

Off-site training is expensive and does not meet all the necessary requirements because the Bell 212 has some significant systems differences.

All other USAF helicopters have recurring simulator refresher training conducted at Kirtland AFB, NM.

The simulator maintains standardization of crew force qualification and training.

It updates crew on aircraft changes and other pertinent information.

It allows pilots to practice classified mission procedures.

OTHER IMPORTANT FACTORS

Simulators are widely accepted in both military and civil aviation as critical elements in training programs.

Simulators cost less to operate than the aircraft.

Crews can perform high risk emergency procedures and maneuvers in simulators.

Simulators are a force multiplier.

Typical simulator annual flying hours are 4,000–5,000 hours; Helicopters average 400–500 hours per year.

The UH-1N simulator could be built as a reconfigurable HH-60G for little added cost and provide needed training if the UH-1N is retired and additional H-60's are acquired as a replacement helicopter.

Mr. President, this simulator will prove to be a vital asset within the U.S. Air Force. I understand my colleagues on both sides of the aisle have agreed to accept this amendment, so I thank them for their support and I yield the floor.

Mr. NUNN. We have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4395) was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4396

(Purpose: To increase by $3,000,000 the amount authorized to be appropriated for the Air Force for research, development, test, and evaluation in order to provide $3,000,000 for the Advanced Distributed Simulation connection of the Theater Air Command Control and Simulation Facility with the Mission Training Support System facility of the 58th Special Operations Wing)

Mr. McCAIN. On behalf of Senator DOMENICI, I offer an amendment to authorize $3 million for the Advanced Distribution Simulation of the Theater Air Command Control and Simulation Facility at the 58th Special Operations Wing.

I believe this amendment has been cleared on the other side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. DOMENICI, proposes an amendment numbered 4396.

The amendment is as follows:

In section 201(3), strike out "$14,788,356,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$14,791,356,000".

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, this amendment will authorize $3 million to connect the Theater Air Command Control and Simulation Facility with the 58th Special Operation Wing. In January, 1995, General Ronald Fogleman, Chief of Staff of the USAF announced a "New Vector for Air Force Simulation" and the "need to expand our involvement and investment in advanced simulation technologies to improve our readiness and lower our costs today, and prepare us to dominate the battles of tomorrow."

Kirtland Air Force Base is uniquely suited to lead the Air Force in achieving this new vector by capitalizing on state-of-the-art modeling and simulation [M&S] capability available.

The Chief's vision for Modeling and Simulation [M&S] will provide the tools that the USAF needs to more effectively organize, train, equip, and jointly employ its forces. In order to meet this vision, organizations from the operational, systems development, and testing communities must be brought more closely together.

While there are major initiatives in the DOD to promote the use of advanced distributed simulation [ADS] to bring these communities together in a cost efficient manner. ADS does not allow for technical synergy or the considerable cost savings that would be realized by building a joint-use infrastructure that is readily accessible to multiple organization.

Kirtland Air Force Base has the organizations, infrastructure, and potential to merge capabilities of the Air Combat Command's Theater Air Command and Control Simulation Facility [TACCSF], 58th Special Operations Wing [SOW] Simulation Facility, Phillips Laboratory, Air Force Operational Test and Evaluation Center [AFOTEC], and Sandia National Laboratories into the DOD's most powerful M&S capability.

TACCSF and the 58th SOW already have the USAF's most capable tactical command and control and special operations simulations, respectively. These simulations could be easily linked to support each organization's diverse Office of the Secretary of Defense [OSD] and Joint service customer base.

This amendment will help to accomplish this objective. I understand that my colleagues on both sides of the aisle have agreed to accept this amendment. I appreciate their support. I believe this is a great step in the direction of achieving Chief Fogleman's vision, and I yield the floor.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4396) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4397

(Purpose: To provide $6,000,000 for the procurement of Bradley TOW 2 Programs sets)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator HEFLIN and Senator SHELBY. This amendment would authorize the Army to use $6 million of fiscal year funds to buy test program sets for the Bradley program. These funds were authorized last year for the armored gun system. I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. HEFLIN, for himself, and Mr. SHELBY, proposes an amendment numbered 4397.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title I, add the following:

SEC. 113. BRADLEY TOW 2 TEST PROGRAM SETS.

Of the funds authorized to be appropriated under section 101(3) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (110 Stat. 204), $6,000,000 is available for the procurement of Bradley TOW 2 Test Program sets.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, in the fiscal year 1996 Defense Authorization Bill, $6 million was authorized for the Armored Gun System Test Program Sets. This authorization was approved due to the large shortfall in testing software for ASM programs and due the AGS system's high priority. Unfortunately, the armored gun system has since been terminated. This amendment, therefore, directs the Secetary of the Army to make this money available to fund the Bradley TOW 2 Test Program Set, a program requirement of the Army.

The Army has performed a study of the cost and benefits of purchasing this test equipment for the Bradley TOW 2 system. It found that purchasing this equipment would result in dramatic savings over the existing maintenance method. I therefore urge my colleagues to support this needed reprogramming.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, the amendment has been cleared on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4397) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4398

(Purpose: To increase by $10,000,000 the amount available for the Air Force for research, development, test, and evaluation for the Nation Polar-Orbiting Operational Environmental Satellite System (Space) program (PE 0603434F)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator EXON and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. EXON, proposes an amendment numbered 4398.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II add the following:

SEC. 223. NATIONAL POLAR-ORBITING OPERATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL SATELLITE SYSTEM.

(a) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 201(3), $29,024,000 is available for the National Polar-Orbiting Operational Environmental Satellite System (Space) program (PE 0603434F).

(b) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 201(3), $212,895,000 is available for the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile—EMD program (PE 0604851F).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4398) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4399

(Purpose: Study on worker protection at the Department of Energy facility at Miamisburg, Ohio)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator GLENN and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. GLENN, proposes an amendment numbered 4399.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle D of title XXXI add the following:

SEC. . STUDY ON WORKER PROTECTION AT THE MOUND FACILITY.

(a) Not later than March 15, 1997, the Secretary of Energy shall report to the defense committees of the Congress regarding the status of projects and programs to improve worker safety and health at the Mound Facility in Miamisburg, Ohio.

(b) The report shall include the following:

(1) the status of actions completed in fiscal year 1996;

(2) the status of actions completed or proposed to be completed in fiscal years 1997 and 1998;

(3) a description of the fiscal year 1998 budget request for Mound worker safety and health protection; and

(4) an accounting of expenditures for worker safety and health at Mound by year from fiscal year 1994 through and including fiscal year 1996.

WORKER SAFETY AND HEALTH PROTECTION AT DOE'S MOUND FACILITY

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, I should like to engage the Senator from Idaho, Senator KEMPTHORNE, in a colloquy concerning worker health and safety protection at the Department of Energy's Mound facility in Miamisburg, OH. As the Senator may know, the worker safety and radiation program at Mound has had numerous problems. For example, in 1994, it was discovered that some fluid samples of potentially contaminated workers had sat on a storage shelf for 3 years without being sent to the lab; furthermore, a huge backlog of samples existed. While the backlog has since been reduced and other steps taken to improve the situation, it is still clear to me that problems exist with the worker radiation protection program. Earlier this year, I met with some Mound workers who expressed serious concerns about this situation; I have also received numerous letters from workers at the site expressing similar concerns. Further, I have been informed that DOE's own technical experts believe that substantial upgrades need to be made at Mound in this area. For these reasons, I have filed an amendment which addresses the specific areas which I believe need to be improved. The technical program upgrades addressed by my amendment were developed with extensive input from the DOE. However, I understand that there are some concerns about the potential impact of my amendment.

Mr. KEMPTHORNE. I share fully the concerns expressed by the Senator from Ohio about the need to ensure worker safety and health programs are pursued vigorously at the Mound facility. When we ask workers to undertake potentially dangerous decontamination and decommissioning work, we need to assure them that all reasonable precautions have been taken to protect their safety and health. However, the committee has been informed that the Department has statutory authority to pursue appropriate worker protection programs at the Mound facility. I believe the Senator from Ohio has received assurances from the Department of Energy that important upgrades at the Mound facility will be pursued, and I commend him for his leadership in obtaining those assurances.

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter to me from DOE Under Secretary Tom Grumbly. This letter clearly establishes the Department's intent and commitment to seriously and forthrightly address worker safety issues at Mound. The letter lists a series of discrete program improvements that will be taken at the Mound site beginning immediately and continuing through 1997.

This list closely tracks the amendment which I have filed.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE UNDER SECRETARY OF ENERGY,
Washington, DC, June 21, 1996.

Hon. JOHN GLENN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR GLENN: In response to your concerns regarding worker safety at the Department of Energy's Mound Site, I want to assure you that the Department is moving aggressively to address and resolve those concerns. The Department is committed to take the following actions (see attached summary chart):

In FY 1996:

1. Initiate a contract to complete, by October 1997, the pre-1989 radiological dose assessment for workers with a probable dose of greater than	20 rem
2. Procure and initiate implementation of automated personnel contamination monitors with access control system at a cost of	$250K
3. procure and being to install an automated radiological record keeping and data handling software at a cost of	$260K
4. Identify and train 6 dedicated radiological control technicians for the purpose of radiologically characterizing the Mount sites at a cost of ...	$250K
5. Evaluate the continuous air monitoring program to determine the need for personal air samplers for workers at a cost of	$85K

6. Evaluate the existing contract bioassay analysis laboratory program against the DOE bioassay accreditation criteria to identify areas for improvement at a cost of	$30K
7. Evaluate the existing internal dosimetry does calculation methodologies to validate proper treatment of particle size and chemical form of radioisotopes at a cost of ...	$50K
Total FY 1996 cost	$925K

In FY 1997:

1. complete the pre-1989 radiological dose assessment for workers with a probable dose of greater than 20 rem at a cost of	$3,400K
2. Complete the procurement and installation of automated personnel contamination monitors with access control system at a cost of	$490K
3. Complete installation of the automated radiological record keeping and data handling software at a cost of	$240K
4. Complete the radiological characterization of the Mound site at a cost of	$700K
5. Complete implementation of enhancements to the continuous air monitoring program, including procurement and implementation of a personal monitoring program, at a cost of	$120K
6. complete implementation of a quality control program which meets the DOE bioassay accreditation program criteria for site and contract laboratories as well as establish a DOE validation program at a cost of	$120K
7. Complete implementation of an internal dosimetry dose calculation methodology that properly treats the particle size and chemical form of radioisotopes at a cost of	$150K
Total FY 1997 cost	$5,220K

The cost figures were developed in coordination with the Mound site, but are estimates and therefore not necessarily precise. The expenditures proposed for Fiscal Year 1997 are of course subject to the availability of appropriated funds. We would propose that Fiscal Year 1997 funds for these enhancements be made available from the amounts initially requested for the Environmental Management program in a way that gives the Department the most flexibility. We were not able to include funds for these safety upgrades in our Fiscal Year 1997 budget request because the costs had not yet been determined.

These radiological program improvements will address and resolve both current and legacy issues at Mound and will greatly improve the safety of workers. The Department is committed to making these safety enhancements at the Mound Site.

We appreciate your continued leadership and hard work to assure the protection of worker health and safety at Mound and all Department of Energy facilities.

Sincerely,

THOMAS P. GRUMBLY.

SUMMARY OF RADIOLOGICAL PROGRAM IMPROVEMENTS AT THE DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY MOUND SITE

Project	FY 1996 Costs ($K)	FY 1997 costs ($K)
1. Pre-1989 Dose Assessments	N/A	$3,400
2. Automated Personnel Contamination Monitors and Access Control	$250	490
3. Automated Record Keeping and Data Handling	260	240
4. Site Radiological Characterization	250	700
5. Air Monitoring Program	85	120
6. Bioassay Quality Control	30	120
7. Internal Dosimetry Dose Calculation Methodology	50	150
Total for each FY	925	5,220

Mr. GLENN. These important upgrades should begin at the earliest possible opportunity. As a result of Mr. Grumbly's letter and the committee's concerns, I will not offer my amendment which would specifically authorize funds to ensure that these upgrades take place. I remain concerned though that we may be forcing a trade off between worker safety and health improvements and the pace of clean up at the Mound site.

Mr. President, I wish to ensure that Congress is kept fully informed on the status of the Mound worker safety and health programs.

Mr. KEMPTHORNE. I fully endorse this substitute amendment and move its adoption at this time. I thank my colleague from Ohio for his leadership in this important area. I look forward to working with the honorable Senator to support him on this issue in conference.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared on this side, and I urge adoption of the amendment.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, the amendment is cleared. I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4399) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MCCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4400

(Purpose: To provide special personnel management authorities for civilian intelligence personnel of the Department of Defense)

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator THURMOND and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. THURMOND, proposes an amendment numbered 4400.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.").

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I propose an amendment that would provide new personnel management authorities to the Secretary of Defense for managing the civilian personnel within the Department of Defense intelligence community.

Mr. President this legislation is intended to provide the Secretary of Defense additional flexibility and the capability to manage and to adjust the skill balance within the intelligence community workforce. The flexibility and management tools in this proposal will enable the Secretary of Defense to adjust the intelligence community workforce to changing requirements and technological advances. It is part of a larger effort to enhance the effectiveness of the intelligence community.

Mr. President, I want to acknowledge the cooperation and assistance of the chairman and ranking member of the Government Affairs Committee. I would not have offered this amendment without their concurrence and support. I am pleased to note, for the record, that this is truly a bipartisan cooperative effort of our two Committees. The Secretary of Defense and the Director of Central Intelligence both recommended and support the legislation. I think the amendment will enhance the effectiveness and efficiency of the intelligence community. I urge adoption of the amendment.

Mr. President, I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4400) was agreed to.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4401

(Purpose: To amend chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, to provide Federal employees who transfer in the interest of the Government more effective and efficient delivery of relocation allowances by reducing administrative costs and improving services, and for other purposes)

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. COHEN and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. COHEN, for himself and Mr. LEVIN, proposes an amendment numbered 4401.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. COHEN. Mr. President, Senator LEVIN and I are offering today the Travel Reform and Savings Act as an amendment to the DOD authorization bill.

This amendment has bipartisan support and is intended to enable Federal agencies to adopt the best of private sector travel management practices. It will save over $800 million each year from regulatory and statutory changes in Federal travel management.

This effort originated with two hearings I held this Congress on reforming the Federal Government's travel process. At the Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management hearings on the costs associated with processing Federal travel vouchers, GAO, DOD, GSA and other executive branch agencies agree that the Government's policies focus too much on compliance with rigid rules, and that Federal travel practices are outmoded and too bureaucratic. There was also agreement that the travel process needs to be radically redesigned or reengineered and simplified by adopting the best practices of private industry. Successfully adopting these practices will save the Government an estimated $6 billion during the next 5 years.

I am encouraged by the efforts of the Department of Defense and other agencies in reforming administrative costs connected with temporary duty travel. We are beginning to see progress and we should redouble our efforts to save the taxpayer money from unnecessary travel overhead expenditures.

The Travel Reform and Savings Act primarily deals with another segment of Federal travel, Permanent Change of Station travel, or the cost of moving Federal employees to a new duty station. The amendment is based on many of the recommendations made by the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program, a cooperative effort between the Office of Management and Budget, the General Accounting Office, the Department of Treasury, and the Office of Personnel Management to improve travel and relocation management.

This amendment proposes to offer alternative methods of reimbursement for househunting, and housing transaction expenses. These alternative methods would reduce administrative time and paperwork associated with auditing vouchers. If found cost effective to do so, this legislation would provide authority to pay for property management services, transportation of an employee's privately owned motor vehicle within the continental United States, and home marketing incentives. Furthermore, the amendment would authorize payment for limited relocation allowances to an employee who is performing an extended assignment, repeal the long-distance telephone call certification requirement and transfer authority to the Administrator of General Services to issue implementing regulations.

The Travel Reform and Savings Act is intended to reduce the Government's relocation and travel costs and to ease administrative burdens while providing equitable reimbursement to employees. Enactment of the legislation will eliminate unnecessary paperwork requirements, cut redtape, and result in substantial savings to taxpayers.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senator COHEN in offering this amendment to the fiscal year 1997 Defense authorization bill.

The amendment is needed to reduce the Government's relocation and travel costs, and to ease administrative burdens while providing equitable reimbursement to employees. Enactment of this legislation will eliminate unnecessary paperwork requirements and cut red tape, improve the treatment of employees who perform official travel by creating parity with their private sector counterparts and result in substantial savings to taxpayers.

The amendment represents the product of a multi-agency project team established in 1994 by the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program [JFMIP], a cooperative undertaking of the Office of Management and Budget, the General Accounting Office, the Department of Treasury, and the Office of Personnel Management, to develop recommendations to improve travel and relocation management. A team representing over two dozen organizations from the executive and legislative branches focused on identifying and incorporating the best travel practices of both the public and private sectors. In a recent hearing before the Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the District of Columbia, the General Services Administration testified that one of their short-term goals to assist Federal agencies in their travel reenigineering efforts was to get the necessary legislative changes implemented. The legislative changes proposed by the JFMIP are embodied in this amendment. GSA estimates that the legislative changes included in this amendment will save the Government in excess of $200 million.

I urge my colleges to support this amendment.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared, and I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4401) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4402

(Purpose: To require reporting on compliance of Army test program with certain statutory requirements)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. LEVIN and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. LEVIN, proposes an amendment numbered 4402.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place in title VIII of the bill, add the following new section:

SEC. . TEST PROGRAMS FOR MODERNIZATION-THROUGH-SPARES.

Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Army shall report to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives on the steps he has taken to ensure that each program included in the Army's modernization-through-spares program is conducted in accordance with—

(1) the competition requirements in section 2304 of Title 10;

(2) the core logistics requirements in section 2464 of title 10; and

(3) the public-private competition requirements in section 2469 of Title 10; and

(4) requirements relating to contract bundling and spare parts breakout in sections 15(a) and (15(l) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 644) and implementing regulations in the Defense FAR Supplement.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the Army recently initiated a test program for modernization-through-spares, pursuant to which it plans to group spare parts and system support contracts together and award a single support contract for an entire weapons system. I have been informed that it is the Army's intent to award such a contract, for the M109 howitzer program, on a sole-source basis to the original equipment manufacturer. Spare parts contracts for the M109 howitzer program have previously been awarded on a competitive basis.

This information, if true, is disturbing. Current congressional and regulatory policy encourages the break out spare parts contracts to promote competition. This policy was initiated in the mid-1980's in response to a series of spare parts scandals, in which we learned that the Pentagon had purchased commonly available commercial items for extraordinary prices—such as $435 for a hammer, $243 for a pair of pliers, $640 for a toilet seat, and $9,609 for a hexagonal wrench. These abuses resulted, in large part, from the decision to purchase the items on a sole-source basis from original equipment manufacturers.

Mr. President, the Army's reported decision to award spare parts and support contracts on a sole-source basis to the original equipment manufacturer also raises questions of compliance with a number of other statutory provisions, including the Competition in Contracting Act, requirements for public-private competition prior to contracting out decisions, and prohibitions on contracting out core government functions. These provisions were all written to protect the taxpayers from inappropriate contracting decisions.

My amendment would require the Secretary of the Army to report to the Congress within 60 days on the steps that he is taking to ensure that the proposed test program is conducted in accordance with these requirements. As one of the authors of the Competition in Contracting Act and the spare parts reforms, I intend to closely scrutinize the rationale offered by the Army for any decision to award a sole-source contract to the original equipment manufacturer under this test program.

Mr. NUNN. I believe this amendment has been cleared on the other side, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. McCAIN. I urge adoption. It has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4402) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4403

(Purpose: To authorize the construction of a fuel farm, phase I, at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. STEVENS and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. STEVENS, proposes an amendment numbered 4403.

The amendment is as follows:

In the table in section 2401(a), strike out "$18,000,000" in the amount column in the item relating to Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska, and insert in lieu thereof "$21,000,000".

Strike out the amount set forth as the total amount at the end of the table in section 2401(a) and insert in lieu thereof "$530,590,000".

In section 2406(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "$3,421,366,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$3,424,366,000".

In section 2406(a)(1), strike out "$364,487,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$367,487,000".

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I believe the amendment has been cleared on both sides.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, it has been. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4403) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4404

(Purpose: To authorize $10,000,000 for the construction, Phase I, of a national range control center, White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk for Mr. DOMENICI and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. DOMENICI, proposes an amendment numbered 4404.

The amendment is as follows:

In the table in section 2101(a), insert after the item relating to Fort Polk, Louisiana, the following new item:

New Mexico	White Sands Missile Range	$10,000,000

Strike out the amount set forth as the total amount at the end of the table in section 2101(a) and insert in lieu thereof "$356,450,000".

In section 2104(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "$1,894,297,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$1,904,297,000".

In section 2104(a)(1), strike out "$356,450,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$366,450,000".

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this has been cleared, and I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, The amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4404) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4405

(Purpose: To authorize $8,900,000 for construction at the Undersea Weapons Systems Laboratory at the Naval Undersea Warfare Center, Newport Division, Newport, Rhode Island)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. CHAFFEE and Mr. WARNER and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. CHAFEE, for himself and Mr. WARNER, proposes an amendment numbered 4405.

The amendment is as follows:

In the table in section 2201(a), insert after the item relating to Camp Lejeune Marine Corps Base, North Carolina, the following new item:

Rhode Island	Naval Undersea Warfare Center.	$8,900,000

Strike out the amount set forth as the total amount at the end of the table in section 2201(a) and insert in lieu thereof "$515,952,000".

In section 2205(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "$2,040,093,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$2,048,993,000".

In section 2205(a)(1), strike out "$507,052,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$515,952,000".

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, my amendment, which has been cleared by both sides, authorizes $8.9 million for an Undersea Weapons Systems Laboratory at the Naval Undersea Warfare Center [NUWC], headquartered in Newport, RI.

For many years, NUWC has maintained a well-deserved reputation as a center of excellence in submarine technology. It was certainly no accident that during the 1991, 1993, and 1995 base closure rounds, the Navy consolidated significant personnel and functions into Newport, while establishing the site as headquarters for one of its four R&D superlabs.

Unfortunately, though, NUWC's existing laboratory facilities dedicated to developing emerging technologies are badly outdated and cost-ineffective. They are housed in WWII vintage, thick walled concrete buildings not designed for controlled environments, specialized power and other modern necessities.

In order to remedy this shortfall and maintain U.S. strategic advantage in emerging undersea technologies, NUWC has established a requirement for an Undersea Weapons Systems Laboratory. This facility will enable NUWC to develop and implement affordable state-of-the-art technologies, and to design and prototype futuristic small tactical undersea vehicles. It also boasts an extraordinary pay back period of 2.4 years, which will be realized through the use of multidimensional modeling and simulation laboratories to replace costly in-water testing of underwater weapons systems.

Mr. President, I am convinced that the continued and increasing threat from submarine forces abroad should be a top U.S. national security concern. It has recently been reported that by 2005, 17 percent of the world's projected 410 submarines will have state-of-the-art technology, compared to just 8 percent today. Exploration and development of the many emerging technologies in this field, a goal my amendment seeks to achieve, will keep our undersea fleet of the future equipped with the most capable weapons systems, thereby deterring any potential near-term aggressor.

I want to express my deep appreciation to Senator WARNER for his support for this amendment. Its enactment into law will help take our submarine force into the 21st century as capable as ever.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4405) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, the amendments just accepted by the Senate add $21.9 million to the bill for three unrequested, low priority military construction projects, in addition to the $600 million already provided by the committee. These amendments did not pass the scrutiny of the Senate Armed Services Committee during its markup process, and the Senate should not now act to add millions of dollars for more military construction addons.

I ask that the record clearly reflect that I am strongly opposed to each of these amendments.

The three projects for which funding was added by these amendments are: $8.9 million for an undersea warfare laboratory in Rhode Island, $10 million for a command and control center at White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, and $3 million for a fuel depot at Elmendorf Air Force Base in Alaska.

I appreciate the fact that every effort is being made to adhere to some credible criteria in selecting the projects for addons in this bill. But my objection, in principle, to adding funds for unrequested military construction projects remains the same.

Since 1990, the Congress has added more than $6 billion to the military construction accounts. This bill now adds more than $600 million for unrequested projects at specific locations in various States. At the same time, the overall defense budget has declined by more than 40 percent, despite our recent efforts to increase funding.

During the SASC markup, the Readiness Subcommittee recommended a plus-up of $100 million for high-priority housing projects. But the subcommittee allowed the Department of Defense to determine the allocation of these projects by military priority, not by location in a powerful Senators' State. Senator GLENN and I both voted against the addition of another $600 million in unrequested mil con projects when the amendment was offered in our full committee markup. Not surprisingly, we lost that vote.

Again, I am somewhat gratified to learn that the close scrutiny focused on military construction pork has at least forced a degree of control on the process. Most of the projects added by the Armed Services Committee meet four of the five criteria stated in the sense of the Senate language: Mission essential; not inconsistent with BRAC; in the FYDP; and, executable in fiscal year 1997.

Mr. President, this bill already includes 25 added projects do not meet at least one of these criteria. However, 11 of these are quality of life improvements, and the balance received only planning and design funding. But none of these projects in the bill meet the fifth criterion—offset by a reduction in some other defense account.

Let's look at the priority of the projects already added by the committee for military construction.

Of the total of 115 added projects, 72 were planned for the year 2000 or later. In fact, 14 of these projects were not even included in the FYDP.

Of the $600 million added for unrequested projects, almost $350 million was added for these 72 projects planned for the next century.

Surely, projects planned for fiscal years 2000, 2001, 2002, or later are not as vital to the services as those that are planned to be included in next year's defense budget. Why didn't we focus on the fiscal year 1998 projects? Or the fiscal year 1999 projects? Instead, we are reaching 4 years out in the FYDP, into the next century, to find 29 projects that are planned in the States of Members of the Armed Services Committee.

Let's be realistic. This bill is $1.7 billion above the defense budget target set in the fiscal year 1997 budget resolution. That means we will have to cut out some of the programs added in this bill when we get to conference with the House. Will military construction be cut? I don't think so. Instead, we will probably end up cutting some of the high-priority adds for much-needed modernization equipment that will enable our troops to fight and win in future conflicts.

Mr. President, I am tired of seeing us acquiesce to a practice which only feeds on itself. Until we instill some discipline in our own markup process—by resisting the temptation to add money simply because it serves our constituents—we cannot expect the Department of Defense to exercise discipline in resisting efforts to spend defense dollars on unnecessary, nondefense projects.

We have made progress in reducing the total amount of pork barrelling in the defense budget. Last year, about $4 billion of the total $7 billion added to the defense budget was wasted on pork barrel projects, like new attack submarines, research project earmarks, medical education programs, and, of course, military construction add-ons. This year, we are wasting only $2 billion.

But $2 billion is a lot of taxpayer dollars to waste. How do we explain to the American people why we need to spend $11 billion more for defense this year, when we are spending $2 billion for projects that do little or nothing to contribute to our Nation's security?

Mr. President, I intend to continue to expose these unnecessary addons for military construction projects to public scrutiny—the only way I know to fight this egregious pork-barrel spending. And I plead with my colleagues, for the sake of ensuring public support for adequate defense spending now and in the future, let's stop the pork-barrelling now.

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, a moment ago the Senate adopted three amendments to add additional funds to the military construction budget to fund an undersea weapons system lab in Newport, RI; phase I of a national range command and control center at White Sands Missile Range, NM; and phase I of a fuel farm at Elmendorf AFB, AK. I did not ask for a rollcall vote on these amendments, nor did I want to tie the Senate up with debate on these amendments. However, I would like to voice my opposition to these amendments. I am opposing these amendments because we in the Congress continue to add millions and millions of dollars to the defense budget in order to fund projects which are not requested by our military leaders.

As I understand it, these projects do meet the criteria which the chairman of the Readiness Subcommittee, Senator McCAIN, and I established several years ago. I am gratified that the Senate is exercising a degree of discipline by requiring that these military construction projects meet certain minimal criteria, such as whether a project is in a service's future years defense plan or whether a project is mission essential. I don't think that is too much to ask, Mr. President. Furthermore, I do not agree that just because a project meets these criteria we should fund each and every one of them. We have to exercise discipline in limiting the number of unrequested projects added each year, just as the Pentagon must learn to request appropriate levels of funding for the services' construction accounts. If our military leaders truly need these projects, then they should ask for them in the annual budget request.

On June 19, during the Senate's consideration of Senator McCAIN's amendment to reduce the fiscal year 1997 military construction authorization by $600 million, I spoke at length about my position concerning construction adds. So, I will not belabor the point here. I will point out that it is my intention to continue to work with the chairman of the Readiness Subcommittee to reverse the practice of adding millions of dollars to the budget for unrequested projects.

AMENDMENT NO. 4406

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. SMITH and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. SMITH proposes an amendment numbered 4406.

The amendment is as follows:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE CONCERNING USS LCS 102 (LSSL 102).

It is the sense of the Senate that the Secretary of Defense should use existing authorities in law to seek the expeditious return upon completion of service, of the former USS LCS 102 (LSSL 102) from the Government of Thailand in order for the ship to be transferred to the United States Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy, Massachusetts.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, during the past 5 years our Nation commemorated the 50th anniversary of a series historic World War II events. These ceremonies highlighted the enormous valor, sacrifice, and honorable service of our Nation's veterans. They also showcased some of the unique aircraft, ground vehicles, and naval vessels that helped turn the tide of war in Europe and the pacific.

Many of these extraordinary combatants have long since been retired. Others have been converted to museums. Still others are in use with foreign military services through agreement with our Government.

Recently, it was brought to my attention that one specific class of Navy ship, the LCS class, has only one surviving ship left in existence: The LSC-102. The LCS' were shallow draft gunboats designed and built to provide a high rate of firepower for marines going ashore. The Navy built 130 of them, outfitted with 20mm and 40mm guns as well as rocket launchers for beach bombardment. They saw extensive action in New Guinea, Borneo, Iwo Jima, the Phillippines and Okinawa. Twenty-six were sunk or damaged in combat operations.

As I said, the LCS-102 is the last ship in its class in existence. It is in service with the Royal Navy of Thailand through agreement with our Government. The Thai Navy has indicated that they plan to keep the ship in service through at least the year 2000.

Mr. President, the LCS class has a distinguished history. Our former colleague Senator John Tower served in combat as a boatswain's mate on an LCS in World War II. Former Navy Secretary Bill Middendorf also served aboard an LCS. And John F. Lehman, Sr., the father of Chris Lehman and former Secretary of Navy John Lehman, Jr. commanded the LCS-18 and was awarded the Bronze Star for service during the Okinawa campaign.

The National Association of USS LCS (L) 1-130 has for several years sought to return the LCS-102 to the United States so that it can become an exhibit at the U.S. Navy shipbuilding museum at Quincy, MA. Time is running out for thousands of sailors who served aboard LCS's during World War II and want to see this last-of-its-class ship brought home to port.

The amendment that I am offering today would express the sense of the Senate that the Secretary of Defense should use existing authorities in law to seek the expeditious return of the LCS-102 from the Government of Thailand in order for the ship to be transferred to the United States shipbuilding museum. The amendment does not require any specific action or force the return of the ship. Rather, it convey's congressional interest in working with our friends in Thailand to return this last of its kind ship for exhibition in the United States.

Mr. President, I understand there are concerns over who actually holds title to the vessel, how much longer the royal Thai navy may want to hold onto it, and who would pay the bill to return it to the United States.

According to the Navy, the LCS-102 is now known as the LSSL 102, having been transferred to Thailand under the old military assistance program. There is revisionary right retained by the United States providing that when Thailand no longer needs the vessel for intended purposes it is to notify the United States.

It is entirely possible that Thailand may insist upon some alternative compensation if they agree to give back the ship. While this amendment does not address that issue, it is intended that the Secretary of Defense would exercise his existing authority, in consultation with the State Department, to explore various options and consummate such an arrangement, if appropriate.

Let me make clear that I do not propose using Defense Department funds to return this vessel to the United Sates and transport it to Quincy, MA. In my view, this is something that should be paid for through private contributions. I ask unanimous consent that a letter from William M. MacMullen, the executive director of the shipbuilding museum, committing to raise the necessary funds for such an effort, be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1)

Mr. SMITH. I urge my colleagues to join with me in supporting this amendment. It is fitting that we pay tribute to the collection of American warriors, including our former colleague John Tower, who served aboard this unique class of combatants. Let us bring LCS-102 back stateside, to permanent home port in Quincy, MA, so that future generations can better understand and appreciate its legacy of service.

Mr. President, I understand that this amendment has been cleared on both sides and, if that is the case, I urge adoption of the amendment.

EXHIBIT 1

U.S. NAVAL SHIPBUILDING MUSEUM,
MASSACHUSETTS MILITARY RESEARCH CENTER,
June 19, 1996, Quincy, MA.

Hon. Robert C. Smith,
U.S. Senate, Seapower Subcommittee, Senate Armed Services Committee, Washington, D.C.

DEAR SENATOR SMITH: I am writing to provide you my assurance that the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum here in Quincy, Massachusetts is prepared to take the former LCS-102 and give her a home at the Museum.

We are committed to raise the necessary funds working with the LCS Association to maintain the vessel and prepare her for use as an exhibit. We have the room here and we think that the addition of one of the "fightingest" ships in the World War Two Navy would be a fine addition to our Museum. Many LCSs were actually built here in Quincy during World War Two and it would be fitting to have one of those, (in fact, the only ship of its class left in the world), ships back here in Quincy at our Museum.

It is my understanding that there is a possibility that the Congress may soon endorse the idea of bringing the last LCS home to serve as a museum piece. Many Navy veterans from New Hampshire would be pleased to have the ship so close to home. I urge you to support this initiative to bring this ship to Quincy, Massachusetts, and so honor the tens of thousands of sailors who served on amphibious ships during World War Two.

Respectfully,
WILLIAM M. MACMULLEN, Jr.
Exec. Director, USNSM.

Mr. McCAIN. This has been cleared.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared, and I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4406) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4407

(Purpose: To specify certain matters to be considered by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the next assessment of the current missions, responsibilities, and force structure of the unified combatant commands)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. ROBB, proposes an amendment numbered 4407.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title IX, add the following:

SEC. 908. MATTERS TO BE CONSIDERED IN NEXT ASSESSMENT OF CURRENT MISSIONS, RESPONSIBILITIES, AND FORCE STRUCTURE OF THE UNIFIED COMBATANT COMMANDS.

The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff shall consider, as part of the next periodic review of the missions, responsibilities, and force structure of the unified combatant commands under section 161(b) of title 10, United States Code, the following matters:

(1) For each Area of Responsibility of the regional unified combatant commands—

(A) the foremost threats to United States or allied security in the near- and long-term;

(B) the total area of ocean and total area of land encompassed; and

(C) the number of countries and total population encompassed.

(2) Whether any one Area of Responsibility encompassed a disproportionately high or low share of threats, mission requirements, land or ocean area, number of countries, or population.

(3) The other factors used to establish the current Areas of Responsibility.

(4) Whether any of the factors addressed under paragraph (3) account for any apparent imbalances indicated in the response to paragraph (2).

(5) Whether, in light of recent reductions in the overall force structure of the Armed Forces, the United States could better execute its warfighting plans with fewer unified combatant commands, including—

(A) a total of five or fewer commands, all of which are regional;

(B) an eastward-oriented command, a westward-oriented command, and a central command; or

(C) a purely functional command structure, involving (for example) a first theater command, a second theater command, a logistics command, a special contingencies command, and a strategic command.

(6) Whether any missions, staff, facilities, equipment, training programs, or other assets or activities of the unified combatant commands are redundant.

(7) Whether warfighting requirements are adequate to justify the current functional commands.

(8) Whether the exclusion of Russia from a specific Area of Responsibility present any difficulties for the unified combatant commands with respect to contingency planning for the area and its periphery.

(9) Whether the current geographic boundary between the Central Command and the European Command through the Middle East could create command conflicts in the context of fighting a major regional conflict in the Middle East.

Mr. McCAIN. The amendment has been cleared. I urge that the Senate adopt this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4407) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4408

(Purpose: To make available $7,000,000 for research and development relating to seamless high off-chip connectivity (SHOCC))

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. LEVIN and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. LEVIN, proposes an amendment numbered 4408.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II, add the following:

SEC. 223. SEAMLESS HIGH OFF-CHIP CONNECTIVITY.

Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by this Act, $7,000,000 shall be available for the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency for research and development on Seamless High Off-Chip Connectivity (SHOCC) under the materials and electronic technology program (PE 0602712E).

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency [DARPA] has a continuing program of research and development for advanced electronics and materials. One of the most promising elements of this program is called seamless high off-chip connectivity, or SHOCC for short. The SHOCC program offers the potential to dramatically reduce the cost of producing integrated circuits while increasing their performance considerably. This would be important to our information-age military forces, as well as to our commercial electronics industry.

One of the problems faced by the electronics industry, for both military and civilian applications, is the increased cost of producing high performance integrated circuits. While we have made many dramatic improvements in the chips we produce, there is a point at which increasing their performance to the next logical level is cost-prohibitive. We are approaching that point quickly.

Additionally, the wiring that connects the circuits together on the circuit boards is incapable of transferring all the massive amounts of data that the chips can handle. Consequently, there is an electron traffic jam and bottleneck when the data leaves a chip and goes on to its next destination. It is like an eight-lane information highway suddenly becoming a one-lane dirt road; you can be sure there will be real show-downs. So we need to increase the density of the off-chip wiring.

The SHOCC program run by DARPA seeks to provide a new way of fabricating high performance integrated circuits so they are lower cost, have better wiring to permit all the data to flow between and among all the circuits—the information capacity known as connectivity, and much greater performance. Such circuits would have tremendous importance for our military, which is increasing its reliance on information technology and digitization. Our military needs improved electronic technology at lower cost, and that is what the SHOCC program is all about.

This amendment authorizes $7 million for DARPA to continue this ground-breaking research. There is an offset for the funding of this program.

Mr. McCAIN. The amendment has been cleared, and I urge adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4408) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4409

(Purpose: To amend section 346 (relating to authority to transfer contaminated Federal property before completion of required Federal actions)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator SMITH and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. SMITH, proposes an amendment numbered 4409.

The amendment is as follows:

Beginning on page 90, strike line 1 and all that follows through page 91, line 17, and insert the following:

SEC. 346. AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER CONTAMINATED FEDERAL PROPERTY BEFORE COMPLETION OF REQUIRED REMEDIAL ACTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 120(h)(3) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(h)(3)) is amended—

(1) by redesigning subparagraph (A) as clause (i) and clauses (i), (ii), and (iii) of that subparagraph as subclauses (I), (II), (III), respectively;

(2) by striking "After the last day" and inserting the following:

"(A) IN GENERAL.—After the last day";

(3) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as clause (ii) and clauses (i) and (ii) of that subparagraph as subclauses (I) and (II), respectively;

(4) by redesignating subparagraph (C) as clause (iii);

(5) by striking "For purposes of subparagraph (B)(i)" and inserting the following:

"(B) COVENANT REQUIREMENTS.—For purposes of subparagraphs (A)(ii)(I) and (C)(iii)";

(6) in subparagraph (B), as designated by paragraph (5), by striking "subparagraph (B)" each place it appears and inserting "subparagraph (A)(ii)"; and

(7) by adding at the end the following:

"(C) DEFERRAL.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator (in the case of real property at a Federal facility that is listed on the National Priorities List) or the Governor of the State in which the facility is located (in the case of real property at a Federal facility not listed on the National Priorities List) may defer the requirement of subparagraph (A)(ii)(I) with respect to the property if the Administrator or the Governor, as the case may be, determines that—

"(I) the property is suitable for transfer for the use intended by the transferee;

"(II) the deed or other agreement proposed to govern the transfer between the United States and the transferee of the property contains the assurances set forth in clause (ii); and

"(III) the Federal agency requesting deferral has provided notice, by publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the vicinity of the property, of the proposed transfer and of the opportunity for the public to submit, within a period of not less than 30 days after the date of the notice, written comments on the finding by the agency that the property is suitable for transfer.

"(ii) REMEDIAL ACTION ASSURANCES.—With regard to a release or threatened release of a hazardous substance for which a Federal agency is potentially responsible under this section, the deed or other agreement proposed to govern the transfer shall contain assurances that—

"(I) provide for any necessary restrictions to ensure the protection of human health and the environment;

"(II) provide that there will be restrictions on use necessary to ensure required remedial investigations, remedial actions, and oversight activities will not be disrupted;

"(III) provide that all appropriate remedial action will be taken and identify the schedules for investigation and completion of all necessary remedial action; and

"(IV) provide that the Federal agency responsible for the property subject to transfer will submit a budget request to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget that adequately addresses schedules, subject to congressional authorizations and appropriations.

"(iii) WARRANTY.—When all remedial action necessary to protect human health and the environment with respect to any substance remaining on the property on the date of transfer has been taken, the United States shall execute and deliver to the transferee an appropriate document containing a warranty that all such remedial action has been completed, and the making of the warranty shall be considered to satisfy the requirement of subparagraph (A)(ii)(I).

"(iv) FEDERAL RESPONSIBILITY.—A deferral under this subparagraph shall not increase, diminish, or affect in any manner any rights or obligations of a Federal agency with respect to a property transferred under this subparagraph.".

(b) CONTINUED APPLICATION OF STATE LAW.—The first sentence of section 120(a)(4) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(a)(4)) is amended by inserting "or facilities that are the subject of a deferral under subsection (h)(3)(C)" after "United States".

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, during the Armed Services Committee consideration of S. 1745, Senator McCAIN and I introduced language to amend section 120(h)(3) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act of 1980 [CERCLA] otherwise known as Superfund—to allow for the sale of contaminated properties at former Federal facilities prior to the completion of hazardous waste remedial action. Although the Federal Government would remain responsible for the cost of cleaning up the existing contamination, the early transfer of these properties would allow for the expedited redevelopment of excess Federal properties, such as those closed under the Base Closure and Realignment Act, without having to wait for the completion of the cleanup activities. This language, which was developed with the assistance of the Department of Defense, was cleared as official administration policy by the Office of Management and Budget.

In addition to section 346 being supported by the administration, we have been contacted by a number of States that believe that it is important that the transfer process be expedited so that necessary redevelopment takes place as soon as possible. As a result of my close involvement with efforts to redevelop Pease Air Force Base, as well as my chairmanship of the Senate Superfund Subcommittee, I am aware of instances where potential land redevelopment efforts were hindered because of the Federal agency's inability to provide potential purchasers with a fee simple transaction prior to the time the property was cleaned up. By making this necessary revision to CERCLA 120(h), I believe that we will avoid needless complications in getting these properties into beneficial economic reuse, yet at the same time, ensure that they will be appropriately cleaned up in a timely manner.

Recently, I have received letters from a few State attorneys general expressing concerns about section 346, and seeking assurances that these properties will be expeditiously cleaned up. The attorneys general were primarily concerned that we ensure that all appropriate remedial action is taken at thee sites in a timely manner, that schedules for completion of the cleanup be identified, and that existing agreements, including tri-party agreements remain enforceable. In response to these concerns, my staff on the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee have been working with the staffs of Senators BAUCUS, LAUTENBERG, and CHAFEE, as well as the staff on the Armed Services Committee and representatives of the military services, to address the concerns raised by the attorneys general.

The amendment that I am offering today would accomplish a number of goals. First, it would ensure that those facilities that are transferred prior to their cleanup would receive the same environmental protections as those facilities currently cleaned up under section 120(h). Similar to current law, the deed transferring the property would be required to contain assurances that all appropriate remedial action will be taken at the property, as well as identify schedules for the investigation and completion of all necessary remedial actions. In addition, the current language in section 120(h) would continue to hold the Government responsible for any additional cleanup found to be necessary after the date of the transfer.

Second, this amendment specifically states that the Federal obligations for these facilities would not be diminished or affected as a result of these transfers. The functional effect is that contractual obligations, such as tri-party agreements, that have been entered into by the Federal Government prior to the transfer, would remain unaffected by this change.

Third, this amendment would ensure that State laws, including State environmental laws, will continue to apply to facilities that are transferred as a result of this section. Thus, in no way does this amendment affect the ability of States to fully enforce their State environmental cleanup requirements.

Mr. President, my staff has been contacted by the representatives of a number of Governor's who have told me that they strongly support the existing language in section 346. However, I am willing to modify my language to address the concerns raised by attorneys general. As a result of these changes, I believe that this amendment will not only clarify our intention to allow these pre-cleanup transfers, but it will also ensure that these cleanups will take place in a prompt fashion.

I urge the support of my colleagues for this amendment.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I would like to engage the distinguished Chairman of the Armed Services Committee in a brief colloquy regarding the Smith amendment to section 346 of the bill. Let me also say that I am pleased that the managers have agreed to adopt the Smith amendment, which I believe improves the section in question.

The original intent of section 346 is worthy. We should make every effort to expedite the transfer of Federal property when it is needed for local economic development or similar time sensitive opportunities. However, upon reading the provision carefully, I became concerned that providing the authority to transfer contaminated Federal property before completion of required remedial actions could potentially muddle the Federal Government's responsibility for cleaning up this contamination.

I would like to ask the Senator from South Carolina whether anything in the Smith amendment to section 346 in any way diminishes the Federal Government's obligation to remediate contamination for which it or its agencies are responsible?

Mr. THURMOND. I thank the Senator from Michigan for his interest. Nothing in the amended section 346 reduces or otherwise changes the responsibility of the United States for cleaning up contamination at its facilities.

Mr. LEVIN. I appreciate that clarification from the chairman. As he and my colleagues may know, I have long been concerned that the Department of Defense [DOD] and Congress should allocate sufficient funds for the purposes of cleaning up closed and closing bases so that they may be reused to the benefit of the local and State economies. In fact, I believe that these former military facilities deserve priority attention because of the severe economic impact that closing bases can have on communities.

I am thankful that the amendment reflects these concerns and requires cleanup schedules to be prepared and adequate budget requests to be made as part of the necessary assurances prior to any transfer. However, the amendment still covers the entire universe of potentially transferrable Federal facilities and allows transfer prior to cleanup. Conceivably, this could result in less attention by DOD and other agencies to the remediation of these facilities. Could the chairman reassure me that the transfer of former military properties and other Federal facilities pursuant to the revised section 346 will not affect the priority DOD gives to their cleanup?

Mr. THURMOND. Let me reassure the Senator from Michigan that section 346 as amended by the Smith amendment does not affect or alter in any way the obligation of or the need for DOD to clean up the properties it has contaminated, particularly at closed or closing facilities. In fact, as the Senator indicated, all agencies proposing to transfer property must identify specific cleanup schedules and submit budget requests that adequately address those schedules for remedial action.

Mr. LEVIN. The chairman of the committee and his staff have been most helpful in arriving at these improvements to section 346. I appreciate his assistance.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, though the Smith amendment to section 346 goes a long way toward resolving the majority of my concerns, and the reassurances provided by the chairman of the Senate Armed Services have been extremely helpful, there are still some issues that need to be considered before Congress proceeds with this kind of change in permanent law.

Though I understand from DOD staff that the Department does not intend to use this new authority widely or without significant caution, an argument can be made that a change of this magnitude, affecting all Federal facilities, should be considered in the context of comprehensive reform of the Superfund law, and the Governmental Affairs Committee should probably have the opportunity to consider the change in the process for disposition of Federal property.

Further, my office has been contacted by the Attorney General of Michigan regarding his concerns about the impact of section 346 in the Committee-reported version of S. 1745. These concerns appear to be shared by many other State Attorneys General around the country. Some of these concerns are addressed by the changes that the Smith amendment makes in section 346. But, I want my colleagues to know that this provision is not a simple matter and could have far-reaching consequences. I hope the conferees will carefully consider the need for this new authority and the possible outcomes of its exercise.

I ask unanimous consent that a letter from the attorney general of Michigan to me be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
DEPARTMENT OF ATTORNEY GENERAL,
Lansing, MI, June 13, 1996.

Re: S. 1745—Proposed amendment of section 120(h)(3) of CERCLA.

Hon. CARL LEVIN,
U.S. Senate, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEVIN: I am writing to express my opposition to the change proposed by S. 1745, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1997, to a most important provision of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA). Section 120(h)(3) of CERCLA has clearly and unequivocally placed the burden of cleaning up contaminated federal property on federal agencies. This is sound public policy for a number of reasons, not the least of which is that since the property was contaminated by the federal government, is should set an example for the rest of the nation by accepting its responsibility for damages its agencies have done to the environment. It is a policy that has worked because of the mandates of section 120(h)(3) that all remedial action necessary be conducted before the site is transferred, and that any transfer contain a covenant that any additional remedial action found to be necessary after the transfer will be conducted by the United States.

The proposed change to section 120(h)(3) will permit the transfer of contaminated federal land before all remedial action is completed, and it will allow federal agencies to transfer their liability for the facility to other parties such as states, local governments and private persons. I urge you to strongly oppose this change in its present form.

In many instances, the initial transferee of federal facilities may be a state or local government which accepts title in order to convey to a private party for economic development. Forcing the state or local agency to make a choice between accepting the land and the liability of the United State, or losing the chance for economic redevelopment of the site by declining to accept such liability, is unfair and contrary to the intent of section 120(h)(3). Yet this is precisely the choice that will be presented in many instances, and I fear that the acute need for redevelopment and the ability to pass the liability on to the private developer will force state and local agencies to absolve the United States of liability for the harm it has caused, even though the private redeveloper's promise to accept the liability is often of little or no value. In such cases, the environmental liability of the United States will be unfairly passed to state and local governments.

Allowing federal agencies to transfer their environmental liability to others in the name of economic development will increase the number of orphan sites of contamination when the transferee is either unwilling, or more likely unable, to fulfill the "assurance" it gave to remediate the federal facility. Facilitating civilian redevelopment of federal facilities is a worthwhile endeavor, but not at the expense of the environment.

First and foremost, the federal government must keep the promise of remediating all contaminated federal facilities. The United States can fulfill this obligation, and promote redevelopment of federal facilities at the same time under the current section 120(h)(3) of CERCLA. In those rare instances where redevelopment is thwarted by the inability to convey title to the land to the redeveloper, CERCLA must continue to make clear that the United States will take any corrective action necessary after transferring the land.

It is my position that an amendment to section 120(h)(3) of CERCLA such as that proposed by S. 1745 should not be passed without clear mandates contained therein that the United States may not transfer its liability to any other party or person, and that the United States must convenant to take all remedial action necessary in the event the transferee fails to do so.

Very truly yours,
FRANK J. KELLEY,
Attorney General.

Mr. BAUCUS. I would like to ask the sponsor of the amendment, Senator SMITH, to clarify a couple of points I have on the amendment allowing the transfer of Federal facilities. First, let me say that transferring Federal facilities to private parties as quickly as we can so they can be put to productive use is desirable. But we must not transfer property if doing so would compromise protection of human health and the environment. And we must ensure that when we do transfer Federal sites before they are cleaned up, we don't forget about them. We must make sure that the Federal Government cleans up these sites as quickly as it would if the Government still owned the property. At the same time, communities do not want to wait for years while interested parties study the extent of contamination and argue over remedies. So to speed up the transfer of contaminated land at these Federal sites, this amendment will allow the Federal Government to transfer property to private parties before the remedy is completed. While I support the amendment, I do so with some reservations and ask that my concerns be addressed in conference. I want to make sure that if we allow the Federal Government to transfer contaminated property before the site is cleaned up we do so with the appropriate safeguards necessary to ensure that the States and public is not saddled with the cleanup of former Federal sites. I want to make sure that allowing Federal sites to be transferred before the site is cleaned up will not affect the Federal Government's obligations to cleanup its sites. At many sites, the Federal Government has entered into triparty agreements with the States and Federal regulators. These triparty agreements should not be compromised by transfers. Is it the understanding of the Senator that triparty agreements will not be affected by the amendment?

Mr. SMITH. It is my understanding that the triparty agreements will remain unaffected by this amendment. We do not intend that this provision effect the pace of cleanups or shift costs from the Federal Government to the States. More specifically, in the paragraph setting forth the condition that must be met before a transfer can occur, clause (iv) states that a deferral shall not increase, diminish, or affect in any manner any rights or obligations of a Federal agency with respect to a property transferred.

Mr. BAUCUS. So it is the intent of the Senator that by using the phrase "rights or obligations" in clause (iv) is to cover any existing contractual obligation entered into by the Federal agency?

Mr. SMITH. Yes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Would the Senator agree that triparty agreements are one category of contractual obligation?

Mr. SMITH. Yes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Second, I understand that the amendment would allow transfers of Federal facilities to occur before remedial action is in place, provided that the transfer contains several assurances. These assurances would, among other things, assure that all appropriate remedial action will be taken and that the schedules for investigation and completion of all necessary remedial actions will be identified. Is the intent of this language to ensure that the cleanup at transferred sites will proceed according to the schedule identified in a deed or other agreement proposed to govern the transfer?

Mr. SMITH. Yes.

Mr. BAUCUS. I am pleased that the intent of this language is for the cleanup to proceed according to the schedule in the deed or other agreement proposed to govern the transfer. But I am unclear who would enforce the schedule and I would hope this is clarified in conference.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I share these concerns. We want to put Federal facilities back into productive use as quickly as we can. But we must make sure that we do so in a way that protects our citizens health and their environment. While the amendment includes a number of assurances that must be made before a transfer can occur, we must make sure that all of the assurances are met so that health and safety are not compromised and cleanup occurs as quickly as possible. One of the most effective tools now being used to expedite cleanups are interagency agreements, including triparty agreements. Does the Senator agree that triparty agreements are an effective mechanism for ensuring input from States and coordinating cleanup efforts, and should be used where appropriate?

Mr. SMITH. Triparty agreements have proven to be an effective tool to coordinate the cleanup efforts at Federal facilities. These agreements should be used where appropriate, and nothing in this amendment would impede the ability of Federal regulatory agencies and States to enter into such agreements.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Let me restate my interest in expediting the reuse of these properties. But it must be done carefully and cleanups must proceed in a timely manner. In addition, we must make sure that States have all of the tools that they need to be partners in these transfers of Federal lands and in their cleanup. I hope the Senator will work to address my concerns in conference.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4409) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4410

(Purpose: To strengthen certain sanctions against nuclear proliferation activities)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator GLENN and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. GLENN, for himself and Mr. PELL, proposes an amendment numbered 4410.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle F of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1072. STRENGTHENING CERTAIN SANCTIONS AGAINST NUCLEAR PROLIFERATION ACTIVITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 2(b)(4) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 (12 U.S.C. 635(b)(4)) is amended—

(1) by inserting after "any country has willfully aided or abetted" the following: ", or any person has knowingly aided or abetted,";

(2) by striking "or countries" and inserting ", countries, person, or persons";

(3) by inserting after "United States exports to such country" the following: "or, in the case of any such person, give approval to guarantee, insure, or extend credit, or participate in the extension of credit in support of, exports to or by any such person for a 12-month period,";

(4) by inserting "(A)" immediately after "(4)";

(5) by inserting after "United States exports to such country" the second place it appears the following: ", except as provided in subparagraph (B),"; and

(6) by adding at the end the following:

"(B) In the case of any country or person aiding or abetting a non-nuclear-weapon state as described in subparagraph (A), the prohibition on financing by the Bank contained in the second sentence of that subparagraph shall not apply to the country or person, as the case may be, if the President determines and certifies in writing to the Congress that—

"(i) reliable information indicates that the country or person with respect to which the determination is made has ceased to aid or abet any non-nuclear-weapon state to acquire any nuclear explosive device or to acquire unsafeguarded special nuclear material; and

"(ii) the President has received reliable assurances from the country or person that such country or person will not, in the future, aid or abet any non-nuclear-weapon state in its efforts to acquire any nuclear explosive device or any unsafeguarded special nuclear material.

"(C) For purposes of subparagraphs (A) and (B)—

"(i) the term 'country' has the meaning given to 'foreign state' in section 1603(a) of title 28, United States Code;

"(ii) the term 'knowingly' is used within the meaning of the term 'knowing' in section 104 of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act; and

"(iii) the term 'person' means a natural person as well as a corporation, business association, partnership, society, trust, any other nongovernmental entity, organization, or group, and any governmental entity operating as a business enterprise, and any successor of any such entity.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—(1) The amendments made by paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (a) shall apply to persons, and the amendment made by subsection (a)(6), shall apply to countries and persons, aiding or abetting non-nuclear weapon states on or after June 29, 1994.

(2) Nothing in this section or the amendments made by this section shall apply to obligations undertaken pursuant to guarantees, insurance, and the extension of credits (and participation in the extension of credits) made before the date of enactment of this Act.

NUCLEAR PROLIFERATION SANCTIONS

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, this amendment will authorize the President to impose Export-Import Bank sanctions against specific entities that knowingly aid or abet countries to acquire nuclear weapons or nuclear materials for such weapons.

Each of the Commanders in Chief and Secretaries of Defense of this country—regardless of their party affiliation—has over the last half century recognized that the global spread of nuclear weapons constitutes one of the gravest threats to our national security, to the security of our friends and allies, and to world order. Though there are other weapons of mass destruction that may be easier to acquire and to use, a nuclear weapon has the unique ability to obliterate a whole city in an instant. For this reason, it is understandable that our national leadership and defense community have exerted considerable effort over the last several decades to reducing this threat to all Americans.

The persisting and ever-changing nature of this threat, coupled with the many pathways that are available to countries to acquire such bombs, requires our Government—both the Congress and the Executive—to ensure that the tools we use to combat this threat are up to the job. When these tools are sharp and working as intended, the security of each and every American citizen is enhanced accordingly. Our law must continually respond to—but never surrender to—new challenges that arise with the passage of time.

Current law—The Export Import Bank Act—requires the denial of Exim Bank credits to finance goods destined to: Any country that has violated safeguards or a U.S. nuclear agreement; any non-nuclear-weapon state that detonates a bomb; or any country that has willfully aided or abetted a non-nuclear-weapon state to get the bomb.

The first two of these sanctions were enacted on October 26, 1977, whereas I authored the language in the Nuclear Proliferation Prevention Act of 1994 which created the third sanction authority listed above.

Revelations in 1996 that a government-owned Chinese entity had sent sensitive uranium enrichment technology to Pakistan raised the possibility of the denial of several billion dollars of Exim-financed credits for United States exports to China. Unfortunately, the China Nuclear Energy Industry Corporation [CNEIC]—the specific entity involved in the transaction—escaped all sanctions since the law prescribed sanctions only against a country that willfully aids and abets proliferation. Also, the United States took no action against China because of insufficient evidence of willful intent on the part of China's leaders. The current law does not authorize the President to target Exim sanctions against specific entities—including state-owned entities like CNEIC operating as a business enterprise—that knowingly engage in illicit nuclear transfers.

The amendment builds upon existing Exim Bank sanctions authorities for the most serious proliferation-related activities—that is, violations of safeguards and U.S. nuclear agreements, nuclear detonations, and willful state actions in promoting proliferation. It authorizes the President to target such sanctions against persons, including government-owned entities operating as a commercial enterprise, that knowingly aid or abet a country to acquire a nuclear-explosive device or nuclear material for such a device.

The amendment also authorizes the President to terminate sanctions that are imposed against countries and persons that aid and abet such forms of proliferation, upon receipt of reliable assurances that the activity has stopped and will not recur. The intention here is to give the violator an incentive to cease the prohibited activity and a disincentive for continuing it.

This new sanctions authority will by no means serve as a panacea for all of the proliferation threats that will face our country in the years ahead. But it is not intended to perform this function. It seeks to achieve a more specific purpose. By enabling the President to target sanctions against specific proliferators, the new language would strengthen the credibility of this sanctions authority and thereby work to discourage future business with enterprises like the CNEIC which knowingly promote the global spread of nuclear weapons. The amendment will work to ensure that the taxpayer dollars controlled by the Exim Bank are being used to advance the commercial interests of the United States, not the commercial interests of enterprises that are promoting the global spread of nuclear weapons.

My intent is no more and no less than to move our legislation another step toward taking the profits out of proliferation. I urge all of my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to offer with the Senator from Ohio [Mr. GLENN] an amendment that would withhold for a period of 1 year Export-Import Bank credits for any entity that knowingly assists a non-nuclear weapons state to acquire a nuclear explosive device or the special nuclear materials for such a device. I am pleased that the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. HELMS] is joining us as a cosponsor.

This amendment represents a significant advance in our efforts to target companies that are profiting from nuclear proliferation. It will strengthen the President's hand in showing United States determination to do all that it can to prevent illicit trafficking in nuclear weapons and the materials needed to make them.

Under current law, and subject to a national interest waiver, Exim Bank credits are denied to: First, any country that has violated an international nuclear safeguards agreement; second, any country that has violated an agreement for nuclear cooperation with the United States; third, any non-nuclear weapons state that has detonated a nuclear weapon, or fourth, any country that has willfully aided or abetted a nonnuclear weapons state to get nuclear weapons.

This amendment requires the President to apply sanctions against persons, including government-owned entities operating as commercial enterprises, that knowingly aid or abet efforts by a country to acquire a nuclear explosive device or the nuclear material for such a device. The amendment also authorizes the President to terminate sanctions upon receipt of reliable assurances that the effort to aid or abet has ceased and that such country or person will not in the future aid or abet any nonnuclear weapons state in efforts to acquire nuclear explosives or unsafeguarded materials.

Mr. President, in May the State Department announced that a firm owned by the Chinese Government, China Nuclear Energy Industry Crop. [CNEIC], had sent ring magnets to an unsafeguarded Pakistani nuclear enrichment facility and it had engaged in other undisclosed nuclear cooperation. The law provides for sanctions in such a case against China if the transfer was the result of a willful action by the Government of China. Under this amendment, CNEIC could be sanctioned specifically for its activities for a period of 1 year. With this amendment the United States would move away from a situation in which Exim financing denial must be applied against a whole country, or not at all, which has presented very difficult choices. With this amendment, the denial of Exim financing can be focused on the wrongdoer. This will help us avoid charades in which we desperately avoid facing up to proliferation problems. As a result, companies and countries tempted to misbehave in the proliferation area will know that there is a much more real prospect of penalties that are both painful and appropriate.

Mr. President, this amendment represents a further refinement of an expanding array of sanctions legislation that is steadily evolving in order to make it a more effective instrument of U.S. foreign policy in a bipartisan effort to end the spread of nuclear weapons.

This has included the Glenn and Symington amendments of the mid-1970's, the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Act of 1978, the Chemical and Biological Weapons Control and Warfare Elimination Act of 1991, and the Nuclear Proliferation Prevention Act of 1994, as well as a number of other legislative initiatives.

The Senate has been in the lead of efforts to develop a coherent and effective nonproliferation policy for the United States. At times, those of us most involved have worked closely with the executive branch. At other times we have been at odds, but we have been able to reach reasonable compromises. As a result, the United States has set an example for the rest of the world and has brought other nations along with us. In addition, some of the nations most concerned about proliferation have taken their own initiatives and the result is a world steadily more attuned to the problems posed by nonproliferation and better willing and able to deal with those problems.

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senator GLENN and the distinguished ranking member of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator PELL, as an original cosponsor of this amendment. I have a clear and simple reason for supporting this amendment. I am appalled at the legal gymnastics in which the administration has engaged for the purpose of avoiding sanctions against Communist China.

This, mind you, Mr. President, was after Beijing had supplied critical dual use technology to another nation's nuclear weapons program. At a minimum, the administration's refusal—on May 10, 1996—to determine that sanctionable activity occurred under section 2(b)(4) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 undermined the credibility of the United States' effort to discourage trafficking in nuclear weapons technology.

This administration traded away our vital national security concerns in exchange for a denial by the Beijing government that it knew that Government-owned entities were in fact selling highly specialized ring-magnets to other countries, and China's promise not to do it again—and we all know what that promise is worth. In any event, that is all it took for China's nuclear traffickers to make a complete mockery of United States sanctions legislation.

Now, let's examine, for the record, what the Chinese had to say in order to placate the Clinton administration:

> As a state party to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons [NPT], China strictly observes its obligations under the treaty, and is against the proliferation of nuclear weapons, or assisting other countries in developing such weapons. The nuclear cooperation between China and the countries concerned is exclusively for peaceful purposes. China will not provide assistance to unsafeguarded nuclear facilities. China stands for the strengthening of the international nuclear non-proliferation regime, including the strengthening of safeguards and export control measures.

Mr. President, if China truly observed its obligations under the NPT, it would not persistently violate Article I of the treaty stipulating that a nuclear weapons state party to the treaty shall not in any way encourage, assist, or induce any nonnuclear weapons state to manufacture or otherwise acquire nuclear weapons. Article III of the treaty prohibits countries from providing equipment to process, use, or produce fissionable material to unsafeguarded programs in nonnuclear weapons states.

If China were abiding by all of its NPT obligations, why would it need to pledge to refrain from assisting unsafeguarded facilities? Maybe China intends to abide by only selective parts of the NPT, just as it appears to adhere selectively only to portions of the Missile Technology Control Regime guidelines.

This latest pledge is worthless. It is second-verse-same-as-the-first, a song we have all heard before. In 1984, Chinese Premier, Zhao Ziyang, tried to downplay concerns over China's covert assistance to aspiring nuclear powers by declaring, at the White House, that "we do not engage in nuclear proliferation ourselves, nor do we help other countries develop nuclear weapons." A decade later, in 1994, China piously proclaimed its "shared commitment to preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons * * *" to escape punishment for its transfer of M-11 missiles to Pakistan.

Mr. President, if I had given my granddaughters a nickel every time China made a false promise, there would be a loaded piggy bank on Julia's bedroom dresser. The history of United States-Chinese relations is littered with broken Chinese promises and worthless pledges. We now have the spectacle of the Chinese promising to enforce their promises regarding intellectual property rights—even as reports arrive that pirate CD factories continue to operate in China. Taking Red China at its word is perilous and foolish, particularly when the firm that just finished escaping sanctions for its export of ring magnets to Pakistan now plans to export a uranium conversion facility to Iran.

In fact, I am astounded at the ferocity with which this administration attacked China when the interests of Hollywood and the entertainment industry were at stake. But compare that to the administration's meek and mild reaction to Chinese trafficking in nuclear materials. I cannot imagine a case in which our national interests have seemed more skewed.

So, Mr. President, this amendment will strengthen existing sanctions law by requiring the President to withhold export-import bank financing from anybody who encourages the proliferation of nuclear weapons. If we have to close off every escape route in legislation, one by one, to force this administration to deal with China's proliferation activities, then that is what we must do.

In any event, I am not prepared to sit idly by as China offers platitudes in order to escape any and all punishment for its actions. And I certainly am not willing to underwrite loans to the very firm that is transferring nuclear weapons technology to Iran.

Mr. McCAIN. This amendment has been cleared on this side, and I urge the Senate to adopt this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4410) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4411

(Purpose: To establish a 1-year pilot program for online transfer of defense technology information from institutions of higher education to private businesses through an interactive data network involving institutions of higher education)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator CHAFEE, I offer an amendment which would establish a 1-year pilot program for online transfer of defense technology information from institutions of higher education to private businesses through an interactive data network involving institutions of higher education.

I believe this amendment has been cleared by the other side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. CHAFEE, proposes an amendment numbered 4411.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title VIII add the following:

SEC. 810. PILOT PROGRAM FOR TRANSFER OF DEFENSE TECHNOLOGY INFORMATION TO PRIVATE INDUSTRY.

(a) PROGRAM REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Defense shall carry out a pilot program to demonstrate online transfers of information on defense technologies to businesses in the private sector through an interactive data network involving Small Business Development Centers of institutions of higher education.

(b) COMPUTERIZED DATA BASE OF DEFENSE TECHNOLOGIES.—(1) Under the pilot program, the Secretary shall enter into an agreement with the head of an eligible institution of higher education that provides for such institution—

(A) to develop and maintain a computerized data base of information on defense technologies;

(B) to make such information available online to—

(i) businesses; and

(ii) other institutions of higher education entering into partnerships with the Secretary under subsection (c).

(2) The online accessibility may be established by means of any of, or any combination of, the following:

(A) Digital teleconferencing.

(B) International Signal Digital Network lines.

(C) Direct modem hookup.

(c) PARTNERSHIP NETWORK.—Under the pilot program, the Secretary shall seek to enter into agreements with the heads of several eligible institutions of higher education having strong business education programs to provide for the institutions of higher education entering into such agreements—

(1) to establish interactive computer links with the data base developed and maintained under subsection (b); and

(2) to assist the Secretary in making information on defense technologies available online to the broadest practicable number, types, and sizes of businesses.

(d) ELIGIBLE INSTITUTIONS.—For the purposes of this section, an institution of higher education is eligible to enter into an agreement under subsection (b) or (c) if the institution has a Small Business Development Center.

(e) DEFENSE TECHNOLOGIES COVERED.—(1) The Secretary shall designate the technologies to be covered by the pilot program from among the existing and experimental technologies that the Secretary determines—

(A) are useful in meeting Department of Defense needs; and

(B) should be made available under the pilot program to facilitate the satisfaction of such needs by private sector sources.

(2) Technologies covered by the program should include technologies useful for defense purposes that can also be used for nondefense purposes (without or without modification).

(f) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) The term "Small Business Development Center" means a small business development center established pursuant to section 21 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 648).

(2) The term "defense technology" means a technology designated by the Secretary of Defense under subsection (d).

(3) The term "partnership" means an agreement entered into under subsection (c).

(g) TERMINATION OF PILOT PROGRAM.—The pilot program shall terminate one year after the Secretary enters into an agreement under subsection (b).

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 201(4) for university research initiatives, $3,000,000 is available for the pilot program.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4411) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4412

(Purpose: To make technical corrections)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, on behalf of Senators THURMOND and NUNN, I offer an amendment to make technical corrections to S. 1745.

I believe the amendment has been cleared by the other side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. THURMOND, for himself and Mr. NUNN, proposes an amendment numbered 4412.

The amendment is as follows:

In section 216, strike out the section heading and insert in lieu thereof the following:

SEC. 216. TIER III MINUS UNMANNED AERIAL VEHICLE.

In section 3131(e), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "section 3101" and insert in lieu thereof "section 3101(b)(1)".

In section 3131(e)(1), strike out "and" after the semicolon.

In section 3131(e)(2), strike out the period at the end and insert in lieu thereof "; and".

At the end of section 3131(e), add the following:

(3) not more than $100,000,000 shall be available for other tritium production research activities.

In section 3132(a), strike out "requirements for tritium for" and insert in lieu thereof "tritium requirements for".

In section 3136(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "section 3102" and insert in lieu thereof "section 3102(b)".

In section 3136(a)(1), strike out "$43,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$65,700,000".

In section 3136(a)(2), strike out "$15,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$80,000,000".

In section 3136(a)(2), strike out "stainless steel" and insert in lieu thereof "non-aluminum clad".

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4412) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I believe that completes the cleared amendments.

I would like to inform Senators that a unanimous-consent agreement has been tentatively worked out and is being drawn up for the approval of the Democratic leader.

We are working at this time to get time agreements on the remaining amendments which would be part of the unanimous-consent agreement.

I urge my colleagues to contact Senator THURMOND and Senator NUNN, the managers of the bill, in order that we might in anticipation of the unanimous consent agreement rapidly dispense with these pending amendments and then move to final passage. I believe we are at that point now.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I commend the Senator. I do not think we can reach the UC without having beforehand ascertaining time for amendments. I think one is interdependent with the other.

Mr. NUNN. We have a list of the amendments. We have swapped that list on both sides. I have just gone over each amendment that looks like it might have a rollcall vote with the people on our side. I have gotten every single person on this list to agree to a relatively short-time agreement. There appears to be several of these amendments that we can work out. So I think we are making very substantial progress, if we get the UC's.

Mr. McCAIN. I again say to my colleague that we have a list of the amendments. We need the time agreements.

Mr. WARNER. I commend the Senator. That is precisely the direction in which we must move.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I would like to make some comments on the Feingold amendment which is not the pending business, and I ask unanimous consent to be able to make up to 5 minutes of comments on that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4388

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, the Feingold amendment would impair the capacity of our defense to continue to bring on line the F/A–18E/F program which needs to be delivered on schedule—and which will deliver on schedule—a tactical carrier-based fighter capable of deterring the most technologically advanced threats currently available to any of our potential adversaries.

The Feingold amendment would introduce delays in the system which would certainly be very costly, be counterproductive, and be expensive not only in terms of our economics but it could be costly in terms of our ability to defend our Nation.

The expendability of the E/F will keep this fighter at the forefront of combat technology until the advanced Joint Strike Fighter becomes available and operational.

Let me discuss some of the differences between the F/A–18C/D and the E/F aircraft. The F/A–18C/D only has 0.2 cubic feet of space available for new equipment while the E/F has 17 cubic feet of space available making it able to incorporate new weapons system advances within the next 20 years. Common sense tells us that if we are building a new fighter aircraft, we should build one that is capable of accommodating future advances in technology.

The increased flight range of the E/F cannot be recreated on the C/D merely by attaching larger fuel tanks. Doing so does not give the C/D sufficient deck clearance for operations on carriers and further restricts the maximum payload. Adding larger tanks to the C/D requires stronger wings and landing gear. These modifications to the C/D are not cheap, either in dollars or in time for design, manufacture, and modification.

I do not think we can accurately predict what advances there will be in weapons, in avionics, in electronics—and as yet unknown breakthroughs—that will be developed in the next two decades over which the life of one of these fighters is expected to be utilized in our Navy. We need maximum flexibility to ensure compatibility with future technology.

The E/F has greater maximum payload and greater mission range by 40 to 50 percent than the C/D regardless of configuration. The technology that increases combat survivability of the E/F, such as the radar cross-section, the "stealthiness", also greatly exceeds that of the C/D, thus keeping the Super Hornet ahead of the advanced weapons that are easily available to all of our potential adversaries.

So the difference between these aircraft is substantial, significant, and meaningful. The procurement of more F/18C/Ds is not a viable option at this time. Growth within the C/D program has taken advantage of the potential originally designed into the aircraft, saving the Defense Department money as they made changes to the aircraft as technology advanced. Now the time is right to move to the next generation of this successful program.

The Joint Strike Fighter, the JSF, is too far off in the future to consider it as a replacement for the C/D. By the time the Joint Strike Fighter is available the C/D will be far outdated and that would open a technological window of vulnerability in our national defense.

The F/A–18E/F is already built. The program is on cost, on schedule, and 900 pounds underweight, making this a vital and necessary component of our defense capacity. The program is not a research and development project, but it is an already successful flight test program—it is ready to enter full-scale production.

The Navy just finished a comprehensive review of the F–18E/F program. In May of this year, the Navy reported to Congress that the program had met or exceeded all their requirements concerning cost, schedule, and performance. This program as been a model for other aircraft acquisitions by any measure. To interrupt this program on the basis of one GAO study, is in my judgment, unwise at this time.

The amendment would cause delays in a program that has been running successfully, which has been running on time, that will create a technology that is up to date. The Super Hornet program will deliver a carrier-based tactical aircraft at one-third to one-half the cost of designing yet another aircraft with the same capabilities from scratch. I believe we should continue with the program.

I oppose the amendment as proposed by Senator FEINGOLD because it would cause costly delays, and impair our ability to take advantage of this program. Clearly, this aircraft is a fighter with the capacity to accommodate the developments of the future—the technology, the avionics, the survivability, and the armaments. And if we were to impair our ability to go forward in that respect we would find ourselves substantially disadvantaged in the capacity to provide for the defense of our Nation.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. BROWN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

AMENDMENT NO. 4413

(Purpose: To require a report by the President detailing the anticipated casualties and destruction resulting from a nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons attack)

Mr. BROWN. I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Colorado [Mr. BROWN] proposes an amendment numbered 4413.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title II add the following:

SEC. 237. ANNUAL REPORT ON THREAT OF ATTACK BY BALLISTIC MISSILES CARRYING NUCLEAR, CHEMICAL, OR BIOLOGICAL WARHEADS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The worldwide proliferation of ballistic missiles is a potential threat to the United States national interests overseas and challenges United States defense planning.

(2) In the absence of a national missile defense, the United States remains vulnerable to long-range missile threats.

(3) Russia has a ground-based missile defense system deployed around Moscow.

(4) Several countries, including Iraq, Iran, and North Korea may soon be technologically capable of threatening the United States and Russia with ballistic missile attack.

(b) REPORT REQUIRED.—(1) Each year, the President shall submit to Congress a report on the threats to the United States of attack by ballistic missiles carrying nuclear, biological, or chemical warheads.

(2) The President shall submit the first report not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) CONTENT OF REPORT.—The report shall contain the following:

(1) A list of all countries thought to have nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons, the estimated numbers of such weapons that each country has, and the destructive potential of the weapons.

(2) A list of all countries thought to have ballistic missiles, the estimated number of such missiles that each country has, and an assessment of the ability of those countries to integrate their ballistic missile capabilities with their nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons technologies.

(3) A comparison of the United States civil defense capabilities with the civil defense capabilities of each country that has nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons and ballistic missiles capable of delivering such weapons.

(4) An estimate of the number of American fatalities and injuries that could result, and an estimate of the value of property that could be lost, from an attack on the United States by ballistic missiles carrying nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons if the United States were left undefended by a national missile defense system covering all 50 States.

(5) Assuming the use of any existing theater ballistic missile defense system for defense of the United States, a list of the States that would be left exposed to nuclear ballistic missile attacks and the criteria used to determine which States would be left exposed.

(6) The means by which the United States is preparing to defend itself against the potential threat of ballistic missile attacks by North Korea, Iran, Iraq, and other countries obtaining ballistic missiles capable of delivering nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons in the near future.

(7) For each country that is capable of attacking the United States with ballistic missiles carrying a nuclear, biological, or chemical weapon, a comparison of—

(A) the vulnerability of the United States to such an attack if theater missile defenses were used to defend against the attack; and

(B) the vulnerability of the United States to such an attack if a national missile defense were in place to defend against the attack.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, a number of the Members of the Senate have reviewed this proposed amendment in the past week. This version of it that is being offered this morning is different than what has been circulated before. Specifically subparagraph No. 5 is dropped. That is one that referred to the strong statement of policy with regard to the need to protect American citizens from this threat that is thought to be of concern by some. So it is dropped. And then language is modified throughout that is not significantly impacted but does solve the problem.

Mr. President, the heart of the resolution is simply to ask for the annual statement on the threat that faces the United States from incoming ballistic missiles utilizing warheads that could involve nuclear technology or chemical or biological weapons.

Why is it important? There is no question that the parties disagree at times about the need for an anti-ballistic missile system. My sense is that the disagreement comes from the significant cost. But I do not believe that there is any disagreement over the concern over the potential of a missile attack. The President himself has expressed in strong words this concerns of a potential missile attack.

Let me quote from Executive Order 12938. This was issued by the President in November 1994.

> I, William J. Clinton, President of the United States of America, find that the proliferation of nuclear, biological and chemical weapons, weapons of mass destruction, and the means of delivering such weapons constitutes an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy and economy of the United States, and hereby declare a national emergency to deal with that threat.

Mr. President, that was almost 2 years ago. If anything, the threat to our country has increased since then. I understand there would be a deliberate and extended debate over the amount of money we might spend in terms of developing antiballistic missiles, but I do not understand why we would want to make those decisions in the dark. We do need to be at least aware of the threat. We do need to have a reasonable assessment of what damage could be done from these weapons. We do need to properly evaluate whether we should move ahead with that research and development or not. We need to have some rational evaluation of what damage that could be avoided and what problems we would be averting if we did develop a antiballistic missile system.

My hope is that this will be accepted by both sides. It has been accepted by the majority side thus far. My hope is that the concessions we have made in the modification are acceptable to the minority side. If they are not, we ought to vote on this. If America intends to close its eyes to what the threat is and not make a reasonable evaluation of the dangers we face, then I think we stand in danger of not making a rational decision. We should not make a decision that affects our future national security out of ignorance. That is what this report is all about, to give us a reasonable, thoughtful, objective assessment of what danger is. Political leaders can then make their judgments, but we should not make it in the dark.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Georgia and myself and the Senator from Arizona, Mr. MCCAIN, on behalf of the chairman of the committee, Mr. THURMOND, have examined this. The Senator from Colorado has made significant changes which puts this amendment, in our judgment, in a posture that it can be accepted.

Bear in mind that yesterday the Senate adopted an amendment to address the U.S. vulnerability to terrorist attacks involving use of weapons of mass destruction. It was sponsored by Senators NUNN and LUGAR and DOMENICI, and I covered the floor debate on that. So I think this amendment is supplemental in many respects of earlier action taken by the Senate on this bill, and therefore we will accept the amendment.

The amendment is now at the desk. Therefore, Madam President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. SNOWE). Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4413) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MCCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, again, the managers of the bill are urging Senators to come to the floor. We are proceeding with the hope and expectation this bill can be concluded today.

Seeing no Senator at this moment seeking recognition, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NUNN. Madam President, the Brown amendment has been accepted. I had given my side's approval on that.

There is some language in here that I still want to look at. It is accomplished. But I am glad to work with the Senator from Colorado. I share his concern about the need for a defense system, a ballistic missile defense system.

I think surely we will be able to work together to find some language that needs to be changed somewhat in conference.

Mr. BROWN. Madam President, I wanted to indicate my appreciation to the Senator from Georgia and also indicate it is not my intention to add new language that unnecessarily inflames the issue. To the extent there is a way we can work together on language that needs to be modified, I appreciate his suggestion. I will be happy to work with this Senator.

Mr. NUNN. I thank the Senator from Colorado.

Madam President, I believe the Senator from Michigan [Mr. LEVIN] has a couple of amendments, and it is my hope he will be here momentarily to present those amendments. Both of these are going to likely require a rollcall vote. In the meantime, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4414

(Purpose: To require that the equipment to be procured with funds authorized to be appropriated under section 105 be selected in accordance with the modernization priorities of the reserve components)

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Michigan [Mr. LEVIN] proposes an amendment numbered 4414.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title I add the following:

Subtitle E—Reserve Components

SEC. 141. RESERVE COMPONENT EQUIPMENT.

(a) APPLICABILITY OF MODERNIZATION PRIORITIES.—The selection of equipment to be procured for a reserve component with funds authorized to be appropriated under section 105 shall be made in accordance with the highest priorities established for the modernization of that reserve component.

(b) REPORTS.—(1) Not later than December 1, 1996, each officer referred to in paragraph (2) shall submit to the congressional defense committees an assessment of the modernization priorities established for the reserve component or reserve components for which that officer is responsible.

(2) The officers required to submit a report under paragraph (1) are as follows:

(A) The Chief of the National Guard Bureau.

(B) The Chief of Army Reserve.

(C) The Chief of Air Force Reserve.

(D) The Director of Naval Reserve.

(E) The Commanding General, Marine Forces Reserve.

Title	FY 1997		Authorization				Appropriation				Hollow SASC	Hollow HNSC
	Qty.	Cost	SASC change		HNSC change		SAC change		HAC change
			Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost
NATIONAL GUARD AND RESERVE EQUIPMENT
RESERVE EQUIPMENT
ARMY RESERVE
Miscellaneous equipment				35,000		10,000		110,000		10,000
25 ton trucks				15,000							15,000
New procurement 2 5/5 ton trucks						15,000				15,000
Tactical truck SLEP 2 5 ton						15,000				15,000
Tactical truck SLEP 5 ton						10,000						10,000
Heavy truck modernization				30,000							30,000
HEMTT bridge trans						4,000				9,000
Dump trucks 20 tons						2,000				10,000
Water purification units						2,000				4,000
Portable lighting systems w/trailers						4,000				4,000
Automatic building machines						5,000				3,000		2,000
HMMWV maintenance trucks				10,000		2,000				6,000	4,000
All-terrain forklift 10 ton						4,000				4,000
All-terrain crane 20 ton						4,000				4,000
Hydraulic excavator						3,000				3,000
HEMTT wrecker						3,000				7,000
Mk-19 grenade launcher						3,000				3,000
Steam cleaner						2,000				2,000
Coolant purification system						2,000						2,000
Small arms simulator						1,000				1,000
High mobility trailer						1,000						1,000
Unit level logistics system						2,000				2,000
SINCGARS						2,000						2,000
Palletized load system						4,000						4,000
Palletized trailers						2,000				2,000
HEMTT cargo chassis						4,000				4,000
ANGRS–231										2,000
Laser leveling system										3,000
Subtotal—Army Reserve				90,000		106,000		110,000		113,000	49,000	21,000
NAVY RESERVE
Miscellaneous Equipment				16,000		10,000		30,000		5,000

Title	FY 1997		Authorization				Appropriation				Hollow SASC	Hollow HNSC
	Qty.	Cost	SASC change		HNSC change		SAC change		HAC change
			Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost
F/A 18 Upgrades				24,000							24,000
C–9 Replacement Aircraft					4	160,000			4	160,000
MIUW Van System Upgrades						10,000						10,000
Night Vision Goggles						2,000						2,000
C–9 Mods						3,000						3,000
P–3C Simulator Upgrade						2,000						2,000
Magic Lantern Spares						5,000				5,000
P–3 Modernization										72,000
Subtotal—Navy Reserve				40,000		192,000		30,000		242,000	24,000	17,000
MARINE CORPS RESERVE
Miscellaneous Equipment				10,000		10,000		40,000		10,000
LAV Improvements						2,000				2,000
CH–53E				50,000	2	64,000			2	64,000
AAV7A1 Modifications						2,000				2,000
Night Vision Equipment						1,000				1,000
Common End User Computers						4,000				4,000
Fork Lifts						4,000				1,000
M1A1 Tank Mod Kits										5,000
AN/TPS–59										11,000
Subtotal—Marine Corps Reserve				60,000		83,000		40,000		100,000
AIR FORCE RESERVE
Miscellaneous Equipment				10,000		10,000		50,000		10,000
C–20G				30,000							30,000
F–16 Avionics Upgrades						5,000				5,000
Night Vision Devices						3,000				3,000
A–10 Avionics Upgrades						7,000				7,000
C–130 Avionics Upgrades						7,000				7,000
HC–130P Tanker Conversion						3,000				3,000
C–130 Modular Airborne Firefighting System						1,000				1,000
F–16 Weapons Pylon Upgrades						1,000				1,000
KC–135R Engine Kits						104,000				96,000		8,000
KC–135 Radar Replacement						5,000				5,000
B–52 Avionics Upgrades						1,000				1,000
Non-aircrew Training Systems						1,000				1,000
EPLRS/SADL										8,000
Subtotal—Air Force Reserve				40,000		148,000		50,000		148,000	30,000	8,000
Subtotal—Reserves				230,000		529,000		230,000		603,000	103,000	46,000
NATIONAL GUARD EQUIPMENT
ARMY NATIONAL GUARD
Miscellaneous Equipment				52,000		10,000		125,400		10,000
MLRS				30,000							30,000
Combat and Support Systems				23,000							23,000
Tactical Trucks and Trailers				42,000							42,000
Communications Electronics				13,000							13,000
Logistics Service Support				10,000							10,000
Night Vision Equipment				14,000		3,000				10,000	4,000
Chem/Bio Defense Equipment				2,000							2,000
Aircraft Equipment				21,000							21,000
Infrastructure Equipment				17,000							17,000
New Procurement Tactical Truck 5 Ton						4,000				4,000
SLEP 2.5 Ton						15,000				15,000
SLEP 5 Ton						4,000				4,000
Crashworthy Internal Fuel Cells						5,000				5,000
Small Arms Simulators						5,000						5,000
AH–1 Boresight devise						3,000				3,000
Coolant Purification System						3,000				3,000
Avenger I–COFT Simulator						4,000				4,000
D7 Bulldozer w/Ripper						2,000						2,000
Water Purification Unit						1,000				1,000
FADEC						10,000				10,000
Digital System Test and Training Seminar						3,000				3,000
Automatic Building Machines						3,000				1,000		2,000
AH–1 C–Nite						2,000				2,000
Dump Trucks 20 Ton						3,000				3,000
C–23 Sherpa Enhancement Program						28,000						28,000
Helicopter Simulators (ARMS)						5,000				15,000
Dragon Modifications						2,000				2,000
Vibration System Management Systems						3,000				3,000
Distance Learning Equipment										29,000
Laser Leveling Equipment										5,000
Automatic Identification Technology										7,000
Subtotal—Army National Guard				224,000		118,000		125,400		139,000	162,000	37,000
AIR NATIONAL GUARD
Miscellaneous Equipment				10,000				40,000		5,000
Sead Mission Upgrade				11,400							11,400
F–16 HTS						10,000				10,000
C–130J				284,400	2	105,000			2	105,000	179,400
Theater Deployable Communications						17,000						17,000
C–26B						5,000						5,000
Automatic Building Machines						3,000				2,000		1,000
F–16 Improved Avionics Intermediate Shop						15,000				15,000
AN/TLQ–32 Tadar Decoys						3,000				3,000
C–130 Upgrades										5,000
EPLRS / SADL										17,000
Modular Medical Trauma Unit										4,000
Subtotal—Air National Guard				305,800		158,000		40,000		166,000	190,800	23,000
Subtotal—National Guard				529,800		276,000		165,400		305,000	352,800	60,000
DOD
MISC EQUIPMENT (Guard & Reserve Aircraft)
C–130J								284,400

Title	FY 1997		Authorization				Appropriation				Hollow SASC	Hollow HNSC
			SASC change		HNSC change		SAC change		HAC change
	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost
C–9 Replacement Aircraft								80,000
Miscellaneous
Subtotal—Misc Equipment (Aircraft)								364,400
Total, National Guard and Reserve Equipment				759,800		805,000		759,800		908,000	455,800	108,000

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I further ask unanimous consent at this point I be allowed to yield to Senator BINGAMAN to proceed for 15 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. BINGAMAN pertaining to the introduction of S. 1923 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I appreciate the time that has been granted me, and I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I wish to advise the Members that we made a special exception for Senator BINGAMAN, and it is the expectation of the managers that we will not have similar periods of discussion at this critical time on the bill that are not germane to the bill. We are making good progress, I wish to advise Senators.

Madam President, parliamentary clarification. It is the Levin amendment relating to——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. I am authorized by Senator LEVIN to indicate that there will be a time agreement on that amendment not to exceed 30 minutes, divided 20 minutes to the Senator from Michigan and 10 minutes to the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senator THURMOND.

Madam President, I anticipate, as soon as the Senator from Michigan appears on the floor, that we will commence debate on that amendment.

Seeing no Senator seeking recognition, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4415

(Purpose: To provide for the retention on active status of the B-52H bomber aircraft fleet)

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendments will be laid aside.

The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD] proposes amendment numbered 4415.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of section 1062, add the following:

(d) RETENTION OF B-52H AIRCRAFT ON ACTIVE STATUS.—(1) The Secretary of the Air Force shall maintain in active status (including the performance of standard maintenance and upgrades) the current fleet of B-52H bomber aircraft.

(2) For purposes of carrying out upgrades of B-52H bomber aircraft during fiscal year 1997, the Secretary shall treat the entire current fleet of such aircraft as aircraft expected to be maintained in active status during the five-year period beginning on October 1, 1996.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, this amendment is a very simple amendment. It says that our B-52 fleet ought to be retained. What it also says is that our B-52's ought to be upgraded during fiscal 1997 as though they are part of the FYDP.

Madam President, the reason for this amendment is that we face a catch-22 situation. We have agreement from both the authorization committee and the Appropriations Committee that our full B-52 fleet ought to be retained. We are going to have a bomber review that will be available to us next year. We do not want to see any of these planes go to the boneyard until that review is complete.

The B-52's, we have some 94 of them in the inventory. These planes are, according to Gen. Michael Loh, the former head of the Air Combat Command, good until the year 2035. That is, these airframes have been updated repeatedly in a way that makes them useful to us until the year 2035.

They are our only dual-capability bomber. These planes are critically important to us, given the Bottom-Up Review that revealed we are somewhat short of bombers at this point. It makes absolutely no sense to be sending some of these planes off to the boneyard under these circumstances.

Madam President, the authorizing committee has said it is critical that we keep these planes. The Appropriations Committee has said it is critically important that we keep these planes. This amendment will allow us to do just that.

I want to thank the Members on both sides who have helped us with this amendment, have drafted it in a way that wins the approval of both the majority and the minority. I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4415) was agreed to.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I thank the Chair, and I thank, again, both the majority Members and the minority Members for their assistance with that amendment. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4414

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, in a few moments I will modify my amendment to eliminate one of the two provisions in the current amendment that is at the desk. We have had a number of discussions over the years as to whether or not what we call the National Guard package should be funded in a way which is generic, so that the National Guard can meet their most pressing needs, or whether or not the Congress ought to specify item by item by item what they must buy with the money that we add each year.

The Senate has traditionally been for the generic approach. We have resisted the temptation, and all of us face that temptation, of adding items which we think our own National Guard would want. What we have done in the Senate, instead, is to put in more generic groupings so that the Guard can select what is the most central items on their priority list.

The House of Representatives each year, traditionally, has broken that list down into very specific items which, obviously, reflects the desires of each of the State Guards or some of the State Guards. It creates a significant advantage for those members who are on the Armed Services Committee in the House because they are right there, obviously, dividing up that pot.

As I say, until last year, the Senate, on a bipartisan basis, did this generically. Then we went to conference and we argued it out in conference, and usually there was some kind of compromise reached preserving the generic approach in some years, and some years having to give up the generic approach altogether.

Last year, we did what the House did in the authorization bill. I want to give some real credit here to the appropriators in the Senate because they have resisted temptation, and they have made this into a generic issue. Again, this year, the Senate appropriations bill is generic. Ours is a hybrid—"ours" being the pending authorization bill. This bill has some of these items done generically and some with very specific items. This was an approach that was used under Senator WARNER's leadership. I want to give him some credit because he did go part way in committee to do this more generically. I want to commend Senator WARNER on the distance that he was able to travel in our committee. However, we have a long way to go.

The question is, how do we get there? How do we get back to what is the better Government approach, which is to do this generically, because we obviously do not have the time to look into each of these specific items, hundreds of them, for each of the Guards in the 50 States.

Now, the amendment which I have at the desk goes back to the approach that the Senate used a couple years ago, which is the more generic approach. And the amendment at the desk does one other thing: It requires that the Guard Bureau tell us by September what their priorities are so when we come to budgeting next year, we will have the lists in front of us to consider, at least, as to what the priorities of the Guard Bureaus are.

That is the second part of the amendment. The first part will take us back to generic; the second part would put us in a position next year so that if we do decide to go the very specific way in next year's bill, we would at least have the priority list of the Guard Bureaus in front of us.

Now, we have asked the various Guard Bureaus as to what their preferences are in this regard. Do they agree we should do this generically, leaving them the flexibility to meet their most essential needs, or would they prefer that the Congress go item by item?

The responses from, first, the Department of Defense, and then from each of the Reserve departments and offices are as follows. From the Department of Defense, from the Assistant Secretary for Reserve Affairs, Deborah Lee, we have a letter dated May 2, which states:

> The Department's preferred position is that add-ons, if made, be generic with regard to Reserve component equipment. This permits the Department to focus these funds toward the most pressing Reserve component readiness needs based on current requirements.

The letter from the Army is similar. The Chief of the Army Reserve, General Baratz, says, in part:

> Modernization of the Army's Reserve equipment is a key component of readiness. As stated in Assistant Secretary of Defense Deborah Lee's letter dated May 2d, 1996 to Senator Thurmond (attached), the Department of Defense prefers, and I agree, that the generic method of funding equipment for the Reserve is working well.

From the Marine Corps, from General Wilkerson, a letter saying:

> Congressional authorization of a clear dollar amount to expend toward Marine Corps Reserve priorities grants me the greatest flexibility.

He further says,

> Having Congress select items not on the priority list would be less desirable.

Finally, a further note that reflects General Wilkerson's position, which is that he agrees with the statement that "it is important to me as Command General Marine Forces Reserve to have the flexibility to procure equipment * * * according to my component's mission priorities and needs," and "given the choice of Congress providing generic authorizations/appropriations under the National Guard Reserve Equipment Account (NGREA) versus specific, line-item authorizations/appropriations, I prefer the flexibility of the former."

I ask unanimous consent these four documents that I have referred to be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE,
Washington, DC, May 2, 1996.

Hon. STROM THURMOND,
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I am aware that congressional correspondence has been received by some of the Reserve components Chiefs/Directors seeking their views regarding whether congressional equipment funding add-ons should be by line-item or generic. The Department's preferred position is that add-ons, if made, be generic with regard to Reserve component equipment. This permits the Department to focus these funds toward the most pressing Reserve component readiness needs based on current requirements.

Your continued support of our Reserve Forces is greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

DEBORAH R. LEE.

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY,
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF, ARMY RESERVE,
Washington, DC, May 10, 1996.

Hon. CARL LEVIN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEVIN: Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the methods the Congress uses to meet the needs of the U.S. Army Reserve. Your efforts and those of Congress have been critical to reducing Army Reserve shortfalls and are greatly appreciated. Your support has greatly increased our readiness, and as a result the Army has come to rely more on the Army Reserve in the defense of the nation.

Modernization of the Army Reserve's equipment is a key component of readiness. As stated in Assistant Secretary of Defense Deborah Lee's letter dated May 2nd, 1996 to Senator Thurmond (attached), the Department of Defense prefers, and I agree, that the generic method of funding equipment for the Reserve is working well. The direct allocation of funds to the reserve components insures these funds are used to improve reserve component readiness. Within the current budgeting and funds allocation processes used by the Department of Defense, designation by Congress of funds intended for use by the reserve components ensures a direct benefit to the Army Reserve.

Once again, thank you for all your support of the Army Reserve over the years. The men and women of the Army Reserve stand ready to serve our great nation.

Sincerely,

MAX BARATZ,
Major General.

U.S. MARINE CORPS,
COMMANDER, MARINE FORCES RESERVE,
New Orleans, LA, April 29, 1996.

Hon. CARL LEVIN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEVIN: Thank you for your recent letter asking for my views on the National Guard Reserve Equipment Account. I have marked the attached sheet as you requested. We have also provided the prioritized list of unfunded equipment in support of the Marine Corps Reserve as requested by the staff of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Congressional authorization of a clear dollar amount to expend toward Marine Corps Reserve priorities grants me the greatest flexibility, assuming that once authorized, appropriated and signed into law that the Department of Defense provides that money and allows us the flexibility to procure our equipment within our established priorities.

Having Congress review the prioritized equipment list and deciding to provide monies against that list would come close to that standard. Having Congress select items not on the priority list would be less desirable. In any case, we appreciate the interest and support you have provided to the Total Force Marine Corps Reserve in the past.

Sincerely,

T.L. WILKERSON,
Major General.

[Excerpt]

It is important to me as Command General Marine Forces Reserve to have the flexibility to procure equipment, other than equipment provided by the Navy, according to my component's mission priorities and needs.

Given the choice of Congress providing generic authorizations/appropriations under the National Guard Reserve Equipment Account (NGREA) versus specific, line-item authorizations/appropriations, I prefer the flexibility of the former.

Signed,

MGen. THOMAS L. WILKERSON.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, as a practical matter, I feel it is important that we make some progress on this issue this year. I might say it is a compliment to my friend from Virginia when I say "progress," because we did make some progress in committee. Under the leadership of the Senator from Virginia, we did go partway toward the generic approach.

As I indicated before, I compliment him for moving us in that direction. It is, in my view, at least a better Government provision to give the flexibility to the Guard and the Reserve to pick their most important priorities, rather than us trying to work through hundreds and hundreds of specific line items and, frankly, in a way which does not give adequate attention to the needs of the Guard.

In order to make continued progress this year, and to take one step instead of losing one step, perhaps, on a rollcall vote, I am going to modify my amendment and strike the requirement that this bill be made entirely generic instead of its partial generic approach, leaving in the bill the requirement that we receive from the Reserves their priority lists by next December so that we will have them in front of us when we do our authorizing next year. And I will send that modification to the desk in a moment. I see my good friend from Virginia on his feet.

I yield the floor at this time.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I thank my distinguished colleague and fellow committee member. Indeed, together we have worked with other members on the committee in this direction. It is very simple. We are putting accountability and responsibility where it belongs—that is, with the knowledgeable persons in the overall infrastructure of the Department of Defense—to make those decisions.

I support this effort, subject to the amendment being sent to the desk. I will also mention that Senator ROBB and I obtained earlier, in the consideration of this bill, requirements to have the Reserve Component Modernization Program. These two actions are complementary. I am prepared to accept the amendment when the Senator sends it to the desk.

AMENDMENT NO. 4414, AS MODIFIED

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I send an amendment, as modified, to the desk reflecting the changes which I previously described.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

The amendment is so modified.

The amendment (No. 4414), as modified, is as follows:

At the end of title I add the following:

Subtitle E—Reserve Components

SEC. 141. ASSESSMENTS OF MODERNIZATION PRIORITIES OF THE RESERVE COMPONENTS.

(a) ASSESSMENTS REQUIRED.—Not later than December 1, 1996, each officer referred to in subsection (b) shall submit to the congressional defense committees an assessment of the modernization priorities established for the reserve component or reserve components for which that officer is responsible.

(b) RESPONSIBLE OFFICERS.—The officers required to submit a report under subsection (a) are as follows:

(1) The Chief of the National Guard Bureau.

(2) The Chief of Army Reserve.

(3) The Chief of Air Force Reserve.

(4) The Director of Naval Reserve.

(5) The Commanding General, Marine Forces Reserve.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4414), as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, we are making progress here on these amendments. Senator McCAIN is working very diligently with the distinguished ranking member of the committee.

I yield to the Senator.

Mr. McCAIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that we proceed back to the consideration of the Brown amendment, the second-degree amendment to the Nunn amendment.

Mr. NUNN. Madam President, I would think that it would be the regular order, is that correct? I do not know that there has been an amendment submitted yet as a second degree. So perhaps the regular order is to bring back the Nunn amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair's understanding is that the amendment was withdrawn.

Mr. NUNN. The Nunn amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Brown amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 4367

Mr. McCAIN. Madam President, perhaps it is more appropriate to go to the regular order, which is the Nunn amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The regular order has been called for.

Mr. NUNN. This will be the amendment sponsored by myself, Senator HUTCHISON, Senator BRADLEY, Senator COHEN, Senator KASSEBAUM, on NATO enlargement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

AMENDMENT NO. 4416 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4367

Mr. McCAIN. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator BROWN and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. BROWN, proposes an amendment numbered 4416 to amendment No. 4367.

Mr. McCAIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Strike all after page 1, line 3, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(a) Not later than December 1, 1996, the President shall transmit a report on NATO enlargement to the Committee on Armed Services and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on National Security and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives. The report shall contain a comprehensive discussion of the following:

(1) Geopolitical and financial costs and benefits, including financial savings, associated with:

(A) enlargement of NATO;

(B) further delays in the process of NATO enlargement; and

(C) a failure to enlarge NATO.

(2) Additional NATO and U.S. military expenditures requested by prospective NATO members to facilitate their admission into NATO;

(3) Modifications necessary in NATO's military strategy and force structure required by the inclusion of new members and steps necessary to integrate new members, including the role of nuclear and conventional capabilities, reinforcement, force deployments, prepositioning of equipment, mobility, and headquarter locations;

(4) The relationship between NATO enlargement and transatlantic stability and security;

(5) The state of military preparedness and interoperability of Central and Eastern European nations as it relates to the responsibilities of NATO membership and additional security costs or benefits that may accrue to the United States from NATO enlargement;

(6) The state of democracy and free market development as it affects the preparedness of Central and Eastern European nations for the responsibilities of NATO membership, including civilian control of the military, the rule of law, human rights, and parliamentary oversight;

(7) The state of relations between prospective NATO members and their neighbors, steps taken by prospective members to reduce tensions, and mechanisms for the peaceful resolution of border disputes;

(8) The commitment of prospective NATO members to the principles of the North Atlantic Treaty and the security of the North Atlantic area;

(9) The effect of NATO enlargement on the political, economic and security conditions of European Partnership for Peace nations not among the first new NATO members;

(10) The relationship between NATO enlargement and EU enlargement and the costs and benefits of both;

(11) The relationship between NATO enlargement and treaties relevant to U.S. and European security, such as the Conventional Armed Forces in Europe Treaty; and

(12) The anticipated impact both of NATO enlargement and further delays of NATO enlargement on Russian foreign and defense policies and the costs and benefits of a security relationship between NATO and Russia.

(b) INDEPENDENT ASSESSMENT.—Not later than 15 days after enactment of this Act, the Majority Leader of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall appoint a chairman and two other members and the Minority Leaders of the Senate and House of Representatives shall appoint two members to serve on a bipartisan review group of nongovernmental experts to conduct an independent assessment of NATO enlargement, including a comprehensive review of the issues in (a) 1 through 12 above. The report of the review group shall be completed no later than December 1, 1996. The Secretary of Defense shall furnish the review group administrative and support services requested by the review group. The expenses of the review group shall be paid out of funds available for the payment of similar expenses incurred by the Department of Defense.

(c) Nothing in this section should be interpreted or construed to affect the implementation of the NATO Participation Act of 1994, as amended (P.L. 103-447), or any other program or activity which facilitates or assists prospective NATO members.

Mr. MCCAIN. Madam President, Senator NUNN, Senator BROWN, Senator HUTCHISON, and I, and a number of others, have been able to work out an agreement on a NATO enlargement study amendment, which I believe will give Congress a truly objective report.

The amendment requires the President to look not only at the costs associated with enlargement, but the cost and benefits associated with further delaying a decision on the matter. It also requires an assessment of enlargement by an independent bipartisan group. Our interest in an additional assessment, frankly, stems from apprehension on the President's findings. We know where the President stands on the issue of NATO enlargement.

With all due respect, I think we need two opinions on an issue that is this important. I would prefer that we move forward on enlargement, because I believe that it is something that is very important, but I understand the concerns of the Senator from Georgia that these questions must be answered before we move forward. There is a great deal at risk. I believe that the Senator from Georgia is correct in seeking these answers. I support that, and I am very grateful that the Senator from Georgia would accept the input of Senator BROWN, and others, in order that, in our view, we make the report balanced. I especially appreciate the agreement of the Senator from Georgia that there be an alternative study to this very vital issue, which will be the subject, I believe, of very intense and spirited debate here on the floor of the Senate.

I thank my colleague from Georgia not only for this, but his many other contributions as we go through this day.

I yield the floor.

Mr. NUNN. Madam President, first, I thank my friend from Arizona for working diligently on this amendment. It is a good second-degree amendment. I will urge its approval.

I ask unanimous consent that the authors of the first-degree amendment, as listed, be incorporated as cosponsors of the second-degree amendment and, in addition, that Senator LEVIN, the Senator from Michigan, be added as a cosponsor of the second-degree amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NUNN. This is probably one of the most important subject matters that we have had on this defense bill this year or, frankly, any other year. When you enlarge an alliance that has been as successful as the NATO alliance, there are serious questions that need to be asked, both by the existing NATO members and by the new prospective members.

This amendment is an amendment that asks the important questions. The original amendment, the underlying Nunn amendment, cosponsored by my friend from Texas, Senator HUTCHISON, Senator BRADLEY, Senator KASSEBAUM, and Senator COHEN, asked a number of questions.

This amendment is a simplified version of the original amendment. This amendment, the second degree, carries out the original intent of asking the tough questions so that the President will focus on those and so that the Congress will focus on those and so the American people will focus on those. This second-degree amendment asks additional questions that makes sure that this is a balanced report, which has been the overall intent from the beginning. But I think the second-degree amendment fairly reflects that balance in asking for both the costs and the benefits of the expansion.

That has been the original intent. I think this is a good amendment.

Madam President, I urge that the second-degree amendment be adopted. I do not think we will need a rollcall vote on that. But, once adopted, I would like a rollcall vote on the underlying amendment because it is a very important amendment.

I will defer to the chairman of the committee as to when we have that rollcall vote, so it will be most conducive to the conducting of our business. But I suggest that we accept a voice vote on the second degree and then have a rollcall vote on the Nunn amendment, as amended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4416) was agreed to.

Mr NUNN. I ask for the yeas and nays on the underlying amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. MCCAIN. Madam President, pending the agreement of the majority leader, I will temporarily ask unanimous consent that the yeas and nays be delayed until such time as the majority leader, in consultation with the Democratic leader, decide when that vote should take place.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I will yield to the chairman.

Mr. THURMOND. I yield to the Senator from Texas first.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Does the Senator from Virginia need to make a statement?

Mr. WARNER. Yes.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I wanted to add how much I appreciate Senator NUNN, Senator MCCAIN, and Senator BRADLEY for helping work out what I think is a very important amendment, which will say exactly what the parameters of the expansion of our NATO alliance should be—the questions that should be asked, the positives as well as the negatives. I think that is exactly what we ought to be doing.

The bottom line is, when we are talking about probably the best alliance that has ever been put together in the history of the world, we want to expand it judiciously and wisely. When we are talking about putting the lives of our military personnel, potentially, on the line, we need to do so judiciously and wisely. When we talk about spending the hard-earned taxpayer dollars that are there for the national defense of our country, when we talk of expanding that responsibility, we need to do so judiciously and wisely.

So I appreciate the fact that we are going to ask these questions. What are the benefits? What are the costs? What are the potential negatives of an expansion of this great NATO alliance? This is the responsible approach.

I thank all of my colleagues who are cosponsors of the Nunn-Hutchison-McCain-Brown amendment.

Mr. THURMOND addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, NATO has been the foundation of European security for 45 years, possibly the most successful defensive alliance in history. However, the world has changed dramatically in the past few years, and will continue to change. The end of the cold war has forced us to take a look at NATO's continued relevance.

Members of Congress believe in a strong NATO, and support the enlargement of NATO's membership. Our NATO allies also favor enlargement.

I support a renewed and enlarged NATO because it guarantees a U.S. presence on the European continent, and a seat at the table in the world's most vital, productive region. Quite simply, the United States has clear, abiding, and vital interests in Europe. A free and stable Europe is essential to the United States.

I do not believe Europe can remain stable and prosperous, to the mutual benefit of the United States and our European allies, if its post-cold war boundary is drawn along the borders of Germany and Austria. I do not believe a new European security framework will hold up unless it reflects the realities of the political upheaval that marked the end of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact. That new reality includes a reorienting of former East Bloc states toward the West.

Mr. President, I support the amendment, as modified.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I rise to address the NATO study proposed by my colleagues Senator HUTCHISON and Senator NUNN. I very much value and encourage their efforts to address core issues of European security, particularly those concerning the future role and membership of NATO.

Indeed, their initiative today addresses questions and issues that do need to be debated and examined here in Congress. These concern the ramifications that NATO enlargement poses for the Alliance's military strategy and force structure and the geopolitical and financial benefits and costs to the transatlantic community that enlargement will and already does entail.

As a longstanding supporter of NATO and the extension of NATO membership to the new democracies of Central and Eastern Europe, I was initially concerned that the tone and language of their amendment initiating this study risked sending absolutely the wrong signal. I was concerned that it would signal that this body, the U.S. Senate, opposes NATO enlargement.

That is clearly not the sentiment that has been expressed by this Chamber in the recent past. This Chamber has voted repeatedly in support of NATO enlargement. It voted in support of the NATO Participation Acts and its amendments in 1994 and 1995. And, these acts received the support of bipartisan majorities.

I am very gratified to hear that Senator NUNN and Senator HUTCHISON are open to suggestions and recommendations concerning the wording of their amendment. The proposed modification now before us, I believe, addresses my concern. The new wording cannot be misinterpreted as a vote against enlargement.

Moreover, the modification does inject one very important benefit to our efforts here in Congress.

It is no secret that the polarizing and partisan tendencies of election-year politics can even undermine how we address strategically central foreign policy issues such as NATO enlargement. The proposed modification to the NATO study includes the establishment of a bipartisan commission of experts to address the same issues upon which we wish the President to report concerning NATO enlargement. This will be a healthy injection of bipartisanship into our foreign policy process.

I am a longstanding supporter of NATO enlargement, and I want to reinforce what I see as an already strong bipartisan consensus on this issue. I strongly believe that we need to extend membership in the transatlantic community to the nascent democracies of Central and Eastern Europe. That's why I call upon my colleagues to accept this proposed modification.

I want to ensure that we address this issue of NATO enlargement here in Congress in a manner that reinforces the optimism and drive that brought democracy and peace to Central and Eastern Europe. These new democracies observe closely how we approach those factors affecting their integration into the transatlantic community.

The proposed modification to the Hutchison-Nunn amendment transforms their well-intentioned initiative into an objective effort that not only addresses significant and difficult strategic issues but does so in a manner that communicates our commitment to the independence and security of Central and Eastern Europe's new democracies. The proposed modification is consistent with our desire to see these new democracies fully integrated into the institutional fabric of the transatlantic community.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I would ask the Senator from Arizona if he would confirm my understanding that the term "European Partnership for Peace Nations" includes the nations of Ukraine, Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I would be happy to confirm for the Senator from Georgia that the term "European Partnership for Peace Nations" includes the nations of Ukraine, Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise in support of this amendment offered by my colleague from Colorado and I commend him for his continued leadership in this important area. This amendment attempts to move the administration along in the United States' effort to help our allies in Europe with their admission into NATO.

The administration has continued to say that they support efforts to expand NATO. They say it is not a question of whether we expand NATO, it is a question of how and when. I believe that the real issue is whether or not the free men and women that comprise our NATO membership will stand idly by if the security and independence of Central Europe is threatened.

NATO today remains the core of American engagement in Europe and at the heart of European security. It is our most effective instrument for coordinating defense and arms control and maintaining stability throughout Europe. The collapse of the Soviet Union, the dissolution of the Warsaw Pact, and the progress of European integration have not ended the need for NATO's essential commitment to safeguard the freedom and security of all of its members.

We must continue to move forward on NATO expansion and not allow other non-NATO countries to continue to exercise veto power over alliance expansion. The time has come to welcome Europe's new democracies into NATO. Only through a continued strong alliance can we guarantee another 50 years of peace in Europe.

I am proud to say that I have joined my colleague from Colorado along with our former majority leader Bob Dole, in taking a bold new step forward in our efforts to move the administration further in their policy. S. 1830, the NATO Enlargement Facilitation Act of 1996, is the third NATO Participation Act offered by Congress. It specifically names three countries—Poland, Hungary, and the Czech Republic—as qualifying for the program and requires the President to designate other emerging democracies in Central and Eastern Europe if they meet the necessary criteria.

The demise of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact has presented NATO with new challenges and new opportunities. The international environment is fraught with prospects for conflict and instability. The countries that reemerged from the ruins of the Soviet Empire as free societies now look to membership in NATO. These newly free countries have already fought and suffered to earn the right to their territorial integrity, independence, democracy, and free enterprise—precisely the values that NATO has maintained in the West for almost 50 years. At long last, the pro-Western nations of Central Europe now have the opportunity and the will to help us promote those values and to defend them.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GORTON). The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, subject to the decision of the majority and Democratic leader, we will proceed to a vote. Mr. President, we are making good progress on this bill. There is an amendment. It is anticipated that the Senate will commence a rollcall vote on the pending amendment by the Senator from Georgia in 5 minutes, to advise Senators so they can make their plans accordingly. In the interim period, seeing no Senator seeking recognition, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my name be added as a cosponsor to the B-2 amendment just offered by Senator CONRAD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I would like to lay down an amendment that would be pending following this vote. What is the procedure?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. To ask unanimous consent that we set aside the current proceedings and that the Senator from Kentucky be permitted to offer an amendment.

Mr. FORD. I so request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4112

(Purpose: To amend the special rule for payments for eligible federally connected children)

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 4112.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Kentucky [Mr. FORD], for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. EXON, Mr. GORTON, Mr. HATCH, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. LOTT, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. PRESSLER, Mr. ROBB, and Mr. WARNER, proposes an amendment numbered 4112.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle F of title X, insert the following:

SEC. . TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.

Paragraph (3) of section 8003(a) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7703(a)) is amended by striking "2000 and such number equals or exceeds 15" and inserting "1000 or such number equals or exceeds 10".

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, will the Senator from Kentucky allow the Senator from Virginia to put in another UC with regard to an amendment which would follow on?

Mr. FORD. I have no problem. At the request of the managers, I was asked to lay this down.

Mr. WARNER. Correct.

Mr. FORD. So when we have the vote we could automatically go to this. I am perfectly willing to do that.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent, following disposition of the Ford amendment, the Senate turn to an amendment to be offered by the Senator from Virginia on behalf of the Senator from Alaska, Mr. STEVENS, and that would be the pending business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. FORD. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, such that we keep this bill moving, I inform Senators the pending amendment will be voted on at 12:30. In the interim period, the Senator from North Dakota wishes to address the Senate.

I yield the floor.

Mr. CONRAD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, we have had many discussions over an extended period about national missile defense, and I will be offering as soon as it is prepared, as we work through the discussions of the wording of an amendment, an amendment on the subject of national missile defense.

I have reached the conclusion that national missile defense is necessary. I believe it is not a question of if, but rather a question of when missile defenses are deployed and what sort of system do we field.

I have always believed that any system we deploy ought to be treaty compliant, ought to be affordable, and ought to be effective. Those ought to be the tests.

Right now, we have no alternative before us that meets those tests, at least in the judgment of this Senator. I think it is clear there is a threat that exists. Today's threat is of an accidental or unauthorized launch of a Russian or Chinese missile. Clearly, that is unlikely, but we cannot afford to be wrong.

The threat that we may face tomorrow is a rogue nation launch. North Korea, Libya, other countries may develop an ICBM capability before we are anticipating that they would achieve such a capability. We must be prepared before we are surprised.

As I have looked at the options before us, I have been most interested in a plan that the Air Force has developed, an Air Force alternative that does meet the criteria of being effective, of being treaty compliant, and of being affordable.

I had intended to offer an amendment that would require the deployment of such a system in the same timeframe as the Defend America Act. I have been persuaded by the chairman and ranking members that the best way to proceed would be to require a study of this system by the Secretary of Defense and to have a statement by the Senate that this is a serious alternative.

Let me just outline, if I could, the elements of the amendment I intended to offer, what the elements of the system are, and then to have a chance to discuss the specific amendment I would be offering today.

The Conrad alternative authorizes deployment by 2003 of a Minuteman system—20 interceptors at Grand Forks, ND, capable of defending all 50 States, according to U.S. Air Force analysis.

The amendment also requires a report from the Department of Defense within 1 year on the future of the ICBM threat and a recommendation as to whether 20 or 100 interceptors were necessary. It also would express the sense of the Congress that the President can and should consult the Russian Government to clarify interpretation of the ABM Treaty as may be necessary.

I want to stress that the approach I am endorsing is an approach that is treaty compliant. It is a single site. The only question would be with certain radars that would be to assist the phased array radar that is already agreed to in the treaty. I want to stress this alternative does not endanger ABM and START arms control treaties. Second, it is not a budget buster. A 20 interceptor system is deployable, according to CBO, for $4 billion—not the $40 billion or the $60 billion that we have heard associated with defend America, but about $4 billion.

This system, I believe, is not only treaty compliant, is also not a budget buster, and it also uses today's proven missile, tracking and command and control technology. We are not talking here about breaking new ground. We are not talking about having to find something that has not yet been discovered.

We have the components of this system available to us now.

I wish to review very briefly what those components are. This is leveraged development, in the sense that we are building on what we currently have. Instead of going out and trying to recreate the wheel, instead of trying to invent something totally new, we have the components of this system today. Let me emphasize that we use an existing booster—the Minuteman booster. That is the base of this system. We use existing command, control, and computers, the NORAD and Minuteman systems. We use existing infrastructure, that is the Minuteman wing that currently exists at Grand Forks, ND, today. We only require an upgrade of existing kill vehicle technology. We use an upgrade of existing early warning radars. We do not have to go out and invent something new, we have these radars now. We would need X-band radars based on existing design. It would be four new radars, as I understand it, X-band radars, based on an existing design. So, again, we do not have to go out and create something that is new.

The cost, according to the Air Force, of a 20-Minuteman system is $2 to $2.5

billion. If we have a more robust force and go up to 100 Minuteman missiles, we would have a system for $3.5 to $4.5 billion according to Air Force estimates. CBO says 20 would cost us $4 billion.

This is in comparison to the defend America system that goes to a layered defense after 2000 that would cost from $40 to $60 billion. Yet this is a fully capable system.

Let me give a couple of quick examples of how this would work against a rogue nation launch. If Libya, for example, determined that they were going to launch on the United States by way of a threat, by way of intimidation, this is what the system would allow us to do. If Libya launched, our first launch could occur at T plus 480 seconds. Our national command authority would have 8 minutes to make a first decision to respond. The first intercept would then occur at T plus 1,200 seconds, and 20 minutes later there would be an intercept of that Libyan launched rogue missile. That would be a Minuteman III, fired from Grand Forks Air Force Base from existing silos with existing launch vehicles using a kinetic kill vehicle that has previously been tested. That first intercept would give us a very high probability of success in defending against that missile attack.

Because of the architecture of this system, in this circumstance we would have a look-fire-look-fire capability. In other words, we would be able to respond to the first launch, fire, see if our missile was effective in killing the incoming missile. We would then have a second chance to fire again, to knock down that incoming missile. That launch would have to occur at T plus 1,420 seconds. That last intercept would occur at T plus 1,720 seconds. So this would be an effective system against a rogue nation launch, such as against a launch from Libya.

Let us look at a second alternative, because one of the great concerns of a single-site system is, "Are you going to provide protection for all of the United States?" The answer is, "Yes." The Air Force-designed system, which I want to say I applaud General Fogleman for developing as an alternative that should be part of this mix, I think is a serious alternative. It has been very well thought through. People at the Air Force, I think, deserve great commendation for the work they have done.

This chart shows what happens in a case of North Korea launching with Hawaii as an intended target. In this situation the first launch picked up at T plus 400 seconds. We are launching in response to that at T plus 400 seconds. We have the first intercept under this scenario at T plus 1,200 seconds.

On a second launch, in this case we do not have the look-shoot-look-shoot capability because, obviously, North Korea is much closer to Hawaii than Libya is to Washington, DC, so in this case we would have to fire immediately again against that missile. We would have dual shot capability to attempt to intercept that missile. The first, as I indicated, first intercept occurring at T plus 1,200 seconds; the last intercept occurring at T plus 1,700 seconds.

In other words, we would again have two chances to intercept that incoming missile. We are able to defend all 50 States from one treaty compliant site in the United States.

We are talking about a cost here of $4 billion in comparison to the defend America plan of $60 billion. That is $56 billion of savings. We put together kind of a lighthearted list here of "Top 10 Things We Could Do With $56 Billion Other Than To Deploy the 'Defend America' System."

Given the fact we could have a similar capability with this plan, which I think clearly is fully capable, is treaty compliant, and highly effective, what are the things we could do with $56 billion?

No. 10 on our list, we could fund the Weatherization Assistance Program for 500 years;

No. 9, we could buy a computer for every school-age child in America.

Other things we could do with $56 billion that would be saved by adopting this system rather than the "Defend America" system? We could fund all payments to farmers for the next 7 years under the Freedom To Farm Act, recently passed by Congress;

No. 7, we could renovate America's crumbling infrastructure;

No. 6, we could meet the entire global need for basic child health, nutrition, and education for 2 years with the $56 billion we save under this plan;

No. 5, we could provide health care to all Americans under 18 for 9 months;

No. 4, we could fund WIC, nutrition for women, infants, and children, for 14 years with the savings generated by adopting this approach rather than the more expensive "Defend America" approach;

No. 3, we could fund Head Start for 16 years with this $56 billion of savings;

No. 2, we could fund the destruction of ex-Soviet nuclear weapons through the Nunn-Lugar Act for 18 years.

There are many things we could do, Mr. President. No. 1 on our list is we could not spend it, and avoid increasing the deficit by $56 billion. Frankly, that is my favorite option. Let us take the saving, let us apply it to the deficit. Let us have a National Missile Defense System, let us have one that is treaty compliant, let us have one that is cost effective, let us have one that is proven technology, and let us save $56 billion and apply it to the deficit.

Mr. President, I sum up and look at what I call our national missile defense checklist, and apply commonsense criteria. Is the system ABM Treaty compliant? Is it affordable? Does it utilize proven technology?

On "Defend America," on all three of the commonsense criteria, it fails: It is not treaty compliant, it is not affordable, it does not use proven technology. The Conrad alternative does meet the commonsense criteria. It is treaty compliant, it is a single site, and uses the phased array radar that is called for in the treaty. It is affordable, $4 billion instead of $60 billion that CBO says the Defend America Act would cost. And it uses proven technology, it uses the existing Minuteman boosters, uses a kinetic kill vehicle, it uses the command, control, and computers that we already have.

I hope very much that my colleagues take a serious look at this alternative to national missile defense. Clearly, there is a risk. Clearly there is a threat. I believe it is a growing risk and a growing threat; that at some point, the American people are going to want to have deployed a national missile defense system. We can do it. We can do it in a way that is treaty compliant. We can do it in a way that is affordable. We can do it in a way that is effective.

Mr. President, the Air Force has come forward with a plan, unveiled several weeks ago now by General Fogleman, of a national missile defense system that builds on our existing technology, that costs, according to Air Force estimates, $2.5 billion, that gives us a capability to defend 50 States against accidental launch or rogue nation launch.

Mr. President, I suggest that is a reasonable cost for an insurance policy for the American people. I hope my colleagues will take very seriously this alternative.

Momentarily, I will offer an amendment that will call on the Senate to indicate that this is a serious alternative that deserves serious attention and requires the Secretary of Defense to analyze this alternative fully by the end of January.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator withhold?

Mr. CONRAD. I will be happy to withhold.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, what is the question of the Senator? The Senate is anticipating voting now on the Nunn amendment.

Mr. CONRAD. I am just awaiting an amendment I will offer. I just wanted a chance to discuss the amendment so I would not take up the time of the Senate unduly.

VOTE ON AMENDMENT NO. 4367, AS AMENDED

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I think we are ready to vote on the underlying Nunn-Hutchison-Bradley amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Have the yeas and nays been ordered?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. They have.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment No. 4367, as amended. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] and the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. INHOFE] are necessary absent.

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BUMPERS] is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 97, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 182 Leg.]

YEAS—97

Abraham
Akaka
Ashcroft
Baucus
Bennett
Biden
Bingaman
Bond
Boxer
Bradley
Breaux
Brown
Bryan
Burns
Byrd
Campbell
Chafee
Coats
Cochran
Cohen
Conrad
Coverdell
Craig
D'Amato
Daschle
DeWine
Dodd
Domenici
Dorgan
Exon
Faircloth
Feingold
Feinstein
Ford
Frahm
Frist
Glenn
Gorton
Graham
Gramm
Grams
Grassley
Gregg
Harkin
Hatch
Heflin
Helms
Hollings
Hutchison
Inouye
Jeffords
Johnston
Kassebaum
Kempthorne
Kennedy
Kerrey
Kerry
Kohl
Kyl
Lautenberg
Leahy
Levin
Lieberman
Lott
Lugar
Mack
McCain
McConnell
Mikulski
Moseley-Braun
Moynihan
Murkowski
Murray
Nickles
Nunn
Pell
Pressler
Pryor
Reid
Robb
Rockefeller
Roth
Santorum
Sarbanes
Shelby
Simon
Simpson
Smith
Snowe
Specter
Stevens
Thomas
Thompson
Thurmond
Warner
Wellstone
Wyden

NOT VOTING—3

Bumpers
Hatfield
Inhofe

The amendment (No. 4367), as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. FORD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, it is my understanding that the Senate will proceed to the amendment by the Senator from Kentucky, and that the Senator from Vermont will participate in that. Following disposition of that amendment, the Senator from Virginia, on behalf of the Senator from Alaska [Mr. STEVENS] will lay down an amendment. That is just to let the Senate know what the procedure will be. I yield the floor.

Mr. FORD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

AMENDMENT NO. 4112

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, the amendment No. 4112 deals with impact aid. What I am offering today is basically a technical amendment to the Impact Aid Program. The House has added $33 million to this program. I am supporting this effort by the distinguished majority and minority leaders, Senators BOXER, CONRAD, CRAIG, DORGAN, EXON, GORTON, HATCH, INHOFE, LEVIN, MURRAY, PRESSLER, ROBB, and WARNER. This amendment has the complete endorsement of the membership of the National Association of Federally Impacted Schools.

Mr. President, since the Truman administration, the Federal Government has acknowledged its responsibility in assisting school districts educating federally connected children through the Impact Aid Program. This amendment addresses a change made to the Impact Aid Program during the 1994 authorization. Under the reauthorization, school districts would not be able to compute payments for children whose parents are civilian and work on Federal property unless a school district enrolled at least 2,000 of these children and only if such enrollment constitutes 15 percent of the school district's total enrollment.

This change is arbitrary and unfair. What about a school district that has a small total enrollment, but of which 25 percent are Government employees? Or a district that has over 3,000 of these children, but because of the school's large size, this represents perhaps only 10 to 13 percent of its total enrollment?

Mr. President, the amendment I offer today would restore some measure of equity and would recognize the impact that the Federal Government has in these communities by lowering this threshold to 1,000 civilian students or 10 percent of a school district's total enrollment. For those of you who are not familiar with this, because the Impact Aid Program is not fully funded, school districts must use a complicated formula for calculating the payments they will receive, also known as their learning opportunity threshold payment.

This amendment would allow 421 school districts nationwide to calculate payment for their civilian students. However, of this number, 13 school districts already are eligible to calculate their civilian students by meeting the 2,000 and 15-percent threshold set during the 1994 reauthorization.

While this amendment affects 14,000 weighted Federal student units in the remaining 409 school districts, my colleagues should be aware that of those 409 school districts, 282 already are eligible to qualify for some form of basic support from section 8003 without their civilian students. The remaining 127 school districts would be able to reenter the Section 8003 Program. These 127 school districts enroll 2,743 weighted Federal student units.

Although some may assume that if additional students are added to the program it will cost more, the actual impact of this amendment on existing school district payments is negligible. Short of fully funding this program, no matter how much money the Impact Aid Program receives in fiscal year 1997, the fact that the new need-based program will be fully implemented means that of the 1,570 school districts in the Section 8003 Program, 1,200 will receive some varying degree of decrease in payments in order to fully fund the 250 districts classified as high-need school districts.

If the intent of the 1994 reauthorization was to target the high-need school districts, then that is exactly what will happen with or without this amendment. The amendment I offer helps minimize the loss the remaining districts will see due to the phase-in of this new need-based formula by allowing them to calculate payments for their civilian students.

In fact, even at level funding, the National Association of Federally Impacted Schools estimates that every school district will see their full learning opportunity threshold payment, even with the change to 1,000 civilian students or 10-percent total enrollment.

I urge my colleagues to support this important change which has the full support of our impact aid schools.

This amendment restores some measure—I underscore—some of the equity and recognizes the impact that the Federal Government has on these communities by lowering the threshold to 1,000 civilian students or 10 percent of the school district's total enrollment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I am pleased go support this important impact aid amendment by my distinguished colleague from Kentucky, Senator WENDELL FORD.

Throughout my 17½ years in Congress, I have worked to preserve the Impact Aid Program. Local school districts have no choice but to bear the costs of educating federally connected children whose parents live and/or work on Federal installations. These families are either fully or partially exempt from contributing to the local tax base, and the Impact Aid Program attempts to compensate school districts accordingly.

This amendment seeks to restore an important component of impact aid funding which was significantly restricted as a part of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act reauthorization bill of 1994. Under that legislation, an arbitrary eligibility threshold was established for the children of civil service families when the parents work on tax-exempt Federal properties such as military bases. With that new threshold, school divisions cannot be compensated by impact aid unless these civil service children equal a population of both 2,000 and 15 percent of total enrollment.

For the last 2 years, school divisions which no longer meet this test have been grandfathered at 85 percent of their former payment. That protection expires this year, and without legislative action, a number of key school divisions in the Hampton Roads region of Virginia will begin to suffer funding shortfalls.

That is why I welcome this amendment by my colleague from Kentucky to set a new, more flexible standard of 1,000 students or 10 percent of enrollment. This presents a far more reasonable threshold for local schools when they are faced with the responsibility of educating large numbers of civil service children whose families work at tax-exempt Federal facilities.

I am pleased that this amendment is supported by the National Association of Federally Impacted Schools [NAFIS] whose president, Mr. John Forkenbrock, has provided such leadership in strengthening education for federally connected children and the schools they attend.

Mr. President, I thank the Chair and encourage all of my colleagues to support this important amendment.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I am proud to coauthor this amendment with Senator FORD. This small change in the impact aid formula corrects a large discrepancy in the program.

Current law discriminates against small districts, which are often located in rural areas. Districts can be eligible for impact aid based on the number of civilian b kids in the district. These children have parents who either work or live on Federal land. A district is eligible for impact aid if it has at least 2,000 students and 15 percent of the students are civilian b children.

The amendment before us today would allow districts to qualify for the program if the district has at least 1,000 children or 10 percent of the students are civilian b children. Changing "and" to "or" is an important distinction for small districts. Mr. President, few school districts in South Dakota have 2,000 students. Small districts are no less federally impacted than large ones. They are equally deserving of impact aid funds.

This amendment would allow additional districts into the program, but it would not decrease payments to current section 8003 schools. This section of the program received an increased appropriation last year, so we are working with a larger-sized pie than in previous years. Additionally, payments to all schools in section 8003 will be reconfigured when the hold harmless provision for this section expires in fiscal year 1997. Many school districts will receive lower payments when the formula agreed to in the 1994 reauthorization is fully phased in. The drop in payments to these schools frees up additional dollars for the small districts gaining eligibility with this amendment.

This is a fairness issue. I am pleased that small school districts will now receive equal support. This amendment enjoys widespread, bipartisan support. I hope all my colleagues will join me in supporting it today.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, like many of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, I have long supported impact aid. This program appropriately reimburses local school districts for the cost of educating the children of Federal employees who do not contribute to the local tax base because they live or work on Federal property. Moreover 17 million children benefit from impact aid. Now, when I think of impact aid, I typically think of the child whose parent serves in the military, or the child who lives on an Indian reservation, yet there is another group of children who rightly are served by impact aid. These are students whose parents may not live on Federal property, but work on Federal property—property that is not generating tax support for the local schools. These children are provided for by the civilian b portion of the program.

Prior to an amendment being added to the Improving America's Schools Act 2 years ago, a district received a civilian b payment as long as it met basic eligibility requirements. This amendment required that a district enroll a minimum of 2,000 civilian b children and that this enrollment must equal 15 percent of the district's total student population. This effectively eliminated many small school districts with less than 2,000 students in their entire district, that nonetheless serve a large percentage of Federal employees' children. The inequity of this formula adversely impacted a number of small school districts in Washington State. For example, according to statistics provided by the Department of Education, the Grand Coulee Dam School District's total student population is 796 students, 328 of whom, are children of civilian Federal employees. In spite of the fact that 40 percent of this districts student population is made up of Federal employees children, under the current formula, this school district is not eligible for civilian b funding.

The Bremerton School District isn't as small as Grand Coulee Dam School District, but it has a similar problem. In Bremerton, WA, a number of civilians are employed to support the naval base operations. While these civilians do not work for an employer that contributes to the local tax base in the same manner other local businesses do, the Bremerton district's schools serve these children who make up 20 percent of the total student enrollment in the school district. Although Bremerton meets the 20-percent criteria, the district falls short of the 2,000 student requirement. Thus, under the current formula Bremerton School District is not eligible for civilian b funds. Is this school district less worthy of funding—merely because it does not fit into the criteria—I would argue not.

I am certainly not opposed to establishing criteria for eligibility for Federal programs; in fact, I think it is imperative we do so. But that determination should be made fairly. School districts who are significantly impacted by the Federal Government's presence should be reimbursed for the local tax contributions they would otherwise receive. For this reason, I support Senator FORD's efforts to restore equity to the eligibility requirements for this program.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, this part of the amendment is acceptable. I understand that my friend from Vermont has an amendment in the second degree that also will be accepted. So I yield the floor so my friend from Vermont can offer his amendment.

Mr. JEFFORDS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

AMENDMENT NO. 4417 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4112

(Purpose: To require the Secretary of Defense to make certain Impact Aid payments)

Mr. JEFFORDS. I have an amendment to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will reported.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Vermont [Mr. JEFFORDS] for himself and Mr. PELL, proposes amendment numbered 4417 to amendment No. 4112.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 1, strike line 6 through line 2 on page 2 and insert the following:

7703(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "2000 and such number equals or exceeds 15" and inserting "1000 or such number equals or exceeds 10"; and

(2) by inserting ", except that notwithstanding any other provision of this title the Secretary shall not make a payment computed under this paragraph for a child described in subparagraph (F) or (G) of paragraph (1) who is associated with Federal property used for Department of Defense activities unless funds for such payment are made available to the Secretary from funds available to the Secretary of Defense" before the period.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, my amendment just establishes some equity in covering the cost generated by the amendment of the Senator from Kentucky. My amendment, requires the Department of Defense to pay the increase in cost—a small amount; about $11 million—incurred by the additional military dependents who would become eligible for impact aid under the Ford amendment.

The underlying amendment offered by my colleague from Kentucky broadens the eligibility criteria for the impact aid program. In 1994, during the last reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Congress recognized the need to prioritize scarce education dollars and hence targeted funds to the most needy. In the case of the impact aid, we set up a stricter standard to reimburse districts for those students whose parents are employed on Federal property but do not live on such property.

I have some misgivings about using this bill to alter education policy. But if we want to do so, then so be it. The amendment that I am offering would simply require the Department of Defense to pay the expense of the amendment for children associated with military activities.

The changes made in 1994 eliminated impact aid payments to certain districts. By going back and broadening this definition we will increase the number of eligible districts from approximately 13 to 421.

Without my amendment the increased costs will come, not from the Department of Defense, but from the Department of Education. One area where the Department of Defense has traditionally enjoyed a reprieve from carrying its full weight is that of impact aid. Impact aid was designed to offset costs that local communities incur in the education of military dependents or civilians working on military bases because these families are exempt from certain State and local taxes. This is a cost of our national defense program.

Mr. President, DOD has accepted the responsibility of bearing the full costs of educating military dependents overseas—it is logical they should assume responsibility for offsetting the costs that occur at home.

There is clear precedence for this. Currently, the Department of Defense provides supplemental funding for impact aid schools, between $10 and $50 million—$30 million in fiscal year 1996. This last provision is in the DOD authorization bill and allows the Secretary of Defense to provide supplemental funding for local education agencies [LEA's] in which military activity places a unique burden on the LEA.

This amendment follows this policy. We must, for the true defense of this country, serve our children.

I understand this amendment is acceptable.

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, I am very pleased to be a cosponsor of the second-degree amendment offered by my friend and colleague, Senator JEFFORDS. It represents a small, yet very significant step in the direction of placing the funding of impact aid upon the agency responsible for the Federal property.

Impact aid is assistance provided because Federal property is taken from the tax rolls. It is compensation, and really should not be placed in the category of educational assistance. If the property is a military installation, the responsibility for compensation should rest with the Department of Defense, not the Department of Education. If the property is public land used for parks and recreational purposes, the responsibility for compensation should rest with an agency such as the Department of the Interior, not the Department of Education.

Impact aid is also general aid. It is not tied to the need to improve basic skills, upgrade professional development, strengthen educational research, or open opportunities for a college education. Its only relationship to education is because the property tax is too often and unfortunately a major source of support for education at the State and local level. Removal of that source of funding has an impact upon the total resources available to fund education in community after community throughout America. I would contend, therefore, that compensation for this lost resource should come from the agency or department responsible for removal of this land from the tax rolls.

With respect to this particular amendment, I understand that about 60 percent of the additional districts that would be eligible for impact aid are related to the armed services. Thus, under the provisions of the Jeffords amendment, the Secretary of Defense would be required to cover that amount, which I understand is 60 percent of $11 to $18 million.

My own opinion is that this amendment represents the direction in which we should be moving in regard to the entire Impact Aid Program. As I have said, it is only a small step, but it is also a very important one. I would strongly urge my colleagues to join Senator JEFFORDS and me in approving this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the second-degree amendment?

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, we accept the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the second-degree amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4417) was agreed to.

Mr. FORD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. FORD. I encourage the approval of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment No. 4112, as amended.

The amendment (No. 4112), as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I thank the Chair and thank my friend from Vermont.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from Virginia is recognized to offer an amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 4418

(Purpose: To provide $2,000,000 for the construction of a facility for military dependent children with disabilities at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas)

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on behalf of the Senator from Alaska [Mr. STEVENS], I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Virginia [Mr. WARNER] for Mr. STEVENS, proposes an amendment numbered 4418.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle F of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1072. FACILITY FOR MILITARY DEPENDENT CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES, LACKLAND AIR FORCE BASE, TEXAS.

(a) FUNDING.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated by this Act for the Department of the Air Force, $2,000,000 may be available for the construction at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, of a facility (and supporting infrastructure) to provide comprehensive care and rehabilitation services to children with disabilities who are dependents of members of the Armed Forces.

(b) TRANSFER OF FUNDS.—Subject to subsection (c), the Secretary of the Air Force may grant the funds available under subsection (a) to the Children's Association for Maximum Potential (CAMP) for use by the association to defray the costs of designing and constructing the facility referred to in subsection (a).

(c) LEASE OF FACILITY.—(1) The Secretary may not make a grant of funds under subsection (b) until the Secretary and the association enter into an agreement under which the Secretary leases to the association the facility to be constructed using the funds.

(2)(A) The term of the lease under paragraph (1) may not be less than 25 years.

(B) As consideration for the lease of the facility, the association shall assume responsibility for the operation and maintenance of the facility, including the costs of such operation and maintenance.

(3) The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the lease as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, this effort has been raised by several of my colleagues. I believe it has great merit. The camp program addresses the needs of children challenged with disabilities that are not easily addressed. This includes children with Downs Syndrome, Cerebral Palsy, and Autism.

This program meets an urgent need at Lackland Air Force Base. We are addressing this need in a unique way. We will consider this effort when we bring the defense appropriation bill to the floor.

The commander of Wilford Hall Medical Center, which is located at Lackland Air Force Base, has indicated the medical center has a close association with the camp program. Most of his staff are volunteers in the program. He views the program as an outgrowth of the pediatric department at Wilford Hall.

The base commander of Lackland Air Force Base also supports the program. We asked him how he deals with the liability he personally might incur. He indicated that the benefits outweigh his risks.

The Senator from Ohio stated that there was no agreement between the Air Force and the camp program. The base commander has informed the Senate Appropriations Committee that there is, in fact, an agreement between the base commander and the director of the camp program.

The camp program is now housed in three 2-story barracks. This creates significant hazards with disabled children. Also, the manpower required for three buildings will be reduced with this new building. For instance, they will only need one nurse instead of three. These barracks are scheduled for demolition. As soon as this facility is built these barracks will come down.

This program is not yet endorsed by the Department. I believe we must address the special needs of military families. This program is an effort to do just that.

I appreciate the willingness of the managers of this bill and urge the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, it is with great regret that I rise in opposition to this amendment. The amendment would establish, in my view, a dangerous precedent for future grants of defense dollars to private organizations selected by the Congress.

There is no question that the purpose of the facility which would be constructed with these funds is a worthy one. Caring for the dependent children of our military personnel, particularly those with disabilities, should be a high-priority concern of the military Services.

However, I am concerned about the process by which this project has been identified. As I understand it, a private organization called the Children's Association for Maximum Potential [CAMP] developed an unsolicited proposal to build a facility at Lackland Air Force Base for the specialized care of military dependent children with disabilities. CAMP had been unsuccessful in raising sufficient private contributions, and requested assistance from the appropriations committees. This amendment, offered by the Chairman of the Senate Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, would authorize the grant funds requested by CAMP.

Let me stress again that I am not opposed to providing facilities for the care of disabled children. But I want to ensure that the facilities we do provide are the highest priority and best suited to take care of the largest possible group of these children. I am not confident, even with the endorsement of the Department of Defense, that the $2 million to be provided for this particular program is the best use of funds to serve this need.

Finally, I am concerned about the precedent we may establish by authorizing the expenditure of $2 million from the Air Force budget to construct a building for the use of a private entity. These projects should be considered within the military construction and family housing accounts, not in a new process outside the scrutiny of other priorities, such as child care centers, hospitals, and the like.

Mr. President, I regretfully announce that I oppose this amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the Senator from Virginia on behalf of the Senator from Alaska. I hate very much to do that because this is a program that is undoubtedly worthwhile, but I do object to the process by which we are doing this. There has not been a definition given yet by the proponents of this as to what the bill actually provides. Let me make some comments on that.

What this amendment does, as I understand it, is direct the Secretary of the Air Force to provide a $2 million grant to a program called CAMP, Children's Association for Maximum Potential, and this $2 million would be for construction of a support services facility for military dependent children with disabilities and their families at Lackland Air Force Base.

Certainly, that is a most noble intent. I do not question the intent of it at all. What I do object to is bringing this up as part of the defense bill without it having been through any screening whatever, without having been submitted as part of the defense budget. I am sure that every single one of us has a similar situation that we would like to take benefit of, also, that would be similar to this particular program.

The CAMP Program was established in 1980 as a nonprofit agency. What it does is provide comprehensive services to families with special needs. Currently, CAMP has 40 employees, as I understand it, and a $1.3 billion budget. It operates on Lackland in three World War II vintage barracks. Lackland officials have a base revitalization program, and they are demolishing old buildings. These three buildings are among those which are slated to be demolished. They have outlived their construction life cycles. They are costly to repair and maintain. The facilities in which CAMP operates are slated for demolition. The Air Force has identified a vacant parcel of property near the base medical center as a potential new site for CAMP. This $2 million grant, along with a private donation of $500,000, would enable CAMP to construct a new facility and continue its program to support military families with disabled children.

The facility to be built with the grant money would be leased to CAMP by the Air Force under a 25-year lease agreement. As consideration for this lease, CAMP would assume responsibility for and costs associated with operating and maintaining this facility, as I understand it. Granting this facility would enable CAMP to continue their support of military families and special needs.

The grant is simply a substitute for the good will of the Air Force in providing an operating space for CAMP in these old World War II structures. We do need special legislation to authorize the Air Force to use funds in this manner. However, arguing against the amendment, there is no agreement between the Air Force and CAMP for use of the facilities at all. It would benefit a small group and a specific site.

The money we would be proposing to give to them does not cover the cost of the new facility. Most of all, we opened a floodgate to everybody who has a meritorious nonprofit group operating on their base in support of whatever good purpose, and we are not giving them a fair shot at the same thing.

On the Senate Armed Services Committee, we have denied requests for DOD funds to assist in construction activities related to all sorts of things—military monuments, memorials, buildings for children on bases—and we have not funded those. While I know this is for a very good purpose, and I realize if we put this to a vote, there would not probably be very many votes that would be opposed to this idea of continuing help for dependent disabled children, children with special difficulties, on the base at Lackland, I do not propose to call for a rollcall vote on this amendment because I have no doubt about what the vote would probably be. The intention of the amendment is very noble and for a worthy cause, but for us to start out like this without having been through the budgeting process, without it having been through hearings, without having it considered by the committee or the Armed Services Committee and in competition with other projects like this at all, I question whether we should be doing this.

The problem with it, then, is that it uses the defense budget to fund what may be considered to be a high-priority program but it is not a budgeted defense program item. I cannot support the principle here of taking millions out of the defense budget to fund it. Every single one of us has a program in his or her State that would benefit greatly if we simply handed out funds like this on the military bases. Many, many, nonprofit organizations do things on the bases that we would like to support, yet we do not do that because if we raided the defense budget every time that occurred, we would soon be out of money. The problem with that approach is there would be little left if each Member of this body came to the floor to collect the defense funds necessary to help out every nonprofit program like the very valuable CAMP Program that needed funding.

I prefer to see with proposals like this that are put in, the Pentagon give their opinion as to what they are doing on the particular base, send that word over, and we take care of it in committee structure, compare them with others, and allot them money for programs like this. I am very happy to support them and work with the people to do it. But to bring them on the floor and make it competitive that we are trying to get something for individual bases for nonprofit organizations is something I have a lot of difficulty supporting.

Let me conclude by stating I find it a bit ironic that the same majority that is cutting necessary domestic discretionary funding in order to add $12 billion to our defense budget is agreeing to an amendment like this, without any hearings or without any further information. It just says we need $2 million to give to a nonprofit organization, so we appropriated or we authorized here on the Senate floor.

I am very much in support—let me go back to where I started my statement. I am very much in favor of the intent, certainly, on our bases. We want to support organizations like this. They are set up and they operate as nonprofit organizations. To have the money come out of our defense budget now to go into supporting these nonprofit organizations, no matter how good they are, just without any hearings, without conferring with other projects that we might prefer to see taxpayer-appropriated funds go into, is to me the wrong approach here. I would like to see these things gone into on a little more studied basis.

Senator MCCAIN and I have taken the lead over the past 4 years in trying to hold down things like this where we add things on the floor, add them in the committee that were never requested, never had hearings, never knew anything about them. Granted, this is not a budget buster that goes into billions. It is $2 million. But you add this up with every $2 million that I would like to have and the Senator from Virginia would like to have and everyone else would like to have, and it gets into quite a pile of money. We are taking it directly out of the defense budget to do this. Granted, it is in support of our military personnel at Lackland Air Force Base, but this is the only organization of its kind we are singling out for a $2 million grant.

I am not going to ask for a rollcall vote on this, but I do wish to be recorded as being opposed to this amendment. I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate?

If not, the question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4418) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I would like to identify myself with the remarks of Senator GLENN on the previously adopted amendment.

I know it is a noble cause. But I think this is a bad precedent, and I think we need to carefully consider what we do in this kind of case.

There are thousands of other organizations out there that would like exactly the same treatment.

I voted on that on the voice vote, and I identify my remarks with those of the Senator from Ohio.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

I see the distinguished Senator from Kentucky seeking recognition.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky is recognized.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I thank the Chair. I thank my friend, the floor leader, from Virginia.

AMENDMENT NO. 4419

(Purpose: To require the Secretary of Defense to carry out a pilot program to identify and demonstrate a feasible alternative to demilitarization of assembled chemical munitions)

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I call up my amendment on pilot projects for identified and demonstrated feasible alternatives to demilitarization of assembled chemical munitions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment is laid aside, and the clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Kentucky [Mr. FORD], for himself and Mr. BROWN proposes an amendment numbered 4419.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title I, add the following:

SEC. 113. DEMILITARIZATION OF ASSEMBLED CHEMICAL MUNITIONS.

(a) PILOT PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Defense shall conduct a pilot program to identify and demonstrate feasible alternatives to incineration for the demilitarization of assembled chemical munitions.

(b) PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.—(1) The Secretary of Defense shall designate an executive agent to carry out the pilot program required to be conducted under subsection (a).

(2) The executive agent shall—

(A) be an officer or executive of the United States Government;

(B) be accountable to the Secretary of Defense; and

(C) not be, or have been, in direct or immediate control of the chemical weapon stockpile demilitarization program established by 1412 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986 (50 U.S.C. 1521) or the alternative disposal process program carried out under sections 174 and 175 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1993 (Public Law 102–484; 50 U.S.C. 1521 note).

(3) The executive agent may—

(A) carry out the pilot program directly;

(B) enter into a contract with a private entity to carry out the pilot program; or

(C) transfer funds to another department or agency of the Federal Government in order to provide for such department or agency to carry out the pilot program.

(4) A department or agency that carries out the pilot program under paragraph (3)(C) may not, for purposes of the pilot program, contract with or competitively select the organization within the Army that exercises direct or immediate management control over either program referred to in paragraph (2)(C).

(5) The pilot program shall terminate not later than September 30, 2000.

(c) ANNUAL REPORT.—Not later than December 15 of each year in which the Secretary carries out the pilot program, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the activities under the pilot program during the preceding fiscal year.

(d) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—Not later than December 31, 2000, the Secretary of Defense shall—

(1) evaluate each demilitarization alternative identified and demonstrated under the pilot program to determine whether that alternative—

(A) is a safe and cost efficient as incineration for disposing of assembled chemical munitions; and

(B) meets the requirements of section 1412 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986; and

(2) submit to Congress a report containing the evaluation.

(e) LIMITATION ON LONG LEAD CONTRACTING.—(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in paragraph (2), the Secretary may not enter into any contract for the purchase of long lead materials considered to be baseline incineration specific materials for the construction of an incinerator at any site in Kentucky or Colorado within one year of the date of enactment of this act or thereafter until the executive agent designated for the pilot program submits an application for such permits as are necessary under the law of the State of Kentucky or the law of the State of Colorado, as the case may be, for the construction at that site of a plant for demilitarization of assembled chemical munitions by means of an alternative to incineration.

(2) Provided, however, the Secretary may enter into a contract described in paragraph (1) beginning 60 days after the date on which the Secretary submits to Congress—

(A) the report required by subsection (d)(2); and

(B) the certification of the executive agent that there exists no alternative technology as safe and cost efficient as incineration for demilitarizing chemical munitions at nonbulk sites that can meet the requirements of section 1412 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986.

(f) ASSEMBLED CHEMICAL MUNITION DEFINED.—For the purpose of this section, the term "assembled chemical munition" means an entire chemical munition, including components parts, chemical agent, propellant, and explosive.

(g) FUNDING.—(1) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 107, $60,000,000 shall be available for the pilot program under this section. Such funds may not be derived from funds to be made available under the chemical demilitarization program at bulk sites.

(2) Funds made available for the pilot program pursuant to paragraph (1) shall be made available to the executive agent for use for the pilot program.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, this is an issue that hits home for me. We have a facility in Richmond, KY, known as the Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot. This facility houses the most dangerous chemical agents known to mankind such as GB, VX, and mustard agents in various projectiles and rockets. Given the extremely hazardous nature of these agents, my primary concern must be for the health and safety of Kentuckians, and all Americans who live near these obsolete weapons.

And I am not alone. Acting out of the same concerns, the State of Kentucky has put into place rigorous regulations governing the permit process for operating an incinerator to destroy chemical weapons. To date, the Army has failed to get a permit from the Kentucky State EPA because the Army has failed in its application to meet several basic tests, including providing sufficient evidence that: Neither humans nor the environment will be harmed by emissions from the incinerator; burning the chemical weapons would be safer than any possible alternative technologies; should the incinerator malfunction, enough of the nerve gas would be destroyed instead of released; and during a worst-case scenario accident, there are adequate plans in place for evacuating the public.

In 1981, the Army chose the baseline incineration process as the best and safest method for destroying chemical weapons. Yet just this month, 15 years later, the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee held a hearing on whether incineration adequately protects the health and safety of the public and the workers.

I fail to understand how the Army can continue along this path when legitimate questions are still being raised and are still not being adequately answered. We're now finding that many of the alternatives previously reviewed and rejected for the destruction of chemical weapons have been developed to the point where they may not only be considered viable options, but may be better choices than incineration.

Unfortunately, the Army's actions have the appearance of moving forward simply for the sake of sticking to the original plan. I understand the Army's concern over already investing billions of dollars in the incineration process. But we are dealing with the health and safety of our citizens. And when it comes to issues of health and safety our citizens deserve the best.

To ensure this happens, Senator BROWN and I offer this amendment to the fiscal year 1997 defense authorization bill, requiring the Department of Defense to conduct a 3-year pilot program. Under the pilot program the Department of Defense will determine if there is a feasible alternative to incineration for the disposal of chemical munitions. The amendment requires the Secretary of Defense to report to Congress 6 months after the program has been completed on whether there are alternative processes that are as safe and as cost-efficient as baseline incineration. Based on this report we can determine whether baseline incineration or an alternative method is the best way to demilitarize the assembled chemical munitions at the Lexington/Blue Grass Army Depot and the Pueblo Chemical Depot.

Let me add that while the Army has a review underway at this time, that review only examines the use of these technologies for bulk sites. Because the Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot and the Pueblo Chemical Depot house munitions, the Army's current study is irrelevant to these sites.

This amendment would direct the Department of Defense to appoint an executive agent to lead this program who has not been in direct or immediate control of the chemical weapon stockpile demilitarization program. I strongly believe for this program to be successful it will need new blood, an individual who is objective, forward thinking, and not wedded to the incineration process.

Second, while this pilot program is in effect, this amendment prohibits the expenditures of funds for the construction of incinerators at both the Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot in Kentucky and the Pueblo Chemical Depot in Colorado for 1 year. Should it be determined that there is no alternative technology then funds may be expended for the construction of incinerators.

Mr. President, I am hopeful the pilot program will include a decisionmaking process that will actively involve the State and local governments and local community groups, so that all parties involved in this process can reach a consensus on where pilot testing will take place. With consensus I believe there will be a future for alternative technologies in chemical demilitarization, and we can safely proceed with destruction of obsolete chemical weapons.

This amendment specifies that of the funds authorized to be appropriated for chemical demilitarization for fiscal year 1997, $60 million will be set aside to conduct this pilot program for nonbulk sites, and that none of the $60 million will come from the funds for the alternative technologies bulk pilot program.

Clearly something must be done. With good reason, the State of Kentucky will not issue a permit to the Army. But, it would also be a mistake to simply walk away from the problem. I believe my amendment makes sense for both the Army, the Kentuckians who live in that area, and for other depots that will eventually confront this same problem.

Mr. President, without this amendment it is doubtful that the Army will ever be able to get its permit to incinerate munitions in Kentucky, let me bring to your attention the following:

> Section 6929 of title 42 of the United States Code, specifically recognizes and reserves to the Commonwealth the authority to impose reasonable restrictions directly relating to public health and safety with respect to the management of hazardous wastes beyond the minimum standards established under federal law.

Furthermore, Kentucky State law requires that:

> In considering alternatives to the proposed activity, the cabinet shall affirmatively consider all reasonable alternatives, including alternatives that could be developed, and shall issue a permit only where it finds by clear and convincing evidence that no alternative treatment or disposal option, including transportation, exists or could be developed that would provide greater protection against exposure or harm to the public or environment.

How can the State of Kentucky under these conditions ever issue a permit when the Army has yet to look at alternative technologies for nonbulk sites?

Mr. President, I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure that the Department of Defense moves forward in a way that will not place a single American at risk.

I ask unanimous consent that the list of organizations supporting this amendment be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

GROUPS SUPPORTING THE CWWG, ON FORD AMENDMENT TO S. 1745

Aberdeen Proving Ground Superfund Citizens Coalition: Joppa, Maryland; Alabama Conservancy: Anniston, Alabama; Arkansas Fairness Council: Little Rock, Arkansas; ACTION: Circleville, Ohio; Action for a Clean Environment: Alto, Georgia; Artists For Earth: Berea, Kentucky; Appalachian Science in the Public Interest: Livingston, Kentucky; Arms Control Research Center: San Francisco, California; Bass Anglers

Sportsman Society: Montgomery, Alabama; Burn Busters: Anniston, Alabama.

Cancer Registry—Dioxin Research: Globe, Arizona; Center for Economic Conversion: Berkeley, California; Central Kentucky AIM Support Group: Lexington, Kentucky; Champaign-Urbana Physicians for Social Responsibility: Mason City, Illinois; Chicago Media Watch Environmental Task Force: Evanston, Illinois; Citizens Clearinghouse on Hazardous Waste: Falls Church, Virginia; Citizens Energy Council: Hewitt, New Jersey; Citizens Environmental Organizations of Bedford Co., Clearville, Pennsylvania; Citizens for a Healthy Environment: Waveland, Mississippi; Citizens for Responsible Fort McCoy Growth: Sparta, Wisconsin; Citizens for Safe Water Around Badger: Merrimac, Wisconsin; Coalition for Jobs and the Environment: Abingdon, Virginia; Coalition for Research Ethics and Accountability: Santa Fe, New Mexico; Columbia River United: Hood River, Oregon; Citizens Against Incineration in Newport: Newport, Indiana; Citizens for Environmental Quality: Hermiston, Oregon; Citizens for Safe Weapons Disposal: Pueblo, Colorado; Coalition for Safe Disposal: Worton, Maryland; Common Ground: Berea, Kentucky; Concerned Citizens for Maryland's Environment: Bel Air, Maryland; Concerned Citizens of Madison County: Richmond, Kentucky; Center for the Biology of Natural Systems: Queens, New York; Center for Environmental Health Studies: Boston, Massachusetts; Center for Responsive Politics: Washington, DC; Central Kentucky Council for Peace and Justice: Lexington, Kentucky; Citizen Alert: Las Vegas, Nevada; Citizens to Save Our Environment: St. Louis, Missouri.

Desert Citizens Against Pollution: Rosamond, California; Don't Waste Arizona, Flagstaff, Az.; Downwinders, Inc.: Salt Lake City, Utah; Earth and Spirit Council: Portland, Oregon; Eastern Cherokee Defense League: Cherokee, North Carolina; Ecology Center: Berkeley, California; Edmonds Institute: Edmonds, Washington; Environmental Research Foundation: Annapolis, Maryland; Earth Friendly of Huntsville: Huntsville, Alabama; Environmental Compliance Oversight Corporation.

Families Concerned About Nerve Gas Incineration: Anniston, Alabama; Farm Aid, Cambridge Mass.; Franklin County Voters for Clean Air; Columbus, Ohio; Friends of the Earth: Washington, DC; Friends and Native Americans: Arlington, Massachusetts; Friends of the Upper Willamette River, Inc: Corvallis, Oregon; Georgia Chapter, 20/20 Vision: Sautee, Georgia; Gateway Green Alliance: St. Louis, Missouri; Global Greens-USA, Washington, D.C.; GreenLaw: Washington, DC; Greenpeace International, Amsterdam; Greenpeace USA, Washington, D.C.; Greenpeace Midwest: Chicago, Illinois; Greenpeace Pacific Campaign; Greenpeace Portland: Portland, Oregon; Greenpeace South: Atlanta, Georgia; Greenpeace West: Seattle, Washington; Government Accountability Project: Washington, DC; Groups Allied to Stop Pollution: Wilmer, Texas; Hawaii's Thousands Friends; Hoosier Environmental Council: Indianapolis, Indiana; H.O.P.E. Alive!: Pueblo, Colorado; Humane Society of the United States, Washington, D.C.

Institute for the Advancement of Hawaiian Affairs; Indiana Citizen Action: Indianapolis, Indiana; Indigenous Environmental Network: Bemidji, Minnesota; Institute for Agriculture and Trade Policy; Institute for Energy and Environmental Research, Washington, D.C.; Institute for Science and Interdiciplinary Studies: Amherst, Massachusetts; International Fellowship of Reconciliation: Douglasville, Georgia; International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War; International Social Ecology Network; Kentucky Conservation Committee: Frankfort, Kentucky; Kentucky Environmental Foundation, (CWWG Project) Berea, Ky.; Kentuckians for the Commenwealth: Salyersville, Kentucky; Kentucky Resources Council: Frankfort, Kentucky; Legal Environmental Assistance Foundation: Tallahassee, Florida; Maryland United for Peace and Justice: Bowie, Maryland; Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste: Boston, Massachusetts; Military Toxics Project: Sabattus, Maine; Newport Study Group: Newport, Indiana; Nuclear Free and Independent Pacific; National Center for Environmental Health Strategies: Voorhees, New Jersey; Network for Environmental and Economic Responsibility: Nutley, New Jersey; NC Waste Awareness and Reduction Network: Durham, North Carolina; Northwest Coalition for Alternatives to Pesticides: Eugene, Oregon.

Northwest Environmental Advocates: Portland, Oregon; Nuclear Information and Resource Service: Washington, DC; National Depleted Uranium Citizens Network; Oregon Peaceworks: Salem, Oregon; Oregon Environmental Council: Portland, Oregon; Pine Bluff for Safe Disposal: Pine Bluff, Arkansas; Pacific Asia Council of Indigenous People, Hawaii; Pacific Concerns Resource Center; Parkridge Area Residents Take Action: Grove City, Ohio; People for Clean Air and Water—El Pueblo: Hanford, California; People vs. a Chemical Contained Environment: Jacksonville, Arkansas; Project on Demilitarization and Democracy: Washington DC; Pacific Studies Center: Mt. View, California; Physicians for Social Responsibility: Boston, Mass.; Progressive Alliance for Community Empowerment: Albuquerque, New Mexico; Project South: Knoxville, Tennessee; Reach for Unbleached: Whaletown, British Columbia, Canada; Rhode Island Coalition for Peace and Justice: Providence, Rhode Island; Rural Alliance for Military Accountability, Oregon.

Sangre de Cristo Chapt. of the Rocky Mtn. Sierra Club: Pueblo, Colorado; Serving Alabama's Future Environment: Anniston, Alabama; Sierra Club, Washington, D.C.; Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund, San Francisco, Ca.; Snake River Alliance: Boise, Idaho; South Bronx Clean Air Coalition: Bronx, New York; Southern Organizing Committee: Atlanta, Georgia; Social Concerns Office, Catholic Diocese of Jefferson City: J. City, Missouri; St. Louis Archdiocese: St. Louis, Missouri; SEVA Service Society, Palo Alto, Ca.; Tri-State Environmental Council: East Liverpool, Ohio; Tooele County Clean Air Coalition: Tooele, Utah; U.S. Public Interest Research Group: NYC, NY; Utah Sierra Club: Salt Lake City, Utah; Valley Citizens for a Safe Environment: Sunderland, Massachusetts; Vietnam Agent Orange Victims—The Living Dead: High Ridge, Missouri; Vietnam Veterans of America Foundation: Washington, DC; Veterans for World Peace: Gainsville, Florida; Vietnam Veterans of America: Little Rock, Arkansas; Women Concerned/Utahns United: Salt Lake City, Utah; Women's International League for Peace and Freedom: Portland, Oregon; Western Organization of Resource Councils, Butte, Montana; Working Group on Community Right to Know, Washington, D.C.

CHEMICAL DEMILITARIZATION AMENDMENT

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, why do we need this amendment?

I am proposing that the Department of Defense set up a pilot program to review alternative technologies for the destruction of chemical munitions. Currently, the Army has a review underway that only examines the use of these technologies for bulk sites. The Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot and the Pueblo Chemical Depot are nonbulk sites that house munitions, so we need to examine the feasibility of using alternative technologies for nonbulk sites as well.

Question: What are the unique provisions of this amendment?

First, this amendment would direct the Department of Defense to appoint someone who hasn't been in direct, or immediate control of the chemical weapon stockpile demilitarization program. I strongly believe that this program needs new blood, an individual who is objective and not wedded to the incineration process.

Second, this amendment prohibits the expenditures of funds for the construction of incinerators at both the Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot in Kentucky and at the Pueblo Chemical Depot in Colorado for 1 year.

Question: How do you know that there will not be local opposition to pilot testing an alternative technology?

I am hopeful that the pilot program will include a decisionmaking process that will include State and local governments, local community groups and that all parties in this process will reach a consensus. With a consensus building process, I believe that there will be less local opposition to the pilot testing of an alternative technology, and in future years destruction of obsolete chemical weapons will be allowed to proceed.

Question: Where will the pilot project take place?

Site selection will be decided contingent on the technical merits of the technology chosen for evaluation and the best place for that technology to be tested.

Question: What is the difference, if any, between your amendment and what is in the appropriations bill?

There are several differences. First, based on Department of Defense and private sector estimates, I am asking for $60 million for a 3-year period to conduct this pilot project. The appropriation's language requests $40 million for the same study with no timeframe for the completion of the study. I believe it is critical to have a timeframe or the project may drag on. Furthermore, the appropriation language requires that at least two technologies can be reviewed, I believe this is micromanagement on the legislative level and that those decisions should be left to the experts doing the job.

Question: Are we putting the communities in more danger by not going ahead with incineration? What about chemical munition leaks?

Based on performance history of the baseline incineration process with its legal challenges and permits difficulties, the baseline incineration disposal approach will extend well beyond the existing 2004 deadline and also beyond the 2007 anticipated chemical weapons convention deadline. On the other hand, I believe that alternative approaches may be easier to get permits and with fewer legal challenges. This amendment could expedite the common objective of safe, cost-effective expeditious disposal.

I can understand the concern about aging munitions and the possibility of leaks, but according to the Department of Defense's interim status assessment for the chemical demilitarization program, the handling of the munitions to conduct a more thorough survey is also a source of risk that need not be incurred given the apparent slow rate of deterioration.

Defense, in their report, also states: The rate of deterioration is not markedly increasing; there is no evidence of immediate danger from stockpile storage; the rocket stockpile could continue to be safely stored.

The most recent evaluation performed by the Army in 1994 indicated that with even the most conservative assumptions, the probability of a rocket auto-ignition is less than one in a million before 2013.

Mr. President, this legislation does not stop the Army from going forward with the baseline incineration program at sites other than Kentucky and Colorado. This legislation does not change the dates required by Congress for the destruction of our chemical weapons by 2004. But let me point out to my colleagues that this date of 2004 has been changed three times by Congress. When the chemical treaty goes into effect, and I hope the Army is listening to this, the treaty calls for 10½ years for the destruction of chemical weapons, from the date the treaty is ratified. So, let's say, Mr. President, that the treaty is ratified by 65 countries in January 1997. We would have 10½ years from 1997 to destroy our chemical weapons—but if we cannot do it in that timeframe then the treaty allows a country to ask for 5 additional years. That would place the destruction date in the year 2013.

Mr. THURMOND. I have grave concerns about the impact of his amendment on the current program, which uses baseline incineration technology, to destroy the chemical stockpile. This amendment would bring the program to a halt.

The amendment would direct the initiation of a pilot program on an unspecified alternate technology. As I understand it, pilot program testing is only initiated after basic technical efficacy has been demonstrated at either the laboratory or bench scale. There is no independently verified evidence today to support legislation to direct the initiation of a pilot program.

Mr. President, this legislation is fraught with requirements that will detrimentally impact the current destruction program.

The administration is pushing the Senate to ratify the Chemical Weapons Convention. If this amendment were to pass, we would be unable to meet the requirements in the CWC to begin destruction of the stockpile within 2 years of entry into force of the treaty. We would also not be able to complete destruction of the stockpile within the 10-year timeframe.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I understand, after the modifications, that both sides have agreed to this amendment. I am grateful.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I wish to advise the Senate, in view of the modifications submitted by the Senator from Kentucky, that this amendment is acceptable on this side.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4419) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. I thank my friends.

AMENDMENT NO. 4415

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, on the previous Conrad amendment on the B-52's, we need to move to reconsider that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There was no motion to reconsider that amendment.

Mr. CONRAD. That is correct. Would it be appropriate to reconsider the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes, it would.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, could the Chair advise the Senate once again as to the request by the Senator from North Dakota and what the response was?

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, the previous Conrad amendment on B-52's that had been agreed to on both sides was not reconsidered and laid on the table. I was just going through that formality now.

I have made the motion to reconsider. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, this bill is moving along very speedily, and the managers anticipate that following the presentation by the distinguished majority leader and the Democratic leader of the unanimous-consent request that this bill will conclude today.

Seeing no Senator seeking recognition, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Utah be recognized to make a statement not to exceed 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE ELECTION IN RUSSIA

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I thank the managers of the bill.

Normally, I would not intrude upon the legislative session for a matter that belongs in morning business. But this morning's newspaper carries a story that has some urgency connected with it, and I think some connection with the bill we are discussing.

We are talking about America's defenses, and in the course of the debate, we talked about the situation in Russia and the election in Russia.

In this morning's Washington Post there is a headline "New Yeltsin Aide Rails at Foreign Religions."

Then the subheadline, which is what has caused me to come to the floor in protest, says "Lebed Calls Mormonism 'Mold and Scum.'"

In the story coming from Moscow, the date line of June 27,

> Alexander Lebed, the tough-talking retired general who has become President Boris Yeltsin's unofficial running mate, railed against Western cultural influences in Russia today and vowed to rid the country of foreign religious and cults—including Mormonism, which he called "mold and scum."
>
> Speaking to an assembly of patriotic organizations, he declared that Russia has three "established, traditional religions"—Orthodox Christianity, Islam and Buddhism—pointedly excluding the faith of the country's 650,000 Jews, who have endured fierce antisemitism here for centuries.
>
> He then lumped Mormons with Aum Supreme Truth—the Japanese cult implicated in last year's poison gas attack on the Tokyo subway system—saying they pose a "direct threat to Russia's security" because they are bent on "perverting, corrupting and ultimately breaking up out state."

Mr. President, there are several reactions to this outburst on the part of Mr. Lebed, all of them disturbing.

First, we should note that he is reciting and repeating the general political posture taken by the Communist candidate in the race for the Presidency. This man, who is now viewed as the strongest man behind President Yeltsin and possibly President Yeltsin's replacement in that part of the Russian politics, has reached out to take the most virulent antireligious positions of their Communist opponent, Mr. Zyuganov, and has adopted them into his political platform.

One would assume, therefore, that we might dismiss this phrase as simply a political ploy on Mr. Lebed's part in an effort to steal a political position from the opponents. It is far more serious than that. Mr. Lebed has the reputation of being the kind of man who does in fact speak at the drop of a hat and sometimes without thinking but who, once having made a statement of this kind, would use his official position to follow it up with a serious religious repression of any who do not fall into the three religions he has declared to be acceptable—Orthodox Christianity, Islam, and Buddhism. I would think that Catholics, Protestants, Western Christians of any kind, and certainly Jews, would be chilled by this kind of statement coming from the man who is so close to President Yeltsin.

It is very interesting to me as a side comment that he has chosen to speak of the Buddhists as one of the three acceptable religions in Russia when, in fact, there is not a significant presence of Buddhism in Russia. If you are going to choose religions on the basis of their representation there, there are far more Jews in Russia than there are Buddhists, and yet he has chosen to include the Buddhists and very pointedly exclude the Jews. This is an outrageous statement from a nation that has been the source of some of the most virulent anti-Semitism the world has ever seen, and it clearly needs to be challenged.

The other point that needs to be made here with respect to what is being said in this Presidential campaign in Russia has to do not with religion but with democracy. We are being told continually that the Russians have finally crossed over the hump, and they have gone from the totalitarianism of the Communist years now into the open sunshine of free debate and free dissension. We know from history that the first casualty of tolerance for a regime moving in the direction of totalitarianism is always religious tolerance, and then immediately following after that comes an attempt to destroy any political dissension.

We are seeing a signal here from the man closest to President Yeltsin that the Yeltsin regime, if they listen to this man, will move in the direction of destroying dissent and differing opinions throughout all of Russian society. They will start with religion, but surely they will then move to repress all other dissenting opinions and we will see Russia move back into the shadows of totalitarianism under which the Russian people have, unfortunately, lived for centuries, if not millennia. Indeed, if you go past the Communist period into the years of the czarist rule, we found that the czars and the then State church worked hand in hand to see that there was no dissension of any kind in either religious or political debate in czarist Russia. These are the specters that are being raised by this kind of statement from this man in a Presidential election.

Mr. President, I am working on the language of a letter that will be sent to Secretary Christopher, a letter that will be sent to Brian Atwood, the Director of AID, and that probably will be sent also to Boris Yeltsin himself. Senator HATCH is working with me. We will coordinate the language of this letter. Senator REID has joined and indicated his outrage at these statements, as have Senators LIEBERMAN and SPECTER.

The Presiding Officer will recognize that three of us in this group are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, the Mormons to which Mr. Lebed pointedly refers, and the other two are Jews: Mr. LIEBERMAN, who practices an orthodox fashion of his religion as faithfully as anyone ever has, and Mr. SPECTER, whose father was born in Russia and forced out of Russia because of the anti-Semitism in that country. And Senator SPECTER continues to practice his Jewish religion.

Senator SPECTER and I have been to Russia together, and we have visited with high officials in the Russian Government and Russian regime. At the time, we were both welcomed, and we both felt we were contributing to a greater degree of understanding of the two nations.

Now, with this kind of statement, I would realize that if I went back to Russia, I would be labeled "mold and scum" because of my religious position, and Senator SPECTER would have every reason to raise the question of what would happen to him in a modern Russia if this kind of thing is allowed to go unchallenged.

One final comment. For many, many years, the Mormons were excluded from Russia and had no contact there. It was during the time when Mikhail Gorbachev was the head of the Soviet Union that the Government reached out and recognized Mormonism as a religion and invited Mormons to come to Russia. From that time until this, the Mormons have been in Russia and have had a very welcomed response on the part of the Russian people. There are now over 5,000 native Russians who have joined with the Mormon Church in Russia who have reason to feel very, very much threatened by this kind of formal statement.

So, Mr. President, as I said, Senators HATCH, LIEBERMAN, REID, and SPECTER will be joining with me in putting forth an official protest in this matter, but I wanted to bring it to the attention of the Senate in this Chamber this afternoon.

Mr. NUNN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH). The time of the Senator has expired. The Senator from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. NUNN. I am pleased by the statement of the Senator from Utah today because I found the comments that I read in the paper attributed to Mr. Lebed both disturbing and very dangerous. I'm hoping that President Yeltsin and others will denounce this kind of rhetoric, which, no matter what its purpose, if it was simply posturing for political purposes leading up to the election, is inexcusable language. It can set up very dangerous kinds of activities in Russia against Mormons, against Jews, and against others.

I think it is very timely for the Senator to make this announcement. I identify with his statement, and I hope there will be corrective action taken by the Russian officials in terms of making it clear that this kind of rhetoric is unacceptable.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I thank the Senator.

Mr. CONRAD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Senator from Utah [Mr. BENNETT] as well for his statement. I read the statement that was attributed to General Lebed this morning in the paper, and I must say I was surprised by it. It is an obnoxious statement. It should not be allowed to stand without a reaction from those of us in this country who feel strongly about that kind of statement from wherever it emanates. I salute the Senator from Utah for his strong statement on the floor today.

Mr. President, when I was in high school, I played on a Mormon softball team. I do not know how they let somebody raised in the Presbyterian Church, later a Unitarian, play on the Mormon team, but I had a great association with Mormons. We do not have many in North Dakota, but we had a close association built up through that activity. We had a pretty good softball team as well. They were some of the finest people with whom I have ever been associated.

I think the statement by General Lebed is one that requires condemnation, and I am pleased to join my voice to those that have already been raised in objection to the really outrageous language that was used at least in the statement attributed to General Lebed. If those are not his words, he ought to quickly correct the record. If those are his words, he ought to apologize.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Georgia and the Senator from North Dakota for their expressions of support. I am very grateful for that, as I am sure are all other individuals who have been outraged by the statements attributed to General Lebed.

I might say to the Senator from North Dakota, I am sure he hit the ball pretty well, which is why they had him on the team, in addition to his good personality and friendship. These teams are open to everybody, but they are open more to people who can play well and not people like myself who get in the way.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4420

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, at this time I would like to send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment is laid aside. The clerk will report.

The assistant clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD] proposes an amendment numbered 4420.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of Subtitle C of Title II, insert the following:

SEC. . AIR FORCE NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE PLAN.

(a) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Air Force proposal for a Minuteman based national missile defense system is an important national missile defense option and is worthy of serious consideration; and

(2) the Secretary of Defense should give the Air Force national missile defense proposal full consideration.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 120 days after the enactment of this act, the Secretary of Defense shall provide the Congressional Defense Committees a report on the following matters in relation to the Air Force National Missile Defense Proposal:

(1) The cost and operational effectiveness of a system that could be developed pursuant to the Air Forces' plan.

(2) The Arms Control implications of such system.

(3) Growth potential to meet future threats.

(4) The Secretary's recommendation for improvements to the Air Force's plan.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, this is the amendment we discussed earlier that says the Air Force plan for national missile defense is an important option and is worthy of serious consideration, and that the Secretary of Defense should give the Air Force national missile defense proposal full consideration.

It further calls on the Secretary of Defense to produce a report within 120 days on the following matters in relation to the Air Force national missile defense proposal:

First, the cost and operational effectiveness of a system that could be developed pursuant to the Air Force plan;

Second, the arms control implications of such a system;

Third, the growth potential to meet future threats;

And finally, fourth, the Secretary's recommendation for improvements to the Air Force's plan.

I do not think too much more needs to be said. I outlined at some length earlier what I think are the great strengths of the Air Force plan: First, it is treaty compliant; second, it is affordable; third, it uses existing technology.

I ask for support from my colleagues for this amendment and ask for its consideration at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this amendment has been worked on carefully by both sides of the aisle. It calls attention of the Congress and the American people to the Air Force proposal for a Minuteman-based national defense system. It states this is an important national missile defense option worthy of serious consideration. I certainly concur in that. Then it calls for a report.

I urged adoption of the amendment. I think the Senator should be commended for bringing this to our attention and bringing it to the attention of the American people. I think this is an option that deserves serious consideration.

I urge the amendment be adopted.

Mr. MCCAIN. I echo the views of the Senator from Georgia; however, we do have an objection from our cloakroom. So I ask unanimous consent to set the Conrad amendment aside so we can get whatever that objection is worked out. I appreciate the patience of my friend from North Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Hearing none, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator withhold that?

Mr. CONRAD. I will be pleased to withhold.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I, at this time, engage in a colloquy with Senators MCCAIN and NUNN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

F-16'S AND HELICOPTERS

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, very briefly, I was considering offering an amendment which would have attempted to remove some of the funds in this authorization bill for two F-16's which were not requested by the Air Force either in the original budget request or in the supplemental list requested by the Committee, what we sometimes call, wish list of the Air Force. These are two F-16's which appear in none of the Air Force requests to this body, either the formal budget or the later so-called wish list.

It was also my intent to try to remove the approximately $120 million for conversion kits for the OH-58 helicopters, the so-called AHIP's, which also was not requested by the Army either in its original budget request or in the supplemental wish list which it submitted at our request.

I have been supported in this effort by Senator NUNN and Senator MCCAIN. What I have decided, and they concur, is that I not make the effort to offer this amendment on the authorization bill but will make any such effort during the appropriations process. I think they are supportive of this approach.

I yield to them for any comments they might wish to make.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I support the Senator on this. I believe we voted on this in committee. It was a very close vote, as I recall. There is a divided committee on this one. Both in the case of the Air Force, where the number of F-16's exceeds the Air Force request, not only their request but their informal guidance, and in the case of the helicopters, where this exceeds the Army request, I think there is serious doubt that this is the highest priority for our funding. This probably comes under the category "nice to have but not essential."

I join the Senator in this. I am sure I will be supporting his amendment on the appropriations bill when it comes up.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I would like to express my appreciation to the Senator from Michigan for significant progress in this effort in trying to do away with this practice, which has been going on so long, of earmarking for the Guard and Reserve. I think we are making progress in that direction. I found it one of the more egregious practices that we have engaged in. I thank him for his efforts in that area.

I also agree with him, when we start adding on equipment, even though I might point out all F-16 training takes place in the State of Arizona, without justification or request from the Department of Defense, I think we skew the process. I know there were requests from the Department of Defense for procurement of things that we decided not to do, not to put into the authorization bill. So I do not understand, unless we can make a compelling argument, which we can from time to time, that this is not needed or that this equipment is needed, that it is not appropriate. I must say I saw no argument made for these add-ons of the F-16's and helicopters. I agree with Senator LEVIN.

Could I just say, overall, also, thanks to the efforts of Senator LEVIN and Senator NUNN and Senator THURMOND and Senator WARNER and others, I think we are making progress in reducing this kind of thing. I hope we can continue to make the effort both in the authorization and the appropriations process. Frankly, what the Senator from Michigan has done by putting some sunshine on the issue is the best way we are going to cure it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. LEVIN. Let me close by thanking my good friend from Arizona and the Senator from Georgia. Both have been active in trying to avoid these kind of add-ons. If I could single out in this body, particularly the Senator from Arizona, he has taken extraordinarily courageous positions in a whole host of areas, some of which even affect his own State, where the Congress has been adding on items which just simply cannot be justified in terms of the requirements of the military. I commend both of them for their support.

I yield the floor.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4422 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4388

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, there is pending an amendment by the Senator from Wisconsin, Mr. FEINGOLD, amendment No. 4422. We have reached an agreement.

I send an amendment to the desk as a substitute for the one presently there.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Virginia [Mr. WARNER] proposes an amendment numbered 4422 to amendment No. 4388.

The amendment is as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted, insert the following:

SEC. 223. COST-BENEFIT ANALYSIS OF F/A-18E/F AIRCRAFT PROGRAM.

(a) REPORT ON PROGRAM.—Not later than March 30, 1997, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the F/A-18E/F aircraft program.

(b) CONTENT OF REPORT.—The report shall contain the following:

(1) A review of the F/A-18E/F aircraft program.

(2) An analysis and estimate of the production costs of the program for the total number of aircraft realistically expected to be procured at each of three annual production rates as follows:

(A) 18 aircraft.

(B) 24 aircraft.

(C) 36 aircraft.

(3) A comparison of the costs and benefits of the program with the costs and benefits of the F/A-18C/D aircraft program taking into account the operational combat effectiveness of the aircraft.

(c) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS PENDING TRANSMITTAL OF REPORT.—No more than 90% of the funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act may be obligated or expended for the procurement of F/A-18E/F aircraft before the date that is 30 days after the date on which the congressional defense committees receive the report required under subsection(a).

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the amendment sent to the desk is in the nature of a substitute. It has been accepted on both sides. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the substitute amendment, amendment No. 4422.

The amendment (No. 4422) was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the first-degree amendment, No. 4388, as now amended.

Mr. WARNER. I urge adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4388), as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE 220TH ANNIVERSARY OF OUR NATION'S BIRTHDAY

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, in earlier days of my Senate career, I recall that prior to the Independence Day break, Senators would comment on that great and forthcoming historic day. Seeing no Senator who seeks recognition at this time, I shall take advantage of the opportunity to do a little reminiscing in contemplation of the forthcoming 220th anniversary of our own Nation's birthday.

In a few days, this fair city will throw its annual birthday party. Truly, the Independence Day celebration here in the Nation's Capital, is like nowhere else in the country. It is larger, louder, and features a fireworks display to amaze and delight even the most jaded of watchers.

And I think we all have become jaded. We have gotten away from the old-fashioned patriotism that marked our July 4 holidays of yesteryear. In the national capital, Independence Day really should be a show stopper—a sight and sound extravaganza fit for TV viewing.

While not many things are fit for TV viewing—I should not say it that way—I should say TV viewing is not fit anymore, except on certain occasions, but this is an event that is, indeed, fit for TV viewing.

But, in all honesty, I must admit that it is not my cup of tea. No, I prefer to recall a simpler time and smaller celebrations back in the hills and hollows, and the rural towns of my native West Virginia.

The high school band would don its very best regalia, shine up its buttons and march down the dusty small streets lined with moms and dads, children perched atop shoulders so that they could see and point fingers as the parade went by. The baton twirlers would twirl their batons and step high.

Young boys and girls would run along-side just to be part of the spectacle. Meanwhile, the ice cream cones would drip, drip in the sultry heat, seemingly keeping time with the marchers as they proudly passed by.

Somewhere nearby, perhaps inside a church, cakes, pies, fried chicken, potato salad, cole slaw, baked beans and hot barbecue, and a cold Coca-Cola awaited all who felt inclined to take part in the holiday feast.

And those were the days, Mr. President, when a Coca-Cola really tasted—really tasted—unique, and had an unforgettable flavor. Coca-Cola's today do not taste like they did, like a 5-cent bottle of Coca-Cola did back in the days of my boyhood.

And in the evening, a fireworks display, lasting all of 15 minutes, perhaps 20, and boasting at least three different colors in the night sky would captivate all who could stand in a nearby field or climb the lower branches of a not-too-distant tree.

There was pride and happiness on every face, then respectful silence when the stars and stripes was hoisted high and we all thanked God that we were free.

The stars and stripes fluttering in the breeze. There is just nothing like it. I contemplate those ancient Fourths of July.

I am confident that in the many small towns in my home State and in many other States, the Fourth of July celebration is still much like those that I remember—a joyful, yet thoughtful reflection on our blessed freedoms.

And in the midst of all the small-town hoopla, in these communities, the traditional customs and values which have been the fabric of American society over these 220 years are still preserved and revered.

In this vast, vast Nation which has come to be so dissimilar from one coast to another, and with an economy so diverse that interests seem always to be at war for some kind of advantage, nothing is needed more than are reminders of our common bonds and traditions.

This Nation is an ongoing experiment in making one out of many—"e pluribus unum," as our coins proclaim. Our intricate constitutional system of government tries to combine diverse ethnic and racial backgrounds, competing economic interests, and dissimilar geographic areas into some semblance of manageable commonality, while also attempting to guarantee individual freedoms without undermining the rule of law. Meanwhile, our all too distracted citizens are preoccupied with raising a family, earning a living, and coping daily with the increasing complexity of ordinary life. At times we seem less like a cohesive Nation and more like a collection of continually warring tribes.

Often, especially in this city, there is so much political sniping, so much game-playing, so much negativity and criticism that it seems as if the focus is always on what is wrong with America or what is faulty about our system.

So we all need to stop and contemplate and think and remember on that day, the Fourth of July, and ponder the miracle of Philadelphia: the republic—not the democracy—the Republic of the United States.

Anymore it is only on such special days that we cease the constant barrage of criticism and together appreciate the sweet air of our freedom. Would any of us really choose to live elsewhere? I think not.

On this coming Independence Day, I hope we pause and think about the things that unite us as a people, rather than about the things that seem to divide us. Perhaps also on that day we can spend some time with children and grandchildren, turn off—turn off—the TV sets, turn them off, and hopefully leave them off and actually talk with one another. Maybe some can even find time to go stand on the sidewalk, view that small, local parade, the kind they have in Kentucky and West Virginia, and, just for a moment, be completely swept away by the sight of our glorious flag as it goes by.

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

Blue and crimson and white it shines,
Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
But more than the flag is passing by:

Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Weary marches, sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips:

Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law,
Stately honor and reverend awe;
Sign of a nation great and strong
To ward her people from foreign wrong:
Pride and glory and honor,-all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums;
And loyal hearts are beating high:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

Mr. President, I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The Senate continued with consideration of the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4420

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I am happy to say the objection to the Conrad amendment has been removed. I had spoken with Senator CONRAD. I do not believe he seeks to return to the floor on this issue. If he does, we will give him ample time to speak.

I ask unanimous consent we return to the Conrad amendment, and I ask that the amendment be agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4420) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote and I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I expect us to be able to shortly finish up on this bill. There are still discussions among the leaders on a unanimous consent agreement which we hope we will have in a relatively short period of time. Senator NUNN will be returning, and we will be doing some cleared amendments to the bill. We hope that will happen shortly.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask that I be permitted to speak 2 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ACCOLADES TO SENATOR BYRD

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I note the presence on the floor of Senator BYRD. I wanted to say to him yesterday—I was not on the floor, but I happened to listen to the comments the Senator made with reference to alcoholism and the problem it presents in the United States, and more particularly his concern about the Seagram & Sons company violating or breaching the pact that had been agreed upon years ago that hard liquor would not be advertised either on radio or television.

I wanted to come down then and congratulate the Senator on his remarks and indicate that it made me very proud to hear a Senator come to the floor and speak as the Senator did about that issue. That does not mean I have to agree with every bit of the substance of the Senator's comments, but I do want to say that I thought it was very courageous on your part, Senator, to come to the floor and share those views with Americans, and obviously with the company that has proposed to change this many-year-old agreement, voluntary as is. They are not violating any law, and you made that clear. They are not in breach of any rules or regulations of the U.S. Government.

I thought it was very timely that you addressed that issue. I want to once again congratulate you on it and indicate that I think those kind of remarks are absolutely necessary and they must be made by people in positions such as ours. Again, I congratulate you on the remarks.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the very distinguished Senator, my friend from the State of New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAIG). Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO ELBERT PARR TUTTLE, SR.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I rise today in tribute to Judge Elbert P. Tuttle, Sr., who died in Atlanta this week at the age of 98. He was an extraordinary man who served his Nation in many important capacities, but whose service was best characterized by two words: wisdom and courage.

Judge Tuttle was born on July 17, 1897, in Pasadena, CA. He lived in California and Washington, DC, before he and his family moved to Hawaii in 1906. He graduated from Punahou Academy in 1914, and he then attended college at Cornell University. Judge Tuttle received his bachelor of arts degree in 1918. Following service in World War I as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Air Corps, he returned to Cornell and received his law degree in 1923.

In 1923, Judge Tuttle moved to Atlanta and established, along with his brother-in-law, William Sutherland, a tax practice. With but one notable exception, he continued this law practice for the next 30 years.

The exception, however, is very notable. Judge Tuttle resumed his active duty military career during World War II. He served as commander of the 304th Field Artillery, 77th Infantry Division and saw action in Guam, Okinawa, Leyte, and Ryukyu. He was decorated for bravery under fire, and was awarded several medals for his actions, including the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Bronze Star. After the end of World War II, Judge Tuttle rose to the rank of brigadier general in the U.S. Army Reserve before his retirement. In recognition for his long service to our Nation, President Carter awarded Judge Tuttle with a Medal of Freedom in 1981.

During his 30 years of private practice, I believe there are two events which demonstrate Judge Tuttle's character and his commitment to preserving the rights of all Americans.

The first event occurred in 1931. One night Judge Tuttle, than a major in the Georgia National Guard, received a call from the Georgia adjutant general about a "near riot" in Elbert County, GA. A mob had formed intent on lynching two black men in custody for allegedly raping a white woman. Through the use of tear gas, the threat of machine guns, and the deployment of Georgia National Guardsmen with bayonets drawn, Major Tuttle was able to escort safely the two prisoners away from the scene and defuse the situation—all without serious injury to anyone involved.

Judge Tuttle later represented one of the prisoners on appeal in a case before the Supreme Court. He successfully argued that the defendants were denied due process since they had been convicted by a jury unfairly influenced by a mob. Although the defendants later lost on retrial, Judge Tuttle's efforts established an important foundation for the rights of blacks in our courts.

The second action concerned a case involving a marine accused of counterfeiting. Judge Tuttle filed an appeal that resulted in the Supreme Court ruling that an indigent accused of a Federal felony is entitled to legal representation. More than a quarter century later, Supreme Court rulings affirmed these same rights to defendants in State courts.

Mr. President, by this time, Judge Tuttle's career was a storied one. He had helped found a law firm, which is now one of the most prestigious in the country. His actions in the courtroom reaffirmed precious constitutional notions of due process and equal protection. He was a devoted husband, father and community leader. Even to the dismay of some of my Democratic forefathers, he found time to breathe new life into the two party system in Georgia.

However, these accomplishments were just the beginning of his career. In 1953, Judge Tuttle was selected by President Eisenhower as the general counsel for the Department of the Treasury. In 1954, President Eisenhower appointed Elbert Tuttle to the Fifth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals. The "historic Fifth" then had jurisdiction over the Federal courts in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, and the Panama Canal Zone. Judge Tuttle became chief justice of this court in 1961, a position he held until 1967 when at age 70 he was required to take senior status. Judge Tuttle continued his active work for the court almost another 30 years.

It was on this bench that Judge Tuttle left his mark throughout the modern South. During his tenure, the court was itself at the forefront of the civil rights movement. Under his leadership as chief justice, Judge Tuttle's decisions and opinions had a significant impact on ending racial discrimination in voting, jury selection, equal access to public facilities and education. He issued decisions that resulted in the desegregation of Southern universities and the improvement of education at all levels in the South. The "Tuttle court" was in many ways a beacon to the various State and Federal courts involved in decisions effecting civil and individual rights.

In a commencement address at Emory University, Judge Tuttle noted:

> * * * Like love, talent is only useful in its expenditure, and it is never exhausted. Certain it is that man must eat; so set what you must on your service. But never confuse the performance, which is great, with the compensation, be it money, power, or fame, which is trivial.
>
> The job is there, you will see it, and your strength is such, as you graduate from Emory, that you need not consider what the task will cost you. It is not enough that you do your duty. The richness of life lies in the performance which is above and beyond the call of duty.

Mr. President, I, and the many others whose lives he touched, know that Judge Tuttle answered and exceeded the frequent calls of duty. He led a rich life, and his impact on our lives will continue through the wisdom of his judicial decisions and opinions, as well as through the lives of his children, Elbert and Jane, his nine grandchildren, and his nine great grandchildren.

His life, as the Atlanta Constitution once noted, was "a life devoted to justice."

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The Senate continued with consideration of the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4423

(Purpose: To increase by $17,000,000 the amount authorized to be appropriated for Defense-wide activities for research, development, test, and evaluation in order to provide an additional $17,000,000 for Holloman Rocket Sled Test Track Upgrade program under the Central Test and Evaluation Investment Program)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator DOMENICI, I offer an amendment that authorizes an additional $17 million in the Central Test and Evaluation Investment Program for the Holloman Sled Track Upgrade Program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

> The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. DOMENICI, proposes an amendment numbered 4423.

The amendment is as follows:

> In section 201(4), strike out "$9,662,542,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$9,679,542,000".

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I rise today to offer an amendment to authorize $17.5 million for the construction of Holloman high speed test track upgrade. The Holloman high-speed test track at HAFB is the premier high-speed ground-test facility in the world. Rocket motors propel sleds down a 10-mile track at velocities of up to March 6. High-speed ground testing is used for a wide variety of development and qualifying testing. It is both highly cost effective in supporting flight testing and is capable of accomplishing tests, such as lethality impact test, that cannot be performed by other means.

The HAFB test track has been designated as the ground test facility for theater missile defense [TMD] testing. Realistic testing for this mission requires velocities in the Mach 9 range.

Development of top priority TMD interceptors without validation of their lethality results in a major technical risk that the United States would field defensive systems which are ineffective against chemical, biological, and radiological weapons. To reach the required impact velocities, new methodologies have had to be conceived which would remove the barrier to higher velocities, and provide more flight-like environment.

Limited maximum speed, excessive vibrations, and unreliability at very high speeds are the current limitations of the HAFB high-speed test track. Currently, a slipper fits over the rail and effectively holds the sled onto the rail as it is pushed by the rocket motors. The slipper/rail interaction is a major source of the limitations.

A feasibility study which was concluded by the Air Force and completed in 1993, concluded that magnetically levitated hypersonic vehicles were feasible and relatively economical. Speeds of Mach 9 are achievable using current rocket motors, and because the levitated sled does not touch the guideway, the induced vibration and generated heat is eliminated, providing a near flight environment.

Although this project is primarily committed to lethality testing, the system, once installed, lends itself to a multitude of other technology developments. The upgraded system will have an unsurpassed capability to support a wide variety of other military and civilian programs, such as: Electromagnetic launch of highly reusable space vehicles; testing of advanced propulsion systems; rocket motors; and development testing of transatmospheric propulsion motors.

Currently, SCRAMJETS cannot be suitably tested because of windtunnel limitations, which preclude the study of the combustion process. The upgrade track should allow engineers and scientists to establish an environment to study advanced propulsion systems which are being considered for high altitude and space vehicles.

The Federal Railroad Administration has signed a MOU regarding study of the use of the upgrade track hardware and facilities. Such use might include the following types of tests for commercial magnetically levitated items: Magnetic levitation and propulsion; magnetic design, including cryogenics and helium management; vehicle control and suspension systems; and passenger ride quality.

Mr. President, the upgrade of the Holloman high speed test track will prove to be vital asset within the DOD test community. I understand that my colleagues on both sides of the aisle have agreed to accept the amendment. I appreciate their support, I ask for adoption of the amendment, and I yield the floor.

Mr. McCAIN. I believe this amendment has been cleared by the other side.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge the adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4423) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4424

(Purpose: To authorize a land conveyance at Pine Bluff Arsenal, Arkansas)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator BUMPERS and Senator PRYOR, I offer an amendment authorizing the Secretary of the Army to convey 1,500 acres at Pine Bluff Arsenal to the economic development alliance of Jefferson County, AR. I believe this has been cleared on both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN] for Mr. BUMPERS, for himself, and Mr. PRYOR proposes an amendment numbered 4424.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title XXVIII, add the following:

SEC. 2828. LAND CONVEYANCE, PINE BLUFF ARSENAL, ARKANSAS.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Army may convey, without consideration, to the Economic Development Alliance of Jefferson County, Arkansas (in this section referred to as the "Alliance"), all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to a parcel of real property, together with any improvements thereon, consisting of approximately 1,500 acres and comprising a portion of the Pine Bluff Arsenal, Arkansas.

(b) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO CONVEYANCE.—The Secretary may not carry out the conveyance of property authorized under subsection (a) until—

(1) the completion by the Secretary of any environmental restoration and remediation that is required with the respect to the property under applicable law;

(2) the Secretary secures all permits required under applicable law regarding the conduct of the proposed chemical demilitarization mission at the arsenal; and

(3) the Secretary of Defense submits to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives a certification that the conveyance will not adversely affect the ability of the Department of Defense to conduct that chemical demilitarization mission.

(c) CONDITIONS OF CONVEYANCE.—The conveyance authorized under subsection (a) shall be subject to the following conditions:

(1) That the Alliance agree not to carry out any activities on the property to be conveyed that interfere with the construction, operation,and decommissioning of the chemical demilitarization facility to be constructed at Pine Bluff Arsenal. If the Alliance fails to comply with its agreement in (1) the property conveyed under this section all rights, title and interest in and to the property shall revert to the United States and the United States shall have immediate right of entry thereon.

(2) That the property be used during the 25-year period beginning on the date of the conveyance only as the site of the facility known as the "Bioplex", and for activities related thereto.

(d) COST OF CONVEYANCE.—The Alliance shall be responsible for any costs of the Army associated with the conveyance of property under this section, including administrative costs, the costs of an environmental baseline survey with respect to the property, and the cost of any protection services required by the Secretary in order to secure operations of the chemical demilitarization facility from activities on the property after the conveyance.

(e) REVERSIONARY INTERESTS—If the Secretary determines at any time during the 25-year period referred to in subsection (c)(2) that the property conveyed under this section is not being used in accordance with that subsection, all right, title, and interest in and to the property shall revert to the United States and the United States shall have immediate right of entry thereon.

(f) SALE OF PROPERTY BY ALLIANCE.—If at any time during the 25-year period referred to in subsection (c)(2) the Alliance sells all or a portion of the property conveyed under this section, the Alliance shall pay the United States an amount equal to the lesser of—

(1) the amount of the sale of the property sold; or

(2) the fair market value of the property sold at the time of the sale, excluding the value of any improvements to the property sold that have been made by the Alliance.

(g) DESCRIPTION OR PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the property conveyed under this section shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary. The cost of the survey shall borne by the Alliance.

(h) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with conveyance under this section as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared. I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4424) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4425

(Purpose: To provide funds for research and development regarding a surgical strike vehicle for defeating hardened and deeply buried targets)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator KYL and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. KYL, proposes an amendment numbered 4425.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II, add the following:

SEC. 223. SURGICAL STRIKE VEHICLE FOR USE AGAINST HARDENED AND DEEPLY BURIED TARGETS.

Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 201(4) for counterproliferation support program, $3,000,000 shall be made available to the Air Combat Command for research and development into the near-term development of a capability to defeat hardened and deeply mined targets; including tunnels and deeply buried facilities for the production and storage of chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and their delivery systems.

(1) nothing in this section shall be construed as precluding the application of the requirements of the Competition in Contracting Act.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, it is my pleasure to offer an amendment to make $3 million available from the $168.7 million in the Counterproliferation Support Program for the Surgical Strike Vehicle [SSV], which, when deployed, will hold at risk hardened or deeply buried targets of our enemies. As recent press reports indicate, the proliferation of hardened and deeply buried targets for storage and production of chemical, biological, or nuclear weapons and their delivery systems is a serious threat to U.S. national security and that of our allies. The lack of a weapon that can hold these targets at risk has not gone unnoticed by rogue nations interested in proceeding with their weapons of mass destruction programs in relative immunity from likely—that is, nonnuclear—U.S. military responses.

Few nonnuclear weapon concepts offer near-term capabilities against these underground facilities, however one Air Force concept, the Surgical Strike Vehicle, offers an interim solution with unprecedented deep penetration capability at significant standoff range.

SSV integrates existing technologies and subsystems to produce a near-term solution against hardened and deeply buried targets. SSV is a B-52H launched, rocket propelled missile systems utilizing global positioning system-based guidance for prompt, precise, and hypervelocity impact of hardened and buried targets.

SSV builds on the very successful USAF/Phillips Laboratory Missile Technology Demonstration-1 mission, which demonstrated the tightly coupled GPS navigation accuracy and successful penetration of weather granite at the White Sands missile range, New Mexico. In this August 1995 test, a simulated subscale Earth penetrating warhead was precisely delivered on target at extremely high velocity, resulting in a successful penetration of 31 feet of granite. Much higher penetration depths are possible with full-scale penetrators and higher impact velocities, which the current system is capable of delivering.

SSV is particularly suited to the high-value hardened and deeply buried target problem because it offers the following attributes: global coverage from CONUS, promptness—10 minutes from missile launch to impact—significant standoff range—launch over international waters against likely targets—Precision Lethality, >1,800 pounds of penetrating warheads at optimal peneteration velocity delivers a conventional high explosive, incendiary, or other warhead into any known cut-and-cover target and many tunnel targets; low probability of detection prior to impact for likely adversaries; immunity to air defenses or active countermeasures, jamming; and relative affordability.

I am pleased to support the SSV program and hope the Senate will agree that this program is meritorious.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge approval of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4425) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4426

(Purpose: To require the Secretary of the Navy to establish a National Coastal Data Center on each coast of the continental United States)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator PELL and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. MCCAIN], for Mr. PELL, proposes an amendment numbered 4426.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 54, between lines 22 and 23, insert the following:

"(c) NATIONAL COASTAL DATA CENTER.—(1) The Secretary of the Navy shall establish a National Coastal Data Center at each of two educational institutions that are either well-established oceanographic institutes or graduate schools of oceanography. The Secretary shall select for the center one institution located at or near the east coast of the continental United States and one institution located at or near the west coast of the continental United States.

"(2) The purpose of the center is to collect, maintain, and make available for research and educational purposes information on coastal oceanographic phenomena.

"(3) The Secretary shall complete the establishment of the National Coastal Data Center not later than one year after the date of the enactment of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1997.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, my understanding is that this has been cleared.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, the amendment has been cleared. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4426) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4427

(Purpose: To authorize $20,000,000 to be appropriated for the DARPA Optoelectronic Centers)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator DOMENICI and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. DOMENICI, proposes an amendment numbered 4427.

The amendment is as follows:

In section 201(4), strike out "9,662,542,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$9,682,542,000".

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, this amendment authorizes $20 million for the DARPA sponsored Optoelectronics Centers. Optoelectronics is widely recognized as a critical enabling technology for many information-age defense, aerospace, and commercial applications. It is the cornerstone for battlefield sensing [ultraviolet to infrared and rf], for image and signal processing, for high-speed communications, for input-output devices such as displays and cameras, and for optical storage. The development of manufacturable, reliable, cost-effective optoelectronic technology for these applications is essential to national defense as well as to our national competitiveness. This will require the challenging fusion of technological advances in electronic and photonic technologies, and the coordinated effort of our national resources from academia, industry, and the Government.

Over the initial 5 years of their existence, under the effective management of DARPA, the University Optoelectronics Centers have come a long way toward filling their role as a major resource for future U.S. defense needs. As the U.S. industry is steadily decreasing its investment in research, these Centers have become an integral part of the U.S. research and development effort, and are a major source of R&D personnel for the U.S. Government and the optoelectronics industry.

The Centers' value as a resource is derived in large part from the variety of subdisciplines that they accommodate, enabling a synergy that would not be available to an individual researcher or a smaller research group. Through exposure to the defense community and industry, the Centers are also in a position to provide future engineers that can enter the work force seamlessly. The Centers are therefore a primary source of engineering manpower, an important, complimentary avenue for technology exchange.

There are many examples of clear links to product development and ongoing interactions, as a measure of the contributions of the DARPA-funded Centers.

At the Center for Optoelectronics Science and Technology [COST] the emphasis is toward optical communications networks on a scale ranging from local area networks to the global grid. The COST Research Program includes three thrusts-optoelectronic systems [e.g., parallel optical links], laser and modulator technology [e.g., In AIP-InGap quantum well devices], and optical receiver technology [including MESFET and HBT receivers].

At the National Center for integrated Photonic Technology [NCIPT] the focus is on the Optically-Controlled Phased Array Antennas [OCPAA] project in which significant impact could be made on the general application of photonics to microwave systems. The Center added a second focus area in optoelectronic integration with significant effort in the Optochip project, explained below. The Center also has devoted resources toward interconnects, including work on low-skew ribbon cable.

At the Optoelectronic Materials Center [OMC], the major focus has been on diode-based visible sources, optoelectronic tools for intelligent manufacturing, and optoelectronic information networks. The work on visible diode sources is aimed at the realization of compact visible light sources based on GaN light emitting diodes and diode lasers, second harmonic generation of diode lasers, and up-conversion fiber lasers.

The work in optolectronic tools aims primarily at the development of optoelectronic sensors for the silocon manufacturing industry, including applications in interferometric lithography, spectroscopic analysis of trace impurities, and the control of temperature during thermal processing steps. The Center's work in information network concentrates on the establishment of a test bed to evaluate wide bandwidth optical interconnects—based both on fiber and free-space technology.

At the Optoelectronic Technology Center [OTC] the main focus is on computer interconnects [including guided wave and free space technologies], and high-performance networks [including time domain, subcarrier, and wavelength-division multiplexing].

Mr. President, these Centers have been a valuable tool to the Department of Defense and my amendment will allow them to continue this vital work. I understand my colleagues on both sides of the aisle have agreed to accept my amendment. I appreciate their support, ask for adoption of the amendment, and I yield the floor .

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I believe this has been cleared by the other side.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, it has been cleared. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4427) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4428

(Purpose: To prohibit the distribution of information relating to explosive materials for a criminal purpose)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator FEINSTEIN and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mrs. FEINSTEIN, for herself, and Mr. BIDEN, proposes an amendment numbered 4428.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . PROHIBITION ON THE DISTRIBUTION OF INFORMATION RELATING TO EXPLOSIVE MATERIALS FOR A CRIMINAL PURPOSE.

(a) UNLAWFUL CONDUCT.—Section 842 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(l) It shall be unlawful for any person to teach or demonstrate the making of explosive materials, or to distribute by any means information pertaining to, in whole or in part, the manufacture of explosive materials, if the person intends or knows, that such explosive materials or information will be used for, or in furtherance of, an activity that constitutes a Federal criminal offense or a criminal purpose affecting interstate commerce.".

(b) PENALTY.—Section 844(a) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "(a) Any person" and inserting "(a)(1) Any person"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

"(2) Any person who violates subsection (l) of section 842 of this chapter shall be fined under this title, imprisoned not more than 20 years, or both.".

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise to propose an amendment, which is co-sponsored by by Senator BIDEN, to prohibit teaching bomb-making for criminal purposes.

First, I want to express my sincere appreciation to the managers of this bill, Senators THURMOND and NUNN, and to the distinguished chairman and ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, Senators HATCH and BIDEN, for their cooperation in accepting this important amendment.

My amendment prohibits the teaching of how to make a bomb if a person intends or knows that the bomb will be used for a criminal purpose. Additionally, the amendment prohibits the distribution of information on how to make a bomb if a person intends or knows that the information will be used for a criminal purpose.

The penalty for violation of this law would be a maximum of 20 years in prison, a fine of $250,000, or both.

As my colleagues will recall, this amendment was accepted in the Senate as part of the anti-terrorism bill last summer. Regrettably, the House dropped it from their bill, and it was not restored in conference.

I vowed then, on the floor of the Senate, to continue this fight, and attach this amendment to the next appropriate legislative vehicle. Today, that time has come.

Unfortunately, while Congress was failing to act, the need for this law has, tragically, continued to grow dramatically.

Just yesterday, while I was working to add this amendment to this bill, the Los Angeles Times ran a story, "Internet Cited for Surge in Bomb Reports," which demonstrated this need. I ask unanimous consent that this article be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. The Times detailed the recent alarming rise in bombmaking incidents in my State of California: reports of possible explosives to the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department have more than doubled in the last 2 months; responses by the Los Angeles Police Department to reports of suspected bombs shot up more than 35 percent from 1994 to 1995; the LAPD found 41 explosives in 1995, more than double the number 3 years earlier; and the Sheriff's Department discovered 69 bombs last year.

What is especially troubling is that it appears that an increasing number of these incidents involve children, who are getting instructions for making these explosives from the Internet:

Four teenagers were arrested last week for a rash of pipe bombings in Rancho Palos Verdes in May and June which destroyed four mailboxes, a guard shack, and a car.

In Orange County, police say teenagers may have used the Internet to help construct acid-filled bottle bombs in Mission Viejo and Huntington Beach, one of which burned a 5-year-old boy when he found it on a school playground.

Two-months ago, the Orange County Register reported that a North Carolina teenager who posted "The Anarchist Cookbook" on his World Wide Web page was told by a Dutch girl that she had used the recipes to blow up a neighbor's car.

All Senators and Representatives should be concerned about this, for these incidents are occurring across the country. Wherever there is a computer and a phone line, this danger is present.

In February, in upstate New York, three 13-year-old boys were charged with plotting to set off a homemade bomb in their junior high school, using bomb-making plans which they had gotten off of the Internet.

Yesterday's Los Angeles Times article reported that computer-generated guides proved a common link in bombs built recently by teenagers from the streets of Philadelphia and Houston to rural Kansas and upstate New York.

These incidents aren't just limited to dangerous teenage pranks either. One of the 1993 World Trade Center bombers was arrested with manuals in hand.

My amendment gives law enforcement another tool in the war against terrorism—to combat the flow of information that is used to teach terrorist and other criminals how to build bombs.

This information is not something that one would use for a legitimate purpose or information that can be found in a chemistry textbook on the back shelf of a university library.

What my amendment targets is detailed information that is made available to any would-be criminal or terrorist, with the intended purpose of teaching someone how to blow things up in the commission of a serious and violent crime—to kill, injure, or destroy property.

In researching this issue, I came to find that specific and detailed information on how to make a bomb is distributed far too widely. It's available on the Internet, in books, in magazines, and by mail order. According to terrorism expert Neil Livingston, there are more than 1,600 so-called mayhem manuals—books with titles like "The Anarchist Cookbook," "The New Improved Poor Man's James Bond," "How To Kill", and "Exotic and Covert Weapons".

Let me provide some examples of the type of information I am talking about:

The "Terrorist's Handbook" is available by mail order and on the Internet. Just recently, my staff downloaded a copy of it from the Internet; Mr. President, you could do the same thing today.

The "Terrorist's Handbook" begins by saying:

> "Whether you are planning to blow up the World Trade Center, or merely explode a few small devices on the White House lawn, the "Terrorist's Handbook" is an invaluable guide to having a good time. Where else can you get such wonderful ideas about how to use up all that extra ammonium triiodide left over from last year's revolution.

The Handbook goes on to give step-by-step instructions on what to do:

> Acquiring chemicals: "The best place to steal chemicals is a college. Many state schools have all of their chemicals out on the shelves in the labs, and more in their chemical stockrooms. Evening is the best time to enter a lab building, as there are the least number of people in the building. . .. Of course, if none of these methods are successful, there is always section 2.11 [Techniques for Picking Locks]."

It then tells the reader how to pick a lock.

The Handbook lists various explosive recipes using black powders, nitroglycerine, dynamite, TNT, and ammonium nitrate. And, it provides explicit instructions for making pipe bombs, book bombs, light bulb bombs, glass container bombs, and phone bombs, just to name a few.

> Phone bomb: "The phone bomb is an explosive device that has been used in the past to kill or injure a specific individual. The basic idea is simple: when the person answers the phone, the bomb explodes. . .. It is highly probable that the phone will be by his/her ear when the devise explodes."
>
> Light Bulb bombs: "An automatic reaction to walking into a dark room is to turn on the light. This can be fatal, if a lightbulb bomb has been placed in the overhead light socket. A lightbulb bomb is surprisingly easy to make. It also comes with its own initiator and electric ignition system."

Yet another handbook contains detailed schemes and diagrams for a zippered suitcase booby trap, and a shower head booby trap, triggered by the pressure of turning on the water.

One of the more appalling descriptions of bomb making involves baby food bombs. The following information was taken from the Bullet'N Board computer bulletin board off the Internet:

> Babyfood Bombs: "These simple, powerful bombs are not very well know even though all the material can be easily obtained by anyone (including minors). These things are so f—ing powerful that they can destroy a car. . .. Here's how they work.
>
> "Go to the Sports Authority or Hermans sport shop and buy shotgun shells. At the Sports Authority that I go to you can actually buy shotgun shells without a parent or adult. They don't keep it behind the little glass counter or anything like that. It is $2.96 for 25 shells."

The computer bulletin board posting then provides instructions on how to assemble and detonate the bomb. It concludes with, "If the explosion doesn't get'em then the glass will. If the glass doesn't get'em then the nails will." Here are some more examples of individual postings from the Internet:

> "Are you interested in receiving information detailing the components and materials needed to construct a bomb identical to the one used in Oklahoma? The information specifically details the construction, deployment and detonation of high powered explosives. It also includes complete details of the bomb used in Oklahoma City, and how it was used and could have been better."—posted April 23, 1995.
>
> "I want to make bombs and kill evil zionist people in the government. Teach me. . .. Give me text files!. . .. Feed my wisdom, Oh great one."—posted April 25, 1995.

The foreword to the book "Death by Deception: Advanced Improvised Booby Traps" states:

> Terrorist IEDs [improvised explosive devices] come in many shapes and forms, but these bombs, mines, and booby traps all have one thing in common: they will cripple or kill you if you happen to be in the wrong place at the wrong time.
>
> In this sequel to his best-selling book "Deathtrap", Jo Jo Gonzales reveals more improvised booby-trap designs. Discover how these death-dealing devices can be constructed from such outwardly innocuous objects as computer modems, hand-held radios, toilet-paper dispensers, shower heads, talking teddy bears, and traffic cones. Detailed instructions, schematic diagrams, and typical deployment techniques for dozens of such contraptions are provided.

Other titles of books that teach people how to make bombs include: "Guerrilla's Arsenal: Advanced Techniques for Making Explosives and Time-Delay Bombs"; and "The Advanced Anarchist Arsenal: Recipes for Improvised Incendiaries and Explosives."

Enough is enough. Common sense should tell us that the First Amendment does not give someone the right to teach someone how to kill other people.

The right to free speech in the First Amendment is not absolute. There are several well known exceptions to the First Amendment which limit free speech. These include: obscenity; child pornography; clear and present dangers; commercial speech; defamation; speech harmful to children; time, place and manner restrictions; incidental restrictions; and radio and television broadcasting.

I do not for one minute believe that the Framers of the Constitution meant for the First Amendment to be used to directly aid the teaching of how to injure and kill.

In today's day and age when violent crimes, bombings, and terrorist attacks are becoming too frequent, and when technology allows for the distribution of bomb making material over computers to millions of people across the country in a matter of seconds, some restrictions on speech are appropriate. Specifically, I believe that restricting the availability of bomb making information, if there is intent or knowledge that the information will be used for a criminal purpose, is both appropriate and required in today's day and age.

My amendment is an important, balanced measure to confront the problems presented by today's rapid growth in technology, and I am extremely gratified by its adoption today.

I yield the floor.

EXHIBIT 1

[From the Los Angeles Times, June 27, 1996]

INTERNET CITED FOR SURGE IN BOMB REPORTS

COMPUTERS: POLICE AND SHERIFF'S OFFICIALS SAY WEB SITES PROVIDE YOUNGSTERS WITH INFORMATION ON MAKING EXPLOSIVES

(By Eric Lichtblau and Jim Newton)

Los Angeles explosives experts have seen an alarming rise in bomb calls over the last several months, and they think they know the main culprits: youngsters on the Internet who are learning to make bombs by scanning computer sites with ominous names like "the Anarchists Cookbook" and "Bombs and Stuff!"

Reports of possible explosives to the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department have more than doubled in the last two months. More troubling, the percentage of suspicious devices that turn out to be real explosives—especially homemade pipe bombs—has grown even more drastically.

The Los Angeles Police Department has noted a similar rise in bomb reports, reflecting a nationwide trend that experts blame on newfound computer access to explosives recipes.

"A lot of the [cases], we're finding out, are kids getting the information off the Internet," said Lt. Tom Spencer, who heads the sheriff's arson/explosives detail. "We're very worried, to be honest . . . It's frightening."

Sheriff's officials believe that information from the Internet was used in a rash of pipe bombings in Rancho Palos Verdes in May and June that destroyed four mailboxes, a guard shack and a car. Four teenagers were arrested last week in the explosions.

In Orange County, meanwhile, police said the Internet may have aided vandals in building acid-filled bottle bombs in Mission Viejo and Huntington Beach. A 5-year-old boy was burned by one of the bombs on a school playground in an April attack that led to the arrests of four teenagers.

And nationwide, computer-generated guides proved a common link in bombs built recently by teenagers around the country, from the streets of Philadelphia and Houston to rural enclaves of Kansas and upstate New York.

Some bookstores and libraries have long provided printed information on homemade bombs—one such manual was found this week in Torrance after a 23-year-old man allegedly blew out three windows at his parents' home with a 10-inch-long pipe bomb. But the Computer Age has cast the explosives' net far wider, experts say.

LAPD spokesman Cmdr. Tim McBride said: "There is a lot of verbiage on the Internet, where people are becoming * * * more aware of what it takes to put a bomb together."

Indeed, a quick scan of computer sites reveals wide access to site offering enlightenment on a wide range of bombs, some cast in a serious, academic tone, others in an aggressive or even hostile bent. "Don't be a wimp. Do it NOW!!!" urges a file on "making and owning an H-bomb."

One popular site, the Anarchists Cookbook, lists no fewer than 19 chapters related to explosives, from "Making Plastic Explosives From Bleach" to a "Home-Brew Blast Cannon" and "A Different Kind of Molitov [sic] Cocktail."

USC terrorism expert Richard Hrair Dekmejian believes that users of such technology are often troubled youths who, without intervention, could become involved in more serious violence along the lines of the Oklahoma City, World Trade Center or Unabomber attacks.

The Internet's bomb-making intrigue offers an outlet for troubled youths who are "bored and alienated," he said in an interview. "This is very, very serious. This is a new epidemic, and I see the problem getting worse," Dekmejian said.

The numbers in Los Angeles seem to prove him right.

Both the LAPD and the Sheriff's Department—the main agencies that handle bombings in the area—have seen marked increases in the last several years in reports of suspicious devices. Last year, responses at each department shop up more than 35% over 1994, reaching 972 calls to the LAPD and 595 to the Sheriff's Department. Each report of a suspected bomb automatically triggers a response by a bomb squad.

The rise has been even more drastic at the Sheriff's Department in the last two months. The bomb detail, which had been averaging about 30 calls a month, handled 68 assignments in April and 62 in May.

LAPD officials attribute the rise in part to the public's increased awareness and sensitivity to the threat posed by bombs, especially after terrorist bombings in Beirut, New York City and Oklahoma City, among other attacks.

For that reason, an abandoned briefcase may be more likely to generate a call to police today than it was a few years ago. But the trend goes beyond public alertness, officials say, and the number of actual explosives discovered has gone up significantly as well.

The LAPD found 41 explosives in 1995, more than double the number three years earlier. And the sheriff's discovery of explosives rose about 10% over that same period, to 69 bombs. The rise was particularly sharp in 1995 at the Sheriff's Department, with the number of bombs 50% higher than in the previous year.

The Sheriff's Department and its 26 bomb technicians recently began using a new 4½-inch-high robot to ferret out possible explosives. Much smaller than its predecessors, it can be used to roam under trucks or through theater aisles to inspect suspicious items.

But technology can be a double-edged sword, and Spencer says his people remain hamstrung as long as the Internet provides free recipes for disaster.

"We can't do anything because there's a freedom of speech mandate that says people can put on the Internet what they want, and people will access if if they want to access it," he said. "The way to stop it is for parents to monitor what their kids are doing."

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I stand in strong support of the Feinstein-Biden amendment, which would make it a Federal crime to teach someone how to make a bomb if you know or intend that it will be used to commit a crime.

This seems pretty simple and straightforward to me. Many Americans—no, I think most Americans—would be absolutely shocked if they knew what kind of bone-chilling information is making its way over the Internet.

You can access detailed, explicit instructions on how to make and detonate pipe bombs, light bulb bombs, and even—if you can believe it—baby food bombs.

Let me give you just a small sample. A guy named "Warmaster" sent this message out over the Internet about how to build a baby food bomb. Here's how his message goes:

> These simple, powerful bombs are not very well known even though all the materials can be easily obtained by anyone (including minors). These things are so [expletive deleted] powerful that they can destroy a car. The explosion can actually twist and mangle the frame. They are extremely deadly and can very easily kill you and blow the side of the house out if you mess up while building it. Here's how they work.

And then the message goes into explicit detail about how to fill a baby food jar with gunpowder and how to detonate it.

> The thing about this bomb,

The message observes,

> Is that the glass jar gets totally shattered and pieces of razor sharp glass gets blasted in all directions.

Warmaster's recipe also elaborates on how you can make the bomb more effective still:

> Tape nails to the side of the thing,

It says.

> Sharpened jacks (those little things with all the pointy sides) also work well. The good thing about those is any side it lands on is right side up. If the explosion doesn't get'em then the glass will. If the glass don't get'em then the nails will.

Now, I'm not making this stuff up.

And what this amendment says is that if Warmaster gives his recipe to some young kid—intending or knowing that the kid will go build one of these bombs and blow it up over at the local school playground—then Warmaster should be put behind bars.

Right now, that's not a Federal crime. It should be—no ifs, ands, or buts.

I take a back seat to no one when it comes to the first amendment, and the protection of our most cherished rights of free speech.

But there is no right under the first amendment to help someone blow up a building. There is no right under the first amendment to be an accessory to a crime. And there is nothing in the first amendment that says we must leave our good sense at the doorstep.

This is not the first time that Senator FEINSTEIN and I have tried to put this crime on the books. We tried to add it back to the terrorism bill in April. But our Republican colleagues derailed our effort. Evidently, there were those on the House side who didn't like this provision—who for some reason didn't think that intentionally teaching someone how to build a bomb should be a crime.

I'm glad that our Republican colleagues here in the Senate have come to their senses. And I hope—and urge—that they will do all that they can to make sure their House counterparts do the right thing this time.

This amendment is simple and straightforward. If you're one of these guys who has made a name for himself writing manifestos like "The Terrorist Handbook" or "How To Kill With Joy"—and if someone comes to you and says: "Tomorrow morning, a group of police officers is going to be meeting in the 5th Street precinct—and I want to blow it up."

And if you then say: "Here you go—I've got just the recipe for you."

It seems to me that that should be a crime. And I'm glad the Senate has seen fit to join Senator FEINSTEIN and me in our effort to make it a crime.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared with the Judiciary Committee. It is not in our jurisdiction, but it has been approved by both Senator HATCH and Senator BIDEN. So I urge support of the amendment.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, the amendment has been cleared. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4428) was agreed to.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NUNN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4429

(Purpose: To clarify that the exemption from the Qualified Thrift Lender applies to any savings institutions that serve primarily military personnel)

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator SHELBY, and others, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. SHELBY, for himself, Mr. FAIRCLOTH, Mr. BRYAN, Mr. DODD, and Mr. GRAMM, proposes an amendment numbered 4429.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill add the following new section:

SEC. . EXEMPTION FOR SAVINGS INSTITUTIONS SERVING MILITARY PERSONNEL.

Section 10(m)(3)(F) of the Home Owners' Loan Act (12 U.S.C. 1467a(m)(3)(F)) is amended to read as follows:

"(F) EXEMPTION FOR SPECIALIZED SAVINGS ASSOCIATIONS SERVING CERTAIN MILITARY PERSONNEL.—Subparagraph (A) does not apply to a savings association subsidiary of a savings and loan holding company if not less than 90 percent of the customers of the savings and loan holding company and the subsidiaries and affiliates of such company are active or former officers in the United States military services or the widows, widowers, divorced spouses, or current or former dependents of such officers.".

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, this is a carefully tailored amendment intended to broaden the opportunities for military personnel to obtain financial services. There exists in current law an exemption from the penalties associated with failing to meet mortgage asset requirements of the qualified thrift lender [QTL] test. It was created some years ago for specialized savings associations serving military personnel. At least 90 percent of the association's customers must be active or former officers—commissioned and noncommissioned—in the U.S. military services or widows, widowers, divorced spouses, or current or former dependents of such officers. The rationale for the exemption is that relatively few transient military personnel and their dependents have the need or desire for a residential mortgage. Accordingly, it would be very difficult for a savings association serving the military community to comply with the QTL test requirement.

The present exemption language is too narrowly drawn to apply to similarly situated organizations serving the military community. The amendment retains the essential requirement that at least 90 percent of the savings association's customers be military related. By permitting new market entrants, it will have the effect of expanding competition in this underserved market.

This amendment has been endorsed by the Military Coalition, an organization of all the major active duty and veterans groups. The Treasury Department and the Office of Thrift Supervision have indicated no objection to the amendment.

Mr. McCAIN. This amendment has been cleared.

Mr. NUNN. This amendment has been cleared, and I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4429) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4430

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. JOHNSTON and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. JOHNSTON, proposes an amendment numbered 4430.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 410, line 5, strike "$2,000,000" and insert "$5,000,000".

On page 410, line 10, strike "$2,000,000" and insert "$5,000,000".

On page 410, before line 14, add the following:

"(c) STUDY ON PERMANENT AUTHORIZATION FOR GENERAL PLANT PROJECTS.—Not later than February 1, 1997, the Secretary of Energy shall report to the appropriate congressional committees on the need for, and desirability of, a permanent authorization formula for defense and civilian general plant projects in the Department of Energy that includes periodic adjustments for inflation, including any legislative recommendations to enact such formula into permanent law. The report of the Secretary shall describe actions that would be taken by the Department to provide for cost control of general plant projects, taking into account the size and nature of such projects."

On page 413, line 25, strike 11$2,000,000" and insert "$5,000,000".

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, this amendment raises the statutory fiscal ceiling set in section 3122 on a type of activity in the Department of Energy known as general plant projects. The amendment also requests a report from the Secretary of Energy with recommendations on a permanent authorization formula for such activities.

General plant projects are projects that seek to maintain or replace the fixed and capital assets of the Department at its facilities, whether these assets are entire buildings, major subsystems of buildings—for example, electrical systems, compressed air systems—or other fixed assets such as parking lots, electrical substations, sewer lines, or roads. General plant projects do not entail the acquisition of new programmatic capabilities. Rather, they support and maintain an infrastructure for carrying out existing DOE programs and authorities. This activity designation is unique to DOE in this bill—there is not a clear analog to general plant projects in the Department of Defense, although the Department of Defense also has a large facility infrastructure that it must maintain.

Starting in the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 1986, cost ceilings have been annually established for DOE general plant projects for missions and authorities under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Armed Services. This routine provision of recent defense bills, however, has proven to have considerable effects on the civilian programs of the Department under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources. By establishing a statutory ceiling for general plant projects in the National Defense Authorization Act, the Congress has effectively set the ceiling on all Department spending on general plant projects, whether defense or civilian. This is because it is not possible, in practice, to manage a system of routine construction and maintenance based on different ceilings. For example, a major electrical upgrade that affected both civilian and defense-related buildings at a DOE site could hardly be subject to two different statutory limits. Nor, as another example, could an upgrade to a sanitary sewer system connecting several buildings—some of which housed civilian DOE programs, others of which housed DOE defense projects—be accomplished under two different statutory limits. In fact, there is some evidence that the greatest impact of the ceiling in the Defense bill is on the Department of Energy infrastructure supporting civilian missions, as general plant projects at defense-related DOE sites tend to be small than general plant projects at civilian sites.

The present ceiling on general plant projects has also never been the subject of a substantive review. Many Department of Energy sites are over 50 years old and contain numerous buildings that are far below contemporary standards or that have completely outlived their useful occupancy. Major rehabilitation of these buildings or their major systems for ongoing programs is required. Yet, the $2,000,000 statutory limitation on such projects poses a major obstacle to the speedy accomplishment of such tasks.

For example, in fiscal year 1996, the Office of Energy Research had to propose a line-item project—Project No. 95–E–303—to rehabilitate electrical systems in the laboratories for which it was responsible in the 300 Area of the Hanford Site. This work was required to correct numerous National Electrical Code violations identified in 1990 during a "Tiger Team" inspection. In DOE's words, "much of the older equipment is deteriorating and its present condition poses a personnel and fire hazard." The construction cost for this electrical safety rehabilitation was estimated at $4.2 million, above the current general plant project limit. Because of this statutory limitation, this needed safety upgrade—identified nearly 6 years ago—has been delayed for at least an additional 18 months, and workers have been needlessly exposed to a known, personnel and fire hazard. Further, because this project was forced into a line-item project status, its costs were further increased by the need for the preparation of a conceptual design report and by enhanced requirements for project management that attend line-item projects of any size in the Department. The "design and management costs" associated with this $4.2 million construction project were an additional $1.7 million. Clearly, this is an example of excessive costs driven by an artificially low limit on general plant projects.

As another example, at Brookhaven National Laboratory, an existing storage and transfer facility for fuel oil had to be upgraded over a period of 4 fiscal years via a line-item appropriation because the cost of the project was $3.65 million. This facility was the only supply of fuel for the central steam facility that, in turn, provided heat and hot water to the entire laboratory. A timely upgrade was needed to bring the facility into compliance with State and local codes. Because this project was delayed in order to undertake it as a line-item appropriation, the regulatory timetable for achieving compliance was exceeded and State and local officials had to issue a temporary waiver to the old facility to continue operations. Had these officials been less forthcoming, the operations of the entire laboratory would have been compromised. There is heightened regulatory concern over potential groundwater contamination from Brookhaven laboratory facilities on Long Island, as Brookhaven is located over an EPA designated sole-source aquifer for the Island. Had general plant project funds been available for this project, it would have been completed more expeditiously, the need for a special waiver might have been avoided, and the Department and the Laboratory could have certainly avoided further inflaming local concern over groundwater pollution from this facility.

There are many other examples that could be discussed of needed projects at DOE facilities that have been needlessly delayed because of the general plant project limitation contained in previous Defense Authorization Acts. Put simply, $2 million doesn't buy very much in the real world of facilities management. Replacing 3,480 feet of sanitary sewer lines ranging in diameter from 3 to 8 inches—Project 96-E-331—or retrofitting heating, ventilation, and air conditioning systems in a 40-year-old 300-person office building—Project 95-A-500—or upgrading a chemical laboratory to meet current requirements of the Uniform Fire Code—Project 93-E-324—all exceed $2 million in costs.

In preparation for offering this amendment, I asked the Department of Energy to estimate the number of projects and their related costs that would be added to the general plant project category if my amendment were adopted. I ask unanimous consent that the response from the Department of Energy be printed in the RECORD following the completion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, the DOE response, which I interpret to favor this amendment, is illuminating in several respects.

First of all, it confirms that there are real cost savings to be realized by raising the general plant project limit. DOE estimates that $4.7 million would be saved by raising the ceiling under my amendment, considering only costs associated with elimination of Conceptual Design Reports and savings from avoiding the 18-to-24 month hiatus now experienced by projects in the range between $2 million and $5 million. There are also additional savings that will result from reduced overhead (personnel associated with these projects now must be moved to other projects and otherwise kept on the payroll during the hiatus or new personnel must be brought up to speed at the end of the hiatus). As the examples I have given above illustrate, there are also other savings that are possible, from avoided injuries or fines and penalties that might result from missed compliance dates. It is hard to put a figure on such costs, as they will vary from project to project, but they are very real.

Second, the DOE response indicates that raising this limit will not open the flood gates to an unmanageable number of additional projects. Based on fiscal year 1996 data, increasing the limit under my amendment will increase the actual number of general plant projects by less than 10 percent. The total funding for general plant projects, across the Department, might increase by $64,000,000, with most of this increase projected to occur on the civilian side of the Department. The impact of my amendment on general plant projects in the Office of Defense Programs, according to the Department, "would be relatively small." Thus, I believe that my amendment is an appropriate step to take at this time.

Third, the DOE response indicates that, because the funds for general plant projects in fiscal year 1997 have been spoken for, this amendment will begin to exert its effect starting in fiscal year 1998, thus allowing the Department one year to examine its internal procedures to ensure that they are adequate for the higher limit.

While I am convinced that increasing the limit from $2 million to $5 million in this bill is well justified, I also believe that we need a more permanent solution to the issue of establishing limits on general plant projects in the Department of Energy. That is why my amendment also calls for a report "on the need for, and desirability of, a permanent authorization formula for defense and civilian general plant projects in the Department of Energy that periodic adjustments for inflation, including any legislative recommendation to enact such formula into permanent law." I believe that we should set in motion a process to arrive at a permanent legal and management framework that addresses both civilian and defense needs for general plant projects in the Department of Energy. I would like to thank the managers of this bill for their cooperation and support for my attempts to address this issue, and I urge the adoption of my amendment.

EXHIBIT 1

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY,
Washington, DC, June 27, 1996.

Hon. J. BENNETT JOHNSTON,
Ranking Minority Member, Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR JOHNSTON: Thank you for June 18, 1996, letter concerning general plant projects in the Department of Energy.

As you are aware, the statutory ceiling on general plant projects contained in S. 1745, the Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1997, applies only to atomic energy defense activities funded under the 050 function. You are correct, however, that the Department applies this same ceiling to all Department spending on general plant projects for administrative convenience and consistency.

The analysis prepared by the Department in response to your questions includes both civilian and defense spending for general plant projects in the aggregate based upon fiscal year 1996 spending. Our analysis suggests that potential savings could accrue from raising the ceiling on general plant projects. Some program offices would clearly be more likely to accrue savings than other program offices, however. For example, in the case of the Office of Defense Programs, general plant projects tend to be small construction requirements, such as facility refurbishment and minor road repairs, and very few of these projects reach the $2 million ceiling. Therefore, savings from increasing the ceiling for the Office of Defense Programs would be relatively small. In addition, as a result of language included in the House and Senate reports accompanying the Energy and Water Development Appropriation for Fiscal Year 1996, the Department now merges its general plant projects into operating expenses, which has provided the Department additional flexibility in carrying out general plant projects under the ceiling of $2 million. The value to the Department of a higher general plant project ceiling would be enhanced if that flexibility were extended to the higher ceiling.

The Department appreciates your efforts to reduce unnecessary or burdensome requirements and to assist us in finding areas for cost savings. I hope this information is helpful to you. If you have further questions, please contact Mary Louise Wagner, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Senate Liaison, on 202-586-5468.

Sincerely,

DONALD W. PEARMAN, Jr.,
Associate Deputy Secretary for Field Management.

Enclosure.

ENCLOSURE

Question. What is number of general plant projects anticipated in FY 1997 that would be below the current $2,000,000 limit?

Answer. These projects tend to be relatively small, such as facility refurbishment, minor road repairs, roof repair and replacement, electrical system upgrades, and some small facilities. The actual projects to be funded in FY 1997 will not be selected until later when programmatic needs and unexpected repairs are prioritized with existing lists of general plant project requirements. Although a few push the $2,000,000 limit, $500,000 is a good estimate of the average size of these projects. Based on this average, we estimate approximately 200 general plant projects in FY 1997.

Question. What is the total dollar amount represented by these projects?

Answer. The total dollar amount represented by these projects (i.e., the FY 1997 funding request for general plant projects) is approximately $98,000,000.

Question. What would be the number of general plant projects (and the corresponding dollar amount) that would be added if the limit in the Defense Authorization Act were to be changed to $2,500,000; $4,000,000; and $5,000,000?

Answer. Using FY 1996 data as a gauge, there would be no additional general plant projects, if the limit were raised to $2,500,000.

Using FY 1996 data as a gauge, there would be 11 additional general plant projects with an additional dollar amount of $37,000,000, if the limit were raised to $4,000,000.

Using FY 1996 data as a gauge, there would be 7 additional general plant projects with an additional dollar amount of $27,000,000, if the limit were raised to $5,000,000.

Question. What savings would occur if the limit on general plant projects were changed to $2,500,000; $4,000,000; and $5,000,000?

Answer. For that limited number of projects in FY 1996 which fell between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000 in estimated total project cost, some savings would be generated by shortening the project time line and being able to proceed immediately from conceptual design, through final engineering and into physical construction. The analysis was conducted on FY 1996 data and would vary from year to year depending on the specific activities.

If the limit on general plant projects were changed to (based on our current data):

Limit	Additional general plant projects	Estimated savings
$2.5 Million	$0	$0
$4.0 Million	$37 Million	$2.7 Million (see note).
$5.0 Million	$27 Million	$4.7 Million (see note).

Note: Calculation of Savings: $37 M x 2% for Conceptual Design Report development + 5.3% (Escalation) = $2.7M. ($37M + $27M) x 2% for Conceptual Design Report development + 5.3% (Escalation) = $4.7M.

Question. How would such cost savings be realized?

Answer. General plant projects do not require Conceptual Design Reports. Once requirements for general plant projects are identified, design of the projects can begin immediately.

Currently, there is an 18–24 month delay between the completion of a Conceptual Design Report and start of design of a line item project (any construction project above $2 million). The cost savings if the Conceptual Design Reports are not required would be approximately 2 percent of the total project cost (representing the average cost to perform the Conceptual Design Report) plus avoidance of the escalation resulting from the two year "hiatus." Other intangible cost savings would accrue from reduced overhead, quicker response to changed mission requirements and earlier availability of facilities to support the mission.

In FY 1997, minimum savings would be realized because Conceptual Design Reports should already have been started or completed, therefore the delay (18–24 months) between Conceptual Design Reports and start of design would have already occurred. Any real savings would start to accrue in FY 1998.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I urge adoption of the amendment.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared on this side. I urge the Senate adopt this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4430) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4431

(Purpose: To require the Director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization to prevent adverse effects of establishment of the National Missile Defense Joint Program Office on private sector employment)

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. NUNN], for Mr. HEFLIN, for himself and Mr. SHELBY, proposes an amendment numbered 4431.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title IX add the following:

SEC. 907. ACTIONS TO LIMIT ADVERSE EFFECTS OF ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE JOINT PROGRAM OFFICE ON PRIVATE SECTOR EMPLOYMENT.

The Director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization shall take such actions as are necessary in connection with the establishment of the National Missile Defense Joint Program Office to ensure that the establishment and execution of the new management structure will not include any planned reductions in Federal Government employees, or Federal Government contractors, supporting the national missile defense development program at any particular location outside the National Capitol Region (as defined in section 2674(f)(2) of Title 10, United States Code).

Mr. HEFLIN. This amendment would help assure that the creation of a new management office within the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization does not result in a centralized bureaucracy at the expense of vital ballistic missile defense capabilities built up over the years across the United States.

Concerns about Pentagon centralization have resulted in the Defense Appropriations Committees limiting funds made available for relocations of DOD organizations, units, activities, or functions into or within the National Capital Region. This has been the case in the past and it is again the case in the pending Defense appropriations bill. Another concern has been the use of support contractor services and consultants to escalate centralization in Washington. In 1992, Senator PRYOR found an alarming trend of contractor growth in support of the BMDO predecessor organization, the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization [SDIO]. His amendment, accepted without opposition, capped the amount of money which could be expended for the procurement of support services for the central SDIO activity. Its intent is still relevant today.

Those concerns about DOD centralization are founded on traditional beliefs that government works best when it is not all collocated in the Capital region. Centralization of government and contractor personnel results in higher costs. Relocation of functions loses unique capabilities now available through military services and thus creates greater inefficiencies and schedule losses due to the necessity to retrain and replace technical and managerial personnel.

The purpose of this amendment is to clearly establish that the implementation of the NMD JPO decision must continue to be consistent with the assurances we are being given by the Pentagon. The Acting BMDO Director, Adm. Dick West, has just met with our staffs and discussed the organizational details of the new Joint Program Office, as it is now planned. He foresees a central organization of 64 or thereabouts, supported by those on-going activities in the field who have been developing such elements as the interceptor and ground-based radar. At present, these are basically all in the Army sphere of responsibility since the Air Force Space and Missile Tracking System Program is an Air Force program and will not be under the new office, and the Navy has no current role in NMD. Admiral West is convincing in his assurances that those activities which have been so beneficial to the progress in ballistic missile defense in the past will not be adversely impacted by this new central office. Concurrently, a BMDO "Point Paper" has included the following assurances:

> The decision to manage NMD using a Joint Program Office (JPO) does not change the fundamental execution of the program. The basic building blocks remain the same and will be developed by the organization already assigned those responsibilities. Contracts that have been awarded will be executed as planned. The Service organizations that have had responsibility for NMD will continue to play the same role. As the program approaches a deployment decision, the role of the services will increase significantly.

Even with this assurance, I believe this amendment is necessary to clearly reflect the intent of Congress for the benefit of Admiral West's successor and those further down the organizational ladder responsible for the implementation of the various components of the new activity.

These are important times for the National Missile Defense Program, when with additional funding and emphasis, Congress has great expectations that these investments will yield the greatest possible dividends. Continuation of the valuable contributions of the NMD activities in their field locations will be critical to that success.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I believe this has been cleared, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, the amendment is cleared. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4431) was agreed to.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCAIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4432

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. LOTT and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

> The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McCAIN], for Mr. LOTT, proposes an amendment numbered 4432.

The amendment is as follows:

> At the appropriate place, insert the following:
>
> SEC. . OCEANOGRAPHIC SHIP OPERATIONS AND DATA ANALYSIS.
>
> (a) Of the funds provided by Section 301(2), an additional $6,200,000 may be authorized for the reduction, storage, modeling and conversion of oceanographic data for use by the Navy, consistent with Navy's requirements.
>
> (b) Such funds identified in (a) shall be in addition to such amounts already provided for this purpose in the budget request.

Mr. McCAIN. I believe this amendment has been cleared by the other side.

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared, and I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4432) was agreed to.

THE AWARD OF THE CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR TO SEVEN AFRICAN-AMERICANS WHO SERVED IN COMBAT DURING WORLD WAR II

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, the national defense authorization bill under consideration by the Senate contains a very special provision that, once enacted, will clear the way for the President to award the Medal of Honor to seven African-Americans who served their Nation with the utmost distinction in combat during World War II.

Pvt. George Watson of Birmingham, AL, was on board a ship which was attacked by enemy bombers. When the ship was abandoned, Private Wilson remained and assisted several soldiers who could not swim to reach the safety of a liferaft. This heroic action subsequently cost him his life but resulted in saving the lives of his comrades.

Capt. Charles L. Thomas of Detroit, MI, though grievously wounded when his scout car was subjected to intense enemy artillery, self-propelled gun, and small arms fire, directed the emplacement of two antitank guns to return enemy fire. Only after he was certain that a subordinate was in full control of the situation did he permit himself to be evacuated.

S.Sgt. Ruben Rivers of Oklahoma City, OK, though severely wounded when his tank hit a mine, refused medical treatment, took command of another tank, and advanced to the objective. Repeatedly refusing evacuation, Sergeant Rivers continued to direct his tank fire at enemy positions through the next day until he was killed by the enemy.

S.Sgt. Edward A. Carter, Jr., of Los Angeles, CA, while attempting to lead a three-man group was wounded five times and finally was forced to take cover. As eight enemy riflemen attempted to capture him, Sergeant Carter killed six of them and captured the remaining two.

First Lieutenant John R. Fox of Cincinnati, OH, and some other members of his observer party voluntarily remained on the second floor of a house to direct defensive artillery fire while the majority of U.S. forces withdrew in the face of overwhelming numbers. As the Germans continued to press the attack toward the area that he occupied, he adjusted the artillery fire into his own position knowing that this was the only way to stop the enemy attack. Lieutenant Fox's body was later found along with the bodies of approximately 100 German soldiers.

First Lieutenant Vernon J. Baker, of Cheyenne, WY, destroyed enemy installations, personnel, and equipment during his company's attack against a strongly entrenched enemy in mountainous terrain. When his company was stopped by the concentrated fire from several machinegun emplacements, he destroyed three machinegun nests and an enemy observation post. He then covered the evacuation of the wounded personnel of his company by occupying an exposed position and drawing the enemy's fire.

Pfc. Willy F. James, Jr., of Kansas City, KS, as lead scout was the first to draw enemy fire. After being pinned down for over an hour, he returned to his platoon, and led a squad in the assault, accurately designating targets as he advanced, until he was killed by enemy machinegun fire while going to the aid of his fatally wounded platoon leader.

These seven heroes have many things in common: their selfless dedication to their comrades, their unwillingness to give up despite overwhelming odds, their leadership in the face of certain death, and their race.

A study, commissioned in 1993 by the Acting Secretary of the Army to review the Medal of Honor processing procedures as applied to African-American soldiers in World War II, revealed that no African-American soldier was recommended for the Medal of Honor for service in World War II.

Concluding, in part, that this was reflective of the national racial climate and the use of African-American soldiers in World War II, the study recommended that 10 African-Americans be considered for the award of the Medal of Honor.

The Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of Defense, and the President recommended legislation that would permit the award of the Medal of Honor to the seven heroes I previously mentioned.

This marks the end of a long journey for these seven men—six of whom who have died before they could realize this great honor.

It is not the end of a journey, however, for our military services as they continue to lead the Nation in matters of equal opportunity, elimination of racial and gender discrimination, and creation of an environment that is, in fact, based on individual merit and performance.

I have always been proud of the way our military services were able to recognize the importance of eliminating discrimination and prejudice. I have always been proud of the tremendous efforts that have been made and that will continue to be made in this area.

Surely, 100-percent success has yet to be achieved, but the U.S. military is clearly a beacon lighting the way for the rest of the Nation.

So, too, today I am proud of what these heroes have done. But I am also proud of how we as a nation can look back into our history and, seeing something that just is not quite right, can and will fix it.

I regret that six of our seven heroes are no longer with us. I hope and pray that their families and loved ones will realize the significance of what these courageous men accomplished and permit our Nation to honor them in this way.

Mr. President, I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mrs. KASSEBAUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as if in morning business for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HEALTH INSURANCE REFORM

Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, it has been exactly 2 full months since the Senate unanimously passed the Health Insurance Reform Act 100 to nothing. However, because Republicans and Democrats have been unable to reach agreement on one outstanding issue—the size and scope of the Medical Savings Account Demonstration Program—we have not been able to make further progress in reaching a compromise between the House and Senate language on this bill.

Many, I think, assume that this legislation which passed unanimously in the U.S. Senate has already become law, and that is just not the case. I would suggest that every day we wait the stakes grow higher. As the number of legislative days dwindle:

More American families lose their health insurance coverage;

More American families are unable to obtain insurance because of preexisting illnesses or outright discrimination;

Millions of Americans hold onto jobs that they would otherwise leave for fear of losing their health coverage;

Patients suffering from AIDS, and our seniors and disabled citizens, do not have adequate resources to pay for care;

And self-employed men and women, and small businesses, find the cost of health insurance increasingly out of reach.

The bipartisan health reform legislation that passed both the Senate and the House in April would help address these critical issues. The General Accounting Office [GAO] estimates that the reforms at the heart of the bill will help at least 25 million Americans each year.

There is no disagreement between Republicans and Democrats about how to help these 25 million Americans. Yet each day that we quibble over whether to allow a tiny fraction of the insurance market to test the concept of medical savings accounts, the chance to enact reforms that will help these 25 million Americans grows dim.

As my colleagues know, the House passed a very different bill from the Senate. But after weeks of discussions and sometimes tense negotiations between Republican leaders, we have reached agreement on every outstanding issue—except for MSA's. The House has agreed to drop altogether controversial provisions on multiple employer welfare arrangements and medical malpractice. While many—including myself—strongly believe we need to help small employers gain purchasing clout and control the health care costs through malpractice reform, all of us recognized that compromise was necessary to reach a bipartisan consensus on the legislation.

Mr. President, I want to assure my colleagues and the American people that the core of the Kassebaum-Kennedy bill is firmly in place in the House-Senate compromise. Those provisions will greatly enhance the health security of American workers. In addition, the compromise legislation increases the deduction for self-employed individuals from 30 to 80 percent, provides tax deductions to help make long-term care more affordable for our seniors, and helps reduce health costs by fighting fraud and abuse and reducing the paperwork burden imposed on patients, doctors, and hospitals.

In an attempt to reach agreement on the remaining outstanding issue, Republicans have offered three separate compromises on medical savings accounts. Unfortunatley, these concessions seem to have done little to narrow the gap between Republicans and Democrats in the House and Senate, and the White House.

Last night, under the leadership of the distinguished majority leader, Republicans proposed an extremely generous, constructive compromise that will allow us to test the concept of MSA's and assess their impact in the small employer market. As my colleagues know, I have grave concerns about the potential impact of MSAs. But I believe this proposal is fair and limited, and contains protections sufficient to guard against adverse risk selection. It was offered in good faith and goes a long way toward meeting concerns raised by the President. In fact, it goes well beyond the agreement I reached earlier with many Republicans in the House and Senate conference.

As part of this agreement:

Republicans have agreed to reduce the scope of the 4-year demonstration program to firms with 50 employees or less, and to require an affirmative vote to expand MSA's to large employers and individuals. That is a significant concession.

The Joint Committee on Taxation estimates that MSA's will be available during this 4-year demonstration to less than 1 percent of the total work force and slightly more than 1 percent of the work force with insurance.

Equally important, reducing the size of the demonstration to firms with 50 workers or less will help guard against risk selection because the underlying bill extends guaranteed issue and renewal requirements to firms with 50 or fewer workers. Moreover, this is the portion of the insurance market where the States have worked aggressively to protect consumers and guard against risk selection.

The proposal contains a fire process for assessing the impact of MSA's by an independent, nonpartisan organization. In addition, the Secretary of the Treasury is required to annually monitor the MSA's impact on the market and report to Congress as to whether the legislation is necessary to reduce costs due to excessive enrollment.

Finally, Republicans have agreed to reduce further individuals' out-of-pocket exposure by lowering the maximum MSA deductible and requiring MSA plans to cover at least 70 percent of covered services once an individual reaches the deductible. We also have agreed to further reduce the tax advantages of MSA's by limiting annual contributions.

Moreover, high-deductible plans must meet disclosure requirements, and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners is directed to promulgate further consumer protection standards.

Mr. President, despite significant concessions, I believe, on the part of Republicans, however, the White House and congressional Democrats continue to raise new demands and to insist that high-deductible MSA policies meet nondiscrimination and consumer protection standards well beyond current law requirements for other health insurance plans and even well beyond the reforms contained in the underlying legislation.

The Health Insurance Reform Act will pass, Mr. President, only if we keep our eye on the ball.

First, we need to recognize that success always requires compromise. The House has conceded on malpractice reforms, has conceded on MEWA's and now receded significantly on the MSA's.

Second, we need to bear in mind that the legislation will help 25 million Americans each year, and that the positive impact of the bill's core reforms will far outweigh any potential harm from the limited medical savings account proposal that has been offered by Republicans last night.

I believe we have worked too long and too hard in a bipartisan fashion to let this historic opportunity to pass meaningful health reform pass us by. I hope we can come together in the next few days. I think it is absolutely essential that we not let time slip away. And I hope that the White House and the Democratic leadership will genuinely help us reach that goal.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to speak for 6 minutes as if in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FEDERAL DROUGHT ASSISTANCE IN THE SOUTHWEST

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I wish to bring a very serious matter to the attention of my colleagues.

As has been reported by several Senators, there is a serious drought underway in the Southwest, and I believe my State of New Mexico is probably the most seriously affected because it is suffering a very severe drought, almost in its entirety.

As my colleague from New Mexico, Senator BINGAMAN, has stated on at least two occasions on the Senate floor in the last month, livestock producers are among the most devastated by these drought conditions. Today, I would like to inform the Senate of the current status of one of the relief options that several of us have been pursuing: the Emergency Feed Grain Reserve.

It involves a small portion of grain reserves held by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, known as the Emergency Feed Grain Reserve. Under this program, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to purchase and store up to 75 million bushels of grains to be held in reserve for emergency or disaster situations.

Currently, the Department reports that there are about 45 million bushels of grain stored under this program. In the event of an emergency, the Secretary of Agriculture has a great deal of flexibility in how these reserve grains are to be used.

On June 5, the Senate passed a concurrent resolution, Senate Concurrent Resolution 63, which called on the Secretary of Agriculture to release all grains held in the emergency reserve to provide relief for livestock producers whose livelihoods are threatened by this natural disaster. In fact, the distinguished Senator from Kansas, Mrs. KASSEBAUM, who just spoke, was the lead Senator on that concurrent resolution.

There has been no response.

Again, on June 12, the Senate called on the Secretary to act under the authority of this program by passing two resolutions, Senate Resolution 259 and Senate Resolution 260. These two resolutions called on the Secretary to use the most efficient methods of providing relief under this program, including cash payments generated by receipts from the sale of reserve grains and to give special consideration to those producers who could not receive assistance under any other program.

There was no response.

Let me put the amount of the grain reserve into perspective. As I stated earlier, there are about 45 million bushels of grain in this emergency relief reserve. Reuters news service reported this morning that the average price of corn during the month of June has been slightly more than $4 a bushel, barley was slightly lower, and wheat was considerably higher, at well over $5 a bushel.

Even if the Secretary were to sell the emergency reserve stocks at a discount to provide relief in areas of severe grain shortages, there could easily be generated $100 million to provide relief in those areas where other forms of livestock feed, such as hay, are more needed. This is far greater than the $18 million that Senator BINGAMAN and I have attempted to provide legislatively through a modest but needed temporary extension of the only relief program for many livestock producers in the Southwest, the Emergency Livestock Feed Program.

Secretary of Agriculture Glickman has a proposal. Earlier this week, I wrote to Secretary Glickman to inquire about the status of various plans or proposals to provide relief for livestock producers in the drought-stricken Southwest.

I also spoke with the Secretary's office by phone and asked what, if anything, else was required for the release of the emergency reserve grains. I was informed that the Agriculture Department had submitted a proposal to the White House some time ago regarding the release of reserve grains for the purpose of this disaster relief but that it had not yet been approved.

I have since been informed that the U.S. Department of Agriculture proposal was sent to the White House on June 4, 1 day before the Senate called on the Secretary to act. It has been 24 days, Mr. President—it has been 24 days—since Secretary Glickman proposed disaster relief activities to the White House.

There has been no action.

We cannot wait. These ranchers are going broke. When we have an earthquake, we act quickly. This drought is resulting in a gradual elimination of farmers and ranchers who cannot make a living in this drought, which is arguably the worst in 100 years.

When there is a flood, an earthquake, as I indicated, a hurricane, this administration and this Senate prides itself on the responsiveness of its agencies, whether it be FEMA or any other, to the needs of the affected area, and we vote in the Senate for that kind of relief even if it is not our area. We have done that historically, and, God forbid, we stop doing that. It is absolutely our responsibility to help a State with serious problems, and we have that in New Mexico.

The disaster relief that I am addressing today could have begun weeks ago by administrative action, and still there is no response. Farmers and ranchers in my home State of New Mexico and in parts of Arizona, Colorado and Texas, are losing their means of livelihood by having to sell large numbers of their cattle at rock bottom prices to survive. Some have been dealing with these drought conditions for over 3 years, but this year over three-fourths of my State is currently under what is called severe drought, according to the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration. I believe it is time for the President and the White House to approve the plan submitted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The time is past. It should be done now.

Since there has been no response to my inquiries other than, "We are working on it," I hope that perhaps what I am saying to the Senate here on the floor will bring some action. It is not as if we are asking for billions of dollars, but it ought to be done. I hope the White House will respond quickly.

If there are other things we must do in Congress, I hope they will tell us. I believe the Senate would respond, if we have to change something legislatively to provide assistance to one group of New Mexicans, or another. We may be here in the next few weeks, asking for some extraordinary help. The drought is causing wells to dry up, and water sources to disappear. We are having to move water around in the State to accommodate the various needs. Clearly we may need some extraordinary relief. Today what we are asking for is simple, it is forthright, and it ought to be done.

I thank the Senate for giving me this time and I yield the floor.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the call of the quorum be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I regret I cannot vote for this bill. I do congratulate, however, the managers of the bill and the staff of the Armed Services Committee for their meticulous attention to the details of the legislation and for their skillful handling of the bill.

There are many good provisions contained in it, provisions that address legitimate defense needs and provide support for the men and women in our military. Worthy provisions have been added to this bill, such as the amendment offered by Senators NUNN, LUGAR, and others, to provide assistance to Federal and local law enforcement agencies to defend against terrorist use of weapons of mass destruction and to help safeguard or destroy foreign sources of nuclear weapons materials. Another provision establishes a commission to review our national security needs, which will help to shape more realistic future defense budgets. And I am pleased that an amendment I offered was accepted that will provide medical assistance to the children of Gulf war veterans with birth defects and other medical problems while scientific research determines whether their maladies may be a result of their parents' service.

But in the end, this bill remains billions of dollars above the administration's already generous request for the Department of Defense. Other government programs addressing important domestic needs face flat funding or are being reduced, while the defense budget is flush with unrequested funds. Of the amount added to the defense bill, over $4 billion is designated for procurement programs that are not in the Future Years Defense Plan or on the military services' wish lists. Purchasing weapons that the military has not asked for on this scale is an ill-disguised attempt to provide a defense jobs program. I support a strong, well-equipped military, but buying weapons in 1997 that the military has not planned to purchase until after the year 2000 is not "buying in bulk" to achieve savings. It is welfare for defense contractors. Buying weapons early means turning down the spigot of technological advances, reducing to a trickle the incorporation of improvements, and shutting off the possibility of switching to a new and better design. And what will we do after the turn of the century, when these weapons are built and the shipyards and the aircraft production lines begin to be idle? Buy more weapons before they are needed, to keep the lines open? Where does it all end?

An amendment by Senator EXON, which I cosponsored, would have cut that amount from the bill and direct it toward deficit reduction. It failed. Another amendment, offered by Senator WELLSTONE, would have authorized the transfer of $1.3 billion of these unrequested funds to education programs, bringing those programs up to the President's requested level. It failed. But $855 million was added in the defense bill to a multibillion dollar ballistic missile defense program designed in part to protect the United States against the unlikely prospect of a rogue ballistic missile attack. It will not protect us against a terrorist attack using weapons of mass destruction, but only against a very limited number of ballistic missiles. Billions have been, and likely will be, spent to build this "Star Wars Lite" or "Son of Star Wars" while the needs of our people go unmet. I cannot support these kinds of skewed priorities.

Mr. President, is war so glamorous, are weapons of war so beguiling, that we must turn a blind eye to domestic cares? Must our schoolbooks fray and our bridges crumble in order to slake an unquenchable thirst for unnecessary tools of destruction? History will not judge us on our military might alone. It will also cast a critical eye on our wisdom, our learning, and our music and our arts. It will look upon our families, and the way that we treat our children.

Mr. President, Napoleon is remembered for his military exploits, for the battles he fought and the death and destruction that resulted from his actions. But in the end, for all of his personal ambitions, was France any greater as a result of his militaristic acts? What great artists, what great musicians, and what great philosophers were killed in those battles, who might have benefitted all mankind? What monies spent on Napoleon's great armies might otherwise have built spiral, soaring cathedrals, beautiful parks, and stately roads, or fed and educated children? I fear that, like Napoleon, we are in danger of letting our ambitions and priorities become skewed so far in favor of military spending and military might in the pursuit of our role as "the last superpower" that we will be remembered in history only as Napoleon is remembered, for acts of war rather than acts of progress.

Which reminds me of Robert G. Ingersoll's oration at the grave of Napoleon:

> A little while ago, I stood by the grave of the old Napoleon—a magnificent tomb of gilt and gold, fit almost for a dead deity—and gazed upon the sarcophagus of rare and nameless marble, where rest at last the ashes of that restless man. I leaned over the balustrade and thought about the career of the greatest soldier of the modern world.
>
> I saw him walking upon the banks of the Seine, contemplating suicide. I saw him at Toulon—I saw him putting down the mob in the streets of Paris—I saw him at the head of the army of Italy—I saw him crossing the bridge of Lodi with the tricolor in his hand—I saw him in Egypt in the shadows of the pyramids——
>
> I saw him conquer the Alps and mingle the eagles of France with the eagles of the crags. I saw him at Marengo—at Ulm and Austerlitz. I saw him in Russia, where the infantry of the snow and the cavalry of the wild blast scattered his legions like winter's withered leaves. I saw him at Leipsic in defeat and disaster—driven by a million bayonets back upon Paris—clutched like a wild beast—banished to Elba.
>
> I saw him escape and retake an empire by the force of his genius. I saw him upon the frightful field of Waterloo, where Chance and Fate combined to wreck the fortunes of their former king. And I saw him at St. Helena, with his hands clasped behind him, gazing out upon the sad and solemn sea.
>
> And I thought of the orphans and widows he had made—of the tears that had been shed for his glory, and of the only woman who ever loved him, pushed from his heart by the cold hand of ambition.
>
> And I said I would rather have been a French peasant and worn wooden shoes. I would rather have lived in a hut with a vine growing over the door, and the grapes growing purple in the kisses of the autumn sun.
>
> I would rather have been that poor peasant with my loving wife at my side, knitting as the day died out of the sky—with my children upon my knees and their loving arms about me—I would rather have been that man and gone down to the tongueless silence of the dreamless dust, than to have been that imperial impersonation of force and murder, known as "Napoleon the Great!"

So, Mr. President, like Ingersoll in his writing of that beautiful prose, captured my feelings as I watch what has been taking place over the last few years. I support a strong military, prepared and equipped to defend the United States and its genuine security interests abroad. But I am not so bedazzled by a military gilded and draped with a surfeit of unnecessary weapons—with trappings "fit almost for a dead deity"—that I cannot recall other priorities closer to home. I hold my family, and all American families, high on my list of priorities. I hope that in conference we will be able to rethink these spending priorities, to reduce the untimely procurement proposed in this bill, avoid a threatened veto, and produce a bill that balances our legitimate security requirements with our very critical domestic needs.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, I rise today in opposition to the Senate Armed Services Committee's national defense authorization bill for fiscal year 1997. I voted to report the bill out of the Armed Services Committee because I believe it should be openly debated on the Senate floor. I cannot support this bill in its current form as it contains significant and questionable spending increases from the original authorization requested by the Pentagon.

This bill recommends a total spending level for the Pentagon of $267.3 billion in fiscal year 1997, an extra $13 billion beyond everything the Pentagon requested for the year. In today's climate of budget cuts, Federal deficits, and balanced budget debate, it is irresponsible to spend an additional $13 billion on top of the Pentagon's budget request. It is a rare Government agency that is granted everything it asks for in its annual budget, and an additional allocation of $13 billion above and beyond its top request level is quite extreme. Balancing the budget is a priority for me. I do not believe that we can afford to spend this much money—especially when military experts question the need for it.

One example of this bill's overspending is the case of the F-16. The Department of Defense has planned to build four F-16's in fiscal year 1997. When asked what additional resources they might need related to the F-16 program, DOD responded that they ideally would like to have two more, for a total of six. The Senate Armed Services Committee somehow considered it prudent to provide an additional $107.4 million so that the Air Force may purchase a total of eight F-16's. This is a national defense bill, not a national jobs bill.

I am also puzzled by the committee's position on the funding of nuclear attack submarines. Although a full procurement plan was laid out by the committee in last year's defense authorization bill, this year's bill overrides that schedule and instead spends $701 million to accelerate the development of these submarines. Although some may assert that forcing production costs to occur earlier saves money, there is a point where acceleration of production actually costs more money in the long run. If engineers are not provided enough time to work out the bugs of a new design before building phase II of the same vehicle, cost overruns are likely to occur. There are sound reasons why we take time when developing a new combat vehicle, and to suggest that speeding up production saves money is not always the case.

Some of the most dangerous provisions in this bill are in the section on ballistic missile defense. The Senate has already considered alternative ballistic missile defense policy this year in the Defend America Act. It is clear that there is not overwhelming support for an acceleration of a ballistic missile defense system.

The President vetoed last year's defense authorization bill because it mandated deployment of a national missile defense system. The administration's current deployment policy is a 3+3 program which continues research for 3 years—into fiscal year 1999—and allows a decision to be made at that time to deploy a national missile defense system in 3 years or to continue research if the perceived threat does not warrant deployment. The committee has added $300 million to the national missile defense accounts in an effort to make sure that a system is deployable by 2003. Since the administration has not changed its position on reviewing deployment in 3 years, for the committee to suggest that deployment is needed in 3 years is beyond the previous mandate of the Senate and equivalent to asking for a veto from the President.

It is not just the ballistic missile defense policy questions that I would call into question. The committee has added $856 million to the Pentagon's $2.8 billion request for funding the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization [BMDO]. The committee boosts star wars funding by adding $40 million to the requested $7.4 million for the Applied Interceptor Technology Program; by adding $70 million to the requested $30 million for the space-based laser; by adding $140 million to the requested $482 million for the theater high altitude area defense system; and by adding $246 million to the requested $58.2 million for the Navy upper tier system. These aggressive funding increases clearly accelerate development of the star wars initiative far beyond what the Pentagon had requested; this additional level of spending is almost unfathomable in an age of fiscal austerity.

In addition, this bill contains language that would impede efforts the President is making to abide by the Antiballistic Missile Treaty. The ABM Treaty was originally negotiated in 1972 between the United States and the Soviet Union; since the breakup of the Soviet Union, President Clinton has been trying to determine how the treaty can still apply to the independent states now replacing the former Soviet Union. The committee states that "* * * the United States shall not be bound by any international agreement entered into by the President that would add one or more countries to the ABM Treaty or would otherwise convert the treaty from a bilateral to a multilateral treaty, unless the agreement is entered pursuant to the treaty making power under the Constitution." The administration has expressed serious reservations with this language. If this language is adopted, Russians will have ample reason to believe that the United States no longer intends to abide by the provisions of the ABM Treaty and would likely become reluctant to negotiate any further nuclear weapon reductions.

Mr. President, we really ought to think twice before we vote on this bill. With an extra $13 billion in increased spending levels and substantive changes in ballistic missile defense policy, I do not feel comfortable supporting it. I urge my colleagues to vote against it.

CRITICAL DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY PROGRAMS

Mr. THURMOND. I rise to discuss the important national security and environmental missions that are carried out at the Department of Energy's Savannah River Site and invite the distinguished Senator from New Mexico to engage me in a colloquy on this matter.

Mr. DOMENICI. I would be happy to engage the Senator from South Carolina in a colloquy.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, the programs carried out at Savannah River are among the most important in the Nation. From nuclear waste processing to defense production, the Savannah River Site hosts a unique mix of skills and capabilities that are critical to our national interest. Many of these capabilities do not exist anywhere else in the DOE weapons complex.

Mr. DOMENICI. I would agree with the Senator that the missions carried out at the Savannah River Site are critical, not only for the citizens of South Carolina, but for the Nation as a whole.

Mr. THURMOND. The Savannah River Site is currently the only site in the DOE weapons complex with the capability to process high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel rods in such a way that these wastes will be acceptable for permanent, geologic disposal.

Mr. DOMENICI. I am aware that S. 1745 provides an additional $43 million to keep the F- and H-canyon processing facilities in full operation in order to accelerate treatment of spent nuclear fuel and other wastes located at Savannah River. I am also aware that S. 1745 provides an additional $15 million for the newly constructed defense waste processing facility to accelerate the volume of wastes to be processed and packaged for disposal. I fully support these initiatives and will ensure that they are among my highest priorities as the Energy and Water Appropriations Subcommittee moves forward with its fiscal year 1997 appropriations bill and that bill is signed into law.

Mr. THURMOND. I appreciate the distinguished Senator's support of these programs. In addition to those environmental missions, the Savannah River Site also has very important national security missions. The committee required the Department of Energy to accelerate its phased approach to restring tritium production. Tritium is a critical element in ensuring the credibility of our nuclear deterrent and it is essential that the Department of Energy move forward as rapidly as possible to select a production technology.

In addition, the committee restored $45 million to the Department of Energy production plants and provided additional funds for manufacturing modernization, both at the National Laboratories and production plants. These programs will ensure that the Department can maintain the skills and capabilities to meet its national security missions well into the future.

Mr. DOMENICI. I am aware that S. 1745 provides an additional $60 million to the administration's request to accelerate the Department's decision to restore tritium production by the year 2005. I am also aware that S. 1745 provides an additional $45 million to restore DOE cuts to the important functions carried out at DOE production plants. I support these initiatives. I want to indicate that the important items contained in this colloquy and the other important programs for the Department of Energy can be funded if the allocation to the Energy and Water Subcommittee provided by the Senate Appropriations Committee is agreed to. The House has not agreed to such allocations as of this time. If the House and Senate appropriations conferees do not agree on such allocations, I will do my best to ensure that the programs we have just discussed and the base administration request for the Savannah River Site are among my highest priorities during the House-Senate appropriations conference.

Mr. THURMOND. I appreciate the commitment that the able Senator from New Mexico has expressed for these programs. I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure that these programs are fully implemented.

AMENDMENT NO. 4382

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I am pleased to support the Feinstein, Kyl, Grassley amendment that will establish a more vigilant system of oversight of the sale of chemicals from Government stockpiles. Recently, Senator FEINSTEIN's office in California noticed a large, commercial sale of iodine from DOD stockpiles on the open market. Iodine is one of the precursor chemicals used in the manufacture of methamphetamine. Both Senator FEINSTEIN and I have been very concerned about the manufacture and sale of this very dangerous drug. Together we have sponsored legislation that would increase controls over the chemicals used in making meth. Thus, when Senator FEINSTEIN's office noticed the sale of large quantities of iodine by DOD they asked if the Government authorities knew who their customers were. It was a good question. They did not. With the realization that the Government could have found itself selling chemicals to possible illegal drug dealers, it became clear that the amendment that is being offered was an important step. By asking for a review of future sales by the Administrator of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the amendment establishes a safeguard on inappropriate sales while still permitting agencies to sell surplus items. I am pleased to support this timely and essential amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 4420

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I would like to enter into a colloquy with the distinguished chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Senator STROM THURMOND and my distinguished colleague from Alabama, Senator HOWELL HEFLIN.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I welcome the opportunity to enter into a colloquy with the distinguished chairman and my fellow Alabamian.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I too would be happy to enter into a colloquy with my friends from Alabama.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. Chairman, I disagree with premise of Senator CONRAD's sense of the Senate amendment regarding the Air Force's National Missile Defense proposal. The program would violate the ABM Treaty and perhaps even the START I Treaty, the cornerstone of nuclear arms reduction. I certainly hope that the committee's acceptance of this sense of Senate amendment does not constitute an endorsement of this highly questionable program.

Mr. HEFLIN. I agree with Senator SHELBY that the Air Force program is a bad idea. It is dead-end technology that would leave us with a system of extremely limited capability and no growth potential to meet a changing threat. I, too, hope that the committee has not expressed an endorsement by accepting this amendment.

Mr. THURMOND. The committee does not specifically endorse the Air Force proposal. I strongly support the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization's existing National Missile Defense program which includes the ground based interceptor, ground based radar and the Space and Missile Tracking System. I agree that this proposal presents a number of serious questions regarding arms control implications and potential future growth. The committee supports the need to have a serious examination of these questions before any significant amount of funding is directed to further evaluating the Air Force Proposal.

Mr. SHELBY. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, for addressing our concerns.

Mr. SHELBY. Thank you, Mr. President.

TAXPAYER SUBSIDIES FOR MILITARY CONTRACTOR MERGERS

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I have an amendment at the desk No. 4178. It deals with taxpayer subsides for military contractor mergers. This is a very important and timely amendment. I was outraged to learn recently that taxpayers are being asked to foot the bill, in one case to the tune of up to $1.6 billion, for these mergers.

In the interest of not delaying my colleagues, and to give an opportunity to continue discussions with those who have raised concerns about my amendment, I will defer offering it until we get the DOD appropriations bill early next month.

The House Appropriations Committee adopted a bipartisan amendment identical to mine earlier this month. Therefore, that would be an appropriate vehicle.

Before I end, I just wanted to have printed in the RECORD several quotes from different groups on this subject.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

> It's time for the Pentagon to drop this ridiculous "money for nothing" policy.—Taxpayers for Common Sense
>
> The new policy is unneeded, establishes inappropriate government intervention in the economy, promotes layoffs of high-wage jobs, pays for excessive CEO salaries, and is likely to cost the government billions of dollars.—Project on Government Oversight
>
> The costs associated with mergers should not be absorbed by Federal taxpayers. This is an egregious example of unwarranted corporate welfare in our budget.—The CATO Institute
>
> . . .[T]axpayer subsidization is no more necessary today to promote acquisitions and mergers than it has ever been. Just about every major defense company today is the product of a merger, some of them decades old. . . Even today in the supposed "bull market," plenty of bidders vie for the available companies. . . It is hard to believe that if taxpayer subsidies were not available, companies would not buy available assets if it made good business sense. If they paid a little less for their acquisitions, the taxpayers rather than the stockholders would benefit.—Lawrenece J. Korb, Under-Secretary of Defense under President Reagan

Mr. HARKIN. We simply must make reforms here. So, I will pursue this on the DOD appropriations bill and try to put an end to this ill-advised waste of taxpayer money. I look forward to working together with Senator NUNN and other of my colleagues in reaching a successful conclusion to this issue. I appreciate his good faith efforts to try to resolve this and I believe the additional time may help us to that end.

TRANSFER OF THE U.S. AIR FORCE HOUSING PROJECT KINGSLEY ANNEX

Mr. NUNN. I yield to Mr. WYDEN.

Mr. WYDEN. I thank the Senator. I would just like to engage the Senator in a colloquy about a provision in this bill giving the Department of Defense the authority to transfer contaminated Federal property before the complete remediation of all the environmental problems at a property. While I believe that it is important that the Department take responsibility for the environmental clean up of its properties, I recognize that there are some properties which have been abandoned and have not received sufficent remedial action. This appears to be the case with an Air Force housing project called Kingsley Annex in Klamath Falls, OR.

Kingsley Annex consists of 290 units of housing that are sitting vacant in an area with a serious lack of housing, particularly, low income housing. A local nonprofit, SoCO Development, Inc. is interested in developing this property to be used for low-income housing; however, the property has a lead-based paint problem. The property has remained vacant because it is not high enough on the list of Air Force priorities to receive money for a clean up.

At no cost to the Federal Government, SoCO is willing to remediate the problem of lead-based paint and meet the HUD standards for reduction of lead-based paint on federally owned residential property, as well as remediate a number of other environmental hazards on the site. However, they need possession of the property before they can invest in a clean up.

In my view it is consistent with this provision for the Air Force to work with groups like SoCO Development, Inc., to use the new authority in this bill to turn over property for purposes such as low-income housing with the conditions that ensure that the environmental problems are remediated.

Mr. NUNN. I assure the Senator from Oregon that this is consistent with the provisions in this language to encourage the Air Force to resolve situations like the one at Kingsley Annex. I also assure the Senator that I will work with him to help resolve the problem at Kingsley Annex, and I encourage the Air Force to move ahead with this project under this new authority.

ABM MULTILATERALIZATION

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I wish to enter into a colloquy with the distinguished Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senator THURMOND. Today we are agreeing to a unanimous-consent agreement concerning a number of items, including the substitution of sense of the Senate language for the binding language in this bill relative to the multilateralization of the ABM Treaty.

The issue of the treaty obligations of successor states to the former Soviet Union is of particular importance to the Senate because it concerns the Senate's unique constitutional responsibility to provide advice and consent to the ratification of treaties.

The unanimous-consent agreement provides for hearings on this issue because it raises the question of whether the many treaties with the USSR, relative to arms control, trade and other matters, which are acceded to by components of the former Soviet Union, now successor states, need to be reratified by the United States Senate. This issue has important ramifications for our relations with Russia and the other successor states, and also for American security in many other important ways.

While the bill, as amended by the unanimous-consent agreement, now states what the current sense of the Senate is, the Committee hearings provided for in the unanimous-consent agreement are important because they will assure the Senate's ability to fully and deliberately consider how we implement treaties with nations that split into separate sovereign states.

Would the distinguished Chairman of the Committee agree with this assessment?

Mr. THURMOND. The distinguished ranking Member of the Armed Services Committee fairly characterizes the situation. However, the hearings on this matter do not preclude, and should not be construed as a substitute for, the Senate's constitutional role in advice and consent to ratification of treaties and international agreements.

Mr. NUNN. I thank the Chairman.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to rise in support of the Senate Armed Services Committee's recommendations contained in the fiscal year 1997 national defense authorization bill now pending before the Senate.

Overall, I believe this is an excellent bill, and I congratulate Chairman THURMOND for leading the committee through our markup of this bill. Let me also offer my sincere thanks to Les Brownlee and the staff of the committee for their professionalism and diligence in conducting a well-organized and very efficient markup process.

For the second year in a row, the Republican Congress has successfully increased the administration's inadequate defense budget request, slowing the too-rapid decline in defense spending which threatens to jeopardize the future readiness of our Armed Forces. The committee-reported bill authorizes nearly $13 billion more than the President's budget request for defense programs, with more than $7 billion allocated for procurement of additional weapons systems.

Although I am not completely satisfied with some of the committee's recommendations, the majority of this added funding is authorized for high-priority programs of the military services. The bill provides much-needed funding for essential tactical aircraft and missiles, improved communications systems, theater and national missile defense systems, and other high technology equipment which the Clinton administration failed to fund.

I am also pleased that the committee adopted most of the recommendations of the Readiness Subcommittee, including:

A provision to dispose of unneeded stockpile items which will reduce the deficit by $650 million;

A provision to terminate defense spending for a Justice Department-run center to gather intelligence on illegal drug activities; and

A provision requiring organizers of civilian sporting events to agree to reimburse the Department of Defense for the cost of providing security and other support services, but only if the event makes a profit; and

A provision requiring the military Service Chiefs to provide an analysis of an alternative readiness management system, called tiered readiness, which I proposed in a recent paper.

I appreciate very much the cooperation of my colleagues in formulating a compromise proposal to resolve the difficult issue of allocating workload between public and private maintenance depots. The provisions adopted by the committee revise the current 60–40 public-private workload allocation to a 50–50 formula, pending receipt of core workload data from the Department of Defense. The committee also adopted a requirement for competition at Kelly and McClellan Air Force Bases in advance of implementing any privatization-in-place proposal.

The committee also adopted several other amendments dealing with policy matters of particular importance.

First, the committee adopted an amendment to repeal provisions of the fiscal year 1996 Defense Authorization Act related to missing service personnel. These provisions were identified by the military leadership as burdensome and unnecessary. I appreciate the support of my committee colleagues in repealing these unworkable provisions, and I look forward to their support in our conference with the House of Representatives.

The committee also adopted an amendment to provide the Secretary of Defense with the authority to waive counterproductive "Buy America" restrictions which were adopted in last year's defense authorization bill. The new waiver may be exercised at the Secretary's discretion to allow the Department of Defense to purchase items from a firm located in a foreign country, if that country has a reciprocal defense procurement memorandum of understanding with the United States. The new waiver will once again allow free trade between the United States and our allies for defense contracts.

The committee also adopted a proposal directing the Department of Defense to follow a uniform policy with respect to military personnel who have illnesses that prevent them from serving overseas. In my view, it is unconscionable that military personnel infected with the AIDS virus would be treated any differently than others who cannot deploy for health reasons. This provision would ensure uniformity in the Department's discharge policy for nondeployable personnel. I sincerely hope we are able to maintain this fair and compassionate position in our conference with the House.

Again, I offer my sincere thanks and congratulations to Chairman THURMOND and Senator NUNN and the committee staff for their hard work in successfully crafting a balanced defense bill. However, I am sorry to note that the practice of pork-barrel spending is still evident in the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Mr. President, in past years, defense bills have been filled with pork-barrel projects which did little to enhance our military capabilities. Last year, the Congress wasted nearly $4 billion on pork-barrel projects like the Seawolf submarine, B–2 bomber, and other wasteful projects. This year, I am pleased that the practice of adding funds for Members' special interests seems to have declined significantly. However, there are several programmatic recommendations in this bill which, in my view, constitute pork-barrel spending.

First, and most egregious, the Committee added almost $600 million in unrequested military construction projects. The close attention focused on military construction pork in the past at least forced greater scrutiny of the add-on list this year. All of these projects met the established criteria for add-ons, and most of them were included on the military Services' priority lists. However, I cannot accept the apparent assumption that projects planned for construction in the next century are as high a priority as projects planned for next year's budget, and I had hoped that the Committee would focus on adding money for projects planned for 1998 or 1999.

The military construction projects added by the Committee were not included in my Subcommittee's mark, and I strongly objected to their inclusion in the Committee bill. At the appropriate time, I will offer an amendment to strike these projects.

Another perennial favorite is the addition of hundreds of millions of dollars for unrequested equipment for the National Guard and Reserve. This bill includes an additional $759.8 million in the National Guard and Reserve Equipment account, plus as much as $242 million in additional unrequested equipment earmarked for the Guard and Reserve in the regular Service procurement accounts. Within this amount is $284 million for 6 unrequested C–130J aircraft for the Guard and Reserve—a tactical airlift aircraft that the active Air Force has not yet been able to afford.

The active Air Force did request funding to procure one C–130J tactical airlift aircraft. However, the Committee decided not to authorize this asset for the active Air Force. Instead, the Committee recommended $204.5 million for an additional three C–130Js, including funding to modify these aircraft to a weather reconnaissance role, and then transferred all four aircraft to WC–130 weather reconnaissance squadron in Mississippi. It is inexplicable to me why the Committee would choose to divert these aircraft from the active Air Force, where they would have replaced aging C–130E models, and instead use them to replace newer C–130H models in a weather reconnaissance unit. Further, the Air Force plans to eliminate nearly 90 aircraft from its current C–130 fleet to conform with the Mobility Requirements Study, yet the Committee recommended adding these 4 aircraft plus 6 more C–130s for the Guard and Reserve.

The Committee's rationale for adding these aircraft, reflected in the report language, appears to be that the weather reconnaissance mission could benefit from near-term modernization. That argument, in my view, could easily apply to the thousands of Service priorities which were not included in this bill and which, in my view, would contribute much more to our national defense than an upgraded weather reconnaissance capability.

Mr. President, I am well aware of the argument that the active military Services do not adequately provide for the needs of the Guard and Reserve, but I do not believe the Congress, or the individual Adjutants General, can properly prioritize their needs. The Senate Armed Services Committee has repeatedly urged the Services to include Guard and Reserve requirements in their budget requests. I think we should enlist the obviously widespread support of our Senate colleagues and the State Adjutants General to ensure that Guard and Reserve priorities are included in the budget formulation process, rather than continuing to impose on the Guard and Reserve our own politicized judgments about specific weapons systems and projects.

Another questionable add-on in this bill is a $15 million increase for the High Frequency Active Auroral Research Program, or HAARP. This program has benefited from congressional add-ons since 1990, costing a total of $76 million in just seven years, with another $115 million required before the project can be completed in 2001. Yet it remains unclear what military benefit might accrue from the construction of a facility to study the aurora borealis.

Proponents of the program argue that it should be a part of the counterproliferation program of the Department of Defense because it will be able to detect underground tunnels and structures. However, the Air Force, which manages the program for the Department of Defense, noted in April of last year that the research is not sufficiently mature to warrant its inclusion in the nonproliferation and counterproliferation program.

Proponents also argue that the program will have application for communications, navigation, and surveillance missions. Yet, the Department of Defense did not include this $15 million in its budget request for fiscal year 1997, and it was not included on their priority lists for additional funds. That indicates to me that, in competition with other militarily relevant programs, HAARP is not a high priority for the military.

Mr. President, in my view, the Congress should stop compelling the military Services to pursue research programs that do not meet their requirements. Spending hundreds of millions of defense dollars to study the energy of the aurora borealis is, in my view, and unconscionable waste of taxpayer dollars. This program should be turned over to a privately funded university, research institution, or other organization where it could be pursued as a purely scientific endeavor.

The Committee also included a provision in the bill that establishes a cumbersome and expensive new bureaucracy to coordinate the Navy's oceanographic research activities. The addition of $99.4 million for two new oceanographic ships does not trouble me, since these ships were included in the Navy's shipbuilding plan. Nor does the addition of $6 million to replace worn equipment used by the Navy in its oceanographic survey and research activities. In fact, I do not necessarily dispute the assertion that Navy oceanographic research is underfunded. However, I see no need to establish a multitiered organization to ensure that the Navy has access to all Federal and civil research in oceanography.

The bill sets aside $13 million to fund a new bureaucracy which would, in my view, only hinder the efficient and effective expenditure of Federal funds for militarily relevant oceanographic research. In addition, the criteria and processes for appointment to these various new entities seem vague, as do the particular responsibilities and authorities of these seemingly overlapping organizations. Finally, the outyear funding requirements for this new bureaucracy are unknown, and I question whether the Navy can afford this potential funding drain in the future.

Mr. President, I believe the committee would have been better served to increase the funding available to the Navy for its oceanography program, together with specific legislative authority for the Navy to explore private sector efforts which might be of utility to the Navy. In this way, the Navy would be spared the burden of a new bureaucracy and, at the same time, would be able to benefit from privately funded research and other activities.

Finally, again this year, the committee included legislative language and additional funding for the New Attack Submarine program which is designed to ensure that the first two, and perhaps four, of these submarines are allocated equally between the two competing shipyards. The legislative language is essentially the same as that adopted last year, which earmarks at least one submarine each for Newport News and Electric Boat shipyards. The bill includes an additional $701 million for advance procurement for the second new attack submarine to ensure that Newport News receives its fair share of this program.

Mr. President, I did not support this approach last year because it defeats any pretense at competition between the yards, earmarks multi-billions of dollars for each of the yards, and is based on a faulty assumption that the Nation requires two shipyards to ensure its nuclear submarine industrial base. I still question why the Navy is retiring SSN-688 submarines early in order to accommodate the Seawolf and new attack submarines in a drastically reduced attack submarine fleet, and I do not understand why we are buying New Attack Submarines, which are less capable than Seawolf submarines, when they cost as much as Seawolf submarines—about $2.5 billion each. I think the committee should consider deferring this funding until it is necessary and allocate this $701 million to other Navy priorities.

Mr. President, these pork-barrel projects add up to more than $2 billion. I am astonished that, once again, after fighting hard to sustain a much-needed increase in the defense budget, the committee chose to spend these funds on pork.

Last year, we wasted $4 billion, or more than half of the total Defense budget increase, on pork-barrel projects. I suppose this year's bill shows progress of a sort—we are only wasting $2 billion.

But, Mr. President, I will say again that the American people will not stand for this type of wasteful spending of their tax dollars. If we in Congress refuse to halt the pork-barrelling, it will be more and more difficult to explain to the American people why we need to maintain adequate defense spending.

Mr. President, recent polls indicate that national defense will probably not be an issue in the Presidential campaign. Less than 5 percent of those polled indicated that defense is an issue of concern to them in considering their vote. Instead, Americans are concerned about balancing the budget, reducing taxes, and improving their quality of life, among other things.

So how do we explain to the citizens of this country why we need to spend $11 billion more for defense this year, when we waste $2 billion on pork? How do we explain why we need to maintain a strong military to ensure our Nation's future security? How do we credibly argue that this added $11 billion is necessary for national defense, when $2 billion is spent for projects that do little or nothing to contribute to our security?

Mr. President, we have made progress in reducing the amount of defense pork-barrelling. But we have a long way to go—$2 billion, to be precise. For the sake of ensuring public support for adequate defense spending in the future, we have to completely eliminate pork-barrel spending now.

Mr. President, let me conclude by saying, again, that I believe this is, overall, a very good defense bill, and I voted in favor of reporting the bill to the Senate. However, with the budget resolution conference completed, this bill will have to be reduced by about $1.7 billion to stay within the budget targets for defense. To meet this target, I urge my committee colleagues to look carefully at these pork-barrel add-ons. We must protect the high-priority military programs in this bill which contribute to the future readiness of our Armed Forces. We should cut out the pork first.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, the clarion call of this Congress, and the current administration, has been to balance the budget. To reduce the Federal deficit and balance the budget. I believe that, with the passage of this bill, the Senate takes a step away from that goal. The fiscal year 1997 Department of Defense authorization bill authorizes a total of approximately $265.7 billion for national defense programs, which is more than $11.2 billion more than the administration requested. I have to question the sincerity, and certainly the logic, of those who ardently advocate for a balanced budget while refusing to look realistically at defense spending.

When we speak of health care, education, and foreign aid, the self-professed fiscal conservatives rave about how the public must be prepared to sacrifice today to preserve the future. About how the Federal Government must cut costs and eliminate waste. And about how there is not one extra penny to spare for even the most essential domestic programs. Yet, when we even broach the subject of significantly reducing military spending, these same fiscal conservatives take to the floor and raise the specter of national security as justification for maintaining an unconscionable level of funding.

Congress and the administration must share the blame for the failure to significantly reduce defense spending. Over the next 6 years, both the administration's and the Congress' budget plans call for $1.6 trillion in military spending. This would mean that during the decade of the 1990's, the United States Government will have spent somewhere in the neighborhood of $2.7 trillion on its military. This, when we haven't even yet begun to pay off the tremendous debts incurred during the massive military build-up of the 1980's.

For fiscal year 1997, the Senate has added $11.2 billion dollars to the administration's request for the Department of Defense. Much has been made of the fact that each of the Joint Chiefs came to Capitol Hill earlier this year and presented a list of additional programs and projects they needed beyond the initial request. These soon became referred to as their wish lists. And, of course, Congress dutifully added the funds for those items.

There has developed an attitude here that to question the funding requests from the Pentagon is to undermine the Nation's security. To spend a penny less than what is requested, it is suggested, will put our security into jeopardy. I think we should recognize that the posture and weapons systems requested by the Defense Department as essential to security do not carry with them any mandate from heaven. It is the estimation of dedicated people working in an enormously complex bureaucracy and influenced heavily by the interests and biases of that bureaucracy. Moreover, it must be remembered that the Defense Department defines and regards "national security" in the most narrow vein. Only the military factor is considered.

But when Congress evaluates the national security, it must recognize that our true security is a combination of economic health, political stability, and domestic tranquility, as well as our military resources. Congress has the unique task of judging the relationship of all these factors as it attempts to ensure our overall national security. We have the responsibility of prioritizing our limited resources, and we must keep in mind that the most important element of our defense policy is the will of our people. The disillusionment and dissatisfaction caused by the lack of adequate education, health services, and housing creates as great a threat to our national security as anything we may face outside our own borders.

President Eisenhower, one of America's most celebrated and dedicated military leaders, used to say that military strength is only the sharp edge of the sword. The strength of the blade, and therefore of the sword, is based on the economic might and political freedom of the American people. Today, the United States leads the world in military power, yet we lag behind other developed nations in literacy, per capita income, infant mortality, doctor-patient ratios, and other important indicators of a society's strength.

We must realize that our national security is not solely dependant on our military might. The prevailing consensus around here seems to be that if it doesn't fly, shoot, float or explode, then it isn't relevant to the security of our country. But unless we can enjoy a strong economy, adequate housing, good nutrition, educational opportunity, satisfying employment, and the liberties on which our Nation was founded, we are not truly secure, no matter how many arms and men we can muster against an enemy. This broader definition of "national security" must be kept in mind when considering the allocation of our financial resources in the federal budget. In my opinion, the Senate has failed in its responsibility to do so today by authorizing over $267 billion dollars for military spending at the expense of much needed domestic programs.

We must examine our military requirements carefully, so that we don't rob ourselves of the resources necessary to provide a high standard of living for every American. This bill fails in that regard, and therefore I cannot support it.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the DOD authorization bill for fiscal year 1997. This is a responsible bill that provides continued national security and properly funds modernization and operating accounts.

As the front page of any newspaper in this country today reminds us, we continue to live in a dangerous and uncertain world. Civil and international conflicts can begin by the assassination of a national leader, the blockade of shipping lanes, or ethnic strife. Our military response to these conflicts can vary from peacekeeping, humanitarian, and peace enforcement operations to full scale deployment. Because we continue to ask our military to participate in more and more operations other than war, we not only must plan and prepare to send our troops to an international border to protect our allies or our citizens living overseas, but to protect foreign civilians in peacekeeping and humanitarian operations.

While the fiscal year 1997 DOD authorization bill is nearly $12 billion higher than the President's budget request, it keeps total defense spending $5.6 billion below last year's inflation adjusted level. Although some of my colleagues may think this a negligible reduction, this is the 12th year in a row where the U.S. defense budget is less than it was the year before; $7.6 billion of these additional funds were allocated to modernization of our weapons systems to that the men and women of our Armed Forces have access to the best technology and safest equipment possible.

At a time when we are asking our soldiers to do more and more with less, we must strive to provide them with reliable systems that are capable of carrying out a variety of missions.

Concern over the funding levels for the new military equipment was noted by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Shalikavili, is especially worrisome in the area of procurement and research and development. During their testimony before the Senate Armed Service Committee, General Shalikavili and the service chiefs recommended that the procurement account be funded at $60 billion in fiscal year 1997.

This bill also increases funding in the service's day-to-day operating accounts. Reduced funding threatened to limit the ability of the services and Guard and Reserve forces to carry out the airlift, support, medical, and counterdrug tasks asked of them. For example, the committee increase funding for the Air National Guard by $76 million to ensure that it could carry out its aircraft and mission support operations. The committee also rightly increased the level of funding for the Defense Department's counterdrug activities. These missions, especially those carried out by the National Guard, have had a substantial impact on reducing the flow of drugs into this Nation. As a Senator from California, where illegal drugs are an epidemic, I am very pleased with this action.

This year's defense bill also recognizes the needs of our men and women in uniform. I believe the committee wisely included additional military construction projects, a 4-percent increase in the basic allowance for quarters, and a 3-percent pay raise to better our uniformed military's standard of living.

I do not, however, support all the extra funds that were added to this bill. I felt it important to support Senator DORGAN's amendment to cut $300 million from national missile defense funding. I believe that a national missile defense is a laudable goal, and I certainly want to see different Anti-Ballistic Missile [ABM] Treaty compliant national missile defense systems studied. But, the cold war is over. There is no immediate or even midterm threat to U.S. security that suggests the need for an immediate development and deployment of a national missile defense system. Only Russia and China have nuclear armed ICBM's that can reach the United States—and China has no more than a dozen or so of these weapons. There is consensus within the national intelligence community that it is very unlikely that additional countries can or will build ICBM's within the next two decades. In addition, the Pentagon's Joint Requirements Oversight Council [JROC] believes that with current and projected ballistic missile threats, the funding level for developing a national missile defense system should be no more than $500 million per year.

Funding at this level will allow the United States to continue to field critical theater missile defenses and national missile defense systems to meet projected threats, save money, and achieve an affordable ballistic missile defense. Should threats to the United States materialize, it will give us sufficient lead time to respond to those threats, at that time and as necessary, with appropriately higher funding and a more aggressive national missile defense program.

I also supported the Wellstone amendment to transfer $1.3 billion—just 10 percent of the $13 billion increase in funding from the President's request—from DOD to higher education and employment and training programs. California is one of the most heavily impacted States by the cuts. This amendment would have provided the needed extra funding for education and job training programs.

Senator WELLSTONE's amendment would have transferred $806 million from DOD's coffers for Pell grants, Perkins loans, and direct student loans. Employment and training programs for dislocated workers, summer youth jobs, school-to-work, and one-stop job training centers would have received a total of $504 million. All of these programs are as important to California as adequate defense spending and I am sorry that the Wellstone amendment did not pass.

In conclusion, Mr. President, I would like to make special note of a major victory for the women who serve in our armed forces. I am speaking of the passage of the repeal of current law that prohibits abortion at an overseas U.S. military facility even if the woman paid for the procedure herself. Forcing a woman to fly to the United States to obtain an abortion creates a double standard that is not only unjust, but potentially dangerous to the health of our women in uniform and military spouses. I am very pleased to see this amendment pass.

ALLIED BURDENSHARING

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I was pleased to be the principal cosponsor of an amendment offered by the Senator from Iowa [Mr. HARKIN] to the Defense authorization bill, amendment No. 4177. It was my intention to join Senator HARKIN on the floor to speak in favor of the amendment that seeks to obtain a greater sharing of the financial and other burdens of stationing American troops in foreign countries. However, Senator HARKIN successfully negotiated with the managers of the bill and they agreed to accept the amendment. As a consequence, it was hastily offered and approved by a voice vote last night while I was away from the Senate floor and could not reach the floor before that action was concluded.

Because of my strong support for this amendment, I would like to insert in the RECORD the statement I intended to make when the amendment was offered, and I ask unanimous consent that the statement be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ALLIED BURDENSHARING

Mr. President, I am pleased to join with the Senator from Iowa in offering this amendment. Unlike previous burdensharing amendments that simply asked our allies to pay more of the costs of stationing U.S. troops abroad, this amendment incorporates a more comprehensive definition of the price of international peace and security. Forward deployed American troops represent only one element of a collective security approach to maintaining international security and fostering peace and democracy. An equitable distribution of the costs of collective security must recognize and include other components in the burdensharing calculations, and that is what we have done in this amendment.

Our amendment, which mirrors the Shays/Frank amendment that passed overwhelmingly in the House of Representatives, instructs the President to focus on four areas in which to seek greater contributions from countries that have U.S. forces stationed on their soil. To satisfy the terms of the amendment, the increases can be in one or more of these areas at the President's discretion.

First is the traditional request that host nations pick up more of the costs for forward deployed U.S. troops. The amendment calls on the President to increase host nation support over the next four years with a goal of reaching 75 percent of the non-personnel costs incurred by U.S. forces. Japan already pays 79 percent of these costs and Korea pays 63 percent, but our European allies only contribute an average of 24 percent. The CBO has calculated a potential savings of $11.3 billion by 2002 if this provision is fully implemented.

The second area of focus is overall defense spending by our allies as a percentage of their respective GDPs. The U.S. currently spends 4.7 percent of GDP on defense while many of our allies, including Germany, Japan, Italy, and Canada spend less than 3 percent. The amendment calls on the President to encourage allied nations to increase their defense spending as a percentage of GDP by 10 percent or to a level commensurate with that of the U.S. But as with host nation support, this category will be appropriate for some nations and not others. For example, the President might choose to encourage the Canadians to raise their defense budget from its current level of 1.9 percent of GDP to 2.09 percent, but Greece already spends 5.6 percent of GDP on defense, more than the U.S.

The third category is foreign assistance. If the President thought an ally should be doing more in this area he could encourage that country to increase its foreign assistance by 10 percent or to a level commensurate with that of the U.S. I personally believe that we have cut our own foreign aid too deeply in recent years. But if, because of our budgetary situation, the U.S. cannot continue to fund important development programs that contribute to stability in many nations, then countries that do not spend large amounts on their military should be encouraged to pick up the slack. The purpose of this amendment is to share the load, not to make every allied nation contribute the same amount in every category.

Finally the amendment instructs the President to push allied nations to increase their military contributions to U.N. and other multilateral peace-keeping operations. This provision makes the clearest break with Cold War thinking and recognizes how important international and regional peacekeeping efforts have become. From Cambodia to Liberia to Bosnia and dozens of other trouble spots, peacekeepers work to keep tensions from erupting into conflict and to contain the conflicts that do break out. Often in these situations America cannot send troops for fear that one side or the other would seek to make them the target. Although Japan and Germany are constrained from sending troops in many cases, they could do more to provide equipment, logistical services and financial support to peacekeeping efforts. So could other nations.

If the President cannot convince our allies to improve their contribution in any of these areas, the amendment lays out a menu of options for him to use to prompt cooperation. The options include: reducing troop levels stationed abroad; imposing taxes or fees similar to those that other nations impose on U.S. forces stationed abroad; reducing the amount of U.S. contributes to the NATO budget or other bilateral programs; or taking any other action within his power. In reality the President already has the authority to take any of these steps. This language simply urges him to use these tools to encourage burden sharing. These options are suggestions and are not mandatory.

During the Cold War, the United States maintained the military industrial might to counter the threat posed by the former Soviet Union. In doing so, we paid a very heavy price and the American people made many sacrifices, most importantly in the lives of American men and women who fought and died in Korea, Vietnam, and elsewhere. But we also sacrificed a great deal of our national wealth to build and maintain a military superior to all others, capable of defending not only the United States but also our allies in Europe and the Pacific. In addition to providing the primary defense for the free world, we aided the devastated economies of Europe and Japan to recover after the war and then devoted our efforts to development in the Third World. These contributions were also important to maintaining stability and security.

For much of the Cold War, we had the only economy capable of sustaining such an effort. This is no longer the case. The European Union has passed the U.S. as the largest integrated economy in the world, and Japan's per capita output is very close to ours. With the Cold War gone and the threat of global war fading, it is time for the rest of the industrialized nations to take on their fair share of world responsibility. The United States will continue to lead the way, but we can no longer do it all ourselves.

Both the Defense Department and the State Department are on record in support of this amendment. According to the State Department the amendment "supports U.S. policy objectives in achieving an equitable responsibility sharing of global security interests with our allies." This amendment does not tie the President's hands. He maintains the flexibility to target different countries in different areas and to use the tools he feels are most appropriate.

Not only is this approach supported by the Administration, but because of the potential to save the American taxpayers $11.3 billion by 2002, the amendment has garnered the endorsement of The Concord Coalition Citizens' Council, Taxpayers for Common Sense, and Citizens Against Government Waste. This amendment makes sense both for budgetary reasons and on grounds of fairness, and it supports Administration policy. I urge my colleagues to support it.

I yield the floor.

Mr. KENNEDY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KEMPTHORNE). The Senator from Massachusetts.

MINIMUM WAGE AND HEALTH INSURANCE REFORM

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, under the Senate schedule, when the Senate returns a week from Monday, we will have the opportunity to debate the minimum wage increase, the proposal that will be before the U.S. Senate. In anticipation that minimum wage really is the next order of business, I will address the Senate briefly this afternoon in terms of what I think are the issues that will be considered. I think it is important, as we move through the Fourth of July recess, that the American people understand the issues that will be considered, under a relatively short time agreement, with the vote coming up in the early part of the week, when we return.

The issues that will be before the Senate and the American people are extremely important to working families, especially low-income working families, and their children.

I think it is important that we begin to think about these matters, now that the issues on the defense authorization bill have been addressed and pretty well resolved. Then I would like to just take a few moments to address where we are, as I consider it, in terms of the health insurance reform bill that was passed unanimously out of our committee and on the floor of the Senate and where we are in terms of the discussions that have been taking place in recent days.

But on the first issue, on the minimum wage, Mr. President, I think it is regrettable that our Republican colleagues continue to try to do all they can to undermine a fair increase. We will have the opportunity to vote on a 90 cent increase in the minimum wage over a 2-year period. Nonetheless, it is important to know that not only will we have the opportunity to vote for the increase, but that there will be an alternative before the U.S. Senate that will undermine in a very dramatic, important and significant way the effects of the increase for working families.

Mr. President, that is the particular part of the debate that I would like to talk about briefly this afternoon. At every turn, wherever we can provide some protection, there will be at least a proposal to minimize that protection for workers in the form of delays in the increase of the minimum wage.

In the proposal that will be the alternative to our increase in the minimum wage, the Republican proposal will, first of all, put off any increase until January 1, 1997.

That means for another 6 months, minimum wage workers will go without a raise. They have already had no raise over the period of the last 5 years. They will be denied approximately $500 more in additional pay that they would have received over the next 6 months—$500 that could buy medicine for sick children, new school clothes, or even Christmas presents. Only the Grinch would be mean enough to delay this raise for our poorest workers until after Christmas. Surely, our Republican colleagues find this kind of meanness embarrassing.

It is important to know that in the proposal that was introduced 2 years ago, the first phase of the increase in the minimum wage was to go into effect in this July period, to go up 40 cents, and then an additional 45 cents a year from now. Now we will have before the Senate the alternative of delaying any kind of increase until January 1997, at the earliest.

Next, our opponents propose an increase—but just a flat increase in the minimum wage, as we had in 1989, signed by a Republican President. Under our Republican proposal, we will find that the minimum-wage proposition that they support creates a subminimum wage for any worker who takes a job with a new employer.

Their proposal would allow employers to pay any new employee a subminimum wage of $4.25 an hour for 6 months. This harsh provision could have a serious depressing effect on the already depressed wages of large numbers of working Americans. Each year 6 million workers lose their jobs and struggle to find new ones, and all of them would be subjected to this subminimum wage.

Our Republican friends call this an opportunity wage. But the only opportunity in sight is the opportunity for employers to exploit their new workers. No one will be hurt more by this than the downsized, laid-off workers in a time of high unemployment who cannot find jobs equivalent to the jobs they lost. Not only will they face the indignity of having their wages fall to the minimum, but they will find themselves falling to a subminimum wage.

The past year has been a time of economic expansion and relative prosperity for our economy as a whole. But again and again we see the stories of white and blue-collar workers laid off after long careers in good-paying jobs. Many of these workers have found themselves forced to accept minimum-wage jobs after being laid off by a downsizing employer.

Mr. President, what we are saying here is that anyone who enters the job market will not be eligible for an increase in the minimum wage for 180 days. They may work for a period of time, they may be laid off from that job, they may go to another job, and they are still not eligible for another 180 days.

At least in 1989, when we were debating the increase in the minimum wage, they called it a training wage for a period of 90 days. Even though there was no requirement to provide either education or training during that period of time—they just labeled it as a training wage.

This one before us now in the U.S. Senate is 180 days, without any kind of suggestion that there is a training wage for a minimum-wage job. This does not suggest that for entry into a minimum-wage job there is not any training—there has to be some. There is training, but for the most part that can be done within a week or a 2-week period for minimum-wage jobs.

But what we are basically saying is that there is a delay, and the effect of the delay is going to mean a loss for those who are eligible for the increase in the minimum wage. Then for every person who enters the job market—the 6 or 7 million Americans who are out there who want to work, provide for their families, and are being laid off of these minimum-wage jobs—they go to a new job and they are again held at $4.25. They do not get the increase that other minimum-wage workers would get because they are a new entry into the job market.

At least the House of Representatives said, "Well, we'll do that with regard to teenagers." Not the U.S. Senate. They are going to do it to anyone, any single mother, and any single mother that may be trying to get off welfare and trying to provide for her family. The way the Senate Republican proposal is going to work is that it is going to say, "If you go into the job market for 180 days, you're still going to be at $4.25. Then if you have to take a few days off—maybe change jobs because you have to look after a child—you're going to be continued at $4.25 for a period of time." It is effectively undermining the impact of any increase in the minimum wage.

So, Mr. President, the result of their plight is to make it more painful; workers will fall farther and farther behind. We are talking about minimum-wage jobs that are the least-skilled jobs. They are jobs for which little or no training is needed—at most a few hours or days. Yet the Republican amendment doubles the duration of the subminimum wage of the House-passed bill, from 90 to 180 days, far beyond any reasonable training or tryout period.

There is no good reason for this harsh proposal other than Republican opposition to the minimum wage and any Government protection for working people. In the Republican view, the lower the minimum wage, the better. Our Republican friends would rather have no minimum wage at all. If American workers' wages have to sink to the third world level to make business competitive, so be it.

I oppose the subminimum wage in the House-passed bill which applies only to teenagers during the first 90 days of employment with any employer. Many of the 18- or 19-year-olds need a living wage as much as any adult, especially if they are young welfare mothers willing to work for a living. The notion that they need training for 3 months in jobs like burger flipping or waiting on tables, washing dishes or bagging groceries is absurd.

The Senate Republican proposal is even more objectionable than the House proposal because it imposes a longer subminimum wage for workers at all ages, not just youths. Employers would be authorized to pay a subminimum wage to a 50-year-old steelworker who is down on his luck after his plant is closed. Office workers whose 30-year careers have ended in layoffs could be paid a subminimum wage.

Republicans cannot hide behind their typical excuses about the minimum wage applying to wealthy teenagers who do not really need a job. The facts are plain: the Republicans simply want to drive workers' wages as low as they can, regardless of the workers' age, experience or family situation.

Mr. President, the third part of the Republican alternative, besides the delay in the effective date and the 180-day delay in terms of putting the minimum wage into effect, is the exemption for workers in small businesses. Businesses with less than $500,000 in annual sales would be exempt from any minimum wage. There are 10.5 million workers who are employed in those firms today. I say they deserve protection, too.

The protection is not something small business needs. The economy has added more than 10 million jobs since Congress last raised the minimum wage in 1991. Small business often claims to have led the way. The minimum wage has not been a drag on job creation. It strengthens job creation by putting more money into circulation. Even the National Federation of Independent Businesses' own survey found that the minimum wage is not a critical issue for small business. In that survey, the minimum wage ranked 62d in importance out of 75 issues—62d out of 75.

So these proposals are a cruel hoax on low-wage workers. They are nothing more than an attempt to deny a fair increase in a minimum wage to millions of low-income Americans, even while appearing to grant an increase to those people. There is no accurate information on how many of the 10.5 million workers in small firms will be denied a raise they would otherwise receive, but there is no justification for denying even one working American the right to a living wage.

What possible rationale can there be for forcing millions of Americans to continue working at wages that everyone knows are poverty wages, wages so low that they cannot support a family?

The Republican alternative says that the reason is to save jobs. But the fact is that the modest increase we are proposing will not cause job losses, and may even lead to an increase in employment. I point out that the Wharton School, the DRI examination of our minimum wage increase says that there is at risk 20,000 jobs—20,000 jobs—20,000 jobs, Mr. President, and still we find our Republican friends say, "Well, we can't afford any kind of increase because we're going to lose those jobs." The other studies which I referred to today, the 12 other studies, the most current show there is a good possibility it will mean expanded jobs, because many people will go back into the market if they think there is a possibility to have a livable wage. The money that is expended by those individuals will create sufficient demand to increase employment as well.

So, Mr. President, the expansion of employment is exactly what happened in New Jersey in 1992 and is happening, I point out, in my own State of Massachusetts and the State of Vermont. The last two States who have increased the minimum wage are Massachusetts and Vermont. They have seen the greatest decline in unemployment that we have had in New England. Over the period of the last 4 to 5 months, we have seen the greatest decline in unemployment in the two States that have increased their minimum wage in the early part of this year. There are just no real, meaningful studies that have demonstrated that there would be any important job loss.

Mr. President, one reason for that result is reflected in an analysis released by Salomon Brothers in the U.S. Equity Research report of April 22, 1996. The Salomon Brothers predicted retail businesses would benefit from an increase in the minimum wage due to the enhanced purchasing power it would create for many low-income consumers. This is the Salomon Brothers. The Salomon Brothers recommend purchasing a number of retailing stocks because of the benefits they will receive from the increased purchasing power of low-income workers.

The report specifically concludes that the benefits from increased sales would generally outweigh the modest rise in wage costs. It is not fear of job loss by those who oppose minimum wage increases and who support the Republican proposals; what motivates these groups primarily is greed. There is no other way to explain the intense opposition to the minimum wage by organizations like the National Restaurant Organization. The Restaurant Association claims that a minimum wage increase would be a job killer, even though the restaurant industry has seen enormous employment growth since the last minimum wage increase in 1991.

In fact, the actual experience of the restaurant industry shows that the minimum wage increasae would be good for business and good for the economy.

For 3 years before the 2-step minimum wage increase in 1990–91, employment growth in the restaurant industry was falling, along with the real wages of minimum wage workers. Restaurant industry employment growth fell from 3.1 percent in 1987 to 2.8 percent in 1988, to 2.3 percent in 1989, to 1.7 percent in 1990, and actually decline by 0.5 percent in 1991.

But in 1992, the first full year after the 90-cent minimum wage increase took effect in April 1991, employment growth rebounded by 2.1 percent. And in each of the next 2 years, employment growth accelerated, reaching 3.2 percent in 1993 and 3.6 percent in 1994.

From 1991 to 1995, the restaurant industry added almost 800,000 new jobs! If that's what the Republican Party calls job-killing, I say let's have more of it.

With respect to this small business subminimum wage, it is critical to remember not only that the last minimum wage increase took effect in April 1991, but that the 1989 amendments expanded coverage to include employees in small restaurants who had formerly been excluded.

That expansion should have compounded the job-killing effect of the increase, but it did not. Instead, the restaurant industry saw an expansion of job growth, record profits, and mindboggling increases in CEO pay. The sub-minimum was not needed. Small businesses don't need it, and their employees don't deserve that harsh and unfair treatment.

The argument that the minimum wage kills jobs is nonsense. Both Vermont and Massachusetts raised their State minimum wage to $4.75 in January of this year, while our neighbors in New Hampshire and New York did not. What has happened since then? Have we lost jobs in Massachusetts and Vermont? Far from it.

Since January, when these States raised their minimum wage, unemployment in both Massachusetts and Vermont have fallen. We haven't lost jobs—we've added them.

But what happened to our neighbors who left their minimum wage unchanged? Haven't they done better? No, far from it. In both New York and New Hampshire, unemployment has risen since January from 4.9 to 5.1 percent in New York and from 4.2 to 4.4 percent in New Hampshire. Unemployment fell where the minimum wage has increased, and rose where the minimum wage was frozen at $4.25.

Giving working Americans a living wage will not cost jobs. Making all employers pay a living wage will not cost jobs. The minimum wage law in Massachusetts does not exempt businesses with sales of $500,000 or less, and neither does the minimum wage law in Vermont.

Have small businesses been demanding an exemption from the minimum wage? No, they have not. Studies cited by the Small Business Administration show that only 7 percent of small businesses consider the minimum wage a critical problem. As I pointed out earlier, a survey prepared by the National Federation of Independent Businesses ranked the minimum wage as 62d in importance out of 75 issues.

Another study, funded by the NFIB Foundation, revealed that even among the smallest of businesses—those with less than 10 employees—only 6 percent consider the minimum wage a critical problem.

I have been over here the last 35 years. This is the first time, Mr. President, other than a training wage, that we have seen this kind of alternative, to extend the existing minimum wage for a period of time, to delay the effective day, or to exclude massive numbers that will be affected by the minimum wage. If this Republican proposal is enacted, it will be the first time since 1938, when we enacted the minimum wage, that we have decreased the coverage of the minimum wage.

All we are trying to do is provide a livable wage for people. The only way we can get this before the U.S. Senate is to permit this alternative. The alternative delays the effective date. It would deny working families $500. It delays the effective date for people that move from job to job, the 6 million Americans that move every year or so in terms of their jobs. It will delay them for 180 days repeatedly. This has been the most important penalty that we have seen in any possible increase in the minimum wage.

Usually, when the time comes to ultimately vote on minimum wage—and it may be a begrudging vote—we vote on the increase. What we will see here, if the Republican proposal passes, is that they will take away the increase in the minimum wage in one hand and go back and issue the press releases about how they voted for the increase in the other. Wait and see.

The American people are too smart for that, Mr. President. They ought to understand exactly what is being considered.

There is no excuse to deny a minimum wage increase to any American who works in interstate commerce. The Republican proposals are mean-spirited ideas that will hurt the poorest of workers. I hope my Republican colleagues will reconsider these objectionable proposals and join us in the coming days in supporting a fair increase in the minimum wage for all workers.

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. KENNEDY. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. SARBANES. Do I understand under the proposal that our Republican colleagues want to put forward with respect to the minimum wage, as I understand it, you have an initial period when you are paid at below the minimum wage, is that correct, for 6 months?

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, 180 days.

Mr. SARBANES. Suppose someone takes a job and he gets the below wage for, say, 5 months, and then they let him go because they do not need him anymore. When that man or woman goes to another job, do they get the below minimum wage for another 6 months in the new job, as well?

Mr. KENNEDY. The Senator is absolutely correct. The Senator is absolutely correct.

Mr. SARBANES. If fortune should strike them that they are moving from one job to another, they could be kept below the minimum wage for successive periods of time, is that correct, for successive 180-day periods of time?

Mr. KENNEDY. The Senator is absolutely correct.

The Senator remembers even in 1989 when we had the period of the 90 days, they called it a training wage, even though there was no training required. Now it is 180 days, and they call it an opportunity wage. It is just an opportunity for the company not to pay hard-working Americans a livable wage. That is one of the three parts that is in the Republican alternative.

What you will see here, Mr. President, on the first or second day after we are back on that Monday or Tuesday, they will vote for the Republican proposal that will delay the effect of the minimum wage and deny the $500 for these working families. That $500 means months of groceries and utility bills and perhaps half the tuition to go to a State school, tuition for a year. Then they will vote for delaying for the 180 days the payment so people will still be paid $4.25. Then they will exclude all of the businesses under $500,000—not just those intrastate commerce or interstate commerce, which is approximately 10 million Americans. There are only 13 million Americans affected by the increase, so they will deny all of those Americans any opportunity for a significant increase.

Then they will go out and vote for an increase in the minimum wage. That is what this issue is about—the phoniest possible effort to blind side, I think, not just the workers, because they understand it, but all of the American people. Evidently, this is being done for the political purposes of trying to be on the right side of the minimum wage.

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. KENNEDY. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. SARBANES. If this exclusion of below $500,000 that the Senator made reference to—exclusion, I take it if you work for a company that has below $500,000 in sales, you are not covered by this increase in the minimum wage. As I understand it, that is a great many of the people. Many of the people who now work for such companies are, in fact, covered by the minimum wage. There are some such small companies that are only intrastate commerce, not interstate, but many are in interstate commerce and are now covered by the minimum wage, as I understand it.

Under this proposal they would no longer be covered by the minimum. At least they would not receive this increase in the minimum wage. I take it they would still receive the current coverage, but they would not get this increase in the minimum wage. In effect, they would be dropped out from this legislation by this proposal, is that correct?

Mr. KENNEDY. The Senator is not only correct, but I think what you have to assume is that they would be dropped out of any increase in any proposal in the future, because this will be the first time, the first time since enactment of the minimum wage, that we will have carved out an area to reduce the coverage for working families—the first time. Every other time we have increased the minimum wage we have expanded the coverage of the minimum wage because we have recognized that men and women that are working 40 hours a week, 52 weeks of the year, ought to be entitled to a livable wage.

If this passes, it will be the first time that we will have an important and significant carve-out. That, I think, is part of the Republican proposal which is objectionable. Not only that, but we have not even started to deal with the restauranteurs, the restaurant association and restaurants. If you look at the employment in restaurants over the period from 1989 to 1991, you saw a declining balance in terms of the number of increases in the employment for restaurants. After the minimum wage absolutely went into effect, you saw those employment figures take off.

Here we are finding out that because of the power of the restaurant association, even though the number of people that are working in the restaurant industry has been expanding and it is a growth industry according to projections by the Department of Labor, the restauranteurs have a sweetheart agreement in here. It says the restaurant is not responsible for them going from the $4.25, increasing the minimum wage if they make that money in tips. They are only liable if they do not make it in tips.

I will have printed in the RECORD on Monday and Tuesday, during debate, the amount this sweetheart deal will save those restaurants in terms of taxes. In many of those restaurants, in fancy places, people are well above it, but there are a lot of restaurants that are out there across America in small and medium-sized towns where people are working, trying to provide for their families, who are entitled and need the resources to be able to do it. Now, finally let me——

Mr. CHAFEE. If the Senator will yield——

Mr. KENNEDY. After I make this point. Finally, after all this is out, we have, underneath that, the special provisions, the $8 to $10 to $12 billion of tax breaks that are going to go to small business industries which are going to be affected by them. The cost of the minimum wage is going to be $3.4 billion, and we have about $10 billion in tax breaks for these small companies.

How much do you have to give them to provide some respect for working families? How much do you have to bribe them to finally get a vote here on the floor of the U.S. Senate? You talk about taking care of a constituency. You are giving them $10 million on the one hand, and you are carving out millions of Americans on the other hand; you are delaying the increase for working families and also delaying the trigger. We think we are debating an increase in the minimum wage. We can understand why it took so long for our Republican friends to come up with the agreement to schedule this discussion on the floor of the U.S. Senate—for a short time period of debate—on the issues of the increase in the minimum wage.

Mr. President, the American people have to understand what we are talking about. Go back to the debates—when we had the increase debates going back to the early sixties and seventies. I see the Senator, and I will yield in one minute to the Senator from Rhode Island. We have never had these kinds of sweetheart deals and exemptions. Generally, when an increase was worked out, we voted on it. We have, as the Senator from Maryland understands, Republicans—like Eisenhower and Nixon and President Bush—who have signed increases in the minimum wage.

I see the Senator from Rhode Island. I yield for a question.

Mr. CHAFEE. I know the distinguished junior Senator from Kansas has been waiting to give her maiden speech here. I do not want to delay things. Is the Senator about through?

(Mr. GRAMS assumed the chair.)

Mr. KENNEDY. I was here all day on Thursday when we were denied any opportunity for morning business to speak. We were denied, also, a very short period of morning business yesterday from 8:15 to 9 o'clock. Senator MURRAY had to stay here until 10:30 in order to get 15 minutes, from 8:15 to 8:30 yesterday. I wanted to wait until we concluded. I want to pay respects to our new Senator, and I will be very brief and then I will terminate. I eagerly await the Senator's speech. But I would like to conclude on the minimum wage and speak briefly on MSA's, and then I will yield.

Mr. CHAFEE. If I may say one thing, I have a couple of questions for the Senator from Massachusetts. First, I congratulate Massachusetts for the low unemployment, which you attribute to the rise in the minimum wage. I myself would attribute it to the outstanding Governor that they have.

Mr. KENNEDY. I know he has been trying to take credit for it.

Mr. CHAFEE. I have heard—

Mr. KENNEDY. Even though his opposition to the increase of the minimum wage is well understood.

Mr. CHAFEE. All I know is that the State is extremely vigorous and thriving because of the outstanding leadership he is providing, and, indeed, the people have recognized this with the overwhelming reelection victory that he had.

However, we will have an adequate opportunity, I think, to discuss this. I might say, I do not agree with the Senator's characterizations of employers. I wrote down some of them: "Harsh," "greedy," "exploiting." That is the different attitude that we take.

Mr. KENNEDY. Well, the only thing I would ask the Senator is whether I have stated correctly the fact that in the Republican proposal you delay the triggering time for the minimum wage until January, which will be a loss of $500, and that you do have the 180-day period which you call the "opportunity wage," and you have the carve-out? If you agree with these facts, then I am glad to welcome whatever characterization of the differences there might be, as long as the Senator would either differ or agree with that.

Mr. CHAFEE. My great concern in connection with the minimum wage is, if it does not include some kind of a "training period" or "opportunity period," whatever you call it, that on the one hand, we are demanding folks on welfare get off and all of us have supported here provisions that require these people to be off welfare, whether it is in 2 years, 5 years or whatever it is. Fifty percent must be off in a certain length of time. Where are they going to get jobs? Who is going to hire them? So I strongly support some kind of a period—call it a training wage, or an opportunity wage. I do not think it should be restricted to those 19 years of age or younger.

This is a very serious problem we have because we cannot deal with welfare reform without considering what is happening under the minimum wage. I notice that the Senator from Kansas is here, so I will—

Mr. KENNEDY. I will just respond. If you talk about a training wage, I do not see any proposal of the Senator that would provide any degree of training or any education. If the Senator had a proposal that, look, we are going to delay the minimum wage and we are going to provide a training or insist there is training or some education, I think that argument has some degree of credibility. But to say that, for minimum wage, you have to wait 180 days—ask any minimum wage worker whether they think it should take 6 months to get training to provide for minimum wage services. That really stretches the imagination.

I will just take a moment or two to comment about our situation on the health care issue. I think all of us, as we come to the period of the Fourth of July recess, wonder why we have not had the opportunity to vote here in the U.S. Senate on a bill that was drafted by our friend and colleague, Senator KASSEBAUM, over 1 year ago and was steered through our committee with bipartisan support. The bill would have provided relief for 25 million Americans with preexisting conditions and had some degree of portability. There is virtually unanimity on that particular issue here in the Senate and, I daresay, in the House of Representatives.

There is another ingredient which has been added in the House of Representatives in the process of the negotiations on medical savings accounts. I have expressed my view—and not only my view, but the view of some 35 different editorials, from newspapers from virtually all parts of the country, questioning whether the U.S. Senate ought to add and tag this provision onto this very, very important and essential piece of legislation.

I think everyone in this body knows that if we were to have a vote on the legislation dealing with preexisting conditions and portability, it would pass by 100 votes. Americans all over this Nation, as they come through the Fourth of July period, will understand the degree of security that they would have in terms of their futures, for any preexisting conditions. And workers would understand the importance of that.

Nonetheless, we are not able to come back to the Senate and report an agreement on the final bill. Still, effectively, no matter how you characterize it, that bill is being held hostage for an untried, untested idea. We understand where the votes are, in terms of our Republicans friends in the House and in the Senate, who are absolutely insistent on trying to find some common ground. I have heard those that have said they support certain proposals that they believe far and wide exemplify a very reasonable sort of compromise. Mr. President, I think Americans are asking why we do not go ahead and pass what is agreed on and then debate the medical savings account independently tomorrow, tonight, this afternoon, or next week. But let us get out what we can agree on. But we are denied that opportunity.

So, Mr. President, I want to just indicate to all of those Americans—the 25 million Americans and their families, all those workers that are out there—that we are going to do everything we possibly can to get this legislation, and that we are committed to trying to have some kind of a pilot program that can examine the value of medical savings accounts. But for all the good reasons that have been demonstrated here, we are not going to be stampeded into accepting something which is untried and untested.

Mr. President, I will say a final word. If any company wants today to go out and sell a medical savings account, they can do it. I have listened to my friends on the other side of the aisle say all we are looking for is freedom. That is baloney. What they want is their hand in the pocket of the American Treasury. They have the freedom to go out and sell medical savings accounts today. But what they want is the Federal Treasury to be opened for the tax advantage that they would receive, and they are asking their legislators to help Golden Rule and other companies—companies which have been poorly rated by consumers group and have been drummed out of states like Vermont and other communities, for their conduct and lack of consumer protections. They want to get inside the Federal Treasury. That is what is at risk. They have freedom to go out and sell MSAs today. No; they want to get inside the Federal Treasury and get that privileged position to be able to have a deduction or special tax advantage.

So this is very, very important. I am very hopeful that we will still have the opportunity for the health insurance reform act to become law—but quite frankly there are others interests that are involved. I certainly hope that we will have a chance to come back and address this matter, here on the floor of the U.S. Senate, sometime soon. We are running out of time in terms of the patience of the American people. We ought to be able to call the roll and have some degree of accountability.

Perhaps over the period of this break calmer heads can prevail and we can work out something that will move the legislation and permit a reasonable kind of trial period. Otherwise, I hope we will come back and we will just call the roll, and we will keep calling the roll until we get some final resolution will provide protection for those 25 million Americans and permit portability.

Constantly, at the end of the day when the day is done and you drive back home, you have to say to yourself, "Why aren't we going ahead and providing this protection for the American people?" We can pass a bill that everybody agrees on. Why should we be effectively held hostage to those who want to include an untried and untested idea in the legislation?

Mr. President, we will have more of an opportunity to revisit that because the issue of MSAs is not going away. The health care issue is not going away. We will look forward to the chance to debate it when we return.

Thank you very much.

I, too, apologize, if that is appropriate, to our friend and colleague. I did not know that she was about to give her maiden address to the Senate, or I would have certainly looked for another opportunity to address the Senate.

I thank you.

Mrs. FRAHM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mrs. FRAHM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be recognized to speak as if in morning business for up to 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. FRAHM. Thank you, Mr. President.

INAUGURAL SPEECH OF SENATOR SHEILA FRAHM

Mrs. FRAHM. Mr. President, I am honored to be recognized by the distinguished Chair and to address the U.S. Senate. In the short 2 weeks since I was sworn in as the 31st Senator from my State of Kansas and the 1,828th Senator to serve in the Senate, I have had the privilege of casting my first votes on issues that are very important to me, to Kansans, and to our Nation. These votes were on issues that I believe will help shape the future—the financial future of our children, and the future security of our Nation.

My very first vote in the Senate may, in fact, be the most important vote I will cast this year—it was in support of the balanced budget resolution. I strongly believe that it is imperative that we control Federal spending, balance the budget, and have the courage to make the tough calls. As Lieutenant Governor of Kansas, Governor Graves and I made the tough calls, submitting the first balanced budget in a generation. We lowered taxes on Kansans by $1.3 billion over the next 5 years. I cut my own Department of Administration budget for fiscal year 1997 by 7 percent, and began a 5 percent personnel reduction over the next 2 years. I will work hard to put our national fiscal house in order, as I have already done in Kansas. A balanced budget represents hope for future generations, hope that they may be relieved of the crushing burden of a debt that was not of their making. I am committed to making that hope a reality. Chairman DOMENICI is to be commended for his skill and tenacity in shaping and managing the budget resolution through conference and the Senate.

I am pleased to be serving with the distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee as we continue deliberations over the 1997 Defense authorization bill. Maintaining a strong national defense is of vital interest to all Americans. I am, therefore, pleased and honored to have cast some of my first votes in support of a strong America.

Further, I am delighted to join Chairman D'AMATO and my colleagues on the Senate Banking Committee. I feel honored to serve with such a dedicated and distinguished committee. Maintaining the integrity of our financial institutions, achieving real regulatory reform, and preserving a strong and vibrant housing industry are top priorities for me and for Kansas. I look forward to working with the chairman on these important issues.

On Tuesday, I cast the first of what I am sure will be a number of a very difficult votes. This was regarding cloture on the campaign finance reform bill. I believe we owe our best judgment to those we represent. And in my judgment, it is far better to have real and meaningful reform that will become law rather than cast politically expedient votes. I am not afraid of making the tough calls. I want to make it clear that I strongly support campaign finance reform—real reform. And while I know the sponsors of that bill feel they brought forward the best they could do under the circumstances, in my mind, bad reform is not better than no reform. I oppose Federal financing of our elections, which would in effect turn politicians into a new class of welfare dependents. I came here to reform welfare, not expand it. I question why the Congress should seek to pass a bill that is almost certainly unconstitutional in many of its key reforms, and puts an unreasonable mandate of high costs on private business. There will be more tough votes ahead, but as I said, I am not afraid of making the difficult choices.

In conclusion, let me just note that I do not intend nor will I pretend to fill the tremendous void left by my predecessor, Senator Bob Dole. He stood as a giant in the Senate and his departure is a great loss to the Senate and to Kansas. But, I do pledge my very best, which I have always given to Kansas. And I am looking forward to working with Bob Dole in his new position of national leadership.

Mr. President, I thank my colleagues for the warm reception they have extended me. Their good wishes and assistance have been a great help during my first days in the Senate and I look forward to working with the leadership and my colleagues on both sides of the aisle as we work together to shape our Nation's future. Of course, we may not always agree, but I can assure you that my State of Kansas and the United States of America and the U.S. Senate will always receive my highest efforts and most careful judgment as we face the challenges ahead.

Thank you Mr. President.

CONGRATULATIONS TO SENATOR FRAHM

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I would like to take just a moment to congratulate the distinguished Senator from Kansas for her maiden speech.

Over the last few years, as I have gone back and read the history of the Senate, I have found that there have truly been many magic moments when maiden speeches are made in the Senate, and it is one you will always remember. I remember the first one I made—only I was on the back row over there. The Senator from Kansas is already right up on the front row.

But she has exhibited, Mr. President, all in her brief time in the Senate, that she is a legislator of courage and that she is an experienced legislator. The fact that she is here this afternoon making this maiden speech, saying what she has said and the way she has handled herself, reflects the fact that she has had tremendous experience as a leader in the Kansas State Legislature.

So I commend her for her experience in the past and for her work already in the Senate. She is going to make a great Senator for the State of Kansas like the two Senators we have been serving with earlier this year—Senator KASSEBAUM, of course, and, of course, our great majority leader, Bob Dole. It is a challenge to succeed such giants as those two.

I am convinced that our new Senator is up to the challenge. She has already been given very important committee assignments where I know she will have a chance to provide leadership. I know she is already enjoying the pleasures of being on the Armed Services Committee, having worked on this very bill in the Chamber.

I just wanted to say on behalf of the leadership and all Members of the Republican side of the aisle, in fact the entire Senate, that we are truly pleased and honored to have join us this great Senator from the State of Kansas.

Mr. THURMOND addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I wish to commend the junior Senator from Kansas on her maiden speech. It is a pleasure for us in the Senate to have such a delightful person join us in this body. She is a lady of integrity, ability and dedication, and will be a great asset to the Senate.

Mrs. KASSEBAUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, I am particularly proud to have heard the junior Senator from Kansas. I have known Senator FRAHM as a friend in Kansas. I have known her as a majority leader of the Kansas Senate, and I think she spoke in her speech to the qualities that have made her an exemplary leader and legislator in Kansas.

I have every confidence she is going to translate the very skills she spoke to in her maiden speech to the work she carries out in the future on the floor of the Senate, not only for the best interests of Kansas, as she said, but the best interests of the Nation. It is with real pride today that I, the senior Senator from Kansas, heard the maiden speech of the junior Senator from Kansas.

I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I also wish to join my colleagues in extending well-deserved praise to our new colleague, and particularly since she has joined the Senate Armed Services Committee on which I have been privileged to serve with the distinguished chairman for some many years.

It is interesting to note, Mr. President, I think a footnote in history; California was the first State in the history of the Senate to have two women and how quickly thereafter came a second State. Of course, it is of small distinction—two members of the Democratic Party from California and, proudly, two members of the Republican Party from Kansas. I have always been interested in the history of this institution. It goes way back. The Senator has made history today in two respects. Well done.

I yield the floor, Mr. President.

Mr. ROTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. I, too, join in congratulating our new Senator from Kansas. We are particularly proud to have two distinguished women Senators from Kansas. I only wish that we could look forward to both of them continuing to serve that State.

HEALTH INSURANCE REFORM

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, we have been waiting for 2 months to move forward on critical health insurance reform legislation. During this time, Republicans have compromised again and again, each time in response to concerns raised by the White House and by some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle about medical savings accounts.

Mr. President, we have been negotiating in good faith. We have addressed our colleagues' concerns about MSA on both the structure of the insurance plan and the structure of the savings account. We have limited the number of people eligible for the tax-free MSA. We have put forward proposals that are small enough to be considered demonstration projects. We have reduced the maximum contribution that can be made to an MSA. We have reduced the top range of the high deductible. In short, we have bent over backwards to accommodate the White House and some of our Democratic colleagues.

Millions of Americans are counting on us to reach an agreement, counting on us to work together to get the job done here in Washington. Americans with preexisting conditions, Americans who are unable to afford health insurance, small businesses that cannot afford to offer their employees health insurance, millions of Americans need this bill, and they do not have the luxury of time in waiting through more games and more rhetoric.

Legislating is about compromise. Americans want us to compromise and work together to get this legislation signed into law. We have compromised significantly. We do not have much time remaining for legislative business this year, and we have even less time for partisan games on this critical issue. So let us get together and work this out today or in the very immediate future.

I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we are awaiting momentarily the distinguished majority leader and distinguished Democratic whip to address the Senate on a unanimous consent agreement.

Seeing no Senator seeking recognition, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURNS). Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, again, I want to say I appreciate the cooperation of the members of the Armed Services Committee on both sides of the aisle. The distinguished chairman, the distinguished Senator from Virginia, the Senator from Georgia, Senator NUNN, and their staffs have all worked diligently.

I must confess that at 11 o'clock last night, I had my doubts we would be standing here this afternoon. But the tempo was very different this morning, and a lot of really good work has been done to clear amendments and to get amendments agreed to on both sides of the aisle. So I really express my sincere appreciation to the members of the Armed Services Committee and to the staff and to the Democratic leader, for his leadership team and our leadership time who was worked to bring this bill to a conclusion.

I think to complete action on this Department of Defense authorization bill is in the best interest of the country. It will allow us to move on in regular order to the appropriations bill. I hope by getting the authorization bill done first, we can avoid some of the conflicts we have run into in the past between the appropriations and authorization bills. I am pleased we have gotten it done.

AMENDMENT NO. 4433

(Purpose: To extend through fiscal year 1997 the prohibition on use of funds to implement an international agreement concerning theater missile defense systems)

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that sections 231 and 232 of the bill be stricken, and I now send to the desk an amendment inserting a new section, and ask the amendment be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table. This new section deals with demarcation of theater missile defense systems between antiballistic systems.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. LOTT], for Mr. THURMOND, proposes an amendment numbered 4433.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title II, add the following:

SEC. 237. EXTENSION OF PROHIBITION ON USE OF FUNDS TO IMPLEMENT AN INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT CONCERNING THEATER MISSILE DEFENSE SYSTEMS.

Section 235(c) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104–106; 110 Stat. 232) is amended in the matter preceding paragraph (1) by inserting "or 1997" after "fiscal year 1996".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4433) was agreed to.

MODIFICATION OF SECTION 233

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that section 233, regarding the ABM Treaty, be modified with the sense-of-the-Senate language I now send to the desk; and that the Foreign Relations Committee conduct hearings on the matter contained in section 233 before the end of the session.

While it is going to the desk, I want to say this is the proper thing to do. It is a serious matter as to how we deal with the question of multilateralization of treaties. I think the hearings are appropriate. I am glad to support this.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the section is so modified.

The modification is as follows:

Section 233 is modified to read as follows:

SEC. 233. CONVERSION OF ABM TREATY TO MULTILATERAL TREATY.

(a) FISCAL YEAR 1997.—It is the sense of the Senate that during fiscal year 1997, the United States shall not be bound by any international agreement entered into by the President that would substantively modify the ABM Treaty, including any agreement that would add one or more countries as signatories to the treaty or would otherwise convert the treaty from a bilateral treaty to a multilateral treaty; unless the agreement is entered pursuant to the treaty making power of the President under the Constitution.

(b) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAW.—This section shall not be construed as superseding section 232 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 (Public Law 103–337; 108 Stat. 2701) for any fiscal year other than fiscal year 1997, including any fiscal year after fiscal year 1997.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the majority leader, after notification of the Democratic leader, may proceed to the consideration of each of the following three bills; that they be considered in the following order, with no intervening business in order between the three bills; that no amendments or motions be in order to these bills:

Defend America, which is S. 1635;

A bill to be introduced by the Democratic leader, or his designee, on behalf of the President regarding national missile defense;

And a bill to be introduced by Senator NUNN regarding national missile defense.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, for the information of all Senators, with respect to the Chemical Weapons Convention, the majority leader and the Democratic leader will make every effort to obtain from the administration such facts and documents as requested by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee, in order to pursue its work and hearings needed to develop a complete record for the Senate regarding the Chemical Weapons Convention, Executive Calendar No. 12.

With that in mind, I ask unanimous consent that the majority leader, after consultation with the Democratic leader, will, prior to September 14, 1996, proceed to executive session to consider Calendar No. 12, the Chemical Weapons Convention, and the treaty be advanced through its various parliamentary stages, up to and including the presentation of the resolution of ratification; that all reported conditions and declarations be deemed agreed to; that there be two additional amendments to the resolution of ratification, to be offered by the majority leader or his designee, dealing with the subject matter of the Chemical Weapons Convention to be limited to 1 hour each, to be equally divided in the usual form; that no further conditions, amendments, declarations or understandings be in order; and there be 10 hours additional time for debate, to be equally divided in the usual form; and following the conclusion or yielding back of time, the Senate proceed to the adoption of the resolution of ratification, all without further action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Finally, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be advanced to third reading and final passage occur at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, July 10, 1996, and paragraph 4 of rule XII be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I further state that if the resolution of ratification, with respect to the Chemical Weapons Convention, is agreed to, then I will do my best to schedule the implementation legislation, if it is available, no later than early 1997.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. I wonder if the Democratic leader has any comments at this point.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, let me just commend the distinguished majority leader. Like him, I was not very optimistic we would be able to get to this point. But I think it, again, demonstrates the interest on both sides in working together to accomplish a number of major legislative achievements this year, and this is a good one.

This is an important issue. It is a bill that we needed to get done. The administration is very much in keeping with our desire to see the completion of this legislation in the nearest possible time.

We have appropriations bills when we get back. I look forward to using the same approach as we try to address those as well. It will be my hope that during the month of July, we can do on appropriations what we have just done on this authorization bill.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I would like to confirm what, obviously, all Senators now know. There will be no further votes today. We will be back in session on Monday, July 8, during which time we will begin the debate that was outlined in the unanimous consent agreement with regard to minimum wage and small business tax provisions, to be followed on Tuesday by the TEAM Act. And then there will be a vote, as we just outlined, at 9:30 a.m., Wednesday of that week on the final passage of the DOD authorization bill.

Mr. DASCHLE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The minority leader is recognized.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask the majority leader, subject to an earlier discussion we had, for the interest of Senators, if we might be able to announce that the minimum wage vote would occur after the caucuses on Tuesday, and that debate on minimum wage take place that morning to accommodate traveling Senators and the debate on the issue, and then if there are votes, for them to be stacked at that point, 2:15, we would be happy to do that.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I believe that we can work together on that, and agree now that we would not have a vote on the minimum wage issue until after the policy luncheons on Tuesday. However, my intent was to complete all of the debate on that on Monday, and then have the debate on the small business packages on Tuesday. You know, we can work that out as far as the debate time. And we may need to stack some votes, or we may need to go to other issues that morning. But at the very minimum, we can agree now there will not be a vote on that until after the luncheons. Then I would like to work with the minority leader on the time for the rest of the debate.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I am primarily interested in when the votes take place and also accommodating some Senators who want to be heard on minimum wage who will not be here on Monday. And if it were possible to accommodate them, to allow for additional comments on Tuesday morning, it would be very helpful.

Mr. LOTT. As is always the case, just like we entered into having an agreement we would have a vote on that Wednesday and final passage 30 minutes later so two Senators can be heard on issues they feel are important, I am sure we can work it out in a balanced way where there could be others that want to be heard on other subjects that morning. But we will work with the minority leader to make sure Senators have time to express their views.

I thought the main thing was just to understand we would not have a vote until after the luncheon. But I want to maintain the flexibility of what we do earlier in the day, and after the vote, so we can get as much done on Tuesday as is at all possible. We will continue to work together on that.

Mr. DASCHLE. I thank the majority leader.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I rise to address an issue of vital importance to the U.S. Senate: whether the Senate should provide its advice and consent on any succession agreement regarding the ABM Treaty, especially an agreement that would convert the treaty from a bilateral agreement to a multilateral agreement. I would remind my colleagues that existing law requires any substantive modification of the ABM Treaty to be submitted to the Senate for advice and consent.

The administration has asserted that it would be inappropriate for the Senate to make a judgement about the substantive nature of any potential agreement at this point. But, if the Senate's treaty making role is to be protected, we must clearly establish our views now, especially since the implications of such an agreement are fairly clear already. To do otherwise would invite a major dispute with the executive branch in the near future and put the Senate in a position where its only recourse would be to attempt to prohibit the implementation of the agreement. In my view, multilateralization of the ABM Treaty clearly constitutes a substantive change. Let me briefly outline my reasons for coming to this conclusion.

First of all, the fundamental circumstances that produced the treaty in the first place have changed. The ABM Treaty, more than any other arms control agreement, was a product of the bipolar cold war confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union. With the dissolution of the Soviet Union, we face strategic and political circumstances that are vastly different.

Second, by having the Soviet Union succeeded, for purposes of the ABM Treaty, by some but not all of the independent States of the former Soviet Union, each possessing full and sovereign rights under the treaty, we would be changing, limiting, and extending certain rights and obligations previously possessed by the parties. This is all but a text book definition of a treaty amendment. U.S. rights would clearly be changed given the fact that the Standing Consultative Commission, the ABM Treaty's implementing body, would now be comprised of several parties, all of whom would need to consent to changes, clarifications, or amendments to the treaty.

As the administration stated in a May 3, 1996, letter to Senator NUNN: "Each Party will participate in implementing the treaty as a sovereign entity. This includes a full and equal voice in the SCC." When asked if the consent of all parties would be needed before the treaty could be amended, clarified, or interpreted, the administration answered: "Yes. The U.S. has insisted on a decision-making mechanism in the SCC under which legally binding obligations would be adopted by consensus." In effect, the SCC would be transformed into a corporate body in which the United States would need to receive five, six, or more affirmative votes before the treaty could be amended. In addition, some of the new treaty partners would only have partial rights. Of the former Soviet States, presumably only Russia would be entitled to deploy an operational ABM system.

Third, the actual functional mechanics of the ABM Treaty will be changed through multilateralization. The ABM Treaty is based largely on a geographical description of the United States and the Soviet Union. It states specifically that certain large phased array radars may only be located along the periphery of the territory of the parties. In the case of the former Soviet Union, however, some such radars are now located outside Russia. The so-called Scrunda radar in Latvia, for example, is on the territory of an independent country that has categorically rejected membership in the ABM Treaty. Clearly, any agreement that addresses the successorship issue will also have to redefine these geographic aspects of the treaty, which in and of themselves will constitute substantive amendments to the treaty. In this regard, the Senate will be as interested to see which States do not accede to the ABM Treaty as it will be to see which countries do accede.

Mr. President, as we consider this important matter, which dramatically affects the Senate's constitutional prerogatives, let me also remind my colleagues of an important debate that took place in this Chamber several years ago regarding the so-called broad versus narrow interpretation of the ABM Treaty. On March 11, 12, and 13, 1987, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senator NUNN, took to the floor to deliver a series of speeches criticizing the Reagan administration for having announced a new interpretation of the ABM Treaty. I do not wish to revisit the specific issues in that debate, only to remind my colleagues, especially on the other side of the aisle, how outraged they were at what appeared to be a challenge to the Senate's constitutional treaty-making role.

On March 11, 1987, Senator NUNN stated that the State Department was directly challenging the Senate's constitutional role. "This effect," he said, "could carry over and may well produce a congressional backlash through its exercise of the power of the purse and the power to raise and support armies in a manner that would give the effect to the original meaning of the treaty as presented to the Senate." It is precisely such a backlash that we are seeking to avoid by including section 233 in the Defense authorization bill. The administration is proceeding down a very dangerous course and we are simply trying to ensure that the Senate plays a role before we arrive at a point of crisis.

Why do I use such strong terms in describing the administration's present course? Let me be clear, Mr. President. The administration is not intending to submit any agreement to the Senate regarding ABM Treaty succession, even though such an agreement would constitute a fundamental departure from substance of the treaty presented to the Senate for advice and consent in 1972. In the same letter than I quoted from earlier, the administration makes clear that they are working on a memorandum of understanding on succession. What, I would ask, is the legal standing of an MOU? How is it possible, given the major implications of such a change, that the administration is trying to modify a major arms control treaty with an MOU, as if this were some minor agreement with a close and reliable ally?

Mr. President, I do not believe that one can avoid the conclusion that the administration is negotiating major changes to the ABM Treaty, that these changes constitute substantive modifications to the treaty and the rights and obligations of the parties, and that the Senate must be directly involved. In my view, this involvement must include advice and consent to any such agreement. The executive branch cannot simply change the entire context of a major arms control treaty and expect the Senate to stand idly by.

The administration has sought to use various analogies to other cases in which the executive branch has not sought, and the Senate has not insisted upon, advice and consent on succession. The examples of the Conventional Forces in Europe and Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces Treaties are frequently used.

In the case of CFE, the Senate specifically recognized the impending breakup of the Soviet Union and adopted provisions taking this into account during the ratification debate. In fact, the Senate was so concerned about this issue with regard to CFE that it took great care to develop a condition to the resolution of ratification specifying procedures for adding new states parties and for evaluating the implications of the withdrawal of key newly independent states from the treaty. In the case of the ABM Treaty, no such provision has ever been made, since the ABM Treaty has always been viewed in a bipolar context. If anything, the case of the CFE Treaty argues for Senate advice and consent on any ABM Treaty succession agreement.

In the case of the INF Treaty, in my view, the executive branch still should seek a formal protocol on succession. The only reason that this has not become a major issue is due to the fact that INF has already been fully implemented and there are no significant areas of contention. Unlike the ABM Treaty, there is little likelihood that the United States may require major amendments or clarifications to the INF Treaty.

In the case of the START I Treaty, the succession agreement, known as the Lisbon Protocol, was in fact approved by the Senate as part of the overall ratification process. As in the case of CFE, START I was surrounded by major succession issues that the Senate had to address in a formal manner. I think it is fair to say that neither CFE or START I would have been approved by the Senate if not for the fact that the succession issues were thoroughly addressed as part of the ratification debate. In both cases the Bush administration correctly saw that a vote of the Senate was necessary.

Mr. President, in summary, let me simply say that section 233 of the bill stands up for the prerogatives of the Senate. The fact that the administration is so opposed to it is very bothersome. This provision was approved by the committee on a bipartisan basis and I believe that the Senate should overwhelmingly endorse it.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I want to thank the leadership on both sides of the aisle on behalf of all members of the Armed Services Committee on both sides of the aisle. We simply would not have been able to achieve what we have just announced without strong, firm commitments by both leaders. Indeed, I commend the distinguished Democratic whip who, likewise, helped in the clearance of amendments.

It is remarkable. I have served with many leaders. I will tell you, each time they arise to the challenge. And this time, indeed, both leaders did arise to the challenge. So I thank the leaders on both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for third reading and was read the third time.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, having worked with our distinguished chairman on the committee, I wish to compliment again his leadership in enabling this bill to come through and be acted upon by the Senate in a timely manner thereby putting us in the logical sequential order with the appropriations measure.

I wish to congratulate the distinguished ranking member, Mr. NUNN. We have worked on bills for many years together. This will be the last that we have worked on together. I shall speak about his departure at a later time.

I also wish to thank the staff on both sides who have diligently pursued efforts dramatically in the last 24 hours. I assure you we were here until after midnight last night.

Also, I wish to thank the many colleagues on our committee who took an active role in this, and certainly Senator MCCAIN with his usual help in trying to get this series of amendments through and also working with the group of us who dealt with the time agreement which I hope will soon be adopted by the Senate.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, after we call the roll next week, I will make some expressions of appreciation to those who were so helpful on this matter.

One of them is the able Senator from Virginia who has done a magnificent service in the passage of this bill. I want to thank him.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent I may proceed as in morning business for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO MOLLIE BEATTIE

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I rise today to express my sorrow over the death last night of Mollie Beattie who was, up until just a few weeks ago, the Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Mollie Beattie was a courageous and determined woman for whom all of us who knew her had the most tremendous respect.

As I mentioned, just up until a few weeks ago, she was Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and resigned from that because of the battle she was undergoing with brain cancer. Her death, Mr. President, is a great loss to this country. We have lost a committed, dynamic professional whose devotion to the conservation of our Nation's natural resources has benefited us all and will continue to improve the lives of our children and our grandchildren.

Mr. President, as a way of commemorating Mollie's contribution and her spirit, I am honored to cosponsor S. 1899, a bill to designate 8 million acres of wilderness within the 19-million acre Arctic National Wildlife Refuge as the Mollie Beattie Alaska Wilderness Area. It seems to me this is a wonderful tribute to a person whose appreciation of wild places has been a lodestar for her career. I am grateful to Senator STEVENS for sponsoring this resolution along with Senator LEAHY and Senator MURKOWSKI.

Many of you knew Mollie and recognized that she had incredible energy and vitality, and she brought all that to the Fish and Wildlife Service during her 3-year tenure there. She was the first woman to lead the Service, and she did an extraordinary job during a period when her agency was faced with increased budget cuts, public scrutiny and criticism. Her commitment to conservation of natural resources and to the people that work for the Fish and Wildlife Service made her an effective and well-respected advocate.

Throughout her serious illness, Mollie continued to lead the Service, demonstrating the strength of courage that made her unquestionably an extraordinary leader. She refused to let the serious operations and treatments for her cancer keep her from the job she loved. Mr. President, I have had the privilege of working with Mollie Beattie on a number of issues important to the Fish and Wildlife Service. Just last month, on May 16, despite her poor health, she came to my office to urge me to help in Congress to maintain the integrity of the 90-million-acre national wildlife refuge system. Her concern and devotion for the conservation goals to the Fish and Wildlife Service were clear and constant throughout her career.

I just want to point out one instance of the modesty that she had. On June 14, she was featured as the ABC News "Person of the Week." As a condition of that interview, she insisted that the program highlight the importance of the Endangered Species Act above her own accomplishments. Her deep commitment to the conservation of endangered species led her to carry out a number of important administrative changes to improve that act.

Mollie's career was illustrious even before becoming Director of the Fish and Wildlife Service. She was executive director of the Richard Snelling Center for Government in Vermont. Prior to coming to Washington, she was commissioner of the Vermont Department of Forests, Parks and Recreation. She was program director for the Windham Foundation, managing 1,300 acres of farm and forest land for wildlife. And she was a teacher of resource management to private landowners for the University of Vermont.

Mollie participated in a wide variety of nonprofit conservation initiatives, including serving as a board member of the American Forestry Association, the Vermont Land Trust, and the Vermont Natural Resources Council. She also chaired a Defenders of Wildlife commission on the future of the National Wildlife System in Vermont's Nonpoint Water Pollution Task Force.

So, Mr. President, all of us have reason to be deeply indebted to Mollie Beattie for her distinguished public service and great contribution to the protection of fish and wildlife and wide open spaces. And all of our prayers are with her and her family today.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO MOLLIE BEATTIE

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I wish to commend the distinguished Senator from Rhode Island for those very gracious, warm, and honest thoughts about Mollie Beattie. The Senator from Rhode Island was privileged to know her, as was I. Of course, we in New England had a special feeling for her. Senator JEFFORDS and I—as in so many other things in Vermont where we have joined together—were absolutely joined in our admiration of Mollie Beattie.

Even though we knew that the end was near for Mollie, I know that both Senator JEFFORDS and I felt sorrow this morning when we heard the news that she had died. Just a few minutes ago, Mr. President, I talked with her husband, Rick, and told him that we were about to pass, this evening, the legislation that would honor her in Alaska. And Rick told me that he had talked with Mollie as she lay dying and told her this legislation was moving forward. The distinguished senior Senator from Alaska, Mr. STEVENS, had introduced it a few days ago in this body, cosponsored by Senator JEFFORDS, myself, and others, and we had been assured that it would eventually pass. He said she was well aware of that and so humbled by it, saying that she could not imagine such a great honor, which was so typical of her.

Mollie always thought to do what was best for our country, not just for this generation, but for the next generation. She did that continuously, and did it without ever looking at what it might do for her. She was affected and did feel honored and humble by what this body was doing. Frankly, we should feel honored that we have the opportunity to do this for Mollie Beattie.

I should tell my colleagues that following a memorial service for her in Vermont this coming week, Wednesday afternoon, and one here in Washington with the Department of Interior, her ashes will be divided between Vermont and Alaska. She said to her husband that this was a case where she was going to be part Vermonter and part Alaskan. It was a way of talking of her deep affection for the State of Vermont, but her great appreciation for magnificent parts of the wilderness in our Nation that she was involved with.

Also, in talking with Rick—and I think I give away nothing in this—he talked about the fact that when she was ill, when it was more difficult sometimes to work, she would ask herself at the end of each day of work, "Was it worth it to come to work today?" She always had the same answer: "Yes, it was." She was able to do good for the country in the mission that had been entrusted to her.

When Senator JEFFORDS and I, and others, sought her confirmation, I know that some Senators—especially from the western part of our country—wondered who was this eastern woman coming in to fill a position that was always held not only by men, but oftentimes men from the West. Those same Senators are the ones who have come up to me on the floor in the past couple weeks, as the news of Mollie's final illness reached us, and said, "I am going to miss her."

She has done, as the Senator from Rhode Island said, a superb job. She has dedicated herself and has been a true professional, a true public servant.

So, Mr. President, I thank the distinguished senior Senator from Alaska, Mr. STEVENS, for his help in this, and Senator JEFFORDS for joining as a cosponsor of this, and other Senators who worked with me until late last night, and again this morning, to release whatever holds might be on this legislation, to allow it to go forward. I thank the distinguished Republican leader and the distinguished Democratic leader for their help in clearing this. It is a worthy tribute to Mollie Beattie.

It is, more than that, a worthy tribute to what is best in America.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CHAFEE). Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDERS FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1996

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, July 10, the Senate resume consideration of S. 1745 with 30 minutes of debate time remaining, to be divided with 7½ minutes of debate under the control of each of the following Senators: THURMOND, NUNN, HELMS and PELL, with a vote on passage of S. 1745, the Defense Authorization Bill, at 9:30 a.m. Further, that immediately following the vote, the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration en bloc of the following bills: Calendar No. 408, No. 409 and No. 410, and that all after the enacting clause be stricken and the appropriate portion of S. 1745, as amended, be inserted in lieu thereof, in accordance with a schedule which I have sent to the desk; further, that the bills be advanced to third reading and passed, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table en bloc, and that the above actions occur without intervening action or debate.

I ask unanimous consent the Senate then immediately proceed to the consideration of H.R. 3230, and that all after the enacting clause be stricken and the text of S. 1745, as amended, be inserted in lieu thereof; that the bill be advanced to third reading and passed; that the title of S. 1745 be substituted for H.R. 3230; the Senate then insist on its amendment and request a conference with the House, and the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees, with no intervening action or debate.

I finally ask that with respect to S. 1762, S. 1763, and S. 1764, as just passed by the Senate, that if the Senate receives a message with regard to any of these bills from the House, the Senate disagree with the House on its amendment or amendments and agree to a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes, and the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees, without any intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS ACT AND RAILWAY LABOR ACT AMENDMENT—MOTION TO PROCEED

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now turn to consideration of Calendar No. 417, S. 1788, the right-to-work bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

Mr. LOTT. In light of the objection, I move to proceed to S. 1788.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion.

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I send a cloture motion to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The cloture motion having been presented under rule XXII, the Chair directs the clerk to read the motion.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on the motion to proceed to S. 1788, the National Right To Work Act.

Trent Lott, Orrin Hatch, Paul Coverdell, Judd Gregg, Jesse Helms, Lauch Faircloth, Connie Mack, John Warner, Don Nickles, Robert F. Bennett, Hank Brown, Phil Gramm, Strom Thurmond, Kay Bailey Hutchison, Richard Shelby, Bob Smith.

Mr. LOTT. I now withdraw the motion to proceed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion is withdrawn.

Mr. LOTT. I ask unanimous consent that the cloture vote occur at 12 noon on Wednesday, July 10, and that the mandatory quorum under rule XXII be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Thursday, June 27, 1996, the Federal debt stood at $5,118,682,872,218.91.

On a per capita basis, every man, woman, and child in America owes $19,303.19 as his or her share of that debt.

CHURCH ARSON PREVENTION ACT

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, although I was pleased to have had the opportunity to join with Senators FAIRCLOTH and KENNEDY as an original cosponsor of S. 1890, the Church Arson Prevention Act, I remain saddened by the fact that this bipartisan legislative effort was even necessary.

To think that the Congress of the United States must take action to stop the vile and revolting destruction that we have seen occurring at places of worship throughout this nation is a troubling through, indeed. It is simply incomprehensible to me that anyone in this country could be so depraved that they would consider, let along carry out, such deeds against the House of the Lord.

Sadly, though, since January 1995, there have been fires at 75 churches nationwide. And while many of these acts of religious terrorism have taken place in the South, the fact is that any activity of this kind is an attack on all Americans, all churches, and all faiths. Not one of us is spared the effects of these dehumanizing incidents. This is why it is important that we stand together, all of us, to speak with one voice in condemning these cries of unspeakable dimension. Each of us, in this body and throughout this nation, must demonstrate a collective intolerance for this destruction.

I would hope that all Americans—be they Christian, Jew, Muslim, or even atheist—take time to remember that this nation was founded on the principle of religious freedom. Many of those who set sail upon uncharted and dangerous seas nearly 400 years ago, who landed on shores they knew nothing about, and who undertook unimaginable risks, did so for one overriding reason: religious liberty. Indeed, this most fundamental right is the very first to be protected in the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Mr. President, I believe that all of us have a responsibility, and those of us in this body a sworn duty, to defend this legacy. Thus, I urge every American to join me in condemning these terrible acts of violence: For if we are unwilling to condemn them then we are silently condoning them.

REGARDING FCC AUCTIONS

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I wanted to take a moment of the Senate's time to discuss the issue of spectrum auctions. Specifically, I want to discuss the potential for the Federal Communications Commission to auction channels 60 to 69.

The American people expect the Congress and the FCC to manage this country's public assets in a responsible manner that ensures the greatest benefit to the public as a whole. Unfortunately, both the Congress' and the FCC stewardship of this Nation's spectrum—one of the most valuable public resources—has been uneven at best.

To date over $20 billion has been raised by spectrum auctions. This $20 billion is being used to pay down the deficit and to fund needed Government programs. The American people benefit from these auctions in that they allow innovative companies to offer new and exciting services and reduce the need on taxes.

As my colleagues know, there is considerable debate as to how to allocate broadcast ATV licenses. The Congress should and I hope soon will act on this issue and give the FCC the appropriate guidance necessary on that issue. However, such guidance is not neither needed nor required for the Commission to act on the issue of auctioning channels 60 to 69.

Although there are stations that operate between channels 60 to 69, those entities can be relocated or share other spectrum and still operate. In the long run these entities will not be adversely affected by being forced to relocate.

During a recent hearing of the Commerce Committee, I inquired of the FCC Chairman as to whether a transition from analog to digital television could occur seamlessly while still auctioning channels 60 to 69. Mr. Hundt informed me that FCC engineers foresee no problems with this auction simultaneously occurring while a transition to digital TV occurs.

Based on that evidence, I can see no reason whatsoever for an auction of channels 60 to 69 not to occur. Any effort to thwart an auction of these channels is being done in direct contradiction of the needs of the best interests of the American people.

The last time the Commission had a similar issue before it the Commission decided—correctly I believe—to auction a block of spectrum previously held by a company named ACC. This auction fairly allocated the spectrum and resulted in a $682.5 million windfall for the American taxpayer.

Deciding to vote to auction that spectrum should have been an easy decision. However, it proved to be very controversial. Some have indicated that the decision to auction channels 60 to 69 may be equally vexing.

Mr. President, I sincerely hope that the FCC will see clear to do the right thing and auction these channels. This proposed auction will undoubtedly result in new revenues to the Treasury. If the Commission decides not to auction, I hope the Commission will correctly identify its action as a ripoff of the American taxpayer.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CDC

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, this month marks the 50th anniversary of the Nation's premiere disease prevention agency—the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. CDC was originally created to work with State and local health officials to fight malaria, typhus and other communicable diseases. Today, it's expanded mission is to promote health and the quality of life by preventing and controlling disease, injury, and disability.

Over the years, CDC has implemented numerous prevention programs that have saved lives and improved public health. One of the most dramatic accomplishments has been in combating infectious diseases through its childhood immunization initiatives. During this time, we have witnessed the eradication of the centuries-old scourge of smallpox, and the virtual elimination of polio in the Western Hemisphere.

In recent years, CDC has been at the forefront of the battle against HIV and AIDS. It has initiated numerous studies, surveys, and prevention activities targeting all populations, including women and youth. It has developed and coordinated community planning programs to ensure that prevention efforts include services that are effective in various communities and scientifically sound.

CDC's immunization leadership deserves great credit. Infectious diseases used to kill or disable thousands of children every year. In 1995, vaccine-preventable diseases reached an all-time low, largely because immunization rates had reached an all-time high.

Yet there is still much to be done on immunization. Today over 1 million 2-year-olds lack one or more doses of recommended vaccines. CDC established the childhood immunization initiative to strengthen efforts to ensure that children are protected against vaccine-preventable diseases. The Vaccines for Children Program is one of the key components of this initiative, which CDC is implementing in partnership with States and providers nationwide.

CDC also works effectively to prevent birth defects and genetic diseases, and it has had remarkable success in reducing mental retardation, fetal alcohol syndrome, and neural tube defects, including spina bifida and anencephaly.

CDC also investigates many environmental hazards, including radiation, air pollution, and lead poisoning. In the 1970's, CDC was instrumental in encouraging the Environmental Protection Agency to order the removal of virtually all lead from gasoline, on the basis of studies that identified gasoline as a primary source of lead poisoning. The blood lead levels of American children have declined by 70 percent as a result of that action.

In another principle initiative, CDC is working in partnership with States and public and private organizations to reduce tobacco use and exposure to environmental tobacco smoke, by communicating health information to the public, and assisting States in conducting prevention programs to achieve these essential goals.

CDC promotes women's health in numerous ways, including the Breast Cancer and Cervical Cancer Program, sexually transmitted disease programs, reproductive health research and analysis, and women's health data collection. In addition, CDC has established an Office on Women's Health and has made these issues one of the five priorities of the agency.

CDC also responds to emergencies at home and abroad, including floods, hurricanes, earthquakes, and other disasters. It sent representatives to help respond to the terrorist bombing of the World Trade Center in New York City and the Federal building in Oklahoma City. In the last year, it has developed a national strategy for responding to emerging infectious disease threats. By implementing surveillance systems to identify problems and their causes, and developing appropriate responses, CDC's leadership has been indispensable in minimizing the impact of these threats on public health.

I commend the agency for its extraordinary contributions to the Nation and the world. We need its leadership now, more then ever. New public health challenges await us in the future. Diseases and disasters are no longer easily confined to their place of origin, and wars and natural disasters create new opportunities for the spread of infectious diseases. The lessons of the past 50 years have taught us that we must expect the unexpected. Whether the issue is fighting Ebola outbreaks in Africa the reemergence of drug-resistant tuberculosis in the United States, or many other public health threats, we know the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention will be at the forefront of the worldwide effort to combat them.

THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL AND PREVENTION

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, on July 1, 1996, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention will celebrate its 50th anniversary.

Mr. President, in the United States and around the world, the words "Centers for Disease Control and Prevention" are synonymous with public health. What started in 1946 as a small and comparatively insignificant branch of the Public Health Service, established to prevent the spread of malaria, is today one of the most highly regarded agencies in the Federal Government—an agency whose interests include every communicable disease known to man, and whose mission is to protect the public health by providing practical help whenever and wherever it is called upon to do so.

Over the years, the CDC has become more than just a center for disease control. As early as the 1950's, it became a center of epidemiology, providing surveillance of known diseases and ferreting out the cause of new ones wherever they occurred. From influenza, polio, tuberculosis, and smallpox in the United States to, more recently, Ebola fever in Zaire, the CDC has answered SOS calls from all over the world, and become not only a global leader in public health, but the Nation's and the world's response team for a wide range of health emergencies.

In 1992, it expanded its mission even further—from investigating and controlling disease to preventing it. Today, it champions the prevention of disability and premature death from chronic disease by promoting maternal, infant, and adolescent health, examining the interactions between people and their environment, coordinating the planning and implementation of various vaccine programs for children and adults, communicating information for public health action, and establishing a science base for public health practice.

Mr. President, over the years, the CDC has also had a variety of directors who have lead it with distinction, not the least of which is its current and distinguished director, Dr. David Satcher—a fellow Nashvillian whom I am proud to call my colleague and friend. A former president of Meharry Medical College, professor at the Morehouse School of Medicine, faculty member of the King-Drew Medical Center and the UCLA School of Medicine, Dr. Satcher brings not only world-class stature, but unmatched skill, integrity, and experience to his post as CDC.

Mr. President, it is my pleasure to extend to Dr. Satcher, and to all the staff and employees of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, my heartiest congratulations on the CDC's 50th anniversary, and my best wishes for their continued success in the future.

Mr. President, I thank the chair and yield the floor.

LEGISLATION REGARDING THE TERM "NORMAL TRADE RELATIONS"

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, yesterday I joined with Senators ROTH, MOYNIHAN, BAUCUS, and others on the Finance Committee in introducing a measure that will clarify and emphasize the true meaning of most-favored-nation [MFN] trading status—a misnomer if there ever was one. This is a change I long have advocated, and I hope the Senate will move quickly to approve this legislation.

Since 1989, MFN has gained notoriety as a special favor, a boon, that we grant to other nations. Yet nothing could be further from the truth. MFN denotes a concept used by trading nations that has been around since the 12th century. That concept is simple: No nation shall be granted trade treatment less favorable than that granted to the most favored nation. In other words, no playing favorites. Every nation is to be treated equitably, without discrimination, when it comes to the terms of trade.

Thus, the concept represents the lowest common denominator of trade status—the basic treatment that all receive.

Over time, however, this concept came to be known not as, say, "nondiscriminatory treatment" status, or "least favored nation" status, but as "most favored nation" status. This unfortunate terminology has fostered the mistaken view that MFN is a special treatment granted only to a privileged few. In fact, just the opposite is true: MFN, as the basic trading status between nations, is granted to virtually all nations with whom the United States trades. The exceptions can almost be counted on one hand: Serbia, Laos, Afghanistan, Vietnam, Cuba, North Korea, and Cambodia. I might add that Cambodia is about to come off that already meager list, if legislation now pending in Congress is approved.

So while the concept of MFN is sound, the term used to denote that concept is misleading and has resulted in a good deal of mischief—a fact that Senators MOYNIHAN and I have lamented often during Senate Finance Committee hearings. It is time that we called the MFN nondiscrimination concept by a term that more accurately represents its meaning.

Therefore, I am joining with Chairman ROTH, Senator MOYNIHAN and all of my Finance Committee colleagues to amend U.S. law, where appropriate, to replace the term MFN with the term "NTR:" normal trade relations. From this point on, we will discuss legislation and hold debate on the nondiscrimination concept using the term NTR in place of MFN.

With the concept of MFN remain the same? Yes. Are we signaling a change in domestic policy, or modifying our international obligations in any way? No. But we are making perfectly clear to everyone the true meaning and purpose of this centuries-old concept. And it is my hope that our legislation will result in a better understanding of international trade relations, both here in the Congress and in the eyes of the public.

MARINE CORPS GENERAL OFFICER REQUIREMENT

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on Wednesday, my colleague from Iowa, Senator GRASSLEY, posed a legitimate question regarding the Marine Corps general officer requirement. As I said at the time, that question deserves a legitimate answer. His question basically was, Why does this year's Defense authorization bill provide an extra 12 general officers for the Marines at a time when the Marines are very much in a downsizing mode? The Marine Corps recognized the need for additional general officers several years ago. They developed a plan which was then validated by an independent civilian study and received scrutiny and approval at the Secretary of the Navy level. The Assistant Secretary of Defense received the study and found the rationale to be legitimate and supportable.

First, let me address Senator GRASSLEY's concern for the growth of service headquarters. The Marine Corps' request for additional general officers is not an attempt to increase the size of their service headquarters. For the record, half of those general officers authorized will fill warfighting billets which are currently vacant. Another four will be available for assignment to our warfighting CINCS and two will be used to fill the positions of commanding general at the two Marine Corps recruit depots. As Senator GRASSLEY quoted General Sheehan, "Service Headquarters should not be growing as the force shrinks." I agree, and General Krulak, Commandant of the Marine Corps agrees; Marine Headquarters will not be growing with the addition of these general officers.

Second, let me talk for a few minutes about why the Marines need the additional generals. As the Marines have been brought into the joint arena, the Corps received no increase in flag officer strengths while willingly picking up additional joint requirements at the general officer level. As they have been called upon to fill legitimate joint billets, the Marines have had to leave internal warfighting billets vacant. For instance, a Marine division and a Marine airwing have colonels serving as assistant commanders. This leaves only one general for forces of 18,000 and 15,000 respectively. The other services may have at least two to three flag officers in comparable units.

As I have said, 6 of the 12 generals included in the bill would go directly into existing vacant warfighting positions. Four of the other six would permit the Marines an appropriate representation at the senior level in the joint arena. This will ensure equitable representation in joint duty positions as we envisioned when we passed Goldwater-Nickles. Let me add that the study that I mentioned earlier documented an even larger requirement for additional marine generals. The Commandant reduced that to 14. Our staff validated only 12. I really believe that this is the right thing for this body to do. This matter has received the closest of scrutiny at all levels and was found to be sound.

In summary, Mr. President, the Marine Corps would agree with General Sheehan's remarks that the unwarranted growth of headquarters staffs ultimately threatens the services' warfighting capabilities. However, as I just discussed, the Marine Corps is not trying to increase the size of its headquarters staff, but is first attempting to correct a long-standing deficiency in the number of general officers authorized to fill existing warfighting billets, and second, is in good faith pursuing the need to meet the requirements of the joint warfighting arena mandated by Goldwater-Nickles. The Marine Corps' request has been studied extensively and is supported by both Secretary of the Navy, and the Department of Defense. Correspondingly, the Armed Services Committee has studied and agreed with the requirement.

I respect the inquiry from my colleague from Iowa. He asked a good question and I am pleased to be able to report that the Armed Services Committee's recommendation is supported by analytical evidence and is requirements based. I am confident that we have made the proper recommendation; however, I assure my colleague that the Armed Services Committee will continue to exercise its oversight responsibilities by reviewing the Marine Corps general officer requirements annually.

ALEXANDR LEBED'S ATTACKS ON FAITH

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, when Alexandr Lebed called the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints "mold and scum" he attacked my faith. Russia's new security chief—the man who stands behind Boris Yeltsin—attacked the faith of America's 6th largest church. I believe this requires an immediate and forceful response, and my colleagues and I have drafted a letter to Boris Yeltsin, Ambassador Vorontsov and Secretary of State Christopher.

In his campaign comments yesterday, Lebed struck the nationalist chord. He spoke of the "officially recognized" faiths of "Orthodox Christianity, Islam and Buddhism." There is no mention of Russia's Jews, and that concerns me greatly.

The Mormon faith is a "security threat" to Russia, according to Lebed. It is comparable to the Japanese cult that unleashed poison gas on Tokyo last year. Comparing the Christian faith of the Mormons to a murderous cult led by a deranged individual is a calumny. Referring to the Mormons as a security threat appears to be antidemocratic demoguogery reminiscent of communist propoganda.

Remember that, in the old days of communist propaganda, the Russian people were kept in ignorance and fear with official myths of fabricated foreign threats.

Remember that, in the old days of the communist regime, the totalitarian state disguised itself as a paternalistic state that denied all individual rights, including the freedom of religious practice.

We shouldn't be surprised, after all. Lebed has taken his outrageous rhetoric right out of the resurgent communist party's playbook. This bodes ill for democratic evolution in Russia.

I think Mormons should be insulted, and I am declaring my outrage here. I think Jews should be concerned, and I am declaring my complete support for Russian Jews here.

And I think the Russian people should be insulted. I have too much respect for the character, strength, and, yes, the spirit of the Russian people to think that they need to be patronized by threats of religious persecution.

I will continue to support democratic evolution in Russia. And I think that this evolution demands respect for all human rights—including the right to freedom of religion. I have expressed this in a letter I have drafted to President Yeltsin and Ambassador Vorontsov, and I am grateful that my colleagues here have co-signed it. I am also happy to sign the letter Senator BENNETT has drafted to Secretary of State Christopher.

I ask unanimous consent that these letters be printed in the Record.

I now call on Alexandr Lebed to apologize, and to demonstrate that he has no intention of repeating his threats to freedom of religion in Russia. The future of democratic Russia depends on the preservation of this freedom.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, June 28, 1996.

His Excellency BORIS YELTSIN,
President of the Russian Federation, The Kremlin, Moscow, Russia.

DEAR PRESIDENT YELTSIN: We are writing to express our outrage at the comments on religion reported by Western and Russian news agencies of your new National Security Council Chief, Alexandr Lebed. Mr. Lebed's malicious, unfounded and untrue remarks are an attack on all of the Christian faithful of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the Mormon Church. His comparison of the Mormons to a murderous cult in Japan is offensive, false, and a heinous calumny that could not be explained by mere ignorance.

In addition, his notable exclusion of the Jewish faith from the religions he believes should be "officially recognized" raises concerns worldwide. We are greatly worried over what such an omission means for Russia's Jews.

We are strong supporters of democratic evolution in Russia and have watched with great admiration many of the recent developments in your country. But we simply cannot understand how such hateful declarations of intolerance from leaders of the Russian government can be reconciled with individual human rights, the whole of which cannot exclude freedom of religion.

Furthermore, while we admire and support the very real movement toward democracy in Russia, we cannot ignore the manifestation, explicit in these remarks, of a mentality from Russia's authoritarian past that fabricates foreign threats and influences.

Finally, we have all studied Russian history. As citizens of a free country, we've probably had access to greater resources on Russian history than citizens of your country had up until a few years ago. Any understanding of Russian history must recognize the character and intelligence of the Russian people as well as their individual courage. It is simply incomprehensible to us that any of Russia's leaders would insult their own citizens with a paternalistic attempt to prevent them from making their own determinations about matters as deeply personal as religious beliefs.

Sincerely,

ORRIN G. HATCH.
JESSE HELMS.
ROBERT F. BENNETT.
ARLEN SPECTER.
HARRY REID.
JOSEPH I. LIEBERMAN.

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, June 28, 1996.

His Excellency YULIY M. VORONTSOV,
Ambassador of the Russian Federation, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. AMBASSADOR: We are writing to express our outrage at the comments on religion reported by Western and Russian news agencies of your new National Security Council Chief, Alexandr Lebed. Mr. Lebed's malicious, unfounded and untrue remarks are an attack on all of the Christian faithful of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints, the Mormon Church. His comparison of the Mormons to a murderous cult in Japan is offensive, false, and a heinous calumny that could not be explained by mere ignorance.

In addition, his notable exclusion of the Jewish faith from the religions he believes should be "officially recognized" raises concerns worldwide. We are greatly worried over what such an omission means for Russia's Jews.

We are strong supporters of democratic evolution in Russia and have watched with great admiration many of the recent developments in your country. But we simply cannot understand how such hateful declarations of intolerance from leaders of the Russian government can be reconciled with individual human rights, the whole of which cannot exclude freedom of religion.

Furthermore, while we admire and support the very real movement toward democracy in Russia, we cannot ignore the manifestation, explicit in these remarks, of a mentality from Russia's authoritarian past that fabricates foreign threats and influences.

Finally, we have all studied Russian history. As citizens of a free country, we've probably had access to greater resources on Russian history than citizens of your country had up until a few year ago. Any understanding of Russian history must recognize the character and intelligence of the Russian people as well as their individual courage. It is simply incomprehensible to us that any of Russia's leaders would insult their own citizens with a paternalistic attempt to prevent them from making their own determinations about matters as deeply personal as religious beliefs.

Sincerely,

ORRIN G. HATCH.
JESSE HELMS.
ROBERT F. BENNETT.
ARLEN SPECTER.
HARRY REID.
JOSEPH I. LIEBERMAN.

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, June 28, 1996.

The Honorable WARREN CHRISTOPHER,
Secretary of State, U.S. Department of State, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SECRETARY: According to Western news agencies, yesterday General Alexander Lebed, the new head of Russia's National Security Council, made a number of comments on religious life in Russia today. First, he equated the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints to the Japanese terrorist cult Aum Supreme Truth. His characterization of the Church is defamatory and indefensible in any circumstances, let alone for the second most powerful official in the Russian Federation. Further, given Russia's history of anti-Semitism, his omission of the Jewish faith as an acceptable part of religious life in Russia further reflects a dangerous return to the practices of the past.

Equally disturbing, General Lebed's assessment of the principal religious traditions in Russia, beyond being false, is taken directly from the preelection speeches of Communist Party Gennadei Zyuganov. This willingness to adopt Communist misstatement on the part of a Russian government official leaves us genuinely concerned about whether the Russian political elite is serious in its efforts to break decisively with the Communist past.

As Senators, however, we are most offended that such statements by Mr. Lebed, or any other Russian official, indicate no tolerance in Russia for religious freedom or dissent of any kind. Such behavior demonstrates that, despite the presence of electoral institutions, Russia has made precious little progress toward the development of a civil society. Indeed, Mr. Lebed's statements may have demonstrated that the emperor of Russia "democracy" has no clothes.

Finally, Mr. Secretary, inasmuch as freedom of religion is a core element of American society and one of the bases of our current assistance program, we ask that you review United States assistance to Russia. In a separate letter, we will be raising the same issue with Brian Atwood, Administrator of AID. We look forward to your comments.

Sincerely,

ROBERT F. BENNETT.
HARRY REID.
ARLEN SPECTER.
ORRIN G. HATCH.
JOSEPH I. LIEBERMAN.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Thomas, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 1:58 pm., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Goetz, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 3663. An act to amend the District of Columbia Self-Government and Government Reorganization Act to permit the Council of the District of Columbia to authorize the issuance of revenue bonds with respect to water and sewer facilities, and for other purposes.

H.R. 3675. An act making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

The message also announced that the Speaker also signed the following enrolled bills:

H.R. 2437. An act to provide for the exchange of certain lands in Gilpin County, Colorado.

H.R. 3525. An act to amend title 18, United States Code, to clarify the Federal jurisdiction over offenses relating to damage to religious property.

MEASURE REFERRED

The following bill was read the first and second times by unanimous consent and referred as indicated:

H.R. 3675. An act making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Appropriations.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, which were referred as indicated:

EC-3228. A communication from the Acting General Counsel, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to the support for S. 39; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-3229. A communication from the Secretary of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, an annual report on Financial Overview for fiscal year 1995; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-3230. A communication from the Director of the Office of Global Programs, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Climate and Global Change Program," received on June 12, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-3231. A communication from the Director of the Office of Congressional Affairs, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on a final policy statement relative to the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-3232. A communication from the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report entitled "Commission's Rules to Permit Routine Use of Signal Boosters,"; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3233. A communication from the Secretary of the Federal Trade Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a trade regulation rule concerning the incandescent lamp industry; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3234. A communication from the Office of the Chairman, Surface Transportation Board, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report of rules relative to traffic; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3235. A communication from the Office of the Chairman, Surface Transportation Board, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report of rules relative to rail lines; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3236. A communication from the Deputy Director of the Office of Public/Private Initiatives, International Trade Administration, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "International Buyer Program," (RIN0625–XX07) received on June 17, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3237. A communication from the Director of the Resource Management and Planning Staff, Trade Development, International Trade Administration, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Market Development Cooperator Program," (RIN0625–ZA03) received on June 13, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3238. A communication from the Administrator, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, an annual report relative to Congress Civil Aviation Security; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3239. A communication from the Program Management Officer, National Marine Fisheries Service, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report of a final rule entitled "Summer Flounder Fishery," (RIN0648–AI93) received on June 20, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3240. A communication from the Acting Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, National Marine Fisheries Service, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Department of Commerce, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of an interim final rule entitled "Fisheries in the Caribbean, Gulf of Mexico, and South Atlantic," (RIN0648–AI20) received on June 24, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3241. A communication from the Director of the Office of Fisheries, Conservation and Management, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Groundfish of the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands Area," received on June 13, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3242. A communication from the Director of the Office of Fisheries, Conservation and Management, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Groundfish of the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands Area," received on June 21, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3243. A communication from the Director of the Office of Fisheries, Conservation and Management, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Pacific Halibut Fisheries," received on June 7, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3244. A communication from the Director of the Office of Fisheries, Conservation and Management, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Reef Fish Fishery of the Gulf of Mexico," received on June 24, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3245. A communication from the Director of the Office of Fisheries, Conservation and Management, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Groundfish of the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands Area," received on June 24, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3246. A communication from the Director of the Office of Fisheries, Conservation and Management, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Pacific Coast Groundfish Fishery," received on June 12, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3247. A communication from the Director of the Office of Fisheries, Conservation and Management, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a final rule entitled "Ocean Salmon Fisheries Off the Coasts of Washington, Oregon, and California," received on June 24, 1996; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3248. A communication from the Office of the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to noise figure performance measurements; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3249. A communication from the Office of the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to open video systems; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC–3250. A communication from the Office of the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to FM broadcast stations; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mrs. KASSEBAUM, from the Committee on Labor and Human Resources, with amendments:

S. 1423. A bill to amend the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 to make modifications to certain provisions, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 104–308).

By Mr. MURKOWSKI, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, without amendment:

S. 1174. A bill to amend the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act to designate certain segments of the Lamprey River in New Hampshire as components of the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 104–309).

By Mr. MURKOWSKI, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute and an amendment to the title:

S. 1226. A bill to require the Secretary of the Interior to prepare a study of battlefields of the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812, to establish an American Battlefield Protection Program, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 104–310).

By Mr. MURKOWSKI, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, without amendment:

S. 1874. A bill to amend sections of the Department of Energy Organization Act that are obsolete or inconsistent with other statutes and to repeal a related section of the Federal Energy Administration Act of 1974 (Rept. No. 104–311).

By Mr. MURKOWSKI, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, with an amendment:

H.R. 238. A bill to provide for the protection of wild horses within the Ozark National Scenic Riverways and prohibit the removal of such horses (Rept. No. 104–312).

By Mr. MURKOWSKI, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, without amendment:

H.R. 1014. A bill to authorize extension of time limitation for a FERC-issued hydroelectric license (Rept. No. 104–313).

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second time by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself and Mr. JEFFORDS):

S. 1922. A bill to amend the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to establish a Pension ProSave system which improves the retirement income security of millions of American workers by encouraging employers to make pension contributions on behalf of employees, by facilitating pension portability, by preserving and increasing retirement savings, and by simplifying pension law; to the Committee on Finance.

S. 1923. A bill to establish a Pension ProSave system which improves the retirement income security of millions of American workers by encouraging employers to make pension contributions on behalf of employees, by facilitating pension portability, by preserving and increasing retirement savings, and by simplifying pension law; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

By Mr. STEVENS:

S. 1924. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to issue a certificate of documentation and coastwise trade endorsement for the vessel DAMN YANKEE; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

By Mr. GORTON (for himself, Mr. COATS, Mr. HATCH, Mr. FAIRCLOTH, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GREGG, Mr. FRIST, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. LOTT, Mrs. KASSEBAUM, Mr. KYL, Mr. MACK, Mr. NICKLES, and Mr. PRESSLER):

S. 1925. A bill to amend the National Labor Relations Act to protect employer rights, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

By Mr. COCHRAN (for himself and Mr. SPECTER):

S. 1926. A bill to provide for the integrity of the medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mrs. BOXER:

S. 1927. A bill to prohibit 401(k) plans from investing in collectibles and to require certain 401(k) plans to provide to participants annual, detailed reports on the investments made by such plans; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. LEVIN:

S. 1928. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to eliminate tax incentives for exporting jobs outside of the United States, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. WELLSTONE:

S. 1929. A bill to extend the authority for the Homeless Veterans' Reintegration Projects for fiscal years 1997 through 1999, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans Affairs.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. BROWN:

S. Res. 275. Resolution to express the sense of the Senate concerning Afghanistan; to the Committee on Finance.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself and Mr. JEFFORDS):

S. 1922. A bill to amend the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to establish a Pension ProSave system which improves the retirement income security of millions of American workers by encouraging employers to make pension contributions on behalf of employees, by facilitating pension portability, by preserving and increasing retirement savings, and by simplifying pension law; to the Committee on Finance.

S. 1923. A bill to establish a Pension ProSave system which improves the retirement income security of millions of American workers by encouraging employers to make pension contributions on behalf of employees, by facilitating pension portability, by preserving and increasing retirement savings, and by simplifying pension law; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

THE PENSION PRO-SAVE ACT

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I appreciate very much the chance to speak, address the Senate today on the very important issue of retirement security. The Senator from Vermont, Senator JEFFORDS, and myself are introducing today two bills. I will just read the title for people so that they will get an idea what these bills will do:

> To establish a Pension ProSave system that improves retirement income security for millions of American workers by encouraging employers to make pension contributions on behalf of employees, by facilitating pension portability, by preserving and increasing retirement savings, and by simplifying pension law.

Mr. President, before I describe our proposal, let me describe the problem, because I think the problem we are attempting to confront is severe, is serious, and affects many of us in this country. This first chart I have here describes the problem very well. This is a chart with the title, "More Than 50 Million Workers Are Not Earning A Pension."

This pie chart shows that over half of the private sector workers in this country today, 50.8 million people, as of April 1993, so I am sure it is even larger now, but over 50 million people are not covered by any kind of pension. This, of course, is separate from Social Security, which is not a pension program. But as regards any other type of pension, more than half of our workers are not covered today.

Let me show another chart that sort of breaks this down by State and shows the problem as it exists from State to State. You can see the percentages. This chart shows on a map here the percentage of people covered by some type of pension plan in each of our States. People might ask, why is a Senator from New Mexico even interested in this issue? I can tell you why. When you look at New Mexico, we have the lowest percentage of our workers covered by pensions of any State in the Union; 29 percent of our private sector employees in New Mexico actually have some degree of pension coverage.

Let me show another chart here, which tries to make the same point somewhat differently and just shows the percentage of workers who do not have coverage: "State Differences In Pension Coverage." Starting from the top, the State with the largest percentage of workers not covered is New Mexico, with 71 percent; next Louisiana, 69 percent; then Nevada, 67 percent; and on down the list.

I see my friend from North Dakota on the floor. In his State, 61 percent percent of the people in that State do not have any pension coverage. So this is a serious, serious problem.

The final chart I will show is a chart to make the point that the problem is not getting better or getting solved. In fact, it is getting worse. This shows two different figures here, first the figure for 1979 and then the figure for 1989. The red is the percentage of coverage that existed in 1979, the yellow is the percentage of coverage that existed 10 years later, in 1989, for different groups in our society depending upon the extent of the education they have received.

We can see for those with less than a high school education, in 1979, 44 percent of those people were covered; in 1989, 28 percent. And on and on down through the list. Again, it is clear that our Nation has a severe problem to confront.

Second, it is clear the problem is getting worse. The reasons for inadequate pension coverage are what we need to focus on. I believe there are four key reasons why so many of our citizens have no pension coverage.

First, present law does not provide adequate incentives for employers to contribute to a pension plan for themselves and their employees. Many of our small businesses, the vast majority of our small businesses, do not contribute at the present time because those incentives are not there.

A second reason is that, in addition to inadequate incentives, present law imposes significant administrative duties on employers who wish to assist in providing pension coverage.

A third reason is that the rapid pace of job change, combined with significant waiting periods before retirement benefits vest, results in many employees losing their rights to retirement benefits when they move from job to job.

The fourth reason is that present law greatly limits the amount of pretax savings that a person can achieve unless his or her employer does take on this administrative duty of establishing a pension plan.

Let me describe briefly the proposal that Senator JEFFORDS and I are putting before the Senate today and are having referred to committee. This Pension ProSave proposal seeks to increase the number of Americans with some level of pension benefits by curing the deficiencies that are presently in the law. First, it provides an additional tax incentive to an employer if he or she commits an amount equal to at least 1 percent of each employee's salary to a pension for all employees. The maximum amount each year that an employer may contribute for each employee would be $5,000.

A second way we are trying to correct deficiencies is that the administrative duties on the employer wishing to participate in this Pension ProSave proposal are kept to an absolute minimum. Employers are given the flexibility to increase the amount of the contribution to the pension plan or to suspend payments entirely for a single year, if that is necessary because of economic hardship in the business. The employer participating in Pension ProSave is free of any future pension obligations to employees once those employees leave the job. That is a very important benefit to employers, as we see it.

A third way we are trying to correct deficiencies is that the employee will become eligible to accrue pension benefits whenever those pension benefits are made by the employer. If the employer wants to participate in Pension ProSave, the employer would have to go ahead and make contributions for each employee once the employee has been employed for 6 months. But those payments would vest immediately once they were made into the ProSave account of the employee.

When an employee not covered by Pension ProSave leaves a job where benefits have accrued, that employee would have the right to direct the employer to transfer the cash equivalent of accrued pension benefits to an account in the name of the employee and the Pension Portability Clearinghouse which we are establishing under this act.

Under Pension ProSave, an employee may save additional pretax dollars for his or her own retirement in the amount twice what the employer contributes each year, to a maximum of $5,000, whichever is less. Amounts employees are permitted to save are in addition to what might be saved in an IRA or some other pension plan.

To accomplish this set of objectives, we are proposing to establish a nonprofit, private corporation chartered by an act of Congress, which would be designated the Pension Portability Clearinghouse, to administer the Pension ProSave system. The corporation would be governed by a board, the members of which would be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Payments into the clearinghouse would occur, first, when an employee who has chosen to participate in Pension ProSave makes a payment to the account of an employee;

Second, when an employee makes a payment, as permitted, which could be up to twice what the employer has made that same year;

And third, as I indicated before, when an employer who does not participate at the direction of the employee transfers cash payments to a Pension ProSave account when the employee leaves that employer's company.

There are some similarities in what we are proposing to the TIAA-CREF model, with which many people are familiar. TIAA-CREF is the largest pension plan for administration of pension benefits that currently exists in this country, and I believe in the world. TIAA-CREF, originally established by Andrew Carnegie to help those teaching in universities to have pension coverage when moving from one educational institution to another, current manages more than $136 billion for approximately 1.7 million participants at more than 5,500 institutions.

The similarities between the Pension Portability Clearinghouse and TIAA-CREF are that we would have central administration of accounts for multiple employers.

Also, we would provide the ability of employees and employers to use the mechanism of Pension ProSave accounts if they chose to.

We differ from TIAA-CREF in several significant ways also. First of all, Pension ProSave would be open to all employers, not just to those in a particular industry or particular field. TIAA-CREF, for example, is limited just to those involved with higher education or research.

Pension ProSave is limited strictly to maintaining records of account balances and not to managing funds or selling annuities. Again, that would be a significant difference between what we are proposing and TIAA-CREF.

We also have some similarities in this proposal to the Federal thrift savings plan in that we do provide a means to establish a retirement account and to add to it as a person proceeds through their career.

We differ from the thrift savings plan in obvious ways also in that we have designed Pension ProSave for contributions to retirement savings even as a person moves from job to job. The thrift savings plan, of course, is limited to Federal employees, people working for a single employer.

Pension ProSave provides for immediate vesting of employee contributions. The thrift savings plan for Federal workers does not.

Pension ProSave does not have any requirement on employers to match contributions by employees as the thrift savings plan does.

So what we are proposing is not a carbon copy of TIAA-CREF; it is not a carbon copy of the Federal thrift savings plan either. Instead, it is a new mechanism which employers could choose to take advantage of or not, as they see fit. For those who do choose to participate, it provides a hassle-free way for the employer and the employee to save more pretax dollars for retirement.

There is one other feature of Pension ProSave that I want to highlight, and that is the opportunity it provides for employers to engage in profit sharing with their employees. Suppose, for example, that I am a small business owner and I am not sure from one year to the next how well or how poorly my business will do. Under Pension ProSave, I would have the option of setting up Pension ProSave accounts for each employee by committing to contribute as little as 1 percent of their salary into those accounts each time I issue a paycheck to them.

By making that 1 percent contribution, I give each employee the opportunity to contribute an additional 2 percent from their own resources. But if I do contribute the 1 percent each pay period from January, say, through December and then decide that it has been a very good year for my business and I want to share some of the profit with employees, I could increase that contribution into Pension ProSave for my employees to 2 percent or to 5 percent, as long as I did not exceed the $5,000 total limit per employee.

This proposal does provide a hassle-free way to save pretax dollars for retirement, a hassle-free way to participate with profit sharing programs for employees. It promotes savings. It will help more people to reach retirement with pensions. It will help to buffer individuals against the turbulence of this economy we live in. It will provide more employers with a good vehicle for profit sharing. All of those are major benefits to our Nation.

Mr. President, one cause of the extraordinary economic anxiety in our Nation is related to the eroding sense of financial security at retirement. A recent study of worker's views of their present and future economic circumstances found that most people believe that despite the twists, turns, and pitfalls in our rapidly changing economy, that they can chart a successful course to retirement. But their anxiety levels were extremely high when concerns about the solvency of Social Security and about the great number of Americans without pension benefits were mentioned.

Americans include retirement security in their personal strategies for economic success. I believe that America is calling for a credible proposal that will get more of our Citizens covered by some kind of pensions.

There is no doubt that increasing retirement savings will help bolster national savings, which will help spur more long-term investment and economic growth. I urge my colleagues to review this proposal which Senator JEFFORDS and I are offering and join us in this effort to improve retirement security for many millions of Americans.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, the problem of retirement security is an ever mounting challenge to the future welfare of our Nation. More than 51 million Americans are not covered by any kind of pension plan. The aging of the baby boom generation will dramatically increase the retired population in proportion to the working population early in the next century.

Our Nation is facing certain crisis if we fail to take steps to correct this problem of people working until retirement—and finding that their Social Security benefits fail to maintain adequate and acceptable living standards. Despite the proliferation of retirement products in various forms of IRA's and 401(k) plans, patterns clearly show that those who earn enough to save probably do. Our problem is that over the last 15 years, we have had no increase in the percentage of our workforce that is participating in a qualified pension program.

Mr. President, in order to ensure that this Congress does face the issue of retirement security for all working Americans and not just the fortunate minority who are saving, I am introducing with my colleague, Senator BINGAMAN, the Retirement Security for All Americans Pension Pro-Save Act.

The bill we are introducing outlines a concept for pension expansion and portability that has been discussed in this Chamber several times over the last several decades but which has not evolved until now as legislation. The Pension ProSave System would improve the retirement income security of millions of working Americans by encouraging employees to make contributions on their behalf, by facilitating pension portability, by preserving and significantly increasing retirement savings and by simplifying pension law.

Despite 17 years of availability of simplified pension plans, pension coverage remains low in the small business sector. Even when covered by a tax-advantaged pension plan, many workers cash out their own contributions made to the pension plan when they leave one job rather than roll them over into another retirement vehicle. Tax penalties unfortunately have not been entirely successful in discouraging the spending of these midcareer retirement savings disbursements. Of the $47.9 billion in preretirement distributions made in 1990, less than 20 percent of recipients reported putting the entire distribution into another tax-qualified retirement plan.

The Pension ProSave System is modeled after the highly successful Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equity Fund (TIAA-CREF), the largest private pension system in the world with assets over $136 billion and about 1.7 million participants at about 5,500 institutions. This proposal targets those who are working their way toward retirement—and will have little or no private pension plan to supplement their Social Security benefits. Pension Pro-Save is designed to supplement other pension vehicles and will increase pension coverage to millions of American workers, especially for those who work for small businesses.

The benefits of Pension ProSave are first, it would provide an incentive and a simple, hassle free way for employers to provide portable pension benefits to their workers. Employees could also make matching contributions to their accounts on a 2:1 basis to a maximum of $5,000. The employer's contributions also would not exceed $5,000. Mr. President, I want to emphasize that these are the employee's accounts—not the Government's and not the employer's. These accounts will remain with those workers the duration of their lives.

Second, Pension ProSave would stop the leakage of retirement savings by furnishing employer's pension contributions into a portability clearinghouse. Worker's account balances would be invested and managed by private sector firms in diversified portfolios.

Mr. President, the funds contributed by an employer to the retirement security of his or her employees by way of a ProSave account will remain there and be invested at the direction of the employee until retirement. The Portability Clearinghouse will contract with investment firms to manage funds through the Clearinghouse. Investment options would include a fixed income fund, an equity fund, a Government securities fund, small business capitalization fund, an international fund, and a public infrastructure fund.

Employers will have no responsibility for administering a pension fund or managing funds for employees who have left their employment. This should be very attractive to businesses that do not desire to carry long-term responsibilities for workers who have moved on. Employer contributions are locked into the Pension ProSave accounts until retirement, funds contributed by the employee are available to be loaned for certain purposes and under terms established by the Portability Clearinghouse Board.

Mr. President, I have no doubt that some who oppose this plan will rattle the cages and make claims that this act is nothing but more big Government, another bureaucratic institution that spreads the Government further into our lives. These claims would be wrong—and will only serve to maintain an economic reality that permits those best off in our society to take advantage and save up to $30,000 a year with Government provided tax advantages for 401(k)s and other employer sponsored private pension plans. Government does have an important role to play because the market has failed to provide the extension of pension coverage to 51 million Americans.

It is unacceptable that workers who don't have an employer provided pension plan—can only save $2,000 a year in IRA accounts. We must now do what we can to provide an incentive to employers to provide modest retirement security for more employees. This plan is an enabler—it creates a structure, similar in many ways to the TIAA-CREF model established at the beginning of this century by Andrew Carnegie to provide pension portability for professors and university employees moving between one higher education institution and another.

We have a responsibility not only to create a more equitable savings structure for those Americans who have the desire and wherewithal to save—but also to the many Americans who are low-income workers who move from job to job, finding themselves with little or no private pensions to help them in their retirement years.

Pension ProSave promotes savings, helps more people reach retirement with pensions, helps buffer against the turbulence of the economy, and provides many employers with a good vehicle for profit sharing. All of these are benefits for our Nation as a whole.

Interestingly enough, any plan that succeeds in establishing more retirement security for our working population is scored as costing our country short-term tax revenue. By the year 2029, when the youngest baby boomers reach age 65, more than 68 million persons will be older than 65—accounting for more than 20 percent of the U.S. population, compared to just 12 percent today. As a result, the ratio of workers contributing to Social Security will fall to two workers for every retiree. Rising Medicare and long-term care costs add even more to the savings retirees will need.

Mr. President, I ask you and my other colleagues in this Chamber to stop thinking in the short term and not wait until the baby boomers begin to retire. If we do not begin to find the way to increase the ability of private employers and individuals to finance retirement needs the cost to our country will be much greater than revenue loses. Establishing Pension ProSave accounts is an investment that will help our Nation avoid a social train wreck that is just waiting to happen.

By Mr. STEVENS:

S. 1924. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to issue a certificate of documentation and coastwise trade endorsement for the vessel Damn Yankee; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

JONES ACT WAIVER LEGISLATION

• Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, today I am introducing a bill to provide a certificate of documentation for the vessel Damn Yankee.

The Damn Yankee (vessel number 263611) is a 40 foot vessel owned by David Guthert of Juneau, AK. It was built in Bellingham, WA, in 1952. Because of a gap in the ownership records of this vessel, it has been determined to be ineligible for documentation under the Jones Act. Mr. Guthert plans on using the boat for charter purposes.

I ask for unanimous consent that this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1924

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That notwithstanding sections 12106, 12107, and 12108 of title 46, United States Code, and section 27 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1920 (46 (App. U.S.C. 883), as applicable on the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation may issue a certificate of documentation with appropriate endorsements for employment in the coastwise trade for the vessel DAMN YANKEE (vessel number 263611).•

By Mr. GORTON (for himself, Mr. COATS, Mr. HATCH, Mr. FAIRCLOTH, Mr. WARNER, Mr. GREGG, Mr. FRIST, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. LOTT, Mrs. KASSEBAUM, Mr. KYL, Mr. MACK, Mr. PRESSLER, and Mr. NICKLES):

S. 1925. A bill to amend the National Labor Relations Act to protect employer rights, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

THE TRUTH IN EMPLOYMENT ACT OF 1996

• Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I am pleased today to join with Senators COATS, HATCH, FAIRCLOTH, WARNER, GREGG, FRIST, COCHRAN, LOTT, KASSEBAUM, KYL, MACK, PRESSLER, and NICKLES to introduce an important piece of legislation designed to alleviate an unfair practice affecting thousands of businesses in my home State of Washington and across the country. It is the Truth in Employment Act of 1996, which will curb the abuses of the union organizing tactic known as salting.

Salting, Mr. President, occurs when unions send paid, professional organizers and union members into nonunion workplaces under the guise of seeking employment. The unions' avowed purpose in these salting programs is to harass the company, its employees, and to disrupt the jobsite until the company is either financially devastated or joins the union, whichever comes first. The key problem is that unions have trained their agents to use and abuse the procedures of the National Labor Relations Board as an offensive weapon against nonunion employers, largely by filing frivolous unfair labor practice charges.

This fall, in Town & Country, the Supreme Court ruled that paid, professional union organizers are "employees" within the meaning of the National Labor Relations Act. Under the broad interpretations of the National Labor Relations Act, provisions prohibit employers from discriminating against employees because of other union interests or activities. This places employers, most of them small, mom-and-pop businesses, in a disastrous Catch-22: if they hire the union salts, they are subjected to outrageous internal harassment, but if they do not hire them, the salts cry discrimination and file frivolous charges. Employers are forced to make decisions about hiring, which may threaten the very existence of their businesses. Naturally, these businesses are concerned that the Supreme Court's ruling gives the unions carte blanche to use organizing techniques such as salting.

I continue to hear from small businesses from across my home State on this issue. In Snohomish county, a mid-sized mechanical subcontractor has employed over 70 union members over the years to work side-by-side with nonunion employees pursuant to project agreements. Despite this, the operating engineer's union carries out a classic salting campaign involving 14 union applicants, one of whom is a business agent. When none of the applicants are hired, the union files unfair labor practice charges. Despite the employer's history of employing union members pursuant to project agreements, the NLRB's regional office finds sufficient merit to issue a complaint and proceed to a hearing. After spending $21,000 in attorneys fees, they settled for $10,500.

Mr. President, this is just one example of the devastating economic effect salting has had on small businesses in my State. Small businesses are the backbone of our economy, providing jobs to millions of people. Understandably, this has become a serious issue for thousands of businesses across the country. Trying to defend themselves against frivolous discrimination charges, employers must incur tens of thousands of dollars in legal expenses, delays, and lost hours—time and resources, which could be better spent expanding businesses and creating economic opportunity in local communities.

The Truth in Employment Act will amend the National Labor Relations Act by adding a provision that establishes that an employer is not required to hire a person seeking employment whose primary purpose is to represent a union in an organizational struggle. Under this bill employees will continue to be afforded their right to organize and engage in the activities protected under the National Labor Relations Act. It is in no way the intent of this bill to infringe upon those rights or protections. Employers will continue to be prohibited from discriminating on the basis of union membership or activism. The bill, however, curb the abuses of salting. Abuses that have caused one constituent in my State to declare bankruptcy, one to agree to sign a union agreement because he "was too old to go through the harassment again," one who is afraid to hire more employees, one who has in excess of $100,000 in legal fees and another who just "got off easy" with $40,000 in legal fees. These are not large firms, Mr. President, they are family-run businesses.

That is the issue, Mr. President, and that is why I am introducing the Truth in Employment Act. I encourage my colleagues to help me pass this bill and restore fairness to our small businesses.•

• Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senator SLADE GORTON, who is my colleague on the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, as a cosponsor of his bill, the Truth in Employment Act of 1996. This legislation addresses an issue known as salting.

Over the last few years, professional union organizers, known as salts, have attempted to gain access to private property for organizing purposes. Sometimes, supervisors refuse to provide access to the property. Other times, if organizers gain access to the property, they have destroyed equipment and been disruptive.

Whether or not the organizers gain access to the property, they five numerous charges with the National Labor Relations Board [NLRB], knowing that the cost of defending such groundless charges ultimately must be borne by the employer. This process, known as salting, is an abuse of our system and is nothing less than outright harassment.

Our Federal labor law protects the right of workers to organize a union. It does not and it should not protect unions as they attempt to use our Federal agencies to harass companies.

I recognize at this late date in our legislative session that this bill has little chance of becoming law in 1996. I also understand that concerns had been raised over how to address the salting problem through legislation. Because this is an important issue, though, we need to move forward by introducing a bill. I hope that through the process of hearings in our committee, we will find an acceptable legislative solution that all parties can accept.•

By Mr. COCHRAN (for himself and Mr. SPECTER):

S. 1926. A bill to provide for the integrity of the Medicare Program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

THE MEDICARE EMERGENCY PROTECTION ACT OF 1996

•Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, earlier this month, the Medicare trustees released their 1996 annual report on the fiscal solvency of the Medicare trust fund. The bottom line is that the Medicare trust fund is going broke. And it is going broke sooner that we had been told.

Last year's report revealed Medicare's deteriorating financial condition, but it was optimistic compared to the report released earlier this month. This month's report predicted the program will be bankrupt just 5 years from now—possibly running out of money as early as calendar year 2000.

This means by that time, there will be no funds available to pay for the hospital care for our Nation's senior citizens.

Last year, Congress passed and sent to the President a balanced set of reforms which would have kept Medicare solvent through the next generation while still increasing spending per beneficiary from $4,800 per year to more than $7,100 per year. It also offered seniors more choices and included incentives to combat fraud and abuse.

Unfortunately, President Clinton vetoed the Medicare Preservation Act, which was included as a part of the Balanced Budget Act.

Because I am tired of the partisan conflict on this issue, I am introducing the Medicare Emergency Protection Act of 1996, which incorporates the President's Medicare cuts. If the President will not approve our Republican proposal for reform of the Medicare program, I suggest we pass the President's bill. We cannot allow partisan bickering and political grandstanding to prevent the resolution of this crisis.

The American people are fed up with this kind of politics with the gridlock on this issue. It is like Nero playing his fiddle while Rome burned.

I am fed up with this stalemate too. I suggest we adopt the short-term changes recommended by the President which cut the costs of the program and create the commission to recommend the long-term changes to save Medicare.

My bill has two parts. The first part incorporates the President's proposed cuts in Medicare. But it excludes his accounting gimmick which would transfer the costs of home health care from the Hospital Insurance Program to the Supplemental Medical Insurance Program. While this transfer would extend the technical solvency of the trust fund, it would shift billions of dollars in additional costs to the general taxpayer.

The second part of this legislation creates a commission similar to the National Commission on Social Security Reform. As some of my colleagues will recall, that Commission was established by President Reagan and the Congress in 1981. The Commission suggested reforms which will maintain the fiscal solvency of the Social Security trust fund until sometime after the year 2025.

Last year, Majority Leader Dole and Speaker GINGRICH proposed a similar commission to address the fiscal insolvency of the Medicare trust fund. Unfortunately, the Clinton administration rejected that proposal.

However, in their recent report, the Medicare trustees, which include three members of President Clinton's Cabinet, themselves proposed the establishment of a commission.

Now, there is obvious bipartisan support for this proposal. The National Commission on Medicare Reform will have 1 year to consider options for reform to secure the long-term fiscal solvency of the Medicare trust fund. Once the members of the Commission have settled on a set of reforms, the President will review the proposal. If he approved it, he will submit the proposal to the Congress. Under expedited procedures, the House of Representatives and the Senate will consider it and, without amendment, vote up or down to approve or reject the reforms.

I urge my colleagues to approve this legislation. Each day that passes makes the eventual solutions more difficult to achieve.

I ask unanimous consent that copies of the statement I made on this subject in the Senate on June 6 and 7 be reprinted in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Congressional Record, June 6, 1996]

MEDICARE INSOLVENCY

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, this afternoon, we had a interesting hearing in the subcommittee for appropriations which is chaired by the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SPECTER]. The witness was the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Secretary Shalala. We were examining the budget request being submitted by the administration for appropriations to operate the Department of the Government for the next fiscal year than begins October 1.

Secretary Shalala happens to be in another capacity a trustee of this group who have the responsibility of monitoring the trust fund that supports the benefits paid out under the Medicare Program. Since that group of trustees had just made their report public yesterday at the news conference which we all read and heard about, that subject came up.

It occurred to me, since there was before the general public a suggestion by the President that he had made recommendations that were almost identical with the Republican suggestion about how to protect the benefits of this Medicare Program and how to deal with this impending insolvency of that fund, it occurs to me that we are going to see more of the same kind of political shenanigans from now until the end of this year, with nothing being done unless somebody is ready to say, "OK, we will go along with your proposal."

The President can say that to the Congress, or we can say that to the President. I am prepared at this point to suggest, in a serious way, and said this to Secretary Shalala at the hearing, the Congress accept the President's suggestions. We can pass the suggested changes for short-term relief of pressure on that fund, but at the same time appoint a commission which is also called for by the President and the trustees in their report to propose long-term changes, changes to affect the long-term insolvency problems of the trust fund, and that the Congress, through its leaders and the President himself, agree to implement the recommendations of that commission for long-term changes.

It seems to me that is one way to resolve this as a part of this argument over whether Republicans are trying to cut taxes, to impose changes on Medicare beneficiaries as a part of a budget balancing act. We already, in the Congress, submitted to the President proposals to rescues the Medicare Program. That was a part of the Balanced Budget Act which the President vetoed. He has already rejected what Congress has suggested. After weeks and weeks of negotiations with leaders of the Congress and the President at the White House, all we got out to it were some photo ops, some political posturing, partisan sniping. We have had enough of that. The American people are fed up with that kind of politics. That is not the way to run the Government. I am tired of it.

I have recommended and seriously urge this Congress to accept the recommendation of the President—not the one, of course, that says that home health care ought to be paid for out of the general Treasury; I am talking about changes that will reduce the costs of the program in a way that saves the program from insolvency—they recommended last year that we had to act before the year 2002, that we were going to see an insolvency, there would be a bankrupted fund, in effect.

Now, the report this year is worse than that. The year before it was going insolvent. Under the last report, it is going to lose $33 billion, and the following year $100 billion. Contrary to what the junior Senator from West Virginia said, that this is a Republican-manufactured crisis, that is an outrageous comment. That is totally outrageous. These trustees are Democrats by and large. Secretary Rubin said it, Secretary Shalala said it is going to be insolvent, the head of the Social Security Administration was standing there and agreed with them. That is not a group of Republicans. The Republicans are not manufacturing a crisis. The crisis is real. The crisis is now.

It is irresponsible for us to continue to sit here and listen to this kind of arguing made by Senators on the other side that this is some kind of effort by Republicans to frighten older people. I am frightened. I am not an eligible beneficiary yet. We have to act.

I want to commend the Senator from Pennsylvania for his leadership in an effort to get the Secretary to agree to recommendations to the administration, that they take a stand, put their recommendations in the form of legislation, send it to the Hill, and see if we can pass it.

MEDICARE TRUST FUND

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, first, I want to commend the distinguished Senator from Georgia [Mr. COVERDELL], and those who spoke this morning on the subject of a balanced budget amendment and the unfortunate consequences of our failure to deal with the problem of the ever-increasing deficits.

We also had a few of those Senators mention, as an aside, the problem with the Medicare trust fund. I wanted to remind Senators that we had a hearing yesterday in the Appropriations Subcommittee that funds the Department of Health and Human Services, and Secretary Donna Shalala came before the committee to present the President's proposed budget for that Department for the next fiscal year. She serves, along with others in the administration, on this panel of trustees, whose responsibility it is to monitor and help keep Congress and the administration informed about the integrity of the trust fund, and supports the Medicare Program.

The trustees, earlier this week, talked about the fact that the worst case scenario for future deficits in that program had been exceeded, and that rather than having the program go bankrupt, be hopelessly insolvent by the year 2002, it was going to be bankrupt earlier. By the year 2000, it would be out of balance by over $30 billion, and the following year, it would be out of balance and in deficit at the figure of $100 billion.

The consequences of this report have to wake up everybody to the realization that unless Congress and the administration quit playing politics with this issue, it is going to be insolvent. This program is going to be in jeopardy, and benefits are going to be in jeopardy as well.

I think the time has come for us to say, OK, the Republican Congress passed a balanced budget act last year. It included in that suggested reforms in the Medicare Program that would have put it in balance, would have kept it solvent, would have made some needed changes in the program to give older citizens more choices, more protection, so that their medical expenses and benefits could continue to be paid through this program.

The President vetoed the bill. He rejected the balanced budget act. So we started over again. This year, the Budget Committee is wrestling with the problem of reconciling budget resolutions, which contain projected expenditures under this program, as well as all other Federal programs, with an effort to continue to build toward a balanced budget plan as soon as possible. Their projection is the year 2002.

What I am going to suggest is that, in this politically charged environment of Presidential politics and campaigns for House and Senate seats underway—and we have to admit it—it is unlikely that this administration is going to change its mind and embrace the Republican proposals. And so we have to acknowledge that.

The President, at the same time, has made a counteroffer, as I understand it, and has proposed some changes in the Medicare Program, which would achieve savings of $116 billion over the same period of time. The Republican proposals would have achieved savings of almost $170 billion.

Let us say, OK, Mr. President, have it your way for the short term. Let us introduce the President's proposed changes in the Medicare Program. Let us accept his proposals for changes and cuts in the Medicare Program and enact them next week, or the week following. If the reconciliation bill from the Budget Committee's resolution is vetoed by the President or not supported by the Democrats in that area of the budget, let us isolate the Medicare Program changes and enact some changes.

I suggest, let us enact the President's proposed changes and cuts in the program and, at the same time, establish a commission—which the President has recommended, the trustees have recommended in their report, including Secretary Shalala, Secretary Reich, Secretary Rubin, and others, who serve on that trustee panel—to recommend long-term changes in the Medicare Program that would ensure its solvency and protect the benefits for the older citizens in our society over the long term.

I do not see anything wrong with that. As a matter of fact, I have been suggesting that that be considered as an alternative. If Congress and the President cannot agree on what changes ought to be made, get a commission together, much like the Base Closure Commission, or the Social Security Commission, which was formed in 1983 and chaired by Alan Greenspan. It made recommendations to save the Social Security trust fund from bankruptcy, and Congress and the President agreed at that time to accept the recommendation of that commission and implement it.

That ought to be a part of this legislation—that we establish that commission, agree to implement its recommendations, and have a vote on it. If you do not want to implement them, vote no; be against everything. But we have to come to terms with the reality of the situation. The longer we wait, the harder the solution is going to be and the more sacrifices that are going to have to be made by everybody—the taxpayers. If we do not make these changes, do you know what is going to happen? Pretty soon, you are going to see the taxes on the employers and employees to fund this program being increased—and by substantial sums.

Now, the older population is getting older and, thank goodness, medical science is wonderful and it is giving us all opportunities for longer lives. But coming with that, too, are added expenses, as you get older, for medical care. Our senior citizens confront the reality every day of this terrible fear, and that is that they will not have the funds, they will not have access to the care they need to enjoy the longevity that they now have, compliments of medical science, good nutrition, and the advances that we have made for good health in our society.

So I say that it is time to stop the partisan politics. Let us quit throwing rocks at each other across the aisle, blaming each other for not getting anything done. I am prepared to say, as a Member of the Republican leadership in the Senate, OK, Mr. President, let us enact your proposal.

I am going to introduce a bill next week, and I hope there will be Senators on both sides of the aisle who will say, OK, let us go along with this suggestion as an alternative to what we have been getting. And what we have been getting is nothing—gridlock, confrontation, yelling at each other, people getting red in the face, and nothing getting done.

I think the American people are fed up with that kind of politics, fed up with that kind of Government. I am fed up with it. It is time to change. We ought to do it now—before it is too late.•

By Mr. LEVIN:

S. 1928. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to eliminate tax incentives for exporting jobs outside of the United States, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

TAX INCENTIVE ELIMINATION LEGISLATION

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I rise today to address the continuing loss of U.S. manufacturing jobs by introducing a bill to eliminate tax incentives for companies to export such jobs.

For too many years and in too many cases, we have seen U.S. manufacturers shut down business in the United States, lay off workers, and set up shop overseas. Although the Bureau of Labor Statistics does not maintain statistics on the export of United States jobs, we learned at a hearing of my Governmental Affairs Subcommittee 3 years ago that at least 200 United States plants had moved to Mexico alone over the previous decade.

A company's decision to move its operations overseas is usually an economic decision, based on factors like the availability of cheap labor and unregulated access to natural resources. While I wish that some U.S. companies would exercise better citizenship and recognize an ongoing responsibility to their long-time employees as well as their shareholders, I know that the Federal Government cannot force them to do so.

However, there is no reason why the U.S. taxpayers should be subsidizing companies that choose to move their operations overseas. Yet that is what we have been doing. When a U.S. company decides to shut down a plant in the United States and move its operations overseas, we reward them—through the Tax Code—for the decision.

Last year, I joined Senator DORGAN and others to introduce a bill—S. 1355—addressing one provision of the Tax Code which provides such a subsidy. The Dorgan bill would eliminate the ability of companies who move their operations overseas to defer the payment of Federal income tax on the profits from those operations.

Today, I am introducing a bill to address two more provisions of the Tax Code which provide taxpayer subsidies to companies that move their operations overseas.

First, section 162 of the Internal Revenue Code permits a deduction for "all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business." This provision has been interpreted to allow a deduction for moving expenses in the case of a company that moves part or all of its operations overseas, as long as the company continues to sell its product in the United States and can argue that the overseas operations are related to the U.S. source income. As a result, the U.S. taxpayers are underwriting the moving expenses of companies who choose to move capital equipment previously used in U.S. operations, and the associated jobs overseas.

My bill would reverse this policy by prohibiting a company from deducting the cost of transporting capital equipment previously used in U.S. operations overseas when it is in the process of closing or downsizing U.S. plants. Because the export of such capital equipment and the associated jobs is more likely to reduce U.S.-source income than to increase it, this provision is entirely consistent with the intent of section 162 to permit the deduction of ordinary and necessary business expenses incurred in connection with such income.

Second, section 367 of the Internal Revenue Code allows a company to avoid paying capital gains taxes on its capital assets, if these assets are moved overseas and included in an active business in a corporate reorganization. Because no capital gains tax is paid at the time of the reorganization, and because the U.S. loses jurisdiction over the assets after they are shipped overseas, the company is able to avoid the tax altogether. The company is able to obtain an unwarranted tax advantage by transferring appreciated assets to a corporation that is not subject to U.S. residence jurisdiction—and the taxpayers are left paying yet another subsidy to companies that choose to move their operations overseas.

My bill would reverse this policy by eliminating the active business exception in section 367 of the Internal Revenue Code and subjecting corporate assets to the capital gains tax at the time they are transferred overseas in any reorganization.

Mr. President, some companies may still choose to overlook their responsibility as citizens and the needs of their long-timer employees by moving jobs overseas, but we should not be subsidizing such decisions.

By WELLSTONE:

S. 1929. A bill to extend the authority for the Homeless Veterans' Reintegration Projects for fiscal years 1997 through 1999, and for other purposes, to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

THE HOMELESS VETERANS' REINTEGRATION PROJECTS REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 1996

• Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, to save a unique, highly effective and invaluable program that assists homeless veterans to find employment, I am today introducing a bill that would reauthorize the Homeless Veterans' Reintegration Projects [HVRP] for 3 years.

This bill is identical to S. 1257 which I introduced last year after this low-cost program—funded at just over $5 million annually—had been zeroed out in the rescissions bill. With the invaluable help of my distinguished colleague, Senator SIMPSON, chairman of the Veterans' Affairs Committee—a committee I am proud and honored to serve on—we managed to keep HVRP alive by authorizing a 1-year extension through the end of fiscal year 1996, at the same time authorizing an expenditure of $10 million. Unfortunately, for reasons I can't fathom, no funds were appropriated for HVRP for fiscal year 1996. While HVRP was partially revived in February 1996 when the Departments of Labor and Housing and Urban Development [HUD] each provided $1.3 million in discretionary funds to renew and support projects in cold weather areas of the Nation, the President's budget for fiscal year 1997 contains no funding for HVRP.

I am frankly appalled and puzzled that this exceptionally cost-effective program which has done so much to help America's homeless veterans for the past 7 years, continues to face extraordinary difficulties and may not survive. The only possible explanation there is for the trials and tribulations of HVRP is that because it is such a modestly funded national program with annual appropriations ranging from $1.366 million to $5.055 million, it falls beneath the threshold of visibility of the Senate, which is accustomed to focusing on programs with price tags of hundreds of millions of dollars or more.

When I sought to have the Veterans' Committee accept the 3-year extension of HVRP I proposed in S. 1257, I was told that only a 1-year authorization could be approved because not enough was known about the program, but that a committee hearing would be held early this year to inform Members about the program. Unfortunately, it now appears unlikely that hearings on HVRP will be scheduled.

It is a pity that this exceptionally worthwhile program has such a low profile in this Chamber, because I'm confident that if my colleagues knew more about HVRP, there would be overwhelming support on both sides of the aisle for keeping this program alive and funded adequately.

Mr. President, permit me to describe the daunting problems HVRP seeks to address, its outstanding accomplishments, and its methods of operation.

On any given night, it has been estimated that between 250,000 and 280,000 veterans are homeless. And, as the Disabled American Veterans [DAV] testified before a House Committee, DOD projects a reduction of 250,000 active military personnel through the year 2000. DAV stressed that many "at best will have 'soft' transferable skills," particularly those trained in combat arms, concluding that while it's unknown "how many of them will end up in the unemployment or soup kitchen line * * * we believe they are at risk."

In effect we are being told that up to one-third of America's homeless are veterans and the number could well increase. Mr. President, in the face of this situation which can only be described as a national disgrace, HVRP, administered by the Labor Department's Veterans Employment and Training Service [VETS] is the only employment assistance program dedicated to homeless veterans. And, as Preston Taylor, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Veteran Employment and Training has emphasized, unemployment, not the lack of affordable housing, is the main cause of homelessness among veterans.

Permit me to briefly list some of HVRP's strengths and accomplishments:

It is one of the most successful job placement programs in the Federal Government.

Since its inception it has placed 13,000 veterans in jobs at a cost of approximately $1,500 per placement.

HVRP grantees build complementary relationships with VA, JTPA, and other programs—they do not duplicate any other services.

A unique aspect of HVRP is to utilize formerly homeless veterans who know how to approach and win the confidence and trust of other homeless veterans; they go into the streets, shelters, soup kitchens, and other places and tell them HVRP and other available services.

HVRP provides grants to community based groups that employ flexible and innovative approaches to assist homeless, unemployed veterans to reenter the work force. Let me repeat—grants to community-based groups, not funding to some large impersonal Federal bureaucracy that some of my colleagues like to lambaste. This is precisely the kind of low-cost, locally focused, and result-oriented program that all of my colleagues, regardless of ideology or party should be able to support without reservation.

The program is employment-focused, recognizing that homeless veterans need to become self-supporting to obtain permanent shelter. HVRP local grantees provide homeless veterans with a variety of services designed to maximize their chances of finding permanent jobs, including job counseling, resume preparation, on-the-job training, and instructions in job search techniques. The HVRP program, in collaboration with other service providers, effectively addresses the six major problems hampering homeless veterans seeking to reenter the job market: lack of transitional housing; inadequate substance abuse treatment; transportation problems; lack of job skills; depressed local labor markets; and resistance to hiring the homeless.

In conclusion I want to make two points: First that the modest sums saved by eliminating HVRP will quickly be offset be the high costs of providing public assistance to the veterans who will remain homeless due to the lack of a permanent, paying job.

Second, and more important, I was deeply moved recently by a letter I received from a disabled Vietnam veteran in Minnesota whom I'd spoken to on the phone and thanked for his service to our country. He mentioned that he'd always felt he'd been left in Vietnam, but that after our talk he felt that he'd at last been brought home. Fortunately, there are many Vietnam veterans who feel they have now come home again. But for some Vietnam and other veterans, the only homes they know are the streets and homeless shelters. To eliminate HVRP, the one program that could give them a job and permit them to escape the miseries and indignities of hopelessness so that they too could feel that they had at last come home, would be shameful.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill and ensuring that HVRP receives the funding it needs to continue its invaluable work.

Mr. President, I ask that a statement of HVRP of Ronald W. Drach, National Employment Director, DAV, before the Subcommittee on Education, Employment and Training of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, U.S. House of Representatives, April 18, 1996, be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks. And I ask unanimous consent that an article by Sid Daniels, Director, National Employment Service, Veterans of Foreign Wars, entitled "Sun Sets on Homeless Vets Program," appearing in the Washington Action Reporter, October 1995, also be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1929

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. EXTENSION OF AUTHORITY.

(a) HOMELESS VETERANS' REINTEGRATION PROJECTS.—Section 738(e)(1) of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11448(e)(1)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(E) $10,000,000 for fiscal year 1997.

"(F) $10,000,000 for fiscal year 1998.

"(G) $10,000,000 for fiscal year 1999.".

(b) GENERAL AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 739(a) of such Act (42 U.S.C.

11449(a)) is amended by striking out "the fiscal years 1994 and 1995" and inserting in lieu thereof "fiscal years 1994 through 1999".

(c) EXTENSION OF PROGRAM.—Section 741 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 11450) is amended by striking out "December 31, 1997" and inserting in lieu thereof "September 30, 1999".

EXCERPT FROM STATEMENT OF RONALD W. DRACH BEFORE THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON EDUCATION, EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING, APRIL 18, 1996

HOMELESS VETERANS' REINTEGRATION PROJECT

Mr. Chairman, homeless veterans continue to be a major concern. On any given night, it has been estimated that between 250,000 and 280,000 veterans are homeless. Several years ago, the Department of Labor initiated an outreach project for homeless veterans in an attempt to provide needed employment and training services. This program is known as HVRP. Regrettably, funding for this program in FY 1995 was rescinded. For FY 1996, both the House and Senate authorized an expenditure of $10 million, but the monies were never appropriated. The President's budget for FY 1997 does not request any funding for HVRP.

Mr. Chairman, homelessness among veterans is now a chronic problem. When we testified on this issue in 1992, it was estimated that between 150,000 and 250,000 veterans were homeless on any given night. As indicated, that number now is estimated to be between 250,000 and 280,000. We mentioned earlier in this testimony that DoD projects a reduction of approximately 250,000 active military members a year through the year 2000. Many of these individuals at best will have "soft" transferable skills. Many—particularly those trained in combat arms—will have no skills recognized by employers as transferable to the civilian labor market. How many of them will end up in the unemployment or soup kitchen line is unknown, but we believe they are at risk. Last week several economic forecasters predicted an increase in inflation. This will only add to the problem.

The HVRP program has a history of providing meaningful assistance to our nation's homeless veterans. It is a program that primarily focuses on job training and employment assistance. Perhaps the most unique thing about HVRP is that a multi-disciplinary approach is taken to solving the problems of homeless veterans. It is not enough to say DVOPs or LVERs can do the job alone, because all too often the services needed cannot be provided by that individual. Because homeless veterans require very labor-intensive services, HVRP must be continued.

We would like to commend Assistant Secretary Preston Taylor at DOL for his insight into this problem. Mr. Taylor saw the need, particularly in cold weather states, and identified $1.3 million of discretionary monies available to him through the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA). However, before he committed those monies, he received an agreement from Assistant Secretary for Community Planning and Development Andrew Cuomo at the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for matching funds. We would like to compliment and thank Assistant Secretary Cuomo for his interest in addressing the needs of homeless veterans.

While on the subject of Assistant Secretary Cuomo, we would like to note that the DAV has been critical of HUD in the past for its lack of attention and interest in homeless veterans. However, Mr. Chairman, we are pleased to report that in addition to the $1.3 million targeted specifically for homeless veterans, Assistant Secretary Cuomo's office has reached out to the veterans' community in an effort to communicate with veterans' service delivery systems throughout the country to make them aware of the existence of funding availability from HUD for homeless projects. Additionally, Assistant Secretary Cuomo has:

Announced the creation of the HUD Veteran Resource Center—This center is designed to provide important information about the full range of resources and initiatives available from HUD. The Resource Center can be contacted through a toll free number (1–800–998–9999, Ext. 5475, Contact: David Schultz).

Appointed a combat-disabled veteran to head the Resource Center. The first mission will be outreach to veterans' community groups as well as veterans' service organizations regarding the "1996 Homeless Assistance SuperNOFA (Notice of Funding Availability)."

Established an outreach effort to us and is providing information on events and technical assistance to those interested in applying for HUD funding. The type of outreach is unprecedented at HUD.

Agreed in February of this year to help DOL by providing $1.3 million for HVRP.

Mr. Chairman, we believe that HUD working together with Veterans' Employment and Training Service (VETS) will make a significant difference in the lives of many homeless veterans. However, we believe that funding must be made available to continue the good work that has been accomplished thus far through HVRP. Since the program started in 1987, 30,000 homeless veterans have been helped in some way and 13,000 were actually placed in jobs.

Assistant Secretary Taylor should also be applauded for his efforts in contacting every state governor asking for their assistance to bridge the gap after the loss of HVRP funding.

SUN SETS ON HOMELESS VETS PROGRAM

(By Sid Daniels, Director)

In its recent budget cutting, Congress eliminated the funding for the Homeless Veterans Reintegration Projects (HVRP) program after Sept. 30, 1995. Consequently, all 30 projects throughout the country serving homeless veterans closed down their operations on Oct. 1, 1995.

HVRP was established by the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act of 1987 and was administered by Labor's Veterans Employment and Training Service (VETS). The emphasis on helping homeless veterans get and retain jobs was enhanced by linking with other providers, such as veterans affairs offices and medical facilities, Job Training Partnership Act entities and social service agencies.

They offered access to benefits, substance abuse treatment, job training, transitional housing and other services needed to stabilize the homeless veteran. And they removed such barriers to employment as lack of clothing, medical care and job skills.

HVRP used veterans who had experienced homelessness themselves to reach out to homeless veterans. They went into the streets, shelters, soup kitchens, and other places to encourage homeless veterans to take advantage of available services and advised them of the HVRP program. The goal was to get homeless veterans off the street and into gainful employment, with emphasis on long-term job retention.

An important characteristic of homeless veterans, is their underutilization of existing services, benefits, and entitlements which could help them obtain employment and reintegration into mainstream society.

A unique aspect of HVRP was the use of formerly homeless veterans who knew how to approach and win the confidence and trust of other homeless veterans.

HVRP programs provided participation data and survey information, which indicated that unemployment, not lack of affordable housing, was the chief cause of homelessness.

Now, this is all gone.•

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 607

At the request of Mr. WARNER, the name of the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BREAUX] was added as a cosponsor of S. 607, a bill to amend the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 to clarify the liability of certain recycling transactions, and for other purposes.

S. 1644

At the request of Mr. BROWN, the name of the Senator from Colorado [Mr. CAMPBELL] was added as a cosponsor of S. 1644, a bill to authorize the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment (most-favored-nation) to the products of Romania.

S. 1701

At the request of Mr. PELL, the name of the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. LAUTENBERG] was added as a cosponsor of S. 1701, a bill to end the use of steel jaw leghold traps on animals in the United States, and for other purposes.

S. 1786

At the request of Mr. WELLSTONE, the name of the Senator from Montana [Mr. BAUCUS] was added as a cosponsor of S. 1786, a bill to require the Secretary of Veterans Affairs and the Secretary of Health and Human Resources to carry out a demonstration project to provide the Department of Veterans Affairs with reimbursement from the medicare program for health care services provided to certain medicare-eligible veterans.

S. 1811

At the request of Mr. MACK, the name of the Senator from Florida [Mr. GRAHAM] was added as a cosponsor of S. 1811, a bill to amend the Act entitled "An Act authorizing Federal participation in the cost of protecting the shores of publicly owned property" to confirm and clarify the authority and responsibility of the Secretary of the Army, acting through the Chief of Engineers, to promote and carry out shore protection projects, including beach nourishment projects, and for other purposes.

S. 1873

At the request of Mr. INHOFE, the names of the Senator from Maine [Mr. COHEN], the Senator from New Jersey

[Mr. LAUTENBERG], and the Senator from California [Mrs. FEINSTEIN] were added as cosponsors of S. 1873, a bill to amend the National Environmental Education Act to extend the programs under the Act, and for other purposes.

S. 1885

At the request of Mr. INHOFE, the name of the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. COCHRAN] was added as a cosponsor of S. 1885, a bill to limit the liability of certain nonprofit organizations that are providers of prosthetic devices, and for other purposes.

S. 1892

At the request of Mr. LAUTENBERG, the name of the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. BRADLEY] was added as a cosponsor of S. 1892, a bill to reward States for collecting Medicaid funds expended on tobacco-related illnesses, and for other purposes.

S. 1899

At the request of Mr. MURKOWSKI, the names of the Senator from Hawaii [Mr. AKAKA] and the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. JOHNSTON] were added as cosponsors of S. 1899, a bill entitled the "Mollie Beattie Alaska Wilderness Area Act".

AMENDMENT NO. 4112

At the request of Mr. HELMS the name of the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. THURMOND] was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 4112 proposed to S. 1745, an original bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 4367

At the request of Mr. NUNN the name of the Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN] was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 4367 proposed to S. 1745, an original bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

SENATE RESOLUTION 275—TO EXPRESS THE SENSE OF THE SENATE CONCERNING AFGHANISTAN

Mr. BROWN submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. RES. 275

Whereas, prior to 1979, Afghanistan was a peaceful, united country;

Whereas, the successful fight of the brave men and women of Afghanistan resisting the Soviet invasion and occupation of 1979–1989 was a significant element in the dissolution of the Soviet empire;

Whereas, the dissolution of the Soviet empire brought freedom to the nations of central and eastern Europe as well as to the nations of central Asia;

Whereas, although many years after the Soviet withdrawal, Afghanistan does not enjoy the peace it has earned;

Whereas, the Untied Nations can play a unique and important role in bringing an end to the conflict in Afghanistan;

Whereas, recent meetings between members of Congress and the representatives of the major Afghan factions indicate a significant desire on the part of all parties to achieve a peaceful resolution to the conflict in Afghanistan and the establishment of an effective government that represents the interests of the Afghan people;

Therefore, it is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) The courageous people of Afghanistan have earned the world's respect and support for their epic struggle against the forces of communism;

(2) Resolving the continuing conflict in Afghanistan and alleviating the accompanying humanitarian distress of the Afghan people should be a top priority of the United States;

(3) Outside interference and the provision of arms and military supplies to the warring parties should be halted;

(4) A unique moment in the Afghan civil war exists where all major factions are searching for a peaceful solution to the conflict;

(5) The United States should urge the United Nations to move quickly to appoint a special envoy to Afghanistan who will act aggressively to assist the Afghans to achieve a solution to the conflict acceptable to the Afghan people;

(6) The United Nations should work to create the conditions for a continuing dialogue among the Afghan factions.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED

THE NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

McCAIN AMENDMENT NO. 4387

Mr. MCCAIN proposed an amendment to the bill (S. 1745) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following new section:

SEC. . It is the sense of the Senate that, notwithstanding any other provision of law, in order to maximize the amount of equipment provided to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina under the authority contained in Section 540 of the Foreign Operations Act of 1996 (P.L. 104–107), the price of the transferred equipment shall not exceed the lowest level at which the same or similar equipment has been transferred to any other country under any other U.S. government program.

FEINGOLD (AND KOHL) AMENDMENT NO. 4388

Mr. FEINGOLD (for himself and Mr. KOHL) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II, add the following:

SEC. 223. COST-BENEFIT ANALYSIS OF F/A–18E/F AIRCRAFT PROGRAM

(a) REPORT ON PROGRAM.—Not later than March 30, 1997, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the F/A–18E/F aircraft program.

(b) CONTENT OF REPORT.—The report shall contain the following:

(1) A review of the F/A–18E/F aircraft program.

(2) An analysis and estimate of the production costs of the program for the total number of aircraft realistically expected to be procured at each of three annual production rates as follows:

(A) 18 aircraft.

(B) 24 aircraft.

(C) 36 aircraft.

(3) A comparison of the cost and benefits of the program with the costs and benefits of the F/A–18C/D aircraft program taking into account the operational combat effectiveness of the aircraft.

(c) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS PENDING TRANSMITTAL OF REPORT.—No funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act may be obligated or expended for the procurement of F/A–18E/F aircraft before the date that is 90 days after the date on which the congressional defense committees receive the report required under subsection (a).

EXON AMENDMENT NO. 4389

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. EXON) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle E of title III, add the following:

SEC. 368. AUTHORITY OF AIR NATIONAL GUARD TO PROVIDE CERTAIN SERVICES AT LINCOLN MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, LINCOLN, NEBRASKA.

(a) AUTHORITY.—Subject to subsections (b) and (c), the Nebraska Air National Guard may provide fire protection services and rescue services relating to aircraft at Lincoln Municipal Airport, Lincoln, Nebraska, on behalf of the Lincoln Muncipal Airport Authority, Lincoln, Nebraska.

(b) AGREEMENT.—The Nebraska Air National Guard may not provide services under subsection (a) until the Nebraska Air National Guard and the authority enter into an agreement under which the authority reimburses the Nebraska Air National Guard for the cost of the services provided.

(c) CONDITIONS.—These services may only be provided to the extent that the provision of such services does not adversely affect the military preparedness of the Armed Forces.

ROBB AMENDMENT NO. 4390

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. ROBB) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1014. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATION AND APPROPRIATION OF FUNDS FOR MILITARY EQUIPMENT NOT IDENTIFIED IN THE BUDGET REQUEST OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE AND FOR CERTAIN MILITARY CONSTRUCTION.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) to the maximum extent practicable, each House of Congress should consider the authorization of appropriation, and appropriation, of funds for the procurement of military equipment only if the procurement is included—

(A) in the budget request of the President for the Department of Defense; or

(B) in a supplemental request list provided to the congressional defense committees, upon request of such committees, by the Office of the Secretary of Defense, by the military departments, by the National Guard Bureau, or by the officials responsible for the administration of the Reserves;

(2) the recommendations for procurement in a defense authorization bill or a defense appropriations bill reported to the Senate or the House of Representatives which reflect a change from the budget request referred to in paragraph (1)(A) should be accompanied in the committee report relating to the bill by a justification of the national security interest addressed by the change;

(3) the recommendations for military construction projects in a defense authorization bill or a defense appropriations bill reported to the Senate or the House of Representatives which reflect a change from such a budget request should be accompanied by a justification in the committee report relating to the bill of the national security interest addressed by the change; and

(4) the recommendations for procurement of military equipment, or for military construction projects, in a conference report of the committee on conference to resolve the differences between the two Houses relating to a defense authorization bill or a defense appropriations bill which recommendations reflect a change from the original recommendation of the applicable committee to either House should be accompanied by a justification in the statement of managers of the conference report of the national security interest addressed by the change.

SARBANES AMENDMENT NO. 4391

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. SARBANES) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of title XXI, add the following:

SEC. 2105. PLAN FOR REPAIRS AND STABILIZATION OF THE HISTORIC DISTRICT AT THE FOREST GLEN ANNEX OF WALTER REED MEDICAL CENTER, MARYLAND.

Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Army shall submit to the congressional defense committees a comprehensive plan for basic repairs and stabilization measures throughout the historic district at the Forest Glen Annex at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Maryland, together with funding options for the implementation of the plan.

BINGAMAN (AND DOMENICI) AMENDMENT NO. 4392

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. BINGAMAN, for himself and Mr. DOMENICI) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . MODIFICATION OF BOUNDARIES OF WHITE SANDS NATIONAL MONUMENT AND WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to effect an exchange between the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Army of administrative jurisdiction over the lands described in subsection (c) in order to facilitate administration of the White Sands National Monument and the White Sands Missile Range.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) MISSILE RANGE.—The term "missile range" means the White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico, administered by the Secretary of the Army.

(2) MONUMENT.—The term "monument" means the White Sands National Monument, New Mexico, established by Proclamation No. 2025 (16 U.S.C. 431 note) and administered by the Secretary of the Interior.

(c) EXCHANGE OF JURISDICTION.—The lands exchanged under this Act are the lands generally depicted on the map entitled "White Sands National Monument, Boundary Proposal", numbered 142/80,061 and dated January 1944, comprising—

(1) approximately 2,524 acres of land within the monument that is under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Army, which are transferred to the Secretary of the Interior;

(2) approximately 5,758 acres of land within the missile range abutting the monument, which are transferred to the Secretary of the Interior; and

(3) approximately 4,277 acres of land within the monument abutting the missile range, which are transferred to the Secretary of the Army.

(d) BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.—The boundary of the monument is modified to include the land transferred to the Secretary of the Interior and exclude the land transferred to the Secretary of the Army by subsection (c). The boundary of the missile range is modified accordingly.

(e) ADMINISTRATION.—1

(1) MONUMENT.—The Secretary of the Interior shall administer the lands transferred to the Secretary of the Interior by subsection (c) in accordance with laws (including regulations) applicable to the monument.

(2) MISSILE RANGE.—The Secretary of the Army shall administer the lands transferred to the Secretary of the Army by subsection (c) as part of the missile range.

(3) AIRSPACE.—The Secretary of the Army shall maintain control of the airspace above the lands transferred to the Secretary of the Army by subsection (c) as part of the missile range.

(f) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF MAP.—The Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Army shall prepare, and the Secretary of the Interior shall keep on file for public inspection in the headquarters of the monument, a map showing the boundary of the monument as modified by this Act.

(g) WAIVER OF LIMITATION UNDER PRIOR LAW.—Notwithstanding section 303(b)(1) of the National Parks and Recreation Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 3476), land or an interest in land that was deleted from the monument by section 301(19) of the Act (92 Stat. 3476) may be exchanged for land owned by the State of New Mexico within the boundaries of any unit of the National Park System in the State of New Mexico, may be transferred to the jurisdiction of any other Federal agency without monetary consideration, or may be administered as public land, as the Secretary considers appropriate.

SEC. . BANDELIER NATIONAL MONUMENT.

(a) FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) under the provisions of a special use permit, sewage lagoons for Bandelier National Monument, established by Proclamation No. 1322 (16 U.S.C. 431 note) (referred to in this section as the "monument") are located on land administered by the Secretary of Energy that is adjacent to the monument; and

(B) modification of the boundary of the monument to include the land on which the sewage lagoons are situated—

(i) would facilitate administration of both the monument and the adjacent land that would remain under the administrative jurisdiction of the Secretary of Energy; and

(ii) can be accomplished at no cost.

(2) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to modify the boundary between the monument and adjacent Department of Energy land to facilitate management of the monument and Department of Energy land.

(b) BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.—

(1) TRANSFER OF ADMINISTRATIVE JURISDICTION.—There is transferred from the Secretary of Energy to the Secretary of the Interior administrative jurisdiction over the land comprising approximately 4.47 acres depicted on he map entitled "Boundary Map, Bandelier National Monument", No. 315/80,051, dated March 1995.

(2) BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.—The boundary of the monument is modified to include the land transferred by paragraph (1).

(3) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF MAP.—The map described in paragraph (1) shall be on file and available for public inspection in the Lands Office at the Southwest System Support Office of the National Park Service, Santa Fe, New Mexico, and in the Superintendent's Office of Bandelier National Monument.

SMITH AMENDMENT NO. 4393

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. SMITH) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title I add the following:

SEC. 125. RADAR MODERNIZATION.

Funds appropriated for the Navy for fiscal years before fiscal year 1997 may not be used for development and procurement of the Pulse Doppler Upgrade modification to the AN/SPS-48E radar system.

JOHNSTON (AND MURKOWSKI) AMENDMENT NO. 4394

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. JOHNSTON, for himself and Mr. MURKOWSKI) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert:

"SEC. . FOREIGN ENVIRONMENTAL TECHNOLOGY.

"Section 2536(b) of title 10, United States Code is amended to read as follows:

"(b) WAIVER AUTHORITY.—(1) The Secretary concerned may waive the application of subsection (a) to a contract award if—

"(A) the Secretary concerned determines that the waiver is essential to the national security interests of the United States; or

"(B) in the case of a Department of Energy contract awarded for environmental restoration, remediation, or waste management at a Department of Energy facility—

"(i) the Secretary determines that the waiver will advance the environmental restoration, remediation, or waste management objectives of the Department of Energy and will not harm the national security interests of the United States; and

"(ii) the entity to which the contract is awarded is controlled by a foreign government with which the Secretary is authorized to exchange Restricted Data under section 144(c) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2164(c)).

"(2) The Secretary of Energy shall notify the appropriate committees of Congress of any decision to grant a waiver under paragraph (1)(B). The contract may be executed only after the end of the 45-day period beginning on the date the notification is received by the committees.

DOMENICI AMENDMENTS NOS. 4395–4396

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. DOMENICI) proposed two amendments to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 4395

In section 103(3), strike out "$5,880,519,000" and insert in lieu thereof "5,889,519,000".

AMENDMENT NO. 4396

In section 201(3), strike out "$14,788,356,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$14,791,356,000".

HEFLIN (AND SHELBY) AMENDMENT NO. 4397

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. HEFLIN, for himself and Mr. SHELBY) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title I, add the following:

SEC. 113. BRADLEY TOW 2 TEST PROGRAM SETS.

Of the funds authorized to be appropriated under section 101(3) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (110 Stat. 204), $6,000,000 is available for the procurement of Bradley TOW 2 Test Program sets.

EXON AMENDMENT NO. 4398

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. EXON) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II add the following:

SEC. 223. NATIONAL POLAR-ORBITING OPERATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL SATELLITE SYSTEM

(a) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 201(3), $29,024,000 is available for the National Polar-Orbiting Operational Environmental Satellite System (Space) program (PE 0603434F).

(b) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 201(3), $212,895,000 is available for the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile—EMD program (PE 06048514F).

GLENN AMENDMENT NO. 4399

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. GLENN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle D of title XXXI add the following:

SEC. . STUDY ON WORKER PROTECTION AT THE MOUND FACILITY.

(a) Not later than March 15, 1997, the Secretary of Energy shall report to the defense committees of the Congress regarding the status of projects and programs to improve worker safety and health at the Mound Facility in Miamisburg, Ohio.

(b) The report shall include the following:

(1) The status of actions completed in fiscal year 1996.

(2) The status of actions completed or proposed to be completed in fiscal years 1997 and 1998.

(3) A description of the fiscal year 1998 budget request for Mound worker safety and health protection.

(4) An accounting of expenditures for worker safety and health at Mound by year from fiscal year 1994 through and including fiscal year 1996.

THURMOND AMENDMENT NO. 4400

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. THURMOND) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of title XI add the following:

Subtitle B—Defense Intelligence Personnel

SEC. 1131. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the "Department of Defense Civilian Intelligence Personnel Reform Act of 1996".

SEC. 1132. CIVILIAN INTELLIGENCE PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT.

Section 1590 of title 10, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 1590. Management of civilian intelligence personnel of the Department of Defense

"(a) GENERAL PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT AUTHORITY.—The Secretary of Defense may, without regard to the provisions of any other law relating to the appointment, number, classification, or compensation of employees—

"(1) establish—

"(A) as positions in the excepted service, such defense intelligence component positions (including Intelligence Senior Level positions) as the Secretary determines necessary to carry out the intelligence functions of the defense intelligence components, but not to exceed in number the number of the defense intelligence component positions established as of January 1, 1996; and

"(B) such Intelligence Senior Executive Service positions as the Secretary determines necessary to carry out functions referred to in subparagraph (B);

"(2) appoint individuals to such positions (after taking into consideration the availability of preference eligibles for appointment to such positions); and

"(3) fix the compensation of such individuals for service in such positions.

"(b) BASIC PAY.—(1)(A) Subject to subparagraph (B) and paragraph (2), the Secretary of Defense shall fix the rates of basic pay for positions established under subsection (a) in relation to the rates of basic pay provided in subpart D of part III of title 5 for positions subject to that subpart which have corresponding levels of duties and responsibilities.

"(B) Except as otherwise provided by law, no rate of basic pay fixed under subparagraph (A) for a position established under subsection (a) may exceed—

"(i) in the case of an Intelligence Senior Executive Service position, the maximum rate provided in section 5382 of title 5;

"(ii) in the case of an Intelligence Senior Level position, the maximum rate provided in section 5382 of title 5; and

"(iii) in the case of any other defense intelligence component position, the maximum rate provided in section 5306(e) of title 5.

"(2) The Secretary of Defense may, consistent with section 5341 of title 5, adopt such provisions of that title as provide for prevailing rate systems of basic pay and may apply those provisions to positions for civilian employees in or under which the Department of Defense may employ individuals described by section 5342(a)(2)(A) of such title.

"(c) ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION, INCENTIVES, AND ALLOWANCES.—(1) Employees in defense intelligence component positions may be paid additional compensation, including benefits, incentives, and allowances, in accordance with this subsection if, and to the extent, authorized in regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

"(2) Additional compensation under this subsection shall be consistent with, and not in excess of the levels authorized for, comparable positions authorized by title 5.

"(3)(A) Employees in defense intelligence component positions, if citizens or nationals of the United States, may be paid an allowance while stationed outside the continental United States or in Alaska.

"(B) Subject to subparagraph (C), allowances under subparagraph (A) shall be based on—

"(i) living costs substantially higher than in the District of Columbia;

"(ii) conditions of environment which differ substantially from conditions of environment in the continental United States and warrant an allowance as a recruitment incentive; or

"(iii) both of the factors described in clauses (i) and (ii).

"(C) An allowance under subparagraph (A) may not exceed an allowance authorized to be paid by section 5941(a) of title 5 for employees whose rates of basic pay are fixed by statute.

"(d) INTELLIGENCE SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE.—(1) The Secretary of Defense may establish an Intelligence Senior Executive Service for defense intelligence component positions established pursuant to subsection (a) that are equivalent to Senior Executive Service positions.

"(2) The Secretary of Defense shall prescribe regulations for the Intelligence Senior Executive Service which are consistent with the requirements set forth in sections 3131, 3132(a)(2), 3396(c), 3592, 3595(a), 5384, and 6304 of title 5, subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 7543 of such title (except that any hearing or appeal to which a member of the Intelligence Senior Executive Service is entitled shall be held or decided pursuant to the regulations), and subchapter II of chapter 43 of such title. To the extent that the Secretary determines it practicable to apply to members of, or applicants for, the Intelligence Senior Executive Service other provisions of title 5 that apply to members of, or applicants for, the Senior Executive Service, the Secretary shall also prescribe regulations to implement those sections with respect to the Intelligence Senior Executive Service.

"(e) AWARD OF RANK TO MEMBERS OF THE INTELLIGENCE SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE.—The President, based on the recommendations of the Secretary of Defense, may award a rank referred to in section 4507 of title 5 to members of the Intelligence Senior Executive Service whose positions may be established pursuant to this section. The awarding of such rank shall be made in a manner consistent with the provisions of that section.

"(f) INTELLIGENCE SENIOR LEVEL POSITIONS.—The Secretary of Defense may, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary, designate as an Intelligence Senior Level position any defense intelligence component position that, as determined by the Secretary—

"(1) is classifiable above grade GS–15 of the General Schedule;

"(2) does not satisfy functional or program management criteria for being designated an Intelligence Senior Executive Service position; and

"(3) has no more than minimal supervisory responsibilities.

"(g) TIME LIMITED APPOINTMENTS.—(1) The Secretary of Defense may, in regulations, authorize appointing officials to make time limited appointments to defense intelligence component positions specified in the regulations.

"(2) The Secretary of Defense shall review each time limited appointment in a defense intelligence component position at the end of the first year of the period of the appointment and determine whether the appointment should be continued for the remainder of the period. The continuation of a time limited appointment after the first year shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary.

"(3) An employee serving in a defense intelligence component position pursuant to a time limited appointment is not eligible for a permanent appointment to an Intelligence Senior Executive Service position (including a position in which serving) unless selected for the permanent appointment on a competitive basis.

"(4) In this subsection, the term 'time limited appointment' means an appointment (subject to the condition in paragraph (2)) for a period not to exceed two years.

"(h) TERMINATION OF CIVILIAN INTELLIGENCE EMPLOYEES.—(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Defense may terminate the employment of any employee in a defense intelligence component position if the Secretary—

"(A) considers such action to be in the interests of the United States; and

"(B) determines that the procedures prescribed in other provisions of law that authorize the termination of the employment of such employee cannot be invoked in a manner consistent with the national security.

"(2) A decision by the Secretary of Defense to terminate the employment of an employee under this subsection is final and may not be appealed or reviewed outside the Department of Defense.

"(3) The Secretary of Defense shall promptly notify the Committee on National Security and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Armed Services and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate whenever the Secretary terminates the employment of any employee under the authority of this subsection.

"(4) Any termination of employment under this subsection shall not affect the right of the employee involved to seek or accept employment with any other department or agency of the United States if that employee is declared eligible for such employment by the Director of the Office of Personnel Management.

"(5) The authority of the Secretary of Defense under this subsection may be delegated only to the Deputy Secretary of Defense and the head of a defense intelligence component (with respect to employees of that component). An action to terminate employment of such an employee by any such official may be appealed to the Secretary of Defense.

"(i) REDUCTIONS AND OTHER ADJUSTMENTS IN FORCE.—(1) The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Director of the Office of Personnel Management, shall prescribe regulations for the separation of employees in defense intelligence component positions, including members of the Intelligence Senior Executive Service and employees in Intelligence Senior Level positions, in a reduction in force or other adjustment in force. The regulations shall apply to such a reduction in force or other adjustment in force notwithstanding sections 3501(b) and 3502 of title 5.

"(2) The regulations shall give effect to—

"(A) tenure of employment;

"(B) military preference, subject to sections 3501(a)(3) and 3502(b) of title 5;

"(C) the veteran's preference under section 3502(b) of title 5;

"(D) performance; and

"(E) length of service computed in accordance with the second sentence of section 3502(a) of title 5.

"(2) The regulations relating to removal from the Intelligence Senior Executive Service in a reduction in force or other adjustment in force shall be consistent with section 3595(a) of title 5.

"(3)(A) The regulations shall provide a right of appeal regarding a personnel action under the regulations. The appeal shall be determined within the Department of Defense. An appeal determined at the highest level provided in the regulations shall be final and not subject to review outside the Department of Defense. A personnel action covered by the regulations is not subject to any other provision of law that provides appellate rights or procedures.

"(B) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), a preference eligible referred to in section 7511(a)(1)(B) of title 5 may appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board any personnel action taken under the regulations. Section 7701 of title 5 shall apply to any such appeal.

"(j) APPLICABILITY OF MERIT SYSTEM PRINCIPLES.—Section 2301 of title 5 shall apply to the exercise of authority under this section.

"(k) COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS.—Nothing in this section may be construed to impair the continued effectiveness of a collective bargaining agreement with respect to an agency or office that is a successor to an agency or office covered by the agreement before the succession.

"(l) NOTIFICATION OF CONGRESS.—At least 60 days before the effective date of regulations prescribed to carry out this section, the Secretary of Defense shall submit the regulations to the Committee on National Security and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Armed Services and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate.

"(m) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

"(1) The term 'defense intelligence component position' means a position of civilian employment as an intelligence officer or employee of a defense intelligence component.

"(2) The term 'defense intelligence component' means each of the following components of the Department of Defense:

"(A) The National Security Agency.

"(B) The Defense Intelligence Agency.

"(C) The Central Imagery Office.

"(D) Any component of a military department that performs intelligence functions and is designated as a defense intelligence component by the Secretary of Defense.

"(E) Any other component of the Department of Defense that performs intelligence functions and is designated as a defense intelligence component by the Secretary of Defense.

"(F) Any successor to a component listed in, or designated pursuant to, this paragraph.

"(3) The term 'Intelligence Senior Level position' means a defense intelligence component position designated as an Intelligence Senior Level position pursuant to subsection (f).

"(4) The term 'excepted service' has the meaning given such term in section 2103 of title 5.

"(5) The term 'preference eligible' has the meaning given such term in section 2108(3) of title 5.

"(6) The term 'Senior Executive Service position' has the meaning given such term in section 3132(a)(2) of title 5.

"(7) The term 'collective bargaining agreement' has the meaning given such term in section 7103(8) of title 5.".

SEC. 1133. REPEALS.

(a) DEFENSE INTELLIGENCE SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE.—Sections 1601, 1603, and 1604 of title 10, United States Code, are repealed.

(b) NATIONAL SECURITY AGENCY PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT AUTHORITIES.—(1) Sections 2 and 4 of the National Security Agency Act of 1959 (50 U.S.C. 402 note) are repealed.

(2) Section 303 of the Internal Security Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. 833) is repealed.

SEC. 1134. CLERICAL AMENDMENTS.

(a) AMENDED SECTION HEADING.—The item relating to section 1590 in the table of sections at the beginning of chapter 81 of title 10, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"1590. Management of civilian intelligence personnel of the Department of Defense.".

(b) REPEALED SECTIONS.—The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 83 of title 10, United States Code, is amended by striking out the items relating to sections 1601, 1603, and 1604.

COHEN (AND LEVIN) AMENDMENT NO. 4401

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. COHEN, for himself and Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of division A add the following new title:

TITLE XIII—FEDERAL EMPLOYEE TRAVEL REFORM

SEC. 1301. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Travel Reform and Savings Act of 1996".

Subtitle A—Relocation Benefits

SEC. 1311. MODIFICATION OF ALLOWANCE FOR SEEKING PERMANENT RESIDENCE QUARTERS.

Section 5724a of title 5, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§5724a. Relocation expenses of employees transferred or reemployed

"(a) An agency shall pay to or on behalf of an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government, a per diem allowance or the actual subsistence expenses, or a combination thereof, of the immediate family of the employee for en route travel of the immediate family between the employee's old and new official stations.

"(b)(1) An agency may pay to or on behalf of an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government between official stations located within the United States—

"(A) the expenses of transportation, and either a per diem allowance or the actual subsistence expenses, or a combination thereof, of the employee and the employee's spouse for travel to seek permanent residence quarters at a new official station; or

"(B) the expenses of transportation, and an amount for subsistence expenses in lieu of a per diem allowance or the actual subsistence expenses or a combination thereof, authorized in subparagraph (A) of this paragraph.

"(2) Expenses authorized under this subsection may be allowed only for one round trip in connection with each change of station of the employee.".

SEC. 1312. MODIFICATION OF TEMPORARY QUARTERS SUBSISTENCE EXPENSES ALLOWANCE.

Section 5724a of title 5, United States Code, is further amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(c)(1) An agency may pay to or on behalf of an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government—

"(A) actual subsistence expenses of the employee and the employee's immediate family for a period of up to 60 days while occupying temporary quarters when the new official station is located within the United States as defined in subsection (d) of this section; or

"(B) an amount for subsistence expenses instead of the actual subsistence expenses authorized in subparagraph (A) of this paragraph.

"(2) The period authorized in paragraph (1) of this subsection for payment of expenses for residence in temporary quarters may be extended up to an additional 60 days if the head of the agency concerned or the designee of such head of the agency determines that there are compelling reasons for the continued occupancy of temporary quarters.

"(3) The regulations implementing paragraph (1)(A) shall prescribe daily rates and amounts for subsistence expenses per individual.".

SEC. 1313. MODIFICATION OF RESIDENCE TRANSACTION EXPENSES ALLOWANCE.

(a) EXPENSES OF SALE.—Section 5724a of title 5, United States Code, is further amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d)(1) An agency shall pay to or on behalf of an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government, expenses of the sale of the residence (or the settlement of an unexpired lease) of the employee at the old official station and purchase of a residence at the new official station that are required to be paid by the employee, when the old and new official stations are located within the United States.

"(2) An agency shall pay to or on behalf of an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government from a post of duty located outside the United States to an official station within the United States (other than the official station within the United States from which the employee was transferred when assigned to the foreign tour of duty)—

"(A) expenses required to be paid by the employee of the sale of the residence (or the settlement of an unexpired lease) of the employee at the old official station from which the employee was transferred when the employee was assigned to the post of duty located outside the United States; and

"(B) expenses required to be paid by the employee of the purchase of a residence at the new official station within the United States.

"(3) Reimbursement of expenses under paragraph (2) of this subsection shall not be allowed for any sale (or settlement of an unexpired lease) or purchase transaction that occurs prior to official notification that the employee's return to the United States would be to an official station other than the official station from which the employee was transferred when assigned to the post of duty outside the United States.

"(4) Reimbursement for brokerage fees on the sale of the residence and other expenses under this subsection may not exceed those customarily charged in the locality where the residence is located.

"(5) Reimbursement may not be made under this subsection for losses incurred by the employee on the sale of the residence.

"(6) This subsection applies regardless of whether title to the residence or the unexpired lease is—

"(A) in the name of the employee alone;

"(B) in the joint names of the employee and a member of the employee's immediate family; or

"(C) in the name of a member of the employee's immediate family alone.

"(7)(A) In connection with the sale of the residence at the old official station, reimbursement under this subsection shall not exceed 10 percent of the sale price.

"(B) In connection with the purchase of a residence at the new official station, reimbursement under this subsection shall not exceed 5 percent of the purchase price.

"(8) For purposes of this subsection, the term 'United States' means the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions of the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the areas and installations in the Republic of Panama made available to the United States pursuant to the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977 and related agreements (as described in section 3(a) of the Panama Canal Act of 1979).".

(b) RELOCATION SERVICES.—Section 5724c of title 5, United State Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 5724c. Relocation services

"Under regulations prescribed under section 5737, each agency may enter into contracts to provide relocation services to agencies and employees for the purpose of carrying out this subchapter. An agency may pay a fee for such services. Such services include arranging for the purchase of a transferred employee's residence.".

SEC. 1314. AUTHORITY TO PAY FOR PROPERTY MANAGEMENT SERVICES.

Section 5724a of title 5, United States Code, is further amended—

(1) in subsection (d) (as added by section 1313 of this title)—

(A) by redesignating paragraph (8) as paragraph (9); and

(B) by inserting after paragraph (7) the following new paragraph:

"(8) An agency may pay to or on behalf of an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government, expenses of property management services when the agency determines that such transfer is advantageous and cost-effective to the Government, instead of expenses under paragraph (2) or (3) of this subsection, for sale of the employee's residence."; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) An agency may pay to or on behalf of an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government, the expenses of property management services when the employee transfers to a post of duty outside the United States as defined in subsection (d) of this section. Such payment shall terminate upon return of the employee to an official station within the United States as defined in subsection (d) of this section.".

SEC. 1315. AUTHORITY TO TRANSPORT A PRIVATELY OWNED MOTOR VEHICLE WITHIN THE CONTINENTAL UNITED STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 5727 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (c) through (e) as subsections (d) through (f), respectively;

(2) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

"(c) Under regulations prescribed under section 5737, the privately owned motor vehicle or vehicles of an employee, including a new appointee or a student trainee for whom travel and transportation expenses are authorized under section 5723, may be transported at Government expense to a new official station of the employee when the agency determines that such transport is advantageous and cost-effective to the Government."; and

(3) in subsection (e) (as so redesignated), by striking "subsection (b) of this section" and by inserting "subsection (b) or (c) of this section".

(b) AVAILABILITY OF APPROPRIATIONS.—(1) Section 5722(a) of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(A) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (1);

(B) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting "; and"; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

"(3) the expenses of transporting a privately owned motor vehicle to the extent authorized under section 5727(c).".

(2) Section 5723(a) of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(A) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (1);

(B) by inserting "and" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (2); and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

"(3) the expenses of transporting a privately owned motor vehicle to the extent authorized under section 5727(c);".

SEC. 1316. AUTHORITY TO PAY LIMITED RELOCATION ALLOWANCES TO AN EMPLOYEE WHO IS PERFORMING AN EXTENDED ASSIGNMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter II of chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"§ 5736. Relocation expenses of an employee who is performing an extended assignment

"(a) Under regulations prescribed under section 5737, an agency may pay to or on behalf of an employee assigned from the employee's official station to a duty station for a period of no less than 6 months and no greater than 30 months, the following expenses in lieu of payment of expenses authorized under subchapter I of this chapter:

"(1) Travel expenses to and from the assignment location in accordance with section 5724.

"(2) Transportation expenses of the immediate family and household goods and personal effects to and from the assignment location in accordance with section 5724.

"(3) A per diem allowance for the employee's immediate family to and from the assignment location in accordance with section 5724a(a).

"(4) Travel and transportation expenses of the employee and spouse to seek residence quarters at the assignment location in accordance with section 5724a(b).

"(5) Subsistence expenses of the employee and the employee's immediate family while occupying temporary quarters upon commencement and termination of the assignment in accordance with section 5724a(c).

"(6) An amount, in accordance with section 5724a(g), to be used by the employee for miscellaneous expenses.

"(7) The expenses of transporting a privately owned motor vehicle or vehicles to the assignment location in accordance with section 5727.

"(8) An allowance as authorized under section 5724b of this title for Federal, State, and local income taxes incurred on reimbursement of expenses paid under this section or on services provided in kind under this section.

"(9) Expenses of nontemporary storage of household goods and personal effects as defined in section 5726(a). The weight of the household goods and personal effects stored under this subsection, together with the weight of property transported under section 5724(a), may not exceed the total maximum weight which could be transported in accordance with section 5724(a).

"(10) Expenses of property management services.

"(b) An agency shall not make payment under this section to or on behalf of the employee for expenses incurred after termination of the temporary assignment.".

(b) Clerical Amendment.—The table of sections for chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5735 the following new item:

"5736. Relocation expenses of an employee who is performing an extended assignment.".

SEC. 1317. AUTHORITY TO PAY A HOME MARKETING INCENTIVE.

(a) In General.—Subchapter IV of chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"§ 5756. Home marketing incentive payment

"(a) Under such regulations as the Administrator of General Services may prescribe, an agency may pay to an employee who transfers in the interest of the Government an amount, not to exceed a maximum payment amount established by the Administrator in consultation with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, to encourage the employee to aggressively market the employee's residence at the old official station when—

"(1) the residence is entered into a program established under a contract in accordance with section 5724c of this chapter, to arrange for the purchase of the residence;

"(2) the employee finds a buyer who completes the purchase of the residence through the program; and

"(3) the sale of the residence to the individual results in a reduced cost to the Government.

"(b) For fiscal years 1997 and 1998, the Administrator shall establish a maximum payment amount of 5 percent of the sales price of the residence.".

(b) Clerical Amendment.—The table of sections for chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by inserting at the end the following:

"5756. Home marketing incentive payment.".

SEC. 1318. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) Amendments to Title 5, United States Code.—(1) Section 5724a of title 5, United States Code, is further amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(g)(1) Subject to paragraph (2), an employee who is reimbursed under subsections (a) through (f) of this section or section 5724(a) of this title is entitled to an amount for miscellaneous expenses—

"(A) not to exceed 2 weeks' basic pay, if such employee has an immediate family; or

"(B) not to exceed 1 week's basic pay, if such employee does not have an immediate family.

"(2) Amounts paid under paragraph (1) may not exceed amounts determined at the maximum rate payable for a position at GS–13 of the General Schedule.

"(h) A former employee separated by reason of reduction in force or transfer of function who within 1 year after the separation is reemployed by a nontemporary appointment at a different geographical location from that where the separation occurred, may be allowed and paid the expenses authorized by sections 5724, 5725, 5726(b), and 5727 of this title, and may receive the benefits authorized by subsections (a) through (g) of this section, in the same manner as though such employee had been transferred in the interest of the Government without a break in service to the location of reemployment from the location where separated.

"(i) Payments for subsistence expenses, including amounts in lieu of per diem or actual subsistence expenses or a combination thereof, authorized under this section shall not exceed the maximum payment allowed under regulations which implement section 5702 of this title.

"(j) Subsections (a), (b), and (c) shall be implemented under regulations issued under section 5737.".

(2) Section 3375 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in subsection (a)(3), by striking "section 5724a(a)(1) of this title" and inserting "section 5724a(a) of this title";

(B) in subsection (a)(4), by striking "section 5724a(a)(3) of this title" and inserting "section 5724a(c) of this title"; and

(C) in subsection (a)(5), by striking "section 5724a(b) of this title" and inserting "section 5724a(g) of this title".

(3) Section 5724(e) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "section 5724a(a), (b) of this title" and inserting "section 5724a(a) through (g) of this title".

(b) Miscellaneous.—(1) Section 707 of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in subsection (a)(6), by striking "Section 5724a(a)(3)" and inserting "Section 5724a(c)"; and

(B) in subsection (a)(7), by striking "Section 5724a(a)(4)" and inserting "section 5724a(d)".

(2) Section 501 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 290aa) is amended—

(A) in subsection (g)(2)(A), by striking "5724a(a)(1)" and inserting "5724a(a)"; and

(B) in subsection (g)(2)(A), by striking "5724a(a)(3)" and inserting "5724a(c)".

(3) Section 925 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 299c–4) is amended—

(A) in subsection (f)(2)(A), by striking "5724a(a)(1)" and inserting "5724a(a)"; and

(B) in subsection (f)(2)(A), by striking "5724a(a)(3)" and inserting "5724a(c)".

Subtitle B—Miscellaneous Provisions

SEC. 1331. REPEAL OF THE LONG-DISTANCE TELEPHONE CALL CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENT.

Section 1348 of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking the last sentence of subsection (a)(2);

(2) by striking subsection (b); and

(3) by redesignating subsections (c) and (d) as subsections (b) and (c), respectively.

SEC. 1332. TRANSFER OF AUTHORITY TO ISSUE REGULATIONS.

(a) In General.—Subchapter II of chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is further amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"§ 5737. Regulations

"(a)(1) Except as specifically provided in this subchapter, the Administrator of General Services shall prescribe regulations necessary for the administration of this subchapter.

"(2) Notwithstanding any limitation of this subchapter, in promulgating regulations under paragraph (1) of this subsection, the Administrator of General Services shall include a provision authorizing the head of an agency or his designee to waive any limitation of this subchapter or in any implementing regulation for any employee relocating to or from a remote or isolated location who would otherwise suffer hardship.

"(b) The Administrator of General Services shall prescribe regulations necessary for the implementation of section 5724b of this subchapter in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury.

"(c) The Secretary of Defense shall prescribe regulations necessary for the implementation of section 5735 of this subchapter.".

(b) Clerical Amendment.—The table of sections for chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is further amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5736 the following new item:

"5737. Regulations.".

(c) Conforming Amendments.—(1) Section 5722 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe", and inserting "Under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(2) Section 5723 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe", and inserting "Under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(3) Section 5724 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in subsections (a) through (c), by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe" each place it appears and inserting "Under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title";

(B) in subsections (c) and (e), by striking "under regulations prescribed by the President" and inserting "under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title"; and

(C) in subsection (f), by striking "under the regulations of the President" and inserting "under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(4) Section 5724b of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe" and inserting "Under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(5) Section 5726 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in subsection (a), by striking "as the President may by regulation authorize" and inserting "as authorized under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title"; and

(B) in subsections (b) and (c), by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe" each place it appears and inserting "under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(6) Section 5727(b) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe" and inserting "Under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(7) Section 5728 of title 5, United States Code, is amended in subsections (a), (b), and (c)(1), by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe" each place it appears and inserting "Under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(8) Section 5729 of title 5, United States Code, is amended in subsections (a) and (b), by striking "Under such regulations as the President may prescribe" each place it appears and inserting "Under regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

(9) Section 5731 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "in accordance with regulations prescribed by the President" and inserting "in accordance with regulations prescribed under section 5737 of this title".

SEC. 1333. REPORT ON ASSESSMENT OF COST SAVINGS.

No later than 1 year after the effective date of the final regulations issued under section 1334(b), the General Accounting Office shall submit a report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight of the House of Representatives on an assessment of the cost savings to Federal travel administration resulting from statutory and regulatory changes under this Act.

SEC. 1334. EFFECTIVE DATE; ISSUANCE OF REGULATIONS.

(a) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this title shall take effect upon the expiration of the 180-day period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) REGULATIONS.—The Administrator of General Services shall issue final regulations implementing the amendments made by this title by not later than the expiration of the period referred to in subsection (a).

Strike section 1114(b) of the bill.

LEVIN AMENDMENT NO. 4402

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place in title VIII of the bill, add the following new section:

SEC. . TEST PROGRAMS FOR MODERNIZATION-THROUGH-SPARES.

Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Army shall report to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives on the steps he has taken to ensure that each program included in the Army's modernization-through-spares program is conducted in accordance with—

(1) the competition requirements in section 2304 of title 10;

(2) the core logistics requirements in section 2464 of title 10; and

(3) the public-private competition requirements in section 2469 of title to; and

(4) requirements relating to contract bundling and spare parts breakout in sections 15(a) and 15(l) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 644) and implementing regulations in the Defense FAR Supplement.

STEVENS AMENDMENT NO. 4403

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. STEVENS) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra: as follows:

In the table in section 2401(a), strike out "$18,000,000" in the amount column in the item relating to Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska, and insert in lieu thereof "$21,000,000".

Strike out the amount set forth as the total amount at the end of the table in section 2401(a) and insert in lieu thereof "$530,590,000".

In section 2406(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "$3,421,366,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$3,424,366,000".

In section 2406(a)(1), strike out "$364,487,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$367,487,000".

DOMENICI AMENDMENT NO. 4404

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. DOMENICI) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

In the table in section 2101(a), insert after the item relating to Fort Polk, Louisiana, the following new item:

New Mexico.	White Sands Missile Range.	$10,000,000

Strike out the amount set forth as the total amount at the end of the table in section 2101(a) and insert in lieu thereof "$366,450,000".

In section 2104(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "$1,894,297,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$1,904,297,000".

In section 2104(a)(1), strike out "$356,450,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$366,450,000".

CHAFEE (AND WARNER) AMENDMENT NO. 4405

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. CHAFEE, for himself and Mr. WARNER) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

In the table in section 2201(a), insert after the item relating to Camp Lejeune Marine Corps Base, North Carolina, the following new item:

Rhode Island.	Naval Undersea Warfare Center.	$8,900,000

Strike out the amount set forth as the total amount at the end of the table in section 2201(a) and insert in lieu thereof "$515,952,000".

In section 2205(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "$2,040,093,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$2,048,993,000".

In section 2205(a)(1), strike out "$507,052,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$515,952,000".

SMITH AMENDMENT NO. 4406

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. SMITH) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE CONCERNING USS LCS 102 (LSSL 102).

It is the Sense of the Senate that the Secretary of Defense should use existing authorities in law to seek the expeditious return upon completion of service, of the former USS LCS 102 (LSSL 102) from the Government of Thailand in order for the ship to be transferred to the United States Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy, Massachusetts.

ROBB AMENDMENT NO. 4407

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. ROBB) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title IX, add the following:

SEC. 908. MATTERS TO BE CONSIDERED IN NEXT ASSESSMENT OF CURRENT MISSIONS, RESPONSIBILITIES, AND FORCE STRUCTURE OF THE UNIFIED COMBATANT COMMANDS.

The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff shall consider, as part of the next periodic review of the missions, responsibilities, and force structure of the unified combatant commands under section 161(b) of title 10, United States Code, the following matters:

(1) For each Area of Responsibility of the regional unified combatant commands—

(A) the foremost threats to United States or allied securities in the near- and long-term;

(B) the total area of ocean and total area of land encompassed; and

(C) the number of countries and total populations encompassed.

(2) Whether any one Area of Responsibility encompasses a disproportionately high or low share of threats, mission requirements, land or ocean area, number of countries, or population.

(3) The other factors used to establish the current Areas of Responsibility.

(4) Whether any of the factors addressed under paragraph (3) account for any apparent imbalances indicated in the response to paragraph (2).

(5) Whether, in light of recent reductions in the overall force structure of the Armed Forces, the United States could better execute its warfighting plans with fewer unified combatant commands, including—

(A) a total of five or fewer commands, all of which are regional;

(B) an eastward-oriented command, a westward-oriented command, a central command; or

(C) a purely functional command structure, involving (for example) a first theater command, a second theater command, a logistics command, a special contingencies command, and a strategic command.

(6) Whether any missions, staff, facilities, equipment, training programs, or other assets or activities of the unified combatant commands are redundant.

(7) Whether warfighting requirements are adequate to justify the current functional commands.

(8) Whether the exclusion of Russia from a specific Area of Responsibility presents any difficulties for the unified combatant commands with respect to contingency planning for that area and its periphery.

(9) Whether the current geographic boundary between the Central Command and the European Command through the Middle East could create command conflicts in the context of fighting a major regional conflict in the Middle East.

LEVIN AMENDMENT NO. 4408

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II, add the following:

SEC. 223. SEAMLESS HIGH OFF-CHIP CONNECTIVITY.

Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by this Act, $7,000,000 shall be available for the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency for research and development on Seamless High Off-Chip Connectivity (SHOCC) under the materials and electronic technology program (PE 0602712E).

SMITH AMENDMENT NO. 4409

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. SMITH) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

Beginning on page 90, strike line 1 and all that follows through page 91, line 17, and insert the following:

SEC. 346. AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER CONTAMINATED FEDERAL PROPERTY BEFORE COMPLETION OF REQUIRED REMEDIAL ACTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 120(h)(3) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(h)(3)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subparagraph (A) as clause (i) and clauses (i), (ii), and (iii) of that subparagraph as subclauses (I), (II), and (III), respectively;

(2) by striking "After the last day" and inserting the following:

"(A) IN GENERAL.—After the last day";

(3) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as clause (ii) and clauses (i) and (ii) of that subparagraph as subclauses (I) and (II), respectively;

(4) by redesignating subparagraph (C) as clause (iii);

(5) by striking "For purposes of subparagraph (B)(i)" and inserting the following:

"(B) COVENANT REQUIREMENTS.—For purposes of subparagraphs (A)(ii)(I) and (C)(iii)";

(6) in subparagraph (B), as designated by paragraph (5), by striking "subparagraph (B)" each place it appears and inserting "subparagraph (A)(ii)"; and

(7) by adding at the end the following:

"(C) DEFERRAL.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator (in the case of real property at a Federal facility that is listed on the National Priorities List) or the Governor of the State in which the facility is located (in the case of real property at a Federal facility not listed on the National Priorities List) may defer the requirement of subparagraph (A)(ii)(I) with respect to the property if the Administrator or the Governor, as the case may be, determines that—

"(I) the property is suitable for transfer for the use intended by the transferee;

"(II) the deed or other agreement proposed to govern the transfer between the United States and the transferee of the property contains the assurances set forth in clause (ii); and

"(III) the Federal agency requesting deferral has provided notice, by publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the vicinity of the property, of the proposed transfer and of the opportunity for the public to submit, within a period of not less than 30 days after the date of the notice, written comments on the finding by the agency that the property is suitable for transfer.

"(ii) REMEDIAL ACTION ASSURANCES.—With regard to a release or threatened release of a hazardous substance for which a Federal agency is potentially responsible under this section, the deed or other agreement proposed to govern the transfer shall contain assurances that—

"(I) provide for any necessary restrictions to ensure the protection of human health and the environment;

"(II) provide that there will be restrictions on use necessary to ensure required remedial investigations, remedial actions, and oversight activities will not be disrupted;

"(III) provide that all appropriate remedial action will be taken and identify the schedules for investigation and completion of all necessary remedial action; and

"(IV) provide that the Federal agency responsible for the property subject to transfer will submit a budget request to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget that adequately addresses schedules, subject to congressional authorizations and appropriations.

"(iii) WARRANTY.—When all remedial action necessary to protect human health and the environment with respect to any substance remaining on the property on the date of transfer has been taken, the United States shall execute and deliver to the transferee an appropriate document containing a warranty that all such remedial action has been completed, and the making of the warranty shall be considered to satisfy the requirement of subparagraph (A)(ii)(I).

"(iv) FEDERAL RESPONSIBILITY.—A deferral under this subparagraph shall not increase, diminish, or affect in any manner any rights or obligations of a Federal agency with respect to a property transferred under this subparagraph.".

(b) CONTINUED APPLICATION OF STATE LAW.—The first sentence of section 120(a)(4) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(a)(4)) is amended by inserting "or facilities that are the subject of a deferral under subsection (h)(3)(C)" after "United States".

GLENN (AND HELMS) AMENDMENT NO. 4410

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. GLENN, for himself and Mr. HELMS) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle F of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1072. STRENGTHENING CERTAIN SANCTIONS AGAINST NUCLEAR PROLIFERATION ACTIVITIES.

(A) IN GENERAL.—Section 2(b)(4) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 (12 U.S.C. 635(b)(4)) is amended—

(1) by inserting after "any country has willfully aided or abetted" the following: ", or any person has knowingly aided or abetted,";

(2) by striking "or countries" and inserting ", countries, person, or persons";

(3) by inserting after "United States exports to such country" the following: "or, in the case of any such person, give approval to guarantee, insure, or extend credit, or participate in the extension of credit in support of, exports to or by any such person for a 12-month period,";

(4) by inserting "(A)" immediately after "(4)";

(5) by inserting after "United States exports to such country" the second place it appears the following: ", except as provided in subparagraph (B),"; and

(6) by adding at the end the following:

"(B) In the case of any country or person aiding or abetting a non-nuclear-weapon state as described in subparagraph (A), the prohibition on financing by the Bank contained in the second sentence of that subparagraph shall not apply to the country or person, as the case may be, if the President determines and certifies in writing to the Congress that—

"(i) reliable information indicates that the country or person with respect to which the determination is made has ceased to aid or abet any non-nuclear-weapon state to acquire any nuclear explosive device or to acquire unsafeguarded special nuclear material; and

"(ii) the President has received reliable assurances from the country or person that such country or person will not, in the future, aid or abet any non-nuclear-weapon state in its efforts to acquire any nuclear explosive device or any unsafeguarded special nuclear material.

"(C) For purposes of subparagraphs (A) and (B)—

"(ii) the term 'country' has the meaning given to 'foreign state' in section 1603(a) of title 28, United States Code;

"(ii) the term 'knowingly' is used within the meaning of the term 'knowing' in section 104 of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act; and

"(iii) the term 'person' means a natural person as well as a corporation, business association, partnership, society, trust, any other nongovernmental entity, organization, or group, and any governmental entity operating as a business enterprise, and any successor of any such entity.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—(1) The amendments made by paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (a) shall apply to persons, and the amendment made by subsection (a)(6), shall apply to countries and persons, aiding or abetting non-nuclear weapon states on or after June 29, 1994.

(2) Nothing in this section or the amendments made by this section shall apply to obligations undertaken pursuant to guarantees, insurance, and the extension of credits (and participation in the extension of credits) made before the date of enactment of this Act.

CHAFEE AMENDMENT NO. 4411

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. CHAFEE) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of title VIII add the following:

SEC. 810. PILOT PROGRAM FOR TRANSFER OF DEFENSE TECHNOLOGY INFORMATION TO PRIVATE INDUSTRY.

(a) PROGRAM REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Defense shall carry out a pilot program to demonstrate online transfers of information on defense technologies to businesses in the private sector through an interactive data network involving Small Business Development Centers of institutions of higher education.

(b) COMPUTERIZED DATA BASE OF DEFENSE TECHNOLOGIES.—(1) Under the pilot program, the Secretary shall enter into an agreement with the head of an eligible institution of higher education that provides for such institution—

(A) to develop and maintain a computerized data base of information on defense technologies;

(B) to make such information available online to—

(i) businesses; and

(ii) other institutions of higher education entering into partnerships with the Secretary under subsection (c).

(2) The online accessibility may be established by means of any of, or any combination of, the following:

(A) Digital teleconferencing.

(B) International Signal Digital Network lines.

(C) Direct modem hookup.

(c) PARTNERSHIP NETWORK.—Under the pilot program, the Secretary shall seek to enter into agreements with the heads of several eligible institutions of higher education having strong business education programs to provide for the institutions of higher education entering into such agreements—

(1) to establish interactive computer links with the data base developed and maintained under subsection (b); and

(2) to assist the Secretary in making information on defense technologies available online to the broadest practicable number types and sizes of businesses.

(d) ELIGIBLE INSTITUTIONS.—For the purposes of this section an institution of higher education is eligible to enter into an agreement under subsection (b) or (c) if the institution has a Small Business Development Center.

(e) DEFENSE TECHNOLOGIES COVERED.—(1) The Secretary shall designate the technologies to be covered by the pilot program from among the existing and experimental technologies that the Secretary determines—

(A) are useful in meeting Department of Defense needs; and

(B) should be made available under the pilot program to facilitate the satisfaction of such needs by private sector sources.

(2) Technologies covered by the program should include technologies useful for defense purposes that can also be used for nondefense purposes (with or without modification).

(f) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) The term "Small Business Development Center" means a small business development center established pursuant to section 21 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 648).

(2) The term "defense technology" means a technology designated by the Secretary of Defense under subsection (d).

(3) The term "partnership" means an agreement entered into under section (c).

(g) TERMINATION OF PILOT PROGRAM.—The pilot program shall terminate one year after the Secretary enters into an agreement under subsection (b).

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 201(4) for university research initiatives $3000000 is available for the pilot program.

THURMOND (AND NUNN) AMENDMENT NO. 4412

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. THURMOND, for himself and Mr. NUNN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1745 supra; as follows:

In section 216, strike out the section heading and insert in lieu therefore the following:

SEC. 216. TIER III MINUS UNMANNED AERIAL VEHICLE.

In section 3131(e), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "section 3101" and insert in lieu thereof "section 3101(b)(1)".

In section 3131(e)(1), strike out "and" after the semicolon.

In section 3131(e)(2), strike out the period at the end and insert in lieu thereof "; and".

At the end of section 3131(e), add the following:

(3) not more than $100,000,000 shall be available for other tritium production research activities.

In section 3132(a), strike out "requirement for tritium for" and insert in lieu thereof "tritium requirements for".

In section 3136(a), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), strike out "section 3102" and insert in lieu thereof "section 3102(b)".

In section 3136(a)(1), strike out "$43,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$65,700,000".

In section 3136(a)(2), strike out "$15,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$80,000,000".

In section 3136(a)(2), strike out "stainless steel" and insert in lieu thereof "non-aluminum clad".

BROWN AMENDMENT NO. 4413

Mr. BROWN proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title II add the following:

SEC. 237. ANNUAL REPORT ON THREAT OF ATTACK BY BALLISTIC MISSILES CARRYING NUCLEAR, CHEMICAL, OR BIOLOGICAL WARHEADS.

(a) FINDINGS—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The worldwide proliferation of ballistic missiles is a potential threat to the United States national interests overseas and challenges United States defense planning.

(2) In the absence of a national missile defense, the United States remains vulnerable to long-range missile threats.

(3) Russia has a ground-based missile defense system deployed around Moscow.

(4) Several countries, including Iraq, Iran, and North Korea may soon be technologically capable of threatening the United States and Russia with ballistic missile attack.

(b) REPORT REQUIRED.—(1) Each year, the President shall submit to Congress a report on the threats to the United States of attack by ballistic missiles carrying nuclear, biological, or chemical warheads.

(2) The President shall submit the first report not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) CONTENT OF REPORT.—The report shall contain the following:

(1) A list of all countries thought to have nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons, the estimated numbers of such weapons that each country has, and the destructive potential of the weapons.

(2) A list of all countries thought to have ballistic missiles, the estimated number of such missiles that each country has, and an assessment of the ability of those countries to integrate their ballistic missile capabilities with their nuclear, chemical, or biological weapon technologies.

(3) A comparison of the United States civil defense capabilities with the civil defense capabilities of each country that has nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons and ballistic missiles capable of delivering such weapons.

(4) An estimate of the number of American fatalities and injuries that could result, and an estimate of the value of property that could be lost, from an attack on the United States by ballistic missiles carrying nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons if the United States were left undefended by a national missile defense system covering all 50 States.

(5) Assuming the use of any existing theater ballistic missile defense system for defense of the United States, a list of the States that would be left exposed to nuclear ballistic missile attacks and the criteria used to determine which States would be left exposed.

(6) The means by which the United States is preparing to defend itself against the potential threat of ballistic missile attacks by North Korea, Iran, Iraq, and other countries obtaining ballistic missiles capable of delivering nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons in the near future.

(7) For each country that is capable of attacking the United States with ballistic missiles carrying a nuclear, biological, or chemical weapon, a comparison of—

(A) the vulnerability of the United States to such an attack if theater missile defenses were used to defend against the attack; and

(B) the vulnerability of the United States to such an attack if a national missile defense were in place to defend against the attack.

LEVIN AMENDMENT NO. 4414

Mr. LEVIN proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of title I add the following:

Subtitle E—Reserve Components

SEC. 141. RESERVE COMPONENT EQUIPMENT.

(a) APPLICABILITY OF MODERNIZATION PRIORITIES.—The selection of equipment to be procured for a reserve component with funds authorized to be appropriated under section 105 shall be made in accordance with the highest priorities established for the modernization of that reserve component.

(b) REPORTS.—(1) Not later than December 1, 1996, each officer referred to in paragraph (2) shall submit to the congressional defense committees an assessment of the modernization priorities established for the reserve component or reserve components for which that officer is responsible.

(2) The officers required to submit a report under paragraph (1) are as follows:

(A) The Chief of the National Guard Bureau.

(B) The Chief of Army Reserve.

(C) The Chief of Air Force Reserve.

(D) The Director of Naval Reserve.

(E) The Commanding General, Marine Forces Reserve.

Title	FY 1997		Authorization				Appropriation				Hollow SASC	Hollow HNSC
			SASC change		HNSC change		SAC change		HAC change
	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost
NATIONAL GUARD AND RESERVE EQUIPMENT
RESERVE EQUIPMENT
ARMY RESERVE
Miscellaneous equipment				35,000		10,000		110,000		10,000
25 ton trucks				15,000							15,000
New procurement 2 5/5 ton trucks						15,000				15,000
Tactical truck SLEP 2 5 ton						15,000				15,000
Tactical truck SLEP 5 ton						10,000						10,000
Heavy truck modernization				30,000							30,000
HEMTT bridge trans						4,000				9,000
Dump trucks 20 tons						2,000				10,000
Water purfication units						2,000				4,000
Portable lighting systems w/trailers						4,000				4,000
Automatic building machines						5,000				3,000		2,000
HMMWV maintenance trucks				10,000		2,000				6,000	4,000
All-terrain forklift 10 ton						4,000				4,000
All-terrain crane 20 ton						4,000				4,000
Hydraulic excavator						3,000				3,000

Title	FY 1997		Authorization				Appropriation				Hollow SASC	Hollow HNSC
			SASC change		HNSC change		SAC change		HAC change
	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost
HEMTT wrecker						3,000				7,000
Mk-19 grenade launcher						3,000				3,000
Steam cleaner						2,000				2,000
Coolant purification system						2,000						2,000
Small arms simulator						1,000				1,000
High mobility trailer						1,000						1,000
Unit level logistics system						2,000				2,000
SINCGARS						2,000						2,000
Palletized load system						4,000						4,000
Palletized trailers						2,000				2,000
HEMTT cargo chassis						4,000				4,000
ANGRS–231										2,000
Laser leveling system										3,000
Subtotal—Army Reserve				90,000		106,000		110,000		113,000	49,000	21,000
NAVY RESERVE
Miscellaneous Equipment				16,000		10,000		30,000		5,000
F/A 18 Upgrades				24,000							24,000
C–9 Replacement Aircraft					4	160,000			4	160,000
MIUW Van System Upgrades						10,000						10,000
Night Vision Goggles						2,000						2,000
C–9 Mods						3,000						3,000
P–3C Simulator Upgrade						2,000						2,000
Magic Lantern Spares						5,000				5,000
P–3 Modernization										72,000
Subtotal—Navy Reserve				40,000		192,000		30,000		242,000	24,000	17,000
MARINE CORPS RESERVE
Miscellaneous Equipment				10,000		10,000		40,000		10,000
LAV Improvements						2,000				2,000
CH–53E				50,000	2	64,000			2	64,000
AAV7A1 Modifications						2,000				2,000
Night Vision Equipment						1,000				1,000
Common End User Computers						4,000				4,000
Fork Lifts						4,000				1,000
M1A1 Tank Mod Kits										5,000
AN/TPS–59										11,000
Subtotal—Marine Corps Reserve				60,000		83,000		40,000		100,000
AIR FORCE RESERVE
Miscellaneous Equipment				10,000		10,000		50,000		10,000
C–20G				30,000							30,000
F–16 Avionics Upgrades						5,000				5,000
Night Vision Devices						3,000				3,000
A–10 Avionics Upgrades						7,000				7,000
C–130 Avionics Upgrades						7,000				7,000
HC–130P Tanker Conversion						3,000				3,000
C–130 Modular Airborne Firefighting System						1,000				1,000
F–16 Weapons Pylon Upgrades						1,000				1,000
KC–135R Engine Kits						104,000				96,000		8,000
KC–135 Radar Replacement						5,000				5,000
B–52 Avionics Upgrades						1,000				1,000
Non-aircrew Training Systems						1,000				1,000
EPLRS/SADL										8,000
Subtotal—Air Force Reserve				40,000		148,000		50,000		148,000	30,000	8,000
Subtotal—Reserves				230,000		529,000		230,000		603,000	103,000	46,000
NATIONAL GUARD EQUIPMENT
ARMY NATIONAL GUARD
Miscellaneous Equipment				52,000		10,000		125,400		10,000
MLRS				30,000							30,000
Combat and Support Systems				23,000							23,000
Tactical Trucks and Trailers				42,000							42,000
Communications Electronics				13,000							13,000
Logistics Service Support				10,000							10,000
Night Vision Equipment				14,000		3,000				10,000	4,000
Chem/Bio Defense Equipment				2,000							2,000
Aircraft Equipment				21,000							21,000
Infrastructure Equipment				17,000							17,000
New Procurement Tactical Truck 5 Ton						4,000				4,000
SLEP 2.5 Ton						15,000				15,000
SLEP 5 Ton						4,000				4,000
Crashworthy Internal Fuel Cells						5,000				5,000
Small Arms Simulators						5,000						5,000
AH–1 Boresight devise						3,000				3,000
Coolant Purification System						3,000				3,000
Avenger I–COFT Simulator						4,000				4,000
D7 Bulldozer w/Ripper						2,000						2,000
Water Purification Unit						1,000				1,000
FADEC						10,000				10,000
Digital System Test and Training Seminar						3,000				3,000
Automatic Building Machines						3,000				1,000		2,000
AH–1 C–Nite						2,000				2,000
Dump Trucks 20 Ton						3,000				3,000
C–23 Sherpa Enhancement Program						28,000						28,000
Helicopter Simulators (ARMS)						5,000				15,000
Dragon Modifications						2,000				2,000
Vibration System Management Systems						3,000				3,000
Distance Learning Equipment										29,000
Laser Leveling Equipment										5,000
Automatic Identification Technology										7,000
Subtotal—Army National Guard				224,000		118,000		125,400		139,000	162,000	37,000
AIR NATIONAL GUARD
Miscellaneous Equipment				10,000				40,000		5,000
Sead Mission Upgrade				11,400							11,400
F–16 HTS						10,000				10,000

Title	FY 1997		Authorization				Appropriation				Hollow SASC	Hollow HNSC
			SASC change		HNSC change		SAC change		HAC change
	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost	Qty.	Cost
C–130J				284,400	2	105,000			2	105,000	179,400
Theater Deployable Communications						17,000						17,000
C–26B						5,000						5,000
Automatic Building Machines						3,000				2,000		1,000
F–16 Improved Avionics Intermediate Shop						15,000				15,000
AN/TLQ–32 Tadar Decoys						3,000				3,000
C–130 Upgrades										5,000
EPLRS / SADL										17,000
Modular Medical Trauma Unit										4,000
Subtotal—Air National Guard				305,800		158,000		40,000		166,000	190,800	23,000
Subtotal—National Guard				529,800		276,000		165,400		305,000	352,800	60,000
DOD
MISC EQUIPMENT (Guard & Reserve Aircraft)
C–130J								284,400
C–9 Replacement Aircraft								80,000
Miscellaneous
Subtotal—Misc Equipment (Aircraft)								364,400
Total, National Guard and Reserve Equipment				759,800		805,000		759,800		908,000	455,800	108,000

CONRAD (AND DORGAN) AMENDMENT NO. 4415

Mr. CONRAD (for himself and Mr. DORGAN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of section 1062, add the following:

(d) RETENTION OF B–52H AIRCRAFT ON ACTIVE STATUS.—(1) The Secretary of the Air Force shall maintain in active status (including the performance of standard maintenance and upgrades) the current fleet of B–52H bomber aircraft.

(2) For purposes of carrying out upgrades of B–52H bomber aircraft during fiscal year 1997, the Secretary shall treat the entire current fleet of such aircraft as aircraft expected to be maintained in active status during the five-year period beginning on October 1, 1996.

BROWN (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 4416

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. BROWN, for himself, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. SIMON, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. ROTH, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. BRADLEY, Mrs. KASSEBAUM, Mr. COHEN, Mr. LEVIN, and Mr. LIEBERMAN) proposed an amendment to amendment No. 4367 proposed by Mr. NUNN to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

Strike all after page 1, line 3, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(a) Not later than December 1, 1996, the President shall transmit a report on NATO enlargement to the Committee on Armed Services and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on National Security and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives. The report shall contain a comprehensive discussion of the following:

(1) Geopolitical and financial costs and benefits, including financial savings, associated with:

(A) enlargement of NATO;

(B) further delays in the process of NATO enlargement; and

(C) a failure to enlarge NATO.

(2) Additional NATO and U.S. military expenditures requested by prospective NATO members to facilitate their admission into NATO;

(3) Modifications necessary in NATO's military strategy and force structure required by the inclusion of new members and steps necessary to integrate new members, including the role of nuclear and conventional capabilities, reinforcement, force deployments, prepositioning of equipment, mobility, and headquarter locations;

(4) The relationship between NATO enlargement and transatlantic stability and security;

(5) The state of military preparedness and interoperability of Central and Eastern European nations as it relates to the responsibilities of NATO membership and additional security costs or benefits that may accrue to the United States from NATO enlargement;

(6) The state of democracy and free market development as it affects the preparedness of Central and Eastern European nations for the responsibilities of NATO membership, including civilian control of the military, the rule of law, human rights, and parliamentary oversight;

(7) The state of relations between prospective NATO members and their neighbors, steps taken by prospective members to reduce tensions, and mechanisms for the peaceful resolution of border disputes;

(8) The commitment of prospective NATO members to the principles of the North Atlantic Treaty and the security of the North Atlantic area;

(9) The effect of NATO enlargement on the political, economic and security conditions of European Partnership for Peace nations not among the first new NATO members;

(10) The relationship between NATO enlargement and EU enlargement and the costs and benefits of both;

(11) The relationship between NATO enlargement and treaties relevant to U.S. and European security, such as the Conventional Armed Forces in Europe Treaty; and

(12) The anticipated impact both of NATO enlargement and further delays of NATO enlargement on Russian foreign and defense policies and the costs and benefits of a security relationship between NATO and Russia.

(b) INDEPENDENT ASSESSMENT.—Not later than 15 days after enactment of this Act, the Majority Leader of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall appoint a chairman and two other members and the Minority Leaders of the Senate and House of Representatives shall appoint two members to serve on a bipartisan review group of non-governmental experts to conduct an independent assessment of NATO enlargement, including a comprehensive review of the issues in (a) 1 through 12 above. The report of the review group shall be completed no later than December 1, 1996. The Secretary of Defense shall furnish the review group administrative and support services requested by the review group. The expenses of the review group shall be paid out of funds available for the payment of similar expenses incurred by the Department of Defense.

(c) Nothing in this section should be interpreted or construed to affect the implementation of the NATO Participation Act of 1994, as amended (P.L. 103–447), or any other program or activity which facilitates or assists prospective NATO members.

JEFFORDS (AND PELL) AMENDMENT NO 4417

Mr. JEFFORDS (for himself and Mr. PELL) proposed an amendment to amendment No. 4112 proposed by Mr. FORD to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

On page 1, strike line 6 through line 2 on page 2, and insert the following: 7703(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "2000 and such number equals or exceeds 15" and inserting "1000 or such number equals or exceeds 10"; and

(2) by inserting ", except that notwithstanding any other provision of this title the Secretary shall not make a payment computed under this paragraph for a child described in subparagraph (F) or (G) or paragraph (1) who is associated with Federal property used for Department of Defense activities unless funds for such payment are made available to the Secretary from funds available to the Secretary of Defense" before the period.

STEVENS AMENDMENT NO. 4418

Mr. WARNER (for Mr. STEVENS) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of title subtitle F of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1072. FACILITY FOR MILITARY DEPENDENT CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES, LACKLAND AIR FORCE BASE, TEXAS.

(a) FUNDING.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated by this Act for the Department of the Air Force, $2,000,000 may be available for the construction at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, of a facility (and supporting infrastructure) to provide comprehensive care and rehabilitation services to children with disabilities who are dependents of members of the Armed Forces.

(b) Transfer of Funds.—Subject to subsection (c), the Secretary of the Air Force may grant the funds available under subsection (a) to the Children's Association for Maximum Potential (CAMP) for use by the association to defray the costs of designing and constructing the facility referred to in subsection (a).

(c) Lease of Facility.—The Secretary may not make a grant of funds under subsection (b) until the Secretary and the association enter into an agreement under which the Secretary leases to the association the facility to be constructed using the funds.

(2)(A) The term of the lease under paragraph (1) may not be less than 25 years.

(B) As consideration for the lease of the facility, the association shall assume responsibility for the operation and maintenance of the facility, including the costs of such operation and maintenance.

(3) The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the lease as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

FORD (AND BROWN) AMENDMENT NO. 4419

Mr. FORD (for himself and Mr. Brown) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title I, add the following:

SEC. 113. DEMILITARIZATION OF ASSEMBLED CHEMICAL MUNITIONS.

(a) Pilot Program.—The Secretary of Defense shall conduct a pilot program to identify and demonstrate feasible alternatives to incineration for the demilitarization of assembled chemical munitions.

(b) Program Requirements.—(1) The Secretary of Defense shall designate an executive agent to carry out the pilot program required to be conducted under subsection (a).

(2) The executive agent shall—

(A) be an officer or executive of the United States Government;

(B) be accountable to the Secretary of Defense; and

(C) not be, or have been, in direct or immediate control of the chemical weapon stockpile demilitarization program established by 1412 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986 (50 U.S.C. 1521) or the alternative disposal process program carried out under sections 174 and 175 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal year 1993 (Public Law 102-484; 50 U.S.C. 1521 note).

(3) The executive agent may—

(A) carry out the pilot program directly;

(B) enter into a contract with a private entity to carry out the pilot program; or

(C) transfer funds to another department or agency of the Federal Government in order to provide for such department or agency to carry out the pilot program.

(4) A department or agency that carries out the pilot program under paragraph (3)(C) may not, for purposes of the pilot program, contract with or competitively select the organization within the Army that exercises direct or immediate management control over either program referred to in paragraph (2)(C).

(5) The pilot program shall terminate not later than September 30, 2000.

(c) Annual Report.—Not later than December 15 of each year in which the Secretary carries out the pilot program, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the activities under the pilot program during the preceding fiscal year.

(d) Evaluation and Report.—Not later than December 31, 2000, the Secretary of Defense shall—

(1) evaluate each demilitarization alternative identified and demonstrated under the pilot program to determine whether that alternative—

(A) is as safe and cost efficient as incineration for disposing of assembled chemical munitions; and

(B) meets the requirements of section 1412 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986; and

(2) submit to Congress a report containing the evaluation.

(e) Limitation on Long Lead Contracting.—(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in paragraph (2), the Secretary may not enter into any contract for the purchase of long lead materials considered to be baseline incineration specific materials for the construction of an incinerator at any site in Kentucky or Colorado within one year of the date of enactment of this act or, thereafter, until the executive agent designated for the pilot program submits an application for such permits as are necessary under the law of the State of Kentucky or the law of the State of Colorado, as the case may be, for the construction at that site of a plant for demilitarization of assembled chemical munitions by means of an alternative to incineration.

(2) Provided, however, the Secretary may enter into a contract described in paragraph (1) beginning 60 days after the date on which the Secretary submits to Congress—

(A) the report required by subsection (d)(2); and

(B) the certification of the executive agent that—

(i) there exists no alternative technology as safe and cost efficient as incineration for demilitarizing chemical munitions at non-bulk sites

(ii) that can meet the requirements of section 1412 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986.

(f) Assembled Chemical Munition Defined.—For the purpose of this section, the term "assembled chemical munition" means an entire chemical munition, including component parts, chemical agent, propellant, and explosive.

(g) Funding.—(1) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 107, $60,000,000 shall be available for the pilot program under this section. Such funds may not be derived from funds to be made available under the chemical demilitarization program for the alternative technologies research and development program at bulk sites.

(2) Funds made available for the pilot program pursuant to paragraph (1) shall be made available to the executive agent for use for the pilot program.

CONRAD AMENDMENT NO. 4420

Mr. CONRAD proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title II, insert the following:

SEC. . AIR FORCE NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE PLAN.

(a) Sense of the Senate.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Air Force proposal for a Minuteman based national missile defense system is an important national missile defense option and is worthy of serious consideration; and

(2) The Secretary of Defense should give Air Force national missile defense proposal full consideration.

(b) Report.—Not later than 120 days after the enactment of this act, the Secretary of Defense shall provide the Congressional Defense Committees a report on the following matters in relation to the Air Force National Missile Defense Proposal:

(1) The cost and operational effectiveness of a system that could be developed pursuant to the Air Forces' plan.

(2) The Arms Control implications of such system.

(3) Growth potential to meet future threats.

(4) The Secretary's recommendation for improvements to the Air Force's plan.

SARBANES AMENDMENT NO. 4421

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. SARBANES submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle E of title III, add the following:

SEC. 368. REPORTS ON PROVISION OF CERTAIN EMERGENCY SERVICES AT FORT MEADE, MARYLAND.

(a) Improvement of Fire Protection and Emergency Services.—The Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress the results of a study on means of improving the provision of fire protection services and emergency services at Fort Meade, Maryland, in order to meet the requirements of the Department of Defense for such services at Fort Meade. The study shall address consolidation of the services concerned as a means of achieving the improvement.

(b) Facility for HazMat Protection Services for NSA.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on plans for the construction at Fort Meade of a facility adequate to provide fire protection services and hazardous materials protection services for the National Security Agency. The report shall address the funding required for the construction of the facility.

WARNER AMENDMENT NO. 4422

Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to amendment No. 4388 proposed by Mr. Feingold to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted, insert the following:

SEC. 223. COST-BENEFIT ANALYSIS OF F/A-18E/F AIRCRAFT PROGRAM.

(a) Report on Program.—Not later than March 30, 1997, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the F/A-18E/F aircraft program.

(b) Content of Report.—The report shall contain the following:

(1) A review of the F/A-18E/F aircraft program.

(2) An analysis and estimate of the production costs of the program for the total number of aircraft realistically expected to be procured at each of three annual production rates as follows:

(A) 18 aircraft.

(B) 24 aircraft.

(C) 36 aircraft.

(3) A comparison of the costs and benefits of the program with the costs and benefits of the F/A-18C/D aircraft program taking into account the operational combat effectiveness of the aircraft.

(c) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS PENDING TRANSMITTAL OF REPORT.—No more than 90 percent of the funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act may be obligated or expended for the procurement of F/A–18E/F aircraft before the date that is 30 days after the date on which the congressional defense committees receive the report required under subsection (a).

DOMENICI AMENDMENT NO. 4423

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. DOMENICI) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follow:

In section 201(4), strike out "$9,662,542,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$9,679,542,000".

BUMPERS (AND PRYOR) AMENDMENT NO. 4424

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. BUMPERS, for himself and Mr. PRYOR) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title XXVIII, add the following:

SEC. 2828. LAND CONVEYANCE, PINE BLUFF ARSENAL, ARKANSAS.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Army may convey, without consideration, to the Economic Development Alliance of Jefferson County, Arkansas (in this section referred to as the "Alliance"), all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to a parcel of real property, together with any improvements thereon, consisting of approximately 1,500 acres and comprising a portion of the Pine Bluff Arsenal, Arkansas.

(b) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO CONVEYANCE.—The Secretary may not carry out the conveyance of property authorized under subsection (a) until—

(1) the completion by the Secretary of any environmental restoration and remediation that is required with the respect to the property under applicable law;

(2) the Secretary secures all permits required under law applicable regarding the conduct of the proposed chemical demilitarization mission at the arsenal; and

(3) the Secretary of Defense submits to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives a certification that the conveyance will not adversely affect the ability of the Departmentof Defense to conduct that chemical demilitarization mission.

(c) CONDITIONS OF CONVEYANCE.—The conveyance authorized under subsection (a) shall be subject to the following conditions:

(1) That the Alliance agree not to carry out any activities on the property to be conveyed that interfere with the construction, operation, and decommissioning of the chemical demilitarization facility to be constructed at Pine Bluff Arsenal. If the Alliance fails to comply with its agreement in (1) the property conveyed under this section, all right, title and interest in and to the property shall revert to the United States and the United States shall have immediate right of entry thereon.

(2) That the property be used during the 25-year period beginning on the date of the conveyance only as the site of the facility known as the "Bioplex", and for activities related thereto.

(d) COSTS OF CONVEYANCE.—The Alliance shall be responsible for any costs of the Army associated with the conveyance of property under this section, including administrative costs, the costs of an environmental baseline survey with respect to the property, and the cost of any protection services required by the Secretary in order to secure operations of the chemical demilitarization facility from activities on the property after the conveyance.

(e) REVERSIONARY INTERESTS.—If the Secretary determines at any time during the 25-year period referred to in subsection (c)(2) that the property conveyed under this section is not being used in accordance with that subsection, all right, title, and interest in and to the property shall revert to the United States and the United States shall have immediate right of entry thereon.

(f) SALE OF PROPERTY BY ALLIANCE.—If at any time during the 25-year period referred to in subsection (c)(2) the Alliance sells all or a portion of the property conveyed under this section, the Alliance shall pay the United States an amount equal to the lesser of—

(1) the amount of the sale of the property sold; or

(2) the fair market value of the property sold at the time of the sale, excluding the value of any improvements to the property sold that have been made by the Alliance.

(g) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the property conveyed under this section shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary. The cost of the survey shall be borne by the Alliance.

(h) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with conveyance under this section as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

KYL AMENDMENT NO. 4425

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. KYL) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle B of title II, add the following:

SEC. 223. SURGICAL STRIKE VEHICLE FOR USE AGAINST HARDENED AND DEEPLY BURIED TARGETS.

Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 201(4) for counterproliferation support program $3,000,000 shall be made available to the Air Combat Command for research and development into the near-term development of a capability to defeat hardened and deeply mined targets, including tunnels and deeply buried facilities for the production and storage of chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and their delivery systems.

(1) Nothing in this section shall be construed as precluding the application of the requirements of the Competition in Contracting Act.

PELL AMENDMENT NO. 4426

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. PELL) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

On page 54, between lines 22 and 23, insert the following:

"(c) NATIONAL COASTAL DATA CENTER.—(1) The Secretary of the Navy shall establish a National Coastal Data Center at each of two educational institutions that are either well-established oceanographic institutes or graduate schools of oceanography. The Secretary shall select for the center one institution located at or near the east coast of the continental United States and one institution located at or near the west coast of the continental United States.

"(2) The purpose of the center is to collect, maintain, and make available for research and educational purposes information on coastal oceanographic phenomena.

"(3) The Secretary shall complete the establishment of the National Coastal Data Center not later than one year after the date of the enactment of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1997.

DOMENICI AMENDMENT NO. 4427

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. DOMENICI) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

In section 201(4), strike out "9,662,542,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$9,682,542,000".

FEINSTEIN (AND BIDEN) AMENDMENT NO. 4428

Mr. NUNN (for Mrs. FEINSTEIN, for herself and Mr. BIDEN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . PROHIBITION ON THE DISTRIBUTION OF INFORMATION RELATING TO EXPLOSIVE MATERIALS FOR A CRIMINAL PURPOSE.

(a) UNLAWFUL CONDUCT.—Section 842 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(l) It shall be unlawful for any person to teach or demonstrate the making of explosive materials, or to distribute by any means information pertaining to, in whole or in part, the manufacture of explosive materials, if the person intends or knows, that such explosive materials or information will be used for, or in furtherance of, an activity that constitutes a Federal criminal offense or a criminal purpose affecting interstate commerce.".

(b) PENALTY.—Section 844(a) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "(a) Any person" and inserting "(a)(1) Any person"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

"(2) Any person who violates subsection (l) of section 842 of this chapter shall be fined under this title, imprisoned not more than 20 years, or both.".

SHELBY (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 4429

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. SHELBY, for himself, Mr. FAIRCLOTH, Mr. BRYAN, Mr. DODD, and Mr. GRAMM) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place in bill add the following new section:

SEC. . EXEMPTION FOR SAVINGS INSTITUTIONS SERVING MILITARY PERSONNEL.

Section 10(m)(3)(F) of the Home Owners' Loan Act (12 U.S.C. 1467a(m)(3)(F)) is amended to read as follows:

"(F) EXEMPTION FOR SPECIALIZED SAVINGS ASSOCIATIONS SERVING CERTAIN MILITARY PERSONNEL.—Subparagraph (A) does not apply to a savings association subsidiary of a savings and loan holding company if not less than 90 percent of the customers of the savings and loan holding company and the subsidiaries and affiliates of such company are active or former officers in the United States military services or the widows, widowers, divorced spouses, or current or former dependents of such officers.".

JOHNSTON AMENDMENT NO. 4430

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. JOHNSTON) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

On page 410, line 5, strike "$2,000,000" and insert "$5,000,000".

On page 410, line 10, strike "$2,000,000" and insert "$5,000,000".

On page 410, before line 14, add the following:

"(c) STUDY ON PERMANENT AUTHORIZATION FOR GENERAL PLANT PROJECTS.—Not later than February 1, 1997, the Secretary of Energy shall report to the appropriate congressional committees on the need for, and desirability of, a permanent authoirzation formula for defense and civilian general plant projects in the Department of Energy that includes periodic adjustments for inflation, including any legislative recommendations to enact such formula into permanent law. The report of the Secretary shall describe actions that would be taken by the Department to provide for cost control of general plant projects, taking into account the size and nature of such projects."

On page 413, line 25, strike "$2,000,000" and insert "$5,000,000".

HEFLIN (AND SHELBY) AMENDMENT NO. 4431

Mr. NUNN (for Mr. HEFLIN, for himself and Mr. SHELBY) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title IX add the following:

SEC. 907. ACTIONS TO LIMIT ADVERSE EFFECTS OF ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE JOINT PROGRAM OFFICE ON PRIVATE SECTOR EMPLOYMENT.

The Director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization shall take such actions as are necessary in connection with the establishment of the National Missile Defense Joint Program Office to ensure that the establishment and execution of the new management structure will not include any planned reductions in Federal Government employees, or Federal Government contractors, supporting the national missile defense development program at any particular location outside the National Capitol Region (as defined in section 2674(f)(2) of Title 10, United States Code).

LOTT AMENDMENT NO. 4432

Mr. MCCAIN (for Mr. LOTT) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . OCEANOGRAPHIC SHIP OPERATIONS AND DATA ANALYSIS.

(a) Of the funds provided by Section 301(2), an additional $6,200,000 may be authorized for the reduction, storage, modeling and conversion of oceanographic data for use by the Navy, consistent with Navy's requirements.

(b) Such funds identified in (a) shall be in addition to such amounts already provided for this purpose in the budget request.

THURMOND AMENDMENT NO. 4433

Mr. LOTT (for Mr. THURMOND) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1745, supra; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title II, add the following:

SEC 237. EXTENSION OF PROHIBITION ON USE OF FUNDS TO IMPLEMENT AN INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT CONCERNING THEATER MISSILE DEFENSE SYSTEMS.

Section 235(c) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104–106; 110 Stat. 232) is amended in the matter preceding paragraph (1) by inserting "or 1997" after "fiscal year 1996".

THE MOLLIE BEATTIE ALASKA WILDERNESS AREA ACT

MURKOWSKI (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 4434

Mr. NICKLES (for Mr. MURKOWSKI, for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, and Mr. GRAHAM) proposed an amendment to the bill (S. 1899) entitled the "Mollie Beattie Alaska Wilderness Area Act"; as follows:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 702(3) of Public Law 96-487 is amended by striking 'Arctic National Wildlife Refuge Wilderness' and inserting 'Mollie Beattie Wilderness'. The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to place a monument in honor of Mollie Beattie's contributions to fish, wildlife, and waterfowl conservation and management at a suitable location that he designates within the Mollie Beattie Wilderness."

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEE TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Friday, June 28, 1996, at 9 a.m. to hold a hearing on White House access to FBI summaries.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

REMEMBERING SGT. MICHAEL SEAN SMITH

• Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise today to take a few minutes to remember an American soldier who lost his life while serving his country. This remembrance is appropriate given the Senate's consideration of the Department of Defense authorization bill this week. This bill sets priorities for defense spending over the course of the next fiscal year. Frequently, this annual debate becomes bogged down in a discussion of weapons systems and defense contracts. Seemingly lost in this debate are the very men and women who serve in our Armed Forces; soldiers like U.S. Army Sgt. Michael Sean Smith who have sacrificed their lives in the line of duty.

Mr. President I rise to pay tribute to Sergeant Smith. Sergeant Smith died March 12, 1991, while serving his country in the Persian Gulf war. Sergeant Smith is survived by his wife Carmen, two children, and nine siblings, and is remembered fondly as a unique, friendly, and loving individual. As a medic with the 36th Medical Detachment, he faithfully served the United States with honor and integrity. Sergeant Smith's death represents a great loss, not only to his loved ones, but also to this Nation. It is through his ultimate sacrifice that we may all gain strength to be steadfast in our commitment, conviction, and dedication to our country as individual citizens, service men and women, and even members of the U.S. Senate.

It is with solemn respect that I ask my colleagues to remember a fallen hero—Sgt. Michael Sean Smith.

Thank you, Mr. President.•

ARGONNE NATIONAL LABORATORY

• Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I would like to thank the great State of New York and IBM Corp. for sending to Illinois the distinguished scientist and research executive, Dr. Dean Eastman, who on July 15 becomes director of Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago.

As an essential part of this Nation's science and technology research establishment, Argonne long has been a world-class research center. It is one of the Nation's nine multiple program national laboratories, and the only one in the Midwest.

Dr. Eastman comes to Argonne at an especially challenging time for America's science community. As we approach the 21st Century, a time when this Nation and the world will increasingly rely upon technological breakthroughs by a dynamic and highly motivated scientific research establishment, not all of our citizens realize how vital such research is to the preservation and enhancement of our quality of life. Leaders of our scientific community today must therefore be persuasive educators, as well as efficient managers and talented scientists.

Fortunately for Argonne, for Illinois, and for the Nation, Dr. Eastman's record suggests he is more than equal to this challenge. He is a world-renowned expert on the electronic properties of materials and spectroscopy. Prior to his current position as vice president of technical strategy and development re-engineering with the IBM server group, he also served as IBM director of hardware development re-engineering at IBM's research division. In addition, he has been involved in many national science and engineering policy and advisory activities.

Dr. Eastman is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Engineering and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was made an IBM Fellow in 1974 and received the Oliver E. Buckley Prize in 1980.

Mr. President, I welcome him and his family to Illinois, and wish him the very best as he undertakes the important national mission now in his charge.•

MEADOWWOOD SPRINGS SPEECH AND HEARING CAMP

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I am pleased to share with the Senate information about a very special facility in Oregon that I believe serves as a model for the nation.

Meadowwood Springs Speech and Hearing Camp was established in 1964 through the initiative of four University of Oregon students. These students saw the need for a speech and hearing development camp in the Pacific Northwest. They selected a secluded site in the Blue Mountains of Northeastern Oregon and established a camp for some of the most special children in our society—those with speech and hearing difficulties.

Only 15 children attended the camp's first session over 30 years ago. Today, the camp boasts over 100 student participants annually. There are now over 40 buildings on 143 acres in this beautiful forest setting. The buildings include cabins, an infirmary, a dinning hall, a store, a multipurpose building, and a swimming pool.

Children come to Meadowwood in order to improve their speech and hearing skills. The caring and loving environment at Meadowwood allows these children to develop skills at a significantly accelerated rate. In some cases, a child at Meadowwood may learn as much in a 2-week period as they may have learned in a span of 6 months in a traditional school setting.

The staff members at Meadowwood are a group of highly motivated and caring individuals. Many have specialized educational backgrounds in speech pathology and or audiology from acclaimed schools throughout the country. These devoted staff members are often drawn from local communities. In recent years, the staff-to-child ratio has been approximately 1-to-1. It is the care and commitment of the staff that make this unique facility what it is. They ensure that the children develop in a loving and nurturing environment.

I want to share with my colleagues one of the most remarkable elements of this venture—it receives no Federal funding. Meadowwood is a non-profit organization. It is funded through the generous donations of the Oregon Elks Association and individual contributions. In addition to financial contributions, Meadowwood also receives the very valuable gift of time from the many Oregonians who volunteer there.

The Oregon Elks Association and the other Oregonians deserve our highest praise. They have donated their time, money, and attention to Meadowwood and have made it a success. It is a place filled with growth and with the laughter of very special children. Meadowwood is a unique miracle.

As public officials, we must never lose sight of the human face that is behind nearly every issue we confront in this chamber. For this country to advance and become more prosperous in the future, we must place our highest priority on the needs of our children. I have reviewed many programs during my decades of public service. Few are better examples of the high commitment we must place on our children than the fine program at Meadowwood.•

HATTIE CARAWAY PORTRAIT

• Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, I wish to pay a special tribute to a very important figure in the State of Arkansas and in the U.S. Senate. This past Monday, many Arkansans, congressional staffers, members of the Arkansas State Society, representatives from the U.S. Senate and Capitol historical offices, and a few of my fellow colleagues gathered just outside this Chamber for a ceremony honoring this distinguished American. We gathered to unveil the newest portrait being added to the Senate art collection—a portrait of the first woman ever elected to the U.S. Senate.

Mr. President, Hattie Caraway came to this distinguished body on November 13, 1931, following the death of her husband, Senator Thaddeus Caraway. A gubanatorial appointment and a special election allowed Senator Caraway to complete the remaining year of her husband's term. She then decided to do what no woman had done before her—win a seat in the U.S. Senate in her own right.

In the election year of 1932, Hattie Caraway, with the staunch support of Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, made her bid to hold her seat in this body. Hattie Caraway and Huey Long traveled across the State of Arkansas winning support and winning votes. This fascinating team spoke in over 35 communities during the first week of August 1931. Hattie Caraway won that election and became the first woman popularly elected to the U.S. Senate.

Mr. President, Senator Caraway, at first, spoke so infrequently that she became know as Silent Hattie. As she grew more accustomed to her new role, she emerged as a strong supporter of the New Deal legislation. She even had the honor of seconding the nomination of President Franklin Roosevelt at the 1936 Democratic National Convention. Hattie Caraway also served as the first woman to preside over the Senate—May 9, 1932—and the first to chair a Senate committee. Silent Hattie emerged as a respected and honored Member of this body.

Senator Caraway was re-elected in 1938 and went on to champion legislation important in the history of our country—most notably, she cosponsored the equal rights amendment in 1943. She served until the Democratic primary of 1944, when she was defeated by another political hero from Arkansas, J. William Fulbright, thus ending a historical career in the Senate.

Mr. President, Hattie Caraway has her place in history, and now she has her place in the U.S. Capitol. She watches over the main Senate hallway, just outside these doors. This portrait shows Senator Caraway dressed in her customary color of black, a sign of mourning for her husband. She is pictured in front of a map of the great State of Arkansas. The portrait is hung across from Senator Joe T. Robinson—a fellow Arkansan.

It has been my pleasure, Mr. President, to have the opportunity to help in the completion of this project. My good friend and colleague, Senator BUMPERS, along with his wife, Betty, as well as my wife, Barbara, who were both honorary cochairs, have all been involved in the selection of the Hattie Caraway Portrait Committee and completion of the portrait project. Senator BUMPERS and I were proud to appoint Mary Ellen Jesson of Fort Smith to chair the committee, which was made up of many fine and outstanding Arkansans, including Diane Alderson, Diane Blair, Cassie Brothers, the Honorable Irma Hunter Brown, Meredith Catlett, Gwen Cupp, Ann Dawson, Dorine Deacon, Mimi Dortch, Jacqueline Douglas, Lib Dunklin, Judy Gaddy, Jane Huffman, Dr. Charlotte Jones, Chloe Kirksey, Karen Lackey, Bev Lindsey, Donna Kay Matteson, Susan Mayes, Clarice Miller, Betty Mitchell, Julia Mobley, Nancy Monroe, Sylvia Prewitt, Billie Rutherford, Irene Samuel, and Helen Walton.

Mr. President, I would like to thank the Senate Commission on Art, in particular Kelly Johnston, who serves as both the executive secretary of this commission and as Secretary of the Senate, Howard Greene, the Senate Sergeant at Arms, and Diane Skvarla, Senate Curator, for all of their hard work and advice that they so freely gave. I would also like to acknowledge Melinda Smith, Senate Registrar, Dick Baker, Senate Historian, and Jo Quatannens, Assistant Senate Historian for their dedication to this project.

J.O. Buckley, an artist from Little Rock, was chosen by the members of the U.S. Senate Commission on Art to paint the portrait of Senator Caraway. He was chosen, Mr. President, from a group of outstanding Arkansas artists to add this piece of history to the U.S. Capitol. We are so pleased with the results and congratulate J.O. Buckley on his marvelous work.

We gathered here Monday night and had the privilege of hearing Prof. Diane

Blair and Dr. David Malone praise the outstanding career of Senator Caraway. We also had the privilege to be joined by my distinguished colleagues Senator STROM THURMOND and Senator NANCY KASSEBAUM, both of whom spoke about Hattie's historical and inspirational presence in this body.

Mr. President, I, as an American, an Arkansan, and a U.S. Senator, am proud to stand here today to pay tribute to Hattie Caraway—a woman dedicated to serving the citizens of my home State and this great country of ours.•

INDIANAPOLIS ATHLETIC CLUB SPORTS FOUNDATION BREAKFAST

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, the Indianapolis Indians professional baseball team has been an important institution in my life from the time that my dad, Marvin Lugar, took me to Indians' games in the 1940s. Those of us in Indiana who revere the Indianapolis Indians will celebrate two significant events in July when the final Indians' game is played at Bush Stadium on July 3 and the opening game at the new Victory Field takes place on July 11.

I thank the Indianapolis Athletic Club Sports Foundation for honoring the Indianapolis Indians at a breakfast on July 2, a great opportunity to assemble so many of the renowned Indians players that are still alive and active in support of baseball in our State.

The Indianapolis Athletic Club Sports Foundation has performed a vital role in bringing together and recognizing the important contributions to the Indianapolis community of the Indianapolis Indians and bringing together the people and much of the history that has meant so much to our community.

I can remember vividly, a home run hit by third baseman Joe Bestudik, the first time I had ever seen a baseball hit over the wall of a baseball park.

I can remember the thrill of attending baseball clinics given by professional players that allowed us to run the bases and gain some idea of the dimensions of the stadium.

One of my closest friends at Shortridge High School, Max Schumacher, was captain of our high school's baseball team. Following his graduation from Butler University in Indianapolis, Max joined the Indianapolis Indians' organization as ticket manager, became president in 1969, and has presided over one of the truly outstanding success stories of minor league baseball in America.

I congratulate Max, the remarkable board of directors he has assembled over the years, the Indian Hall of Fame members, and hundreds of thousands of baseball fans who have made the Indianapolis Indians such a remarkable pillar of strength.

At the time that I was elected mayor of Indianapolis in 1967, I gained a much better insight of how much the Indians mean to our city when so many civic leaders came to me and asked that the city of Indianapolis take over the ballpark and provide the funds for proper restoration and maintenance. It was a personal thrill to see the stature of the stadium rise again and a personal challenge each year to throw the first ball of the season from the pitcher's mound with hopes that it would not fly over the catcher's head or into the dirt.

Along with a large majority of Indians' fans, I will deeply miss the cool breezes and the great view of the city skyline that were a part of the summer evening at Bush Stadium, but I look forward to remarkable new opportunities for enjoyment of the Indianapolis Indians at a new stadium in the heart of a vital inner city of Indianapolis.

I thank all Hoosiers who are endeavoring to make both celebrations an important part of our Hoosier historical heritage.•

CONGRATULATIONS TO ANDY ASPIN, MINNESOTA POLICE OFFICER

• Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise to extend my heartiest congratulations to Andy Aspin, who has been named Minnesota Police Officer of the Year. A member of the Minneapolis Police Department, Fifth Precinct, Officer Aspin is a most deserving recipient of this high honor.

Throughout his career, Andy has shown admirable commitment and dedication to serving the police force and the entire Minneapolis community. He is especially worthy of this distinction because of the courage and confidence he exhibited in the August 22, 1995, pursuit of an armed murder suspect. Risking his life, he served his community above and beyond the call of duty.

As a strong supporter of the law enforcement community, I am always gratified when a police officer receives such richly deserved accolades. Too often, our society focuses its attention and acclaim on the famous and the infamous. Rarely do we notice the role models among us; the everyday heroes who give so much and receive so little in return.

Andy's fine work serves as a reminder of the goals to which we should all aspire: to serve others, to strengthen our communities, to live and work with honor and dignity and to help others to do the same.

It is a privilege for me to recognize this outstanding law enforcement officer who has protected in an exemplary manner the lives and property of the citizens of Minneapolis. Officer Aspin is truly a role model for our children, a source of pride for all Minnesotans, and a hero to all Americans.•

COMMEMORATING THE ST. DOMINIC REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

• Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise to recognize and congratulate 13 very special students from St. Dominic Regional High School in Lewiston, ME, whose team won honorable mention as a top-10 finalist in the "We the People * * * the Citizen and the Constitution" competition. Adam Feldman, Jay Fournier, Catherine Fredricks-Rehagen, Monique Gagnon, Nathan Hall, Rachel Lawrence, Carrie Luke, Jessica Morin, Peter Murray, Kathryn Piela, Paul Sheridan, Anne Theriault, and Jason Theriault have demonstrated exemplary understanding of the fundamental ideals incorporated in our Nation's most precious documents, the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights. They, along with their teacher Rosanne Ducey, can be very proud of their accomplishment.

The "We the People * * * the Citizen and the Constitution" challenge was established by the Center for Civic Education, which was founded in 1987, under the auspices of the Commission of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. The Center for Civic Education aims to improve civic education in elementary and secondary schools by increasing both students' and teachers' understanding of our constitutional democracy, and has served over 20 million American students during its 8-year existence.

The "We the People * * * The Citizen and the Constitution" challenge held its national finals on April 27–29, where the St. Dominic class finished with honorable mention. This is a remarkable accomplishment, considering that high schools from throughout America are competing in this program. An incredible amount of preparation and commitment goes with competing in this challenge, and the success of these 13 students from St. Dominic Regional High School is a direct reflection on their dedication and hard work, as well as that of their instructor.

It is so important that our young men and women have a firm understanding about the documents upon which our Nation was founded, and how those documents are as relevant to our lives today as they were when they were written. Indeed, through this challenge, students do so much more than simply learn the content of our Constitution and Bill of Rights. They come to think about the meaning of these documents, how they have been interpreted over the years, and the ways in which they are very much living documents which continue to evolve even today. As these young people grow into adulthood, and the responsibilities that come with being citizens of this great country, they will be able to analyze and approach issues of the day with a firm understanding of the underpinnings of our democracy.

I am pleased and proud to know that these outstanding students from Maine will be well prepared for their further education, and to be full participants in and contributors to their country. Again, I congratulate these young Mainers and wish them all the best for what will certainly be a bright and successful future.●

HONORING LUCILLE MAURER

● Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I rise today to join the citizens of Maryland in honoring a distinguished public servant, and a respected role model, Lucille Maurer, who died earlier this month.

I am proud to have served with Lucy Maurer in the Maryland House of Delegates after her appointment in 1969. While Lucy was selected to serve the people of Montgomery County, her interests and efforts extended far beyond parochial concerns, encompassing all the citizens of Maryland, especially the children. A formula that she was instrumental in devising—and in fact bears her name—the Lee-Maurer formula, is still used by the State of Maryland to determine the amount of State educational assistance that each county receives, and ensures those jurisdictions most in need received the state assistance they require to assure educational opportunities for all of Maryland's children.

In addition to her commitment to the children of our State, Lucy was gifted with a keen grasp of State finances and budgeting issues which served her well as Maryland's first female treasurer. Elected to this position in 1987 by the State legislature, Lucy brought to the treasurer's office the same commitment and competence which characterized her service in the House of Delegates.

Throughout her 35-year career in public service, as well as in her work with organizations such as the PTA and the League of Women Voters, Lucille Maurer was a person who effectively brought people together for worthy purposes and with commendable results. She was a positive and unifying force in our State and her quiet competence and pleasant demeanor will be deeply missed. She was a good friend and respected colleague in the public service, and I would like to take this opportunity to extend my deepest and heartfelt sympathies to her husband, Ely and her sons, Stephen, Russell, and Edward.

Mr. President, in testimony to Lucy's exceptional efforts on behalf of the people of Maryland, I ask that the following articles from the Baltimore Messenger, the Baltimore Sun, and the Washington Post, which pay tribute to this respected and honored individual be printed in the RECORD.

The articles follow:

[From the Baltimore Messenger, June 26, 1996]

STATE OWES MAURER DEBT OF GRATITUDE

The death of Lucille Maurer is a sad reminder of how far Maryland government has come since the days when bankers controlled the state treasurer. Or, more accurately, when you had to be a banker to become state treasurer.

Partly because of reforms instituted by Maurer and the late Billy James, her immediate predecessor as state treasurer, those days are gone.

For decades before they came along, the office was a fiefdom of Baltimore bankers favored by the General Assembly. This flowed from the quaint practice of letting the House and Senate elect the treasurer by joint ballot. Because a delegate's vote in this process is equal to a senator's vote and because delegates outnumber senators, this is one of the few situations in which the House holds the upper hand.

Until 1966, the treasurer's post paid only $2,500 a year but was still one of the most prized jobs in Maryland politics.

The reason? Banks paid little or no interest on the hundreds of millions deposited in them by the state, and the treasurer decided whose banks got this bonanza.

He—it was always a man; Maurer was the only woman elected to the job in its 221-year history—also decided which politicians or other insiders got the juicy casualty insurance business on state property—schools, office buildings, even the State House and the governor's mansion itself.

One state treasurer insisted that any qualified agent could play in this little game. When I tried to pry the list of participants from him to check this, he refused and threw me out of his office. There was no freedom of information law then, but the game began to fall apart when his refusal was reported. An indignant legislator made him cough it up.

This led to more equitable distribution of the state insurance business. Then, with James and Maurer, came reform of the no-interest bank-deposit system.

James, a highly respected former Senate president, was the first to require that banks pay interest on state accounts. Maurer refined the practice to include offsets of some banking services in exchange for interest. Both ran the office responsibly and never confused the banks' interests with the public interest.

James, and now Maurer, are gone. But because they abolished an obsolescent, putrescent practice, the state owes lasting tribute to the memory of both.

MAURER, 73, DIES OF BRAIN TUMOR

(By Thomas Waldron and Marina Sarris)

Lucille Maurer, a suburban Washington legislator who championed state aid for Baltimore and later became Maryland's first woman treasurer, died yesterday at her home in Silver Spring of complications from a benign brain tumor. She was 73.

Mrs. Maurer's health problems forced her to resign as treasurer in January, ending a career in public service that spanned more than 35 years.

Friends and elected officials yesterday recalled a determined and incisive woman who brought a personable, optimistic approach to politics and life.

"To me, she's the model of a public servant," said state Del. Nancy K. Kopp, a Montgomery Democrat and long-time friend and colleague. "She was intelligent, dedicated and willing to go in and fight long, tough battles, battles that might last for years."

"She paved the way for a lot of women in politics early on, and she proved that a woman can produce as much as any man," said Sen. Ida G. Ruben, also of Montgomery County Democrat.

During her 16 years as a legislator, Mrs. Maurer was scarcely known outside political circles. But inside the State House, she was respected for her keen understanding of state finances and her statewide perspective on budget issues.

Mrs. Maurer was widely appreciated around the capital for her work crafting the complicated formula that has been used for two decades to determine the amount of state education aid each county receives—a formula known as Lee-Maurer, for Mrs. Maurer and former acting Gov. Blair Lee III.

Under the formula, the richer a county was, the less state aid it received, which benefited poorer areas such as Baltimore City.

While her concern for other jurisdictions won her acclaim in Annapolis, it did not always impress the people back home. Her aversion to parochialism helped cost her a Senate seat in 1986.

In 1987, the legislature elected her to the job of treasurer, where she oversaw state investments and the sale of state bonds.

As treasurer, Mrs. Maurer also was the first woman to sit on the Maryland Board of Public Works, the three-member panel that approves all major state contracts.

As a board member, she expressed herself firmly yet quietly, at least compared with her more outspoken and colorful colleagues, former Gov. William Donald Schaefer and Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

"She was a woman of passion, ability and intelligence," said Mr. Goldstein. "She held her own while we had some very unusual discussions back in the governor's private office."

Gov. Parris N. Glendening said, "Through persistence, professionalism and quiet persuasion, she epitomized the art of good government and good politics."

The former Lucille Darvin was born in New York City in 1922 and grew up in Rockland County, north of the city.

She received a degree in economics from the Women's College of the University of North Carolina. After working as an economist with the U.S. Tariff Commission, she received a master's degree from Yale University in 1945.

She moved to Montgomery County in 1950 and became active in community groups, particularly the League of Women Voters. That led to two terms on the county school board from 1960 to 1968.

In 1969, she was appointed to fill a vacancy in the House of Delegates representing a suburban district that took in parts of Wheaton and Silver Spring.

At that time, Mrs. Maurer was one of only a handful of women in the legislature. She won re-election to four four-year terms in the House.

As a legislator, Mrs. Maurer took on issues of concern to many mothers. bills to regulate public swimming pools and camps for children, for instance, and to strengthen laws on child abuse.

Colleagues recalled that she did her homework on the issues, took unwavering positions but remained cordial and diplomatic with her opponents.

"She never made a public display of a confrontation, but she let you know personally how she felt, in a quiet way," Mrs. Ruben said.

The Evening Sun wrote in a 1975 editorial, "Without the rancorous or strident tones too often heard on the subject, she has been a persuasive, constructive leader in the movement for women's rights."

Her career came to a crossroads in a hard-fought campaign for the state Senate in 1986. Her opponent, Idamae Garrott, accused her of caring too little about Montgomery County and worrying too much about the financial needs of Baltimore.

Senator Garrott's message resonated at home. "Montgomery County was feeling the pinch," Senator Ruben said. "Taxes were rising and people felt they were not getting the services they thought they should."

Mrs. Maurer lost, but rebounded quickly when the General Assembly elected her treasurer in early 1987.

A private burial is planned in Rockland County, N.Y. A memorial service will be held later in Maryland.

Mrs. Maurer is survived by her husband of 51 years, Ely Maurer, an assistant legal adviser in the U.S. State Department; three sons, Stephen Maurer of Swarthmore, Pa., Russell Maurer of Pepper Pike, Ohio, and Edward Maurer of Lido Beach, N.Y.; and seven grandchildren.

[From the Washington Post, June 22, 1996]

LUCILLE MAURER

For as long as anyone can remember, Montgomery County has been a wellspring of civic and public service, famed for its concentration of highly informed, superactive citizens who revel in pursuing the essentials of good local government. Out of this grassroots tradition and on to the high office of state treasurer came Lucille Maurer, an able, knowledgeable and beloved servant of her fellow Marylanders. Mrs. Maurer, who died this week at the age of 73, rose to recognition along the classic civic-path—from PTA to the League of Women Voters, two terms on the county school board, 18 years in the Maryland state legislature and nine years as treasurer until her resignation for health reasons last January.

Never one to seek the spotlight, Mrs. Maurer won attention and respect for her hard work, fairness and gentle approach to political solutions. Early on, her keen sense of local and state finances won her acclaim and additional responsibilities. If there was any quarrel with her performance in Annapolis, it came from those in her county who did not appreciate one of her greatest strengths: the times when she would forsake parochialism in the interest of statewide concerns. She believed that the health of the state as a whole was in the interests of her constituents—and worked to that end on funding formulas aimed at helping those areas most in need, and especially Maryland's poorest children.

When she became the state's first female treasurer and the highest-ranking state official from the Washington suburbs, Mrs. Maurer transformed the office, ending old-fashioned bookkeeping techniques, consolidating operations and selling off much of the state's stock portfolio before a downtown in the market. It was this blend of hard-nosed decision-making and personal congeniality that endeared Lucy Maurer to those with whom she worked as well as the many more whom she served with dedication, integrity and fondness.•

BURLEY IRRIGATION DISTRICT TRANSFER ACT

• Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, last evening I introduced S. 1921, a bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to transfer certain facilities at the Minidoka project to the Burley Irrigation District. The introduction of this legislation results from a hearing I held in the Senate Energy Committee on May 23, 1995, on S. 620, a generic bill to transfer reclamation facilities. At that hearing, it became obvious a general transfer bill would not work; each reclamation project has unique qualities, and projects should be addressed individually or in distinct groupings. S. 1291 addresses one specific project in Idaho.

The Reclamation Act of 1902 was part of the history of Federal public land laws designed to transfer lands out of Federal ownership and settle this Nation. The origins of that policy predate the Constitution and derive from the early debates that led to the Northwest Ordinance of 1787. The particular needs and circumstances of the arid and semiarid lands west of the 100th meridian led to various proposals to reclaim the lands, including the Desert Land Act and the Carey Act. In his State of the Union Message of 1901, President Theodore Roosevelt finally called for the Federal Government to intervene to develop the reservoirs and works necessary to accomplish such irrigation. The reclamation program was enormously successful. It grew from the irrigation program contemplated by one President Roosevelt to the massive works constructed four decades later by the second President Roosevelt. For those of us in the Northwest, there is a very personal meaning to a line from Woody Guthrie's song about the Columbia that goes: "Your power is turning our darkness to dawn, so roll on Columbia, roll on."

If what is known now had been known then, some projects may have been constructed differently. However, that is not the question we have before us. The central question is whether and to what extent the Federal Government should seek to transfer the title and responsibility for these projects. Has the Federal mission been accomplished?

As I noted in my introductory statement to S. 620, the best transfer case would be the single purpose irrigation or municipal and industrial [M&I] system that is fully repaid, operation has long since been transferred, and the water rights are held privately. That is the case with the Burley Irrigation District transfer.

The transfer of title is not a new idea. Authority to transfer title to the All American Canal is contained in section 7 of the Boulder Canyon Project Act of 1928. General authority is contained in the 1955 Distribution Systems Loan Act. Recently, Congress passed legislation dealing with Elephant Butte and Vermejo.

The Burley Irrigation District is part of the Minidoka project that was built under the authorization of the 1902 Reclamation Act. By a contract executed in 1926, the district assumed the operation and maintenance of the system.

All construction contracts and costs for the canals system, pumping plants, power house, transmission lines, and houses have been paid in full. Contracts for storage space at Minidoka Dam, Jackson Dam, American Falls, and Palisades have been paid in full, along with all maintenance fees. This project is a perfect example of the Federal Government maintaining only a bare title, and that title should now be transferred to the project recipients who have paid for the facilities and rights of the Burley Irrigation District.•

MILLION PAGES PROJECT

• Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today to commend the students, teachers, parents, and librarian Jeannie Riley at Meadows Elementary School in Huntington, WV. This group worked together in an outstanding effort to promote literacy through the million pages reading program.

Jeannie Riley wanted to challenge students at Meadows Elementary School to read 1 million pages by the end of the school year. She worked with school administrators, teachers, and parents to provide creative incentives for the students to read, using activities such as afternoon dances and the opportunity to throw pies at teachers. This innovative program encouraged family reading time and motivated students to read independently. The students enthusiastically accepted the challenge and worked very hard to meet their goal. They succeeded in their endeavor, a magnificent achievement by some motivated young people in my State.

Mr. President, we all know reading is an essential skill that enables children to communicate and convey ideas more effectively. Children who acquire good reading skills will be better equipped to compete in today's dynamic world that demands an education as a prerequisite for self-sufficiency and participating in a highly skilled work force. Illiteracy is a problem that plagues West Virginia as well as the Nation, and too many children reach adulthood lacking abilities they need for a secure future. Programs like the million pages project are consistent with goals set by the Department of Education. They also complement the goals of the National Commission on Children, a bipartisan group of policymakers, educators, and individuals that I led in looking for ways to strengthen families and better the lives of tomorrow's leaders.

The million pages project is a step in the right direction, going beyond basic classroom instruction to develop a love of reading and encourage the development of these vital skills. Programs such as the million pages project are helping to fight the battle of illiteracy and giving West Virginia's children a better chance for a bright future. This program serves as a fine example of what happens when people come together to promote a worthy cause, and I hope others will learn from the Meadows challenge.

Achieving this goal of 1 million pages is a great honor, and again, Mr. President, I sincerely congratulate the Meadows Elementary community. I applaud Jeannie Riley for working so hard to initiate the million pages project, the teachers of Meadows Elementary for embracing it with enthusiasm, the parents for reading to their children and supporting this initiative, and the students for their tremendous effort and persistence in reading their goal.•

SALUTING THE MICHIGAN PARTICIPANTS IN THE 1996 SUMMER OLYMPIC GAMES

• Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, every 4 years, for 2 weeks the collective attention of the world falls upon those exceptional men and women who possess the drive, ability, and character to compete as Olympians. From July 19 to August 4, 1996, the centennial anniversary of the Modern Olympic Games will be held in Atlanta, GA. On this occasion, America's greatest athletes will face their counterparts from 197 countries.

All of our Nation's citizens have a vested personal interest, and deservedly so, in the accomplishments of our athletes and coaches. However, it is the families, friends, and neighbors of these individuals who are especially qualified in their pride. Olympic talent cannot be attained overnight, it takes years to hone and develop; undoubtedly an impossibility without the support and encouragement provided by local communities.

At least 30 individuals with distinct ties to my State of Michigan will take part in the upcoming centennial Games. Whether native born and raised, to attend school, to train, or to coach, they all share some sort of affiliation to the Great Lakes State. While the following men and women will participate in the Olympics first and foremost as Americans, I would like to take a moment to recognize them also as Michiganians:

Bob Allshouse, Birmingham, team leader, table tennis.

Frankie Andreu, Dearborn, men's road, cycling.

Thomas Carlton Bruner, Ann Arbor, 1,500m free, swimming.

Pam Bustin, Haslett, defender, field hockey.

David DeGraaf, Lansing, circle runner, team handball.

Tom Dolan, Ann Arbor, 400m free, 200m, 400m IM, swimming.

Greg Giovanazzi, Ann Arbor, assistant coach, volleyball.

Charlie Greene, East Lansing, assistant team leader, track and field.

Grant Hill, Detroit, forward, basketball.

Mora Kanim, Ann Arbor, assistant coach, volleyball.

Al Kastl, Mount Clemens, team leader, Greco-Roman wrestling.

Mike King, Grand Rapids, head coach, archery.

Charles Karch" Kiraly, Jackson, beach volleyball.

Tom Malchow, Ann Arbor, 200m fly, swimming.

Ann Marsh, Royal Oak, women's foil, Fencing.

Floyd Mayweather, Grand Rapids, featherweight, boxing.

Al Mitchell, Marquette, head coach, boxing.

Eric Namesnik, Ann Arbor, 400m IM, swimming.

Connie Paraskevin-Young, Detroit, women's track, cycling.

Suzanne Paxton, East Lansing, women's foil, fencing.

Jeffrey Pfaendtner, Detroit, men's lightweight four, rowing.

John Piersma, Ann Arbor, 200m, 400m free, 800m FR, swimming.

Annette Salmeen, Ann Arbor, 200m Fly, 800m FR, swimming.

Kent Steffes, Ann Arbor, beach volleyball.

Todd Sweeris, Grand Rapids, men's doubles, table tennis.

Sheila Taormina, Livonia, 800m FR, swimming.

Kirk Trost, Ann Arbor, assistant coach, wrestling.

Jon Urbanchek, Ann Arbor, assistant coach, swimming.

MaliVai Washington, Ann Arbor, men's doubles, tennis.

Eric Wunderlich, Ann Arbor, 200m breast, swimming.

The founder of the modern Olympic games, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, is credited with having written the Olympic Creed, which is as follows: "The most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle. The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well."

It is inevitable that next month in Atlanta records will be broken, heroes will be born, and Olympic legends will be created. However, before the first event gets underway and the medal counts begin, each and every athlete and coach deserves our respect and admiration. For in the spirit of the Olympic Creed, the dedication to undergo the years of intense training and preparation necessary to become an Olympian, is a significant victory in itself.

To be chosen to represent one's country, and State, is an awesome responsibility; and I have full faith and confidence our athletes and coaches will perform with distinction. I salute these extraordinary men and women for their achievements thus far, and look forward to news of even greater successes on their part in the days ahead.•

RECOGNIZING THE CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL AND PREVENTION FOR 50 YEARS OF LEADERSHIP AND ACHIEVEMENT IN SUPPORT OF PUBLIC HEALTH

• Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, today I have the distinct honor of recognizing the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC] for 50 years of activities dedicated to protecting the public health of the people of the United States. What began on July 1, 1946, as the Communicable Disease Center has expanded its purview to include a wide range of efforts in research and prevention of disease, disability, and injury. In service to humankind, our Nation and the world, CDC employees have distinguished the agency and themselves through their efforts in the laboratory, the office and the field at the Atlanta headquarters, several sites nationwide and locations spotting the globe.

In 1996, the activities of the CDC reflect the wide range of issues and activities necessary to promote the public health. The CDC is still a center of activity to combat infectious disease, but today, it is much more. The CDC's Epidemic Intelligence Service, established in 1951, continues to train doctors to solve the most complex medical mysteries and as the original focus of the CDC has expanded, new divisions devoted to occupational safety and health, chronic disease prevention and health promotion, injury prevention, health statistics, and environmental health have been established. The components of the CDC also reflect the diversity of society; currently there are offices dedicated to women's and minority health.

As we know, threats to the public health recognize no national boundaries. So today, the CDC also plays an important role in worldwide efforts to promote health, overcome global health threats, eradicate disease, and prevent illness, disability, and premature death. There is a small number of CDC staff members working around the world. During its first half century, the CDC has responded to health emergencies in such diverse locales as Love Canal, Philadelphia, New Mexico, Washington State, Southeast Asia, India, and Zaire.

CDC activities have paralleled the revolutionary advances in medical sciences made during the second half of the 20th century. Throughout the first 50 years of the CDC, we can point to events which represent significant milestones in the mission to promote a healthy nation. The litany of achievements is too long to list here, but includes a primary role in the eradication of smallpox; the identification of the linkage between smoking and cancer; the publication of public health statistics; the immunization of children; the tracking of health trends; and the surveillance and investigation of threats to health including polio, tuberculosis, HIV/AIDS, Legionnaires' disease, Ebola, and exposure to hazardous substances.

Promoting health is more than merely controlling the spread of microorganisms. Promoting health involves research and education. As early as 1947, the CDC established programs to communicate information to the public concerning specific health problems or illnesses. Through the years, there have been many topics covered including rabies, measles, gonorrhea, diabetes, nutrition for women of child-bearing age, breast cancer, and HIV/AIDS. Promoting health also demands that we focus on changing behavior which is clearly unsafe or potentially dangerous. To that end, the CDC has launched efforts concerning tobacco use and violence in our society.

During its 50 year history, the CDC has been in the forefront of efforts to combat more recent threats to health such as HIV/AIDS, as well as afflictions which have menaced us in the longer term, like cardiovascular disease. The CDC is also looking ahead by targeting more prevention efforts to youth; enhancing the capabilities of communities to detect, monitor, and overcome health problems; and developing partnerships which will enhance efforts to change unhealthy behavior. The CDC enters its sixth decade focused on priorities designed to detect, meet, and overcome threats to the health of the people of our Nation and the world.

Today, the CDC provides leadership and direction in the prevention and control of diseases and other health conditions. I commend the CDC for its past efforts and I am confident that as new menaces to the public health emerge and new priorities evolve, the CDC will remain vigilant, proactive, and poised to take action to protect the people of our Nation and the world.•

CONDOLENCES TO THE KING FAMILY OF BATTLE CREEK, MI, ON THE DEATH OF S. SGT. RONALD LEWIS KING, USAF

• Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to express my deep condolences to the King family of Battle Creek, MI, who lost S. Sgt. Ronald Lewis King due to the terrorist act which took place at the Khobar Towers housing facility in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia. My prayers and thoughts are with his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Robinson of Battle Creek, MI, and his wife, Mrs. Melvia Y. King of Bellevue, NE.

Staff Sergeant King was a contracting journeyman with the 55th Contracting Squadron from Offutt Air Force Base, NE. He was proudly serving our country in Saudi Arabia, and know I speak for many in the State of Michigan who feel this tragedy very deeply.

We must do everything we rightfully can to prevent future tragedies of this sort and to see to it that the perpetrators of this terrible act are brought to justice. I reiterate my support for the cooperative efforts between the United States and Saudi Arabia to ensure that those terrorists who committed this crime will be apprehended and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.•

SECURITIES INVESTMENT PROMOTIONS ACT

The text of the bill (H.R. 3005) to amend the Federal securities laws in order to promote efficiency and capital formation in the financial markets, and to amend the Investment Company Act of 1940 to promote more efficient management of mutual funds, protect investors, and provide more effective and less burdensome regulation, as passed by the Senate on June 27, 1996, is as follows:

Resolved, That the bill from the House of Representatives (H.R. 3005) entitled "An Act to amend the Federal securities laws in order to promote efficiency and capital formation in the financial markets, and to amend the Investment Company Act of 1940 to promote more efficient management of mutual funds, protect investors, and provide more effective and less burdensome regulation.", do pass with the following amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Securities Investment Promotion Act of 1996".

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.
Sec. 2. Severability.

TITLE I—INVESTMENT ADVISERS SUPERVISION COORDINATION ACT

Sec. 101. Short title.
Sec. 102. Funding for enhanced enforcement priority.
Sec. 103. Improved supervision through State and Federal cooperation.
Sec. 104. Interstate cooperation.
Sec. 105. Disqualification of convicted felons.
Sec. 106. Continued State authority.
Sec. 107. Effective date.

TITLE II—FACILITATING INVESTMENT IN MUTUAL FUNDS

Sec. 201. Short title.
Sec. 202. Funds of funds.
Sec. 203. Flexible registration of securities.
Sec. 204. Facilitating use of current information in advertising.
Sec. 205. Variable insurance contracts.
Sec. 206. Prohibition on deceptive investment company names.
Sec. 207. Excepted investment companies.
Sec. 208. Performance fees exemptions.
Sec. 209. Reports to the Commission and shareholders.
Sec. 210. Books, records, and inspections.

TITLE III—REDUCING THE COST OF SAVING AND INVESTMENT

Sec. 301. Exemption for economic, business, and industrial development companies.
Sec. 302. Intrastate closed-end investment company exemption.
Sec. 303. Definition of eligible portfolio company.
Sec. 304. Definition of business development company.
Sec. 305. Acquisition of assets by business development companies.
Sec. 306. Capital structure amendments.
Sec. 307. Filing of written statements.
Sec. 308. Facilitating national securities markets.
Sec. 309. Regulatory flexibility.
Sec. 310. Analysis of economic effects of regulation.
Sec. 311. Privatization of EDGAR.
Sec. 312. Improving coordination of supervision.
Sec. 313. Increased access to foreign business information.
Sec. 314. Short-form registration.
Sec. 315. Church employee pension plans.
Sec. 316. Promoting global preeminence of American securities markets.
Sec. 317. Broker-dealer exemption from State law for certain de minimis transactions.
Sec. 318. Studies and reports.

SEC. 2. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this Act, an amendment made by this Act, or the application of such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act, the amendments made by this Act, and the application of the provisions of such to any person or circumstance shall not be affected thereby.

TITLE I—INVESTMENT ADVISERS SUPERVISION COORDINATION ACT

SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Investment Advisers Supervision Coordination Act".

SEC. 102. FUNDING FOR ENHANCED ENFORCEMENT PRIORITY.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Securities and Exchange Commission, for the enforcement of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, not more than $16,000,000 in each of fiscal years 1997 and 1998.

SEC. 103. IMPROVED SUPERVISION THROUGH STATE AND FEDERAL COOPERATION.

(a) STATE AND FEDERAL RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–1 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 203 the following new section:

"SEC. 203A. STATE AND FEDERAL RESPONSIBILITIES.

"(a) ADVISERS SUBJECT TO STATE AUTHORITIES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—No investment adviser that is regulated or required to be regulated as an investment adviser in the State in which it maintains its principal office and place of business shall register under section 203, unless the investment adviser—

"(A) has assets under management of not less than $25,000,000, or such higher amount as the Commission may, by rule, deem appropriate in accordance with the purposes of this title; or

"(B) is an adviser to an investment company registered under title I of this Act, or a company that has elected to be a business development company pursuant to section 54 of title I of this Act.

"(2) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'assets under management' means the securities portfolios with respect to which an investment adviser provides continuous and regular supervisory or management services.

"(b) ADVISERS SUBJECT TO COMMISSION AUTHORITY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—No law of any State or political subdivision thereof requiring the registration, licensing, or qualification as an investment adviser or supervised person of an investment adviser shall apply to any person—

"(A) that is registered under section 203 as an investment adviser, or that is a supervised person of such a person; or

"(B) that is not registered under section 203 because that person is excepted from the definition of an investment adviser under section 202(a)(11).

"(2) LIMITATION.—Nothing in this subsection shall prohibit the securities commission (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State from—

"(A) requiring the filing with such commission, agency, or office of any document filed with the Commission by an investment adviser, together with a consent to service of process and requisite fees; or

"(B) investigating and bringing enforcement actions with respect to fraud or deceit against an investment adviser or person associated with an investment adviser.

"(c) EXEMPTIONS.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), the Commission, by rule or regulation upon its own motion, or by order upon application, may permit the registration with the Commission of any person or class of persons to which the application of subsection (a) would be unfair, a burden on interstate commerce, or otherwise inconsistent with the purposes of this section.

"(d) FILING DEPOSITORIES.—The Commission may, by rule, require an investment adviser—

"(1) to file with the Commission any fee, application, report, or notice required by this title or by the rules issued under this title through any entity designated by the Commission for that purpose; and

"(2) to pay the reasonable costs associated with such filing.

"(e) STATE ASSISTANCE.—Upon request of the securities commissioner (or any agency or officer performing like functions) of any State, the Commission may provide such training, technical assistance, or other reasonable assistance in connection with the regulation of investment advisers by the State.".

(b) ADVISERS NOT ELIGIBLE TO REGISTER.—Section 203 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–3) is amended—

(1) in subsection (c), in the matter immediately following paragraph (2), by inserting "and that the applicant is not prohibited from registering as an investment adviser under section 203A" after "satisfied"; and

(2) in subsection (h), in the second sentence—

(A) by striking "existence or" and inserting "existence,"; and

(B) by inserting "or is prohibited from registering as an investment adviser under section 203A," after "adviser,".

(c) DEFINITION OF "SUPERVISED PERSON".—Section 202(a) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–2(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "requires—" and inserting "requires, the following definitions shall apply:"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(25) 'Supervised person' means any partner, officer, director (or other person occupying a similar status or performing similar functions), or employee of an investment adviser, or other person who provides investment advice on behalf of the investment adviser and is subject to the supervision and control of the investment adviser.".

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 203(a) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–3(a)) is amended by striking "subsection (b) of this section" and inserting "subsection (b) and section 203A".

SEC. 104. INTERSTATE COOPERATION.

Section 222 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–18a) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 222. STATE REGULATION OF INVESTMENT ADVISERS.

"(a) JURISDICTION OF STATE REGULATORS.—Nothing in this title shall affect the jurisdiction of the securities commissioner (or any agency or officer performing like functions) of any State over any security or any person insofar as it does not conflict with the provisions of this title or the rules and regulations thereunder.

"(b) DUAL COMPLIANCE PURPOSES.—No State may enforce any law or regulation that would require an investment adviser to maintain any books or records in addition to those required under the laws of the State in which it maintains its principal place of business, if the investment adviser—

"(1) is registered or licensed as such in the State in which it maintains its principal place of business; and

"(2) is in compliance with the applicable books and records requirements of the State in which it maintains its principle place of business.

"(c) LIMITATION ON CAPITAL AND BOND REQUIREMENTS.—No State may enforce any law or regulation that would require an investment adviser to maintain a higher minimum net capital or to post any bond in addition to any that is required under the laws of the State in which it maintains its principal place of business, if the investment adviser—

"(1) is registered or licensed as such in the State in which it maintains its principal place of business; and

"(2) is in compliance with the applicable net capital or bonding requirements of the State in which it maintains its principal place of business.".

SEC. 105. DISQUALIFICATION OF CONVICTED FELONS.

(a) AMENDMENT.—Section 203(e) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–3(e)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraphs (3) through (7) as paragraphs (4) through (8), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

"(3) has been convicted during the 10-year period preceding the date of filing of any application for registration, or at any time thereafter, of—

"(A) any crime that is punishable by imprisonment for 1 or more years, and that is not described in paragraph (2); or

"(B) a substantially equivalent crime by a foreign court of competent jurisdiction.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 203 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–3) is amended—

(1) in subsection (e)(6) (as redesignated by subsection (a) of this section), by striking "this paragraph (5)" and inserting "this paragraph";

(2) in subsection (f)—

(A) by striking "paragraph (1), (4), (5), or (7) of subsection (e) of this section" and inserting "paragraph (1), (5), (6), or (8) of subsection (e)";

(B) by striking "paragraph (3)" and inserting "paragraph (4)"; and

(C) by striking "said subsection" each place that term appears and inserting "subsection"; and

(3) in subsection (i)(1)(D), by striking "section 203(e)(5) of this title" and inserting "subsection (e)(6)".

SEC. 106. CONTINUED STATE AUTHORITY.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, or any amendment made by this title, a State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia may continue to collect filing, registration, or licensing fees in amounts determined pursuant to State law as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act, until otherwise specifically provided under a State law enacted on or after that date of enactment.

SEC. 107. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

TITLE II—FACILITATING INVESTMENT IN MUTUAL FUNDS

SEC. 201. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Investment Company Amendments Act of 1996".

SEC. 202. FUNDS OF FUNDS.

Section 12(d)(1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–12(d)(1)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (E)(iii)—

(A) by striking "in the event such investment company is not a registered investment company,"; and

(B) by inserting "in the event that such investment company is not a registered investment company," after "(bb)";

(2) by redesignating subparagraphs (G) and (H) as subparagraphs (H) and (I), respectively;

(3) by striking "this paragraph (1)" each place that term appears and inserting "this paragraph";

(4) by inserting after subparagraph (F) the following new subparagraph:

"(G)(i) This paragraph does not apply to securities of a registered open-end investment company or a registered unit investment trust (hereafter in this subparagraph referred to as the 'acquired company') purchased or otherwise acquired by a registered open-end investment company or a registered unit investment trust (hereafter in this subparagraph referred to as the 'acquiring company') if—

"(I) the acquired company and the acquiring company are part of the same group of investment companies;

"(II) the securities of the acquired company, securities of other registered open-end investment companies and registered unit investment trusts that are part of the same group of investment companies, Government securities, and short-term paper are the only investments held by the acquiring company;

"(III)(aa) the acquiring company does not pay and is not assessed any charges or fees for distribution-related activities with respect to securities of the acquired company, unless the acquiring company does not charge a sales load or other fees or charges for distribution-related activities; or

"(bb) any sales loads and other distribution-related fees charged with respect to securities of the acquiring company, when aggregated with any sales load and distribution-related fees paid by the acquiring company with respect to securities of the acquired fund, are not excessive under rules adopted pursuant to section 22(b) or section 22(c) by a securities association registered under section 15A of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 or the Commission;

"(IV) the acquired company has a policy that prohibits it from acquiring any securities of registered open-end investment companies or registered unit investment trusts in reliance on this subparagraph or subparagraph (F); and

"(V) such acquisition is not in contravention of such rules and regulations as the Commission may from time to time prescribe with respect to acquisitions in accordance with this subparagraph, as necessary and appropriate for the protection of investors.

"(ii) For purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'group of investment companies' means any

2 or more registered investment companies that hold themselves out to investors as related companies for purposes of investment and investor services."; and

(5) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(J) The Commission, by rules and regulations, upon its own motion, or by order upon application, may conditionally or unconditionally exempt any person, security, or transaction, or any class or classes of persons, securities, or transactions from any provision of this subsection, if and to the extent that such exemption is consistent with the public interest and the protection of investors.".

SEC. 203. FLEXIBLE REGISTRATION OF SECURITIES.

(a) Amendments to Registration Statements.—Section 24(e) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–24(e)) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraphs (1) and (2);

(2) by striking "(3) For" and inserting "For"; and

(3) by striking "pursuant to this subsection or otherwise".

(b) Registration of Indefinite Amount of Securities.—Section 24(f) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–24(f)) is amended to read as follows:

"(f) Registration of Indefinite Amount of Securities.—

"(1) Registration of securities.—Upon the effective date of its registration statement, as provided by section 8 of the Securities Act of 1933, a face-amount certificate company, open-end management company, or unit investment trust, shall be deemed to have registered an indefinite amount of securities.

"(2) Payment of registration fees.—Not later than 90 days after the end of the fiscal year of an entity referred to in paragraph (1), the entity shall pay a registration fee to the Commission, calculated in the manner specified in section 6(b) of the Securities Act of 1933, based on the aggregate sales price for which its securities (including, for purposes of this paragraph, all securities issued pursuant to a dividend reinvestment plan) were sold pursuant to a registration of an indefinite amount of securities under this subsection during the previous fiscal year of the entity, reduced by—

"(A) the aggregate redemption or repurchase price of the securities of the entity during that year; and

"(B) the aggregate redemption or repurchase price of the securities of the entity during any prior fiscal year ending not more than 1 year before the date of enactment of the Investment Company Amendments Act of 1996, that were not used previously by the entity to reduce fees payable under this section.

"(3) Interest due on late payment.—An entity paying the fee required by this subsection or any portion thereof more than 90 days after the end of the fiscal year of the entity shall pay to the Commission interest on unpaid amounts, compounded daily, at the underpayment rate established by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to section 3717 of title 31, United States Code. The payment of interest pursuant to this paragraph shall not preclude the Commission from bringing an action to enforce the requirements of paragraph (2).

"(4) Rulemaking authority.—The Commission may adopt rules and regulations to implement this subsection.".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall become effective on the earlier of—

(1) 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act; or

(2) the effective date of final rules or regulations issued in accordance with section 24(f) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended by this section.

SEC. 204. FACILITATING USE OF CURRENT INFORMATION IN ADVERTISING.

Section 24 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–24) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) Additional Prospectuses.—In addition to any prospectus permitted or required by section 10(a) of the Securities Act of 1933, the Commission shall permit, by rules or regulations deemed necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors, the use of a prospectus for the purposes of section 5(b)(1) of that Act with respect to securities issued by a registered investment company. Such a prospectus, which may include information the substance of which is not included in the prospectus specified in section 10(a) of the Securities Act of 1933, shall be deemed to be permitted by section 10(b) of that Act.".

SEC. 205. VARIABLE INSURANCE CONTRACTS.

(a) Unit Investment Trust Treatment.—Section 26 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–26) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) Exemption.—

"(1) In general.—Subsection (a) does not apply to any registered separate account funding variable insurance contracts, or to the sponsoring insurance company and principal underwriter of such account.

"(2) Limitation on sales.—It shall be unlawful for any registered separate account funding variable insurance contracts, or for the sponsoring insurance company of such account, to sell any such contract, unless—

"(A) the fees and charges deducted under the contract, in the aggregate, are reasonable in relation to the services rendered, the expenses expected to be incurred, and the risks assumed by the insurance company, and the insurance company so represents in the registration statement for the contract; and

"(B) the insurance company—

"(i) complies with all other applicable provisions of this section, as if it were a trustee or custodian of the registered separate account;

"(ii) files with the insurance regulatory authority of the State or territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia in which is located the principal place of business of the insurance company, an annual statement of its financial condition, which most recent statement indicates that the insurance company has a combined capital and surplus, if a stock company, or an unassigned surplus, if a mutual company, of not less than $1,000,000, or such other amount as the Commission may from time to time prescribe by rule, as necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors; and

"(iii) together with its registered separate accounts, is supervised and examined periodically by the insurance authority of such State, territory, or the District of Columbia.

"(3) Fees and charges.—For purposes of paragraph (2), the fees and charges deducted under the contract shall include all fees and charges imposed for any purpose and in any manner.

"(4) Regulatory authority.—The Commission may issue such rules and regulations to carry out paragraph (2)(A) as it determines are necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors.".

(b) Periodic Payment Plan Treatment.—Section 27 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–27) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(i)(1) This section does not apply to any registered separate account funding variable insurance contracts, or to the sponsoring insurance company and principal underwriter of such account, except as provided in paragraph (2).

"(2) It shall be unlawful for any registered separate account funding variable insurance contracts, or for the sponsoring insurance company of such account, to sell any such contract unless—

"(A) such contract is a redeemable security; and

"(B) the insurance company complies with section 26(e) and any rules or regulations issued by the Commission under section 26(e).".

SEC. 206. PROHIBITION ON DECEPTIVE INVESTMENT COMPANY NAMES.

Section 35(d) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–34(d)) is amended to read as follows:

"(d) It shall be unlawful for any registered investment company to adopt as a part of the name or title of such company, or of any securities of which it is the issuer, any word or words that the Commission finds are materially deceptive or misleading. The Commission is authorized, by rule, regulation, or order, to define such names or titles as are materially deceptive or misleading.".

SEC. 207. EXCEPTED INVESTMENT COMPANIES.

(a) Amendments.—Section 3(c) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–3(c)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting after the first sentence the following: "Such issuer shall be deemed to be an investment company for purposes of the limitations set forth in subparagraphs (A)(i) and (B)(i) of section 12(d)(1) governing the purchase or other acquisition by such issuer of any security issued by any registered investment company and the sale of any security issued by any registered open-end investment company to any such issuer.";

(2) in subparagraph (A) of paragraph (1)—

(A) by inserting after "issuer," the first place that term appears, the following: "and is or, but for the exception provided for in this paragraph or paragraph (7), would be an investment company,"; and

(B) by striking "unless, as of" and all that follows through the end of the subparagraph and inserting a period;

(3) in paragraph (2)—

(A) by striking "and acting as broker," and inserting "acting as broker, and acting as market intermediary,";

(B) by inserting "(A)" after "(2)"; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(B) For purposes of this paragraph—

"(i) the term 'market intermediary' means any person that regularly holds itself out as being willing contemporaneously to engage in, and that is regularly engaged in, the business of entering into transactions on both sides of the market for a financial contract or one or more such financial contracts; and

"(ii) the term 'financial contract' means any arrangement that—

"(I) takes the form of an individually negotiated contract, agreement, or option to buy, sell, lend, swap, or repurchase, or other similar individually negotiated transaction commonly entered into by participants in the financial markets;

"(II) is in respect of securities, commodities, currencies, interest or other rates, other measures of value, or any other financial or economic interest similar in purpose or function to any of the foregoing; and

"(III) is entered into in response to a request from a counter party for a quotation, or is otherwise entered into and structured to accommodate the objectives of the counter party to such arrangement."; and

(4) by striking paragraph (7) and inserting the following:

"(7)(A) Any issuer, the outstanding securities of which are owned exclusively by persons who,

at the time of acquisition of such securities, are qualified purchasers, and which is not making and does not at that time propose to make a public offering of such securities. Securities that are owned by persons who received the securities from a qualified purchaser as a gift or bequest, or in a case in which the transfer was caused by legal separation, divorce, death, or other involuntary event, shall be deemed to be owned by a qualified purchaser, subject to such rules, regulations, and orders as the Commission may prescribe as necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors.

"(B) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), an issuer is within the exception provided by this paragraph if—

"(i) in addition to qualified purchasers, outstanding securities of that issuer are beneficially owned by not more than 100 persons who are not qualified purchasers, if—

"(I) such persons acquired such securities on or before April 30, 1996; and

"(II) at the time such securities were acquired by such persons, the issuer was excepted by paragraph (1); and

"(ii) prior to availing itself of the exception provided by this paragraph—

"(I) such issuer has disclosed to each beneficial owner that future investors will be limited to qualified purchasers, and that ownership in such issuer is no longer limited to not more than 100 persons; and

"(II) concurrently with or after such disclosure, such issuer has provided each beneficial owner with a reasonable opportunity to redeem any part or all of their interests in the issuer, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary between the issuer and such persons, for that person's proportionate share of the issuer's net assets.

"(C) Each person that elects to redeem under subparagraph (B)(ii)(II) shall receive an amount in cash equal to that person's proportionate share of the issuer's net assets, unless the issuer elects to provide such person with the option of receiving, and such person agrees to receive, all or a portion of such person's share in assets of the issuer. If the issuer elects to provide such persons with such an opportunity, disclosure concerning such opportunity shall be made in the disclosure required by subparagraph (B)(ii)(I).

"(D) An issuer that is excepted under this paragraph shall nonetheless be deemed to be an investment company for purposes of the limitations set forth in subparagraphs (A)(i) and (B)(i) of section 12(d)(1) relating to the purchase or other acquisition by such issuer of any security issued by any registered investment company and the sale of any security issued by any registered open-end investment company to any such issuer.

"(E) For purposes of determining compliance with this paragraph and paragraph (1), an issuer that is otherwise excepted under this paragraph and an issuer that is otherwise excepted under paragraph (1) shall not be treated by the Commission as being a single issuer for purposes of determining whether the outstanding securities of the issuer excepted under paragraph (1) are beneficially owned by not more than 100 persons or whether the outstanding securities of the issuer excepted under this paragraph are owned by persons that are not qualified purchasers. Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed to establish that a person is a bona fide qualified purchaser for purposes of this paragraph or a bona fide beneficial owner for purposes of paragraph (1).".

(b) DEFINITION OF QUALIFIED PURCHASER.—Section 2(a) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–2(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(51)(A) 'Qualified purchaser' means—

"(i) any natural person (including any person who holds a joint, community property, or other similar shared ownership interest in an issuer that is excepted under section 3(c)(7) with that person's qualified purchaser spouse) who owns not less than $5,000,000 in investments, as defined by the Commission;

"(ii) any company that owns not less than $5,000,000 in investments and that is owned directly or indirectly by or for 2 or more natural persons who are related as siblings or spouse (including former spouses), or direct lineal descendants by birth or adoption, spouses of such persons, the estates of such persons, or foundations, charitable organizations, or trusts established by or for the benefit of such persons;

"(iii) any trust that is not covered by subparagraph (B) and that was not formed for the specific purpose of acquiring the securities offered, as to which the trustee or other person authorized to make decisions with respect to the trust, and each settlor or other person who has contributed assets to the trust, is a person described in clause (i), (ii), or (iv);

"(iv) any person, acting for its own account or the accounts of other qualified purchasers, who in the aggregate owns and invests on a discretionary basis, not less than $25,000,000 in investments; or

"(v) any person that the Commission, by rule or regulation, has determined does not need the protections of this title, after consideration of factors such as—

"(I) a high degree of financial sophistication, including extensive knowledge of and experience in financial matters;

"(II) a substantial amount of assets owned or under management;

"(III) relationship with an issuer; and

"(IV) such other factors as the Commission may determine to be consistent with the purposes of this paragraph.

"(B) The Commission may adopt such rules and regulations applicable to the persons and trusts specified in clauses (i) through (v) of subparagraph (A) as it determines are necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors.

"(C) The term 'qualified purchaser' does not include a company that, but for the exceptions provided for in paragraph (1) or (7) of section 3(c), would be an investment company (hereafter in this paragraph referred to as an 'excepted investment company'), unless all beneficial owners of its outstanding securities (other than short-term paper), determined in accordance with section 3(c)(1)(A), that acquired such securities on or before April 30, 1996 (hereafter in this paragraph referred to as 'pre-amendment beneficial owners'), and all pre-amendment beneficial owners of the outstanding securities (other than short-term paper) of any excepted investment company that, directly or indirectly, owns any outstanding securities of such excepted investment company, have consented to its treatment as a qualified purchaser. Unanimous consent of all trustees, directors, or general partners of a company or trust referred to in clause (ii) or (iii) of subparagraph (A) shall constitute consent for purposes of this subparagraph.".

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 3(a) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–3(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "(1)" and inserting "(A)";

(2) by striking "(2)" and inserting "(B)";

(3) by striking "(3)" and inserting "(C)";

(4) by inserting "(1)" after "(a)";

(5) by striking "As used" and inserting "(2) As used"; and

(6) in paragraph (2)(C), as designated by paragraph (5) of this subsection—

(A) by striking "which are" and inserting the following: "which (i) are"; and

(B) by inserting before the period at the end, the following: ", and (ii) are not relying on the exception from the definition of investment company in paragraph (1) or (7) of subsection (c)".

(d) RULEMAKING REQUIRED.—

(1) IMPLEMENTATION OF SECTION 3(C)(1)(B).—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall prescribe rules to implement the requirements of section 3(c)(1)(B) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–3(c)(1)(B)).

(2) IDENTIFICATION OF INVESTMENTS.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall prescribe rules defining the term, or otherwise identifying, "investments" for purposes of section 2(a)(51) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as added by this Act.

(3) EMPLOYEE EXCEPTION.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall prescribe rules pursuant to its authority under section 6 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 to permit the ownership of securities by knowledgeable employees of the issuer of the securities or an affiliated person without loss of the exception of the issuer under paragraph (1) or (7) of section 3(c) of that Act from treatment as an investment company under that Act.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the earlier of—

(1) 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act; or

(2) the date on which the rulemaking required under subsection (d)(2) is completed.

SEC. 208. PERFORMANCE FEES EXEMPTIONS.

Section 205 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b–5) is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (2), by striking "or" at the end;

(B) in paragraph (3), by striking the period at the end and inserting a semicolon; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new paragraphs:

"(4) apply to an investment advisory contract with a company excepted from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(7) of title I of this Act; or

"(5) apply to an investment advisory contract with a person who is not a resident of the United States."; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) The Commission, by rule or regulation, upon its own motion, or by order upon application, may conditionally or unconditionally exempt any person or transaction, or any class or classes of persons or transactions, from subsection (a)(1), if and to the extent that the exemption relates to an investment advisory contract with any person that the Commission determines does not need the protections of subsection (a)(1), on the basis of such factors as financial sophistication, net worth, knowledge of and experience in financial matters, amount of assets under management, relationship with a registered investment adviser, and such other factors as the Commission determines are consistent with this section.".

SEC. 209. REPORTS TO THE COMMISSION AND SHAREHOLDERS.

Section 30 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–29) is amended—

(1) in subsection (b), by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

"(1) such information, documents, and reports (other than financial statements), as the Commission may require to keep reasonably current the information and documents contained in the registration statement of such company filed under this title;";

(2) by redesignating subsections (c), (d), (e), and (f) as subsections (d), (e), (g), and (h), respectively;

(3) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

"(c)(1) The Commission shall take such action as it deems necessary or appropriate, consistent with the public interest and the protection of investors, to avoid unnecessary reporting by, and minimize the compliance burdens on, registered investment companies and their affiliated persons in exercising its authority—

"(A) under subsection (f); and

"(B) under subsection (b)(1), if the Commission requires the filing of information, documents, and reports under that subsection on a basis more frequently than semiannually.

"(2) Action taken by the Commission under paragraph (1) shall include considering, and requesting public comment on—

"(A) feasible alternatives that minimize the reporting burdens on registered investment companies; and

"(B) the utility of such information, documents, and reports to the Commission in relation to the costs to registered investment companies and their affiliated persons of providing such information, documents, and reports.";

(4) by inserting after subsection (e) (as redesignated by paragraph (2) of this section), the following new subsection:

"(f) The Commission may, by rule, require that semi-annual reports containing the information set forth in subsection (e) include such other information as the Commission deems necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors."; and

(5) in subsection (g) (as redesignated by paragraph (2) of this section), by striking "subsections (a) and (d)" and inserting "subsections (a) and (e)".

SEC. 210. BOOKS, RECORDS, AND INSPECTIONS.

Section 31 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–30) is amended—

(1) by striking subsections (a) and (b) and inserting the following:

"(a)(1) Each registered investment company, and each underwriter, broker, dealer, or investment adviser that is a majority-owned subsidiary of such a company, shall maintain and preserve such records (as defined in section 3(a)(37) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934) for such period or periods as the Commission, by rules and regulations, may prescribe as necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors. Each investment adviser that is not a majority-owned subsidiary of, and each depositor of any registered investment company, and each principal underwriter for any registered investment company other than a closed-end company, shall maintain and preserve for such period or periods as the Commission shall prescribe by rules and regulations, such records as are necessary or appropriate to record such person's transactions with such registered company.

"(2) In exercising its authority under this subsection, the Commission shall take such steps as it deems necessary or appropriate, consistent with the public interest and for the protection of investors, to avoid unnecessary recordkeeping by, and minimize the compliance burden on, persons required to maintain records under this subsection (hereafter in this section referred to as 'subject persons'). Such steps shall include considering, and requesting public comment on—

"(A) feasible alternatives that minimize the recordkeeping burdens on subject persons;

"(B) the necessity of such records in view of the public benefits derived from the independent scrutiny of such records through Commission examination;

"(C) the costs associated with maintaining the information that would be required to be reflected in such records; and

"(D) the effects that a proposed recordkeeping requirement would have on internal compliance policies and procedures.

"(b) All records required to be maintained and preserved in accordance with subsection (a) shall be subject at any time and from time to time to such reasonable periodic, special, and other examinations by the Commission, or any member or representative thereof, as the Commission may prescribe. For purposes of such examinations, any subject person shall make available to the Commission or its representatives any copies or extracts from such records as may be prepared without undue effort, expense, or delay as the Commission or its representatives may reasonably request. The Commission shall exercise its authority under this subsection with due regard for the benefits of internal compliance policies and procedures and the effective implementation and operation thereof.";

(2) by redesignating subsections (c) and (d) as subsections (e) and (f), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsections:

"(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Commission shall not be compelled to disclose any internal compliance or audit records, or information contained therein, provided to the Commission under this section. Nothing in this subsection shall authorize the Commission to withhold information from the Congress or prevent the Commission from complying with a request for information from any other Federal department or agency requesting the information for purposes within the scope of the jurisdiction of that department or agency, or complying with an order of a court of the United States in an action brought by the United States or the Commission. For purposes of section 552 of title 5, United States Code, this section shall be considered a statute described in subsection (b)(3)(B) of such section 552.

"(d) For purposes of this section—

"(1) the term 'internal compliance policies and procedures' means policies and procedures designed by subject persons to promote compliance with the Federal securities laws; and

"(2) the term 'internal compliance and audit record' means any record prepared by a subject person in accordance with internal compliance policies and procedures.".

TITLE III—REDUCING THE COST OF SAVING AND INVESTMENT

SEC. 301. EXEMPTION FOR ECONOMIC, BUSINESS, AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT COMPANIES.

Section 6(a) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–6(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(5)(A) Any company that is not engaged in the business of issuing redeemable securities, the operations of which are subject to regulation by the State in which the company is organized under a statute governing entities that provide financial or managerial assistance to enterprises doing business, or proposing to do business, in that State if—

"(i) the organizational documents of the company state that the activities of the company are limited to the promotion of economic, business, or industrial development in the State through the provision of financial or managerial assistance to enterprises doing business, or proposing to do business, in that State, and such other activities that are incidental or necessary to carry out that purpose;

"(ii) immediately following each sale of the securities of the company by the company or any underwriter for the company, not less than 80 percent of the securities of the company being offered in such sale, on a class-by-class basis, are held by persons who reside or who have a substantial business presence in that State;

"(iii) the securities of the company are sold, or proposed to be sold, by the company or by any underwriter for the company, solely to accredited investors, as that term is defined in section 2(15) of the Securities Act of 1933, or to such other persons that the Commission, as necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors, may permit by rule, regulation, or order; and

"(iv) the company does not purchase any security issued by an investment company or by any company that would be an investment company except for the exclusions from the definition of the term 'investment company' under paragraph (1) or (7) of section 3(c), other than—

"(I) any debt security that is rated investment grade by not less than 1 nationally recognized statistical rating organization; or

"(II) any security issued by a registered open-end investment company that is required by its investment policies to invest not less than 65 percent of its total assets in securities described in subclause (I) or securities that are determined by such registered open-end investment company to be comparable in quality to securities described in subclause (I).

"(B) Notwithstanding the exemption provided by this paragraph, section 9 (and, to the extent necessary to enforce section 9, sections 38 through 51) shall apply to a company described in this paragraph as if the company were an investment company registered under this title.

"(C) Any company proposing to rely on the exemption provided by this paragraph shall file with the Commission a notification stating that the company intends to do so, in such form and manner as the Commission may prescribe by rule.

"(D) Any company meeting the requirements of this paragraph may rely on the exemption provided by this paragraph upon filing with the Commission the notification required by subparagraph (C), until such time as the Commission determines by order that such reliance is not in the public interest or is not consistent with the protection of investors.

"(E) The exemption provided by this paragraph may be subject to such additional terms and conditions as the Commission may by rule, regulation, or order determine are necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors.".

SEC. 302. INTRASTATE CLOSED-END INVESTMENT COMPANY EXEMPTION.

Section 6(d)(1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–6(d)(1)) is amended by striking "$100,000" and inserting "$10,000,000, or such other amount as the Commission may set by rule, regulation, or order".

SEC. 303. DEFINITION OF ELIGIBLE PORTFOLIO COMPANY.

Section 2(a)(46)(C) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–2(a)(46)(C)) is amended—

(1) in clause (ii), by striking "or" at the end;

(2) by redesignating clause (iii) as clause (iv); and

(3) by inserting after clause (ii) the following:

"(iii) it has total assets of not more than $4,000,000, and capital and surplus (shareholders' equity less retained earnings) of not less than $2,000,000, except that the Commission may adjust such amounts by rule, regulation, or order to reflect changes in 1 or more generally accepted indices or other indicators for small businesses; or".

SEC. 304. DEFINITION OF BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT COMPANY.

Section 2(a)(48)(B) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-2(a)(48)(B)) is amended by adding at the end the following: "provided further that a business development company need not make available significant managerial assistance with respect to any company described in paragraph (46)(C)(iii), or with respect to any other company that meets such criteria as the Commission may by rule, regulation, or order permit, as consistent with the public interest, the protection of investors, and the purposes of this title; and".

SEC. 305. ACQUISITION OF ASSETS BY BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT COMPANIES.

Section 55(a)(1)(A) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-54(a)(1)(A)) is amended—

(1) by striking "or from any person" and inserting "from any person"; and

(2) by inserting before the semicolon ", or from any other person, subject to such rules and regulations as the Commission may prescribe as necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors".

SEC. 306. CAPITAL STRUCTURE AMENDMENTS.

Section 61(a) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-60(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (2), by striking "if such business development company" and all that follows through the end of the paragraph and inserting a period;

(2) in paragraph (3)(A)—

(A) by striking "senior securities representing indebtedness accompanied by";

(B) by inserting "accompanied by securities," after "of such company,"; and

(C) in clause (ii), by striking "senior"; and

(3) in paragraph (3)—

(A) in subparagraph (A), by striking "and" at the end;

(B) in subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end of clause (iv) and inserting "; and"; and

(C) by inserting immediately after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C) a business development company may issue warrants, options, or rights to subscribe to, convert to, or purchase voting securities not accompanied by securities, if—

"(i) such warrants, options, or rights satisfy the conditions in clauses (i) and (iii) of subparagraph (A); and

"(ii) the proposal to issue such warrants, options, or rights is authorized by the shareholders or partners of such business development company, and such issuance is approved by the required majority (as defined in section 57(o)) of the directors of or general partners in such company on the basis that such issuance is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders or partners.".

SEC. 307. FILING OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS.

Section 64(b)(1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-63(b)(1)) is amended by inserting "and capital structure" after "portfolio".

SEC. 308. FACILITATING NATIONAL SECURITIES MARKETS.

Section 18 of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77r) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 18. EXEMPTION FROM STATE CONTROL OF SECURITIES OFFERINGS.

"(a) EXEMPTION FROM STATE LAW FOR REGISTERED SECURITIES.—Except with respect to offerings described in subsection (b) and as otherwise specifically provided in this section, no law, rule, regulation, order, or other administrative action of any State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision thereof—

"(1) requiring, or with respect to, registration or qualification of securities or securities transactions shall directly or indirectly apply to an offering subject to a registration statement filed pursuant to this title;

"(2) shall directly or indirectly prohibit, limit, or impose conditions upon the use of any offering document, including any prospectus contained in a registration statement that has been filed with the Commission; or

"(3) shall directly or indirectly prohibit, limit, or impose conditions upon the offer or sale of any security registered with the Commission under this title based on the merits of such offering or issuer.

"(b) SPECIAL RULES FOR CERTAIN OFFERINGS.—Except with respect to a security of an investment company that is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, the provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to—

"(1) an offering—

"(A) by an issuer that is a blank check company, as defined in section 7(b), or a direct participation investment program;

"(B) of penny stock; or

"(C) giving effect to a limited partnership rollup transaction;

"(2) an offering of a security, if a person associated with the offering is subject to a statutory disqualification, as defined in section 3(a)(39) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, or any substantially equivalent State law; or

"(3) an offering of a security that—

"(A) is not listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the American Stock Exchange, or the National Market Segment of the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System Stock Market;

"(B) is not listed, authorized for listing, or authorized for trading on a national securities exchange (or tier or segment thereof) that has standards for listing or for trading authorization that the Commission determines, by rule (on its own initiative or on the basis of a petition), are substantially similar to the standards for listing or for trading authorization that are applicable to securities described in subparagraph (A); or

"(C) will not be listed or authorized for trading as described in subparagraph (A) or (B) upon completion of the transaction.

"(c) EXEMPTION FROM STATE LAW FOR TRANSACTIONS IN SECURITIES WITH QUALIFIED PURCHASERS.—Notwithstanding subsection (b), subsection (a) shall apply with respect to offers and sales to qualified purchasers, as defined by the Commission.

"(d) PRESERVATION OF FILING REQUIREMENTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Nothing in this section shall prohibit the securities commission (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, from requiring the filing of any documents filed with the Commission pursuant to this title solely for notice purposes, along with a consent to service of process and requisite fee, except that no such filing, consent, or fee may be required with respect to securities, or transactions relating to securities that are of the same class, or are senior to such a class, as securities described in subsection (b)(3).

"(2) CONTINUED STATE AUTHORITY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia may continue to collect filing or registration fees with respect to securities or securities transactions in amounts determined pursuant to State law as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of the Securities Investment Promotion Act of 1996, until otherwise specifically provided under a State law enacted on or after that date of enactment.

"(e) PRESERVATION OF STATE AUTHORITY.—Nothing in this section shall affect the jurisdiction of the securities commission (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia pursuant to the laws of such State or Territory, with respect to any fraud or broker-dealer conduct in connection with securities or securities transactions.".

SEC. 309. REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY.

(a) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933.—Title I of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 28. GENERAL EXEMPTIVE AUTHORITY.

"The Commission, by rule or regulation, may conditionally or unconditionally exempt any person, security, or transaction, or any class or classes of persons, securities, or transactions, from any provision or provisions of this title or of any rule or regulation issued under this title, to the extent that such exemption is necessary or appropriate in the public interest, and is consistent with the protection of investors.".

(b) UNDER THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.—Title I of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 36. GENERAL EXEMPTIVE AUTHORITY.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), the Commission, by rule, regulation, or order, may conditionally or unconditionally exempt any person, security, or transaction, or any class or classes of persons, securities, or transactions, from any provision or provisions of this title or of any rule or regulation issued under this title, to the extent that such exemption is necessary or appropriate in the public interest, and is consistent with the protection of investors. The Commission shall, by rule or regulation, determine the procedures under which an exemptive order under this section shall be granted and may, in its sole discretion, decline to entertain any application for an order of exemption under this section.

"(b) LIMITATION.—The Commission may not, under this section, exempt any person, security, or transaction, or any class or classes of persons, securities, or transactions from section 15C or the rules or regulations issued thereunder or (for purposes of section 15C and the rules and regulations issued thereunder) from the definitions in paragraphs (42), (43), (44), or (45) of section 3(a).".

SEC. 310. ANALYSIS OF ECONOMIC EFFECTS OF REGULATION.

(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out the Economic Analysis Program, including funding for the Office of Economic Analysis of the Securities and Exchange Commission, $6,000,000 for fiscal year 1997, and $6,000,000 for fiscal year 1998.

(b) ANALYSIS OF ECONOMIC EFFECTS OF REGULATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Chief Economist of the Commission shall prepare a report on each proposed regulation of the Commission. Such report shall be provided to each Commissioner and shall be published in the Federal Register before any such regulation of the Commission may become effective.

(2) REPORT CONTENTS.—The report required by this subsection shall include—

(A) an analysis of the likely effects of the proposed regulation on the economy of the United States, and particularly upon the securities markets and the participants in those markets; and

(B) the estimated impact of the proposed regulation upon economic and market behavior, including any impact on market liquidity, the costs of investment, and the financial risks of investment.

SEC. 311. PRIVATIZATION OF EDGAR.

Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to the Congress a report on the Electronic Data Gathering Analysis and Retrieval System consisting of the Commission's plan for promoting competition and innovation of the system through privatization of all or any part of the system. Such plan shall include such recommendations for action as may be necessary to implement the plan.

SEC. 312. IMPROVING COORDINATION OF SUPERVISION.

Section 17 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78q) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(l) COORDINATION OF EXAMINING AUTHORITIES.—

"(1) OBJECTIVE.—The Commission and the examining authorities shall promote effective and efficient oversight of the activities of brokers and dealers, avoiding redundancy, while maintaining the highest level of examination and oversight quality.

"(2) ELIMINATION OF DUPLICATION.—The Commission and the examining authorities, through cooperation and coordination of examination and oversight activities, shall eliminate any unnecessary and burdensome duplication in the examination process.

"(3) COORDINATION OF EXAMINATIONS.—The Commission and the examining authorities shall share such information, including reports of examinations, customer complaint information, and other nonpublic regulatory information, as appropriate to foster a coordinated approach to regulatory oversight of brokers and dealers that are subject to examination by more than one examining authority.

"(4) EXAMINATIONS FOR CAUSE.—At any time, any examining authority may conduct an examination for cause of any broker or dealer subject to its jurisdiction.

"(5) CONFIDENTIALITY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The provisions of section 24 shall apply to the sharing of information in accordance with this subsection. The Commission shall take appropriate action under section 24(c) to assure that such information is not inappropriately disclosed.

"(B) APPROPRIATE DISCLOSURE NOT PROHIBITED.—Nothing in this paragraph shall authorize the Commission or any examining authority to withhold information from the Congress, or prevent the Commission or any examining authority from complying with a request for information from any other Federal department or agency requesting the information for purposes within the scope of its jurisdiction, or complying with an order of a court of the United States in an action brought by the United States or the Commission.

"(6) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'examining authority' means the self-regulatory organizations registered with the Commission under this title (other than registered clearing agencies) with the authority to examine, inspect, and otherwise oversee the activities of a registered broker or dealer.".

SEC. 313. INCREASED ACCESS TO FOREIGN BUSINESS INFORMATION.

(a) THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1993.—Section 2(3) of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77b(3)) is amended in the third sentence—

(1) by striking "not include preliminary" and inserting "not include (A) preliminary"; and

(2) by inserting before the period "; or (B) solely for purposes of section 5, press conferences held outside of the United States, public meetings with issuer representatives conducted outside of the United States, or press related materials released outside of the United States in which an offshore offering is discussed, irrespective of whether journalists from the United States or journalists for publications (including on-line services) with circulation in the United States attend such press conferences or meetings or receive such press related materials.".

(b) THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.—Section 14 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78n) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(i) TREATMENT OF PRESS RELATED MATERIALS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Any person making a tender offer for, or a request or invitation for tenders of, the securities of a foreign issuer may grant journalists from the United States or journalists for publications (including on-line services) with circulation in the United States access to press conferences occurring outside of the United States, meetings with its representatives conducted outside of the United States, or press related materials released outside of the United States in which an offshore tender offer is discussed, without being deemed to have used the jurisdictional means specified in subsection (d)(1) or becoming subject to any regulations promulgated by the Commission, pursuant to subsection (e) of this section or section 13(e), or otherwise, that relate to tender offers or requests or invitations for tenders.

"(2) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'foreign issuer' means any corporation or other organization—

"(A) that is incorporated or organized under the laws of any foreign country; or

"(B) the principal place of business of which is located in a foreign country.".

SEC. 314. SHORT-FORM REGISTRATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall amend Form S-3 (17 C.F.R. 239.13, relating to registration under the Securities Act of 1933, of securities of certain issuers offered pursuant to certain types of transactions) to allow such form, or its equivalent, to be used for primary offerings by a registrant if—

(1) the outstanding stock of the registrant held by nonaffiliates of the registrant has an adequate aggregate market value, as determined by the Commission; and

(2) such registrant otherwise meets the eligibility requirements for registration using such form, or its equivalent.

(b) ADJUSTMENTS.—Any adjustment to the adequate aggregate market value threshold referred to in subsection (a)(1) by the Commission following the date of enactment of this Act shall apply equally to voting and nonvoting common shares and such other securities as the Commission shall establish.

(c) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term "stock" includes voting and nonvoting common shares, and such other securities as the Commission shall establish.

SEC. 315. CHURCH EMPLOYEE PENSION PLANS.

(a) AMENDMENT TO THE INVESTMENT COMPANY ACT OF 1940.—Section 3(c) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-3(c)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(14) Any church plan described in section 414(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, if, under any such plan, no part of the assets may be used for, or diverted to, purposes other than the exclusive benefit of plan participants or beneficiaries, or any company or account that is—

"(A) established by a person that is eligible to establish and maintain such a plan under section 414(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; and

"(B) substantially all of the activities of which consist of—

"(i) managing or holding assets contributed to such church plans or other assets which are permitted to be commingled with the assets of church plans under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; or

"(ii) administering or providing benefits pursuant to church plans.".

(b) AMENDMENT TO THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933.—Section 3(a) of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77c(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(13) Any security issued by or any interest or participation in any church plan, company or account that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940.".

(c) AMENDMENTS TO THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.—

(1) EXEMPTED SECURITIES.—Section 3(a)(12)(A) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a)(12)(A)) is amended—

(A) in clause (v), by striking "and" at the end;

(B) by redesignating clause (vi) as clause (vii); and

(C) by inserting after clause (v) the following new clause:

"(vi) solely for purposes of sections 12, 13, 14, and 16 of this title, any security issued by or any interest or participation in any church plan, company, or account that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940; and".

(2) EXEMPTION FROM BROKER-DEALER PROVISIONS.—Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(f) CHURCH PLANS.—No church plan described in section 414(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, no person or entity eligible to establish and maintain such a plan under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, no company or account that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, and no trustee, director, officer or employee of or volunteer for such plan, company, account person, or entity, acting within the scope of that person's employment or activities with respect to such plan, shall be deemed to be a 'broker', 'dealer', 'municipal securities broker', 'municipal securities dealer', 'government securities broker', 'government securities dealer', 'clearing agency', or 'transfer agent' for purposes of this title—

"(1) solely because such plan, company, person, or entity buys, holds, sells, trades in, or transfers securities or acts as an intermediary in making payments in connection with transactions in securities for its own account in its capacity as trustee or administrator of, or otherwise on behalf of, or for the account of, any church plan, company, or account that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940; and

"(2) if no such person or entity receives a commission or other transaction-related sales compensation in connection with any activities conducted in reliance on the exemption provided by this subsection.".

(d) AMENDMENT TO THE INVESTMENT ADVISERS ACT OF 1940.—Section 203(b) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b-3(b)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (3), by striking "or" at the end;

(2) in paragraph (4), by striking the period at the end and inserting "; or"; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(5) any plan described in section 414(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, any person or entity eligible to establish and maintain such a plan under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or any trustee, director, officer, or employee of or volunteer for any such plan or person, if such person or entity provides investment advice exclusively to any plan, person, or entity or any company, account, or fund that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940.".

(e) AMENDMENT TO THE TRUST INDENTURE ACT OF 1939.—Section 304(a)(4)(A) of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939 (15 U.S.C. 77ddd(4)(A)) is amended by striking "or (11)" and inserting "(11), or (14)".

(f) PROTECTION OF CHURCH EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLANS UNDER STATE LAW.—

(1) REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS.—Any security issued by or any interest or participation in any church plan, company, or account that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as added by subsection (a) of this section, and any offer, sale, or purchase thereof, shall be exempt from any law of a State that requires registration or qualification of securities.

(2) TREATMENT OF CHURCH PLANS.—No church plan described in section 414(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, no person or entity eligible to establish and maintain such a plan under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, no company or account that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as added by subsection (a) of this section, and no trustee, director, officer, or employee of or volunteer for any such plan, person, entity, company, or account shall be required to qualify, register, or be subject to regulation as an investment company or as a broker, dealer, investment adviser, or agent under the laws of any State solely because such plan, person, entity, company, or account buys, holds, sells, or trades in securities for its own account or in its capacity as a trustee or administrator of or otherwise on behalf of, or for the account of, or provides investment advice to, for, or on behalf of, any such plan, person, or entity or any company or account that is excluded from the definition of an investment company under section 3(c)(14) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as added by subsection (a) of this section.

(g) AMENDMENT TO THE INVESTMENT COMPANY ACT OF 1940.—Section 30 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-29) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(g) DISCLOSURE TO CHURCH PLAN PARTICIPANTS.—A person that maintains a church plan that is excluded from the definition of an investment company solely by reason of section 3(c)(14) shall provide disclosure to plan participants, in writing, and not less frequently than annually, and for new participants joining such a plan after May 31, 1996, prior to joining such plan, that—

"(1) the plan, or any company or account maintained to manage or hold plan assets and interests in such plan, company, or account, are not subject to registration, regulation, or reporting under this title, the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, or State securities laws; and

"(2) plan participants and beneficiaries therefore will not be afforded the protections of those provisions.

"(h) NOTICE TO COMMISSION.—The Commission may issue rules and regulations to require any person that maintains a church plan that is excluded from the definition of an investment company solely by reason of section 3(c)(14) to file a notice with the Commission containing such information and in such form as the Commission may prescribe as necessary or appropriate in the public interest or consistent with the protection of investors.".

SEC. 316. PROMOTING GLOBAL PREEMINENCE OF AMERICAN SECURITIES MARKETS.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the United States and foreign securities markets are increasingly becoming international securities markets, as issuers and investors seek the benefits of new capital and secondary market opportunities without regard to national borders;

(2) as issuers seek to raise capital across national borders, they confront differing accounting requirements in the various regulatory jurisdictions;

(3) the establishment of a high-quality comprehensive set of generally accepted international accounting standards in cross-border securities offerings would greatly facilitate international financing activities and, most significantly, would enhance the ability of foreign corporations to access and list in United States markets;

(4) in addition to the efforts made before the date of enactment of this Act by the Commission to respond to the growing internationalization of securities markets, the Commission should enhance its vigorous support for the development of high-quality international accounting standards as soon as practicable; and

(5) the Commission, in view of its clear authority under law to facilitate the access of foreign corporations to list their securities in United States markets, should report to the Congress, not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, on progress in the development of international accounting standards and the outlook for successful completion of a set of international standards that would be acceptable to the Commission for offerings and listings by foreign corporations in United States markets.

SEC. 317. BROKER-DEALER EXEMPTION FROM STATE LAW FOR CERTAIN DE MINIMIS TRANSACTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 15 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78o) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(h) EXEMPTION FROM STATE LAW FOR CERTAIN DE MINIMIS TRANSACTIONS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—No law, rule, regulation, or order, or other administrative action of any State or political subdivision thereof may prohibit an associated person of a broker or dealer from affecting a transaction described in paragraph (2) for a customer in such State if—

"(A) such associated person is not ineligible to register with such State for any reason other than such a transaction;

"(B) such associated person is registered with a registered securities association and at least one State; and

"(C) the broker or dealer with which such person is associated is registered with such State.

"(2) DESCRIBED TRANSACTIONS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A transaction is described in this paragraph if—

"(i) such transaction is effected—

"(I) on behalf of a customer that, for 30 days prior to the day of the transaction, maintained an account with the broker or dealer; and

"(II) by an associated person of the broker or dealer—

"(aa) to which the customer was assigned for 14 days prior to the day of the transaction; and

"(bb) who is registered with a State in which the customer was a resident or was present for at least 30 consecutive days during the one-year period prior to the day of the transaction;

"(ii) the transaction is effected—

"(I) on behalf of a customer that, for 30 days prior to the day of the transaction, maintains an account with the broker or dealer; and

"(II) within the period beginning on the date on which such associated person files an application for registration with the State in which the transaction is effected and ending on the earlier of—

"(aa) 60 days after the date on which the application is filed; or

"(bb) the date on which such State notifies the associated person that it has denied the application for registration or has stayed the pendency of the application for cause.

"(B) RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)(i)(II)—

"(i) each of up to 3 associated persons of a broker or dealer who are designated to effect transactions during the absence or unavailability of the principal associated person for a customer may be treated as an associated person to which such customer is assigned; and

"(ii) if the customer is present in another State for 30 or more consecutive days or has permanently changed his or her residence to another State, a transaction is not described in this paragraph, unless the association person of the broker or dealer files an application for registration with such State not later than 10 business days after the later of the date of the transaction, or the date of the discovery of the presence of the customer in the other State for 30 or more consecutive days or the change in the customer's residence.".

(b) TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.—Section 28(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78bb(a)) is amended by striking "Nothing" and inserting "Except as otherwise specifically provided in this title, nothing".

SEC. 318. STUDIES AND REPORTS.

(a) IMPACT OF TECHNOLOGICAL ADVANCES.—

(1) STUDY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Commission shall conduct a study of—

(i) the impact of technological advances and the use of on-line information systems on the securities markets;

(ii) how such technologies have changed the way in which the securities markets operate; and

(iii) any steps taken by the Commission to address such changes.

(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In conducting the study under subparagraph (A), the Commission shall consider how the Commission has adapted its enforcement policies and practices in response to technological developments with regard to—

(i) disclosure, prospectus delivery, and other customer protection regulations;

(ii) intermediaries and exchanges in the domestic and international financial services industry;

(iii) reporting by issuers, including communications with holders of securities;

(iv) the relationship of the Commission with other national regulatory authorities and organizations to improve coordination and cooperation; and

(v) the relationship of the Commission with State regulatory authorities and organizations to improve coordination and cooperation.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

(b) SHAREHOLDER PROPOSALS.—

(1) STUDY.—The Commission shall conduct a study of—

(A) whether shareholder access to proxy statements pursuant to section 14 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 has been impaired by recent statutory, judicial, or regulatory changes; and

(B) the ability of shareholders to have proposals relating to corporate practices and social issues included as part of proxy statements.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1), together with any recommendations for regulatory or legislative changes that it considers necessary to improve shareholder access to proxy statements.

(c) PREFERENCING.—

(1) STUDY.—The Commission shall conduct a study of the impact on investors and the national market system of the practice known as "preferencing" on one or more registered securities exchanges, including consideration of—

(A) how preferencing impacts—

(i) the execution prices received by retail securities customers whose orders are preferenced; and

(ii) the ability of retail securities customers in all markets to obtain executions of their limit orders in preferenced securities; and

(B) the costs of preferencing to such customers.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

(3) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term "preferencing" refers to the practice of a broker acting as a dealer on a national securities exchange, directing the orders of customers to buy or sell securities to itself for execution under rules that permit the broker to take priority in execution over same-priced orders or quotations entered prior in time.

MARK O. HATFIELD UNITED STATES COURTHOUSE

The text of the bill (S. 1636) to designate the United States Courthouse under construction at 1030 Southwest 3d Avenue, Portland, OR, as the "Mark O. Hatfield United States Courthouse," and for other purposes, as passed by the Senate on June 27, 1996, is as follows:

S. 1636

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION OF MARK O. HATFIELD UNITED STATES COURTHOUSE.

The United States Courthouse under construction at 1030 Southwest 3rd Avenue in Portland, Oregon, shall be known and designated as the "Mark O. Hatfield United States Courthouse".

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the courthouse referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Mark O. Hatfield United States Courthouse".

SEC. 3. EXTENSION OF FDR MEMORIAL MEMBER TERMS.

The first section of the Act entitled "An Act to establish a commission to formulate plans for a memorial to Franklin Delano Roosevelt", approved August 11, 1955 (69 Stat. 694) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "A Commissioner who ceases to be a Member of the Senate or the House of Representatives may, with the approval of the appointing authority, continue to serve as a Commissioner for a period of up to one year after he or she ceases to be a Member of the Senate or the House of Representatives.".

SEC. 4. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This Act shall take effect on January 3, 1997.

COMPLIMENTS TO THE MAJORITY LEADER AND MANAGERS OF THE BILL

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, at the conclusion of this week, I compliment the majority leader, Senator LOTT, for his leadership and tireless efforts to get a lot of things moving. After a long week, a lot of work was done to complete, for all practical purposes, the Department of Defense bill, which we will be voting on early when we return.

Also, I wish to compliment Senator DASCHLE and Senator NUNN, as well as Senator THURMOND, Senator MCCAIN, and Senator WARNER for their leadership in passing this very important bill. They have put in a lot of effort and time in the last couple of days. Some were wondering whether or not we would be able to pass the bill.

In addition, I compliment the majority leader, because during the process this week, he was able to break the logjam on the minimum wage bill. Again, that was one that we have been wrestling with for a long time, and we will be voting on that when we return for debate on July 8 and a vote on the July 9, as well as action on the TEAM bill. I compliment him on that.

It is a little disappointing that we have not yet made greater progress on the so-called health bill, the Kassebaum-Kennedy bill. As a matter of fact, there has been an objection placed by Democrat Members on appointing conferees. That is very unusual. It has been 40 some days now that they have opposed appointing conferees on that piece of legislation. I hope they will reconsider. I heard Senator KENNEDY speaking on that earlier today. He was critical of the medical savings accounts provisions. I think we made a very generous offer on medical savings accounts. Hopefully, that will be resolved and we can complete action on that bill which will solve a lot of problems for preexisting illnesses and coverage for small business, allowing deductibility. That is important legislation that is broadly supported by Congress. Hopefully, we will have appointees and go to conference.

By and large, I compliment the majority leader. He has had a very active and successful week.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate go into executive session to consider calendar No. 563, the nomination of Christopher Hill; that the Senate proceed to a vote on the nomination, and following the vote, the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action, and the Senate immediately return to legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nomination was considered and confirmed, as follows:

Christopher Robert Hill, of Rhode Island, a Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service, Class of Counselor, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I announce for the benefit of the Senate that the Senator from Kentucky, Senator MCCONNELL, votes in the negative on the confirmation of Mr. Hill, and I ask that his statement be placed in the RECORD at this point as if read.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, for several months, I have tried to get a straight answer from the administration on the legal justification for the deployment of United States troops under United Nations' command in Macedonia. While the soldiers have a mission, I do not believe they have a clear, legal mandate.

The question of our involvement in Macedonia was first brought to my attention by Ron Ray, a constituent of mine who is representing Michael New. Apparently, Michael New asked his commanding officer to provide some explanation as to why an American Army specialist was being asked to wear a U.N. uniform and deploy to Macedonia under the U.N. flag.

In a recent hearing with Ambassador Madeliene Albright, usually one of the more plain spoken members of the President's foreign policy team, we reviewed the procedures for deploying American troops under the U.N. flag. She offered the view that while there were clear guidelines defining chapter VII deployments, using chapter VI to justify a mission had evolved as a matter of U.N. custom and tradition.

Since 1948, 27 peace operations have been authorized by the U.N. Security Council. In addition to being authorized by a specific chapter of the U.N. Charter, U.S. troop deployments must be authorized consistent with U.S. legal requirements spelled out in the United Nations Participation Act.

In July 1993, President Clinton wrote the Congress stating,

> U.N. Security Council Resolution 795 established the UNPROFOR Macedonia mission under a chapter VI of the U.N. Charter and UNPROFOR Macedonia is a peacekeeking force under chapter VI of the Charter.

But this assertion is not substantiated by the record of resolutions and reports passed by the United Nations.

Between 1991 and the end of 1995, the United Nations passed 97 Security Council resolutions related to the former Yugoslavia. In addition, 13 reports were issued by to U.N. Secretary General relative to the mandate of the UNPROFOR Macedonia operation. None of these resolutions or reports mention a chapter VI mandate for Macedonia. In fact, there are 27 resolutions which specifically refer to UNPROFOR, which includes Macedonia, as chapter VII. It is worth pointing to just one of these resolutions which states that the U.N. Security Council was:

> Determined to ensure the security of UNPROFOR and its freedom of movement for all its missions (i.e. Macedonia) and to these ends was acting under chapter VII of the charter of the United Nations.

In spite of the record, the administration continues to insist that Macedonia is a chapter VI operation. When I asked them to document this determination, I was provided the following guidance by the Acting Assistant Secretary of State:

> The U.N. Charter authority underlying the mandate of a U.N. peace operation depends on an interpretation of the relevant resolutions of the U.N. Security Council. As a matter of tradition, the Security Council explicitly refers to a "chapter VII" when it authorizes an enforcement operation under that chapter. The absence of a reference to chapter VII in a resolution authorizing or establishing a peacekeeping operation thus indicates that the operation is not considered by the Security Council to be an enforcement operation. Neither does the Security Council refer explicitly to "chapter VI" in its resolutions pertaining to peacekeeping operations. This practice evolved over time as a means for the Security Council to develop practical responses to problems without unnecessarily invoking the full panoply of provisions regarding the use of force under chapter VII, and without triggering other Charter provisions that might impede Member States on the Security Council if chapter VI were referenced.

In essence, what this explanation means is U.S. troops can be deployed in harm's way as a matter of U.N. tradition rather than U.S. law. It means U.S. soldiers are deployed in a combat zone with an absence of reference to the actual legal mandate because the U.N. Security Council does not want to refer explicitly to chapter VI due to a reluctance to inconvenience Member states on the Security Council.

Mr. President, let me try to add a little clarity to just what the Acting Assistant Secretary means when stating the administration does not want to invoke a panoply of provisions regarding the use of force. In simple English, when a chapter VII mission is authorized by the United Nations, U.S. law requires the operation to be approved by the Congress. In simple terms, the State Department is using a chapter VI designation to avoid having to come to the Congress to justify the financial and military burden the United States has assumed in Macedonia.

What the State Department calls a panoply of provisions problem, I call surrendering U.S. interests to U.N. command. This is not the first time Congress has been circumvented. I had hoped the administration had learned from our experience in Somalia. I had hoped the tragic loss of life would help the President understand the value and importance of a full congressional debate and approval of the merits of deploying American soldiers overseas into hostile conditions. Apparently, the lesson is lost on this administration. When the United Nations calls, we send our young men and women to serve.

Mr. President, I have taken the time to review the circumstances of our military involvement in Macedonia, in order to explain my vote against Chris Hill, the President's nominee to be our Ambassador. While I have no objection to Mr. Hill personally, I intend to vote against his nomination as a matter of principle—to express my strong opposition to what I view as an unjustified U.N. mission with a questionable legal mandate that is risking the lives of American soldiers.

I understand that a majority of members expressed their desire to move forward with this and several other nominations, and that the majority leader would like to accommodate these requests. I very much appreciate his offering those of us who oppose the administration's continued blind pursuit of a misguided U.N. agenda the opportunity to express our opposition through this vote.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will now return to legislative session.

MOLLIE BEATTIE WILDERNESS AREA ACT

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Energy Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 1899, and further that the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

> A bill (S. 1899) entitled the Mollie Beattie Wilderness Area Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4434

(Purpose: To amend S. 1899)

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. MURKOWSKI and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

> The Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. NICKLES], for Mr. MURKOWSKI, for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, and Mr. GRAHAM, proposes an amendment numbered 4434.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

> Strike all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:
>
> "Section 702(3) of Public Law 94-487 is amended by striking "Arctic National Wildlife Refuge Wilderness" and inserting "Mollie Beattie Wilderness". The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to place a monument in honor of Mollie Beattie's contributions to fish, wildlife, and waterfowl conservation and management at a suitable location that he designates within the Mollie Beattie Wilderness."

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, like many of my colleagues, I rise to express my profound sadness concerning the death last night of Mollie Beattie. Until a few weeks ago, Mollie had served the Nation as the Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Ms. Beattie, who was the Service's first female Director, was a very warm and talented public servant. She had a gift for working with people an was interested in solving problems; two traits that are all too rare in these days of partisanship and confrontation. She was also a knowledgeable and hard working professional who put her considerable training and expertise to work every day in dealing with the many complex issues facing the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Ms. Beattie's dedication to her work went beyond the norm, as evidenced by her willingness to support new and exciting concepts for fish and wildlife protection. Just last year, she traveled to Louisiana for a ground-breaking ceremony on the research center for endangered species, the ACRES facility, which was dedicated earlier this month at the Audubon Institute in New Orleans. The facility is dedicated to using the latest reproductive technology to help stem the rising tide of extinction among the world's most threatened animals. Her support was essential to making this effort a reality.

Mollie was well liked by all who knew her, even those who did not always agree with her on policy matters or her efforts to promote the views of the Department of the Interior, because she reminded us that people in public service can disagree without being disagreeable. That is a good lesson for all of us to think about, Mr. President, as we remember Mollie and mourn her loss.

My thoughts and prayers, and those of my colleagues, are with Mollie's family and friends.

Mr. KEMPTHORNE. Mr. President, I am saddened to hear that Mollie Beattie died last night after a yearlong battle against brain cancer. Mollie was the first female Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and served in that position until earlier this month. I wish to offer my condolences to her husband Rick Schwolsky of Grafton, VT, and to her mother, Patricia Beattie and sister, Jane Beattie, both of Ketchum, ID.

I appreciated Mollie's honesty and candor with me and my staff, whether in public hearings before a committee or in a private meeting in my office. All of my experiences with Mollie were positive. While we didn't always approach a situation from the same perspective, we shared the common goal of doing what is right for species and people.

When Mollie testified on the role of recovery in the Endangered Species Act before my Drinking Water, Fisheries and Wildlife Subcommittee last year, we found that the goals we envisioned for endangered species were very much in harmony.

I agreed with her testimony that, "Recovery is the soul and the purpose of the Endangered Species Act." In fact, one of my principles of ESA reform is to return to the original intent of the act, which was to recover species. And on our watch, we have been making progress toward that purpose.

Director Beattie was active in negotiations with Senators CHAFEE, BAUCUS, REID and me on a number of bipartisan changes to the Endangered Species Act. Prominent among these improvements is a new, more rigorous recovery section. If made a part of the law, the new recovery planning process will actually recover species and make them once again a part of a healthy biologically diverse habitat.

I want to recognize the firmness and clarity of purpose that Mollie Beattie brought to the process of negotiating a reformed Endangered Species Act. Now it is up to the rest of us to get this reform passed and implemented. I can't think of a better tribute to her than to make real progress toward recovery of the species that she clearly cared about very much.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, it is with great sadness and regret that I rise today in support of S. 1899, a bill to name the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge Wilderness for Mollie Beattie, the former Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. As most of you now know, Mollie passed away last night after a long battle with brain cancer.

She fought that battle gallantly with great courage and dignity, just as she had fought so hard for this Nation's fish and wildlife resources during her recent tenure as the first woman Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. I extend my heartfelt condolences to her husband Rick Schwolsky, and the rest of her family.

Mr. President, the Nation owes Mollie a deep debt of gratitude. In a time of unprecedented challenge to some of this Nation's most important environmental laws, Mollie stepped forward to remind us that threatened and endangered species, and the national wildlife refuges on which many of those species depend, must be protected for future generations of Americans to treasure and enjoy. It is therefore fitting that one of the most magnificent wilderness areas in the United States, the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge Wilderness, be named for her.

I hope my colleagues, on both sides of the aisle, will join me and the sponsors of this bill in ensuring its quick passage for signature by President Clinton. It is a small tribute to a truly outstanding individual who has made an invaluable contribution during her lifetime to the benefit of the entire country.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, last night Mollie Beattie passed away after a hard battle with cancer throughout which she continued to show her dedication to the Fish and Wildlife Service and her public duty.

Those who serve in government are often maligned and denigrated in today's press. But Mollie's example will shine as one who committed her life and career to the public good. Her life was an example of courage and purpose. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, and the Nation have lost a dedicated public servant.

When Mollie joined the Department of the Interior in 1993, she faced serious threats by those who wanted to turn the clock back on endangered species preservation. Mollie persevered and initiated necessary administrative reform of the Endangered Species Act. Her work on habitat and species stewardship is a foundation for future conservation efforts.

I am honored to have known her and recognize the service that she bestowed the Nation by her energy and focus.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I rise to pay tribute to Mollie Beattie, who embodied the best of government service—diplomatic, creative, dedicated and thoughtful.

Mollie, who recently stepped down as Director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, passed away last night, after a courageous fight with brain cancer.

When Mollie joined the national political fray as Director about 3 years ago, no doubt she knew what she was in for. She knew she was jumping into a portfolio of among the most contentious national issues—administration and reauthorization of the Endangered Species Act, the Pacific Northwest forest issue, and wetlands and habitat protection, to name a few. She didn't back down. Instead, she charged ahead, viewing her role as a consensus builder, a communicator, an advocate, and a pioneer towards a new way of doing business.

She cared deeply about our Nation's fish, our wildlife, our open spaces, our forests, indeed, all our natural resources. Her depth of feeling and dedication gave her the strength to approach her role as Director with vitality and optimism, even in the face of increased budget cuts and intensified public scrutiny. And, as is rare in public service, she found more admirers and accorded more respect every day she was on the job.

She recognized the importance of our ecosystem and the species upon which it depends, including our own. She recognized the importance of jobs and the economy, upon which we depend as well. She sought to work within this structure and needs, with the optimism and faith that it could be done.

Mr. President, Mollie said it best when she testified to the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee almost 3 years ago, on July 28, 1993:

> I would ask the Service to deliver this broad message about the conservation of fish and wildlife: that the choice between people and animals is not a real one because nature binds us to a common fate. We must have jobs and development that maintain all species, including our own. The public must be given faith that this is possible given some new ways of thinking and doing business.

Perhaps the most telling indication of Mollie's extraordinary ability to bridge the gap is a survey of the laudatory comments that we are hearing today. The Defenders of Wildlife said, "Whatever success society ultimately achieves in the crucial fight to protect endangered species and conserve our precious but deteriorating biological diversity, it will be due in part to the conservation advances for which she was directly responsible and to the commitment to responsible stewardship she inspired in literally thousands of friends and admirers."

And, from the Chairman of the House Resources Committee, Congressman DON YOUNG: "She was able to bring all sides of an issue to the table in order to reach common sense agreements. Because of this she was respected by all of those who knew and worked with her."

These two comments embody Mollie's spirit and effectiveness as a leader.

Today the Senate will pass a bill, sponsored by Senators MURKOWSKI, STEVENS, LEAHY, and JEFFORDS, to designate 8 million acres of wilderness in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, the Mollie Beattie Alaska Wilderness Area. This bill is a fitting tribute to a respected professional and government servant.

Mr. President, Mollie Beattie—conservationist, academic, communicator, and leader—will be missed.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I know all of my colleagues in the Senate are saddened to hear of the passing last night of Mollie Beattie who, until her very recent resignation for medical reasons, was Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

She has been a good friend, a devoted citizen and public servant, and a champion for God's creatures when others did not always have the courage and grace to step forward. It is my sincere hope that her vision of a brighter and more abundant future for our Nation's wildlife heritage will become a reality for us, and for the many generations of Americans that follow. I would like her family and her husband, Rick, to know that our thoughts and prayers are with him, and Mollie, always.

I am reminded of the quote by Admiral Rickover that: "the more you sweat in peace, the less you bleed in war." I think Mollie's professional life is a testament to this great truth. She toiled as a public servant not just in Federal Government, but in State government and academia, to ensure that democracy represented our deep concern for our wildlife heritage, and that we avoided senseless losses that might otherwise occur in the heat of conflict.

She worked to ensure that our scientific knowledge, education, and public awareness recognize the values and complexities of our relationship with fish and wildlife, and with our broader natural heritage.

It is the real human sacrifice of people like Mollie, working day in and day out with honesty, integrity, intelligence, and sensitivity, that spares us the crisis of mismanagement and neglect that all too often has avoidable, irreversible consequences. Much of the peace and abundant life we enjoy as Americans is founded on such devotion.

On Monday of this week my good friend, Senator STEVENS, honored a last request of Mollie's by introducing a bill to name 8 million acres of the 19 million acre Arctic National Wildlife Refuge as the Mollie Beattie Wilderness Area. Senator STEVENS is to be commended for such a decent and honorable act, and I am pleased to offer my support.

I understand Mollie had a special connection with this part of the Brooks Range after visiting it a few years ago, and that she wished to have her ashes spread there. Of all the many special natural areas in this Nation Mollie visited, this pristine landscape on the North Slope of Alaska must have made the greatest impression on her.

It is no secret that other parts of this refuge have been the source of discord in the Senate. But I think it is entirely fitting that we might join hands to bless one special part of it in Mollie's name. By doing so, we can remember that this land was saved in peace and remembrance, and not in conflict.

Mollie will be missed, but not forgotten.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered agreed to, the bill be deemed read the third time, passed, as amended, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be placed at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 4434) was agreed to.

The bill (S. 1899), as amended, was deemed read the third time, and passed, as follows:

S. 1899

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 702(3) of Public Law 96-487 is amended by striking "Arctic National Wildlife Refuge Wilderness" and inserting "Mollie Beattie Wilderness". The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to place a monument in honor of Mollie Beattie's contributions to fish, wildlife, and waterfowl conservation and management at a suitable location that he designates within the Mollie Beattie Wilderness.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES ADMINISTRATIVE REFORM TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS ACT

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to immediate consideration of Calendar Order No. 441, H.R. 2739.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2739) to provide for a representational allowance for Members of the House of Representatives to make technical and conforming changes and sundry provisions of law in consequence of administrative reforms in the House of Representatives, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the committee amendments be agreed to, the bill be deemed read the third time, passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be placed at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill (H.R. 2739), as amended, was deemed read the third time, and passed.

ORDER FOR STAR PRINT

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the report 104-80 to accompany S. 141 be star printed with the changes that I understand are at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA TO ALLOW AN ELECTED LEGISLATURE

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar Order No. 463, Senate Resolution 271.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 271) expressing the sense of the Senate with respect to the international obligation of the People's Republic of China to allow an elected legislature in Hong Kong after June 30, 1996.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the resolution?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the resolution appear at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 271) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, is as follows:

S. RES. 271

Whereas under the Sino-British Joint Declaration on the Question of Hong Kong of 1984, the People's Republic of China will assume sovereignty over Hong Kong on July 1, 1997.

Whereas both the People's Republic of China and Great Britain committed themselves to the Joint Declaration's explicit provisions for Hong Kong's future;

Whereas the Joint Declaration is a binding international agreement registered at the United Nations that guarantees Hong Kong a "high degree of autonomy" except in defense and foreign affairs, an elected legislature, an executive accountable to the elected legislature, and an independent judiciary with final power of adjudication over Hong Kong law;

Whereas the United States-Hong Kong Policy Act of 1992 expresses the support of the United States Congress for full implementation of the Joint Declaration and declared that—

(1) the United States has a "strong interest in the continued vitality, prosperity, and stability of Hong King";

(2) "the human rights of the people of Hong Kong are of great importance to the United States and are directly relevant to United States interests in Hong Kong";

(3) "a fully successful transition in the exercise of sovereignty over Hong Kong must safeguard human rights in and of themselves"; and

(4) "human rights also serve as a basis for Hong Kong's continued economic prosperity";

Whereas on September 17, 1995, the Legislative Council was elected for a 4-year term expiring in 1999;

Whereas the election of Hong Kong's legislature is the cornerstone of the principle that the people of Hong Kong shall enjoy "one country, two systems" after the Government of the People's Republic of China assumes sovereignty over Hong Kong; and

Whereas the Government of the People's Republic of China and its appointed Preparatory Committee have announced their intention to abolish the elected Legislative Council and appoint a provisional legislature: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That (a) the Senate finds that—

(1) respect for Hong Kong's autonomy and preservation of its institutions will contribute to the stability and economic prosperity of the region; and

(2) the United States has an interest in compliance with treaty obligations.

(b) It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the People's Republic of China and the United Kingdom should uphold their international obligations specified in the Joint Declaration, including the commitment to an elected legislature in Hong Kong after June 30, 1997;

(2) the establishment of an appointed legislature would be a violation of the Joint Declaration, and the People's Republic of China should allow the Legislative Council elected in September 1995 to serve its full elected term; and

(3) the President and the Secretary of State should communicate to the People's Republic of China and to the Hong Kong government and Legislative Council the full support of the United States Government and the people of the United States for Hong Kong's autonomy and the interest of the United States in full compliance by both the People's Republic of China and Great Britain with the Joint Declaration as a matter of international law.

SEC. 2. As used in this resolution, the term "Joint Declaration" means the Joint Declaration of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Government of the People's Republic of China on the Question of Hong Kong, done at Beijing on December 19, 1984.

SEC. 3. The Secretary of State shall transmit a copy of this resolution to the President and the Secretary of State.

PROVIDING FOR THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE FILM "FRAGILE RING OF LIFE"

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of calendar order No. 464, H.R. 2070.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2070) to provide for the distribution within the United States of the United States Information Agency film entitled "Fragile Ring of Life."

Mr. NICKLES. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be deemed read the third time, passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be placed in the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 2070) was deemed read the third time, and passed.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE PEOPLE OF THE REPUBLIC OF SIERRA LEONE

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar Order No. 465, House Concurrent Resolution 160.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 160) congratulating the people of the Republic of Sierra Leone on the success of their recent democratic multiparty elections.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the concurrent resolution?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the concurrent resolution be considered and agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements related to the resolution appear at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 160) was agreed to.

NATIONAL CHILDREN'S ISLAND ACT OF 1995

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar Order No. 469, H.R. 1508.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 1508) to require the transfer of title to the District of Columbia of certain real property in Anacostia Park to facilitate the construction of National Children's Island, a cultural, educational, and family-oriented park.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, there are several letters that I would like to submit for the RECORD as the Senate considers H.R. 1508, the National Children's Island Act. The letters are addressed to me as chairman of the Governmental Affairs Committee and express support of both former and current elected officials in the District of Columbia for this bill.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD the following letters:

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, April 17, 1996.

Sen. TED STEVENS,
Senate Hart Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN STEVENS: The National Children's Island Act of 1995, passed the House on October 30, 1995 by a unanimous voice vote, and I understand that the bill will come before your Senate Government Affairs Committee tomorrow. I urge passage of the bill, which was overwhelmingly passed by the D.C. City Council and has the support of the city administration.

H.R. 1508 calls for the transfer of ownership of Heritage and portions of Kingman Island, located within the Anacostia River, from the National Park Service to the District of Columbia for the purposes of creating a cultural, educational and family oriented-park.

The National Children's Island project will transform a wasteland area into an educational park featuring pavilions designed to expand awareness in such areas as communications and computers, medicine, science and the environment. It will offer area youth a badly needed recreational facility. Furthermore, a share of the park's revenues have been earmarked to provide educational opportunities through grants and scholarships for our neighborhood children.

When the House of Representatives first considered this legislation, I met on several occasions with residents who were supporters and opponents of the bill, and all have contributed to its final version. Over the course of several months and countless meetings, several valid concerns were raised and addressed in the Chairman's Mark at my request:

A provision specifying that the District of Columbia's review of the project must be in full compliance with all provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969;

A requirement that the National Capital Planning Commission review and approve the project;

A prohibition against public parking on the Islands;

A provision requiring National Children's Island to comply with previously agreed upon design parameters. Specifically, buildings cannot exceed fifty feet in height, and no more than five acres can be under roof and no more than 23% of the surface can be paved; and

A requirement that National Children's Island establish an escrow fund to restore the lands in the event they are returned to the National Park Service. Specifically, they must remove any buildings and landscape the area.

National Children's Island will offer the District of Columbia significant economic opportunities at a time when, as you know, the city is in dire financial condition. For example, over 1,700 new, full and part-time jobs and an estimated $8.9 million in annual sales tax revenues will result. In light of the District's current state of financial crisis, the City Council and he city administrators have strongly supported the project, and I believe that on a home rule basis, it should proceed.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON.

WALTER E. WASHINGTON,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Washington, DC, May 30, 1996.

Hon. TED STEVENS,
Chairman, Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR STEVENS: During my term as the first elected mayor of the District of Columbia, it was my pleasure to organize the City's Bicentennial Commission to help the United States' 200th birthdate during that year-long national celebration. One of the projects that the citizens on that commission strongly recommended was the National Children's Island project. prior to the citizens of the District supporting this project, the National Park Service had been trying to develop these islands as a part of its overall plan for the development of the Anacostia River basin for ten years.

When I heard that your committee was about to take up H.R. 1508, the National Children's Island Act of 1995, I was overjoyed as it has been a long hard struggle for a very worthy project to take so long to become a reality. I want to convey my strongest support for H.R. 1508, and urge your committee to move this legislation through the Senate as early as is practical.

As an elected official, you must know how frustrating it can be to devote your time and energy to worthwhile projects that never see the light of day. I held a ground breaking ceremony and started initial construction and sought major financing for this project in 1976 and since that time the project has for the most part been tied up in red tape. I would very much like to be able to attend the opening of the project, which I am assured, only needs this legislation to speed into the planning, design and construction process. This can only happen with your help.

This project means a great deal to our citizens, as well as to the District's economic base. Please help us get rid of a dump site and help us create an environmentally safe, attractive, fun-filled learning place for our children and their families.

Sincerely,

WALTER E. WASHINGTON.

THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, DC, June 18, 1996.

Hon. TED STEVENS,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR STEVENS: I am writing to emphasize the District of Columbia's support for H.R. 1508, the National Children's Island Act of 1995.

I strongly urge passage of this legislation exactly as it is written. The current language of the bill is a result of months and even years of discussion, compromise and fine-tuning, with input from various sectors: the National Park Service, the National Capital Planning Commission, environmentalists, community advocates, the District government and residents of the neighborhoods bordering the Children's Island project. All of these entities have had an opportunity to weigh in, and I strongly believe that H.R. 1508 represents the absolute best compromise language possible. H.R. 1508, exactly as it is written, protects the environment and the interests of the community. It also provides the District of Columbia with the ability to efficiently take this project to completion.

National Children's Island (NCI), is not a new concept. In fact, the District has worked for more than 20 years with the National Children's Island Inc., a local non-profit organization, to move this project forward. Unfortunately, the National Children's Island project has been paralyzed by overlapping layers of Federal and District government laws, rules and regulations. H.R. 1508 is designed to eliminate this bureaucratic gridlock and simplify a process that has become extremely cumbersome and has taken far too long to complete.

The thrust of H.R. 1508 is to make the National Children's Island project, a home-rule, District project by transferring legal title of Heritage Island and a portion of Kingman Island to the District and by subjecting Children's Island to the laws and regulations of the District. In addition, a variety of other protective provisions designed to ensure that this project moves forward in a responsible manner are included in the bill. Some of these protections include:

A provision calling for title to the Islands to revert back to the Federal government in the event the Islands are converted to a use other than as specified. (page 6, lines 13–17).

Subjecting the National Children's Island, Inc., to the "Children's Island Development Plan Act of 1993," D.C. Act 10–110, which requires that the National Children's Island project be subject to the review and approval of the District Council. (page 2, lines 20–22 and page 8, lines 17–18).

Calling for final design plans for National Children's Island to be approved by the National Capital Planning Commission, (NCPC), and to be in full compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, (NEPA), before construction can commence. (page 8, lines 12–21).

I would like to point out that the National Children's Island project enjoys the overwhelming support of the Council of the District of Columbia, and more than 70 community organizations have sent letters in support of the project. The project is also in full compliance with the District of Columbia's Comprehensive Plan. Specifically, DCMR Title 10, Section 1735(h) guides the District to avoid commercial development that would adversely affect the neighborhoods adjacent to Kingman Island (Children's Island) and explicitly dictates that the parcels be used for community and city-wide recreation. In fact, the public planning process has advised this project from the beginning, and will continue as a key requirement of the Master Planning process.

For all of these reasons, I therefore ask you to support H.R. 1508 in its present form and support the District's effort to bring a worthwhile, viable project to our beloved District of Columbia and to our children.

Sincerely yours,

MARION BARRY, Jr.,
Mayor.

COUNCIL OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, DC, June 18, 1996.

Hon. TED STEVENS, Chairman,
Hon. JOHN GLENN, Ranking Member,
Senate Governmental Affairs Committee,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN STEVENS AND SENATOR GLENN: I am writing to request your support for H.R. 1508, the National Children's Island Act of 1995, which was introduced by Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton and approved by the House of Representatives, and which is currently pending in the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee. This legislation, which provides for the transfer of the ownership of Heritage Island and a portion of Kingman Island ("Children's Island") located on the Anacostia River from the National Park Service to the District of Columbia, will facilitate an environmentally sensitive development of Children's Island which will provide significant recreational, educational and economic benefits for the District of Columbia.

A transfer of jurisdiction over this property was previously approved by the Council of the District of Columbia on July 13, 1993, and by the National Capital Planning Commission ("NCPC") on January 7, 1993. The NCPC found that the proposed use of Children's Island—as a family-oriented recreational and educational park on 32 acres and a free children's playground on 13.5 acres—would serve to enhance the recreational potential of both the parkland and the river, and that the proposed use is consistent with both the Comprehensive Plan for the National Capital and the previously approved concept plans for this portion of the Anacostia park system.

Although I was not on the Council at the time, the Children's Island Development Plan Act of 1993 (D.C. Law 10–57, effective November 20, 1993) was unanimously approved by the Council three years ago. Enclosed for your information is a copy of the law, along with the accompanying Report by the Council's Committee of the Whole ("Report"), which stated:

The Children's Island project envisions a development which will transform an inaccessible, man-made, trash-filled property with little redeeming value into an expertly designed and beautifully landscaped park which has recreational, educational and cultural activities and exhibits for residents and tourists of all ages.

The Report also estimated that the Children's Island project would generate approximately 1,700 permanent part-time and full-time jobs and millions of dollars in desperately needed new tax revenues to the District.

As you may know, D.C. Law 10–57 requires that, in addition to all other requirements for approvals, permits and procedures which are necessary to allow the development of Children's Island, a development plan for Children's Island must be prepared and submitted to the D.C. Council for review and approval. The law requires this development plan to include, among other information, an environmental impact statement ("EIS") which would identify all measures necessary to mitigate or eliminate any adverse impacts from the proposed development. The EIS process will ensure that the Children's Island development proposal will be subject to full community and governmental participation in a comprehensive assessment of its impacts.

In summary, I urge your favorable consideration of legislation to facilitate the development of Children's Island as a recreational and educational park that will be accessible to and enjoyed by millions of area residents and visitors to our nation's capital each year. The project offers the opportunity to provide the public with an amenity in the eastern part of the District that would be similar in landscaping, density and cultural value as that provided by the National Zoo in the western part of our city. Moreover, the Children's Island project—like the proposed arena, convention center and municipal parking projects in the District each of which has required Congressional legislation to move forward—is an important component in the ongoing effort to revitalize the District's traditional position as the economic and cultural heart of this region.

Sincerely,

DAVID A. CLARKE,
Chairman.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the bill be deemed read the third time, passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be placed at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 1508) was deemed read for the third time and passed.

MOST-FAVORED-NATION TREATMENT FOR BULGARIA

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar Order No. 399, H.R. 2853.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows.

A bill (H.R. 2853) to authorize the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment (most-favored-nation treatment) to the products of Bulgaria.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the bill be deemed read a third time, passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be placed at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 2853) was deemed read for the third time, and passed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate immediately proceed to executive session to consider the following nominations on today's Executive Calendar en bloc: Executive Calendar Nos. 608, 665 through 674, and all nominations on the Secretary's desk in the Air Force, the Army, and Marine Corps.

I further ask unanimous consent that the nominations be confirmed, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, any statements relating to the nominations appear at the appropriate place in the RECORD, the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action, and that the Senate then return to legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nominations were considered and confirmed as follows:

ARMY

The following-named officer for reappointment to the grade of general in the U.S. Army while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, United States Code, section 601(a):

To be general

Gen. John H. Tilelli, Jr., 152-30-5952. U.S. Army.

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of lieutenant general in the U.S. Army while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, United States Code, section 601(a):

To be lieutenant general

Maj. Gen. Dennis L. Benchoff, 199-30-6683

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of lieutenant general in the U.S. Army while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, United States Code, section 601(a):

To be lieutenant general

Maj. Gen. William M. Steele, 252-70-0433.

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of lieutenant general in the U.S. Army while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, United States Code, Section 601(a):

To be lieutenant general

Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Kinzer, 214-36-9403.

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of lieutenant general in the U.S. Army while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, United States Code, Section 601(a):

To be lieutenant general

Maj. Gen. Joseph E. DeFrancisco, 069-34-7511.

MARINE CORPS

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of lieutenant general in the U.S. Marine Corps while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under the provisions of section 601(a), title 10, United States Code:

To be lieutenant general

Maj. Gen. Peter Pace, 145-36-7426.

NAVY

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of vice admiral in the U.S. Navy while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10 United States Code, sections 601 and 5141:

CHIEF OF NAVAL PERSONNEL

To be vice admiral

Rear Adm. Daniel T. Oliver, 248-72-7150.

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of vice admiral in the U.S. Navy while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10 United States Code, section 601:

To be vice admiral

Rear Adm. (Selectee) Charles S. Abbott, 216-42-8270.

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of admiral in the U.S. Navy while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10 United States Code, section 601:

To be admiral

Vice Adm. Thomas J. Lopez, 232-66-4372.

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of vice admiral in the U.S. Navy while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10 United States Code, section 601:

To be vice admiral

Vice Adm. Donald L. Pilling, 055-36-5233.

The following-named officer for appointment to the grade of vice admiral in the U.S. Navy while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10 United States Code, section 601:

To be vice admiral

Vice Adm. John S. Redd, 478-54-6017.

IN THE AIR FORCE, ARMY, MARINE CORPS

Air Force nominations beginning Brian K. Bakshas, and ending Stephen D. White, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 18, 1996.

Air Force nominations beginning Daniel A. Babine, and ending William J. Weigel, Jr., which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 18, 1996.

Air Force nominations beginning Justin L. Abold, and ending Kathleen M. Zendejas, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 18, 1996.

Air Force nominations beginning Larry D. Biggers, and ending John J. McGraw, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 21, 1996.

Army nominations beginning Gregory K. Austin, and ending Robert M. Traynor, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 21, 1996.

Army nominations beginning Gregory B. Baxter, and ending Mary F. Sippell, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 21, 1996.

Marine Corps nominations beginning Mark D. Abelson, and ending Peter D. Zoretic, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 21, 1996.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now return to legislative session.

ORDERS FOR MONDAY, JULY 8, 1996

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment under the provisions of House Concurrent Resolution 192 until the hour of 12:30 p.m. on Monday, July 8; further, that immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be deemed approved to date, no resolutions come over under the rule, the call of the calendar be dispensed with, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and that there then be a period for morning business until the hour of 3:30 p.m. with Senators permitted to speak for up to 5 minutes each with the following Senators in control of the stated time: Senator KENNEDY, or his designee, from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m.; Senator COVERDELL, or his designee, from 2 p.m. until 2:30 p.m.

I further ask unanimous consent that at 3:30 p.m. the Senate begin consideration of H.R. 3448, the small business tax package, as under a previous consent agreement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, for the information of all Senators, under the previous order the Senate will be debating the small business tax package when the Senate reconvenes from the Independence Day break. When the Senate completes all debate on Monday, July 8, we will recess over until Tuesday at 9:30 a.m., at which time the Senate will resume consideration of the small business tax package. Under the order, the Senate will begin voting at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesday on amendments offered to H.R. 3448. I now ask unanimous consent that the votes occur in the order in which the amendments were offered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NICKLES. I further ask unanimous consent that following the votes scheduled to begin at 2:15 on Tuesday, the Senate begin consideration of the TEAM Act under a previous consent agreement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NICKLES. Also, as a reminder to all Senators, there will be a cloture vote on the motion to proceed to S. 1788, the right-to-work bill, at the hour of 12 noon on Wednesday, July 10.

Finally, I remind Senators that the vote on passage of the DOD authorization bill will occur at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, July 10.

I further ask unanimous consent that following the vote on the right-to-work bill, the Senate proceed to vote on amendments and passage with respect to the TEAM Act in the order in which they were offered and debated on Tuesday.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader.

THE EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, regrettably, we are not going to be able to confirm a number of judges that I had hoped would be confirmed this afternoon. We were presented with a list of 10. Somebody on the other side objected to one of those 10. But hours after our last vote, after everybody had left and were on airplanes and in places where they could not be contacted, we were not in the position to be able to contact a number of Senators who also had judges. There are 23 judges that are currently on the calendar; 23 nominations. There are 68 vacancies.

Not one judge has been confirmed in this session of Congress—not one. This to our knowledge is unprecedented. So late in the day, after we cooperated all day long—yesterday, today—working as diligently as we could to accommodate the other side in getting the legislation to the point where we were able to call now for third reading and then a final vote next week, we find that on our list of judges to be considered we could not even get up 10—not 10 out of the 23. Those nine we did call up were given to us about an hour ago, after everybody was gone.

Mr. President, I have to say this is increasingly a matter that is of great concern to our colleagues and will be a factor in our cooperation as we consider other issues in the coming weeks.

We have to resolve this matter. It is just unacceptable that that number of judges would not be given their opportunity to be considered. Careers, families, futures are all at stake here. They are all on the line. It is one thing to deal with a bill—I understand that—but to deal with somebody's life, to deal with somebody's future and career and to deal with it so cavalierly is unacceptable.

So we are going to have to deal with this when we get back, and I must say it is going to be a long, hot summer if we cannot deal with it more successfully than we have so far. I am disappointed, very disappointed that we could not even do those 23 on the calendar today. But I look forward to working with the majority leader with an expectation we will when we get back.

I yield the floor.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, just a comment to follow up on the minority leader's comment on the judges, as the minority leader is aware, we have a new leadership team on this side. And to say the least, we have had our hands full the last couple weeks—not even 2 weeks yet, I think. We have made some progress, but it has not been easy. We made progress as I mentioned earlier, and I complimented the minority leader for his assistance in making this happen. We finally were able to bring to closure the Department of Defense authorization bill. After long, difficult negotiations, it looks as if we are on our way towards finalizing action on the minimum wage.

Some of us are very frustrated on this side, though, that Members on the Democrat side of the aisle have objected to appointing conferees on the health bill. That is unprecedented. It is 40-some-odd days, I think about 45 days since we requested conferees be appointed. We would like to have that resolved.

And so my point being, there are frustrations maybe on both sides. This side was prepared and willing to move on several judges, and I am sure that this will still be pending when we return early in July. I will look forward to working with the minority leader to see if we cannot come up to a successful resolution.

The new leadership team, though, I will tell you, because we spent so much time in working on the DOD authorization bill, working on the health bill, working on the minimum wage agreement, which included the TEAM Act and other provisions, we really have not had time to focus on these nominations.

So I just mention that.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY, JULY 8, 1996, AT 12:30 P.M.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask the Senate stand in adjournment under the provisions of House Concurrent Resolution 192, the adjournment resolution.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 5:58 p.m., adjourned until Monday, July 8, 1996, at 12:30 p.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate June 28, 1996:

INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN INDIAN AND ALASKA NATIVE CULTURE AND ARTS DEVELOPMENT

BARBARA BLUM, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, TO BE A MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN INDIAN AND ALASKA NATIVE CULTURE AND ARTS DEVELOPMENT FOR A TERM EXPIRING MAY 19, 2002. (REAPPOINTMENT)

STATE JUSTICE INSTITUTE

SOPHIA H. HALL, OF ILLINOIS, TO BE A MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE STATE JUSTICE INSTITUTE FOR A TERM EXPIRING SEPTEMBER 17, 1997, VICE JOHN F. DAFFRON, JR., TERM EXPIRED.

CONFIRMATIONS

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate June 28, 1996:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

ALFRED C. DECOTIIS, OF NEW JERSEY, TO BE A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO

THE FIFTIETH SESSION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE UNITED NATIONS.

CHRISTOPHER ROBERT HILL, OF RHODE ISLAND, A CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, CLASS OF COUNSELOR, TO BE AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY AND PLENIPOTENTIARY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO THE FORMER YUGOSLAV REPUBLIC OF MACEDONIA.

The above nomination was approved subject to the nominee's commitment to respond to requests to appear and testify before any duly constituted committee of the Senate.

IN THE ARMY

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR REAPPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF GENERAL IN THE U.S. ARMY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 601(A):

To be general

GEN. JOHN H. TILELLI, JR [redacted] U.S. ARMY.

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF LIEUTENANT GENERAL IN THE U.S. ARMY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 601(A):

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. DENNIS L. BENCHOFF [redacted]

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF LIEUTENANT GENERAL IN THE U.S. ARMY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 601(A):

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. WILLIAM M. STEELE [redacted]

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF LIEUTENANT GENERAL IN THE U.S. ARMY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 601(A):

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. JOSEPH W. KINZER [redacted]

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF LIEUTENANT GENERAL IN THE U.S. ARMY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 601(A):

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. JOSEPH E. DEFRANCISCO [redacted]

IN THE MARINE CORPS

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF LIEUTENANT GENERAL IN THE U.S. MARINE CORPS WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 601(A), TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE:

To be lieutenant general

MAJ. GEN. PETER PACE [redacted]

IN THE NAVY

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF VICE ADMIRAL IN THE U.S. NAVY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTIONS 601 AND 5141:

CHIEF OF NAVAL PERSONNEL

To be vice admiral

REAR ADM. DANIEL T. OLIVER [redacted]

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF VICE ADMIRAL IN THE U.S. NAVY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTIONS 601:

To be vice admiral

REAR ADM. (SELECTEE) CHARLES S. ABBOTT [redacted]

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF ADMIRAL IN THE U.S. NAVY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTIONS 601:

To be admiral

VICE ADM. THOMAS J. LOPEZ [redacted]

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR REAPPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF VICE ADMIRAL IN THE U.S. NAVY WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTIONS 601:

To be vice admiral

VICE ADM. DONALD L. PILLING [redacted]

THE FOLLOWING-NAMED OFFICER FOR REAPPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE OF VICE ADMIRAL IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE TO UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 601:

To be vice admiral

VICE ADM. JOHN S. REDD [redacted]

IN THE AIR FORCE

AIR FORCE NOMINATIONS BEGINNING BRIAN K. BAKSHAS, AND ENDING STEPHEN D. WHITE, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 18, 1996.

AIR FORCE NOMINATIONS BEGINNING DANIEL A. BABINE, AND ENDING WILLIAM J. WEIGEL, JR., WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 18, 1996.

AIR FORCE NOMINATIONS BEGINNING JUSTIN L. ABOLD, AND ENDING KATHLEEN M. ZENDEJAS, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 18, 1996.

AIR FORCE NOMINATIONS BEGINNING LARRY D. BIGGERS, AND ENDING JOHN J. MCGRAW, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 21, 1996.

IN THE ARMY

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING GREGORY K. AUSTIN, AND ENDING ROBERT M. TRAYNOR, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 21, 1996.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING *GREGORY B. BAXTER, AND ENDING MARY F. SIPPELL, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 21, 1996.

IN THE MARINE CORPS

MARINE CORPS NOMINATIONS BEGINNING MARK D. ABELSON, AND ENDING PETER D. ZORETIC, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD OF JUNE 21, 1996.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Monday, July 8, 1996

The House met at 12 noon and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore [Ms. GREENE of Utah].

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
July 8, 1996.

I hereby designate the Honorable ENID GREENE to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Breathe into our hearts, O God, the fullness of beauty and grace; lift our eyes, O God, so we see the majesty of Heaven and Earth; encourage our voices, O God, to sing with praise and thanksgiving for the gifts of life; open our hands, O God, so we do the works of justice and mercy and in all things may we know that we are Your people, and You are our God. In Your name, we pray. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. MONTGOMERY] come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. MONTGOMERY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ELECTION OF THE HONORABLE ENID GREENE OF UTAH AS SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE THROUGH WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1996

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Madam Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 471) electing Representative ENID GREENE of Utah to act as Speaker pro tempore, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

HOUSE RESOLUTION 471

Resolved, that the Honorable ENID GREENE, a Representative from the State of Utah, be, and she is hereby, elected Speaker pro tempore through Wednesday, July 10, 1996.

SEC. 2. The Clerk of the House shall notify the President and the Senate of the election of the Honorable ENID GREENE as Speaker pro tempore during the absence of the Speaker.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SWEARING IN OF THE HONORABLE ENID GREENE OF UTAH AS SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE THROUGH WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1996

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Would the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON] administer the oath of office to the Chair?

Ms. GREENE of Utah took the oath of office, administered to her by the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON], as follows:

Do you solemnly swear that you will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that you will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that you take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, and that you will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which you are about to enter. So help you God.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS TO FILE PRIVILEGED REPORTS ON DEPARTMENTS OF LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, AND EDUCATION AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS BILL, 1997, AND DEPARTMENTS OF TREASURY, POSTAL SERVICE AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS BILL, 1997

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Appropriations may have until midnight tonight, July 8, 1996, to file two privileged reports on bills making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes; and the Departments of the Treasury, Postal Service and General Government for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XXI, all points of order are reserved on the bills.

REPORT ON H.R. 3754, LEGISLATIVE BRANCH APPROPRIATIONS BILL, 1997

Mr. LIVINGSTON, from the Committee on Appropriations, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 104–657), on the bill (H.R. 3754) making appropriations for the legislative branch for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes, which was referred to the Union Calendar and ordered to be printed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All points of order are reserved on the bill.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, July 1, 1996.

The Honorable NEWT GINGRICH,
The Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 5 of Rule III of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Clerk received the following messages from the Secretary of the Senate on Monday, July 1, 1996 at 12:15 p.m.:

That the Senate passed S. 1636; that the Senate passed S. 1899; that the Senate passed without amendment H.R. 1508; that the Senate passed without amendment H.R. 2070; that the Senate passed with amendments H.R. 2679; that the Senate passed with amendments H.R. 2739; that the Senate passed without amendment H.R. 2853; that the Senate passed with amendment and requested conference H.R. 3005; that the Senate passed with amendment H.R. 3121; that the Senate passed without amendment H. Con. Res. 160.

With warm regards,

ROBIN H. CARLE, Clerk.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to announce that pursuant to clause 4 of rule I, the Speaker signed the following enrolled bills on Friday, June 28, 1996:

☐This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., ☐ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

H.R. 1880. An Act to designate the United States post office building located at 102 South McLean, Lincoln, IL, as the "Edward Madigan Post Office Building";

H.R. 2704. An Act to provide that the United States post office building that is to be located at 7436 South Exchange Avenue, Chicago, IL, shall be known and designated as the "Charles A. Hayes Post Office Building"; and

H.R. 3364. An Act to designate the Federal Building and United States courthouse located at 235 North Washington Avenue in Scranton, PA, as the "William J. Nealon Federal Building and United States Courthouse".

And the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. MORELLA) signed the following enrolled bill on Wednesday, July 3, 1996:

H.R. 2070. An Act to provide for the distribution within the United States of the United States Information Agency film entitled "Fragile Ring of Life."

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

By unanimous consent, permission to revise and extend remarks was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. MONTGOMERY) and to include extraneous matter:)

Mr. LIPINSKI.
Mr. UNDERWOOD.
Mr. SCHUMER.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

Mr. THOMAS, from the Committee on House Oversight, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the House of the following titles, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

On June 28, 1996:

H.R. 1880. An act to designate the United States Post Office building located at 102 South McLean, Lincoln, Illinois, as the "Edward Madigan Post Office Building";

H.R. 2704. An act to provide that the United States Post Office building that is to be located at 7436 South Exchange Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, shall be known and designated as the "Charles A. Hayes Post Office Building"; and

H.R. 3364. An act to designate the Federal building and United States courthouse located at 235 North Washington Avenue in Scranton, Pennsylvania, as the "William J. Nealon Federal Building and United States Courthouse."

On July 2, 1996:

H.R. 1508. An act to require the transfer of title to the District of Columbia of certain real property in Anacostia Park to facilitate the construction of National Children's Island, a cultural, educational, and family-oriented park;

H.R. 2070. An act to provide for the distribution within the United States of the United States Information Agency film entitled "Fragile Ring of Life"; and

H.R. 2853. An act to authorize the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment (most-favored-nation treatment) to the products of Bulgaria.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 7 minutes p.m.), under its previous order, the House adjourned until tomorrow, Tuesday, July 9, 1996, at 12:30 p.m. for morning hour debates.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

3925. A letter from the Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Sheep Promotion, Research, and Information Program (Docket No. LS-96-004 FR) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3926. A letter from the Congressional Review Coordinator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Viruses, Serums, Toxins, and Analogous Products; Marek's Disease Vaccines [APHIS Docket No. 94-046-2] received July 2, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801 (a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3927. A letter from the Acting Architect of the Capitol, transmitting the report of all expenditures during the period October 1, 1995 through March 31, 1996, pursuant to 40 U.S.C. 162b; to the Committee on Appropriations.

3928. A letter from the Assistant Secretary, Department of Education, transmitting notice of final priorities for fiscal year 1996—Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities Federal Activities Grants Program (Drug and Violence Prevention), pursuant to 20 U.S.C. 1232(f); to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

3929. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Education, transmitting the Department's report on the notice of final funding priorities for the Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities Federal Activities Grants Program (Drug and Violence Prevention), pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(B); to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

3930. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Education, transmitting the Department's report on the notice of final funding priorities for the Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities Federal Activities Grants Program (Hate Crimes Prevention), pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(B); to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

3931. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Triphenyltin Hydroxide; Tolerance Revision (FRL-5381-4) (RIN: 2070-AB78) received July 8, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3932. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Title V Clean Air Act Final Interim Approval of Operating Permits Program; Permits Program; Maryland (FRL-5530-4) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3933. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Control Strategy: Ozone (03); Tennessee (FRL-5529-3) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3934. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Requirements for Preparation, Adoption, and Submittal of Implementation Plan (FRL-5531-6) (RIN: 2060-AS01) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3935. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Approval of State Programs and Delegation of Federal Authorities (FRL-5531-3) received July 2, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3936. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Land Disposal Restrictions Phase III—Decharacterized Wastewaters, Carbamate Wastes, and Spent Potliners (RIN-2050-AD38) received July 2, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3937. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Final Rule Making Findings of Failure to Submit Required State Implementation Plans for Nonattainment Areas of Ozone (FRL-5536-1) received July 8, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3938. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Registration of Fuels and Fuel Additives: Minor Changes to the Testing Requirements for Registration (FRL-5532-4) received July 8, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3939. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plan for Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District (FRL-5524-2) received July 8, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3940. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Pesticide Tolerance for 1-[[2-(2,4-Dichlorophenyl)-4-propyl-1,3-dioxolan-2-yl] methyl]-1H-1,2,4-triazole (FRL-5381-7) (RIN: 2070-AB78) received July 8, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3941. A letter from the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rules—Amendment to Parts 20 and 24 of the Commission's rules—Broadband PCS Competitive Bidding and the Commercial Mobile Radio Service Spectrum Cap [WT Docket No. 96-59] and Amendment of the Commission's Cellular/PCS Cross-Ownership Rule [GN Docket No. 90-314] received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3942. A letter from the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—National Exchange Carrier Association Proposed Modifications to the Interstate Average Schedule Formulas (AAD 96-2) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3943. A letter from the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Federal-State Joint Board on Universal Service [CC Docket No. 96-45] received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3944. A letter from the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Amendment of Part 95 of the Commission's Rules to Allow Interactive Video and Data Service Licensees to Provide Mobile Service to Subscribers [WT Docket No. 95-47] received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3945. A letter from the Managing Director, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—1996 Annual Access Tariff Filings; National Exchange Carrier Association Universal Service Fund and Lifeline Assistance Rates; NYNEX Telephone Company Petition to Advance the Effective Date of the 5.3 X-Factor to January 1, 1995 (Transmittal No. 70) received June 26, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3946. A letter from the Director, Regulations Policy Management Staff, Food and Drug Administration, transmitting the Administration's final rule—Medical Devices; Humanitarian Use Devices; Final Rule [Docket No. 91N-0404] (RIN: 0910-AA09) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3947. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting notification of a proposed issuance of export license agreement for the transfer of defense articles or defense services sold commercially to Egypt (Transmittal No. DTC-29-96), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

3948. A communication from the President of the United States, transmitting his annual report reviewing all activities of U.S. Government departments and agencies during calendar year 1995 relating to the prevention of nuclear proliferation, pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 3281(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3949. A letter from the Assistant Legal Adviser for Treaty Affairs, Department of State, transmitting copies of international agreements, other than treaties, entered into by the United States, pursuant to 1 U.S.C. 112b(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

3950. A letter from the Deputy Director for Operations and Benefits, District of Columbia Retirement Board, transmitting the financial disclosure statement of a board member, pursuant to D.C. Code, section 1-732 and 1-734(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3951. A letter from the Administrator, Agency for International Development, transmitting the semiannual report on activities of the inspector general for the period October 1, 1995 through March 31, 1996, and the semiannual report on audit management for the same period, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. app. (Insp. Gen. Act) section 5(b); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3952. A letter from the Chairman, Federal Housing Finance Board, transmitting the Board's management report for the period ending December 31, 1995, pursuant to Public Law 101-576, section 306(a) (104 Stat. 2854); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3953. A letter from the Inspector General, General Services Administration, transmitting the Office's audit report register for the period ending March 31, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. app. (Insp. Gen. Act) section 5(b); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3954. A letter from the Chairman, President and CEO, National Railroad Passenger Corporation, transmitting the semiannual report on activities of the inspector general for the period October 1, 1995, through March 31, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. app. (Insp. Gen. Act) section 5(b); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3955. A letter from the Director, Office of Personnel Management, transmitting the Office's final rule—Pay Under the General Schedule; Termination of Interim Geographic Adjustments (RIN: 3206-AH09) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3956. A letter from the Secretary of Defense, transmitting the semiannual report on activities of the inspector general for the period October 1, 1995, through March 31, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. app. (Insp. Gen. Act) section 5(b); to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

3957. A letter from the Assistant Secretary, Land and Minerals Management, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Department's final rule—Final Rule To Allow for the Extension of the Bid Acceptance/Rejection Time Period (RIN: 1010-AC18) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3958. A letter from the Director, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Fisheries of the Northeastern United States [Docket No. 960612172-6172-01] (RIN: 0648-AI21) received July 2, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3959. A letter from the Program Managment Officer, National Marine Fisheries Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Fisheries off West Coast States and in the Western Pacific [Docket No. 960614176-6176-01] (RIN: 0648-AI18) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3960. A letter from the Acting Director, Office of Fisheries Conservation and Management, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Administration's final rule—Groundfish of the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands Area; Pacific Cod by Vessels Using Trawl Gear [Docket No. 96-129019-6019-01, I.D. 062196C] received July 8, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3961. A letter from the Attorney General of the United States, transmitting the annual report on the operations of the private counsel debt collection project for fiscal year 1995, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 3718(c); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3962. A letter from the Commissioner, Immigration and Naturalization Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Fees Assessed for Defaulted Payments (RIN: 1115-AD92) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3963. A letter from the Commissioner, Immigration and Naturalization Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Acquisition of Citizenship; Equal Treatment of Women in Conferring Citizenship on Children Born Abroad (RIN: 1115-AD75) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3964. A letter from the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, transmitting the 1995 annual report of independent auditors who have audited the records of the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, pursuant to Public Law 88-376, section 14(b) (78 Stat. 323); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3965. A letter from the General Counsel, National Tropical Botanical Garden, transmitting the annual audit report of the National Tropical Botanical Garden, calendar year 1995, pursuant to Public Law 88-449, section 10(b) (78 Stat. 498); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3966. A letter from the Assistant Secretary of the Army (Civil Works), transmitting a draft of proposed legislation entitled the "Water Resources Development Act of 1996"; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3967. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Navigational Safety Equipment for Towing Vessels (U.S. Coast Guard) (RIN: 2115-AE91) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3968. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Technical Amendments; Organizational Changes; Miscellaneous Editorial Changes and Conforming Amendments (U.S. Coast Guard) (RIN: 2115-AF33) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3969. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Macy's 1996 Fourth of July Fireworks, East River, New York (U.S. Coast Guard) (RIN: 2115-AA97) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3970. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Safety Zone Regulations: Delaware Bay, Delaware River (U.S. Coast Guard) (RIN: 2115-AA97) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3971. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Heritage of Pride Fireworks Display, Hudson River, NY (U.S. Coast Guard) (RIN: 2115-AA97) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3972. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Kentucky Drag Boat Association Races Green River Mile 70.0-71.5, Livermore, KY (U.S. Coast Guard) (RIN: 2115-AE46) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3973. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—100th Anniversary of Fort Hancock's Fireworks Display, Sandy Hook Bay, NJ (U.S. Coast Guard) (RIN: 2115-AA97) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3974. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Establishment of Class E Airspace; La Grande, Oregon (Federal Aviation Administration) [Docket No. 96-ANM-008] (RIN: 2120-AA66) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3975. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Establishment of Class E Airspace; Jackson, WY (Federal Aviation Administration) [Docket No. 96–ANM–004] (RIN: 2120–AA66) (1996–0079) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3976. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Establishment of Class E Airspace; Abilene, KS and Independence, KS (Federal Aviation Administration) [Docket No. 96–ACE–4] (RIN: 2120–AA66) (1996–0080) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3977. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; de Havilland DHC–8–301, –311, and –315 Series Airplanes (Federal Aviation Administration) [Docket No. 96–NM–268–AD] (RIN: 2120–AA64) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3978. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule—Leather Tanning and Finishing Effluent Limitations Guidelines Pretreatment Standards New and Existing Sources [FRL–5527–4] (RIN: 2040–AC48) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3979. A letter from the Director, Office of Regulations Management, Department of Veterans' Affairs, transmitting the Department's final rule—Reestablishing Rulemaking Procedures (RIN: 2900–AI32) received June 28, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

3980. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Weighted Average Interest Rate Update (Notice 96–36) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3981. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Low Income Housing Credit (Revenue Ruling 96–33) received July 1, 1996, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3982. A letter from the Administrator's of Federal Aviation Administration and National Aeronautics and Space Administration, transmitting a joint report to Congress on the progress being made under the Subsonic Noise Reduction Technology Program, fiscal year 1995, pursuant to 49 U.S.C. app. 1353 note; jointly, to the Committee on Science and Transportation and Infrastructure.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

[Omitted from the Record of June 27, 1996]

Mr. ROBERTS: Committee on Agriculture. H.R. 3464. A bill to make a minor adjustment in the exterior boundary of the Devils Backbone Wilderness in the Mark Twain National Forest, MO, to exclude a small parcel of land containing improvements; with an amendment (Rept. 104–654, Pt. 1). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. BLILEY: Committee on Commerce. H.R. 1514. A bill to authorize and facilitate a program to enhance safety, training, research, and development, and safety education in the propane gas industry for the benefit of propane consumers and the public, and for other purposes; with an amendment (Rept. 104–655, Pt. 1). Ordered to be printed.

Mr. HYDE: Committee on the Judiciary. H.R. 2740. A bill to protect sports fans and communities throughout the Nation, and for other purposes; with an amendment (Rept. 104–656, Pt. 1). Ordered to be printed.

[Submitted July 8, 1996]

Mr. PACKARD: Committee on Appropriations. H.R. 3754. A bill making appropriations for the Legislative Branch for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes (Rept. 104–657). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska: Committee on Resources. H.R. 3290. A bill to authorize appropriations for the Bureau of Land Management for each of the fiscal years 1997 through 2002 (Rept. 104–658). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. PORTER: Committee on Appropriations. H.R. 3755. A bill making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes (Rept. 104–659). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Committee on Appropriations. H.R. 3756. A bill making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the U.S. Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain Independent Agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes (Rept. 104–660). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

DISCHARGE OF COMMITTEE

[Omitted from the Record of June 27, 1996]

Pursuant to clause 5 of rule X the Committee on Resources discharged from further consideration H.R. 3464; referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

[Omitted from the Record of June 28, 1996]

Pursuant to clause 5 of rule X the Committee on House Oversight discharged from further consideration H.R. 1734; referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

TIME LIMITATION OF REFERRED BILL PURSUANT TO RULE X

Pursuant to clause 5 of rule X the following action was taken by the Speaker:

[Omitted from the Record of June 27, 1996]

H.R. 1514. Referral to the Committee on Science extended for a period ending not later than July 26, 1996.

H.R. 2740. Referral to the Committee on Commerce extended for a period ending not later than September 6, 1996.

H.R. 3464. Referral to the Committee on Resources extended for a period ending not later than June 27, 1996.

[The following action occurred on July 1, 1996]

H.R. 1816. Referral to the Committee on Commerce extended for a period ending not later than August 1, 1996.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 5 of rule X and clause 4 of rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. PALLONE (for himself, Mr. BREWSTER, Mr. FOX, Mr. FROST, Mr. ENGEL, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. LIPINSKI, Mr. FRAZER, Mr. THOMPSON, Ms. BROWN of Florida, Mr. ACKERMAN, Mr. CRAMER, Mr. DELLUMS, and Mrs. LOWEY):

H.R. 3757. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for coverage of pharmaceutical care services under part B of the Medicare Program; to the Committee on Commerce, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. LIVINGSTON:

H. Res. 471. Resolution electing Representative Enid Greene of Utah to act as Speaker pro tempore; considered and agreed to.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII,

235. The SPEAKER presented a memorial of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 109 memorializing the U.S. Congress to provide for purposes of the Federal income tax that expense reimbursements for schoolbus drivers not be included in wages; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Under clause 4 of rule XXII, sponsors were added to public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 969: Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts.

H.R. 1100: Mr. HORN, Mr. MINGE, Mr. OLVER, and Mr. UNDERWOOD.

H.R. 1281: Mr. YATES and Mr. MCHALE.

H.R. 1608: Mr. SHAYS.

H.R. 2270: Mr. MCINTOSH.

H.R. 3119: Mr. SANDERS.

H.R. 3195: Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida.

H.R. 3241: Mr. JEFFERSON.

H.R. 3393: Mr. YATES.

H.R. 3568: Mr. HOLDEN, Mr. FATTAH, and Mr. FOX.

H.R. 3630: Ms. MOLINARI.

H. Con. Res. 179: Mr. DAVIS.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of rule XXII,

73. The SPEAKER presented a petition of Leslie G. Woods Post 217, American Legion, IL, relative to the American Legion's support of H.R. 3321; which was referred to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

SENATE—Monday, July 8, 1996

The Senate met at 12:30 p.m., and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. THURMOND).

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Our prayer today will be led by Father Paul Lavin, pastor of St. Joseph's on Capitol Hill, Washington, DC.

PRAYER

The guest Chaplain, Father Paul Lavin, pastor of St. Joseph's on Capitol Hill, offered the following prayer:

Let us listen to the word of the Lord in Psalm 18:

I would love thee, O Lord, my strength.

The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation.

I will call upon the Lord, who is worthy to be praised.

Let us pray:

We stand before You, O Lord conscious of our sinfulness but aware of Your love for us.

Come to us, remain with us, and enlighten our hearts.

Give us light and strength to know Your will to make it our own and to live it in our lives.

Guide us by Your wisdom, support us by Your power, keep us faithful to all that is true.

You desire justice for all: Enable us to uphold the rights of others; do not allow us to be misled by ignorance or corrupted by fear or favor.

Glory and praise to You for ever and ever. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able majority leader, Senator LOTT, is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, today there will be a period for morning business until the hour of 3:30 p.m., with Senator KENNEDY or his designee in control of the time from 12:30 to 2 p.m., and Senator COVERDELL or his designee in control of the time from 2 until 3:30 p.m.

Following morning business, the Senate will begin consideration of H.R. 3448, the small business tax package legislation. Under the consent agreement reached, there are a limited number of amendments in order to that bill and all debate time will be used today. No rollcall votes will occur during today's session. Therefore, any votes ordered on the amendments will occur at 2:15 on Tuesday.

On Tuesday, following the completion of H.R. 3448, the Senate will begin consideration of S. 295, the TEAM Act. As a reminder to all Senators, any votes ordered on amendments to the TEAM Act will occur during Wednesday's session of the Senate. Senators should also be reminded that, under a previous order, the Senate will vote on passage of the Department of Defense authorization bill at 9:30 on Wednesday, although I should note that because of the likelihood of a signing at the White House of the church burning legislation, we are working to see if we might defer that vote until, I believe, 12 o'clock on Wednesday. But we will make that official later on during the day, if we get it all worked out.

Immediately following that vote, the Senate will proceed to the House of Representatives for a joint meeting of Congress to hear an address by the Prime Minister of Israel. Of course, if we do not have that vote at 9:30, we will assemble here and we will go right to the House for that joint meeting.

Due to the joint meeting, it may be necessary to postpone the vote on the passage of DOD until later in the afternoon on Tuesday, as I have already announced. We will make that announcement as soon as possible today.

At noon on Wednesday, there will be a vote on the motion to invoke cloture on the motion to proceed to S. 1788, the National Right To Work Act.

Finally, I should say the appropriations process has to move forward. I anticipate we will take actions this week on appropriations measures. The first will be the Department of Defense appropriations bill, to be followed by the foreign operations appropriations bill.

All Members should plan their schedules to anticipate votes, probably into the early evening on Tuesday and on Wednesday, although we hope not to go late. Then, on Thursday, depending on what progress we have made on the DOD appropriations bill and the foreign ops appropriations bill, we could go late into the evening on Thursday.

I yield the floor.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAIG). Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 3:30 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak therein for not to exceed 5 minutes. The time between 12:30 and 2 p.m. shall be under the control of the Senator from Massachusetts, Senator KENNEDY, or his designee.

The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I might use.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE MINIMUM WAGE

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, tomorrow, July 9, is minimum wage day in the U.S. Senate. The Senate will finally have an up-or-down vote on a fair increase in the minimum wage. The minimum wage has been stuck at its current level of $4.25 an hour for some 5 years. The increase that we propose to $5.15 an hour should have gone into effect at least a year ago. But for 18 months Republicans refused to allow this Senate to vote.

Now the long overdue vote is about to take place, but the Republican obstruction has not ended. Opponents of the minimum wage have devised a shameless trick to prevent as much of the increase as possible, by delaying it and by denying it to large numbers of deserving American workers.

The Republican amendment is a sham. It purports to raise the minimum wage from $4.25 to $5.15 an hour, but in fact it will deny that increase to most Americans who would otherwise receive it. To paraphrase the words of a country and western song, "One step forward, two steps back, you don't get a raise with a trick like that."

Under our Democratic proposal, more than 13 million Americans will receive a raise when the minimum wage bill is passed. Under the Republican amendment, most of these workers would never see that raise. First, the Republican amendment exempts more than 4 million workers, almost half of all the minimum wage workers earning between $4.25 and $5.15 an hour, by creating a permanent subminimum wage for the first 6 months on the job.

Second, the Republican amendment exempts two-thirds of all workers eligible for the increase by exempting the 10 million workers and businesses with annual sales of less than $500,000 a year.

Third, the Republican amendment exempts the 2 million employees in restaurants and other establishments who rely on tips for part of that income.

These three exemptions clearly overlap. Some workers will be caught by all three exemptions. The Republicans have left no stone unturned in their cynical attempt to find as many ways as possible to deny a fair increase in the minimum wage to as many American workers as possible. But Republicans are not even satisfied with these massive exemptions. They also want to delay the increase in the minimum wage for anyone who still qualifies to receive it.

As one more insult to American workers, the Republican amendment would delay the increase by 6 more months, until January 1997. No increase at all for anyone in 1996 is the last line of defense for Republicans in their unseemly battle against the minimum wage.

So, President Clinton is correct to say, as he did in his veto letter of June 28, 1996, that he will veto a minimum wage increase that contains any of these Republican tricks.

Make no mistake, a vote for the Bond amendment is a vote to kill the minimum wage increase for now and for the foreseeable future. That is the strategy of the Republicans and their right-wing allies.

The National Retail Federation has mounted a campaign in support of the Republican amendment. They sent out an action alert last week, in which they abandon any pretense that the Republican amendment is anything other than an attempt to kill the minimum wage increase. The Republican amendment, they say, "is our last chance and best hope for stopping the minimum wage increase this year."

Mr. President, I will include it all in the RECORD. On page 1, the bottom of page 1, it says, "It is our last chance and best hope for stopping the minimum wage increase this year," to support the Bond amendment. Then it lists a number of the Senators who should be targeted by their organization.

I ask unanimous consent the letter and list be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL RETAIL FEDERATION

MEMORANDUM

To: Government and Legal Affairs Committee, National Association Executives.

From: John J. Motley III, Senior Vice President, Government and Public Affairs.

Re action needed on minimum wage.

Date: July 1, 1996.

Attached for your review and use is an action alert describing the current situation with the minimum wage increase in the U.S. Senate.

The Senate will vote on the minimum wage increase on July 9. NRF is working to pass the Bond amendment and defeat the Kennedy amendment.

For those of you with operations in the targeted states—Arkansas, Colorado, Maine, Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and Vermont—any help you could lend getting Senators to support the Bond amendment would be much appreciated. NRF members and the state retail association executives based in the target states have already received a copy of the action alert.

The vote will be close. If more than two Republicans vote against Bond and not one Democrat votes for it, we cannot win.

Passing the Bond amendment is probably our best change to kill the minimum wage increase. If you have any questions, please contact me or Kent Knutson at (202) 783–7971. Many thanks.

Several Senators are undecided on the Bond amendment and need to hear from you. The vote will be extremely close, so please take a minute to call, FAX, or write and urge them to vote for the Bond amendment and against the Kennedy amendment.

SENATORS WHO NEED TO HEAR FROM YOU

State and Senator	Phone	Fax
Arkansas:
Dale Bumpers	(202) 224–4843	224–6435
David Pryor	(202) 224–2353	228–3973
Colorado: Ben Nighthorse Campbell	(202) 224–5852	224–1933
Maine:
Bill Cohen	(202) 224–2523	224–2693
Olympia Snowe	(202) 224–5344	224–1946
Nebraska:
Bob Kerrey	(202) 224–6551	224–7645
Jim Exon	(202) 224–4224	224–5213
New York: Alfonse D'Amato	(202) 224–6542	224–5871
Pennsylvania:
Arlen Specter	(202) 224–4254	228–1229
Rick Santorum	(202) 224–6324	228–0604
South Dakota: Larry Pressler	(202) 224–5842	228–0368
Vermont: Jim Jeffords	(202) 224–5141	228–1932

Please send a copy of any correspondence to NRF, Attention: Grassroots Department at fax (202) 737–2849.

Don't hesitate to call if you have any questions at (202) 783–7971. Thanks so much for your help.

Mr. KENNEDY. So the battle lines are clearly drawn.

I urge the Senate to stand with American working families, not against them. I urge the Senate to stand for the basic principle that the minimum wage should be a living wage; that no American who works for a living should have to live in poverty.

Tomorrow's vote will be one of the most important votes in the U.S. Senate this year. Millions of hard-working men and women are struggling to lift themselves out of poverty and provide a decent life for their families. They are looking to us for hope and help, and it is time for them to get a raise.

Our Democratic proposal would raise the minimum wage to $5.15 an hour in two 45-cent steps. The first step would take place as of July 4 this year, and I mention, Mr. President, that is in the legislation, but, obviously, since that date has passed, with the passage of our amendment, it is hoped that in conference we can delay the implementation of that for 30 days after the President signs. That will give a reasonable period of time for it to be implemented and reasonable notification to those who are going to have to pay it.

As of that date, the minimum wage would be $4.70 an hour. The second part of the increase, to $5.15, would take place on July 4 next year. Raising the minimum wage is critical for millions of low-wage workers who are directly affected by it, and it is critical for the economy as a whole.

The widening income gap is a worsening problem in the United States, and the declining purchasing power of the minimum wage is a significant problem.

Mr. President, this chart shows how America grew from 1950 to 1978—"Growing Together, Real Family Income Growth by Quintile." What we see is those at the bottom level of the economic ladder actually grew 138 percent. They grew more than any other sector of our economy. The second quintile at 98 percent; the third at 106 percent; the fourth at 111 percent; and the top 20 percent at 99 percent. All America grew together, and if there was any answer, it was that all Americans were playing by the rules, working hard providing for their families, which was part of the whole American growth pattern.

But look what has happened since. This first chart represents 1950 to 1978. Now on this second chart, we have from 1979 to 1994. This chart reflects real family income growth by quintile, but it is growing apart. The largest continuing growth has been on the top 20 percent, and if you went to the top 5 percent, you would see that percent of growth even higher. If you went to the top 1 percent, the wealthiest individuals and corporations, you would see that those numbers would go up even higher.

What has happened is, on the bottom 20 percent, you see the real family income had an actual decline of 11 percent from 1979 to 1994. This does not represent what I think most Americans expect, hope for, and think is fair. What they expect is that all Americans will grow and participate in an expanding economy. Quite to the contrary. We see those who are on the bottom 20 percent have seen the most serious decline in family income. It is in this particular group that the minimum wage workers are most adversely affected.

Since 1979, 97 percent of the increase in real household income has gone to the wealthiest 20 percent of American families, while only 3 percent has gone to the other 80 percent. The real family income of most American families has declined since 1979, while the real income of the top 20 percent of families grew by 18 percent. Part of the decline in income for working families has been caused by the drop in the purchasing power of the minimum wage, which has fallen almost 30 percent since 1979. It is worth 50 cents an hour less today than when it was last raised in 1991.

Mr. President, this chart reflects the declining real value of the minimum wage over the period from 1960 up to 1995. What we see is the real purchasing value. It has been gradually increasing at the lower levels, which I will get to in a few moments. But this chart represents the real minimum wage, from 1960 to 1995, and going back to 1969, 1970 in purchasing power, it would be $6.45 today instead of $4.25. That is a $2 spread in purchasing power for working families, not to families who are on welfare, but working families who want to keep off welfare. They are playing by the rules: 40 hours a week, 52 weeks of the year.

Effectively, they have taken a significant cut in their purchasing power, from $6.45 down to what it would be now at $4.25. This represents the declining value of the purchasing power for families. In 1991, the last time the minimum wage was increased, we got a slight blip and now it has gone right back down, at the present time, even below where it was in 1989.

Incredibly, the economy today is a great deal stronger than it was in 1989. Still, in 1989, we have had not only virtually all of the Democrats voting for an increase in the minimum wage, but we had Republicans as well. We had Republicans as well. Senator Dole voted for an increase. Speaker GINGRICH at that time voted for the increase in the minimum wage when our economy was not as strong.

Now we find the purchasing power is right back to where it was in 1989. The economy is a great deal stronger, and we have been seeing the complete opposition by the leadership of the House of Representatives that said we will not give an opportunity to vote on an increase in the minimum wage.

Finally, the American people spoke about that issue, and finally, reluctantly, the House of Representatives increased the minimum wage with some courageous Republicans who supported it.

Now, after over a year of trying to get a vote on the minimum wage by attaching it, or threatening to attach it, to any of the different pieces of legislation that came along, we are now in a position where we will get an opportunity to vote on the minimum wage, not just to vote on increasing the minimum wage, which has been the tradition, historic tradition of the increases in minimum wage, but we will vote on a proposal of our Republican friends that I described earlier that on the one hand would appear to give the increase in the minimum wage, but, on the other hand clearly takes it back.

So that, Mr. President, is how we find this debate, both today and tomorrow, and why we believe that it is so important that Americans will let their Members of Congress know again that working families ought to be entitled to an increase in the minimum wage to, not even bring the working families out of poverty, but at least give them about $1,800 more, which is a good deal more income for families. It would reflect about a 22- or 23-percent increase in their wages, enough to support groceries for 7 months of the year, probably pay for tuition for 1 year for a son or daughter to attend the college in their home State, and so on, probably the premium for some health insurance programs that they may be able to provide either for their children, perhaps for themselves. It represents a very significant and important increase for those who are working.

Mr. President, as a nation, we are moving, as I mentioned, farther and farther away from the fundamental principle that honest work should pay an honest wage, and full-time, year-round workers should be able to keep their families out of poverty. Today a nurse's aide, a janitor, a child care worker—Mr. President, that is what we are talking about, those who are making the minimum wage.

We will have an opportunity to put some names and, hopefully, some faces and some lives out here in the course of this debate in the next couple of days. But basically they are teachers' aides, those who are working with the children in our classrooms all over this country, increasingly challenged by all of the challenges which are there in the schools of our Nation, trying to provide help and assistance to a teacher so a teacher can teach.

They are nurses' aides and health care workers. Some are in those schools. Health care workers are primarily, perhaps, in nursing homes who are looking after parents to make sure that those parents are going to be treated fairly and decently, taking care of them, washing them, feeding them, changing them, some of the most difficult, trying work that anyone could ask for in this country. They do it and do it well and do it with a sense of respect and decency.

They are janitors who, long after men and women who are in the major companies and corporations in the buildings of this Nation go home for the day, they are in there, after dark, and spend many long hours into the evening cleaning up those buildings and may be lucky enough to get home before their kids go out and go to school in the morning, to see them for a few hours.

Mr. President, these are the men and women who are doing the tough, difficult work that is out there in America to be done. They do it with pride and dignity. They do it to provide for their families, for their loved ones. We evidently are coming to the point where we may have an opportunity to see some increase, and we are faced with Republican opposition to undermine the very modest increase.

This is a modest increase, Mr. President. When we first introduced what is the legislation that we will be voting on, we wanted it 3 years at 50 cents, and a cost-of-living increase. That does not seem to me to be enormously radical. It would probably bring this back up to here in terms of the purchasing power of the minimum wage. But now we are back to 45 cents—45 cents—and for 2 years without the cost-of-living increase. And we are facing opposition for that very, very modest, modest increase.

So today, Mr. President, a nurse's aide, a janitor, a child care worker, anyone else who makes a minimum wage earns just $8,800 for 52 weeks of work at 40 hours a week, more than $6,000 below the poverty level for a family of four. According to the old saying, "The rich get richer; the poor get poorer." But that should not be the Nation's economic policy.

Today, one out of every nine families with a full-time worker lives in poverty without enough money to feed and clothe their children and keep a roof over their heads. Rich America is getting richer. The stock market may be sputtering, but the increase has gone to more than 400 percent since 1992. Real wages have declined by 15 percent. As the values of Wall Street have soared, the values of Main Street have fallen farther and farther behind.

Mr. President, this chart indicates again the comparison, using one indicator, and that is what is happening on Wall Street. I know there are other indicators; we can get into those as well. But what we have seen is the enormous growth, adjusted to inflation, in what has happened in the Dow Jones industrial average over the period from 1979 through 1995. What has happened to the minimum wage? Here are hard-working workers who are doing the difficult jobs that need to be done, and here we see the Dow Jones industrial average going up and continuing to go up.

In the Senate, we have given ourselves three pay increases since the last increase in the minimum wage in 1991. Congressional pay raises have totaled $31,000, a 31-percent increase. The bill before the Senate calls for 90 cents in the minimum wage over the next 2 years, a 22-percent increase.

Mr. President, it is time to support those who work for a living instead of living off welfare. I must say, Mr. President, that if you want to talk about real welfare reform, it is increasing the minimum wage. Let us get people who can work and want to work back to work and give them a livable wage. An interesting fact, Mr. President, is that if you get this increase in the minimum wage, you see the savings in the safety net. You see significant, hundreds of millions of dollars of reductions in payments of AFDC, you see hundreds of millions of dollars of reductions in the Medicaid Program, in the Food Stamp Program.

You have more than 300,000 children who would come out of poverty; well over 100,000 families coming out of poverty; they will not be eligible for those expenditures. That is only with a very modest increase in the minimum wage. Why should the Federal taxpayer be paying in to a fund that supports these safety-net programs to subsidize those who are not paying a fair wage? That is what this is about, too; subsidizing many of those companies that refuse to provide a livable wage. They are getting subsidization for their workers with the other safety-net programs.

Those safety-net programs were never devised for that particular purpose. If you provide this modest increase in the minimum wage, you are going to be saving the taxpayers an additional amount.

I believe the overpowering and overwhelming argument is that we ought to have a basic standard of fairness and justice in our economy. The economy ought to move in a way that is not going to serve just the wealthiest individuals but is going to serve all Americans. That is what this country ought to be about and what it is about when it is at its best. These hard-working Americans deserve this kind of assurance that they are going to be able to provide for their families.

But if you do not like that argument and you are only persuaded, as so many apparently are in this body, by what is going to be actually expended in terms of the taxpayers, this is a good bargain for those individuals as well.

Mr. President, what we are talking about here are 13 million Americans who will receive a pay increase from this legislation—13 million Americans.

Mr. President, we hear often on this floor that the best way to get any increase for working Americans is to insist on the balanced budget amendment. I support a balanced budget, not with the priorities that have been outlined by our Republican friends. But that is a debate for a different time. But the interesting fact remains, Mr. President, that if our Republican friends were able to get the balanced budget amendment through, according to their own CBO, it would mean a one-half of 1 percent increase in the income of those 13 million workers who are working at a minimum wage level—one-half of 1 percent.

This minimum wage program which we support will amount to a 4 percent increase for the 40 percent of the lowest income American workers. We can do that virtually by adopting this particular program that has passed the House of Representatives and will be before the U.S. Senate tomorrow. This can make an important difference—an important difference—to the real income of working families as compared to what we are asked to do by our Republican friends saying, "Well, let's just go ahead and balance the budget. That will reflect itself in greater opportunities for those workers." Even their own figures do not justify that position.

Mr. President, as many as 2.3 million children live in poor or near-poor families where workers will get a raise. This is a children's issue. This is a children's issue. Of this, 1.52 million are living in families with just one breadwinner. We will probably even hear in the debate that this really is not an important issue because it only affects the 10, 13 million Americans in a work force of 129, 130 million Americans. It is enormously important to those children, the million and a half of those children whose whole position is being threatened now in the cuts in the Medicaid Program, the transfer, the reduction in immunization and all of the screening programs that are out there, when we know that two-thirds of the children on Medicaid have parents who are working.

I do not understand what it is with our Republican friends, what they have against children of working families. But that is the fact of the impact of many of these cuts, both in the Medicaid Program, the education program, and the opposition to the increase in the minimum wage. It is callous. It is wrong. But, nonetheless, we are faced with it. We will have an opportunity tomorrow to make a judgment whether we are going to stand with the children, the needy children, the poor children that did not, as a matter of choice, choose to grow up in a household where their families are making the minimum wage at this time.

Mr. KYL assumed the Chair.

Mr. KENNEDY. Now, Mr. President, this is not only children, but this is also about women in our society. The greatest percent are women; 64 or 65 percent of the minimum wage workers are women in our society. Seven million women and more than 5 million adult women will receive a fair raise if the minimum wage is increased.

Who are the 5 million adult women? Two million are single heads of households with at least one dependent. They are raising families, caring for children, trying to get by on a poverty-level wage. It is time for them to get a raise.

Mr. President, 60 percent of minimum wage workers are married. They contribute an average of 51 percent of family earnings. We are not talking about teenagers earning pocket money. We will hear talk about that later this afternoon, I am sure. We are talking about people whose families depend on them for their survival and well-being. It is time for them to get a raise.

The large numbers of minimum wage workers who are women work in hospitals, food services, and restaurants, where they work as cashiers, clean hotel rooms and work in laundries. Their jobs are hard, but they perform them with dignity and commitment, and do the best they can to provide for their families. It is time for them to get a raise.

An additional large number of minimum wage earners who are women work directly with children in child care and as teachers aides. They deserve more respect for the care that they give the Nation's children, the 52 million children, that are in our K through 12 across this Nation. With all the challenges that they are facing, it is time they get a raise.

Another major industry that employs large numbers of women just above the minimum wage is in the health care area, especially the occupations of nurses' aides, home care aides. They are some of the most difficult jobs in our society, caring for the sick and the helpless, washing them, feeding them, cleaning their bedpans. It is time they get a raise.

What will the minimum wage increase mean for a family living in poverty? We mentioned what it means in groceries, what it means in health care costs, including prescription drugs, out-of-pocket expenses, utility bills or basic housing costs lasting for a period of some 4 months. All of that has been mentioned.

Mr. President, a point that we will hear, I am sure, later this afternoon, "We are opposed because they really are the wealthy teenagers that are involved in this program. They are not really people involved in the minimum wage." We will also hear, as I have already heard during the course of this debate, that question about whether this increase in the minimum wage helps minorities in the workplace.

Based on census data of 1.5 million African-Americans between $4.25 and $5.15 an hour, 17 percent of all hourly African American workers are making that minimum wage. One million are women. Raising the minimum wage will provide a modest increase for the poorest African-Americans raising children and struggling to survive. It is time for them to get a raise.

I hope those opposed to our position will minimize the amount of time they spend on this issue as being the great defenders of minorities. We heard that all the time in all the past debates.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD several excellent letters referencing the minimum wage.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE,
Washington, DC, March 19, 1996.

Re Fair Minimum Wage.

DEAR SENATOR: I am writing to you today on behalf of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), the nation's oldest and largest civil rights organization, in strong support of a fair minimum wage. Specifically, the NAACP seeks the swift passage of "The Working Wage Increase Act of 1995" (S.413). We have been informed that this bill may be scheduled for a Senate floor vote later this week.

This important legislation provides for an increase in the current minimum wage by 90 cents an hour, to $5.15, over two years. It is clearly a step in the right direction to improve the income and the quality of living for all Americans through an increase in the minimum wage. This is particularly true for African Americans, who disproportionately constitute a large segment of minimum wage earners with below poverty level incomes.

Legislation increasing the minimum wage is a measure long overdue for hardworking Americans who are desperately trying to make ends meet. The real value of the minimum wage is at a forty year low. The minimum wage was first set at 25 cents an hour in 1938 under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). Moreover, Congress last raised the minimum wage with bi-partisan support in 1989 from $3.35 an hour to $4.25 an hour over two years.

In addition to the merits of arguments supporting an increased minimum wage, the NAACP also believes that this initiative fits squarely into the welfare reform debate. The NAACP supports meaningful welfare reform. We believe that meaningful welfare reform includes elements that encourage and support work; that hold both parents responsible for the economic support of their children; and that move poor families from dependency to economic self-sufficiency.

The NAACP maintains that Senators who are calling for welfare reform should back efforts to increase the minimum wage since, as a practical matter, the current minimum wage is a disincentive to working and an incentive to remaining on welfare.

For all of these reasons, we strongly urge you to vote in favor of S.413 when it advances to a Senate floor vote in the next few days. Thank you for your consideration of our views.

Sincerely,

WADE HENDERSON,
Director.

NATIONAL URBAN LEAGUE, INC.,
Washington, DC, March 19, 1996.

DEAR SENATOR: The National Urban League believes that raising the minimum wage is an eminently sensible step. It would mean affirming a pro-work, pro-family stance that should be welcomed by all who believe work should be rewarded and that ways must be found to boost the eroding incomes of low-wage workers. The Senate can take immediate action by passing the legislation that would raise the minimum wage from its current level of $4.25 to $5.15 an hour over two years.

The prevailing minimum wage has now reached its lowest level in 40 years. Erosion of the minimum wage is a major factor in the sharp decline in the living standards of the poorest families. A person who works full time—40 hours per week, 50 weeks per year—at the current Federal minimum wage brings home only $8,500 for an entire year's work.

Contrary to the assumption that the prime beneficiaries would be affluent teenagers, studies reveal that only a tenth of minimum wage workers are teenagers in families with above average incomes. The typical minimum wage worker is an adult woman who works full time or more than twenty hours weekly. Seventy-six percent of the benefits of the increased minimum wage would go to families with below average incomes. And over a fourth of those low wage workers are black and Hispanic, therefore the impact of a higher minimum wage would have an immediate impact on minority purchasing power.

Raising the minimum wage should get bipartisan support as a way to help poor families raise their living standards and as a way to close the income gap that threatens American ideals of fairness and equality.

Sincerely,

HUGH B. PRICE,
President and Chief Executive Officer.

NATIONAL HISPANA LEADERSHIP INSTITUTE,
Arlington, VA, March 18, 1996.

DEAR SENATOR: The National Hispana Leadership Institute represents over 200 professional Hispanic women from throughout the United States who are leaders in their communities. These women are directors of non-profit and government agencies, political appointees, elected officials and corporate employees.

I am writing on their behalf in support of the minimum wage increase to $5.15 over the next two years. Statistics indicate that: (1) six out of ten workers earning the minimum wage or less are women, (2) overall, more than half of low-wage women workers are mothers; of these nearly half are the sole wage earners in their families, (3) in 1995, a single mother with two children earning the minimum wage, full-time, year round earned $8,840 annually, 27 percent below the poverty line for a family of three. The statistics noted here are even worse for Hispanic women.

It is time that this country began to take care of its families and children. Corporate profits and the salaries of CEO's continue to rise while Americans are laid off work, employee benefits cut and government services curtailed. The gap between the rich and the poor continues to increase; the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. What does that mean for the future of our country?

I urge you to vote in favor of the minimum wage increase.

Sincerely yours,

NANCY LEON,
President.

LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE ON CIVIL RIGHTS,
Washington, DC, March 19, 1996.

DEAR SENATOR: The Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, a coalition of 180 national organizations representing minorities, women, persons with disabilities, older Americans, labor, gays and lesbians, religious groups, and minority businesses and professions, would like to express its strong support for legislation that would raise the minimum wage to $5.15 per hour.

As you know, Congress enacted the minimum wage to protect working families against poverty. However, a single mother with two children who works full time at $4.25 per hour will find that her family remains trapped nearly 30 percent below the federal poverty level. Thus, a permanent underclass is maintained. It is incumbent upon the United States Congress to raise the minimum wage and improve the quality of life for low income workers.

A minimum wage increase would benefit many American workers. More than 12 million workers would benefit directly if Congress raised the minimum wage to $5.15 per hour, and several million more who earn slightly more than $5.15 per hour would experience an increase from the ripple effect that results when the minimum wage is raised.

The last minimum wage increase in 1989 received strong bipartisan support. The Senate passed the increase by a vote of 89 to 8, and the House by a vote of 382 to 37. It was signed into law by President Bush.

The Leadership Conference strongly urges you to vote for legislation to raise the minimum wage to $5.15 per hour.

Sincerely,

RICHARD WOMACK,
Acting Executive Director.
DOROTHY I. HEIGHT,
Chairperson.

MEXICAN AMERICAN LEGAL DEFENSE AND EDUCATIONAL FUND,
Washington, DC, March 19, 1996.

DEAR SENATOR: The time has come to raise the minimum wage to a living wage. On behalf of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund (MALDEF), I urge your support of S. 413, a proposal to raise the minimum wage to protect the nation's working families.

Today's minimum wage is at its lowest value in forty years. During this time, the purchasing power of the minimum wage has fallen to its second lowest level. The effect has been devastating to many American families, but particularly worse for Latinos. Because Latinos represent 17% of the minimum wage work force, this decline in the value of work has a severe impact on our community. Latino families are more likely to live below the poverty line, and Latino children are twice as likely to be living in poverty than non-Hispanic children.

By moderately raising the minimum wage, we will all benefit. Over a dozen empirical studies have shown that an increase in the minimum wage would not have a negative impact on employment. Instead of having the largest wage gap of any industrial country, Congress can act to keep jobs while protecting American working families against poverty.

Help lift families out of poverty and improve the lives of over 11 million American workers now dependent on minimum wage jobs. Please support S. 413.

Sincerely,

ANTONIA HERNANDEZ,
President and General Counsel.

MIGRANT LEGAL ACTION PROGRAM, INC.,
Washington, DC, March 18, 1996.

Re Minimum Wage Increase (S. 413).

DEAR SENATOR: We are writing to urge you to support S. 413, which would aid America's working families by increasing the minimum wage from $4.25 to $5.15 per hour.

If the minimum wage were to stay at its current level, it would be at the lowest level in real (inflation-adjusted) dollars in the last 40 years. The real value of the minimum wage is now 27% lower than it was in 1979, and has fallen 45 cents in real value since its last increase in April 1991. The last minimum wage increase—also 90 cents—garnered strong bipartisan support. That increase was passed by votes of 382 (including 135 Republicans) to 37 in the House and 89 (including 36 Republicans) to 8 in the Senate. Both Senator Dole and Representative Gingrich voted in favor of that increase.

Empirical evidence shows that this proposal can increase wages without costing jobs. More than a dozen studies have found that moderate increases in the minimum wage do not have significant effect on employment. These studies include state-specific research that shows that large state increases in the minimum wage did not result in significant job impacts. As Nobel Laureate Robert Solow stated, "[T]he evidence of job loss is weak. And the fact that evidence is weak suggests that the impact on jobs is small."

The Migrant Legal Action Program works on behalf of the millions of migrant and seasonal farmworkers in the United States. An estimated 1.65 million farmworkers would benefit from the proposed minimum wage increase. Despite their critical role in providing stoop labor to prune, tend, harvest, and pack our nation's fruit and vegetables, migrant farmworkers are among the most impoverished and exploited populations in this country. At least two-thirds of all migrant farmworkers live below the poverty line. The majority of migrant farmworkers earn on average $4.47 per hour. Research indicates that an increase in the minimum wage of $5.15 would have a "ripple" effect, raising the wages of farmworkers who earn within 50 cents of the new minimum wage. Thus, a rise in the minimum wage would be a significant boost to the standard of living of migrant farmworkers.

We strongly urge you to support Americans' low-wage workers, including farmworkers, by voting in favor of S. 413.

Sincerely,

ROGER C. ROSENTHAL,
Executive Director.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, excerpts from the excellent statement from the NAACP state:

> It is clearly a step in the right direction to improve the income and the quality of living for all Americans through an increase in the minimum wage. This is particularly true for African Americans, who disportionately constitute a large segment of minimum wage earners with below poverty level incomes. . . For all of these reasons, we strongly urge you to vote in favor of S. 413 . . .

"The National Urban League," the same, "believes that raising the minimum wage is an eminently sensible step. It would mean affirming a pro-work pro-family stance that should be welcomed by all who believe work should be rewarded * * *."

This continues with the National Hispanic Leadership Institute: "It is time that this country began to take care of families and children."

This is a women's issue. It is an issue of justice. It is a children's issue. Mr. President, it is a family issue—a family issue.

I will not take the time of the Senate now to recount the stories that we heard during our forums on the increase in the minimum wage, where we find a father and a mother not just having one minimum wage job, but each having two minimum wage jobs—two minimum wage jobs. When they testified or told us about their life's experience, they did not complain about working hard. They did not complain about backbreaking hours or hard, difficult, dreary work that is repetitive in so many ways. They did not complain. Their principle complaint was they did not have enough time with their children, that they did not see their children together, that the only time they see their children together is perhaps for a few hours on a Sunday. They always saw their children apart. We heard that time in and time out, Mr. President.

I hope we will not hear a lot of arguments about families, which we always do, and then when we have something that can make a real difference in terms of families, we find opposition to it. This is a families issue. It is a mother's issue, a child's issue, an issue of justice and fairness, an issue of identifying and rewarding work. It is family issue, and it is an economic issue for the reasons I outlined, in saving the taxpayer.

It goes on, Mr. President. Another letter, from MALDEF:

> The time has come to raise the minimum wage to a living wage.

Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, Migrant Legal Action Program, all excellent letters. I hope those who come out in opposition, who say, "We do not want to see a great dislocation of jobs," this opens an opportunity for minorities, blacks, and browns. The organizations that speak to them and the individuals that speak on this issue overwhelmingly support an increase.

Nowhere in America is there higher support than among those that are receiving the minimum wage, even when all the arguments are made, and I think inappropriately, about the dangers to those individuals—their jobs. I will come back to that issue.

Mr. President, this is a public health issue, as shown in a recent study by the Harvard School of Public Health and published in the British Medical Journal. Income inequality is a major public health problem. Measures such as raising the minimum wage, reducing the gap between the rich and poor will have a beneficial impact on the Nation's health. Findings show that reducing the income gap is correlated with mortality, even after adjusting for age and smoking. It is especially correlated with infant mortality, coronary heart disease, cancer, homicide, higher mortality from treatable diseases. One striking result is that the relationship between income inequality and mortality rates remained even after controlling for poverty. Greater income inequality was actually correlated with increased mortality rates for all income levels, not only for the poor.

So, Mr. President, for those that are opposed to the position we have advanced here this afternoon about what the impact of this is going to be on employment, we have included the series of studies on the impact on employment. I will come back to those issues in just a few moments, but these are some of the most recent studies, seven recent minimum wage studies on the impact of our increase in the minimum wage and what it would have on employment. These are the subjects of the study: New Jersey, Pennsylvania fast food restaurants, minimum wage raised to $5.05 in April 1992; increase in the wage, 11 percent. Did employment go down? No, employment goes up.

Right across the chart, Texas fast food restaurants, minimum wage rises to $4.25 in 1991. Mr. President, Texas has one of the highest numbers of people that would benefit with this increase in minimum wage. Wages go up 8 percent, and employment up 20 percent.

It goes on. California teenagers, minimum wage rises in 1988, 10 percent in wages, employment up 12 percent. Cross-State teenagers, cross-State workers with low-predicted wages from 1989 to 1992—we see the numbers constantly go up. And you can say, Mr. President, even the study with the 101 economists, 3 Nobel laureates, in their study—I am referring now to the leading economists for the higher minimum wage, Nobel laureates, with 101 signers of a statement backing a 90-cent hike over 2 years. I will include the whole statement on it. It is only 2 pages long. It says:

> Most policies to boost the income of low-wage workers have positive and negative features. The minimum wage is an important component of the set of policies to help low-wage workers. It has key advantages, including that it produces positive work incentives . . . For these and other reasons, such as its exceptionally low value today, there should be greater reliance on the minimum wage to support the earnings of low-wage workers.
>
> We believe that a Federal minimum wage can be increased by a moderate amount without significantly jeopardizing employment opportunities. A minimum wage increase would provide a much-needed boost to the incomes of many low- and moderate-income households. Specifically, the proposed increase in the minimum wage of 90 cents over a 2-year period falls within the range of alternatives where the overall effects on the labor market, affected workers, and the economy would be positive.

I ask unanimous consent that the entire document be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, Oct. 2, 1995]

LEADING ECONOMISTS CALL FOR HIGHER MINIMUM WAGE

THREE NOBEL WINNERS AMONG 101 SIGNERS OF STATEMENT BACKING 90-CENT HIKE OVER TWO YEARS

An eminent group of economists—including three recipients of the Nobel Prize in Economics—have endorsed an increase in the federal minimum wage in a statement released today.

Among the 101 signatories of the statement are seven past president of the American Economics Association and experts in disciplines ranging from labor markets and industrial relations to income distribution and poverty. Their statement was released by two Washington-based research organizations, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities and the Economic Policy Institute.

The statement notes that "After adjusting for inflation, the value of the minimum wage is at its second-lowest annual level since 1955. The purchasing power of the minimum wage is 26 percent below its average level during the 1970s . . . " The purchasing power of the minimum wage reached its lowest level right before the last increase in 1990.

"We believe that the federal minimum wage can be increased by a moderate amount without significantly jeopardizing employment opportunities . . . Specifically, the proposed increase in the minimum wage of 90 cents over a two-year period falls within the range of alternatives where the overall effects on the labor, market, affected workers and the economy would be positive," the economists' statement continues. (Such an increase has been proposed this year in both the Senate and the House of Representatives.)

The statement's release comes as Congress is actively considering reductions in the Earned Income Tax Credit. Workers who are affected by a stagnant minimum wage are in large part the same people who would be hurt by proposed EITC cuts.

Opponents of a higher minimum wage sometimes claim that economic opinion is settled against any increase. The statement shows that this claim is inaccurate; there is substantial support within the Economics profession for a moderate increase.

The three Novel winners backing the minimum wage increase are Kenneth J. Arrow of Stanford, Lawrence R. Klein of the University of Pennsylvania, and James Tobin of Yale. Each has served as president of the American Economics Association. The other AEA past presidents signing the statement are Moses Abramovitz of Stanford, Robert Eisner of Northwestern, John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard, and William Vickrey of Columbia.

STATEMENT OF SUPPORT FOR A MINIMUM WAGE INCREASE

As economists who are concerned about the erosion in the living standards of households dependent on the earnings of low-wage workers, we believe that the federal minimum wage should be increased. The reasons underlying this conclusion include:

After adjusting for inflation, the value of the minimum wage is at its second lowest annual level since 1955. The purchasing power of the minimum wage is 26 percent below its average level during the 1970s.

Since the early 1970s, the benefits of economic growth have been unevenly distributed among workers. Raising the minimum wage would help ameliorate this trend. The positive effects of the minimum wage are not felt solely by low-income households, but minimum wage workers are overrepresented in poor and moderate-income households.

In setting the value of the minimum wage, it is of course appropriate to assess potential adverse effects. On balance, however, the evidence from recent economic studies of the effects of increases in federal and state minimum wages at the end of the 1980s and in the early 1990s—as well as updates of the traditional time-series studies—suggests that the employment effects were negligible or small. Economic studies of the effects of the minimum wage on inflation suggest that a higher minimum wage would affect prices negligibly.

Most policies to boost the incomes of low-wage workers have both positive and negative features. And excessive reliance on any one policy is likely to create distortions. The minimum wage is an important component of the set of policies to help low-wage workers. It has key advantages, including that it produces positive work incentives and is administratively simple. For these and other reasons, such as its exceptionally low value today, there should be greater reliance on the minimum wage to support the earnings of low-wage workers.

We believe that the federal minimum wage can be increased by a moderate amount without significantly, jeopardizing employment opportunities. A minimum wage increase would provide a much-needed boost in the incomes of many low- and moderate-income households. Specifically, the proposed increase in the minimum wage of 90 cents over a two-year period falls within the range of alternatives where the overall effects on the labor market, affected workers, and the economy would be positive.

Mr. KENNEDY. It is not only these economists and others. I was interested in Business Week not long ago, May 20, 1996—I will include this in the Record—a commentary on "Minimum Wage Argument You Haven't Heard Before." This is Business Week. We all hear a lot about the AFL–CIO supporting the increase. Here is a very interesting thing. We have the economists, and you have DRI, the econometric study up at the Wharton School, one of the most respected computer analyses in terms of economic forecasts estimated. The most they saw would be a 20,000 job loss for the minimum wage.

So you are talking negligible. You have other studies in here. There is the New Jersey-Pennsylvania study, which showed that it increased employment because people not in the wage market saw that they could get a livable wage and went back in. So the total number of workers that were working increased. Therefore, their taxes for their local communities, State and Federal increased as well.

Mr. President, in this "Minimum Wage Argument You Haven't Heard Before"—I will include it all—it says:

As long as it's not overdone, lifting the minimum wage may create overall economic gains that outweigh any short term job loss. In fact, if it keeps productivity rising, slowly boosting labor prices may actually be good for the economy in the long run. "Most economists oppose the minimum wage because they haven't thought through the connection to productivity," says Northwestern University economist Robert J. Gordon.

If this argument is correct, raising the minimum wage might not hurt the economy and could even pay for itself. Economists have preached the virtues of productivity growth since the Luddites and before. But the extra efficiency lowers prices, so consumers buy more goods and expand output—and the economy gains in the long run.

". . . If raising the minimum spurs technical innovations, it could make a real difference in productivity and leave the economy better off," says David B. Neumark, a Michigan State University economist.

I ask unanimous consent that this article be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

A Minimum-Wage Argument You Haven't Heard Before

(By Aaron Bernstein)

Most economists dislike the minimum wage for a simple reason: Raise the price of anything, whether it's lettuce or labor, and buyers can afford less of it. Such elementary logic convinces economists that jacking up the wage floor prices some workers out of a job.

But there's more to the subject than that. Because the relative prices of labor and capital influence corporate investment decisions, minimum-wage levels may affect productivity. If pay rates fall, employers have a greater incentive to buy labor instead of new technology. As a result, productivity growth, the key to higher living standards, slacks off. By the same token, raising pay can spur efficiency.

PAY FOR ITSELF?

As long as it's not overdone, lifting the minimum wage may create overall economic gains that outweigh any short-term job losses. In fact, if it keeps productivity rising, slowly boosting labor prices may actually be good for the economy in the long run. "Most economists oppose the minimum wage because they haven't thought through the connection to productivity," says Northwestern University economist Robert J. Gordon.

The best way to see his point is to look at productivity growth, which has slumped to about 1% a year since 1973 from 3% in prior decades. One reason for the decline is the shift in prices of labor and capital, says Gordon and other economists. Baby boomers and women flooded the economy with cheap labor in the 1970s, they argue, and then the prices of capital exploded in the 1980s, when interest rates went through the ceiling. The result: Employment boomed in low-wage service industries, but productivity sagged as new technology became more pricey. "This is one possible explanation for the slowdown in technological progress," says Paul M. Romer, a productivity expert at the University of California at Berkeley.

If this argument is correct, raising the minimum wage might not hurt the economy and could even pay for itself. Economists have preached the virtues of productivity growth since the Luddites and before. Yes, jobs are lost when employers swap technology for labor. But the extra efficiency lowers prices, so consumers buy more goods and expand output—and the economy gains in the long run. Economists applaud fast-food chains that install automated french-fry cookers and lay off workers. Why should the result be different just because the employer was jolted into action by higher labor costs?

Of course, a minimum wage pegged too high would be a problem. A minimum of $13 an hour, say—the average wage for the economy as a whole—would be a disaster. Everyone still working would be in high-wage, more productive jobs, so the economy would produce more per worker. But half the workforce would be unemployed, so total output would collapse.

EDUCATION

One solution: peg the minimum wage to a fixed percentage of average wages. That way, employers have a steady incentive to search out the most efficient methods of doing business. Yet the incentive isn't likely to become a hurdle that companies can't figure out how to overcome. "If raising the minimum spurs technical innovations, it could make a real difference in productivity and leave the economy better off," concedes David B. Neumark, a Michigan State University economist who writes on the minimum wage.

Neumark and other skeptics still oppose an increase, however, because they doubt that the economic gains would materialize. Their fear: some low-skilled workers will never work again. If so, efficiency gains might not offset the output lost from their labor.

That's why setting a wage floor in today's high-skills economy must be combined with policies aimed at helping young people—who comprise half of all minimum-wage workers—to complete their schooling or vocational training. "Yes, raising the minimum would lift productivity,but then you have to help those on the bottom to keep up," says Harvard University economist Dale W. Jorgenson.

A rising wage floor may boost living standards. It also ensures that low-wage workers aren't left behind. That's good for the economy and society alike.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, something that I think may have had some impact over the history of these debates on the increase in the minimum wage is that we found that Republican Presidents like General Eisenhower, President Nixon, and George Bush all supported increases in the minimum wage. That is why so many of us are startled by the fact that there has been such extraordinary opposition to this whole effort to get an increase in the minimum wage.

For the reasons I have outlined here before, Republican Presidents have supported this. In 1989, Speaker GINGRICH AND BOB DOLE supported it. Yet, we have had this extraordinary difficulty in gaining support for an increase in the minimum wage.

Now, Mr. President, let us take not just the studies that have been done in reviewing past increases, but let us take the most recent examples of increases in the minimum wage and what happened in the States that have seen some increase in the minimum wage. State experiences also prove that minimum wage does not kill jobs.

Both Vermont and Massachusetts raised their State minimum wage to $4.75 in January of this year, while our neighbors in New Hampshire and New York did not. What happened since then? Have we lost jobs in Massachusetts and Vermont? Far from it. Since January, when these States raised their minimum wage, unemployment in both Massachusetts and Vermont has fallen. We have not lost jobs, we have added them. In fact, unemployment fell where the minimum wage was increased and rose where the minimum wage was frozen at $4.25.

Giving working Americans a living wage will not cost jobs. Making all employers pay a living wage will not cost jobs. The minimum wage law in Massachusetts does not exempt businesses with sales of $500,000 or less, and neither does the minimum wage law in Vermont.

Is the minimum wage a serious problem for small business? No, it is not. The studies cited by the Small Business Administration show that only 7 percent of small businesses consider the minimum wage a critical problem. Even a survey prepared by the National Federation of Independent Businesses, which every Member of this body knows is such an advocate in terms of small business, ranked the minimum wage as 62d in importance—62d in importance—out of 75 issues.

Another study, funded by the NFIB Foundation, revealed that even among the smallest of small business—those with less than 10 employees—only 6 percent considered the minimum wage a critical problem.

So, Mr. President, you can see that the States in the most recent times this year that have increased the minimum wage have not lost employment. The results are very similar to what the various studies have shown, that in a number of instances—not all, but in many instances—the increase in the minimum wage has attracted more people into the job market.

You have the outstanding economists that have recognized that an increase in the minimum wage would have effectively a de minimus, negligible impact in terms of the job market. DRI, one of the most respected econometric models, has found that in this most recent analysis that it is a virtually negligible loss of employment. And you find that the States have actually seen an increase in the minimum wage in the last several months. They have not seen a decline in the employment. They have actually seen an increase in the total number of employment.

Mr. President, we are all aware of the stark disparity in compensation in the workplace. The news is full of stories about huge compensation packages for CEO's, and a recent study done by Pearl, Meyer & Partners, a New York compensation consulting fund, found the compensation of CEO's in 30 major companies was 212 times higher than the pay of the average American worker.

Again and again, the financial pages tell the story of the shocking disparity between CEO compensation and pay for the average employees. On April 9, for example, a Washington Post study reported the $65 million compensation package for the CEO of Green Tree Financial Corp.

On that same day the Wall Street Journal published an 18-page section devoted solely to executive pay and the way it has risen through the roof. High-flying executive wages have risen through the roof. High-flying compensation packages like these are increasingly common, and they stand in stark contrast to the minimum wage that has been stuck in the basement for the last 5 years.

Mr. President, one of the groups that is strongest in opposition to the increase has been the food industry and restaurants which have developed a special provision in this Republican proposal as well so they effectively can circumvent any increase in the minimum wage, even though half of the women who work in restaurants across the country take on average $250 home a week. With their dependents you see that they are well below the poverty program. The restaurant industry has been able to carve out their own kinds of protection on it. We have gone through that. I will either take time tomorrow, or later to go through this in greater detail.

But I was particularly interested in looking through the compensation for those in the restaurant industry. What you find is this extraordinary explosion and increase in the salaries of those in the restaurant industries. They have increased dramatically, and no one is begrudging that they are doing very well in terms of the payments. But I daresay it is not very convincing when we hear about the problems the restaurant industry is having, and we see the total work force increasing, the profits going up, and the increase in the CEO's of these various food chain and food restaurant chains—low-wage fast-food restaurants—that are the strongest in opposition to this. We see that their salaries and compensation is going right up through the roof in spite of the fact that by and large most of them have had very, very substantial profits over the period of these recent years—significant profits; dramatic increase in the compensation of the CEO's; and effectively blind opposition to any increase in the minimum wage.

Mr. President, I will maybe go into that in greater detail as we have a chance to go through the debate.

Our Democratic Senators say raise the minimum wage. Our Republicans say let them eat cake. At best the last minimum wage was a very minimum wage. The minimum wage which you can have is effectively the minimum-minimum wage.

What possible rationale can there be for forcing millions of Americans to continue to work, as everyone knows, for wages so low that they cannot support a family? Republicans say the reason is to save jobs. But the fact is the modest increase we are proposing will not cause job loss and may even lead to an increase in employment.

One reason for that result is reflected in the analysis that Salomon Bros. recently released in a U.S. Equity Research Report of April 22, 1996. Salomon Bros. predicted that retail businesses would benefit from an increase in the minimum wage due to the enhanced purchasing power.

This is not a publication by the AFL–CIO. Here is Salomon Brothers' study of April 22, 1996.

> We believe that many retailers, especially discounters, would benefit from an increase in the minimum wage due to the enhanced purchasing power you create for many lower income consumers.

It is interesting that that concept has finally been accepted. Henry Ford understood it at the very beginning of the production of Fords. He understood that the only way he was going to sell his product was to give a decent enough wage so his workers could afford it. That is a lesson that we are coming back to.

So, Mr. President, we have other reasons from the business community that has indicated what their assessment about the impact of the minimum wage is.

So when we come out here later on this afternoon and tomorrow and say, "Well, enormous job loss, inflation loss," the best estimate is that the impact of inflation is one-tenth of 1 percent.

Mr. President, in spite of the sensible studies like this, The National Restaurant Association claims that a minimum wage increase would be a job killer even though the restaurant industry has seen enormous employment growth since the last minimum wage. In fact, the actual experience of the restaurant industry shows the minimum wage increase would be good for business and good for the economy. For 3 years, before the two-step minimum wage in 1990–91, employment growth in the restaurant industry was falling along with the real wages of minimum wage workers. Restaurant industry growth in employment growth fell from 3.1 percent in 1987 to 2.8 percent in 1988, 2.3 percent in 1989, and 1.7 in 1990.

This is the decline in the growth of, annual employment growth, "Eating and Drinking Establishments." It is very interesting that it was in 1990 when the minimum wage went in, in 1991. After the last minimum wage actually went in, we see this dramatic increase in terms of employment. Nonetheless, we just had an enormous 800,000 new jobs in the industry from 1991 to 1995. That is what our Republican friends call "job killing."

I say let us have more of it.

With respect to the Republican proposal for the small business subminimum, it is critical to remember that the last minimum wage increase took effect 5 long years ago. The coverage was expanded at the time to include employees and small restaurants who formally had been excluded. According to the Republican dogma, that expansion should have compounded the job killing effect of the increase. But it did not. Instead, the restaurant industry has enjoyed greater job growth, record profits, mind boggling increases in CEO pay. A subminimum wage is not needed. Small businesses do not need it, and their employees do not deserve that harsh and unfair treatment.

It is no wonder that America is growing apart as a Nation when so much effort is being expended to help those at the top of the ladder while ignoring the families at bottom of the ladder.

By lifting families out of poverty, an increase in the minimum wage of $5.15 an hour has additional benefits to society in terms of saving expenditures under the safety net.

Regrettably, our Republican colleagues continue to try to do all they can to undermine a fair increase in the minimum wage. At every turn, wherever they can, they take away the protection of minimum wage from various groups of workers and delay increases. That is what they try to do. Their goal is to see that any bill that passes leaves us with the result that more people are hurt than helped by the legislation. And that is what the Republican amendment would do.

First, they want to put off any raise until January 1, 1997, at the earliest. That means for another 6 months minimum wage workers will go without a raise as they already have for more than 5 years. They will be denied approximately $500 more in additional pay they would receive over the next 6 months—$500 they could have to buy medicine for children, new school clothes, Christmas presents. Surely our Republican colleagues must find this kind of meanness embarrassing.

Next, the Republican opponents to the minimum wage propose to create a subminimum wage for any worker who takes a job with a new employer. At least the House of Representatives targeted that on teenagers. And then they had a shorter period of time of 90 days. But they had it on teenagers. This is 160 days. And grownups, even if you have been a laid-off skilled worker that has worked for 20 or 30 years, for the first 6 months you are not going to get any increase. Our Republican friends know that about 40 percent of those that get the minimum wage are rotating every year.

So effectively it excludes anywhere from 40 to 45 percent of the total individuals that would be eligible for a minimum wage increase. At least they are true enough more than the last time in 1989 when they called this job training, except there was no requirement that any worker get an hour of training or an hour of education—no requirement on the employers at all. They just say that we need to have them have job training and education on that program because there was no requirement at all that they have it. Now we are talking for a period of 6 months. If you move from one job to another job, which so many of the workers do, you would be excluded. You come to the second job, and you start off there. They say for 6 months you do not get an increase above $4.25. Does not anyone think that might be an incentive for the employer to dismiss those workers? Of course, it will be. Of course, it will be.

I hope our Republican friends will talk to that issue. It will be an additional incentive to dismiss those and hire some others for the $4.25 and save themselves 20 or 22 percent on the employment of those people. But the American people are beginning to understand this issue, and hopefully Senators will reflect their views tomorrow when we will vote on this issue.

What they call an "opportunity" wage is really only an opportunity for the employer. It is not an opportunity for the employee. It is an opportunity for the employer to say that after 6 months you are dismissed, and I am going to bring somebody else in here and pay them $4.25. That is what the opportunity wage under the Bond amendment is really all about.

Mr. President, people that will be hurt most by this are the downsized, the laid-off workers who cannot find jobs equivalent to the job they lost. Not only will they endure the indignity of having their wages fall to the minimum, they will find themselves falling to a subminimum wage as well.

This past year has been a time of economic expansion and relative prosperity for the economy as a whole. But again and again, we see stories of white- and blue-collar workers laid off after long careers in good jobs. Many of these workers have found themselves forced to accept minimum-wage jobs after being laid off by a downsizing employer.

The Republican answer to their pain is to make it even more painful so that these workers fall even further and suffer even deeper financial loss.

Minimum-wage jobs are the least skilled jobs. They are jobs for which little or no job training is needed—at most, a few hours or days. Yet, the Republican amendment doubles the duration of the subminimum wage in the House bill, from the 90 to 180 days—far beyond any reasonable training period or tryout period.

There is no good reason for this harsh proposal.

What they have done is to say, look, we have the opportunity wage of 180 days, 6 months. So that will affect probably 40 percent. Then we cut out the restaurant industry employees from being able to participate. That is going to be another several hundreds of thousands of workers. And then they delay the implementing date. That is going to save the industries hundreds of millions of dollars in terms of wages paid out. Gradually through all of this, with the larger carve-out of any small business under $500,000—and those could be as high as 10 million—if you put all of these together, they will be able to say, look, we voted for an increase in the minimum wage.

The American people are going to understand that that is basically devious, deceptive and demeans, I think, any argument that they are basically for any increase for these working families. Rather than just give us an opportunity to vote on this up and down, no, we cannot. We will have an opportunity, but it will certainly be clouded by this attempt to try to say, look, you can have it both ways. You can have a vote for the minimum wage, and yet you will also protect these various special interest groups. In fact, in the real Republican view, the only good minimum wage is no minimum wage. They would repeal it if they could.

It is so interesting to me that in the period of these past months we have seen the attempts to dismantle the Medicare Program, the assaults that have been made on Social Security, and they have been made on Social Security, although our Republican friends will not say it, because Medicare is a part of Social Security; we can point that out, and it has been pointed out during the course of the previous debate and will again on the various budget issues. So they are opposed to Social Security, opposed to Medicare, and opposed to an increase in the minimum wage, those three essential items which have been such lifelines to millions of American families, to working families, to the elderly people in this country who have toiled and worked so hard for a better America.

The subminimum wage in the House-passed bill is bad enough. It applies only to teenagers. Many of the 18- and 19-year-olds need a living wage as much as any adult, especially if they are young welfare mothers willing to work for a living. The notion that they need training for 3 months in jobs like burger flipping or bagging groceries is absurd.

The Senate Republican proposal is even more objectionable because it imposes a longer subminimum wage.

We will, hopefully, have a chance to respond to points that will be raised by our Republican friends in justification of their proposal perhaps later on this afternoon. I have not taken the time of the Senate to go through other provisions of this bill that has been coupled with the small business tax relief. In fact, the benefits of this bill to businesses are enormous. It provides $15 billion in tax breaks to businesses over a 10-year period. For all the time that we have been talking about the deficit, I hope we are going to hear from our Republican friends as to where they are getting that $15 billion.

Sure, we ought to try to provide some help and relief to the smallest businesses that may be affected, but this is $15 billion that someone is going to have to make up somewhere. Someone is going to have to make it up. Add that to the deficit. Add that to the deficit, or at least respect the intelligence of the American people sufficiently to tell us how you are going to offset that. And can anyone believe that business is being hurt, not helped, with this legislation? Yet, the Senate is knee-deep in crocodile tears shed by Republicans who feel that business is being hurt.

Small business can now deduct up to $17,000 in expenses for new investment in a year the investment is made rather than deducting it over the life of the investment as the normal accounting rules require. This bill would gradually increase the deduction to $25,000. It goes on.

The bill opens up a loophole for corporations that we successfully closed in 1993.

In the 1993 reconciliation act, multinational corporations were required to pay taxes on excess profits and cash on hand from their operations in foreign countries. This provision was the first step needed to close the runaway plant loophole, and it reduced the tax incentives that encouraged U.S. companies to move jobs overseas. That was closed down in 1993, and it is being reopened again—a provision that will provide tax incentives to move American jobs overseas.

This bill provides tax breaks for business owners who run convenience stores with gasoline outlets. It provides tax breaks to banks and investment companies, tax credits to small wineries, helps farmers located in empowerment zones. It goes on. Yet they attempt to deny a fair increase in the minimum wage to millions of low-income Americans. There is no justification for denying even one working American the right to a living wage.

So Senators who preach about family values should practice family values, too. This is our chance to speak to the people who struggle the hardest to make ends meet, to abide by the work ethic, who believe in the American dream of working hard in order to get ahead, yet who find themselves slipping farther and farther behind, no matter how hard they try. We know the hardships they face.

In one family I met last year, the husband works 30 to 35 hours a week at $4.25 for a pizza chain. He works split shifts and evenings. His wife works 40 hours a week at a similar wage. She staggers her work hours so she or her husband can be home to take care of their young children. They have no health coverage. They cannot afford child care, let alone a medical savings account. Because they work different hours, they are rarely able to spend time together, and they worry about trying to save to send their children to college because both of them are still paying off loans for the 1 year of college they attended.

Large numbers of minimum wage workers have similar stories. They are bright, hard-working Americans often with high school educations and dreaming of a brighter future, but they are barely scraping by because the law allows their work to be undervalued and underpaid.

I urge the Senate to do the right thing for them, for the 13 million other Americans who will get a raise if this amendment is approved. Now is the time to make the minimum wage a fair wage. No one who works for a living should have to live in poverty.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent, in addition to those articles and periodicals I referred to in my statement, to have printed in the RECORD a "List of Signatories to Economists Statement of Support for a Minimum Wage Increase."

There being no objection, the list was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SIGNATORIES TO ECONOMISTS STATEMENT OF SUPPORT FOR A MINIMUM WAGE INCREASE

Aaron, Henry—Brookings Institution.
Abramovitz, Moses—Stanford University.
Allen, Steven G.—North Carolina State University.
Altonji, Joseph G.—Northwestern University.
Appelbaum, Eileen—Economic Policy Institute.
Arrow, Kenneth J.—Stanford University.
Bartik, Timothy J.—Upjohn Institute.
Bator, Francis M.—Harvard University.
Bergmann, Barbara—American University.
Blanchard, Olivier—Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
Blanchflower, David—Dartmouth College.
Blank, Rebecca—Northwestern University.
Bluestone, Barry—University of Massachusetts Boston.
Bosworth, Barry—Brookings Institution.
Briggs, Vernon M.—Cornell University.
Brown, Clair—University of California at Berkeley.
Browne, Robert S.—Howard University.
Burtless, Gary—Brookings Institution.
Burton, John—Rutgers University.
Chimerine, Lawrence—Economic Strategy Institute.
Danziger, Sheldon—University of Michigan.
Darity, William Jr.—University of North Carolina.
DeFreitas, Gregory—Hofstra University.
Diamond, Peter A.—Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
Duncan, Greg J.—Northwestern University.
Ehrenberg, Ronald A.—Cornell University.
Eisener, Robert—Northwestern University.
Ferguson, Ronald F.—Harvard University.
Faux, Jeff—Economic Policy Institute.
Galbraith, James K.—University of Texas at Austin.
Galbraith, John Kenneth—Harvard University.
Garfinkel, Irv—Columbia University.
Gibbons, Robert—Stanford University.
Glickman, Norman—Rutgers University.
Gordon, David M.—New School for Social Research.
Gordon, Robert J.—Northwestern University.
Gramlich, Edward—University of Michigan.
Gray, Wayne—Clark University.
Harrison, Bennett—Harvard University.
Hartmann, Heidi—Institute for Women's Policy Research.
Haveman, Robert H.—University of Wisconsin.
Heilbroner, Robert—New School for Social Research.
Hirsch, Barry T.—Florida State University.
Hirschman, Albert O.—Princeton University.
Hollister, Robinson G.—Swarthmore College.
Holzer, Harry J.—Michigan State University.
Howell, David R.—New School for Social Research.
Hurley, John—Jackson State University.
Jacoby, Sanford M.—University of California at Los Angeles.
Kahn, Alfred E.—Cornell University.
Kamerman, Sheila B.—Columbia University.
Katz, Harry C.—Cornell University.
Katz, Lawrence—Harvard University.
Klein, Lawrence R.—University of Pennsylvania.
Kleiner, Morris M.—University of Minnesota.
Kochan, Thomas A.—Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
Lang, Kevin—Boston University.
Lester, Richard A.—Princeton University.
Levy, Frank—Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Lindbloom, Charles E.—Yale University.
Madden, Janice F.—University of Pennsylvania.
Mangum, Garth—University of Utah.
Margo, Robert—Vanderbilt University.
Markusen, Ann—Rutgers University.
Marshall, Ray—University of Texas at Austin.
Medoff, James L.—Harvard University.
Meyer, Bruce—Northwestern University.
Minsky, Hyman P.—Bard College.
Mishel, Lawrence—Economic Policy Institute.
Montgomery, Edward B.—University of Maryland.
Murnane, Richard J.—Harvard University.
Musgrave, Peggy B.—University of California at Santa Cruz.
Musgrave, Richard A.—University of California at Santa Cruz.
Nichols, Donald—University of Wisconsin.
Ooms, Van Doom—Committee for Economic Development.
Osterman, Paul—Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
Packer, Arnold—Johns Hopkins University.
Papadimitriou, Dimitri B.—Jerome Levy Economics Institute.
Perry, George L.—Brookings Institution.
Peterson, Wallace C.—University of Nebraska at Lincoln.
Pfeifer, Karen—Smith College.
Piore, Michael—Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
Polenske, Karen—Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
Quinn, Joseph—Boston College.
Reich, Michael—University of California at Berkeley.
Reynolds, Lloyd G.—Yale University.
Scherer, F.M.—Harvard University.
Schor, Juliet B.—Harvard University.
Shaikh, Anwar—Jerome Levy Economics Institute.
Smeeding, Tim—Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences.
Smolensky, Eugene—University of California at Berkeley.
Stromsdorfer, Ernst W.—Washington State University.
Summers, Anita A.—University of Pennsylvania.
Summers, Robert—University of Pennsylvania.
Tobin, James—Yale University.
Vickrey, William—Columbia Unviersity.
Voos, Paula B.—University of Wisconsin.
Vroman, Wayne—Urban Institute.
Watts, Harold—Columbia University.
Whalen, Charles J.—Jerome Levy Economics Institute.
Wolff, Edward—New York University.

SMALL BUSINESS EXEMPTION

Mr. KENNEDY. Finally, Mr. President, an op-ed article in today's USA Today by Jack Faris, president and CEO of the National Federation of Independent Business, perpetuates the fallacy that Congress acted by mistake in 1989 when it increased the small business exemption under the so-called enterprise coverage test, but failed to do so for the so-called individual coverage test. In fact, Congress was well aware of the effect of its actions in 1989. There was no mistake.

Since the beginning, the minimum wage has covered large numbers of workers engaged in interstate commerce, regardless of the size of the firms they work for.

In fact, the original minimum wage, enacted in 1938, contained only the individual coverage test. That coverage was based on the view that Congress had broad power under the commerce clause of the Constitution to protect workers even in the smallest firms, as long as the workers were involved in interstate commerce.

From 1938 to 1961, coverage was based only on that principle—individual coverage—a case-by-case, worker-by-worker analysis as to whether the actual work involved interstate commerce.

At the beginning, the minimum wage also contained numerous exemptions based largely on policy decisions and interest group pressures. In some cases, entire industries or occupations were excluded from coverage. In the years since 1938, the major goals of Congress have been not only to increase the purchasing power of the minimum wage—or at least prevent a decline in its purchasing power because of inflation—but also to reduce the scope of these broad exemptions.

Notwithstanding the numerous industry specific exemptions, Congress never enacted a general exemption for small businesses. Since the beginning, many workers in very small firms have continued to be protected by the minimum wage under the individual coverage test.

In 1961, with the economy having grown rapidly in the years after World War II, and with vastly increased economic activities crossing State lines, Congress changed the definition of coverage of the minimum wage to achieve coverage in a more practical way.

The 1961 act specified that all workers in enterprises with more than a certain level of annual sales would be regarded as engaged in interstate commerce, and would therefore be covered by the minimum wage, whether or not the particular activities of individual workers in the firms involved interstate commerce. This new test of coverage was widely referred to as enterprise coverage.

The sales figure for the standard was set at various levels for various industries. For enterprises comprised exclusively of retail service establishments, the threshold for coverage was set at $362,500. For most other industries, the threshold was $250,000. But for hospitals, schools, public agencies, and enterprises engaged in construction, laundry, or drycleaning, the threshold was zero—all employees in those industries were covered, regardless of the size of their firm.

The addition of enterprise coverage was an expansion, not a reduction, of coverage. It was not a small business exemption from coverage—it was a large business expansion of coverage. It meant that workers in firms with sales above the threshold were protected by the minimum wage, regardless of their personal status in interstate commerce. They were covered, because their employers were involved in interstate commerce.

Under the 1961 act, workers in firms below the specified level of annual sales continued to be covered under the previous case-by-case, worker-by-worker standard, the so-called individual coverage.

One result of the broad increase in coverage by the 1961 act under enterprise coverage was the narrowing of the previous blanket exemption for workers in small retail firms and service firms. Workers in firms below the threshold in those industries for enterprise coverage continued to be exempted from individual coverage, even if they were engaged in interstate commerce. Above the threshold, workers in those industries were covered for the first time by the minimum wage.

That basic dual structure of enterprise coverage and individual coverage has continued since 1961. In 1989, Congress enacted a large increase in the threshold of coverage under the enterprise test—to $500,000 in annual sales. That increase, if enacted by itself, would have reversed the 50-year history of expansions of coverage of the minimum wage, by excluding an estimated 3 million workers from its coverage under the enterprise test.

That reduction in coverage was unacceptable by itself—so Congress offset the reduction by repealing the blanket exemption for workers in retail and service firms under the individual coverage test. For such firms, the pre-1961 case-by-case worker-by-worker test was reinstated. If the workers were engaged in interstate commerce, they were covered by the minimum wage.

In recent years, some, like Mr. Faris, have attempted to argue that Congress mistakenly repealed the blanket exemption for these small retail and service firms. It is clear that some Members of Congress thought they were voting for a blanket small business exemption when they voted to increase the threshold for the enterprise test to $500,000. But those Members of Congress were ignoring the longstanding principle of individual coverage—which the 1989 act did not abandon, and for good reason.

The overall legislative history of the 1989 act makes very clear that Congress intended to repeal the exemption for small retail and service firms. Otherwise, the entire legislation would have made no sense. The large increase in the threshold for enterprise coverage would have meant that 3 million workers were no longer covered by the minimum wage. Repeal of the exemption for small retail and service firms under individual coverage expanded that aspect of coverage by about the same number of workers. That result was intended by Congress, since the expansion of individual coverage offset the reduction in enterprise coverage. Without that fundamental compromise, the 1989 act would never have been approved by Congress.

So I hope my Republican colleagues will reflect again on this legislative history, and reconsider their attempt to reduce coverage of the minimum wage by exempting so many workers from its protection. Those who work for small firms deserve an increase in the minimum wage. They have waited 5 years for a fair increase, and now is the time for Congress to enact it.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE MINIMUM WAGE

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I commend my colleague, the senior Senator from Massachusetts, for his excellent remarks this morning in discussing the important issue of the minimum wage.

Harry Truman once said: "Republicans favor a minimum wage, the minimum possible wage." I think that a lot of what was said in the 1940's may be applicable today, with a 1996 twist, which is: The minimum possible wage for the minimum number of people to be affected. That, really, is the debate that we will have today and tomorrow with regard to the Bond amendment.

I want to call everyone's attention to the Bond amendment for what it is and what it is not. The Bond amendment, in many cases and in many ways, could be described as a Swiss cheese approach to the minimum wage; Swiss cheese, because it has so many holes it does not provide for the kind of continuity, the kind of opportunity that everyone ought to have if the minimum wage is to be an applicable national wage.

There are four very specific issues that it addresses in a very harmful manner, for those who are dependent upon the minimum wage. I want to discuss very briefly each of those four this afternoon. Suffice it to say, the Bond amendment is truly a vote against the minimum wage and against working families who depend upon it. It gives with one hand and takes with the other. It uses exemptions, denials, and delays to provide minimum wage increases to a minimum possible number of people. It is a more extreme version of this amendment than what was defeated in the House a couple of months ago.

The Bond amendment, No. 1, effectively denies an increase to all workers for the first 6 months of employment. It does not matter whether you are young or you are old, whether you are working for summer earnings or have to feed a family, whether you are with or without any experience, that provision in the Bond amendment would simply deny, for 6 months of employment, any opportunity to benefit whatsoever from the minimum wage.

The House-passed bill applies the subminimum to workers under the age of 20 for the first 3 months of employment. Already that is an extreme provision in some respects. The Bond amendment is even worse. The high turnover in these jobs is an inevitability, so many workers would never get an increase. I can see in some cases right now where someone will work for 5 months and 2 weeks and then find he or she is going to be left without work because to increase that person's wage would be something the small business owner may not want to do. So, in essence, you are going to get churning of people, regardless of what age they are; working for 5 months and 2 weeks or 5 months and 3 weeks, only to be denied a minimum wage job after that.

I believe most employers are very honest, hard-working people who care a lot of about their employees. But how many unscrupulous employers will there be, people who will find ways in which to avoid the law, avoid paying the minimum wage, avoid living up to their responsibility and find a way to keep people at this extraordinarily low, subminimum level?

The President feels so strongly about this provision alone that he said he would veto the bill if this provision is in the legislation when it reaches his desk.

Second, the Bond amendment denies an increase for any employee of companies with less than $500,000 in annual sales. Mr. President, these companies employ 10.5 million people. They make up two-thirds of all workplaces today. They include not only retail and service establishments, but manufacturing firms as well. Their employees already are denied benefits of most Federal worker protection laws. They earn lower wages, get fewer benefits, and have less job security than virtually anybody in the country. They should not be stripped of their minimum wage protections as well.

Over and above everything else, to say that a worker who only has the option of working in a company with sales less than $500,000, who probably does not get health insurance, probably does not get any other worker protection at the Federal level and probably has less job security, but at the same time now may also be denied even minimum wage protection is wrong. That is extreme, and that is something that we simply must oppose.

A third provision denies any raise to waitresses or waiters or other tipped employees. Right now employers need to pay only 50 percent of the minimum wage, or $2.13 an hour for tipped employees. Instead of maintaining that 50 percent employer payment, the Bond amendment freezes it for all perpetuity at $2.13. We could be here 20 years from now, and if the Bond amendment were to be adopted, anybody who worked in a restaurant would be frozen at $2.13, dependent entirely upon tips for any kind of an increase in a living wage.

This is especially a problem for women, because 80 percent of tipped employees today are women. In 1995, about half of full-time waitresses earned roughly $250 a week, less than the poverty level for a family of three. Just last year, half of the full-time people who worked on tips earned roughly $250 a week. So what we are going to tell all of those people, 80 percent of whom are women, is, "You're going to have to live with a frozen minimum wage at $2.13 an hour for all perpetuity. There isn't any option for an increase. You don't have any opportunity to see your wages increase along with everybody else's. That $250 that you may be getting right now to feed your two kids, well, keep in mind we want to keep you off welfare, we're going to kick you off welfare, we're going to tell you to go get a job, go get child support, get health insurance, go find a way to clothe and house your kids, do all of that, but we're going to freeze your wage at $2.13 an hour."

Mr. President, I cannot believe that this body is prepared to say that. If we want to reward work, if we want to protect families, if we want to find ways to ensure the children are going to grow in an environment that allows a mother to be home at least part of the time instead of getting three and four jobs, staying at home with children instead of working at wages that pay $2.13 an hour, then it would seem to me that they, above and beyond just about anybody else, ought to be entitled to some increase in the minimum wage.

The final thing is, this amendment delays the date of the minimum wage for another 6 months. When the House Members passed their bill, they said it was going to go into effect virtually on Independence Day, on July 4—actually, July 1, a couple of days before Independence Day—in the hopes that maybe some families out there could declare some independence economically, some opportunity to be a little freer than they are right now.

The Bond amendment says, "No, no, that's too fast. If you earn minimum wage today, we're going to ask you to wait until after next Christmas before you're entitled to any increase in the minimum wage. You're not going to get it in July, you're not going to get it by Labor Day, the day we set aside to honor working families. No, we're going to make you wait until after next Christmas. We're going to wait until next January before this wage goes into effect." This is on top of months of delay caused by a Republican filibuster to the minimum wage.

Mr. President, minimum wage workers have gone without a raise now for 5 years. We have had raises. Most people have had raises in this country over the last 4 and 5 years. How remarkable it is that those same people who espouse welfare reform, who want to join with us in providing real opportunities for work, to encourage work, would say that the one thing that would probably encourage work more than anything else, an increase in the minimum wage, is something we just should not do. We should not do it for tipped employees, we should not do it for employees in businesses that have less than a $500,000 gross income, we should not do it for the first 180 days for anybody who is on minimum wage. Regardless of what else happens, we better not even do it until 1997.

I must tell you, Mr. President, I have a hard time understanding the motivation for those who would want to say that to over 10.5 million people—actually close to 14 million workers—in this country. This delay equals the loss of more than $500 in pay, money that could go for the health care and the food and housing that kids are going to need.

Every day on the floor somebody with good judgment and with good reason comes to lament the destruction of the family, comes to lament the destruction of this nuclear core that we think so much about and that we think really is the key to a civilized society. We cannot understand why there are teenagers out on the street making trouble for the rest of society. We do not understand why they lost their values. We cannot figure out why there is an increase in juvenile crime and truancy and all the other problems.

Mr. President, I will tell you why. The reason is because more and more mothers and fathers are forced to leave their homes, unable to take care of their children, because they have three or four jobs they have to hold to make ends meet. That is what this is all about.

So if we are ever going to get back to making sure that the family is protected, making sure those children have core values with which to ensure that they will be productive parts of society, then it seems to me we have to understand that it all starts with the paycheck and whether or not families have the dignity and the opportunity that they must be accorded to ensure that there is some paycheck security in their families.

Minimum wage workers are not what many people think they are. Two-thirds of them are adults; 40 percent are sole breadwinners; 60 percent are women. Minimum wage workers' earnings account for almost half of the families' total earnings today.

So, Mr. President, this is going to be, of all the votes we cast, one of the most critical votes we are going to cast this year, because it sends a clear message out there that we hear you, we know how insecure so many people feel today because of their inability to pay their bills. Not that they are not working hard enough; they are working harder and longer than other families in history. They are making the hard choices about going out and finding another job or staying home and taking care of their children.

America is going to watch this vote. They are going to watch to see whether we vote for the Swiss cheese Bond amendment, the one with all the holes in it, the one that devastates the minimum wage law for the first time in decades, or whether we are going to stand up and say, at long last, America needs a raise after 5 years.

Those who are on minimum wage deserve it. If we want to keep them off welfare, they deserve at least a 90-cent increase. That is all we are proposing here. It is time we do it. Inflation has eaten away 95 percent of the last increase. At the current level of $4.25 an hour, many minimum wage workers who work 40 hours a week do not earn enough to keep their families out of poverty. How sad that is today.

So unless we act, the minimum wage is going to fall to the lowest level in 40 years. This does not have to be partisan. The last time we voted on this it was bipartisan. Six weeks ago, the House voted overwhelmingly in favor of it; 93 House Republicans voted for it. The vast majority, I am told, over 80 percent of the American people, want to see it increased.

This is a chance to do something right. It is a chance for us to stop stalling, to send a clear message to people across this land that we recognize how important your paycheck and your long-term security is, we recognize how important your family is, we recognize that if we are going to urge you to stay off welfare and go to work, that you need a wage to do it. That is what this does. It is important we pass a minimum wage increase. It is important we defeat the Bond amendment. It is important at long last we sign the increase into law.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield for a very brief question?

Mr. DASCHLE. Yes. I will be happy to.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I included in the RECORD the statement by the National Retail Federation that was put out on July 1. The National Retail Federation is the largest retail trade association in the country. In their front page they referenced the minimum wage fight in the Senate. They say President Clinton says he will veto the minimum wage increase if it passes, talking about this particular proposal. "Let him." "It is our last chance and best hope for stopping the minimum wage increase this year," referring to the Bond amendment.

So here is the largest retail association saying effectively that the best way to stop any increase in the minimum wage is to support the Bond amendment. I have concluded that was really a devious measure in the sense that people want to have it both ways.

This is my question: Whether the Senator would think that the argument might be made to those who support the Bond amendment, well, you can vote for it; it is an increase in the minimum wage. But on the other hand, for reasons that the Senator has outlined so well this afternoon, effectively it gives with the one hand and takes away with the other hand.

I am just wondering if this is really the purpose: Our best chance and best hope for stopping the minimum wage increase this year. Here is the largest retail organization making this clear statement. We ought to call a spade a spade and say that effectively the Bond amendment is really an effort to stop and halt any increase to the minimum wage. That would be the result of it were it to pass. So the vote would be very clear in terms of who is on the side of working families and who is not. I am just wondering what conclusion the Senator from South Dakota would reach on that.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, if I could—I will use whatever leader time I may require. I know our time runs out at 2 o'clock. Given the fact no one else is here at this point, I will use leader time to the extent necessary to respond to the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KEMPTHORNE). The Senator may use his leader time.

Mr. DASCHLE. The Senator from Massachusetts is absolutely right. In many respects, I think there are some of our colleagues who would like to have it both ways. They would like to say, "Yes, I voted for a minimum wage increase," but then go tell some of their business constituents, "But really I didn't. I really didn't. This is not a real minimum wage because we exempt virtually everybody."

I was home last weekend, and I just took my own poll. I asked retailers, I asked people in just about every line of business I could find in South Dakota, "What do you think? What do you think about raising the minimum wage? Is this something that you oppose? Would this hurt you badly? What are your thoughts?"

I was amazed, just amazed at the level of sophistication, about the compassion, about the recognition of the importance of this issue, about how troubled many of our employers are in watching their employees try to make ends meet by holding down two and three jobs, because they know that one job is not going to be enough.

One employer told me, "You know, TOM, I really don't know how these employees do it today. I go home and I watch the baseball game at night when I finish work. Some of my employees go to their second job. And their spouses are already at a second or third job. I don't know, but more and more I'm seeing their kids out in the streets because I know they're not home taking care of them."

I had an employee tell me the only dinner—the only dinner—they have together is after church on Sunday once a week. The whole family now gets together for dinner once, on a Sunday, because they have no time during the week, no time because everybody is working even harder carrying out second and third jobs. As a result, the kids cook for themselves. The kids are doing whatever they have to. Hopefully they are doing their homework.

But, Mr. President, that is exactly what we are trying to talk about here. We are trying to address a real and growing problem. If we are serious about family, if we are serious about trying to keep them together and teach our youngsters values, who is to do it if the family is not together? Can you teach all the values that you have to share with a young person growing up on a Sunday after church? I do not think so.

So, while some of our colleagues would like very much to be able to say, "I voted for a minimum wage," but then secretly, "I voted to gut it," let me tell you, there are a lot of business people, at least in South Dakota, who see it for what it is, who recognize that we have to do what is honorable here. It is time we recognized that people on minimum wage need more than just $4.25 an hour to survive if they are going to take care of their kids. So I appreciate very much the distinguished Senator's raising the question. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous agreement, the Senator from Georgia, Mr. COVERDELL, is to control the next 90 minutes.

Mr. COVERDELL addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. COVERDELL. It is my understanding that for the next 90 minutes, I or my designee have control of that time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. COVERDELL. Very good.

FBI FILES AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Mr. COVERDELL. Mr. President, on Wednesday, July 3, which, incidentally, was the cost-of-Government day, which means the last day after which an American family finally quit paying Government—July 4 took on a special meaning because it was not only Independence Day, but because it is the first day a family could keep its own check. But, interestingly enough, in the midst of all the debate, a very interesting editorial appeared in the Washington Post, which characterizes itself as an independent newspaper.

On July 3, the Washington Post said, "FBI Files and the ex-FBI Author." That was the name of the article. It says:

> Controversy swirls around both [these issues], but it ought to be possible to separate the probe of the improperly requisitioned FBI reports by the Clinton White House from the effort to sort out fact from fiction in former FBI agent Gary Aldrich's book about life at the White House.

I agree with this. I agree that the commentary of a popular book ought to be separate from the very, very serious issue of hundreds of our citizens' personal FBI files going to the—hundreds. At this time the current number keeps going up. It started out 300. Then it went to 407. Then it went to 600. Then 700. The last report I have seen is 900. It is almost beyond belief. Both that the White House could request those personal files and that those files could be violated by our own Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Post says:

> The three probes need to find out if the country has an abuse of presidential power on its hands or whether it is witnessing yet one more White House staff-administered blow to this president's prestige.

Mr. President, for my own part, while there is deep concern about what has transpired at the White House, I think so far the public discourse underestimates what transpired at the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It is beyond my understanding how this many personal files or the data in those files could be copied and so routinely made available to the White House without fire alarms and sirens going off from the front to the back door and all the way to the Director's office. I cannot imagine how this could happen. Now, the Director has said there was an egregious breach of honor between the White House and the FBI, but much more will have to be answered than that simple question.

Mr. President, I see we have been joined by the distinguished Senator from Arizona. I yield up to 15 minutes to the Senator from Arizona for his remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Georgia both for taking time to get into this matter and also for yielding time to me.

I was perplexed, to say the least, as I sat through hearings as a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee just before the Fourth of July break, hearing testimony from Mr. Livingstone and others regarding this matter of the FBI files. I am going to come back to some conclusions that came out of that hearing and some questions that remain in a moment.

I thought, first, perhaps, it would be useful to discuss generally what we have here. There have been, especially in the time since Watergate, numerous investigations of officials involved in different administrations. To some extent, I think this has been politically motivated. To a large extent, I think it is a process that is important in a democracy, because people need to have confidence in their Government, particularly when people in high places are accused of wrongdoing or there is a potential of wrongdoing. We have established a system whereby an independent kind of investigator or prosecutor called the special counsel is appointed by the Attorney General, with court acquiescence, to investigate matters. There have been prosecutions from time to time in administrations since the Watergate matter that have demonstrated it is wise to have these kinds of special counsel available to look into such matters.

While there may be some politics involved, and certainly Republicans believe there is politics involved in some of the investigations in the Reagan and Bush administrations, and I am sure that some Democrats believe there is glee in Republican ranks to find things wrong now in a Democratic administration, the fact is it is still important to try to get to the bottom of some of these matters, particularly where it goes beyond politics. I think it can be demonstrated with this administration that it has gone far beyond politics, that there has been wrongdoing, and that there are people in this administration that, to say the least, have been ethically challenged.

As a matter of fact, Mr. President, according to an article written by Mary McGrory in the Washington Post,

> President Clinton said that his administration would be the most ethical administration in the history of the Republic.

